U.S. hostages coming home

United Press International

A U.S.-chartered Iraqi airliner carrying nearly 175 Americans left Baghdad for Germany Sunday, Baghdad Radio reported, just hours after a smaller group of freed hostages touched down in Texas to cries of joy from their families.

An Iraqi jet loaded with Italian hostages also departed Baghdad Sunday, heading for Rome, the official Iraqi news agency INA. The agency did not say how many Italian hostages were aboard, but previous news reports said the plane would carry 150 Italians.

A British-chartered Iraqi jet was due to leave Baghdad Monday afternoon with the first load of British hostages, the British Broadcasting Corp. quoted a Foreign Office spokesman as

Loan repayment plan to attract new recruits

By Brian Gross Staff Writer

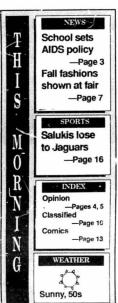

Army recruiters have found it tougher to recruit people because of Operation Desert Shield but are hoping an expanded loan repayment program will attract more college students. Capt. Lee Butcher said the deployment of U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia has scared some people from joining the military. "It does make recruiters' jobs a little bit harder," said Butcher, a recruiter for the St. Louis Army Recruiting Battalion.

More than 100 people of all ages marched in protest of President Bash's Middle East policy Saturday in Carbondale and received some signs of approval from passing motorists. Forming two groups at the east and west limits of Carbondale, protesters carried signs and banners along Route 13 and converged at Illinois Avenue fore going to the Newman Center for a rally. We've done a lot of publicity to get a cross-section of people," said Mary Campbell, who helped organize the event, sponsored by the Coalition For Mid-East Peace. She said the group had bored for the number of neople who actually had hoped for the number of people who actually turned out.

The protesters agreed that going to war to remove Saddam Hussein from Kuwait was wrong. Edward Adams, a World War II veteran, said getting involved in WW II was necessary, but getting in a war now isn't.

"Not having the cold war enemy, the administration is desperately finding something to keep military budget high," Adams said. "Let sanctions work, They worked in South Africa." Cynthia Tack of Anna marched in Washington to protest the Vietnam War and was prompted to march for the gulf crisis by her 12-year-old son, when he says is upset by the prospect of war. "It is gone through a lot of emotional turmoil," Dudis said. "He doesn't understand why we are there. (Protesting) shows him he can take some responsibility and take action." By Julie Autor Staff Writer

SIUC head coach Rich Herrin said .'e 87-82 loss Saturday night to South Alabama, which broke the Salukis' undefeated record, will not crush him or his team.

"One game never breaks you," Herrin said. "We got close and got it under 10. Andrew (Amaya) started it with a 3-point shot. It went back and forth the rest of the game. We just didn't get out of the gates. We played very hard and we played excellent basketball.

Giants take NFC East with win over Vikings

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) -- Ottis Anderson scored his second touchdown of the game during a fourth-quarter rally Sunday, helping the New York Giants clinch the NFC East title with a 23-15 triumph over the Minnesota Vikings.

The 2-yard TD at 8:10, the Giants' first second-half score in four games, allowed Anderson to become the eighth player in NFL history to rush for 10,000 yards. It also circumvented a third straight loss for New York, which had dropped two games after winning its first 10, and stopped Minnesota's five-game winning streak

Greg Jackson's interception sparked the fourth-quarter comeback, setting up a 48-yard field goal by Matt Bahr at 1:20. Bahr added his third field goal of the game in the last minute after Anderson's apparent third TD was nullified after TV review. Minnesota, 6-7 after a 1-6 start, is fighting for an NFC wild-card playoff spot. Rodney Hampton ran for 18 vards on the Giants' winning drive, including an 11-yard run off tackle to the 13. Phil Simms added a 16- yard completion to Stephen Baker and later threw a 7-yard pass to Mark Ingram to move the Giants to the Minnesota 2, setting up Anderson's score up the middle. Simms' vital performance on the drive offset an otherwise poor day. He completed only 8 of 19 passes for 118 yards and no TDs.

A.J. Johnson and Brad Edward intercepted Jim Harbaugh passes in the final moments to seal the victory.

Rypien completed 12 of 25 passes for 148 yards and one touchdown. His five interceptions, three by Mark Carrier, fell one short of tying a team record. Earnest Byner rushed for 121 yards on 28 carries for the Redskins.

Chicago's interceptions-two by Carrier and one by Donnell Woolford—sent the Bears on their way to field goals by Butler, the scoring in the first half. only

University AIDS Task Force looks at SIUC's AIDS policy

By John Patterson Staff Writer

With the ever growing threat of the AIDS virus, one University organization is taking steps to deal with the problem if it ever come to SIUC

The a niversity AIDS Task Force is continuously working to update SIUC's AIDS policy. The task force started two and one half years ago and is currently headed by Paulotte Curkin.

SIUC's AIDS policy essentially says that the University will not discriminate against the infected individual and confidentiality will be remained, Curkin said.

The task force was created by the University president so when SIUC faced an AIDS case it would have a policy to deal with it, she said. Information on AIDS cases at SIUC is privileged but Carkin said no cases have been reported.

education," she said, audiing that the Task Force now includes several subcommittees including one for education.

"We're coordinating University efforts in education and have looked into AIDS education in required classes," Curkin said.

While a task force is usually concerned only with performing its assigned task, Curkin said the nature of the AIDS Task Force requires it to be an ongoing activity.

"We meet once a semister as a totacommittee and through out the semister as subcommittees and executive committees." she said. "We definitely felt we needed to exist. We're the only ones that can deal with an AIDS problem."

Curkin said this year she has been looking at areas that the task force has not addressed in the past.

Areas such as AIDS in the minority population, AIDS in rural America and an increase of gay bashing will be studied by the AIDS task force subcommittees, Curkin s.d. "Over 50 percent of all AIDS babies are of

Library fire investigation continues

By Leslie Colp

An investigation by Physical Plant employees is being continued to determine the cause of the fire that brought two fire trucks to Morris Library at about 9:15 p.m. Thursday.

Smoke was traveling through the ductwork of the library and coming through vents in the men's and women's restrooms on the second, third and seventh floors, said John Manis, assistant fire chief of the Carbondale Fire Department.

The ductwork connects the second throught the seventh floors.

Firefighters said there is a possibility that the fire could have originated from the seventh-floor motor that controls the exhaust in the ductwork.

"I couldn't have been a very big fire," Manis said. "There's nothing in (the ductwork) to burn except lint and dust." A few hundred people were evacuated

A few hundred people were evacuated from the library when a student pulled a fire alarm on the third floor, said Jay Starratt, assistant director of library services. "I was surprised at how quickly it cleared."

Starratt said. "I didn't have to push anybody out the door."

Starratt said the library will be open as scheduled for finals week.

Nursing bill to boost regional health care

THE RECENTLY PASSED NURSING license bill is a healthy dose of the right medicine for health care in Southern Illinois.

The new law will speed up the process for out-of-state nurses getting Illinois licenses, thus paving the way for a speedy recovery for area health care.

Health care in Southern Illinois is in critical condition. People must drive hundreds of miles to get the basic health care they need.

IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS THERE aren't enough health care facilities, enough doctors willing to work in the poverty level area and not enough nurses.

Qualified nurses from other states don't have to wait now. They can get temporary permits while waiting for their licenses.

The General Assembly estimated that more than 2,000 nurses last year had to wait for several months before they could get their license.

BECAUSE OF THIS DELAY, AT least 16,000 weeks of nursing service were lost. Southern Illinois simply can't afford this kind of delay.

It's too bad thousands of weeks of service were lost and the quality of health care dwindled because of this bureaucratic red tape.

This new law provides a simple, inexpensive solution to a costly, critical problem.

THE WARM GLOW of Christmas can transcend distances to military personnel spending their holiday in Saudi Arabia.

Veteran groups are preparing packages filled with candy, dried fruit and cookies.

Families are forming support groups.

All these are ways to make life easier for military personnel and their families.

Christmas will be an especially difficult time for those with relatives or friends in Saudi Arabia.

The best Christmas gift we can give to those with relatives in Saudi Arabia is moral support.

DON'T TELL PEOPLE you know how they feel, recommends Kevin Corcoran, an assistant psychology professor at SIUC. Because unless you've gone through it, you don't know.

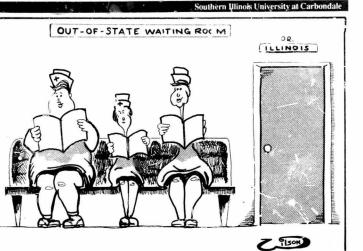

Don't tell people to take comfort in the knowledge that the service personnel are there for a good cause. Logic can't change emotions and won't take away sadness, according to Corcoran.

The best support you can give is to let people know you are there if they need someone to talk to.

Whether it's sending gifts or providing support, Americans in Saudi Arabia may be separated from us by miles, but distance does not separate them from our hearts.

I, too, sat through the end of the Van Winkle years and the terrific rebuilding done by Rich Herrin.

I sympathize with you over your poor seats at the Arena. I agree that die-hard, vocal, loyal Saluki fans should get the best seats in the house, and those seats are the ones on the lower level.

My dispute with you is over your use of the term "booster." There is an organization called the Saluki Booster Club of which I am a proud member. Most true boosters I know are extremely sup-portive and vocal, especial-ly in sections A and U. Just atch us sometime!

There are many apathetic attendees at the games who were awarded good seats, but do not automatically assume they are true Saluki Boosters because it may not be so.

I urge you to continue your support wherever you sit in the Arena—I know it is appreciated by the team and Coach Herrin .--- Sandy Hostetler, school of medicine.

Obedience glorified

This letter serves as a resp Brad Striegel's letter in which he accused Stephanie Atkinson of "cowardice" and suggested that she should have enough pride to take her own life.

This hateful, name-calling letter seems to glorify the idea that military personnel should be loyal and obedient no matter what they personally feel and what the consequences might be.

He quotes a French general saying, "I am a soldier, I do not have a policy" and ends his letter with a Marine Corps Major's nent boasting of the repeated whipping of deserters that also suggests "shooting one or two of them" to "be rid of this vile scourge.

Is this kind of attitude something to be proud of? Brutality and dehumanization in the name of obedience militaristic and uniformity?

The World, Inc. chapter is particularly helpful in showing, clearly and in a well-documented fashion, the role of multinational oil companies in past Middle East violence.

The persecution of those who become aware of and resist this Orwellian madness is widespread.

Mr. Striegel's letter is just another in the long line of intolerant, masculine upholders of the status quo at any cost who have contributed to a political climate that is repressive towards dissent.

Let's be human beings, not unfeeling cogs in the machinery of warfare and repression.

Please reconsider your hateful stance toward Ms. Atkinson. She has not taken the easy way out. She is right now bearing the brunt of ignorance and intolerance from many with the same outlooks as Mr. Striegel. —Craig Wilson, sophomore, English.

Computer labs turning into arcades

I would like to know why Computing Affairs' Computer Labs allows the playing of video games on computers in these labs when there are students who need to use the computers for academic reasons.

I have, on several occasions, been in the Faner con vuter iab when all of the com ters are being used. There were people waiting to use them while the lab assistants allowed people to continue to play games. This needs to stop!

Last year Computing Affairs spent close to $2 million on new IBM-P'52 micro-computers. It now looks as though some of that money should have gone into instalung a video game arcade. At least a video arcade would make some money and help keep game players out of the lab.

Computing Affairs tells us that we can use the lab at the Communications Building. But that lab is on the other side of campus, which makes it impractical for those students who need to make a quick change. Additionally, the software most students need to use is not available there. Not to mention the lab closes in the early evening.

The lab assistants are not the one at fault. They have told me they are not allowed to tell people who are playing games to stop, even when the lab is full. I do not understand why this is the policy. Perhaps Computing Affairs feels it cannot determine exactly what the purpose is of a specific game. But, I believe it is pretty easy to tell if someone is playing a game for amusement or education.

Scmething needs to be done! Perhaps the computers in the faculty/staff lab could be used for games. It is rarely used.

Or maybe they could restrict people to play games late at night when there is less of a demand.

Another solution would be to keep games players off during busy times. Please get your priorities straight, le''s not turn the computer labs into arcades .- Curtis Baird, senior, computer science.

There is also the theory that we are there to get cheap oil. This also does not hold water because everyone can see that the oil prices

It almost looks as if our policy is to help the oil cost go up. Actually, considering that Bush is a Texas oil millionaire, this does not seem too far fetched. The again, it is almost too obvious.

NRA concepts misunderstood

Mr. Falcon smears the National Rifle Association, intentionally associating it with ostensibly political hinges.

NRA is e oreanization encompassing all walks of life, all religions, all social-economic groups. Its expressed purpose is preserving and furthering what initiated- the Revolutionary War, the right to keep and bear arms for self-defense.

Targeting the NRA with the tar brush of 'extremism' tells us a lot about Dennis Falcon. His divisive letter spotlights his ignorance of why the United States and its unique right to arms exists. He has a serious lack of knowledge concerning the contributions the NRA makes to national defense and to the preservation of human dignity through programs teaching safe and effective armed resistance to

Var woes: United States faces

The first theory that came into my mind was that the Bible claims that the Garden of Eden is in Iraq. Could it be that we intend to liberate it." On the other hand, it was ' be heavenly forces trying to uberate Eden and heaven seems an unlikely force to be behind Bush's anholy war drive. If we consider the economic condition of the world we seem to pet a hirt of what the real motives for Operation Desert Shield.

The third world cannot repay its debt and there are rumors that the banks are on the verge of going broke.

That means that the ruling class is becoming desperate to aid the banks in order to stave off total economic destruction.

A huge increase in oil provids would stave off a banking disaster The Arabs and Texas oil men what would get richer from an on-increase do not eat the profits for breakfast, bu' in fact put the money in the bank.

A huge increase in oil prices would translate into a huge amount of investment in banks as happened last time. This would save the banking system from collapse.

Of course the federal government and its FDIC insurance program could keep the banks from going under, but after the S&L tragedy they are somewhat broke and they would have to raise taxes astronomically to do it.

Better to raise oil prices than taxes because oil can be blamed on

Arabs, while tax increases sould be blamed on politicians and bankers

economic hardships

Either method would save the banks, but only war will also save the political chestnuts of the politicians, the bankers and the apitalist system. There is a serious fly in the ointment of raising oil prices. Yes, Bush and his Texas friends will get rich, yes the banks will get saved yes rapid inflation will aid in lowering wages. However, how can the third world afford these exponential oil price increases?

The ruling class seems also to have found a solution to this problem. Bush has gone to Latin America and offered them the tariff-free trade that they have been asking for over 100 years. It was even announced that this × 35 10 this feuding, of which in no way do I condone the loss of human life. But the bottom line is that it is none of the United States' business.

What the United States is doing would be the equivalent of a more advanced country attempting to intervene in our Civil War because it imported a product from one side or the other.

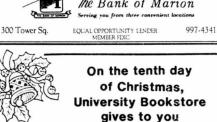

This relates to taking a side not for reasons of worldwide freedom or moral codes, but for purposes of greed and ignorance at the expense of human lives.

Also I would be careful how I used the phrases "so help me God" and "I thank God" in relating to the perpetuation of exchanging lives at the expense of the oil companies and their political puppets. If you are familiar with the WASHINGTON (UPI) - The big news is that the major carthquake didn't strike last week along the New Madrid fault line as predicted by one expert.

But what if it had happened and what if it had been a real shaker, 8. 5 on the Richter scale, the same intensity that occurred along the same fault line nearly 200 years ago?

The tentative answer, as oduced by a "war-gaming" produced by a "war-gaming" session '1st week by the Center for Strategic and International Studies, a Washington-based think tank, is that such an event would be a human, political, economic and environmental disaster for which the United States is unprepared.

The impact would stretch far beyond the quake area, shaking the foundations of the banking and insurance industries and stretching the resources of the federal government and local governments to the breaking point and beyond. In an artfully crafted scenario, about 120 members of Congress, administration efficials, private executives, journalists and local and state officials acted out roles in the all-day CSIS exercise.

One participant was Marilyn Quayle, wife of the vice president, who is part of the Federal Emergency Management Agency leadership. In the earthquake scenario, she played an energetic, sometimes forceful White House chief of staff.

The starting point of the exercise was that a monster earthquake, 8.5 on the Richter scale, flattened much of an area running from northern Missiscippi to southern Illinois. The city of Memphis, according to the script, was devastated; those buildings which were not flattened were on fire. More than 4,000 were dead in the area and another 250,000 were injure.1.

The devastation would stretch north, changing the course of the Mississippi River in several places, dumping several towns into the river.

One of the first discoveries made by the players is that the immediate impact, horrendous as it would be might not be the worst: gas pipelines threaded through the area would rupture, creating explosions and fires and cutting off an estimated 17 million consumers as far north as New York state from the energy needed to carry them through the winter.

Chemical plants, pouring their toxic spills into groundwater and into the Mississippi, would spread poisons for thousands of miles around.

The insurance industry in the United States, with about $115 billion in capital, would be driven to the wall, faced with anywhere from $100 billion to $200 billion in claims

The banking system, dependent on long-distance communication lines and electrical power for electronic transfers, would be out of business and the population in the stricken area would for a while be forced to live by means of a primitive barter system.

The stricken area's roads would Inc survey area's roads would then be turned into a giant gridlock because of damaged highways and a total lack of gasoline or means to pump it out of those underground storage tanks which remained wheels whole

Airports would be closed most of the time because lighting and radar systems would be out of order and runways damaged by the quake

The federal government's ability to come to the rescue, the exercise showed, is vastly over-estimated, partly because many of the emergency aircraft and vehicles are in the Middle East, part of Operation Desert Shield. So would some of the National Guard units needed to prevent looting.

Unusual request made in daughter visitation CHICAGO (UPI) -

- A man who gave up his rights to his daughter when he allowed her to be adopted by her stepfather is trying to win visitation of the 7-year-old — but not for himself.

Instead Thomas Walsh Ir. of Orland Park has asked a DuPage County judge to rule that the unborn half sister by his current marriage and a paternal aunt be allowed to visit Megan Warnimont. Walsh's lawyers and a family law expert say the case is unprecedented nationwide but disagree on his chances of success in challenging laws that allow a one-year statute of limitations to prevent an adoption.

Walsh - divorced from Gloria Walsh, now Gloria Warnimont had visited the girl, who lives in DuPage County, on holidays and birthdays since 1984, said Robert Fioretti, one of his lawyers. While Walsh allowed Megan to be adopted "several years ago," he continued visiting the child under a verbal, out-of-court agreement with his former wife until August.

Then Warnimont cut off visitation, the reasons for which are unknown.

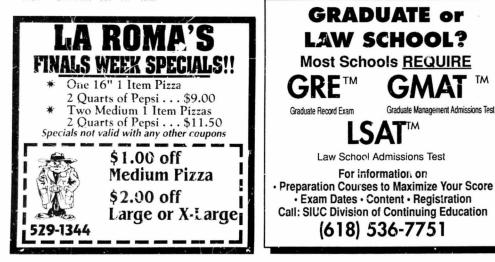

All off a sudden he was cut off All off a souder its was but of (rom visitation) and so was his (current) wife cut off," Fioretti said. "I don't know why. I could probably speculate." Warnimont could not be reached for comment.

So Walsh filed a pair of petitions — one asking for visitation on behalf of the unborn girl his wife, Lisa, is carrying and the other on beha^{if} of his sister Eileen Walsh of Chicago.

"These petitions are on behalf of Megan so she is not deprived of knowing her natural father and not knowing her half a latter and the and knowing her half sister," said Leonard Des Jardins, another lawyer for Walsh. "The thrust of the argument is not that Tom has a right ... but that Megan has the right ... not to be deprived of the right of her natural father." Mary Becker, a law professor at the University of Chicago and family law expert, says these petitions may have gone too far.

"What adoption means legally is no more visitation rights," Becker said

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Elizabeth Taylor and her exboyfriend ended their legal battle over the actresss Passion perfume Thursday, only a day into a trial that promised a glimpse into the lavish lifestyle and love life of the movie legend. "I feel vindicated," Taylor said

"I feel vindicated," Taylor said after the surprise settlement was announced, "No, this is not a tie. As far as I'm concerned, we won. I feel absolutely vindicated." The settlement come is the settlement

The settlement came in the midst of the second day of jury selection in the trial.

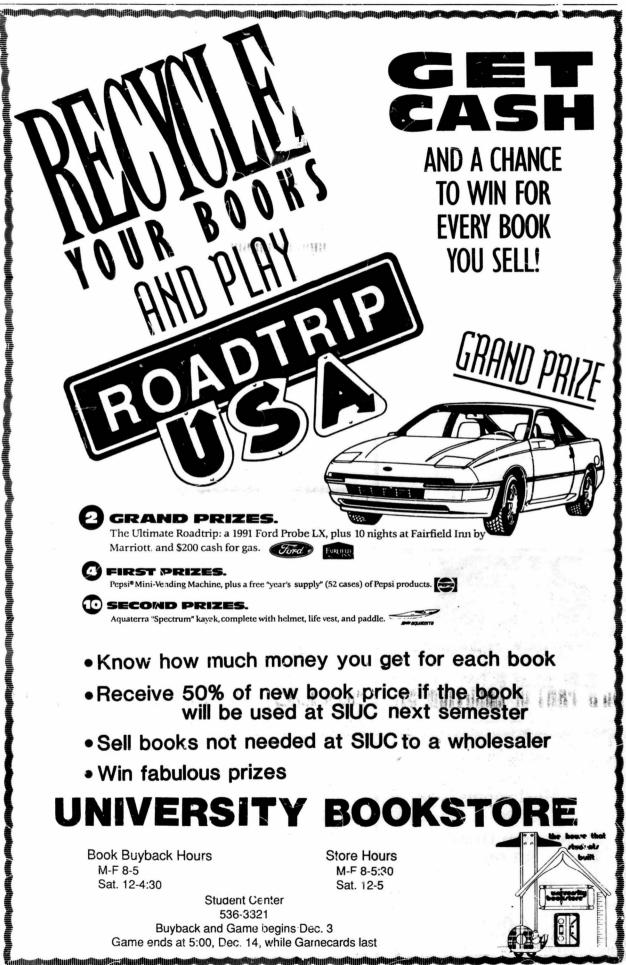

Henry Wynberg, a former used car salesman who was romantically linked to Taylor for two years in the mid-1970s, said he too was "pleased" with the outcome, although he walked away without any profits from the lucrative perfume he claimed was a copy of one he developed.

His lawyer, Quentin Kopp, had said Wynberg was owed as much as $10 million in profits from the scent.

The terms of the resolution were not disclosed, but Taylor's lawyer, Neil Papiano, said no money exchanged hands. He said negotiations toward a settlement had been going on for four years, but "just got serious today."

Two Illinoisans named 1990 Rhodes recipients B

CLAREMONT, Calif. (UPI) — Thirty-two young American students who include a poet, an AIDS researcher, a Baptist minister and a teacher were named Sunday to study at Oxford University ir: England as Rhodes scholars for 1991.

Two of the winners were from Illinois, three from Missouri and one each from Netraska, Kansas, South Dakota, Ohio and Michigan.

The American students from 23 colleges and universities in 26 states join an international group of scholars from 17 other countries as recipients of the oldest international study award, established in 1902 in the will of British philanthropist and colonial pioneer Cecil Rhodes.

Harvard University had the most Rhodes scholars for 1991, with five. Next was Yale University, with four, and both Williams College and the U.S. Air Force Academy had two.

Two institutions, St. John's College in Santa Fe, N.M., and Gustavus Adolphus College in South Dakota, produced Rhodes scholars for the first time.

David Alexander, American secretary of the Rhodes Scholarship Trust and president of Pomona College in Claremout, Calif., said the 1991 selections – chosen from 1,176 applicants at 329 colleges and universities – show a wide range of interests.

Two Rhodes scholars who have written books will study English at Oxford.

One, Lawrence Berger, a Yale graduate from Ithaca, N.Y., is the co-author of a best-selling guide to the Scholastic Aptitude Tests and a cookbook entitled, "Tray Gournet: the College Student's Guide to Home Cooking with School Food."

The other, Jonathan Skinner, a senior at St. John's College in Santa Fe, N.M., is a published poet and also played the part of the young Sam Shepherd in the motion picture, "Fool for Love."

Brad Braxton, a religious studies major at the University of Virginia and one of six black 1991 Rhodes scholars, is a licensed Baptist minister and plans to study theology at Oxford.

A pre-medical student at Columbia University, Carl Marci has been involved in AIDS research, authoring a study on homebound AIDS patients for the New York City Department of Public Health. He is also captain of the university's track and field team.

Darreld Turner, a Cherokec Indian known as "Deacon" to fellow seniors at Harvard University, is an avid hunter and fisherman who plans to return to his native Oklahoma to work with Indians after studying philosophy, politics and economics at Oxford.

Darcy Prather, of Hazelwood, Mo., is a double major in electrical engineering and science, technology and society at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and also captain and ar award-winning linebacker on the MIT football team.

Some scholars have already begun careers in education and politics.

COLLINSVILLE (UPI) — A reasonable mistake — not racism — ied to the delay in finding a missing Hayti, Mo., family, Illinois State Police Director Jeremy Margolis said Thursday. State Police released the results of their inversion into the State Police released the results of their investigation into the disappearance and deaths of Ruby Feltus and her three adult children, who were reported missing after visiting relatives in Mount Vernon on Oct. 2.

The bodies of Ruby Feltus, 48; Thyrus Feltus, 27; and Carmeline Stevenson, 29; were pulled from a car in the Cache River on Nov. 19. The body of the fourth victim, Madeline Green, 25, was recovered Nov. 24.

The car apparently had been in the river since shortly after the family left Mount Vernon and Margois said troopers who saw the sunken vehicle mistakenly believed it was a "junker" that had been in the river for a long time.

The news conference and the release of the internal probe of the case came after community leaders criticized the state police investgation and charged it was mishandled because the family was black. Mrrgolis discounted racism as a factor in the police handling of the case. "It's absolutely totally untrue. I think it's unfortunate the entire incident occurred," Margolis said. "But I don't see any basis whatsoever for these allegations. We serve all people as well as we can. " Several state lawmakers, community and black leaders met with munity and black leaders met with Margolis before the news confeence. The group included Johnny Scctt of the NAACP in East St. Louis, who accused the state police of racism. Family members were invited but did not attend.

Margolis said troopers determined deaths of the family members were accidental.

They were going too fast and ran off the road into the median. The vehicle became airborne, hit the bridge, then the river bank and slid into the river, Margolis said.

A. few hundred cheering spectators and relatives gathered at the former Air Force Base to greet the early

In other developments, the London Observer newspaper said Iraq appears to be redrawing the Iraqi-Kuwaiti border by putting up a barbed wire fence around the northern part of Kuwait, a sign Saddam may be planning a partial withdrawal. Buffalo whips Colts, clinches playoff berth

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) -Don't count on a typical December fade by the Buffalo Bills.

The Bills have lost three of The Bits have tost three or their last four region-season games each of the past two years, but this season they are intent on earning home-field advantage throughout the co-former playaffs erence playoffs. CO

Buffalo took a step toward securing that advantage Sunday. The Bills pounded Indianapolis 31-7 to become the first AFC eam to clinch a playoff berth and improve their AFC-best record to 11-2 with three games remaining. "This win is a big confidence builder for us," linebacker Cornelius Bennett said. "People count us out in December. The more we win, the more we make them look like a big iackas Jackass," Jim Keily, the NFL's top-rated passer, threw for 261 yards and two touchdowns for the AFC East leaders, who claimed a playoff spot for the third straight scason.

Kelly completed 18 of 26 passes, including scoring tosses of 34 and 7 yards to Andre Reed, who became the Bills' career touchdown reception leader with 37. NFL all-p rpose yardage leader Thurman Thomas gained 165 yards and scored on runs of 23 and 3 yards

"I hope they don't show as any respect so we can shear up on them and get to the Super Bowl," Kelly said.

The Bills earned the 200th victory in their 30-year history. The Colts, 5-8, fell within one defeat of their first losing scason since 1986.

"Today's win was the best because it is now. It's fresh," Buffalo Coach Marv Levy said. "You can't compare it to past wins. It's a matter of staying with the same philosophy and the system. Continuity is what has helped us."

Defensive end Bruce Smith, the NFL sacks leader, dropped Coha quarterback Jeff George four times for 33 yards, including one sack on which he was unchallenged before slamming George to the turf. "It was the cleanest sack in my life," Smith said. "That had never happened to me before. It shocked me. (George) was more rattled after that. If you get constant pressure on any quarterback, they will wonder where the pressure is coming from next.

Reed sped between two defenders for his 7-yard scoring catch, giving Buffalo a 14-0 lead 7:39 into the game. Kirby Jackson's interception, one of three thrown by George, set up the drive. Reed beat Colts defender Keith Taylor 2:53 certier for the game's first Thomas can for 76 yards and caught four passes for 91 yards. His iongest touchdown run came 2:08 into the fourth came 2:08 into the fourth quine for the final points. His first TD came 3:07 before halftime, putting the Bills ahead 21-0 at the break.

George stretched the ball over the goal line on a 1-yard dive 63 yard catch by Thoms on the next scrimmage play set up a 25-yard field goal by Scott Norwood.

ATLANTIC CITY, NJ. (UFD-They tead to sound the same, these guick - strike victims of Mike ISUT.

Alex Stewart entered his bout claiming Tyson is only human, and he knocked the former champion's lack of strategy. Shades of Carl "The Truth" Williams.

Stewart finished the bout Saturday night saying he just happened to get caught-maybe it would have been different if he got his fight untracked. Shades of el Spinks

Well, they all look the same too-knocked out in the first round

Who knows if the bobbing and weaving that was so much of the style that won Tyson the championship ever will be back since he has changed trainers. But what is back is the menace, the fear factor that only James "Buster" Douglas convincingly contained. Tyson, 39-1 with 38 KOs, decked Stewart for the third time at 2.27 of the first round.

His first knockdown of Stewart came on the second punch. After the second knockdown. Stewart barely made it up on the count of 9.

Mike Tyson aura revisited

Alex Siewart is a good fighter. He's a class act, very nice guy," Tyson said. "it's too bad it had to happen like that. After the first kneckdown, I knew it was over. My main asset is the body punch. Believe it or not. I hit harder to the body than to the head. It's just that sometimes I'm reluctant to punch to the body. After I hit clean to the body, I dcn't have to worry any more

It was a left hook to the head that ended the fight-but Ctewart said only because the three-knockdown

"He didn't hit me or, the chin -he hit me on the top of the head," Stewart said. "I went down but I got up. He could have kept hitting me on the top of the head, I vould've still got up." Remember Spinks, after lasting 91 seconds against Tyson, saying, "I got hit on a spot on the head where any fighter could knock out any fighter?

Somehow, these certain type of nunches-called knockouts-come from Tyson with regularity

"All he showed," said Shelly Finkel, adviser to current champion Evander Holyfield, "is that he's a great puncher, which we already knew

Tyson thinks those punches may Hyson blinks those putches may have made an impression on Holyfield, who is defending his into against George Foreman April 19 If Holyfield wins, he is under colligation to fight Tyson next

'No one's gonna want to right Tyscn said me nov

"I'll fight anybody. I'm going to take some time off after this figh I trained real hard for this for Stewar o, will take some time off. He is 20-2 with 26 knockor/s but has lost to his only two acclaimed opponents, Holyfield and Tyson.

"This is a devastating loss," Stewart said. "I knew it was coming and I still got caught."

He left the Atlantic City Convention Center with an ice bag against his face and the namecard on the limousine misspelled as Stuart.

San Francisco goes to 12-1 with OT win over Bengals

CINCINNATI (UPI) Cofer kicke,' a 23-yard field goal with 57 seconds left in regulation to the score and then kicked another 23 yarder 6:12 into overtime Sunday to lift the San Francisco 49ers to a 20-17 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals.

San Francisco, with the best record in the NFL at 12-1 and already NFC West champion, extended their NFL-record for consecutive road victories to 17.

The loss dropped Cincinnati, 7-6, into a three-way tie with Houston and Pittsburgh for first place in the AFC Central.

San Francisco won the coin toss at the start of overtime, received the ball and drove 75 yards in 11 plays to set up Cofer's field goal. Joe Montana, despite failing to throw a touchdown pass for the passes for 185 yards, eight of them to Rice for 101 yards. Roger Craig, his running game slowed by injuries much of the season, broke loose for 97 yards on 21 carries. Before Cofer's pair of 23-yard field goals, the 49ers had scored touchdowns on Rathman's 1-yard run and Sydney's 3-yard run. Cincinnati, which grabbed a 17-14 lead with 12 minutes left in the fourth quarter on Ickey Woods' 1yard TD run, scored earlier on Boomer Esiason's 2-yard TD pass to Craig Taylor and Jim Breech's 38-yard field goal.

The last two years, I was on the sidelines. it's an emotional thing to play in this game. You have to give everything you have to play it with that you have to play it with that mentality.
