BSU denied request for class suspension

By Larry Haley
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Chancellor Robert G. Layer Monday denied a request by SIU's Black Student Union calling for suspension of all classes in conjunction with Black History Week.

The BSU's request came in a letter to the chancellor Monday morning asking for the suspension of classes "in memorial of all the injustices blacks have suffered throughout this country and within the University community."

The Black Student Union also said the "frustrations can be solved through communication, black love, and black unity among Afro-Americans. These ideas shall be the theme of our discussions during class suspension." In the letter, the BSU also indicated that "liberation of all black people is long overdue. We propose that as acting chancellor, in request of the BSU, you (Layer) will fulfill this request."

Layer was also asked to send a reply to the BSU before 3:30 p.m. Monday.

In response to the letter, Layer said, "I also believe that the regular instructional processes (at SIU) are so important that every effort should be made to keep them unimpaired and therefore, cannot agree to your request for their suspension."

"If a student feels that he must stay away from his classes, he continued, "to commemorate this occasion, that is his personal decision of conscience. However, he should not expect everyone to agree with him and he should not expect others to stay away from classes because he happens to believe that is the most appropriate way to mark such an occasion."

Layer also said, "I feel that I have indicated my whole-hearted support in that celebration and I am completely supportive of those faculty members who find its celebration appropriate to their class discussions."

Layer met with a representative of the BSU Monday afternoon to discuss his denial of suspending classes for the memorial occasion. He told the group that he would issue a memorandum to the general faculty Tuesday "encouraging faculty members to take account of the occasion," Layer said.

A BSU spokesman said Layer agreed at the afternoon meeting to send out memos to department heads indicating that students who would like to attend the Black Studies Week Activities convention should not be penalized for not attending classes.

Gus says Stone has all of the qualifications for Board membership: rich, right wing and oblivious.

Stone's qualifications questioned

By Chuck Hutchcraft
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Tom Scherschel, SIU student body president, released a letter Monday to be sent to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie questioning the possible appointment of W. Clement Stone to the SIU Board of Trustees.

It was reported last week that Ogilvie might appoint Stone of Chicago and Mrs. Frances Dawson of Evanston, to the Board. Both Stone and Mrs. Dawson ran unsuccessfully in November for election to the University of Illinois Board of Trustees.

In the letter, which will be sent to Stone also, Scherschel said that Stone's unsuccessful bid for election to a "board of trustees in a similar state institution in Illinois," indicated that Illinois voters "felt that Stone was not an asset to higher learning in this state."

"To reappoint the man elsewhere where voters did not have a say in the appointment of board of trustees members clearly defeats the democratic system of election in the state," Scherschel said.

Certain relations between interests of Ogilvie and Stone indicate that Stone's appointment is based upon premises other than his qualifications, Scherschel said.

He mentions the fact that Stone is a member and supporter of the same political party as Ogilvie and is known to be the "principal financial backer of a large project on this campus."

Scherchel said that Ogilvie also owns a "great deal of stock from one of Stone's enterprises."

"Without being prejudicial, all of these matters indicate that there is a strong possibility that stature and wealth are taking the place of better qualification for the open position on the Board of Trustees," Scherschel said.

Scherchel also invited Stone to come to SIU to submit plans for improvement, "if indeed Stone has positive plans for the betterment of this University that would indicate that he is a good choice for the position in question."

Getting colder

Winter left its mark on Southern Illinois over the weekend. Seventenths of an inch of snow fell Saturday night and Sunday at the weather station at the SIU Airport. Getting around Monday morning offered a challenge for even the most fleet-footed, not to mention what was offered cyclists. Mobility was improved by late afternoon after snow removal crew had cleared most walkways. Other pictures of the snow appear on page 6. (Photo by Nelson Brooks)

No University probe planned in coed death

Dr. Walter H. Clarke, director of the SIU Health Service, said there are no current plans for an official University investigation into the death of Delores Brewer, 22, a Neely Hall coed who fell 11 stories to her death early Saturday.

Clarke said he had spoken to SIU Chancellor Robert G. Layer "up to a point" about the situation but did not discuss any of the medical history of Miss Brewer since that type of information is considered privileged both ethically and by law.

According to Illinois law, Clarke said, a hospital cannot detain a person against his wishes unless papers have been signed to commit him.

Miss Brewer, a sociology major from Chicago, had discharged herself from the Health Service about 1:30 Saturday morning.

Harry Flynn, Jackson County coroner, said a date for an inquest into Miss Brewer's death will not be set until after laboratory reports have been completed.

High-rise hell

St. Louis project under scrutiny

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Nixon Administration is considering tearing down 16-year-old Pruitt-Igode, a $36 million federal public housing project that became a high-rise hell for the poor of St. Louis.

A recommendation to level the 33 tombstone-like structures in the heart of the city and replace them in the next five years with a mix of garden apartments and row houses is awaiting action by Secretary of Housing George Romney.

"We have this war on poverty and we got our shape out and we got one that's lost. It's sunk, let's face it. Write it off," said a Romney aide.

Romney is expected to decide within the next two weeks whether to accept the recommendation or try once more to find a formula that will make Pruitt-Igode a fit place to live.

Repeated earlier efforts to find such a formula, including a $5 million modernization program and a $5 million program of special social services, failed to stem a tide of murder, robbery, rape and vandalism.

Home economics group to have guest speaker

The Student Home Economic Association will meet 8 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Family Living Laboratory of the Home Economics Building.

David Christensen, associate dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, will be the speaker.

Slides will be shown on the interiors of shops and homes in England.

Refreshments will be served. All students and faculty are invited.

In 1969, police reported 10 murders, 14 rapes and 129 assaults at the project. Vandalism costs at one point were running at $1,700 a day.

The latest murder victim was an 8-year-old girl, found slain and sexually molested before Christmas in one of the complex's hundreds of deserted apartments.

Only 600 families now live in Pruitt-Igode, which was built to accommodate 2,800. To simplify security and maintenance they are banded together like survivors in the few buildings that remain relatively sound.

Whole buildings stand abandoned, stripped of everything.

"It looked like a battlefield. It's still a battlefield," said a spokesman for the St. Louis Civic Alliance for Housing, a labor-led tandem of tenant and civic groups now managing public housing in St. Louis.

The Alliance decided a week ago that the only solution was demolition.

Sculptures to take art to students

By University News Services

Two pieces of outdoor sculpture by a former art student at SIU have been installed on the Carbondale campus in a new approach of taking art to the students.

Both are by Jerome Bloom of Chicago, a graduate fellow in art last year and a sculpture student of Thomas Walsh. The pieces, both constructed of Cor-ten steel, a high quality steel plate—same as that used for Chicago's controversial Picasso—were executed last year.

One, titled "Up Color," has been placed on the shore of Lake-on-the-Campus, near the boat docks, and the other between the Allyn Building and Shryock Auditorium. The latter is titled "This Is for Mary Ann, No. 4."

The Bloom pieces are leased for three years, with option to purchase, according to Evert Johnson, curator of University Galleries, who with John Loneragan, associate University architect, and Walsh, has planned the new program.

With a $2,000 initial funding to cover leasing, transportation, insurance and installation by Physical Plant staff, the committee plans to install other outdoor sculptures, not only by students and faculty but also occasionally by outside artists. Johnson said. Four more will be put in place in the near future.

Black internship forms now available

Applications now are being accepted for two spring and summer internship scholarships in the Southern Illinois area. Both the EBBE (Encourage Black Businessmen and Economists) Committee Scholarship and the Committee Internship Scholarship were established in October of 1970 by Osco Drugs, in order to encourage black students to enter the School of Business at SIU.

Leased art

A massive Cor-ten steel sculpture by a SIU master of fine arts graduate, Jerome Bloom, exhibited outdoors. Titled "This is for Mary Ann, No. 4," this piece is one of two Bloom sculptures leased for three years. (University News Services Photo)

The Cor-ten steel used by Bloom and other sculpture students at SIU was a gift from Inland Steel Company of Chicago, which in 1969 shipped 90 sheets—six tons—of the high-strength metal to the University. Each of the sheets measures 436 feet, 3-16th inch thick, and weighs 150 pounds.

About 20 pieces of sculpture of varying sizes have been produced by Walsh, his associates and students from the material, using a little more than half the original stock.

"Cor-ten is in great favor for architectural construction," Walsh explained. "It is much harder than ordinary steel and is difficult to bend, but it welds very nicely and acquires a most attractive surface. It rusts to a beautiful amber color on the surface—to perhaps a depth of 1-32th of an inch—then the oxidation stops and doesn't cause further wear."

Heretofore, all sculpture the SIU group has turned out is fabricated, but working with engineers from Inland Steel, Walsh and other sculpture instructors have developed a method of melting the steel plates in order to be able to cast the metal. It requires a much higher temperature than other metals.

Walsh said the sculpture studio will move into new quarters, a pre-fab metal building near the University's Evergreen Terrace, family housing complex, within a few weeks, and a foundry capable of handling the Cor-ten steel will be constructed immediately.

Forestry seminar scheduled

By University News Services
Gary Schneider, associate professor of forestry at Michigan State University, will give three lectures on soil and moisture relationships to distribution of forests at SIU Tuesday and Wednesday.

Schneider's first talk will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday on the topic: "Soil Moisture Relationships in Northern Hardwood Forests." The lecture will be in the Agriculture Building, Room 166. At 3 p.m. Tuesday, he will speak in the seminar room of the Forest Sciences Laboratory Building on the subject: "Biomass Distribution in the Forest."

A general talk on "Tropical Forestry in the Central Americas" will be given at 4 p.m. Wednesday in Lawson 131.

John Andresen, chairman of the SIU forestry department, says other related departments are cooperating in the seminar series and that the lectures are open without charge to all interested persons.

'Americanization' -- is it next?

America's increasing military involvement in Cambodian affairs is raising objections from all sectors. It seems Mr. Nixon "promised" to have U.S. ground troops out of Cambodia last summer and to have no U.S. air or logistics support. He did leave himself a way out by allowing "interdiction missions" to prevent the enemy from moving supplies and men.

Unfortunately, mere interdiction has been stretched far enough to allow the current state of affairs to develop. U.S. helicopters and planes are being used increasingly in Cambodia under the blanket excuse of protection of American lives in the war theater of Indochina.

Mr. Nixon is well aware of the credibility gap and unpopularity that developed in the Johnson Administration when the public was not fully aware of the extent of American involvement in Vietnam. He has not tried to hide the fact that air power is being used. Secretary of Defense Laird has termed the disgruntlement over the growing use of air support as a matter of semantics.

But semantics is not a good enough cover. American ground forces and advisers are prohibited by law from Cambodia. Increasing air support without being able to send in ground support troops may be a "tricky" maneuver, even for someone whose nickname includes that adjective. Congress is concerned, and rightly so, that gradual involvement in Cambodia will be a repetition of our gradual involvement in Vietnam. America's prestige and economy have suffered—and are suffering—enough through the Vietnam ordeal.

"Vietnamization" was a term coined for letting Vietnam take a greater share in solving its own problems. "Cambodization" and "Laotianization" may be future terms. Hopefully, "Americanization" will result and America will be able to solve its own problems first and those of the rest of the world later.

Mr. Nixon seems to be developing a flare for semantics and rhetoric. His "new American revolution" may be coming sooner than he thinks if he continues to stretch definitions. His desire to have the "most imaginative, innovative approach" to American problems may be fulfilled.

It's fortunate that he chose January, rather than the warmer spring months (more prone to student dissent) to broaden the scope of interdiction. The anniversary of the Woody Hall incident had scant support two weeks ago. But the anniversary of the seven days in May may be more celebrated if definitions are stretched any farther or more "promises" broken.

Women's lib rejects any rigid stereotype

To the Daily Egyptian:

My remarks are directed to Miss Sue Collett of the Women's Liberation Front at SIU, who was quoted as saying, "It is necessary to create a self-identity." "Often a woman will change her identity in relation to the man she's with. She's subordinate to him and her personality is directed to him." (Daily Egyptian, Jan. 28, 1971) The statements may cause a serious distortion in the genuine interests of Women's Lib for which she stands. It should be made clear that nothing is wrong with a woman changing her identity or role. What Women's Lib wants to create is not an unchangeable and inflexible identity of women.

According to Kate Millett, this is exactly what Women's Lib is rejecting because the traditional pattern of socialization imposed upon women is an inferior and rigid stereotype. The rigid stereotype of women is merely a result of political manipulation in male-dominated society and it ignores the classic studies in cultural anthropology showing "a nearly infinite (possible) variety in the division of roles and of labors." (See Millett's Sexual Politics, pp. 176-203, 224-225)

In other words, a liberated female still has to develop various ways of coordinating with a male's idiosyncratic character and also vice versa. If there is any misunderstanding of Miss Collett's point on my part, I would like to have it corrected.

Why isn't ice removed as quickly as leaves?

To the Daily Egyptian:

As I conspicuously inched my way to class last Wednesday, I was constantly amazed and bedazzled by the sight of my fellow students slipping and sliding, bumping and falling.

Now, to a penguin, his first thought would be that everyone on this campus was a "trip-out." But since we don't have penguins attending SIU in Carbondale, I think it's safe to assume that the cause of this student affliction is due to the accumulation of ice on the ground.

To those who have added padding on their postérieurs or those who enjoy the challenge of an uncharted journey to class, I imagine this is quite enjoyable. But to us who find it chore enough to get to class on balmy days this accumulation of ice is just another hindrance.

My argument is that, with the constant tuition raises and costs of attending college, why can't the school afford to administer salt (in abundance) on all the walkways around the campus.

During the fall I constantly saw the efficiency of the school in removing harmless leaves with a giant vacuum. It seemed that every time a leaf fell this omnipotent vacuum cleaner was there instantly. I imagine we had the most leafless school in the nation. Why can't we have some omnipotent apparatus to apply salt on the ground when harmful ice accumulates?

Will it take a busted hip or a broken leg to make the administration realize that salt is needed more than just around the entrances of buildings?

Students should support parking fine protestors

To the Daily Egyptian:

The parking problem at SIU has been a perennial source of frustration for both students and faculty. Although many have voiced dissatisfaction, formally or informally, the problem appears insoluble—why are the existing regulations so resistant to change?

Recently a group of faculty and staff have openly challenged the legality of the University's deducting money from paychecks for nonpayment of parking violations. This action gives me hope that perhaps the entire parking system will be reviewed and, in turn, drastically changed.

Another contingency for nonpayment of parking violations which directly affects the student is placing holds on his registration. Similarly there have been cases in which students have been billed for parking violations which were accrued by their relatives who were visiting the campus. Surely the legality of these procedures is questionable.

Most frustrating of all is the number of parking spaces available. It has been reported that the parking section issued substantially more decals than there are spaces available. Thirty-five dollars is quite a bit to pay for a red decal which allows one to hunt for a parking space which is nonexistent. And what of the parking lots themselves? Besides being overcrowded, there is one that is full of trees that make driving very difficult and the majority of the lots are gravel lots which generate dust that destroys the finishes of cars.

But, so what? This is all old news. Everyone who has ever owned a decal is acquainted with what I have said. No doubt he or she also feels very similarly to the way I do and would like to see changes made regarding the above mentioned points and the many others which vex the student who drives to campus.

It appears that a group of faculty and staff are doing something to affect a change in the parking system. For sure, the results of their efforts will influence any future efforts. I give them my support. I would also like to request those students who would like to support any future action to affect a change in the parking system to inform me of their interest or sentiment. Just send me a note through campus mail.

Shades of England--a parliament?

By Cathy Spangle and Chuck Hutchcraft
Daily Egyptian Staff Writers

Tones from the Mother Country and perhaps even hints of nobility were heard Wednesday night in the hallowed chambers of SIU's student lawmakers. It all started in the Internal Affairs committee where discrepancies between different versions of the student government constitution were being ironed out.

The committee has gone a little further. Along with a clarified constitution, it has added an amendment to make the Campus Senate a "democratic parliament."

The senate tabled the amendment for further consideration. Dennis Kosinski, Eastside nondorm senator and chairman of Internal Affairs, said Thursday that 14 senators favor the amendment and seven are undecided. After next week's senate election to fill five vacancies, a majority of 21 senators will be needed to pass the amendment.

According to Kosinski, the amendment is designed to make student government more responsive to the students, which has become a classical goal of the senate and ideally for all other "legislative" bodies for that matter.

Primarily what the amendment would do is to give the senate, or parliament rather, the power to elect student government executives. There would no longer be campuswide elections within the student body to elect the student body president, vice president and vice president of student activities.

If the amendment is passed, the senate would be increased from 21 members to 43, 31 of which will be elected directly by the student body. The parliament would chose either from its own ranks or from the student body 12 representatives to sit on the University Senate if it is approved by the Board of Trustees.

The amendment would also eliminate the foreign student representative and foreign students would vote only for the senator from the districts in which they live.

If this "democratic parliament" is approved, it appears that a considerable amount of power would be centered in one body. The parliament would elect its executive officers but it would also select some of its own members who are electing these executives.

Kosinski says there are definite advantages in this form of government, which would make student government more responsive to the students.

First of all, and obviously, Kosinski said the president and vice presidents will be answerable directly to the parliament. The parliament would also be able to unseat and seat new officials when it saw fit.

Second, he said, students will hopefully take more serious consideration in choosing their representatives.

And third, the parliament could be dictated somewhat more by the whims of the students, Kosinski said. In fact, students could even have a say as to who the parliament elects as its executive officers.

If a student doesn't like the job his representative is doing, he can have a recall vote by presenting the parliament with a petition signed by one-third of those who voted in his district during the last senatorial election.

According to Kosinski, the student could use this technique to have those persons elected who, the student feels, are best qualified to hold the executive posts.

If, by chance, the student's representative belongs to the majority electing the executives who the student may think are not qualified, and that representative can make a difference in deciding the majority, the student can have a recall to elect someone who will swing the decision the other way.

Kosinski said, of course, all this isn't necessary if the student can persuade the representative to vote the other way.

There is one other provision in the amendment. The senators will no longer be called senators but "executive officials."

Kosinski hasn't said whether or not the parliament would be divided into a House of Commons and House of Lords, though the arrangement with 12 representatives to the University Senate is similar. Kosinski did say, "Who knows, we might even elect a duke or something."

An editor's outlook

Charles Manson still in the news

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones
Los Angeles Times Syndicate

After an incredible and idiotic seven months, in which the jury was sentenced to a cumulative total of seven years in the box, Charles Manson and his three female disciples are pronounced murderers. This was not only one of the cruelest and most coldly sadistic murders in the history of American crime but the case was so overwhelming that the defense didn't even field a witness.

Now the arguments over the sentences are under way.

Although only 14 states outlaw capital punishment, no one has been executed in the United States for four years.

This is the result of a drumfire of propaganda over the past quarter century, emanating chiefly from "social scientists" and the clergy, to the effect that death sentences constitute cruel and unusual punishment and perform no good.

The opponents of execution state one truth and then they state three theories dressed up like truth.

The truth is that, if an innocent man were to be executed, the error is irreversible. There is also a corollary truth which they don't mention: namely, that the executed killer never kills again.

The theories are these:

Capital punishment deters no one.

The state has no right to take a life, for, as the Lord is quoted in Deuteronomy 32:35, "To me belongeth vengeance and recompense."

The overwhelming majority of the American people have "grown beyond" capital punishment and want it abolished.

Let's look at them.

Since capital punishment virtually disappeared in America about 18 years ago, the rates of murder and rape, the two most common capital crimes, have skyrocketed.

In 1959 there were 8,580 persons murdered in the United States. In 1969 (the last year for which full figures are in) 14,587 were murdered. This is an increase of 69 per cent. Over the same 10-year period the population of the country went up 12 per cent.

In 1969 there were 14,830 rape complaints in America. In 1969 there were 36,470, an increase of 146 per cent.

It used to be generally understood in this country that the killer of a lawman was hanged or electrocuted. But no more. And in the past 10 years, 561 officers have been killed while trying to perform their duties.

To maintain that the threat of a death sentence is no deterrent is to say that people are unafraid of the possibility of dying. If so, "Slow Down," "Bridge Out" and "Danger—40,000 volts" signs are futile. But, of course, they are not.

The argument that vengeance is exclusively the Lord's business would require us, logically, to eliminate punishment of human beings by human beings altogether. On this theory, if we put a thief in jail we double-punish him.

Finally, the much-cherished idea that the American people are appalled by death sentences got a rude jolt last Dec. 15, when, in a constitutional referendum, Illinoisans rejected the elimination of executions by a vote of 1,139 million to 627,522. What Illinois seems to want is a little safer living for the innocent.

Much has been made of the many years which condemned prisoners spend on death row while the appellate courts delay, fiddle and fumble. There's a point here: Caryl Chessman was 12 years in a condemned cell before he was finally led to California's gas chamber. This is cruel and unusual punishment without a doubt.

But the way to cure it is to write into the law that any prisoner under death sentence who is not executed within nine months gets an automatic commutation to life. This is plenty of time to review the proceedings and consider new evidence, if any. It will force appellate courts to put an expedite tag on cases that should certainly be heard expeditiously.

Bernard L. Cohen, a distinguished Montreal lawyer and long a leader of Canadian Zionists, last fall published a book, "Law Without Order."

One of the chief reasons for the fierce conditions in our prisons, Cohen asserts, is because the most vicious killers continue to roam the yards, terrorizing other prisoners and plotting kidnapping of wardens and guards. In other times these mad dogs would have long since been hanged.

Cohen quotes a 23-centuries-old argument over capital punishment from the Mishnah. One rabbi said death sentences should not be imposed oftener than once every seven years, another said every 70 and two more said they should not be imposed at all.

Whereupon, Rabban Simon, the son of Gamaliel, retorts: The men who talk in this way multiply the shedders of blood in Israel.

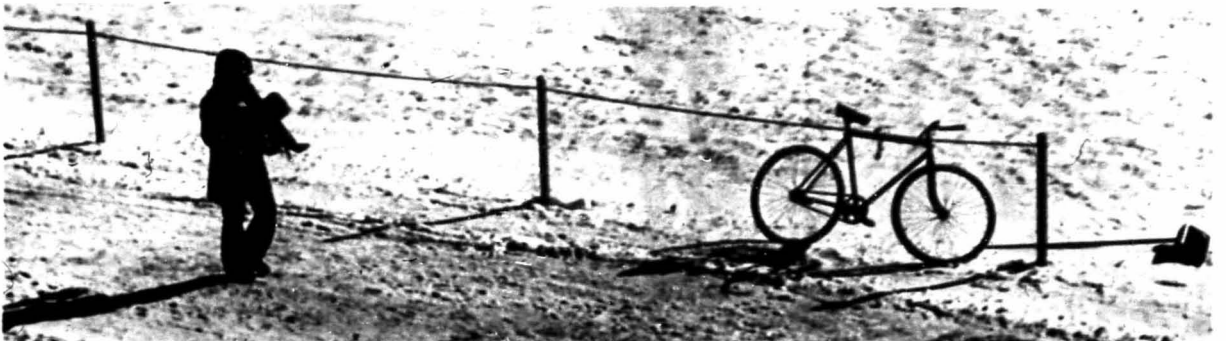

It's a white winter after all

Winter left its white mark on Southern Illinois over the weekend. Slippery footings were everywhere. Pedestrians ended upended. Automobiles went fish-tailing along. Fallen trees were given another dimension. And kids went sledding. The weather station at the SIU Airport reported that only seven tenths of an inch of snow fell there over the weekend. No more of the white stuff was predicted for Monday night but temperatures were expected to drop close to zero.

Variety enlightens Theta Xi production

By Darrell Aherin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

One of SIU's oldest traditions—the Theta Xi Variety Show—proved this weekend that time can't hurt SIU student talent. Staged Friday and Saturday nights in the newly-remodeled Shryock Auditorium, the 24th annual show was a thoroughly entertaining two-and one-half hour production.

Sigma Kappa sorority and Delta Upsilon fraternity combined to take the winners spot in the large group competition with a segment from "Funny Girl." Lead singer Mary Ann Garpais, a senior from Park Forest, displayed a dynamic voice in "Don't Rain on My Parade" and "People" to compliment the group's choreography and eye-catching costumes.

Phi Kappa Tau fraternity took second in group acts with "Alice's Restaurant" featuring John Petrusa, a junior from Joliet, as Arlo Guthrie.

A folk-singing trio, the Mushroom Stompers, took first place in the individual category followed by a crowd-pleasing rock singer, Paul Frederick. The Stompers and Frederick were the only acts brought back for encores during Saturday's performance.

Lon J. Buie captured third in the individual category with his original compositions "Autumn of My Mind" and the humorous "Tear Gas is a Riot" which he composed while working as a Saluki Patrolman during last May's disturbances.

In the intermediate category, Equinox took first with the Prodigal Sons and Daughter earning second. A familiar sight on the SIU stage, the Rhododendrons, received a third for their black-out comedy segments sparked with several bits of local humor.

Although the judges undoubtedly had a difficult time selecting the top acts, it seems hard to overlook the expert talent shown by singer Barb O'Connor and the Ron Scott Quartet.

Miss O'Connor, winner of the Miss SIU Talent Contest last fall, displayed her usual professionalism and excellent voice control with "What Do You Get When You Fall in Love" and "My Coloring Book," and the Scott troupe opened the show with some fine blues and individual arrangements in "Light My Fire" and "Sunday Morning Blues."

Emcee duties were shared by students Sandy Woolbright and Frank DeMore.

Todd Zeigler, one of the show's co-chairman, said that the show itself was a very big success and that it probably would break even financially. The acts went much smoother and were better produced than last year's, he said.

Charles Zoedler of the Department of Theater, and Robert Kingsbury of the Department of Music, helped in the production aspects of the show, Zeigler said.

BAS aware of pressures confronting SIU blacks

By John D. Towns
Daily Egyptian Special Writer

The staff of the Black American Studies Department is aware of the multi-dimensional emotional and psychological frustrations and pressures that confront black students at SIU. Ron Braithwaite, director of the Cultural Resource Center, said Monday.

Braithwaite said SIU has several offices which attempt to deal with students with psychological problems. "For example, there is the Counseling and Testing Center, Sydney, Crisis Intervention Center, Clinical Center and the Health Service," he said.

"We at Black Studies recognize the need for more black counselors or doctors in all of the departments or offices. However, we don't have time to wait for budget allocations and approval of expansion position, which may or may not lead to the hiring of more black faculty to attempt to deal with the psychological problems that black students are having here at SIU," he said.

"Black American Studies will meet with the black faculty and staff and students who have backgrounds and skills in counseling, psychology and guidance, to investigate what can be done to be of greater assistance to black students having psychological problems," Braithwaite concluded.

Ticket sales cancel Rawls

The Lou Rawls Concert set for Friday in the SIU Arena has been canceled "by mutual agreement," according to Bill Searcy, publicity director for the Arena.

Searcy said that ticket sales were "well below average" and the Arena management thought that few students would buy tickets at the door. He said that many students would not be in Carbondale this weekend because of Washington's birthday observance on Monday.

By mutual agreement, Walter Scott, Rawls' personal manager, and W D Justice, Arena manager, decided that it was in the best interest of both parties concerned not to present the show.

Justice had no idea yet how much money the Arena lost by canceling the show. Advertisements, publicity posters and banners have already been purchased and it will be some time before the total amount is known, Justice said.

Refunds will be given on all tickets already purchased. The refunds will be given either at the Arena Ticket Office, room 115, or tickets can be mailed to the Arena Manager's Office. Cash refunds will be given at the ticket office and University checks will be sent on mail refunds.

Two seniors honored with service award

Shirley Swansen, a senior from Bensenville and Bob Carter, a senior from Belleville, were chosen winners of the annual Service to Southern Aard presented during Friday's Theta Xi Variety Show.

The service award recognizes outstanding contributions by students in activities and in scholarship. Miss Swansen, presently student teaching at Carbondale Community High School, is a member of the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority. She is a resident fellow, President's scholar, a member of the Sphinx Club and Order of Iota. She was selected as Outstanding Freshman Woman in 1967 and Outstanding Sophomore Woman in 1968.

Carter, administrative assistant to the vice president for student activities, is a member of the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity and the fraternity's national president.

Theta Xi presented its annual $400 Leo Kaplan Memorial Scholarship to Steven R. Kiester, a junior from Loves Park. The award is presented in honor of the late faculty advisor of Theta Xi.

Course in governance proposed for officers

The Carbondale Faculty Council will meet at noon Tuesday in the Illinois Room of the University Center.

A major proposal on the agenda is the recommendation for a course to be called University 300. Independent Studies of Student Governance.

George McClure, chairman of the Student Affairs Subcommittee, who will report on the proposal, said the course proposal is designed to be taken by major student officer holders on campus for three hours of pass-fail credit per quarter.

McClure said work for the course would consist of serving in the office and in discussion sections.

Bureau to hear gripes about local merchants

The Better Business Bureau of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce has agreed to set up office hours on campus to hear complaints and criticisms from SIU students.

The Bureau will probably set a specific schedule or starting date later this week. Hammond said that a better understanding between businessmen and students will evolve from such meetings.

Hammond said that office space will be provided in the University Center.

The suggestion to come to the campus to hear complaints was discussed at the bureau's meeting last week. Hammond said that a better understanding between businessmen and students will evolve from such meetings.

Tickets for Beefheart concert available through Wednesday

Tickets to the Captain Beefheart-Ry Cooder concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Shryock Auditorium are on sale at the University Center information desk.

Tom Kelley, Student Government Activities Council member, said that good seats are still available for $2 and $2.50.

Kelley said tickets will be sold at the information desks until 4 p.m.

Wednesday and at the Shryock box office beginning 7 p.m. that evening.

Captain Beefheart and Ry Cooder will be featured on radio station WDIB, between 10 p.m. and 1 a.m.

Cooder will demonstrate techniques of bottleneck guitar, his specialty, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Free School house, 212 E. Pearl. Paul Costello, committee chairman for Free School, said everyone is invited and can bring guitars.

Priest pleads innocent to conspiracy charges

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The Rev. Philip Berrigan, imprisoned antiwar priest, and five other persons pleaded innocent Monday to charges of conspiring to kidnap presidential adviser Henry Kissinger and blow up heating tunnels in the nation's capital.

Tight security prevailed through the federal building as the 47-year-old Jesuit priest was led by federal marshals before Judge R. Dixon Herman of U.S. District Court.

Father Berrigan, a Roman Catholic, was brought here in handcuffs from the federal correctional institution at Danbury, Conn. He is serving a 1½ year term for destroying draft board records.

The other defendants, all free on bail, included two priests, a nun, a former priest who is married to an ex-gun, and a Pakistani graduate student.

Berrigan had spent the night in jail in a nearby Bloomsburg, not far from Lewisburg Federal Penitentiary where he was first imprisoned last summer and from where the government claims he masterminded the alleged plot to kidnap Kissinger.

The arraignment was delayed nearly four hours to permit the defendants to consult with their lawyers.

Those who sought admission to the tiny courtroom needed special passes. Access to the stairways was restricted and identification was needed to get on elevators. Uniformed guards checked everyone entering the building, and all had to walk through a metal-detector in search of hidden weapons.

Federal employees conducted searches of the building after two bomb threats were telephoned to a switchboard, a Justice Department spokesman said. No one was evacuated and no bomb was found.

Besides Berrigan, the defendants are Eqbal Ahmad, 40, a student at the University of Chicago's Adlai Stevenson Institute for International Affairs; Sister Elizabeth McAllister, 31 Upper Montclair, N.J., a member of the Religious Order of the Sacred Heart; the Revs. Joseph Wenderoth, 35, and Neil R. McLaughlin, 30, both of Baltimore; and Anthony Scoblick, 30, a former Jesuit priest in Baltimore. Scoblick is the son of a former Pennsylvania congressman.

All six waived reading of the indictment handed down by a federal grand jury here last Jan. 12. They earlier claimed the charges were fabricated and part of the deliberate effort to destroy the peace movement in America.

Judge Herman told their lawyers he would give them 60 days to file motions.

"I will set a trial date later," he said.

Frat plans Charity run

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Members of Alpha Delta Chi fraternity of SIU-Edwardsville announced plans Thursday for a 100-mile marathon to Springfield in behalf of the Heart Fund.

Richard Lytle, fraternity president, said 35 to 40 members will participate in the marathon to promote start of the Heart Fund drive Feb. 14.

Lytle said fraternity men will run one-mile legs between Edwardsville and Springfield starting Feb. 13 and stop overnight about halfway through the jaunt at Carlinville.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie will greet the runners at ceremonies in front of the Capitol Building Feb. 14, Lytle said.

Saturday art sale to help fire victims

A benefit art auction will be held from 1-5 p.m. Saturday on the second floor of the Allyn Building. Paul White, a graduate student in art, said the proceeds will go to Jim Wright, a graduate in art and a printmaker.

Wright lost all his possessions and studio when his house burned on Jan. 21.

White said all pieces to be auctioned will be donated by faculty and graduate and undergraduate students in art. He said the items will be available for inspection beginning noon on Saturday.

Six Flags auditioning for talent Wednesday

Talent will be auditioned at SIU by representatives of Six Flags, which now operates entertainment parks in Texas and Georgia and plans to open one soon in St. Louis.

They will be at SIU all day Wednesday at the University Center Ballroom C.

Six Flags said it is scouting all kinds of talent, from opera singers to comedians. They are looking for popular, classical, country and western, rock, barbershop and folk soloists and groups.

Six Flags is also interested in dancers, instrumentalists and variety acts. A piano accompanist will be available but persons may use their own. A record player and tape machine will also be available. Acts should be limited to three minutes.

Lion on the loose

University Galleries reports that a ceramic lion, part of the University permanent collection, is missing and presumed stolen. The "cat" in question is small (9" x 13") and was on loan to the Department of Sociology. It sat on the desk of Ed Patterson in the General Classroom Building but was missing on or about Jan. 27. When last seen it carried an SIU Property Control tag number 164747. Information concerning the present location of this work of art will be appreciated by University Galleries (453-3493).

New student unit to hold workshop

The new Student Activities Steering Committee, the group responsible for planning programs for New Student Orientation for spring, summer and fall quarters, will have an organizational meeting at 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Activities office conference room.

Persons interested in being on the committee are urged to attend. Tom Kachel, Student Activities consultant, said.

In addition, Kachel announced that applications are now being accepted for the leadership training workshop to be held Feb. 26-28.

Jim Schuster, activities graduate intern, said the workshop will deal with leadership factors as they relate to the individual, the dynamics between and among persons and environmental stimuli. Schuster said that the workshop is presently intended for those persons who have had no prior leadership training.

Potential new student week leaders also are asked to attend.

Applications for the workshop may be picked up at the Student Activities Office, second floor of the University Center, and should be returned by Feb. 19.

SIU grad, St. Louis reporter dies of apparent suffocation

John Durbin Jr., a 1960 graduate of SIU and St. Louis Globe-Democrat reporter, died Saturday at his parent's home in Fairview Heights, Ill., of apparent suffocation from a tumor in his windpipe.

Funeral Mass will be at 9 a.m. Wednesday in Our Lady of The Assumption Church, 3940 Bunkum Rd., Fairview Heights. Burial will be in the Mount Carmel Cemetery, Bellevue.

A journalism graduate of SIU, Durbin worked as a staff writer at the Daily Egyptian. During his junior year, Durbin won an international scholarship and spent three months working as a copy editor on the Pacific Stars and Stripes in Tokyo.

In November, Durbin received the 1970 Con Lee Kelliner award for journalistic excellence, which is presented annually by the St. Louis chapter of Sigma Delta Chi professional journalism fraternity.

A native of East St. Louis, he was graduated from Assumption High School and attended SIU-Edwardsville for two years before transferring to the Carbondale campus.

Durbin, who was 23 years-old, is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Durbin Sr. and two brothers, Patrick Hugh Durbin and Leslie James Durbin, all of Fairview Heights and a sister, Mrs. Charles Byrman of Richardson, Tex.

Distinguished speakers

Model UN begins Thursday

By University News Services

The annual Model United Nations sessions held at SIU this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, will provide area college and high school students with the opportunity to witness mock plenary sessions, committee discussions and presentations by distinguished speakers.

More than 350 students from SIU and area high schools will represent the 127 delegations that compose the actual United Nations. Delegations include a chairman and two members.

Each member of the delegations will actively participate in one of three committees. The main theme of this year's Model UN is "The Third World." The three committees will consider the topics, "Economic Exploitation," "Human Exploitation," and "The Third World Tomorrow."

Plenary sessions will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday with speaker Glenn A. Oids, ambassador representative from the United States to the Economic and Social Council. Oids talk will be followed by a question and answer session. At 9:30 p.m. Juri Roslyakov, a member of the United Nations Secretariat Center of Economic and Social Information, will speak.

On Friday morning the delegates will go into committee to discuss resolutions on their topics. These will later be discussed and debated by the General Assembly.

According to Richard W. Moore, this year's student secretary general, the "Third World" theme was chosen because "over two-thirds of the world's population has been ignored at past Model UN's."

At 7:30 Friday evening, His Excellency Joseph Odro-Jowi, the ambassador to the United Nations from Kenya, will speak.

Moore urges anyone who wishes to hear the speakers to be at the sessions at 7 p.m.

This year's Model UN is coordinated by the International Programming Committee of Student Government Activities Council in co-operation with the Council of International Relations of United Nations Affairs. The International Relations Club of SIU is also helping to sponsor this event.

Model UN will be located in the ballrooms of the University Center. All committee meetings, speakers and general assemblies will take place there.

During the three-day sessions students will experience several different facets of the United Nations work as well as gain insight into some of the current world problems.

The plenary sessions will be held as follows: 6-11 p.m. Thursday; 8 a.m.-noon, 1-5 p.m. and 7-11 p.m. Friday; 8 a.m.-noon, 1-4 p.m. Saturday. The public is invited to attend any part of the program.

'The Search' a poetic insight of SIU lifestyles

A small book may be found on the University Bookstore shelves which may be regarded as an excellent reference to SIU students' lifestyles and beliefs.

This book, "The Search," is a collection of verse written by undergraduate and graduate students at SIU. Sponsored by the Department of English, it is an annual publication financed by a special subsidy from the chancellor's office.

The 1970 edition of "The Search" contains 42 poems, the work of 21 students. It has grown from a 23-page booklet in 1961 to the 64-page 1971 edition now being planned for fall quarter.

Dan Piper, a professor in the English department, and Larry Taylor, assistant professor of the English department, are editors of the 1971 edition. Material for possible publication must be submitted to them by students before April 1.

Selection of the poems to be printed will be done by an editorial committee of student poets.

Black studies new in focus, activities

By University News Services

The long, pyramid-shaped stairs leading up to the Black American Studies department at SIU, located in the Old Baptist Foundation Building, will no longer lead to an old department in an old building; it's all new, according to Ben Braithwaite, director of the cultural resources center in the department. He works under Walter G. Robinson, recently appointed director of the office.

Since September of last year, when black studies reorganized its staff, bringing with it a change in the focus of how the program should operate, eliminating some positions and creating new ones, more students and community residents are participating, Braithwaite said.

"The most unique thing about our department now is we involve more students, faculty, community people, institutions, agencies, organizations and church groups," he said. "And that was our purpose. We work with these groups in activities focusing on things relating to local black communities," Braithwaite continued.

Using a concept termed "Communiversity," black studies has created the Cultural Resource Center, working with programs such as the Community Audio-Visual program in northeast Carbondale, a black studies choir, a newsletter, a dance group, a black speakers series, and a Marion penitentiary cultural program.

Black studies also will be sponsoring the Black History Week Festival which begins this week.

Another program, the Black Seminar Series, is operating in various living areas on campus in an attempt to develop authentic relations with new and old students. Milton Hill, administrative assistant at black studies, is overseer for the project.

According to Hill, many students are unaware of the academic and financial assistance available. With the aid of Reggie Davis, one of the University's ombudsmen, Hill hopefully sees the project as one of "acquainting the students with black studies and giving them the opportunity to talk about the problems they might be having."

Other programs like the Camp Humanity project, the people's breakfast program and the recreational program function in cooperation with the cultural center, but are initiated by external sources, according to Braithwaite.

Communiversity makes University resources available to the local black constituency, which has been neglected in the past, he added. "In reaching out to the people, we have allowed them to become closer to us in the University community," he said.

One of the more unique projects has been the Marion federal penitentiary cultural program where various speakers visit the prison each week participating in discussion groups with the inmate population, Braithwaite said. Usually the speakers come from the community and the University.

In taking the "Communiversity" concept one step further, he said members of the cultural staff serve on certain advisory boards within the community. With so many programs to channel into, Braithwaite foresees a long, hard road ahead for the department.

Recently, black studies has written several proposals to attract external funding sources. Hopefully additional funds, if received, could increase the program's effectiveness, he said.

One proposal, Research Outreach, would seek funds to train students in research techniques and methodology. The public school proposal would train public school administrators in a series of workshops designed to assist them in implementing black culture and history in the school room. The project Upward Bound proposal would offer high school instruction to potential drop-outs and low achievers in school, and the Audio-Visual proposal was written to gain funds for additional equipment in the already existing visual center located in northeast Carbondale.

Rev. Dr. King... a timely martyr?

Editor's Note: This being Black History Week at SIU, the following article is pertinent for its commentary upon the life—and the death—of one of American history's most notable black men, the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King. The article poses an intriguing question: Was Dr. King's death timely for the civil rights movement?

By Vernon E. Brown
Copley News Service

The civil rights movement as its conception was a very gutsy, witty, sassy illustration of what black people could and would do if their commitment was strong enough.

When it began in Birmingham, Ala., that black woman on the bus literally told the world, "We ain't moving no more." When the demonstrations began and the marches, then emerged the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. He was chosen by a group of so-called "smart" Negroes to lead the Southern black people out of their bondage.

Dr. King had charisma. Dr. King had wit. The greatest asset Dr. King had was that he was truly a man of God and therefore had a friend when no one else befriended him.

Let no one ever say that I have no appreciation for the price Dr. King paid for black Americans and Americans, but I am saying that Dr. King would not have been eulogized and made a martyr if he had not been shot down when he was.

One month before Dr. King's death, he was in Los Angeles and spoke at a church that would seat about 600 people. The church was scarcely half full. Three years prior to Dr. King's death, when he spoke at a church or other gatherings, you could not get within blocks of where he was. Something drastic had happened to his popularity.

I think the main single reason was in 1963 or '64, the black movement should have changed its philosophy or theme from protest to production. The movement should have created banks, finance companies, should have instigated housing for the homeless. It should have created neighborhood self-help programs. It became popular to be involved in the civil rights activities.

Dr. King and the higher echelon leadership of his Southern Christian Leadership Conference realized that they had lost what they once had—the people. They could no longer raise money for the cause. There was factional bickering among people and there were factions that would have ruined the organization. I feel that Dr. King, being one of the most sophisticated men of our day, thought that giving his life, if it could bring vitality, unity and strength back to his people, would be but a small price to pay, and he gave it.

It seems strange that James Earl Ray, who is the accused assassin, could check into a predominantly black neighborhood, drive a conspicuous white Mustang, get a room overlooking Dr. King's balcony—and soon Dr. King was dead. James Earl Ray came down, got back into his white Mustang in a predominantly black community, and made his way to England where he was later caught.

People in our community have said that the Federal Bureau of Investigation, or the Central Intelligence Agency or the Ku Klux Klan killed Dr. King, but the FBI, CIA or other organizations of that kind had no need to kill a dying cause.

Dr. King was truly a great man, but as a result of his death, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference made millions and millions of dollars, and if you recall the speech Dr. King made prior to his last day in our world, his expression was, "If I go, it's all right because I have been to the mountaintop and I have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord."

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. was truly a fantastic individual. He gave his life so that the burden of black people would be lighter.

Women urged to wear their own hair more

TORONTO (AP)—One of Canada's top wig sellers urges women to wear their own hair as much as possible. Jack Khorsandi, president of Classic Wig Center in Toronto, said, "Natural hair is still one of the loveliest adornments a woman can have. Wigs are a convenience and aren't meant to encourage laziness."

Experience beats youth

Gymnasts down Canadians

By Fred Weinberg
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

An American who is uninformed of the international gymnastics scene, would probably answer the question "Is the SIU women's gymnastics team young or old?" with a definite "young, of course."

Which goes to show just how uneducated an American can be on the topic of gymnastics.

In comparison to the Canadian national team, the SIU group comes on like a bunch of senior citizens.

Fortunately for SIU coach Herb Vogel, they are a very talented group of "senior citizens" and when the group of high school age youngsters otherwise known as the Canadian national team came calling at the SIU Arena Friday night, experience beat youth, 173.25-169.0, as the SIU women racked up their fourth win of the season in as many tries and closed out the home portion of their schedule.

The Canadian team made it into Carbondale some two hours late as the result of weather conditions which prevailed in Toronto Friday morning, delaying their flight to Chicago's O'Hare Field until Friday afternoon and getting them into Chicago too late to make the necessary connections for Carbondale. Vogel sent an SIU plane to pick them up at O'Hare.

They came in no pushovers, however, and Canadian Jennifer Diacin beat out SIU's veteran performer Terry Spencer for the all-around championship, winning the vaulting and the uneven parallel bars competition.

Miss Spencer won the floor exercise with a 9.2, the highest score of the meet, and the Salukis' Carol Donnelly came up with a surprising win in the balance beam with an 8.95.

SIU took a slim lead, 43.65-43.60, after the vaulting event and the Canadians tied it up with several outstanding performances on the uneven parallel bars at 85.7 all.

It was on the balance beam that SIU won the meet, forging to a four point lead on high scoring performances of Miss Donnelly (8.95), Miss Spencer (8.90) and freshman Claudia Coder who came up with an 8.65 while the Canadians were scoring in the upper seven range.

The floor exercise became a holding action for SIU with Miss Spencer's 9.2 the event's highlight.

Miss Spencer was performing with a taped ankle, the result of a strain sustained last Tuesday in a shooting session for Sports Illustrated magazine.

The Canadian team members are all of high school age according to their coach, Marilyn Savage.

"Our high school program is much stronger than our college program which is just getting started," explained coach Savage.

"The colleges in Canada are very academically oriented and it wasn't even until very recently that they even had athletics at all. In recent years, though, they've become gang ho with athletics."

The Canadian coach lamented the fact that she loses so many gymnasts to United States schools which offer competitive programs in the sport.

"It takes so long to make a gymnast... about 10 years," she said. "When a girl goes to school in the states, although they receive excellent coaching from people like Herb (Vogel), she doesn't have a chance to compete in her own country very much and very often they'll marry someone from the States and stay down here so we lose a lot of coaches that way."

Coach Savage was impressed by SIU's Juliet Mayhew's performance. Miss Mayhew is a native of Canada who was sidelined by a knee operation during the tryouts for Canadian World Games team last summer.

"She's had so much hard luck when it has come to making the national team," said Mrs. Savage. "She's looking great now and I'm looking forward to seeing her come out for the '72 Olympic team," added the Canadian coach.

The meet was the last international meet scheduled for SIU. The SIU team is now 2-0 in international competition having downed the New Zealand national team last November.

Cal Poly wrestlers trounce Salukis

By Ernest J. Schweit
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Defeat is the toughest thing any team can be asked to absorb, especially when you wanted one particular victory so bad you can taste it.

Such was the case when the SIU wrestling team met top ranked California Poly Mustangs in the SIU Arena last Saturday.

For coach Linda Long and the wrestlers, the loss was one that could give someone ulcers. It seemed that whenever a Saluki was on the verge of scoring some points or the momentum was about to swing in favor of the Salukis, something would go astray.

In fact things went so far astray that the Salukis absorbed a 23-9 trouncing at the hands of the Mustangs to drop their record to 6-5.

"They really own a bicycle," said Long in reference to the strategy that called for the Mustangs to escort their Saluki opponents out of bounds whenever the Californians had the lead.

"We expect this hitting and running. The only way we can stop this is to score first and keep on scoring. You have got to know what you are going after."

The evening started out looking like the Salukis might pull the rug out from under the NCAA College Division's best with Russ Cunningham at 118 pounds and Ken Gerdes at 126 gaining victories over their Cal Poly opponents.

But all that stopped in the very next match with 184-pounder and world junior champion Larry Morgan doing in SIU's Steve Jones, 13-6.

The victory set the Mustangs on a rampage that netted the next six out of seven matches including John Finch's 3-0 triumph over Rich Cagney in the 158-pound class.

That match best exemplified the frustrations the Salukis were experiencing throughout the evening.

The score was 1-0 with the Mustang wrestler leading by virtue of a scoreless first period and an escape at 2:45 in the second frame. Going into the final period Casey needed an escape to tie and any other kind of scoring to extend his winning streak. It never came though because each time the Saluki grappler began to wriggle free of Finch's grasp the duo waltzed out of bounds.

"We knew this was coming," said Long. "We also knew that we must execute correctly and keep mistakes to a minimum, but we didn't."

A nearly identical situation prevailed in the 190-pound match between SIU's Mark Samuels and Gary Masoff.

Wrestling to a scoreless first period, Masoff escaped halfway through the second frame and gained a 1-0 lead before the Mustang gained a predicament with 15 seconds left in the match for the victory.

Dan Alveree, wrestling in the 177-pound slot, garnered the third and final SIU victory of the meet by keeping his Mustang opponent, John Hall on the mat long enough to gain a come-from-behind victory.

Ticket sales to be limited

Mrs. Neoma Kinney, the SIU Arena ticket manager, has announced that she has a limited number of tickets for each of the remaining away Midwest Conference Basketball games on sale.

Mrs. Kinney noted that the Feb. 20 game with Northern Illinois at DeKalb has been sold out at NIU and SIU's block of tickets is the only remaining. All purchases for the NIU game must be made by Feb. 17.

Prices for the away games are $2.00 for every school except Illinois State which charges $3.00.

Mrs. Kinney also announced that sales for the Feb. 15 Illinois State game in the Arena will start Wednesday due to the holiday Feb. 15.

Freshmen to face Bradley tonight

By Ken Stewart
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

In basketball conscience Peoria, many youngsters grow up thinking the final moments of the Star-spangled Banner ends with "the home of the Braves."

Saidi fans will get a taste of why the Bradley University Braves have caused the addition of the "S" in that part of the state.

The Bradley freshmen may bring an unexpected 1-0 record into the SIU Arena at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday when they take on SIU.

The undefeated record depends on the outcome of the Bradley-St. Louis game Monday night. The Braves won an earlier game in Peoria, 80-76.

Bradley's varsity coach—with a team doing quite well in Missouri Valley Conference competition—can sleep easy at night knowing he will inherit a team averaging 59.7 points per game while holding opponents to 62.7.

The Braves are led by 6-3 Mike Harrel of Shreveport, La. who is averaging 26 points per game and all-state Seymour Reed of Lincoln, Ill. with a 14 point average in scoring and 10.6 in rebounds.

The SIU whelps will enter the game coming off a 82-57 loss against powerful Paducah Community College Saturday.

High scorer for SIU was David Burke with 17 points, while Eddie James and Charles Brown, both scored in the double figures with 11 and 10 points respectively.

Bill Buford was high scorer in the game for Paducah with 22 points.

"Our defense looked better in the game," said SIU coach Paul Henry.

"The defense is better right now than it has been all year."

As for his 3-4 team's facing the Braves, Henry said "it should be a real good ball game."

Bradley may be the third undefeated team SIU has faced this year. Murray State and Paducah have not lost a game.

Gymnasts split meets

The SIU gymnasts split over the weekend, taking a 182.15-132.70 win over the University of Arizona at Tucson Friday but dropping a 162.0-137.65 decision to the University of California at Berkeley Saturday.

SIU's Tom Lindner won the all-around championship in the Arizona meet but was tied for the honor by California's George Greenfield Saturday.

Lindner and SIU rings man Charles Ropiequet set new personal highs in the Arizona meet, picking up a pair of 9.75's in the high bar and still rings respectively.

Ropiequet had previously done a 9.55 while Lindner's best was a 9.65.

SIU gymnasts won all the events against Arizona with Lindner taking the free exercise, parallel bars and the high bar, Ropiequet winning the still rings. Ron Alden posting a win on the sidehorse and Frank Benesh winning the vaulting.

The California meet was a different story, however. SIU was only able to win one event as a team in one of the Salukis' poorest showings of the year.

Dave Oliphant came up with a 9.05 to take an individual first in the sidehorse, the only event which SIU won as a team.

Ropiequet was first in the still rings with a 9.45 while Lindner won the high bar with a 9.55 and tied Greenfield for first place honors in the parallel bars with a 9.3.

The tie for the all-around championship kept Lindner undefeated in competition against nationally ranked opponents having bested Brent Simmons of Iowa State earlier in the season.

A meet scheduled for 9:30 p.m. Carbondale time at the University of New Mexico Monday completes the three meet westward swing and the team will return early Tuesday.

Swimmers wash school records away

By Ernest J. Schmitt

Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

It seems like every time an SIU swimmer dives in the water, some record is washed away. In the month of January alone, the tankers set six school records while losing only once to powerful Michigan, 59-55, and winning three times.

The tankers added to that list of records this weekend with Dale Korner setting a new mark in the 200-yard breaststroke Friday against the Missouri Tigers in the University School pool.

The amazing freshman's time was 2:12.1 which broke his own school and pool mark by three-tenths of a second, and helped the Salukis get the weekend's activities off on the right foot by beating the Tigers, 74-38.

For the native of Peper Pike, Ohio, the mark was a bit unexpected.

"Actually I am surprised that I went that fast," he said. "At this stage of my conditioning going 2:12.1 is real good."

There are two big meets that Korner, as well as the rest of the tankers, are looking forward to—the Southern Intercollegiate Championships at the University of Georgia, Feb. 18; and the coveted NCAA championships at Iowa State Mar. 25.

In looking towards the meet in Georgia, Korner said, "I hope to get my breaststroke times down into the nines (less than 2:10.00) and for the NCAA's, I would like to see the times drop into the sixes and sevens."

In the meet with the Badgers and Wildcats, which the Salukis won, the record setting continued with SIU's Bruce Steiner getting into the act with a time of 4:52.7 in the 500-yard freestyle, which was good for a Wisconsin pool record. The time was mere one second off qualifying standards for the NCAA championships.

The Saluki tankers did receive some bad news this weekend when they learned that diver Don Cashmore has been sidelined with blood poisoning. According to coach Ray Essick, Cashmore came down with the poisoning after an insect bite.

The weekend victories sent the Salukis mark to a lofty 7-1 and set the tankers up to meet the powerful Indiana Hoosiers at Bloomington, Ind., Thursday.

Salukis place second in meet at Kansas

The SIU indoor track team managed to crack a field house record on its way to a second place finish in a three-team meet at the University of Kansas Saturday.

The powerful Kansas Jayhawks ran off with first place with 85 points while Alabama finished last behind the Salukis' 69 points with 21.

Mike Bernard took first place in the high jump when he broke an Allen Field House record in 6-10.

Ivory Crockett finished first in the 60-yard run in a time of 6.1 seconds while teammate Ed Sutton came in third in 6.2 seconds.

Terry Erickson was first with a time of 1:13.1 in the 600-yard run while Ed Sutton finished in a first place among runners in the 440-yard dash in 50.1 seconds. Crockett finished second in the same time.

Other Saluki action included a second place finish in the mile run by Ken Nalder in a time of 4:11.5. Ron Frye finished the 60-yard high hurdles in 7.5 seconds—enough for second place.

The Salukis travel to Champaign-Urbana for a meet against the University of Illinois Saturday.

Grand jury probe of NFL continues

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Jack Kemp, a former quarterback turned New York congressman, was questioned Monday by a federal grand jury digging into owner-player relations in the National Football League.

Kemp, former president of the old American Football League Players Association, told newsmen he was quizzed about NFL league structure, player drafts, option clauses and restrictions on players.

Both teams hold 6-8 marks

Wisconsin's Badgers in Arena tonight

By Mike Klein

Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Midwestern Conference 2, Big Ten 1. That's how the season record stands after wins by Indiana State and Northern Illinois over Purdue and Michigan State respectively, combined with Northern's one-point loss to Indiana University.

The Big Ten will get a chance to even the slate tonight when Wisconsin's win-hungry Badgers face the Salukis at 7:35 p.m. in the SIU Arena.

Coach John Powless' Badgers are limping; they've won only once in the last seven games. Nevertheless, this is a good ballclub that has played a tough schedule and will carry a 6-8 record into tonight's game.

That's identical with the Salukis who didn't play over the weekend. Wisconsin lost to Iowa, 93-91, Saturday.

The Badgers, victims of a 74-69 last-minute comeback win by SIU in Madison last year, have had some tough breaks during the last seven games.

They lost by one point to Big Ten leader Michigan, two points to Illinois and Iowa, three points to nation-leading Marquette and 14 points to Ohio State.

Al McGuire's Marquette Warriors also plastered a 14-point loss on the Badgers, 89-75, when the two teams met for a second encounter. The Warriors led in that one by 39 points before bringing in the reserves.

The Badgers' lone win during the losing streak was over Big Ten doormat Northwestern, 87-72. Wisconsin's league record is 1-4.

Early season was much kinder to the Badgers as they held a 5-2 record before hitting the skids. Those two losses were by five points to Pittsburgh and one point to Ohio University.

The fifth win was against Texas, 89-73. The Longhorns beat SIU in Austin, Tex., 107-100, and turned the trick again in the Arena, 89-81. Texas is the only common opponent.

The Badgers have a genuine superstar in Dean Sherrad, their high-scoring guard currently averaging 24.6 points per game, good for spot No. 22 in the major-college scoring race.

Last season, Sherrad pumped through 530 points for a 22.4 average and was six points shy of Wisconsin's season scoring record.

In the backcourt with Sherrad will be Bob Frasier, a 6.6 points per game man. The front line is well-balanced offensively with all three men averaging between 11 and 14 points per game. Leon Howard, 6-3, is averaging 14.4 at a forward after scoring 29 per game for the Badgers' frosh last year. He's averaging 8.2 rebounds for the big club.

Glen Richgels, 6-6 center, is the leading rebounder with 10.8 mark and is scoring at an 11.6 pace. Gary Watson, a 6-7 forward, is averaging 12.2 points and 8.7 rebounds. Both are listed at 220 pounds.

Southern might be without Marvin Brooks tonight. His father died while Salukis were snowed in up at Creighton and Brooks left for Memphis, Tenn., when SIU returned to Carbondale Friday. He had not returned by Monday.

Greg Starrick pulled a hamstring muscle in his right leg during the Creighton game but said Monday that it doesn't bother him.
