Homes burn; estimated loss at $80,000

By John Jenkins
Staff Writer

Fires that started early Tuesday morning in the basements of two Carbondale homes caused nearly $80,000 damage and left two families homeless.

Firemen were called to the first fire at 506 W. Walnut St. about 12:20 Tuesday morning. Firemen said that when they arrived, the basement of the two-story frame house was engulfed in flames and the fire was spreading up the stairwells. The fire apparently started near a coal furnace in the basement.

Owner Henry Nicolaides escaped unharmed with his family. Nicolaides said his wife got up about 12 a.m. to feed their baby and noticed smoke in the house.

"I went downstairs and there definitely was a fire," he said. "The smoke was so bad you almost had to get down and crawl out," he added.

Firemen fought the fire for more than six hours with three pumper trucks and an equipment truck. Damage to the house was estimated at $60,000.

Nicolaides, who tunes pianos and gives piano lessons, lost four pianos in the fire. The two grand pianos and two uprights are probably beyond repair, he said. Water caused the wood to swell, but some were damaged by the fire.

Nicolaides and family are staying at his mother's home until they find another place to live.

While firemen were battling the first fire, another alarm was sounded at 2:25 a.m. for a fire at 1105 N. Pierce St. Firemen found the blaze spreading upstairs through an outside wall. The fire started near a bar in the basement. Damage to the house, owned by Eldred Robertson, was $19,000. The only injury was to an unidentified child who was cut by a piece of glass.

Firemen were hampered by freezing temperatures.

Police fight alcohol at games

By John Jenkins
Staff Writer

Because of complaints from basketball fans, University police will step up control of drinking at campus events, including concerts and athletics games.

Under the crackdown plan, spectators possessing alcoholic beverages will probably be escorted out of the event, according to Mike Norrington of the University police.

University regulations prohibit the use or possession of alcoholic beverages on campus except in the dormitories, Norrington said. University police have received written complaints from spectators at basketball games objecting to the drinking.

Persons caught possessing alcoholic beverages face criminal charges or University discipline action.

Bill Kehoe, assistant coordinator of student relations, said students could receive punishment varying from a written reprimand to suspension.

Norrington said a non-student could be prosecuted under a state law which prohibits the sale or delivery of alcohol on University property.

Womick safe after crash

By Jean Ness

Eight Southern Illinois residents, including Carbondale's city attorney, escaped severe injury when the plane they were in crashed in the British Virgin Islands Monday night.

The eight were landing at an airport on Virgin Gorda Island when the light plane they chartered overshot the runway.

On the plane were City Attorney John Womick and his wife, Jane; attorney Donald Mitchell of Carbondale and his wife, Judy; Marion attorney James Bleyer and his wife, Eileen; Belleville attorney Jerald Bonifield and his wife, Cathy; and a court reporter from St. Thomas Island.

Although no major injuries have been reported, Mitchell told his Carbondale answering service Monday night that his wife had suffered a broken pelvis.

The other injuries reported were possible broken ribs to Bleyer and minor cuts to a few other passengers, he said.

All passengers were "pretty shaken up," Mitchell reported.

The Daily News of the Virgin Islands, a newspaper based on St. Thomas Island, reported Tuesday that the small commuter plane overshot the runway and crashed into a barrier at Alexander Hamilton Airport on Virgin Gorda Island. The accident followed a 50-mile flight from St. Croix Island.

The paper said all nine passengers were treated at a hospital on the British-owned Virgin Gorda Island. No further information was available.

Representatives from city hall, and Bonifield's and Bleyer's law offices said Tuesday that the only information about the crash they have received was Mitchell's report to his answering services.

The eight were in the Virgin Islands as part of a vacation-business trip.

The attorneys, Brandon said, were there to take written testimony from a professional diver in connection with an

John Womick

$8 million suit by another diver against the City of Carbondale.

Matthew Wilcox, the plaintiff, is suing the city for injuries he apparently sustained when he dove into Cedar Lake in August, 1976.

Roland Carlson, who now lives in the British Islands inspected the scene shortly after the accident, and is being asked to provide testimony in the suit.

All eight local passengers are expected to be back in Southern Illinois by the end of this week.

No end seen in coal talks

By Ron Koehler
Staff Writer

Negotiations on the tentative agreement reached Monday in the nationwide coal strike could last two days or longer, a UMW spokesman said Tuesday.

Despite optimistic reports surrounding the "tentative settlement" claiming miners could ratify the agreement in as little as 10 days, John Samuels, UMW research director in Springfield, says immediate action on the proposal is unlikely.

"The big variable now is what action the bargaining council will take on the agreement," Samuels said. "There are two areas of concern to Illinois miners—the elimination of cost-of-living clause in the contract and the payback provision to the retirement fund—that I would be very surprised to see the council approve."

The tentative agreement was scheduled to be presented to the union's International Bargaining Council Tuesday at 10 a.m. The 24-man council must ratify the pact before it is sent to the rank and file members for approval.

Samuels pointed out that the bargaining council rejected the first pact sent to them in the 1974 contract negotiations.

The payback provision to the retirement fund is a stipulation in the pact which would require a miner taking part in a wildcat strike to reimburse the union's retirement fund $26 for each day he is idled because of the walkout.

Samuels called the payback provision a "severe penalty" and said the state's 14,500 miners were not likely to agree to a contract without additional cost-of-living benefits.

Samuels said that in the event the pact was ratified soon by the bargaining council, the ratification process could be completed in 10 days.

Tom Engram, supervisor of campus utilities, said SIU had a 90-day coal supply as of Dec. 7, but that no shipments have been received since the strike began Dec. 6. Heat has been cut back in campus buildings to conserve coal.

Snow serves as cover in Morris Library theft

By Mary Ann McNulty
Student Writer

The snow storm wasn't the only first for Carbondale this year—Morris library had its first break-in in history.

The storm, the worst in 60 years to hit the area, acted as a cover-up for a robbery of cash from four photocopying machines. The amount of loss is undetermined.

The break-in occurred between 7 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Jan. 17, the first day school was closed because of the weather, Sidney Matthews, director of library services, said.

Since the campus was shut down, the day and night custodians were not in the building between those times.

Entry to the building was gained by chopping out a section of wood on the southwest door near the browsing room and kicking the door in, Matthews said.

David Buntor, of the University police said two juveniles were arrested last week in connection with the break-in. They were also implicated in two other vending machine burglaries that week.

No formal charges were filed because the youths were on probation and the probation department is handling the proceedings.

Matthews said the robbers broke into four photocopy machines, located in the undergraduate library and coin boxes were taken out of three.

"If the photocopyers were operating all day, and if the machines had made the maximum number of copies they could, there would have been $80 in each machine," Matthews said.

Drawers in the circulation area were also broken into, but nothing was stolen. Thirty cents was reported missing from a desk in the circulation area.

A security police report said the robbers appeared to have remained on the first floor because nothing was found disturbed elsewhere.

A steel door will replace the wooden door which was destroyed, Matthews said.

The library has had photocopy machines located in secluded areas broken into before, but the incidents occurred when the building was open.

"Vending machines invite mutilation," Matthews said. "They are a prime target for robbery."

City could fine owners $500 for not shoveling sidewalks

By Steve Lambert
Staff Writer

Carroll Fry says he hasn't gotten around to using his snow shovel.

And that's one reason that Fry, Carbondale's City Manager, is supporting a proposed city ordinance which would fine residents and businessmen up to $500 for failing to clear snow and ice from their sidewalks.

The ordinance, discussed informally by the City Council Monday night, is intended to protect pedestrians who have been forced to walk in the streets because of snow covered sidewalks. The council will formally act on the ordinance on Feb. 20.

"The point is, people would clean their sidewalks if they're required to," Fry told the council Monday. "I know I haven't cleared my sidewalk. Nobody else has."

The ordinance, as presented to the council Monday, states that homeowners or tenants in charge of any residential building in the city must clear their sidewalks within six hours after snow has stopped falling. In addition, businesses in the city must clear any snow within four hours after it has stopped falling.

Council members recommended that the ordinance be changed to extend the time limit in residential areas to between 12 and 24 hours after snowfall ends.

The six-hour limit, they said, would be unfair to households in which everyone works or is away from home all day.

If the snow turns to ice, residents and businessmen would be required only to sprinkle an abrasive, such as sand, on the sidewalk.

Violation of the ordinance could result in a $10 to $500 fine.

Robbery suspects convicted

A jury has found two Kansas City men guilty of armed robbery and unlawful restraint in a trial at Jackson County Circuit Court. Sentencing is scheduled for March 2.

The two men are Ben Brown, 23, and Lewis Shelby, 24. They were originally charged with armed robbery and kidnapping, but the kidnapping charge was reduced to unlawful restraint.

The charges were brought against five Kansas City residents, but three pleaded guilty to reduced charges.

They were accused of the armed robbery and kidnapping of Mary Lou McIntyre of Chester at a rest area in Illinois 3 Nov. 12.

The ordinance, Fry said, would apply to all residents.

"You can't have an ordinance if you don't enforce it across-the-board," he said.

This drew mild criticism from council member Archie Jones, who said he was worried that many elderly or handicapped persons wouldn't be able to comply.

"They may not be able to shovel the snow or have enough money for someone else to do it," Jones said. "There's no provision for that."

"I know I don't have much of an argument, but I have feelings for my people," said Jones, who is 76.

Fry, 62, answered by saying that he is "no idler either." Anyway, he added, a University fraternity, Alpha Phi Omega, has been shoveling snow for elderly persons since last month's storm.

Council member Hans Fischer said he thinks the ordinance is needed because "it's dangerous for pedestrians to walk on the streets, and it's scary for drivers."

But, he said, the city may have trouble enforcing the ordinance.

"You can't write too many tickets," he said. "All the snow would melt before all the tickets could be written."

Phil Gilbert, an assistant city attorney, agreed that enforcement would be difficult since "if you're gonna write one ticket, you must write many."

He added that the ordinance could be unfair to some residents.

"What about the people away from home, or at school, or on vacation in Florida," he said. "How are they going to know there's snow here?"

Charges were reduced to robbery against Tucker and Davis, with sentencing scheduled for Feb. 27. Greer pleaded guilty to one count of armed robbery and is scheduled to be sentenced March 2.

The three who pleaded guilty to reduced charges were Eddie Lee Greer, 26, Vickie Tucker, 20, and Earneine Davis, 17.

Charges were reduced to robbery against Tucker and Davis, with sentencing scheduled for Feb. 27. Greer pleaded guilty to one count of armed robbery and is scheduled to be sentenced March 2.

Two judges file suit for cost-of-living raises

CHICAGO (AP)—Two federal judges filed suit contending that Congress wrongfully denied them and 600 colleagues cost-of-living salary increases. Judge William J. Campbell and Judge Hubert L. Will, both of the Northern District of Illinois, said that they and other federal judges in the nation were entitled to a 4.8 percent increase under a presidential order issued in October 1976, but Congress failed to appropriate adequate funds for the raise. The suit asked that the court order the U.S. government to retroactively restore the full raise specified in the presidential order to appellate and District Court judges who were appointed before July 11, 1977.

'Hillside Strangler': Mother told me to kill

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A man claiming to be the Hillside Strangler said in a letter made public Tuesday that he killed a dozen "evil ladies" because his mother told him to. Police, stressing that they did not know whether the letter was authentic, said the writer gave them "another week or so" to meet his call for help in turning himself in safely, and threatened "something serious" if authorities failed to respond. Assistant Police Chief Daryl F. Gates read reporters the first page of the pencil-printed, six-page letter mailed last month to Mayor Tom Bradley.

Mardi Gras celebration marred by shooting

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A costumed reveler, riding a homemade float in a Mardi Gras parade, was shot and wounded—marring the city's street party celebration. The victim was taken to Charity Hospital after being treated by a doctor who was at a house-party on the parade route. "It appears to have been just a potshot from the crowd," said a police investigator. The victim, whose identity was not released, was reported in guarded condition with a wound in the upper chest. He had been riding in the 90th float in the Elk's Krewe of Orleansians—a long parade of decorated trucks rolling along fashionable St. Charles Avenue after the more prestigious Rex parade. Crowds along the route were thick, despite 30-degree weather and a nippy north wind.

U.S. may add new bomber to nuclear arsenal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defense Secretary Harold Brown said the United States may add a new manned bomber to its nuclear arsenal even though President Carter has decided against producing the B-1 bomber. Carter's announced cancellation of the $25 billion B-1 program last June "was not a final decision against the manned bomber," Brown said. But the secretary said it will be into the next decade before it becomes necessary to develop a different version of the nuclear bomber. Brown testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee in defense of the administration's proposed $126 billion defense budget for fiscal year 1979.

Coast Guard warns of 'potential major oil spill'

SALEM, Mass. (AP)—The Coast Guard warned of a "potential major oil spill" as it searched for a Greek tanker grounded and lost in a blinding blizzard in Salem Harbor. Meanwhile, a pilot boat that had run to the stranded tanker's rescue had not been heard from since Monday night when it lost its navigational equipment in 25-foot waves driven by 60 mph winds. Police in Nahant, north of Boston, said two life jackets from the 45-foot pilot boat "Can Do" had washed ashore there. The boat carried a crew of five. Though the 602-foot tanker Global Hope was thought to be just over a half-mile off shore, a searching Coast Guard cutter could not find it because of the fierce snowstorm that cut visibility to 400 yards.

Sadat won't be shy when asking for weapons

WASHINGTON (AP)—Egyptian President Anwar Sadat told members of Congress that he will not be shy in asking for U.S. weapons, adding that "I shall raise hell" if Congress does not approve them. Although the comment was made with a laugh after a meeting with members of the House of Representatives, he seemed more somber as he emerged later from a similar session with a Senate group. "I threatened them," Sadat said after his closed door talks with the senators. After talking with the House members, Sadat offered the "raise hell" comment with a laugh, but said in a serious tone about his request to buy U.S. arms: "The last time I was here I was shy. But I am not shy any more."

Near-record snowfall hits Chicago

Snowflakes kept falling on Chicago Tuesday as Mayor Michael Bilandic ordered a major effort to clean city streets that have been clogged for nearly two weeks.

There has been no thaw in the area since a blizzard Jan. 24 and the National Weather Service said temperatures will remain below the freezing mark at least through Sunday.

An additional one inch of snow had fallen at Midway Airport from midnight through 6 p.m. Tuesday on top of 9.3 inches that fell Monday. The official snowfall this winter for Chicago climbed to 73.1 inches, within four inches of the record of 77 inches set in 1980-70.

The National Weather Service said flurries might continue through Wednesday afternoon but no substantial additional accumulation was expected.

It was very cold in most other parts of Illinois, but no snow was reported, the National Weather Service added.

For the seventh night Tuesday, Chicago crews planned to tow cars so streets could be plowed. The cars are relocated nearby and their owners can call a special number if they can't find their cars.

Bilandic ordered 600 plows, salt trucks equipped with plows and high-lift trucks to clear side streets. Many are still covered by snow from the blizzard. He also directed 2,000 city employees to clear major crosswalks, bus stops, fire hydrants and sewer inlets with shovels.

The mayor said it was the city's biggest snow removal effort since 1967.

Thompson opposes $48 tuition hike...

(CHICAGO (AP))—Gov. James R. Thompson said that he opposes tuition increases proposed by the Board of Higher Education (BHE), and does not think one would be approved.

Thompson also said he would introduce a bill this year to end legislative control over university tuition.

Thompson said he had not decided who should have the final word on tuitions, but would designate such an agency in his bill.

"I don't think the governor or the legislature has any place in the tuition business," he said.

Currently, universities can approve tuition changes, but only the legislature may release the money for the

and the rest from general revenues.

The governor revealed his plan at a BHE meeting.

"I just don't believe the legislature would approve a tuition increase two years in a row," he said.

However, Thompson refused to say whether he would veto a tuition increase if it were approved by the lawmakers.

The Higher Board has recommended a tuition increase of $48 for undergraduate university students and $64 for graduate students.

It's part of the board's total recommendation of $975 million for higher education operations—an increase of $94 million. Of that, about $6 million would come from the proposed tuition increase University's use.

The governor appeared before the board to discuss his $955 million budget plan for colleges and universities—an increase of $79 million in general revenue funds.

"I think that figure represents a commitment to good solid higher education in Illinois," Thompson said.

The governor said it would allow the board to go ahead with its top priority item, faculty salary increases, and it would allow an increase in state contributions to the university retirement system.

"I've tried to recommend for higher education every dollar I thought was realistically available," Thompson said.

He said there are increasing demands from other segments of state government, especially for social services. He said those demands, along with his determination for a balanced budget, had to be taken into account in his higher education plan.

Thompson said his budget would allow colleges and universities to begin receiving a larger share of state tax dollars.

"I don't think there is a chance that higher education ever will recapture the share of state resources it once enjoyed," he said.

He pointed to declining enrollments as another reason for that.

...Carter seeks hefty aid boost

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter will announce a major program Wednesday to provide at least $700 million to college students from middle-income families because he fears a 71 percent jump in college costs has put their chances for higher education in jeopardy.

Hoping to stave off a move in Congress to give a $250 tax credit to the parents of all college students, Carter will propose a combination of grants and loans using $700 million he set aside in his fiscal 1979 budget, said White House Press Secretary Jody Powell.

Powell said the program, to be announced personally by the president, and explained in detail by Joseph A. Califano, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, will be targeted mostly at the middle class.

The press secretary did not specify what families Carter would include in the middle class. Under the government's current $2.2 billion program, most basic grants go to students from families earning less than $10,000.

The grants drop to a minimum of $50 as income and assets increase. The cutoff point for a family of four with one child in college is roughly $17,500 in income.

At present, some 2.4 million students attending college next fall are expected to receive basic grants averaging $200 under $900 apiece.

For fiscal 1979, Carter has proposed $4 billion for existing programs to help college students and has proposed raising the maximum grant from $1,600 to $1,800. He also has proposed making more students eligible.

Between 1967 and 1975, Powell said, college costs have increased by about 71 per cent, putting the average cost of tuition, room and board for each student attending private school at more than $4,000 a year.

Student Senate to consider sports program investigation

The Student Senate is scheduled to hear a bill calling for an investigation of SIU's sports programs at a meeting 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Illinois Room.

If the bill is passed, a committee will be formed to investigate possible inequities between men's and women's athletics programs.

The committee would include: two senators from the Student Services Committee, two senators from the Campus Internal Affairs Committee and one representative each from men's and women's sports.

The move comes after a resolution passed last week, calling the present split of the athletics fee between men's and women's sports inequitable. The resolution demands that the present 70-30 split in the fee be changed to 60-40.

In separate action, a resolution requesting that library fines be levied against faculty and staff for overdue books and periodicals, is scheduled for introduction. The resolution states that fines for faculty should be the same as those for students.

Students are charged 15c a day for general circulation material and between 10 and 50c an hour for periodicals and reserve material. Faculty and staff are not charged fines for overdue material.

Simon introduces health plan

A limited national health care plan, aimed at dealing with the "most pressing problems" caused by spiraling health care costs was introduced Monday by Rep. Paul Simon, D-Carbondale.

The plan would provide free medical care for children under six and for pregnant women. It proposes relief for families with extraordinary medical expenses resulting from "catastrophic illnesses."

Entitled the "National Health Protection Act of 1978" the plan also calls for an expansion of the Medicare program for the elderly. Its cost is estimated at $8.9 billion yearly.

Simon said the plan would "deal with some of the most pressing problems that have resulted from the sharp increases in the cost of health services...without a sizeable increase in taxes."

Simon's plan would allow pregnant women and families with children under the age of six to sign up, to be cared for by doctors or health care groups that volunteer to participate in the program.

Medical care would be provided free of charge and the doctor or health care group would be reimbursed by the government on a fixed per-patient cost. The per-patient cost would reflect the average cost of service to those groups.

Under the catastrophic illness provision of the health care plan the government would reimburse 50 percent of all medical fees a family has accumulated which amount to more than 10 percent of their annual income.

Veterans get VA benefits for nuclear-caused cancer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Veterans Administration says it has awarded medical disability benefits to at least 12 veterans in the past 10 years who claimed that they developed cancer after they were exposed to nuclear tests in Nevada and the South Pacific during the 1940s and 1950s.

However, some of the benefit grants were made not on the basis of radiation exposure alone but because the veteran had other service connected disabilities, VA officials said Tuesday.

Sydney J. Shuman, chairman of the Board of Veterans Appeals, said any doubt as to how the disability was incurred is settled in favor of the veteran. "We try to be compassionate," he said.

The number of radiation-related claims actually awarded is unknown. J.C. Peckarsky, chief of the VA's Compensation and Pension Service, said "it's difficult to have figures that add up," because his field offices have been keeping record on such cases only since 1967 while the appeals board has been doing so only since 1970.

The statements by Peckarsky and Shuman are the nearest the federal government has come in recognizing some responsibility for illness developed by servicemen who were exposed to radiation in the weapons tests.

One of the cases granted — but not on the basis of exposure — was that of Paul C. Cooper, who drew national attention early last year when he claimed he is dying of leukemia as a result of exposure in a 1957 test in Nevada.

In that test, troops maneuvered near ground zero after detonation of a 44-kiloton device.

Shuman said Cooper apparently is the only participant in that test, called project Smoky, who has had his claim acted on by the appeals board. He noted that the board is now considering the case of another Smoky veteran, Donald Cox of Kentucky, who has hairy cell leukemia.

The VA officials said 17,000 veterans have engaged in the atomic tests since the first such test in 1946.

Consider student for council

Joseph Dakin's recent resignation from the Carbondale City Council offers government leaders a unique opportunity to engage in some important diplomacy with a power that has been foreign to local government for far too long—the students of SIU. Before filling Dakin's council seat, which expires in 1979, the City Council strongly should consider naming a student to that post.

Such a move would have great practical and political value to the city. Politically, appointing a student to the City Council could increase student interest in local affairs and perhaps help solve the problem of student apathy that has plagued city-campus relations in the past. Practically, a council member appointed from the student body could voice the many student concerns that have been either unarticulated or ignored by the city.

The student voice is an important one in Carbondale. And yet, in important matters, it is rarely heard.

—Students are major consumers of goods and services in Carbondale; student dollars help support both local merchants and city government. And yet, with no representative in city government, students have no voice in the economic development of the city, nor do they have a legitimate say in how city money is spent.

—Students are the primary consumers of liquor in Carbondale, and many of the city's taverns and restaurants would be bankrupt without student trade. And yet students have no input into the proceedings of the Carbondale Liquor Control Commission (composed of City Council members) which awards licenses to liquor establishments and regulates the sale of liquor in the city.

—Students are most affected by poor housing conditions throughout the city. Many live in dwellings with substandard safety measures. And yet students have no voice in the city government which sets—and enforces—community housing standards.

A qualified, capable student with a genuine interest in city affairs could bring desperately needed student participation in city government. A worthy candidate should be found now, before the council appoints Dakin's successor.

Student president Dennis Adamczyk has announced his intent to seek appointment to the council, and he should be considered, along with other students, for the post. But the dual role of city and student government official that would result from an Adamczyk appointment might hinder his effectiveness in both jobs. Carbondale needs a council member who can devote his or her full attention to the job—and students need the same devotion from their student government leaders.

Further, students need a representative in city government who is, and who will remain, a student; who has to deal with the problems a student citizen of Carbondale must face daily. A student nearing graduation would not fit that bill.

In addition, any student who seeks a council seat must have clearly defined plans for the future. Such plans are the only way to overcome the opinions of city officials who regard students as transients, who need not be dealt with because they will not be in town for any length of time.

But Dennis Adamczyk is not the issue here. Nor, in fact, is any single student the issue. Rather, the issue is whether the Carbondale City Council will appoint to its ranks a representative who will voice the concerns of the largest single population group in the city. And the issue is whether the City Council can continue to ignore that voice in government affairs.

The vacant council seat gives the city of Carbondale an opportunity to introduce legitimate, sober student thought into city government after years of benign neglect. It is an opportunity that should be welcomed—and acted upon.

New Department of Flaky Affairs wages Cold War

It felt like a remake of "Nanook of the North" as I walked across campus, the stiff wind blowing snow in my face like so many Kellogg's Corn Flakes trapped in a wind tunnel. I walked carefully in the darkness, making sure not to slip on the icy sidewalk.

Off in the distance, I heard a scraping noise, followed at regular intervals by a grunt and a soft curse. I walked over to the source of the sounds—a man dressed in a quilted brown coat and galoshes, wearing a baseball cap and smoking a cigar. With great effort, he was shoveling a patch of sidewalk at the rear of Anthony Hall.

"Hi, Seymour," I said to the janitor, who was kicking a pile of ice. "Nothing like winter sports, huh?"

Seymour spat at the ice. "Yeah kid, sure. Welcome to the Stanley Cup. Only like Nutty Lou over at Neckers says, it's kinda hard to play around this building because nobody inside gives a fuck."

I grinned at the janitor. "Funny, Seymour, funny, isn't it a little late in the day to be shoveling snow?"

"Naw, kid, not under the new schedule. Everything's goofed up nowadays."

I took my hands from my pocket and wound my scarf tighter around my neck against the wind. "New schedule? What new schedule?"

Seymour flung a shovel full of snow over his shoulder. "Ahh, it's part of the snow plan that some of the geniuses inside dreamed up. They call it the 'Frozen Water Contingency Format for Winter Egress Operations.' A real grabber of a title, huh?"

I nodded. "What's it all about?"

"Ahh, the usual planning junk. You know, maps, charts, diagrams, blueprints, contingency studies, cost impact analysis studies, sample forms, PR plans, traffic routes, community relation reports, system intervention plans. All the usual crap. I ran across a first draft the other night and damn near broke my back trying to dump it in the can. Damn thing's gotta weigh 30 pounds!"

Seymour leaned on his shovel and blew on his hands as I smiled. "What kind of stuff are they doing, Seymour?"

"All winners, kid. Like they wanted to make a new office to handle the snow, right? So they met on it and were all ready to call the guy who was going to run it the University's Head Snowman. They figured it was catchy, right? Well, just before they round up the search committee, Legal tells 'em they'd be messing up the civil service setup and the administration flow charts if they called the guy that. Plus Affirmative Action's hollering that designating a Snow MAN is a Title IX problem! So they ended up calling the job the Assistant Associate to the President for Flaky Affairs! Can you beat that?"

I laughed. "Sounds about right, Seymour."

Seymour looked me in the eye. "Yeah, but you haven't heard the rest of it! They were thinking about changing the name of the basketball team from the Salukis to the Sled Dogs, but the budget people killed the idea because it'd cost a fortune in T-shirt and jacket printing, not to mention the bucks for the new souvenir beer mugs! But the best part is the new building program."

"Building program? What's that?"

"That's the pet project of one of the alumni types. He figured that with all the ice around, they could get new classrooms fast if we made 'em outta igloos! So they drew up this plan for a test project based on rebuilding that old building that burned down a few years back."

I took my hands out of my pockets and looked at the janitor. "Wait a minute. You don't mean that . . ."

Seymour nodded. "Yep, kid. They're gonna call it Cold Main. Isn't that beautiful?"

'Bigwigs' want to play in students' yard

Could it be there was a misprint in Thursday's D.E.? Could it truly be that a president of a University, a man devoted to educational ideals, would ask why dorms are built or a $9 million Rec Building (which is used daily by roughly 10 percent of the total student population) was built? I read it, but I couldn't believe it.

I've been in Carbondale since 1968 and I've seen a lot of things, heard a lot of inanities and seen a few University presidents come and go. I've bit my tongue on more than one occasion referring, perhaps to the detriment of my fellow students, to be cowed. I have suffered inequalities imposed by library fines, bur-sar's holds, and lack of parking facilities. I was angered to see sidewalks covered with ice (keeping handicapped students and faculty members alike from class) and the top level of the garage (relegated to the peon students, of course) inundated by snow.

I was even angry to read that the Rec Building pool is not open to all students at all hours. And I was silent when I viewed that clever but terribly expensive golf machine in the Rec Building which is available to all, but actually benefits a few. There are many more things at SIU which each student knows to be unfair, but which would transform this commentary into a long horror story.

But, Dr. Brandt, I am now verbal. This is an abuse I cannot accept—the use of the beauty of our Southern Illinois countryside to build a golf course which will not belong to us. Southern Illinoisans believe that the grass should be greener on the other side of the fence. Look around you, Dr. Brandt. That's why I live here.

I care little if the golf course is built at no expense to the University. I care even less you must give up some of your backyard. I paid for your house. I paid for the dorms. I paid for the Rec Building. And I pay for you. I won't pay for this folly. The truth is that it is MY backyard.

Stand up, students and other sane souls and fight. It's your own backyard which will become a playground for big wigs and other demi-gods.

Transit service should be expanded to outlying areas

The Women's Transit Authority is a step in the right direction for women on campus and in the community. It surprises but pleases me that the University and the city of Carbondale would donate $1,200 each. It shows their realization of the seriousness of the problem of rape.

I am hoping that in the future the organization will take this idea a step further and provide a transit to the Health Service and maybe someday to the Mall and other (outlying) places. Because students must pay a $40 Health Service fee each semester, we deserve transportation for these services for which we are billed.

Therefore, in the event that this program works out as expected, a transit link to the Health Service, and if possible, other key locations in the city, should be established.

City Council shows misplaced priorities through recent actions

I noted this week, with regret, a number of misplaced priorities for the Carbondale City Council. I just couldn't believe the reasoning behind the council's rejection of a beer and wine license application by Southern Barbecue's Tom Fligor. He was turned down for a liquor license on the premise it may deter other respectable businesses from opening new establishments in the downtown area.

May I set forth another vantage point. Perhaps the reason new businesses haven't opened is because the landlords have milked the town dry and there is neither the energy nor the financial resources left to rebuild it. Moreover, the city can't implement a sensible traffic pattern, so it's ridiculous to suggest City Hall could legislate downtown redevelopment.

Perhaps a reappropriation of funds from under-cover police activities into buying a snow plow could be in order.

It's only right, Council member Westberg, to deny Southern Barbecue a license because you gave one to Hangar 9. Ahhh!! When is that election again?

Emerson, Lake and Palmer

Semis not 'instrumental;' just the way ELP does it

By Dave Erickson
Entertainment Editor

Any discussion of Emerson, Lake and Palmer in concert always seems to get bogged down in boring recitations of gross tonnage of equipment. The fascinating element of their five semi-loads of equipment, the reasoning behind it, often seems to get lost.

"If we lose money, so what? Just so I'm satisfied aesthetically. There's no way we can make money," Keith Emerson told a reporter last summer when ELP were in the midst of their "Works, Volume 1" tour. Even those with the most cynical view of rock could hardly argue that they hauled around a 6-piece orchestra and choir because they thought it would make them more money.

Emerson's devotion to music and its performance even carries over in his attitudes toward an instrument he has done much to popularize, the synthesizer.

"It's such a lot of us. And a lot of worry, you know?" he told Contemporary Keyboard magazine last summer. "Dampness and everything effects its tuning, and I can't devote my head fully to music."

Still, it would surprise more than a few people if he performed on only organ and piano next Tuesday.

"The wave of the future is not in smash-bang! Nor is it in electronics. It is in musical expression," bass-player Greg Lake told a reporter last summer, reflecting Emerson's dedication.

Drummer Carl Palmer is interested in holding up the percussion end of this "wave," saying "I try to have the tuned percussion of the guy who plays with an orchestra and the technical ability that someone like Buddy Rich has."

Despite the absence of the 66-piece orchestra and choir on this tour, there will be a crew of 75-80 workers at the Arena here at 10 a.m. next Tuesday to set up ELP's equipment says acting Arena manager Gary Drake. They'll be starting from the floor up, bringing in and assembling everything, including their own special stage which stands 6-and-a-half feet tall (2-and-a-half feet taller than the Arena stage) in the front and 6-and-a-half feet tall in the back.

"The only thing the Arena is providing are the tarps and chairs on the floor," said Drake.

While ticket sales started out with one of the heaviest first days in Arena history, they have slowed down recently. Arena publicist Kathie Pratt attributed this to rumors going around, and assumption on some people's part, that the concert is sold out.

"We've sold a lot of ELP tickets, but there's plenty of good ones left," Pattie Veech of the Arena Special Events Ticket Office said Tuesday. Veech said they'd sold about 6500 tickets and that they usually figure about 9000 for this set-up, leaving around 2500 of the medium and lower-priced tickets left. The top-priced tickets are all sold.

SGAC Video tapes entertainment

By Cindy Michelson
Student Writer

What do Stevie Wonder, "Roofer Manimus," Calibre Stage productions and "Money Night Football" have in common? They're all brought to you by Student Government Activities Council Video Group (SGAC).

"We try to bring in programs that you don't normally see on television," said SGAC Video chairperson Matt Lavery.

A fifteen-member committee is responsible for the video programming. "By participating in the committee, students have access to all video equipment and they can produce their own special projects or documentaries," Lavery said. Student organizations planning to bring guest speakers to campus can arrange to have their programs taped. The service is free and the tape is kept on file in the video library for future use.

The video group is also offering a free class this semester. "Students are taught all aspects of half-inch video tape production from pre-planning and organization to edition," Lavery said.

A new project for the Video Group this year will be the taping of Calibre Stage productions. "The video group has never tired theatre before and we think it would be good idea to have the productions on tape in the video library," Lavery said.

The video lounge was moved from the third floor of the Student Center to the fourth floor this year. Lavery said reception for the large-screen television was greatly improved and the seating capacity is larger.

Lavery said the group has been hampered by not having color cameras for videotape production.

"With tape rentals costing $2,000 a year, it's hard to save for color cameras which cost anywhere from $4,000 to $6,000. We don't want to start charging students to see video programs so we're looking for other alternatives," Lavery said.

SGAC Video also interested in co-sponsoring lectures with student organization.

Methods of conserving art examined in Mitchell Gallery

By Gary Sierapatski
Student Writer

Do you know how to examine and conserve your paintings? Now's your chance to learn by visiting the "Know What You See" art exhibit being presented through Feb. 15 at Mitchell Gallery in the Home Economics Building.

Evert Johnson, director of the exhibit, said the show would help faculty and students understand the examination and conservation of paintings under varying environmental conditions. Some of the conditions that can alter the appearance of a painting are light, temperature and humidity.

Methods of examining and treating paintings with such techniques as X-ray, ultraviolet and infrared rays are featured.

X-ray examination of paintings show the stylistic and structural characteristics of one artist or particular school. Also, alterations in design made by the original artist can be determined.

Ultraviolet rays are useful in examining the surface of a painting for locating recent retouches.

Infrared rays can do the work of both ultraviolet and X-ray examinations. They reveal alterations in composition, retouched areas and original details in dark passages.

"Art courses taught at the University are more concerned with design and the aesthetics of art, not with examination and conservation," Johnson said. The exhibit is part of the Smithsonian Institution's traveling exhibition series.

Braggart's blight

Fusion band pleases jazz fans

By Nick Sertel
Student Writer

Listeners at the SIU Fusion band concert had a reason for being in a frenzy. The near-capacity crowd at Stryock Auditorium Monday night walked into the building expecting to hear a college-type jazz concert, but someone managed to sneak a professional band on stage.

After receiving a rousing welcome from the ever-growing cult of SIU jazz fans, the trio of pianist Gus Pappelis, percussionist John Zurek and bassist Angus Thomas proceeded to play such an impressive set of jazz that most of the audience forgot to get out their customary concert enhancers.

The band started off with its arrangement of "Birdland," a tune made popular by Weather Report. Despite equipment trouble, the tune provided a preview of things to come, with Thomas getting in some nice bass licks.

"Spain" was another of the band's crowd-pleasing numbers as members of the audience were tempted to peer around the piano to see if Chuck Corea had replaced Pappelis.

After a long solo featuring the showmanship and polyrhythms of Zurek, the trio played "Snow-bound," a song Pappelis wrote with reference to the you-know-what that's been here since school started.

The final number, "St. Louis Blues," proved that the band could play styles of jazz other than the frantic-paced music of a Corea or the cosmic, abstract music of a group like Weather Report.

WSIU will air Panama talks

Beginning 10:30 a.m. Wednesday morning, WSIU Radio (92.1M) will broadcast coverage of the Senate debate over the controversial Panama Canal treaties.

It will be the first time that radio has been allowed to cover a live proceeding other than a President's speech from the Senate floor, according to John Kurtz, assistant chairman of the Radio-TV Department.

National Public Radio will initiate the historic broadcast and will feed the coverage to commercial stations. The broadcast begins at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday and is continued at 10:00 a.m. Thursday and Friday. The Senate will then recess for one week, with debates scheduled to resume Feb. 20 and last from two to five weeks.

At issue in the debate will be several sections in the treaties signed by President Carter and Panamanian leader Torrijos in September.

Neither Howard Baker, Senate minority leader, or Robert Byrd, the majority leader, believe that they have the two-thirds majority needed for treaty ratification. Baker hopes to have enough support to add two amendments.

improvisational talents in the finale to the hour-long concert. The song was "dedicated to all our friends in GSC 371, Evolution of Jazz," said Pappelis.

The only negative point in the show was the absence of the group's trumpeter, John Kinnison, who was unable to perform due to a previous engagement.

But if the group sounded as well as it did with only three-fourths of its normal instrumentation, how good do they sound as a quartet?

Good enough to win last year's Wichita Jazz Festival. And probably good enough to listen to again.

Graduate assistant teaches course to help students improve memory

By Debbie Thornburgh
Staff Writer

If you had remembered that a comma separates a subordinate clause from a main clause only when the subordinate clause comes before the main clause, you might have received an A instead of a B on your English test.

If you had remembered the time of your job interview last week, you might be working after graduation.

If you had remembered to pay your electric bill on time, your electricity might still be on.

Persons with acute memory problems such as these, or anyone who wants improved memory, may benefit from a memory class that is being taught by Gene Krebs, graduate assistant in guidance and educational psychology.

The memory techniques taught in the course are not new, Krebs said "but the combination is unique."

During the first half of the semester, students learn memory techniques to help them remember information they have read.

The first step is prose analysis, which consists of reading a passage and writing the main words into an outline.

The next four steps are part of the loci mnemonic process. Loci mnemonics, according to Krebs, is the association of words and ideas with places the person is familiar with.

Krebs said the system was developed 200 years ago by the Greeks. "Loci" means place, and mnemonics are methods for remembering information.

Mnemonics comes from the Greek goddess of memory Mnemosyne.

The first step after prose analysis is semantic transformation, or paraphrasing the passage.

During the final half of the semester, students learn numerical transformation, a way to remember numbers. Invented in the 1700s, the system substitutes certain consonants for numbers. Vowels have no numerical value. To form the number to be remembered, a student combines the consonant with a numerical value and the vowels to make a word.

"People read complete sentences and paragraphs, not lists of words," Krebs said.

Krebs then built upon the idea of using prose analysis with the mnemonic devices he learned in other classes.

A few days before the beginning of fall semester, he presented this idea to Stanley Smith, dean of the College of Human Resources.

Krebs said Smith liked the ideas and asked him to start the memory class.

That semester, there were seven students and one person on a listener's permit in the course. About 100 students signed up for the course this semester.

"All I ask is that the student try," he said. "Students don't compete against each other, they compete only against themselves."

Krebs said he's been pleased with the progress of students in class and that he has been happy with the help he's received from the faculty.

Pharmaceutical firm starts sending pneumonia vaccine around country

WASHINGTON (AP)—Doctors and pharmacists are receiving the first shipments of a new pneumococcal pneumonia vaccine said to be 90 percent effective in preventing most forms of pneumonia, which kills at least 25,000 Americans annually.

The pharmaceutical firm of Merck, Sharp, & Dohme said it began shipping 700,000 doses of the vaccine from its West Point, Pa., plant over the weekend. It expects to have nearly one million more doses ready by the end of next week.

The Food and Drug Administration licensed the vaccine, called "Pneumovax," last Nov. 21.

A Public Health Service advisory committee has recommended that anyone over two years of age who is at high risk of pneumococcal disease be vaccinated.

That includes anyone with sickle cell anemia or other spleen disorders; anyone with diabetes or other chronic conditions such as heart and lung disease; and anyone in a chronic care facility such as a nursing home where pneumococcal pneumonia easily can spread.

Merck recommends its vaccine for anyone 50 or older.

The advisory committee recommended that there be no mass immunization of healthy persons.

The experts say the vaccine, which is expected to provide immunity for at least three years, is safe and cannot cause pneumonia itself.

The vaccine immunizes against 14 types of pneumococcal bacteria that cause more than 80 percent of the disease. There are 83 known types of pneumococcal bacteria. They also can figure in other diseases, including meningitis.

The pneumococcus is a bacteria normally found in the nose and throat of healthy persons. It can invade the lungs and cause pneumonia if the body's defense mechanisms break down. The vaccine bolsters the protection.

Household hints

on winter survival listed in pamphlet

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's happened to most of us before but it's scary just the same: that moment when electricity fails and the lights go out.

Ice in winter storms increases the chance of a blackout by pulling down electric lines, so the Department of Energy suggests you keep a flashlight or candles in a handy location around the house.

Then, in the event of an emergency, you can use them to find your way to the fusebox. If the failure affects only your home or apartment, you may be able to restore power by changing a fuse or flipping a circuit breaker.

Suggestions like these are included in a new Energy Department booklet, "Winter Survival."

The 20-page pamphlet covers a variety of winter problems, including how to save energy, furnace failure, coping with exposure to the cold, driving tips and what to do if trapped in your car.

In the event of a more general failure, the Department of Energy suggests you check with your utility company. It already may be working on the problem but you may want to make sure by calling yourself.

Then, government energy experts say, you should turn off switches around the house, including the furnace switch. In addition, unplug the freezer and refrigerator, because the surge of power when the electricity is restored can damage the motors of appliances.

Once power is back on, the department urges, give the utility a little help by not turning on many lights or electrical equipment for a half hour or so. This will ease the immediate load on the utility system while it is trying to stabilize.

State abortion law requiring consent for minors challenged

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—A state law requiring unwed girls under age 18 to get their parents' consent for an abortion will probably be challenged all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, sponsors say.

The law went into effect Jan. 1 but was blocked Jan. 31 in federal court by a 10-day restraining order. U.S. District Court Judge Prentice H. Marshall said he will decide by Wednesday whether to continue the order.

The measure became law over Gov. James R. Thompson's veto by votes of 62 to 12 in the Senate and 126 to 42 in the House.

"No matter how the decision comes out, it will be repealed by either side," says Rep. Donald E. Deuster, R-Mundelein. "I think it's holy contested enough so that neither party will let a lower court decision stand very long."

On one side are those who claim parents should have more control over their teenage daughters. On the other are those who argue that the law infringes on a girl's right to decide the fate of her own body.

Deuster said the law would strengthen the family and create "a reasonable balance between the rights and the responsibilities of parents and the rights and the welfare of young people."

But L'Tanya McIntosh, of the Northern Illinois Women's Center in Rockford, complained that the law could make a bad family situation worse by requiring the girl to tell her parents she's pregnant.

"If they don't have good rapport with their family, it's not going to get any better when they tell them (they are pregnant)," McIntosh said.

She said the center turned away at least five minors after the law took effect. They couldn't prove they had parental consent for the operations.

Laura Moody, director of the Hope Clinic in Granite City, said the new law apparently has not reduced significantly the number of abortions it performs for teen-age girls. But she said it's still too early to tell.

"Our records show that two-thirds of our minors have had parental consent, even before the law went into effect," Moody said. She said the clinic performed about 4,000 abortions during 1977 and about 25 percent of them were for girls under 18.

Moody said the law discriminates against young people capable of deciding without their parents' help whether or not to have children.

"Anyone who thinks that the minor doesn't know what she is doing is fooling himself," she said.

"The patients have thought it out very carefully and they've reached this decision after seriously considering the other alternatives."

Judge Marshall's order temporarily stops enforcement of the law while a challenge is argued in federal court.

The ruling stems from a class-action suit filed by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of four doctors and two pregnant 17-year-olds. The suit charged that the provision of the state law requiring parental or judicial consent violates the teen-agers' right to privacy.

The suit also charged that the new law conflicts with a U.S. Supreme Court ruling limiting a state's authority over patient-doctor relationships during a woman's first 90 days of pregnancy.

The law provides that a girl must obtain the consent of both parents before getting an abortion. One parent's consent is sufficient if the other is unavailable, or a guardian's consent will do.

If the girl cannot get consent from her parents or a guardian, she can ask a state Circuit Court for permission to get the operation. The law says a judge can grant the request if he is satisfied that the girl understands the consequences of her decision.

Carter wants funds for Mrs. Slovik

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter said he has asked several congressmen to introduce a bill to give life insurance benefits to the widow of Pvt. Eddie Slovik, the American soldier shot for desertion during World War II.

During a White House reception for about 350 Polish-Americans on Monday, Carter said he decided he did not have the authority himself to grant the benefits to Mrs. Arkanette Slovik, now in her early 60s. Mrs. Slovik, reached by telephone in Detroit where she has been living in a hotel since last September, said, "This is marvelous news."

"You know I'm broke. I've been trying to get help from the state, but they are so slow. I didn't know what I was going to do," she said.

Slovik, the only American deserter executed since the Civil War, was killed by a firing squad in a French village on Jan. 31, 1945. Six months ago, the Army upheld that execution as legal, and dismissed Mrs. Slovik's petition for $70,000, which includes Slovik's $10,000 National Service Life Insurance policy plus interest.

When she was asked what she would do with the $70,000 if the legislation in her behalf passes, Mrs. Slovik replied:

"Oh lord, I'm going to live a little bit — live in dignity instead of poverty."

Mrs. Slovik, who married her husband about 15 months before he was drafted in early 1944, contended the Army made errors in the court-martial process and unjustly executed her husband to set an example

Cubans reported heading for Africa

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Thousands of Cuban soldiers are steaming toward the Horn of Africa aboard Soviet ships to help Ethiopia in its war against ethnic Somali rebels, diplomatic sources claimed on Tuesday.

The reports said about 3,000 to 6,000 Cuban troops left their Caribbean homeland for Ethiopia sometime last week and would "triple or double" the number of Cubans said to be fighting in southeastern Ethiopia's disputed Ogaden Desert on the Somalia border.

The sources said most of the Cuban troops are believed slated for a major role in Ethiopia's long-expected counteroffensive to drive out ethnic Somali rebels who now control about 97 percent of the Ogaden and are trying to annex it to Somalia.

In Addis Ababa, AP correspondent Brian Jeffries reported Ethiopia formally announced Tuesday it had launched a major military offensive to recapture rebel-held portions of the Ogaden. But Jeffries said the Marxist military regime denied Somali government claims Ethiopia plans to invade its East African neighbor with the help of Cuban troops and Soviet military advisers.

Neither the opening of the counteroffensive nor the transport of additional Cuban troops to Ethiopia could be confirmed independently.

Diplomatic sources say Cuban Gen. Carlos Achoa is in Addis Ababa helping plan the counteroffensive aimed at ending the six-month-old war. Achoa was the reputed mastermind when Cuban forces helped bring about a Marxist victory in Angola's 1975-1976 civil war.

The latest contingent of Cuban soldiers is believed heading for Assab, Ethiopia's last remaining open port along the Red Sea and an apparent gathering point for Cuban forces, the sources report.

In Washington, the State Department reported at least 1,000 more Cuban troops have been sent to Ethiopia, raising the estimated number of Cubans in the conflict to 4,500. On Tuesday, spokesman Hodding Carter III said the United States does not believe "the participation of outside powers is useful" in the Horn of Africa and cautioned both Egypt and Israel against supplying arms or troops to Somalia or Ethiopia.

In Rome, Ethiopia's information minister, Maj. Girma Neway, said Tuesday his country has "every right" to receive non-combat aid from any friendly country.

The sources said Cuban troops primarily provide artillery support for Ethiopian soldiers at the government strongholds of Harar and Dire Dawa in the northern Ogaden. The Cubans are driving tanks and armored personnel carriers in ground battles and flying Ethiopia's MiG-17 and MiG-21 planes — newly acquired from the Soviet Union — in saturation bombings of Somali-held towns, primarily Jijiga, diplomats report.

The ethnic Somali rebels want to join the Ogaden to Somalia, with which they share a common language and culture. Ethiopia also is battling secessionists in the northern province of Eritrea which controls the country's only access to the Red Sea.

Somalia, while providing the insurgents with material support, claims the huge amount of Soviet weapons and Cuban troops being sent to Ethiopia is a prelude to an Ethiopian invasion of its country.

Construction of Alton locks delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Action to authorize construction of a new Locks and Dam 26 at Alton, Ill., has been placed on the back burner by the Senate.

A vote on the House-passed bill has been delayed three times in three weeks. Senate aides say it may likely remain in limbo until after action on the Panama Canal treaties, which could take a month. The Panama debate is set to begin Wednesday.

Although little controversy remains on the need for a replacement for crumbling, 41-year-old Locks and Dam 26, the Senate is hung up on the issue of user fees for barges. One faction, led by Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N. Mex., favors high fees while another, led by Sen. Russell Long, D-La., wants low ones.

The fees would apply not only to Locks and Dam 26 but all locks and dams on the nation's waterways. Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, prefers low fees while Sen. Charles H. Percy, says he wants to bring about a compromise acceptable to both sides and President Carter, who says he will veto the measure unless it provides for fees higher than those in the current version of the bill.

In addition, a number of other senators are known to be ready with amendments having little or nothing to do with either the locks and dam or the user fees.

Wedged barge to be removed

WARSAW, Ky. (AP) — Experts tackled the ticklish job today of removing a crippled eight-barge tow imprisoned in the locks at the Markland Dam, where river traffic has been at a standstill for 13 days.

The tow Exxon Pennsylvania was pushing a cargo of 7,000 tons of gasoline and 9,000 tons of fuel oil upstream when it became wedged in the lock Monday.

One of the units ruptured, triggering an emergency when gas began leaking from a punctured barge.

Fearing a buildup of explosive vapors, officials evacuated all nonessential personnel from the dam. The leak was stopped by pumping gasoline out of the damaged unit.

Operations to free the tow were to begin at daybreak today, after firemen kept an all night vigil and a marine chemist monitored the vapor level.

The latest crisis cropped up just when it appeared that the battle was over at the ice-embattled dam. The locks have been closed since Jan. 25, when an ice jam that eventually reached six miles in length and measured 60 feet in thickness caused the worst blockage on the waterway in 15 years.

Earlier in the day, two tows passed through the locks and began battering a channel through the remaining 2 1/2-mile ice sheet.

The 108-foot wide Exxon tow became lodged in the 110-foot wide locks when packed ice reduced clearance between the lock walls. Officials hoped to dissolve the ice with salt, calcium chloride or fluctuating the water level.

If those efforts fail, warm weather would be needed to loosen the tow from its tight quarters.

"If this hadn't happened, we'd have been sending tows through all day," said Chuck Schumann, a spokesman for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. He acknowledged second-guessing over whether the Exxon tow should have tried to negotiate the lock with a tow so wide.

He said the decision to send the Exxon tow through was made by industry representatives.

"This should not be viewed as a criticism of them, but just as an exercise in hindsight," he said.

In a related accident at the dam, a $2 million cargo helicopter crashed near the shoreline, on the Indiana side, while salvaging $500,000 worth of steel beams from an ice-bound barge.

Government career day set

Representatives from 28 local, state and federal agencies will be on campus to take part in a Government Career Day which will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Ballrooms A and B.

Some of the agencies are the state of Illinois, U.S. Department of Agriculture, FBI, Veteran's Administration, Social Security Administration, IRS, Forest Service and the Bureau of Prisons.

Committee hears protest of pay hikes

CHICAGO (AP) — A committee studying the issue of pay hikes for public officeholders heard its only testimony on the stormy issue from citizens Tuesday and the peoples' message was clear.

"I not only say 'no' to a pay raise, I say, 'Hell no,'" shouted Kenneth Grubbs, a retired machinist for Trans World Airlines.

Grubbs, 60, of Chicago, said if the governor, legislators, judges and other officeholders want pay hikes, they should go directly to the voters.

"If you want to find out what you're worth, why don't you put it on a ballot?" Hubbs asked former Gov. Samuel Shapiro, commission chairman. "Four thousand dollars, $3,000, $2,000 or no increase at all. Let the voters check it off."

Grubbs was one of several citizens testifying before commission members appointed by Gov. James R. Thompson to study pay increases for government officials.

Shapiro divided the commission members into three subcommittees and the one looking into executive pay taken recommended some hefty increases.

Among them: The governor's annual pay should be raised from $50,000 to $75,000; the lieutenant governor's pay should go from $37,500 to $55,000; the secretary of state and the attorney general from $42,500 to $65,000; the comptroller and treasurer from 40,000 to $55,000; and appointed state directors of public aid, mental health, transportation and public health from $44,000 to $60,000.

Figures banded about for lawmakers range up to $38,000, compared with their current $20,000, and commission member Phillip Corby, one of the more successful attorneys in the state, has said there is no reason why Illinois Supreme Court justices shouldn't be making $60,000—the same as U.S. Supreme Court justices.

The only commission member who took a hard line against proposed increases for legislators was Patrick Quinn, a spokesman for the Coalition for Political Honesty.

Quinn told House Speaker William Redmond, D-Bensenville, who testified in favor of legislative pay increases, that any proposed pay hike should be tied to ethics and financial disclosure laws for legislators.

Quinn was sharply criticized by another legislative witness, Rep. Robert E. Mann, D-Chicago, who is retiring after the current term.

Mann accused Quinn, who is a law student and a one-time organizer for former Gov. Daniel Walker of "facial hypocrisy."

"I feel Quinn is a masquerader and he has to be confronted and he has to be challenged," Mann said. Anita Cummings, 34, of the South-west Side of Chicago, said no pay increases should be given to legislators who are on another public payroll.

"The failure on the part of the General Assembly to enact ethics reforms—specifically to put an end to double-dipping—further proves that the legislator is in no need of additional funds drawn from tax dollars," she said.

She said the average income of the average state legislator is $27,000 annually, not including a $17,000 office expense allowance.

She sharply criticized Mann's testimony.

"When he said a man can't raise a family on $20,000 a year, I wanted to jump up and scream," she told a reporter afterwards. "How much money does he think the average family in Illinois earns?"

Ms. Cummings is the wife of a Chicago policeman and is seeking the Democratic nomination for state representative from the 27th

Legislative District.

As an example of "double-dipping" she said should be outlawed, she cited the case of state Rep. Michael Madigan, elected from the 27th District. As Democratic House majority leader, she said Madigan is earning a total legislative salary of $33,400 as well as drawing $25,000 a year as assistant attorney for the City of Chicago.

"Also from the 27th Legislative District is state Sen. Frank Savickas," she said. "His job as legislator draws the 'average' $27,000. But if we add his salary as secretary to the (Chicago) Park District, we're talking about an annual income of $47,400."

Ms. Cummings said 95 percent of the people of the district which Madigan and Savickas represent make less than $25,000 and that the median income of the district is $12,900. Ms. Cummings cited the names of about a dozen other legislators.

Geese in good health despite cold, spokesman for wildlife refuge says

By J. W. Kleenath
Student Writer

Severe weather conditions and deep snow in Southern Illinois and Northern Kentucky have not had a disastrous impact on the 325,000 Mississippi Valley Canadian geese which are wintering in the area, a spokesman for the Crab Orchard Lake National Wildlife Refuge says.

"I think our flock is in reasonably good health," Ross Adams, staff biologist said. "However, the state people at their Horseshoe Lake and Union County refuges said that they had weighed samplings from their flocks and found a 15 percent loss of body weight. They are very concerned."

The Mississippi Valley geese, which traditionally winter in the Mississippi Valley bottom lands of Southern Illinois and Northern Kentucky, habitually nest south of Hudson Bay and west of the James Bay regions of Canada.

The population increased by 40,000 birds this winter and reached a record $25,000 by mid-December, Adams said. "Our goal is to winter 550,000 birds," Adams said.

The Crab Orchard Lake National Wildlife Refuge reached its peak of 120,000 "honkers" by mid-December, Adams said. The remainder of the big birds were at the Rend Lake, Horseshoe Lake and Union County refuges in Illinois and the Ballard County Refuge in Ballard County, Kentucky.

Adams said 6,000 acres of crops were raised on the Crab Orchard refuge during 1977, including 2,500 acres of corn, 1,500 acres of milo and 2,000 acres of green forage crops, a necessary part of a bonker's diet.

"The row crops were, for all practical purposes, consumed by mid-December," Adams said.

"Geese are very responsive to the activities of man and his farming practices," Adams said.

Adams said birds were lost during the water-fowl hunting season from crippling gunshot wounds.

Scandinavia trip offered for credit

By Jill Mitchell
Student Writer

Students in interior design and clothing and textiles have a chance to pick up credit hours this summer under a travel program to Scandinavia.

Shirley Friend and Paul Lougeay, instructors in clothing and textiles and interior design, are coordinating the trip scheduled from June 2 to June 30.

The purpose of the trip is to give students an approach to design different than that in the United States.

Students will travel to Copenhagen, Gathenburg, Jonkoping, Stockholm, Helsinki and Oslo. The group will visit craft centers where ceramics, textiles and jewelry are manufactured.

In Jonkoping they will visit a factory where Viking sewing machines are made.

In Helsinki, the group plans to visit many of the Olympic buildings and examine the architecture of the city. In many of the cities, the students will be able to visit schools, stores, public offices and some private homes to examine the design and architecture of the country.

Students can earn up to four hours credit for the trip. The group will be required to do some reading before leaving to become acquainted with the countries they will be visiting. Deadline for applying is April 1.

As they travel through the countries, students will be required to attend lectures, seminars and also write a paper on their experiences when they return. Friend said that they will be able to have 25 to 30 students attend the trip.

Fling Week attractions will include car race for on-campus residents

By John Cavanaugh
Student Writer

Those magnificent students in their driving machines will go at it in a "Great Race" during Spring Fling Week, according to Scott Joseph, graduate assistant for housing programming.

The race is scheduled for April 22, but the time, route and place of the start are still undecided.

The rules will require a four-wheeled vehicle with braking and steering mechanisms, roll bar, seat belt and one driver. It will be pushed along the raceway by team members, probably ten, Joseph said.

Joseph said only students from on-campus residence halls will be eligible to participate.

The race, to be sponsored by housing programming in conjunction with Spring Fling, has received favorable response so far, Joseph said.

Joseph added that rules for the event will be finalized in the middle of February, and on-campus residents who would like to help organize the race can contact him at the housing office, 538-5504.

The Spring Fling committee is also trying to acquire the movie "The Great Race" to be shown that week, Joseph said.

Knowledge of subject ranked first by students as asset for teachers

By Pam Bailey
Staff Writer

Teachers, who have spent many frustrating moments wondering what students expect of them, now may have the answers. A survey indicates that students consider thorough knowledge of the subject to be the most important quality of the "ideal" teacher.

About ten students from an interpersonal relations class in the Department of Corrections and Law Enforcement conducted a survey in November to determine what characteristics students value most in a teacher.

They found that both males and females consider thorough knowledge of the subject to be the most important quality in a teacher. The second most valued trait is being able to understand how students "grow, learn and develop."

Males and females differed slightly on the third most important characteristic. Females listed "accepting and tolerating individual differences" and males picked "encouraging students to think for themselves."

Both males and females agreed that "rarely reprimanding students in front of others" is the least important characteristic in the "ideal" teacher.

Overall, little difference was found between the rankings of males and females. However, females rated an instructor as "someone you could talk to outside of class" three rankings higher than males.

Under the supervision of Jim Hendricks, assistant professor in correctional services and law enforcement, a total of 1,128 questionnaires were completed by students across the main campus.

The questionnaire, which was administered during a seven-day period, listed 31 characteristics. Students were asked to number them according to their importance.

The characteristics included: "She or he encourages discussions," "She or he plays no favorites,"

Prison to reward good inmates

CHESTER (AP) — Illinois' new Prisoner Review Board has begun offering some 10,500 prison inmates a choice of remaining eligible for parole or joining a program that could cut their imprisonment by half.

As the state moves toward imposition of specific instead of indeterminate sentences, the board Tuesday began interviewing 274 men behind bars at the Menard Correctional Center.

If a prisoner chooses the new program, which became effective last Wednesday, he will receive a release date and be told that for every day he stays out of trouble in prison, one day will be removed from his sentence.

But it's up to the prisoner to decide which system is more advantageous to him, day-for-day or parole.

James R. Irving of Aurora, chairman of the old Parole and Pardon Board and now head of its successor, the Prisoner Review Board, said he expects "total confusion" among the inmates.

"You have to be a mathematician to sit down and actually figure out what will be best for you," Irving said.

He said that prisoners now earn "good time" for good behavior or in payment for work around the prison. But those provisions have been eliminated by the new law.

"So we have to sit down and project when he would get out under one system as opposed to when he would get out under 'day for a day' and he'll have to figure that out, too," Irving said.

"So it's quite possible if he makes the wrong choice ... he could wind up staying a lot longer."

F-Senate election to fill vacant seats

Sixteen senate seats are to be filled in the Faculty Senate election, which will be completed Mar. 17.

Ballots for nominations will be sent out to teachers Feb. 17 and must be returned Feb. 27. The final ballots will go out Mar. 7. The deadline for return of those ballots will be Mar. 17.

Miners delay vote on contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — Regional leaders of the United Mine Workers failed to take action Tuesday on a tentative industry contract offer that could end the 65-day-old coal strike.

The union's 39-member bargaining council recessed without taking a vote and ordered negotiators to develop final contract language before the panel acts on the proposal.

This could take several days, meaning that the strike will continue to reduce coal stockpiles in several Appalachian states where plans are already being made to curtail electrical output.

U.M.W. President Arnold Miller said the bargaining council decided to recess until "all the language is edited and put in final form." He said no vote was taken on acceptance or rejection of the tentative accord.

The council, composed of district union presidents and national officers, met for seven hours at the U.M.W. headquarters. However, they were given only a summary of the proposed contract and did not see the specific language that the agreement would contain if it is submitted for rank-and-file approval.

The bargaining council must first approve the pact before it can be put before the 160,000 striking miners in a secret-ballot ratification vote, which itself is expected to take about 10 days.

Miller said the bargaining council gave the union negotiators "as much time as necessary" to finalize the contract language. He added that union officials would meet with industry representatives and federal mediators within a few days.

Union sources said that while no vote was taken, the council members were sharply divided over provisions that would penalize miners who participate in wildcat strikes and replace the decades-old health plan with individual company programs.

During the last round of contract talks in 1974, the council sent Miller back to the bargaining table to renegotiate portions of a tentative accord before giving its approval.

Even if the council approves the pact, the union faces a more difficult task in trying to sell the new agreement to the rank-and-file. An intense public relations campaign is planned for the coalfields to explain details of the pact to the miners.

The proposed three-year agreement would give miners an average daily wage of about $84. That's $2.35 an hour above the current average hourly wage of $7.90.

Wages and benefits would rise at total of 37 percent over the life of the pact.

The strike, which began Dec. 6, has cut the nation's coal production in half, and electrical output has been reduced in several coal-dependent Appalachian states where stockpiles have fallen sharply.

Even if the ratification process goes smoothly, it would take about an additional two weeks before coal can begin filling the supply pipeline.

Across the coalfields, there was mixed reaction to the agreement, announced Monday following weeks of intense negotiations involving the U.M.W., the Bituminous Coal Operators Association and federal mediators.

The union dropped its demand for a right-to-strike over local grievances at individual mines in return for restoration of health and pension benefits.

Winter kills thousands of birds

Wild birds that survived last year's record cold are dying by the thousands in the horrible winter of '78, Illinois wildlife biologists said Tuesday.

Starving Canada geese, victims of their migratory instinct and some almost too weak to fly, are winging north a month early in search of food.

By spring, the state's once thriving pheasant population is expected to be a fourth of what it was two years ago. And barring a quick thaw, which is not in the forecast, lakes and farm ponds are in for massive fish kills like last year's, which are in the record books as the worst in Illinois history.

Last winter, birds throughout the Midwest froze to death in a single, numbing storm. The blizzard struck on Jan. 27, with winds up to 70 miles an hour and temperatures of 25 below zero.

Half the state's pheasants suffocated in their nests. Well-fed ringnecks that died when the relentless winds crammed snow down their throats. Carolina wrens, mockingbirds, bluebirds and snowbirds of sparrows perished by the millions.

But the birds that survived are dying "at a percentage rate as high or higher than it was last year," said Dr. Glenn E. Sanderson, head of wildlife research for the Illinois Natural History Survey in Urbana. "Our data isn't as good as it was last year," he said in a telephone interview. "But we've reports that the small ground-feeding birds that were here earlier this winter just can't be found any more."

This year, death is not from a blast of chill air but prolonged starvation. Southern Illinois is most affected; shrouded in deep snow for an unheard-of four straight weeks.

Born "Tud" Crompton of Havana, who makes aerial surveys of waterfowl along the Illinois and Mississippi River valleys, said he spotted flocks of migrating geese in central Illinois on Feb. 1.

Sloppy joe dinner collects $110 for children's charity

The annual sloppy joe dinner for minimal brain dysfunction at 104 Small Group Housing raised $110, all donated to the charity.

The sloppy joe dinner has been sponsored annually by the local chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta.

Each spring, undergraduate chapters of the sorority hold money-raising projects for minimal brain dysfunction in conjunction with their international philanthropic project.

Minimal brain dysfunction was established as Alpha Gamma Delta's international charity in 1947. Since then chapters across the nation have raised thousands of dollars for the project.

Specialists estimate that about five percent of U.S. school children have learning disabilities because of minimal brain dysfunction.

Curbs for disabled planned

All curbs throughout Carbondale will soon be reconstructed to accommodate the handicapped.

The renovation project, finalized by the City Council Monday night, will be constructed by the L. E. Cecil Construction Co.

Work on the curbs will begin as soon as the weather breaks and would take about 60 days to complete, Cecil said Tuesday.

The construction company was awarded the contract to install wheelchair ramps after it bid $11,653. Cecil's bid was the lowest of three completed bids received by the city.

In all, Cecil said, about 25 to 30 locations will be equipped with wheelchair ramps, an estimated 3,000 square feet of construction work.

The city had budgeted $10,000 for the Capital Improvements Project, but an additional $4,000 was approved by the council Monday night covering total construction and engineering costs of $14,000.

"To come within 20 percent of a budget, up or down, is considered a pretty good estimate," City Manager Carroll Fry told the council.

He explained that estimates for this project began at $10,000, went to $10,000 and finally to $14,000.

"It isn't a standard project," he said, and because it was unusual, the estimates varied greatly.

Civil service 'getting unstuck'

Fifty University civil service employees are enrolled in "Getting Unstuck," a two-day workshop dealing with coping and changing on the job.

The workshop starts at 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday and continues from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday in the Student Center Mackinaw Room.

The enrollment is full with a list of persons waiting for vacancies, says Deborah Lindrud, who is in charge of the training and development unit at Personnel Services and one of the workshop's leaders.

The workshop is based on three books, "What Color is Your Parachute?," a practical manual for job hunters and career changes by Richard Boiles; "Where De I Go From Here With My Life?" by Boiles and John Crystal, and "Life Work Planning Workbook" by Arthur G. Kirn and Marie O'Donohue Kirn.

"If this really proves to be helpful to employees, we'll do it again," Lindrud said.

Workshop leaders behind Lindrud are Randi Segool, Bob Santos and Diane Tinsley of Career Counseling and Gordon Plumb, of the Guidance and Educational Psychology Department. Lue Robertson was the coordinator of the workshop, Lindrud said.

Faculty have books published

By Carla Griffiths
Student Writer

Seven books written by SIU faculty are among the 50 books to be published spring semester at University Press, according to Walter Kent, assistant director of marketing.

Featured topics range from kidnapping in America, a study of drinking and sobriety to illustrated flora in Illinois.

"Ransom Kidnapping in America" will study the history of ransom kidnapping beginning in 1874. Written by Ernest Alix, associate professor in sociology, "Ransom" will be important tool for students and professionals in fields of sociology, crime and general justice," Kent said.

Dean of Libraries Emeritus Ralph McCoy has written "Freedom of the Press: A Bibliocyclopedia," a collection of 6,500 books, pamphlets, articles, films and plays which have been involved with censorship since 1967.

"Alcohol and the Jews" by Charles Snyder, professor in sociology, offers insights into Jewish culture.

"Peru: A Short History" by David Werlich, assistant professor in history, will be published in March. Werlich's book is an introduction to the history of Peruvian culture.

"The New Composition By Logic" by Sidney and Carolyn Moss, emphasizes methodology on English composition. Sidney Moss is a professor in English, and his wife is a lecturer in English.

Joan O'Brien, associate professor in foreign languages and literatures, expects "Guide to Sophocles' Antigone" to be out in February. The book is built around seven selected passages dealing with Antigone's character.

Robert Mohlenbrock, professor in botany and general editor of the "Illustrated Flora in Illinois Series," expects to publish "Flowering Plants" in June. Kent said the book will be an illustrated study of four orders and 13 families of plants.

Kent said some of the other books University Press will publish spring semester include: "The Poorhouse: Subsidized Housing in Chicago" by Devereux Bowly Jr., attorney for the Lawndale Legal Service Office in Chicago; "Philosophy in Process" by Paul Weiss, professor in philosophy at the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. and "The Invention of the Self" by John Lyons, professor in English at the University of Wisconsin.

University Press is one of the top 15 publishing houses in the country in titles printed, publishing over 40 books a year, Kent said.

Civil board elects chairman, replaces SIU administrator

A Bloomington attorney has been elected chairman of the Illinois University Civil Service Merit Board during the board's public meeting at SIU.

Robert J. Lenz of Bloomington, a member of the University of Illinois board of trustees, replaces Carr; attorney Ivan A. Elliott, Jr., who did not seek re-election. Elliott, who represents the SIU Board of Trustees, had been chairman since 1969.

Eleanor Suggs of Phoenix, Ill., was elected vice-chairman. She represents the Illinois board of regents on the merit board and replaces Lenz, who had been vice-chairman.

Elliott and James J. Cicero of Chicago were elected to the merit board's executive committee. Cicero is a member of the board of governors.

In other action during the meeting, the merit board upheld the dismissal of an employee of the University of Illinois' Chicago Circle campus and agreed to an administrative settlement of a dispute between Sangamon State University and one of that university's employees.

Elliott's service to the board was lauded at a recognition dinner Wednesday at the campus home of President Warren Brandt.

Donald Walters, executive officer of the board of governors of Illinois state colleges and universities, called attention to Elliott's vision and to the leadership he displayed while on the merit board.

Waterbug rescued by police

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A runaway Volkswagen was back on dry land after floating 15 miles down the rain-swollen Los Angeles River.

The car's voyage began after it was reported stolen early Sunday. Police said the Volkswagen apparently crashed into another car while still being driven by the thief but shortly afterward was spotted in the riverbed near Elysian Park with its headlights on and windshield wipers going. Before a tow truck arrived, a gush of water hit the car, unwedging it from the debris it was stuck in and sending it downstream.

Blizzards, rain bring hardship Suit filed against union official

The Associated Press

Snow, winds and floodwaters brought a second day of misery to millions in the blizzard-plagued Northeast on Tuesday, and residents of some Midwestern areas also faced hardship from bitter cold and new storms.

Trouble spots ranged from Boston — where a power blackout compounded the blizzard problems — to Billings, Mont., which was struck by snow on Monday and faced continued blizzard warnings on Tuesday. Even Anchorage, Alaska, had to close its schools, for the first time since 1964, because of snow which started Saturday and was still falling heavily.

More than two dozen storm-related deaths, some from over-exertion shoveling snow or struggling through drifts, were reported across the nation.

The snow in the Northeast began Sunday night — barely two weeks after the last blizzard — and was still falling in some parts Tuesday afternoon, although it was less severe than earlier and was expected to taper off during the day. Accumulations ranged from 1 to 2 feet.

Transportation was at a near standstill. Airports in the Northeast were closed, and airports in other parts of the country were jammed with passengers unable to reach their snowbound destinations.

"We're the only thing that's open," said Fred Wilder, a Civil Defense dispatcher in the Pocono Mountains town of Stroudsburg, Pa. "We're trying to get everybody in God's creation to help plow these people out."

Near-zero temperatures were recorded in northern Georgia, and the National Weather Service forecast snow by Wednesday. Oklahoma got its sixth snowfall in 22 days with accumulations of up to 6 inches.

Kansas township builds fire house without fire truck

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—Residents of Prairie Township think they've got a pretty nifty new fire station for a community their size. Now they'd like to have a fire truck to go with it.

But perhaps it's just as well there's no equipment available, for the building has no floor, no lights and no plumbing, according to Fred Farmer, a member of the board of the Wyandotte County township, population 976.

Board members voted in 1976 to use federal revenue-sharing funds to start their own fire department, since residents were being served by departments some distance away. Since those departments were required to protect their own communities first, residents of Prairie Township were sometimes without fire protection.

Township fathers said they purchased land for the firehouse first because of rising land costs. And they built the building because "you can't put a pumper truck in an unheated garage or barn."

Officials hope the area's financial plight will ease soon so they can finish the station and get a truck.

Lance debuts as TV commentator

ATLANTA (AP)—Former budget director Bert Lance made his debut as a television news commentator by calling for a speedy permanent tax cut and promising to speak for "mainstream America."

Lance resigned under fire last September as director of the federal Office of Management and Budget. Now his commentaries on WXIA-TV, Atlanta's ABC-TV affiliate, are to appear nightly.

The first commentary was broadcast nationwide on ABC and NBC.

Lance, who has retained an unofficial role as a Carter adviser, received telegrams from the White House in which Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, South Bend, Ind., shivered in morning temperatures of 14 below zero — a record. Parts of Kansas got up to 3 inches of snow overnight and predictions of 2 more inches on Tuesday. Sections of Wisconsin bordering on Lake Michigan were hit by 1 1/2 feet of snow overnight; the weather service forecast another 2 to 4 inches by Tuesday evening.

A freight train was stuck for four hours in a 12-foot snowdrift in North Dakota. Winds up to 40 mph made it feel like 46 below in Montana.

Northern California, already soaked by a weekend downpour, was hit by a new round of heavy rains which caused a rash of rush-hour traffic accidents, minor flooding and mudslides. "Storms are stacked up across the Pacific and headed this way," warned one weather forecaster in Northern California. The San Francisco area got three-quarters of an inch of rain in four hours.

From Pennsylvania through New Hampshire, businesses, many of which closed early Monday as the snow mounted, kept their doors shut Tuesday. Banks in some areas were closed. So were schools and public highways.

One after another, governors and mayors declared states of emergency, banning non-essential traffic. National Guardsmen were called out to help clear snow and rescue stranded motorists. Several officials asked President Carter to declare the Northeast a federal disaster area.

Drifts in some areas of the Northeast — still recovering from the Jan. 20 storm — were up to 10 feet. Floodwaters swept low-lying coastal parts of New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Hampshire, forcing the evacuation of thousands.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal judge has refused a motion to dismiss a $1.9 million job discrimination lawsuit that alleges a Teamster official ordered the firebombing of some cars during a union organization drive.

The lawsuit filed by John Taylor, former business agent for Teamsters Local 911 in Long Beach, claims Executive Secretary A. Dotson Bennett gave the order for the bombings Jan. 15, 1977.

"I've never read a complaint in which there could be any more serious allegations, including blatant racism and an alleged order to firebomb," U.S. District Judge Warren Ferguson said Monday in Taylor, a black, claimed he was fired after refusing to follow the order to firebomb cars in connection with a drive to induct parking lot owners into the Teamster organization.

Terriers capture league lead

By J.W. Campbell
Staff Writer

Like the casinos along the French Riviera, the South Seven prep basketball conference sees fortunes come and go quickly.

Before the weekend games the Herrin Tigers seemed to hold the strongest hand in the conference title chase. By Sunday morning, however, it was the Carbondale Terriers with the most chips in their corner.

Carbondale started weekend action one-half game behind the Tigers, but on the strength of two conference victories and aided by a Herrin loss, the Terriers moved into the lead in the South Seven conference by one full game.

The loss which dropped the Tigers behind the Terriers in the standings, came at the hands of the Benton Rangers, 42-40.

The Rangers took a 14-8 first quarter advantage and went into a four-corner slow-down offense in the second period. Benton never came out of the four-corner offense for the rest of the game and the half-time score was limited to 19-15.

The Rangers were led in scoring by Doug Dunbar, who contributed 18 points to the Benton effort.

Herrin's senior guard, Brad Payne gave the Tigers a chance to send the game into overtime with a steal in the closing seconds of the contest. Coach Jeff Ferguson quickly called a timeout and the Tigers had 12 seconds to attempt to tie the game. Center Craig Odom and forward Mike Lockwood each got a shot off in the final seconds but both refused to fall and the Ranger victory was preserved.

While Benton was upsetting Herrin in an upending Marion for the fourth time this year in 76-68 high scoring affair.

William Mathis scored a game high 23 points. Other Terriers scoring in double figures were Charles Pugh with 16, Johnny Payne with 12 and Kevin Jackson with 10.

In Saturday night action, the Terriers continued their high-scoring ways and trounced Harrisburg, 74-41.

Payne's 24 points was a game high. All the team has to do now is win, Carbondale Coach Doug Woolard said looking forward to the remaining schedule.

"We don't have to count on anyone for help now," Woolard said. "Every game from now on is going to be like a championship game to us. Any team in the league is capable of beating anyone else—At the beginning of the season I expected the race to be as close as it is."

Herrin's coach Jeff Ferguson said he also expected the South Seven conference race to be a toss-up at the beginning of the year, but he says he is surprised by the year Carbondale is having.

"Carbondale has really come on," Ferguson said. "I think they're proving to be stronger than anyone figured them to be."

Carbondale has a 17-3 overall record and are 8-2 in conference play. Herrin has a 7-3 record, one-half game behind the Terriers.

Carbondale must play at Centralia in conference action Saturday. Centralia beat the Terriers at Carbondale earlier this year.

Men's tennis team to face Illinois in indoor meet

By Steve Coonan
Dunbar Writer

The men's tennis team will try to continue its year-round schedule when it faces Illinois at 7 p.m. Friday at the Southern Illinois Racquet Club. The club is located directly South of the University Mall and all those interested in watching good tennis are invited by Saluki Coach Dick LeFevre to stop by.

"They're a tough team," LeFevre said of the Illini.

"They've got a new head coach (Jack Groppie) and he has been working hard with them."

Jeff Lubner, who was undefeated in conference tournament play last season at the No. 2 position on the team, has moved into the No. 1 spot on the squad. Lubner will also team with SIU's No. 2 player, Neville Kennerley, to form the Salukis' top doubles tandem.

"We are shooting for the conference championship this season," LeFevre said, "and also for our No. 1 doubles team to get into the NCAA tournament."

Other Salukis who figure to contribute in the meet are Boaz Nikritin and Sam Dean, the No. 3 and No. 4 players at SIU, while Mark High and Jose Lizaro, the No. 5 and No. 6 players, round out the team.

SIU has already competed in Ecuador this year in addition to meets with Northwestern and Vanderbilt. LeFevre hopes that playing all through the year will help the team improve for the spring season besides getting ready for the Illini.

"The more we can play during the winter, the better off we'll be during the regular season," LeFevre said. "The meet proved to be a good motivator for the kids because they break the monotony of practice all the time."

The Salukis finished last season with a 14-12 record which included a 6-3 victory over Illinois. But this year's schedule figures to be even tougher.

"We are trying to keep up in this high level of competition," LeFevre said. "Our guys will be playing guys who are so much better than they are, that it is bound to improve their games. The key to the season will be keeping our morale up."

Brave's Smith shines among glittering array of NBA stars

ATLANTA AP—Randy Smith has come a long way.

An All-American soccer player and track star at Buffalo State, Smith's basketball exploits as a collegian went largely unnoticed. He's always had lightning speed and quick reflexes, but his outside shooting, shaky when he came into the league, has shown steady improvement.

Two years ago, the 6-foot-3, 180-pound Smith averaged 21.8 points per game and was named to the all-NBA second team. Last year he was 10th in the league in steals, 11th in assists and 20th in scoring while grabbing more rebounds than any other guard in the game. This year, he's seventh in scoring with a 24.5 average and his defense has improved to the point where he ranks fourth in the league in steals.

Smith is proud of being a complete basketball player.

"My game is to run, fill the middle on the break, pass off and sometimes take a couple of jump shots," he said, "a sharp contrast to those players around the NBA who shoot first and think second. I've learned to use my speed, because that's the best thing I have going for me."

Smith's speed and shooting ability proved decisive in Sunday's 28th annual NBA All-Star Game. He scored 14 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter, helping the East rally to a 133-125 victory and earning Most Valuable Player honors.

"My wife, Terriann, predicted I would win MVP," said Smith, who shot 11 for 14 from the field and also contributed seven rebounds and six assists.

Auto Club to hold 'gymkhana' race

The Grand Touring Auto Club has scheduled to hold a "gymkhana" at 1:15 p.m. Sunday in the Arena parking lot. Those interested in entering may register as early as noon the day of the event.

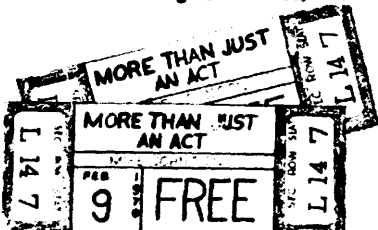

A gymkhana is similar to an autocross in that each participant drives through a pylon-marked course against the clock. However, a gymkhana is not a high-speed event but instead a test of precise steering and judgement. Drag-strip starts and four-wheel "drifting" will not be factors in the event although they might draw cheers from the crowd.

There are different classes for all types of cars and everyone is welcome to participate. The registration fees for members is $2.50 and $3.50 for non-members. Any questions about the event or the club itself should be directed to

Salukis to meet hard-luck Billikens

By George Coslak
Staff Writer

With a little bit of luck and a few more rebounds, the St. Louis University Billikens might have the same 12-5 record as the basketball Salukis, instead of their present 5-14 showing.

But despite the dismal showing so far this season, the Billikens will be a team to reckon with, according to Coaches Paul Lambert of STU and Ron Coleman of St. Louis.

The teams will renew a tense rivalry at 7:35 p.m. Wednesday night at the Arena, and Lambert is not looking ahead to Saturday's game against Wichita State.

"We worry about everybody and St. Louis is no exception," Lambert said. "Last week they had chances to beat two very good teams in Memphis State and Florida State, but just came up short."

The Billikens have been involved in a number of squeakers this season. They lost to McQuette by two points, and also dropped close contests to Cincinnati, Georgia Tech twice, another against Florida State and Illinois State. The Bills have also lost to DePaul, in what Coleman termed "the only game that we have really been blown out of."

Coleman, in his first year as coach at St. Louis, explained some of the reasons why the Bills have been coming up just short of winning.

"We're missing an offensive catalyst," he said, "and we've got to improve our field-goal percentage—we rank low in the (Metro 7) conference. This is our No. 1 priority on the list."

One of the reasons for the lack of a consistent offense, Coleman explained, has been the loss of Johnny Parker and freshmen sensation Ricky Frazier.

The Bills lost Parker to academic suspension after the fall semester, and Frazier, who was the Bills' leading scorer and second-leading rebounder (behind Parker), suffered a severe ankle injury against SIU-Edwardsville in a Jan. 7 game. Frazier will not see action in the game.

"Ricky is much-improved. He has begun light workouts and he will probably see action in 10 days to two weeks," Coleman said. "We do miss Parker—he was our only rebounder, and defensive player who clogged up the middle."

Coleman refers to his offensive game as the "one and done offense. One shot and it's done. We are in bad need of a rebounder. We did well with Parker and Frazier in there but..."

The Billikens lead the series that has gone back to 1927-28, 10-8, but the Salukis have won the last five since suffering a 63-56 overtime defeat at the Arena, Jan. 22, 1973. Last year the Salukis had to come from behind to beat the Bills in St. Louis with Mike Lienn, Corky Abrams and Co., but Coleman says the Salukis are going to be just as tough this time.

"Paul (Lambert) and his staff have done a fine job of coordinating what was left from last year's team into a solid unit. After all, his team put a chink in the Indiana State titanic—and ever since it has been going down," Coleman said.

"The Salukis are a good, defensive ballclub. I just hope we have enough of an offense to make this game interesting. We just hope that we can continue to play with the same kind of intensity that we have been playing with this season."

Coleman said the Billikens' strong-point was the overall quickness of the team. The team also has a lot of depth—especially at the guard position.

"We normally use 10 or 11 players per game," Coleman said. "but we are not running with the ball and playing as wide open a game as we were in the beginning of the season. We're playing it a little more conservative and going for the high percentage shots."

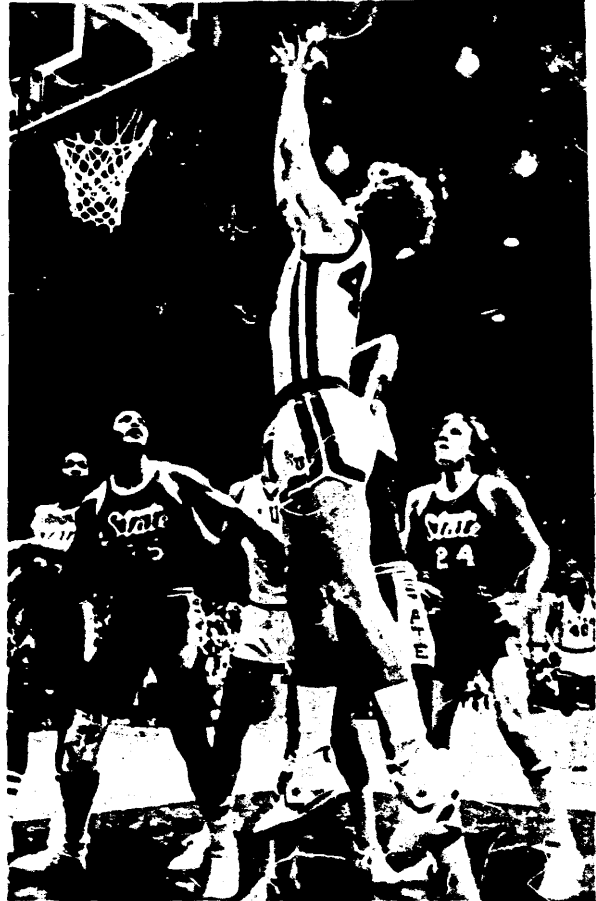

"We're also trying to cut down on the number of turnovers," Coleman added. "I guess we're settling down a bit and trying to play a more intelligent and patient game."

Lambert feels that the Billikens are strong, in addition to being quick.

"They have the same guys I've seen for the last four years and they've always given us fits," Lambert said. "We're not a physically strong team and any team that has strong people inside is going to cause problems for us."

Coleman sees a good battle game between the two rivals.

"If we can play with the same style and enthusiasm we have thus far, we should be able to compete and play a good ballgame," he said. "Anything can happen."

Women swimmers to go for nationals in home finale

By Bud Vanderzack
Sports Editor

"Welcome Back" and "Auld Lang Syne" are appropriate themes for Wednesday night's action at the Recreation Building pool. It will be the final home meet of the season for the women swimmers, and the Salukis' 6 p.m. meet against Eastern Illinois will be their first appearance at home since Dec. 3.

The meet was not in the original schedule and when the Dec. 10 home meet was canceled because of bad weather, the swimmers were faced with the prospects of a season-long road trip. But Eastern Illinois came to the rescue and Coach Inge Renner appreciates the gesture.

"I wanted to get one more home meet to give the girls a chance to qualify for the nationals in the short-distance events," Renner said. "Eastern agreed to come and I'm grateful. The girls will now have a chance to qualify in a fast pool."

The swimmers will be bumping heads with the men's basketball team, which will be playing St. Louis at 7:35 p.m. at the Arena. Renner realizes the Saluki roundballers will be stiff competition, but she hopes the swimmers will not have to compete in front of empty bleachers.

"Naturally, I'd like to have a big crowd," Renner said. "If people come to the swimming meet they will still have time to see most of the basketball game because we are swimming the short-distance program. I want to see some support for my swimmers. They are putting out the effort and they deserve the support."

The meet also takes on sentimental qualities in that it will be the final home appearance for senior Mindy McCurdy. The Springfield native has qualified for the AIAW national meet in each of her four years at SIU and she will be traveling to Durham, N.C. in mid-March to compete in the 100 butterfly and the 400 medley relay.

McCurdy will be trying to add the 50 butterfly to her list of AIAW events Wednesday night. Mary Jane Sheets, who along with McCurdy, Heidi Einbrod and Anne Gutsick qualified for the nationals in the 400 medley relay Saturday at the Indiana Invitational, will be attempting to break the qualifying barrier of 1:01.79 in the 100 backstroke.

Renner will stage a special exhibition heat of the 200 breaststroke to give Einbrod an opportunity to qualify in that event. Einbrod swam the event in 2:30.07 at Indiana, barely missing the missing the qualifying time of 2:29.39. Julia Warner needs to meet the qualifying standard in the 3-meter diving event one more time to earn the trip to Duke. Warner beat the qualifying standard earlier this season, but a diver must meet the standard twice to qualify for the nationals.

With the exception of the 200 breaststroke exhibition heat, all events will be 50 or 100 yards in length. Both the freestyle and the medley relays will be 200 yards. Renner said her swimmers will be ready for the meet.

"We tapered for the meet last weekend and we've been doing sprint work in our workouts since then," she explained. "We should have a good chance to get some more qualifying times."

The swimmers hit the road again after the meet.

Woman gymnasts edge Indiana State

Every good team has a leader and the women's gymnastics team is no different. They have one of the best when it comes to leaders in the person of Linda Nelson.

Nelson, an All-America last season and a steady influence on the younger players this year, won two individual events and the all-around title to lead her team to a 139-137.6 victory over the Indiana State Sycamores in the Arena Tuesday night.

Nelson's first-place vault of 8.85 helped give the Salukis a 34.35-33.75 edge after the first event and SIU held on from there.

"They scored everyone low so far," Nelson said after finding out that her second vault wasn't scored quite as high as she would have liked. "I was just happy to get to my feet. Have you seen some of my landings lately?"

The uneven bars was scheduled to be the next event but some equipment troubles forced the Salukis to compete on the balance beam next.

Ellen Barrett was the first to compete on the beam and her performance was a sign of things to come for SIU in the event. Barrett fell off the beam a couple of times which held her score to a 6.15. As is so often the case in the beam event, when one girl falls off, everyone seems to fall off—and everyone on the team did.

Nelson did capture first in the beam event with her score of 8.95, but even she was guilty of not being able to stay on for her full routine. She had little support from her teammates in the event as the next highest SIU score came from Chris Wuensch who tied for fifth with an 8.3 routine.

The Salukis looked anxious to get the lead back from ISU when it came time to compete on the uneven bars. SIU trailed 68.20-67.60 going into the event but outscored the Sycamores 35.85-34 in the bars event. Maureen Hennessey, (9.15) Cindy Moran, (9.06) Nelson, (8.85) and Wuensch, (8.8) took the top four spots in the event.

"It's my favorite event and my best," said Hennessey.

Wuensch, (9.0) Moran, (9.0) and Nelson, (9.2) ended the meet with strong performances in the floor exercise event. However, the Salukis did suffer a casualty in the meet. Barrett sprained an ankle during her first vault, which hurt her chances of any big scores during the meet.
