The question of admission and eligibility standards of members of the Midwestern Conference was raised at Monday's meeting of the University Senate.

At that meeting, the senate approved a motion that SIU withdraw from the conference. The original recommendation concerning withdrawal was made by President Robert G. Layer by the Committee on Men's Intercollegiate Athletics. Layer wanted senate action before he acted on the recommendation.

James BeMiller, chairman of the committee, cited the difference of admission and eligibility as one of the reasons for withdrawal.

"The other schools have different kinds of sponsorship, like federally funded and faculty sponsored programs in which students who don't meet the normal admission requirements can enter," BeMiller said. He said SIU does not have such a program.

"We don't make any exceptions at SIU," Boydston said. "The athletes are treated the same as the average student." BeMiller and Boydston emphasized they were not attacking the federally funded programs. They said the programs were not being used exclusively to admit athletes, but they did say that athletes are admitted under the various programs.

During the discussion of admissions, BeMiller said the Midwestern Conference was lowest in requirements of any conference in the United States.

William Nickell, professor of physics, asked Boydston how he felt about withdrawal.

"I would rather not express my personal opinion about conference membership," Boydston said. "I must work with the other schools and athletic directors. If I was critical, it would make my job difficult, at best."

BeMiller said SIU did withdraw from the conference, the committee recommended that SIU become an independent.

"Our philosophy on athletics and an academic program is different from the rest of the conference," BeMiller said. "For example, NIU (Northern Illinois University) is trying to build big-time football. We don't ever expect to go into the magnitude they have. We have a rounded program, a total program."

The problem of remaining in the academic wing of the conference was discussed. Howard Olson, chairman of the academic wing and SIU representative for the academic section, said, "There is no assurance that we will remain in the academic portion of the conference. There should be a careful examination before we withdraw."

According to Olson, the academic section is trying to establish programs in such areas as student teaching, joint research projects and a Chicago office in which member universities could work in the intercity area.

"SIU can retain membership in the academic portion," Layer said. "If you are an athletic member, you must be an academic member. If you are an academic member, you need not be an athletic member."

Various senators asked for more information concerning withdrawal, especially the reasons why SIU should withdraw.

In each case, both BeMiller and Boydston said certain information would be "too sensitive to discuss in public."

George Dickerson, a senator from the undergraduate constituency, said Tuesday that BeMiller and Boydston's comments had been "extremely evasive."

Dickerson said the only definite reason which was given was that SIU would be downgraded by being associated with the member schools.

"If we are running an honest program, we should point out the discrepancies," Dickerson said."

Layer said Tuesday he has not yet decided what to do about the senate's decision. He indicated he would talk to newsmen in Carbondale on Wednesday.

The Board of Trustees was told in September that 50 candidates accepted for fall enrollment at Illinois State University did not come to "close meeting the SIU entrance requirements."

Two of the students were finalists in the Illinois State High School Cross Country Championships in 1972.

In a history of conference membership, the board was told that members of the athletic committee were reluctant to join and remain in the conference for three reasons:

First, some of the conference schools do not rank on the same academic level with SIU. Second, the哲学 concerning a balanced program with strength in all sports was not shared by other institutions. Finally, it was said that other conference schools can admit student-athletes with questionable academic credentials.

A meeting of the board of governors of the conference is set for Jan. 26 in Carbondale. Layer said he will inform the governors of the senate's action and of any conclusions which he and the board might reach.

If no action is given prior to July 1, withdrawal would be completed by the 1972-73 academic year.

$10 wheel tax proposed to aid city pay hikes

Acting City Manager Bill Schwegman recommended to the Carbondale City Council Tuesday that a $10 wheel tax be imposed as a means of paying for the proposed five and one half cent increase in wages for city employees.

In informal session, Schwegman told the council that the proposed new tax would provide $20,000 to $50,000 in revenue annually.

A proposed six dollar wheel tax was defeated by the council last month.

Schwegman also recommended that all city employees receive a five and one half per cent raise retroactive to May 1, 1973, excluding the part-time employees.

The council voted in formal session to authorize an agreement between the city and a St. Louis urban renewal planning firm.

The city will pay the Urban Programming Division of America $97,000 for preparation of an engineering analysis and city-urban renewal agreement plan for northeast Carbondale.

Approval of a contract was made subject in approval of the budget by the Department of Housing and Urban Development in Chicago.

Gus says anybody asked the Midwestern Conference whether it wants to keep SIU?

Unrest prompts visit

By Randy Thomas
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A visiting research team composed of nine students and three administrators from the University of Southwestern Louisiana (ULSL) appeared to be highly impressed with almost all aspects of SIU operations at a press conference Tuesday.

Mike Olivier, coordinator for the team, which is in the process of touring several universities, said that he personally found SIU to be

"by far the most progressive and most interesting school" he'd visited so far.

When asked what the purpose of his group's visit to SIU was, Olivier replied that ULSL, which has an enrollment of about 11,000 students, is currently experiencing many of the same problems that SIU is "facing or has faced in the past.

"We hope to learn from your experience," said Olivier. "By analyzing the way in which SIU has handled many of its problems, we hope to make adjustments within our own system.

Olivier said that a basic reason for the group's visit is the fact that

SIU experienced a period of violent student unrest.

"We as yet have not had to face this problem," he said. "However, we cannot overlook the fact that it may happen in the future.

He said that as result of the violence, SIU has gone through many changes. He said he hopes ULSL will experience a return to SIU's experience and reaction to this problem.

In describing the current mood on the USL campus, Jonathan White, head of the USL Black Culture Association, said, "There will always be tension on our campus as long as the system stays the way it is."

Other areas of interest to the group include tuition and fees, student government, university administration, teacher evaluation and the security police system.

The group members in general said they were most impressed with the hospitality and competence of administration leaders and a seemingly great amount of cooperation between the SIU student government and the University administration.

Senate discusses CMU

The other schools composing the conference are Northern Illinois,

Illinois State, Indiana State and Ball State Universities.

In other senate action, Sidney Moss, professor of English, said he would present a motion at the next meeting to eliminate the textbook rental service.

Moss said Tuesday there were three reasons for his proposal.

"First, the problem of multi-section courses," Moss said. "Take for example a freshman English course which has many sections. All the textbooks and their rental assistant are tied to the same basic text."

Second, Moss said a text must be used for several years before the rental service would order a new text. He said this could hurt some subjects, such as science, where material was changing each year.

Finally, Moss cited the failure of the rental service to meet the demands of the University.

"For example, my fiction class," said Moss, "There are nine books in text. Four were supposed to come from the rental service. Instead, the student ended up buying the books."

Moss suggested instead of a rental service, books could be bought in the local bookstores.

"The rental service is an anomaly," Moss said. "I don't see any advantages of continuing the service."

Approval was given on a recommendation from the Governance Committee that the function of fire and safety responsibility be assigned to the subcommittee on campus security of the Committee on Campus Management.

A proposed change in the election procedure for senate officers was introduced by Sam Rosella, acting secretary of the Governance Committee.

If the change is approved, nominations of officers will take place at the first regular meeting in November. Election and installation would be at the next meeting.

At the present time, nominations, elections and installations are handled at the first regular meeting in November.

A vote was not taken on the amendment. A vote is expected to take place on the amendment at the Feb.

1 meeting. This will be the first meeting for spring.

Support asked for Professor Allen

To the Daily Egyptian:
In the December meeting of the Board of Trustees at which Professor Douglas M. Allen was denied tenure, the board majority chose to ignore a recommendation for tenure from the tenured members of the Department of Philosophy, the department chairman and President Layser which was based on very favorable evidence of Professor Allen's scholarly productivity and teaching ability. Concerning the latter, for instance, the board had before it the following items of information: (1) course evaluations of GSC 102 (with average enrollments of nearly 300) ranked Professor Allen high in every category; (2) both undergraduate majors and graduate students in the Department of Philosophy chose him as the outstanding teacher of 1971. (3) last year's President's Scholars gave him the highest number of votes of all teachers in the University in balloting for student-initiated seminars; (4) a number of teaching assistants who had had occasion to work under Professor Allen and several former students wrote lengthy first-hand accounts of the reasons for their admiration for his teaching.

Trustee Ivan Elliott spoke against the motion to grant tenure. He made no comment about Professor Allen's scholarship. But in regard to his qualifications as a teacher, Mr. Elliott made much of what he has. "We have...conflicting recommendations from students." And indeed Mr. Elliott's ultimate judgment was that Professor Allen's presence at SIU had been "divisive," that is, "controversial.

Perhaps you have had a course from Professor Allen and would like to make known your opinion of his merits as a teacher. Perhaps you are dismayed at the way in which the board chose to weight the evidence before it. Perhaps you are distressed at the way in which it dismissed the recommendations of Professor Allen's department and of the president. Perhaps you are unwilling to see controversy installed as a criterion for deciding whether a man deserves tenure at an academic institution. If you are in disagreement with the board's action on this case, we urge you to join each of us in outlining his own reasons in a letter to the Board of Trustees, in care of President Robert G. Layser. You may wish to consider making yours an open letter to the board and sending a copy to the Daily Egyptian as well.

Letters to the editor

The innocent bystander

The midnight caller

By Arthur Hoppe

Chronicle Features

"President Nixon telephoned Don Shula, coach of the Miami Dolphins, at 1:30 a.m. to suggest a play that Shula should use against the Dallas Cowboys in the Super Bowl. 'I still think you can hit (wide receiver) Paul Warfield on that down-and-in pattern against them,' Shula quoted the President as telling him—news piece.

"Hello? Hello? Good golly, it's 1:30 in the morning! Are the Russians attacking? Has Teddy declared war?"

"My name's Hambone Hommiker, sir."

"Hambone what?"

"Just call me Hambone, sir. All the guys here at Jerry's Joynt do."

"You're calling me from a bar! How did you get through the switchboard?"

"I told them I was a football coach."

"Oh, that explains it. Where do you coach, Mr. Hommiker?"

"Hambone, sir. I coach the Passaic Junior High Paraskeets. We just won the Greater Passaic Hiram R. S o o p e Bowl."

"Say, that's just great, Coach. I certainly admire a winner. Please accept my heartiest congratulations."

"You want to congratulate me? Oh, you mean on the game plan I offered the Miami Dolphins. If I do say so..."

"No, sir. On your winning record against Congress last session and your coping Time's Man-of-the-Year honors. You see, sir, I'm kind of a politics fan. A real nit, you might say."

"Oh, politics."

"Yeah. You know I'll sit there every Sunday glued in front of the tee-vee for hours, watching Face the Nation, Meet the Press, Newsmaker on the Spot, the 6 O'Clock News, the 7 O'Clock News, the 8 O'Clock...Well, I tell you, I drive my wife up the wall."

"I know what you mean. Mine went to Africa."

"She don't like politics?"

"No, football. And speaking of that, Coach, do you think we can take Dallas?"

"Dallas, maybe, but not Texas. Not unless you put Connally on the ticket. Now some will tell you if you dump Spiro, it'll hurt your Southern Game Plan. But that Connally would be a real goner. Take my advice and go with Connally. He can go either way."

"Well, thanks, Coach, but getting back to football, do you use the pro set offense there at Passaic?"

"Yeah. And another thing, I'd be pretty careful in attacking your opponents. Do it real clean. You hit 'em high and let your running mate hit 'em low."

"All right, right. But as an expert on the pro set offense, do you figure Miami..."

"Oh, before I forget, the main thing's a balanced attack. If you go too far to your left, you'll weaken yourself on the right. And vice versa. Keep your camp..."

"Now look here, Hambone, or whatever your name is. What gives you the right to wake me up in the middle of the night and give me a lot of dumb advice on a subject you know nothing about? From now on, you stick to football and I'll...Never mind."

"Gosh, I'm sorry, sir. Tell you what. I'll call you back after the Super Bowl when you haven't got so much on your mind."

"RELAX—HE ONLY WANTS TO TRY ONE PLAY"
The fruit of Vietnamization

by Harry S. Ashmore
L.A. Times Syndicate

In the course of the Christmas bombing of North Vietnam the White House abandoned the lip service usually given the restraints on the air war the Administration inherited under the truce agreed to by Lyndon Johnson almost four years ago.

The first response to questions about resumption of the aerial attack was that heavy raids outside the combat zone are perfectly consistent with the policies President Nixon has always followed. Although there has been the usual effort to blur the implications of this candor, it was, I think, the simple truth.

Despite the efforts at camouflage with such irrelevancies as the prisoner of war issue, there is no reason to believe the President ever abandoned the quest for a military victory in Vietnam, or took seriously the possibility of the negotiated political settlement open to him at the conference table in Paris.

The air war against the north, as former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford has affirmed, is an essential element of Vietnamization—the program under which Mr. Nixon has sought to confound his domestic critics by removing some combat units from Vietnam, and promising to have them all out by election time.

The effect has been to continue the fighting while substituting yellow for white bodies on the casualty lists.

Since their long, dismal record casts grave doubt on the ability of the South Vietnamese forces to survive combat with the North Vietnamese on anything approximating equal terms, it is evident that collapse of our client government in Saigon can only be avoided by providing the equivalent of the American firepower now being withdrawn.

Mr. Nixon's response has been to buy the Air Force's design for winning a war all by itself. The idea is that you can largely dispense with foot soldiers if you punish the enemy with heavy bombing behind the lines and disrupt his military operations by seeding the combat zone from the air with antipersonnel devices triggered by sensors that react to movement or body heat.

This, of course, is a total war concept. Since the bombs and the sensors cannot discriminate between soldier and civilian, or friend and foe, the object is wholesale slaughter. For this purpose the military has used Vietnam as a laboratory to perfect new weapons, including a bomb that kills by concussion any living thing within a 700-yard radius of its detonation point. It is, as an Air Force armorer hap­ply reported, almost as good as a nuke.

There are, however, serious doubts both in the Pentagon and in the field that this strategy is valid in its own terms. Some of the officers who flew the latest raids on North Vietnam were openly doubtful that they would prove any more effective than those that preceded the truce. The prospect of continuing the vast logistical flow of supplies for the ARVN army without on-the-ground supervision appalls experienced American commanders, as does relying on what are in fact lightly motivated mercenary troops to effectively utilize air support launched from distant bases.

Finally, there is the ultimate political question. Even if Vietnamization works what does it prove? How is American policy served by leaving behind us a political vacuum in Laos and Cambodia, where there is no longer any approximation of legitimate government, and in South Vietnam a corrupt military dictatorship whose authority is still dependent upon American money and arms?

President Nixon simply does not acknowledge the moral issue involved in the virtual destruction of these small backward nations to serve a Communist containment policy most Americans have come to question, and he himself has apparently abandoned.
Sociology society of prisoners has routine club problems

By Ed Eaton
Special Writer

You'd think that a history club meeting is a place where one wouldn't really be the routine group that gets together every other Friday night.

But the William H. Spaulding Historical Society of Marion, a club founded in cooperation with SIU history students and faculty, is plagued with some of the same problems all such clubs face. For instance, how do you improve the attendance which has been dropping lately?

Now that's not a problem you'd expect to find at the Marion institution. Where else are club memers going to go? To a movie? SIU students visiting the society recently founded, during the busiest portion of the meeting, that movies were only part of the conflicts. Movies aren't offered that often at the prison, but on the last two or three meeting nights, the history club did face competition from a movie.

Other reasons for the drop in attendance are the fact that some men were watching television and some key members had recently been transferred to the "farm.

Club coordinator Allan Berube discussed with the members how to get more publicity for the meeting through the use of bulletins to the members, announcements in the newspaper published by the inmates and use of bulletin boards. SIU students liked the idea and if they were in the right place. It sounded like the kind of action and plan needed.

Rober Gold, SIU specialist in Latin American history, a favorite with students over the past three years, told the story of Jesse Fish, infamous 18th century robber who may have met the society.

Gold made his paper come to life with anecdotes about St. Augustine, Fla.

Students meet to discuss war

The Student Mobilization Committee now will meet every Tuesday from 5:30 to 7 p.m., in the Student Center Conference Room B.

According to a spokesman on the committee, the group's purpose is to build the kind of action and support that eventually will lead to an end to the war in Vietnam. Everyone is welcome to attend.

The visitor to the prison might have asked: do these guys want to know about Jesse Fish? But it wasn't hard to find the answer as soon as the session was opened - questions. They were interested in Jesse Fish for the same reason all students are. He was a colorful figure from the past whose story-telling talent would draw in the students. They were in the right place. It sounded like the kind of action and plan needed.

As at this particular session were Bill Wolfe and John Motzger, president of the SIU Phi Alpha Theta chapter, which originated and started the historical society. Motzger at the break between questions and answers announced that SIU graduate student Paul Kuhn, university coordinator for the club, had arranged for Phi Alpha Theta to present the society with a Christmas present-a year's subscription to the Historical Quarterly publication of the organization.

The magazine will be available to the men in their reference room. Men at the penal institution may enroll in college and university classes taught by staff from SIU and John A. Logan Community College, but they must work college classes in around their regular work schedule. Berube, head of the society, said 18 hours fall quarter and will carry 21 hours this quarter. He goes to class after the 3 p.m. session. The group's meeting is still on Tuesday at 5:30 p.m.

Although the clanking of the iron gate that closed behind the delegation after it left the meeting pointed out that there was a separation from society in the prison, nevertheless, organizations such as the William H. Robert E. Davis, chairman of the Department of Cinema and Photography, was elected vice-chairman of the mass communication division of the Speech Communication Association at its recent annual convention in San Francisco. In this position Davis will be responsible for all programming for the 1972 convention to be in Chicago.

At the San Francisco meeting, he was in charge of an 18-hour media forum, devoted to making teachers aware of visual aids available in various forms and of a session on developing curricula for high school film programs. For the past three years, he also has been chairman of the 9,000-member association’s committee on archives of recorded material which studies how non-printed material can be preserved and utilized.

SIU faculty personnel are serving as consultants to the Cairo School District in connection with a federally-funded Title VI-A project under the Elementary-Secondary Education Act. Major goal, according to SIU educators, is to involve the faculties, students and townpeople of the Cairo community in an evaluation of the educational program which is available to its children and youth and to seek improvement.

The comprehensive curriculum survey phase, scheduled to precede or run concurrently with the larger overall project, is directed by Melvin O. Alston, professor of education. Alston is assisted by the following College of Education faculty and student personnel: Robert Buser, chairman of the Department of Secondary Education; Harry Miller, assistant professor of secondary education; Miriam Dusenberg, associate professor of education; James Parker, assistant professor of educational administration and foundations; and Edward Gickling and Geoffrey Santsy, doctoral fellows.

A rapidly increasing demand for college level instruction in photography is pointed up in a survey covering the United States and Canada and which was made by C. William Horrell, professor of cinema and Photography. Horrell’s survey, which covered the 1970-71 school year at various types of institutions above the high school level, showed that enrollment in courses in still photography, motion pictures and graphic arts had tripled in three years. There were 19,000 students enrolled in such courses during the period covered by the survey.

The study, published in a Professional Photographer Magazine article recently and to be published in full by Eastman Kodak Co., also revealed that there has been a 70 per cent increase in the number of schools offering courses in various aspects of photography within the past three years. In 1968, when Horrell made a similar survey, there were 460 schools offering one or more courses in photography. During 1970-71, a total of 627 schools were reported to be offering courses in the field. Programs leading to degrees have more than quadrupled, from 107 in 1968 to 431 in 1970-71.

St. Louis Symphony presents
‘Pops’ concert Sunday in Shryock

By Daryl Stephenson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will present a “Pops” concert at 3 p.m. Sunday in Shryock Auditorium.

Tickets to the Celebrity Series may be obtained at the Central Ticket Office in the Student Center.
Prices to the general public are $2, $3 and $4 and to SIU students $1.50, $2 and $2.

Paul Hibbs, coordinator of special programs, said special group rates are being offered and suggested that people come in blocs to take advantage of the group rate. The group rate offers the same prices as those for SIU students.

Walter Susskind will conduct the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in its “Pops” performance in Shryock Auditorium at 3 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are available through Central Ticket Office in the Student Center.

SIU soil specialist
resigns after 20 years

Prof. Joseph P. Vavra, a soil fertility specialist at SIU for more than 20 years, resigned, effective last Monday to accept an administrative position in Spain under a multi-year contract with the IRI Research Institute of New York.

Vavra and his family left immediately for Madrid, Spain, where he will work with Spain’s Ministry of Agriculture as a research coordinator of the national cereal and legume grain center, one of IRI’s newly-established agricultural development programs in Spain. His resignation was submitted Dec. 27 and accepted by the SIU administration on Jan. 3.

Prof. Vavra returned at the end of August from a two-year leave for an assignment with IRI Research Institute as a soil fertility specialist in Brazil. During his assignment with Brazil’s Ministry of Agriculture he worked out of Rios de Janeiro together with scientists from the country on soil fer-

Committee to review proposals about open or closed hearings

By Richard Lenee
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The question of open or closed hearings will be one of the topics discussed at the Community Con-duct Code Committee meeting scheduled for 2 p.m. Wednesday.

The committee will review the proposals offered by Edward Ham­mond, assistant to the president for student relations.

Hammond's proposals are con­tradictory. One asks for a statement be included in the notice indi­cating that the hearing shall be closed. Later, Hammond recom­mends that hearings be open if the individual charged with a violation wants the hearing to be open. Un­der this proposal, hearings would be held in a permanent hearing room which would accommodate 25 to 50 spectators. If a disruption occurs in the audience, the person or panel hearing the case may order that the hearing be closed.

Hammond said Tuesday he proposed the contradictory language to provide the committee with the two possible alternatives. "Whatever the community adopts, we will have to live with," Hammond said. "From experience I found it better if the hearings are closed." Hammond has served as legal counsel for the Student Con­duct Review Board.

"At an open hearing, there is a tendency for people on the hearing panel to be afraid to ask questions," Hammond said. "There is the possibility of intimidation. The closed hearing could be the best for the individual and the members of the panel.

Hammond cited two examples of intimidations which occurred at the University of Missouri. One in­volved a member of the University football team. The other in­volved a black and a white student. The other in­volved Johnny Roland, former Missouri football star and now a member of the St. Louis Cardinals football team.

Hammond elaborated slightly on the Roland case. Hammond said it seemed Roland had some involvement in a case in which some tires were stolen. When the case was brought to the hearing panel, Hammond said, the other members of the football team tried to in­timidate the panel.

Because of commitments in Atlanta, Hammond will not be able to attend the committee meeting.

In addition to open or closed meetings, the committee will discuss the role of a representative or representatives at a hearing. The committee previously has ap­proved a procedure stating that a [student] Senate with four members representing each of the three divisions: individual, intermediate (two to eight mem­bers) and large (nine or more mem­bers).

Applications must include a brief resume of each act entering the show. Applications are available at Student Activities Office in the Student Union or at the Theta Xi fraternity house.

Every year a winner is selected in each group and is awarded a trophy. The winner in the large group division is presented a grand champion trophy that rotates from winner to winner each year.

Two women to share Stamborg scholarship

by University News Service

They might as well be twins, although not related by family—simply two students who are parallels.

Theresa Mae Yee and Lillian Yau, both from Hong Kong, seniors at SIU, have shared similar experiences. They have been selected to receive the first Stamborg memorial scholarship award in the School of Business at SIU.

This is the first time two recipients have been chosen, and all previous scholarships have been named for an individual.

The scholarship fund, established in 1968 in memory of the late Frank Stamborg, who for 10 years was a professor in the School of Business, is administered by Mr. Stamborg to the school’s top-ranking senior from a foreign country who plans to return to his own country and who gives promise of high quality leadership in his homeland.

Because of the close scholarly relationship between students from Hong Kong, the selection committee recommended that each recipient receive a $100 scholarship.

Both girls majored in accounting, and both want to continue in graduate studies at SIU before returning home to enter the business world.

But the similarity goes much farther back. Both girls attended the same school in Hong Kong—the Mary Knoll Catholic convent—graduating in 1968. Both came to SIU in 1969, both live in off-campus apartments and both like to swim.

And that is not all—the fathers of the girls work for the same international company in Hong Kong.

There are a few minor differences. Theresa considers herself fortunate to have met a second hobby, Lillian likes bicycling.

The scholarships were presented at a morning coffee honoring the recipients, held at the office of the SIU Foundation, which administers the scholarship fund. Present were officials from the School of Business, the Office of International Education and the International Center.

Meier gave a demonstration on how to make a tomahawk, the most difficult item to make. According to Meier, it sometimes takes a hour-and-a-half to make a tomahawk.

First, the forge has to be lit. After a fire develops, Meier turns on a vacuum cleaner. The cleaner serves as the air source to the forge, since there are no bellows.

“You start out then with a flat piece of steel about a quarter of an inch thick and 1 inch wide. You then scarf (flatten and expand) one end of the piece of steel. This will form part of the blade,” Meier said.

The piece of steel is then reheated. Following the reheating, the steel is placed on the horn of the anvil and bent until the eye of the tomahawk is formed.

“You then apply a flux,” Meier said. “The flux acts as a catalyst. It lowers the melting temperature of the exterior surface of the steel. Welding temperature for steel and iron is around 2,300 to 2,500 degrees. The flux melts the impurities out at 1,700 to 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The impurities can then be eliminated by striking the steel.

The piece of steel is once again reheated. The temperature in the forge is around 2,500 degrees. The hot steel is bent. Meier knows if the forge is hot enough.

After the steel has reached welding temperature, Meier removes it from the forge and has helpers form a blade. The edge of the blade is then sharpened at a grinder.

Meier's passion

Amateur blacksmith Daryl Meier favorites a tomahawk and a flat slab of steel at the forge in a shed behind his home. Meier, whose interest in blacksmithing stems from a passion for muzzleloading guns, makes fences, canes, candleholders and strikers for himself and friends. He hopes to turn his hobby into a profit-making venture, but attempts at this have so far been unsuccessful. (Photo by John Lopinto.)

The Mobile Educational Center, which provides learning services for area schools, will be discontinued, according to Darrell Harrison, curator of education with the University Museum.

Harrison explained that the 15 percent cut in the budget has made it necessary to discontinue the Mobile Educational Center.

The center which began Jan. 20, 1970, will cease operations Jan. 1, 1971. Harrison indicated that there are no plans to revive it.

The center offers exhibits, films, speakers, and projects to area schools. An estimated 40,000 students have used the center's facilities over the past two years. This year the center has been offering concepts of business and agriculture that concern Southern Illinois.

The center was started to help fill in educational gaps in its centennial period, 1960-1974.

Black History Week plans being finalized

By Monroe Walker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Black Students Programming Committee deliberated for more than two hours Monday night on plans for Black History Week.

Stanford Jones, chairman of the committee, said that a tentative schedule has been set up but plans have not been finalized.

"They will, however, be finalized by the end of the week," Jones added.

The meeting, held on the second floor of Old Main, lasted more than 30 minutes when members voted to distribute pamphlets after an opening ceremony.

Some of the members said that they felt the program should open with a jazz format and proceed on a cultural note. Others said that the program should open with a speech by a black historian with the basic theme highlighting black history and the accomplishments of black people.

Black History Week begins Feb. 6 and continues until Feb. 12. Tentative plans for the week include black films, an African culture and art show, professional dancers and musicians, a jazz workshop, black theatre, guest speakers, a fashion show and other activities.

A special issue of the black newspaper, Unhuza-Basa, will highlight the affair. It will be published and distributed throughout the campus area.

The next meeting of the programming committee will be at 6 p.m. Friday on the second floor of the Student Center. Members will discuss the opening ceremony and conclude plans for the entire Black History Week Program.

Peace committee slates weekly film offerings

By Glenn Amato
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Southern Illinois Peace Committee is scheduling a series of films to be shown during this quarter at 8 p.m. Wednesdays and 7:30 p.m. Thursdays in Davis Auditorium.

Admission is 75 cents, and tickets will be available at the door.

Pier Paolo Pasolini's highly acclaimed "The Gospel According to St. Matthew," will be shown this Wednesday and Thursday. Pasolini is the awarded Communist who, without the proverbial cast of thousands or an army of box-office stars, has dug down to the actually simple core...a refreshingly despectacularized, classically simple and powerful portrayal of Christ! (New York Herald Tribune).

Lecturer deals with problems

Roy Lining of DeKalb, a touring Chicago science lecturer, will speak at 4 p.m. Jan. 19 in Morris Library Auditorium on "Committee to change educational approach," which concerns the solving of world problems.

Lining, who is sponsored at SIU by the Christian Science Organization, has been touring as a lecturer since 1963.

A former pianist and business executive, Lining resigned in 1963 to give full time to Christian Science.

Topics covered vary

Film society schedule selected for 'thematic, cinematographic aspects'

By Glenn Amato
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Justice, witchcraft and kinetic art are a few of the topics to be covered in a series of films scheduled for winter quarter by the Southern Illinois Film Society.

Dennis Monroe, a member of the society, said the films are selected for their "interesting thematic and cinematographic aspects.

"Witness: Through the Ages," a Danish film by Bent Christensen, will be shown Jan. 30, and Claude Lelouch's "A Broke A Cook" is slated for Feb. 6.

"Married Couple," to be presented Feb. 13, is in the work of Allan King, a Canadian documentarian. Time magazine hailed the film, which explores the intimate and realistic relationship between a husband and wife, as one of the ten best movies of 1970.

"Dalilah of a Soldier," scheduled for Feb. 20, is an experimental study of a Russian man's emotional reaction to his role as a soldier.

Warren Beatty's film, "Mickey One," a confused night club comedian looking for worthwhile values, the film, which was shot on location in Chicago, will be shown Feb. 27.

An experimental Kinetic Art series, which will explore the revolutionary techniques of today's underground filmmakers, rounds out the series on March 5.

The $3 subscription fee for the series may be sent to the society's business manager, Sandra S. Metts, 400 N. Oak St., Carbondale.

Swimming up there in Mike's class is Indiana's John Kinsella, who world record time of 9:11 seems unbeatable. Kinsella, winner of last year's Sullivan Award, presented annually by the AAU to their idea of the best amateur athlete, will face Miles when Indiana invades the Pulliam Pool Jan. 18, for a dual meet.

Following Kinsella is another Hoosier standout, Gary Hall with a clocking of 9:38, trailed by UCLA's Mike Burton's 9:39.

The rest of the class includes Rex Frank, Penn State, and Tom McLerren, 9:36; Australia's Graham White; 9:35; Loyola's R. W. Meade at 9:42, and Illinois' Hans Fassnacht, and Miles 9:42.

"Time is very significant," said Kinsella. "Last year the people in front of him can do as good anytime you want."

Miles' ranking clocked him first in the 500-yard freestyle, second in the 200-yard and second place on the 100-yard. It was his worst time since last season's meet against Cincinnati where he clocked in 2:18.9.

The sophomore has had a history in the 300-yard breaststroke (2:08.5), and 400-yard individual medley (4:12.7). He also clocked a stall-place NCAA finish in the 400-yard individual medley and a fifth in the breaststroke (2:08.1) last year.

Following the Wisconsin meet, Korner refused to comment on his showing saying, "Talk to Ray (Evans)."

Later, Kasick said, "Dale's performance was disappointing. He had a cold. Dale is the kind of swimmer where everything has to be just right before he can do well."

Korner will get a chance to improve himself Thursday when the swimmers travel to Stillwater, Okla., for the second annual Sooner Invitational.

Indiana won the three-day event last year and the Salukis will be looking for a repeat performance. Comprising the field will be Air Force, Colorado, Oklahoma, Oklahoma State, Southern Missouri, Texas A&M and Texas at Arlington.

Act one of the "Big Five" is complete.

It isn't a musical, drama or television series nor has it anything to do with anything related to current TV or movie affairs.

The "Big Five" will have five acts stretching from Thursday through Feb. 15 with center stage set for Feb. 2 in the Coliseum, all members of holding audiences well over 2,000.

They are very important to SIU but Southern Illinoisans will have to do quite a bit of traveling to sit in the audience.

The "Big Five" are the five away games slated for the freshman baseball team this year, all against some of the toughest baseball-talents college teams in Mid-America.

If this crop of freshmen is the answer to a variety of a team in coming years that can play the confines of home and come back with the spoils, then, as many could tell the story.

The young Salukis meet the Evansville Screamer Thursday at the Purple Ace varsity who are almost autonomous to those who are college division struggle.

The remaining four acts are road games which include both of the Southern easily manned Murray State and bring the already won series on the SIU Arena floor last month.

Of course the tables can easily turn when you're on the road but Evansville is having one of its low seasons.

"This team doesn't compare at all with our 73 team last year," said Evansville sports information director Doug Handy of this year's edition. "This is a much weaker team and there is no bright future there. Nothing outside. Last year's was a strong outside shooting team.

The Aces have shot below 40 percent in losses to Kentucky Wesleyan and Indiana (84-61), only freshmen games played this campaign.

Of its two wins in a current 2-2 season, one was against the local branch of Indiana State.

Two top flight freshmen are on the fifty-varied roster but sophomore Mike Moyer (6-3 guard) is the high point man as the offense averaging 18 points.

College division schools have always used freshmen on football and basketball varsity.

A new NCAA ruling this weekend will allow university-division teams to do the same.

The SIU troth will face a run and shoot battle at Evansville with a man for man defense. Freshman Bruce Denne will be the key man on the boards averaging 11 rebounds a game.

Southern will carry a 34-season college record into the contest which stands at 25-16, Evansville averaging over 97 points a game. This does not include the 14-50 win over Henderson Job Corps, an unofficial game.

Loyaltys sponsor trip to Evansville

There are seats still available on a chartered bus to the Saluki basketball games Thursday and weekend in Evansville, according to Al Green, Saluki Loyaltys member.

The bus, chartered by the Saluki Loyalties will leave the Student Center at 3 p.m. Thursday. This is the time for the tipoff for both the freshman and varsity basketball games. The bus will then return to Carbondale immediately after the games.

The trip costs $5 and it includes the price of admission for the games. Anyone interested can contact Loyalty member John Holbrook by calling 457-2168.

SIU basketball picture gloomy with tough foes yet to come

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Perhaps Mike Hessick best summed up the recent futility of Southern Illinois basketball. "We haven't even played the tough ones yet."

Hessick, one of Bill Perkins' backups at center, was quoted Monday night during an uneven joust trip from Wisconsin-Milwaukee to Mitchell Aero Field.

It was in the Arena, home of the Salukis, that the Bluejays, Monroe County's top basketball team, were determined to be a team with size and weight. Todd Nicholson, the team's 6-foot-11 center, was a factor in two classes - for class A Dec. 4. The Bluejays were drawn Tuesday in the office of the IHSA tourney secretary.

It was the same day that the Salukis were to play their sectional finals at Carbondale. The game was over.

Just one month earlier, the Saluki-Panther matchup produced exactly opposite results. Southern Illinois toyed with Wisconsin-Milwaukee in the first half, leading, before disposing the Panthers, 190-75.

Most disturbing about Monday night's fifth loss in the last seven starts was the fact that Southern Illinois couldn't do very little to hold down the Panthers.

That's not to knock Wisconsin-Milwaukee. Coach Chuck Parsley recruited a bandwagon college team that is just putting it together. The Panthers are 5-5 with a three-game winning streak.

But at times Monday night, Southern Illinois was inept at both ends of the floor. Numerous turnovers and 28 fouls helped create the Salukis' demise. With forwards Don Portugal, Nate Howard Mack and Marvin Brooks fouled out, coach Paul Lambert was forced to use his entire 11-man bench.

The end result was an almost zero floor unity. Southern generated one good comeback attempt after halftime, cutting Wisconsin-Milwaukee's 41-23 halftime lead to 40-42. They never got closer.

But it might have been a different script if Southern Illinois had attacked the offensive boards, a rarity this winter. Eight of 11 opponents have outrebounded the Salukis.

University of Iowa Invitational, Dec. 11.
Ken Gordes (128) followed Barge's example and pinned Jim Lorenz at 197 of the first round. Jim Cook and Testone followed with their victories and the score was 18-9 Southern.

Any hopes of a Saluki shutout were destroyed when Alvarez was beaten by ISU's Bruce Pottering, 7-5. It was Alvarez's first match since the University of Iowa Invitational.

Pottering was leading half way through the final period, 5-3, when Alvarez pulled a reversal to tie the score. Pottering then reversed Alvarez with only 17 seconds to go for the two-point victory.

Mark Smolens followed with his first victory in three matches for the final Saluki win of the night.

The next action for the wrestlers comes Jan. 14 when they travel to East Lansing, Mich. to face Big Ten champion Michigan State.

Prep tourney pairings drawn

CHICAGO (AP) - Pairings for quarterfinal play at Champaign in the 1972 "doubleheader" Illinois State High School Basketball Tournament finals were drawn Tuesday in the office of the IHSA tourney secretary.

For the first time in the state prep championship history, titles will be determined in two classes - for class A (756 enrollment and under) and class AA (756 enrollment or over).

Finals for the class A small-school tourney will be held at the University of Illinois Assembly Hall, March 18-19, with the class AA-bit-school final scheduled for the following weekend, March 17-18.

The pairings for the class AA quarterfinals at Champaign include these matches:

Lower bracket-winner at Aurora East vs. winner at DeKalb, Chicago Public League champion vs. winner at Normal.

The Champaign quarterfinal lineup for a class A included:

Upper bracket-winner at Carbondale super-sectional vs. winner at Litchfield, winner at Pontiac vs. winner at East St. Louis.

Lower bracket-winner at Decatur vs. winner at Normal. Winner at Charleston vs. winner at Macomb.
