Hiring freeze announced by SIU-C

By Vicki Olgeaty
Staff Writer

A campuswide hiring freeze effective Monday, could save the University more than $500,000 that could be used to meet another possible state budget recall for fiscal year 1983.

The freeze covers vacancies in civil service, faculty and administrative positions and will last until the state revenue situation becomes clear or until fiscal year 1983 ends June 30, according to John Baker, special assistant to the president.

The freeze will not cover part-time student workers or graduate assistants "at least for now," he said.

"Given everybody's perception of the state's revenue situation, we are anticipating the possibility of a further reduction in the University's budget," Baker said.

He estimated that the freeze could save the University more than $500,000, but said he could not give a specific figure until he discovered the amount of hiring done up until the freeze took effect.

Baker said all job offers made before Monday will be honored and that other exceptions may be made by individual vice presidents.

The University can "recruit on the anticipation that hiring will be opened when the fiscal year 1984 budget goes into effect," he said.

To meet a revenue shortfall, Gov. James Thompson announced a statewide budget cutback in December. SIU-C met its portion of the recall with a $1.8 million contingency fund.

The University is also withholding its employees 3 percent salary increases, which were to have been given Jan. 1. The administration will decide April 1 whether the University can afford to give the raises this fiscal year.

It was also announced Friday that five civil service employees in the physical plant will be laid off Feb. 14.

Vice President for Campus Services Clarence Dougherty said in a news release that the layoffs are needed to give the University enough money to meet payroll costs for fiscal year 1983.

The employees were to have been notified of the layoff Friday.

Cook presents plan to replace trustee

By Vicki Olgeaty
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization is considering a proposal that would allow a replacement for the student trustee to be selected in a campuswide election.

USO President Jerry Cook said Sunday that he will present such legislation at the first Student Senate meeting of the year Wednesday. The bill would direct the Committee on Internal Affairs to initiate the process for an election "as soon as humanly possible," he said.

Student Trustee Stan Irvin has said that he intends to resign, citing a legal conflict of interest between the student trustee position and his new position as assistant state attorney for Jackson County.

The SIU-C campus has no provision for replacing a student trustee in midterm. The method of selecting a student trustee must be prescribed by a student referendum, according to Richard Grunz, SIU legal counsel.

"The method of a campuswide election was prescribed in a referendum in the early 1970s," Cook said. "A campuswide election is the only alternative at this point unless we choose to have a referendum to have another process selected.

"Given the time constraints and the urgency of replacing Irvin, it is my opinion that we have only one alternative and that is to have a campuswide election," he said.

The USO and the Graduate Student Council will decide jointly whether to hold an election or hold a referendum to consider another replacement method.

Cook said that he has discussed the possibility of an election with GSC President Paul Matalonis. Matalonis could not be reached for comment Sunday.

Cook said he prefers an election because it would be more democratic than other methods. At SIU-Edwardsville, replacements are appointed by student government.

A replacement would serve the remainder of Irvin's term, which expires June 30. Another election would be held to select a student trustee to serve the 1983-84 term.

Under the USO Constitution, the Committee on Internal Affairs would administer and enforce election rules if the bill is approved by the Student Senate. Cook said the committee would also determine when the election would be held.

Council candidates ready for primary

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

With the Carbondale City Council primary election only a month away, most of the candidates are preparing to launch their campaigns.

Of the nine candidates who will have their names on the Feb. 22 primary ballot, eight will go on to run in the April 12 general election.

The only real contest in the primary is for one two-year council term. Three candidates are vying for that position, and only two will have their names on the general election ballot. There are also four candidates running for two four-year terms, and two candidates for mayor.

Squaring off in the decisive primary contest for the two-year term are Elliot Bevis, 202

S. Poplar St., Keith Tuxhorn, 810 N. James St., and Matthew D. Green, 300 E. College St. Christ J. Cordogan, 1200 E. Grand Ave., also filed for the two-year seat, but his name was withdrawn after it was discovered that two signatures on his candidacy petition were from people living outside city limits.

Bevis, a 43-year-old real estate salesman for J.R. Parrish Real Estate, has lived in Carbondale for 24 years. He is chairman of the Carbondale Zoning Board of Appeals but has never run for public office. He said that, being new at electoral politics, he has been slow at getting started campaigning but hopes to start soon.

Tuxhorn, a 27-year-old SIU-C graduate, has lived in Carbondale since 1973. Tuxhorn, who works at Plaza Records, said he has a limited campaign budget but will try to meet as many people as possible before the primary.

Green, a 20-year-old SIU-C student in his third year of pre-law studies, said he also will start campaigning soon. He has lived in Carbondale since coming to SIU-C three years ago.

In the mayoral contest, City Councilwoman Helen Westberg, 706 W. Cherry, will be facing Robert Crim, 308 E. Birch.

Westberg, a Carbondale resident since 1952, was appointed to the council in 1973 to fill a vacancy. The first woman to ever serve on the council, Westberg was elected to four-year terms in 1975 and 1979. She has served on various city committees and commissions, and since 1978 has served as Mayor Pro Tempore since 1978.

filling in for Mayor Hans Fischer when he was absent.

Although she and her opponent will both automatically go on to the general election, Westberg, 65, said she will be campaigning hard before the primary.

Crim, a lifelong Carbondale resident and a 1958 graduate of SIU-C, served on the Jackson County Board from 1980-82. He is a member of the Community Development Steering Committee, and the Council on Problems of the Aged, Inc. Crim, 46, has also been a member of the Southern Illinois Enforcement Group, the Criminal Justice Advisory Board and the Greater Egypt Regional Planning and Development Commission.

One of the last to file for candidacy, Crim said he made his decision after receiving about 300 signatures of people urging him to run. He said he is still in the process of planning his campaign strategy.

The four candidates running for the two four-year terms are Patrick J. Kelley, 2012 Wood

Soviet satellite falls over Indian Ocean

By Fred S. Hoffman
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An out-of-control, radioactive Soviet spy satellite plunged to fiery destruction in Earth's dense atmosphere over the mid-Indian Ocean on Sunday, the Pentagon announced.

Air Force Col. Robert O'Brien, a Pentagon spokesman, said U.S. observers on the island of Diego Garcia reported seeing a "40-second burn" in the sky at 5:15 EST, six minutes before the satellite's main bulk slammed fully into the dense atmosphere.

The North American Aerospace Command confirmed that the main body of the Soviet Cosmos 1402, estimated to weigh about 8,000 pounds, fell into the atmosphere at 5:22 p.m. EST.

At 5:10 p.m. the Federal Emergency Management Agency called off its worldwide alert and informed emergency teams standing by across the country to disband.

In a message to officials in all 50 states, FEMA said, "the public should be advised that protective action in connection with Cosmos 1402 are no longer necessary and thus the alert is over."

Pentagon officials said the satellite's "impact area" was about 960 nautical miles (1,127 statute miles) southeast of the British-owned island of Diego Garcia, where the United States maintains a naval base.

NOAID placed the re-entry point at about 25 degrees south latitude by 84 degrees east longitude.

"We do not know at this time whether any portion of the satellite reached the earth's surface intact," the Pentagon statement said. "U.S. nuclear fallout data collections assets have been instructed to watch for increased levels of radiation in the atmosphere but it is impossible to say at this time what the results of this effort might be."

Air Force Lt. Col. Mark Fouch said these "assets" are U.S. ships and planes equipped with devices which can detect radiation.

Defense officials said they planned no further statements for the remainder of the day.

A second and smaller portion of the satellite, sent into space last Aug. 30 to monitor movements of U.S. and other ships, remains in orbit and is expected to fall in mid-February.

The Pentagon has said this section "could contain the radioactive nuclear fuel" which powered the satellite's radar.

That fuel is believed to weigh about 110 pounds.

The Soviet Union has claimed it ejected the nuclear fuel package from the satellite some time ago and predicted it will re-enter Earth's atmospheric envelope in mid-February, an assessment the Pentagon apparently now accepts.

Although the main body of the satellite may no longer contain the enriched uranium fuel, U.S. officials have said that it undoubtedly was radioactive because it was bombarded by neutrons from the fuel during the nearly five months the satellite was in orbit.

Handgun offer gets big response

FINDLAY, Ill. (AP) — The manager of a bank that offers a set of custom-made handguns to long-term depositors said the bank was deluged with prospective depositors last week after the offer was reported nationally.

"The response has been truly unbelievable," Jim Livergood executive vice president of the Bank of Findlay, said, "and the phones are still ringing."

He estimated the bank had received "maybe 1,500 requests" from people eager to deposit $2,500 for six years in order to receive two Colt handguns.

Sharon blasts U.S. 'interference'

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Defense Minister Ariel Sharon, angry at what he called U.S. interference in talks with Lebanon, warned Sunday that without an American change the Israelis would "consider other ways" of obtaining a security agreement with their occupied neighbor.

Sharon's remarks, reported by Israel radio, came at the weekly Cabinet session as U.S. special envoy Philip Habib returned to Israel after weekend talks in Lebanon, Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

Israel radio quoted Sharon as saying at the Cabinet session that the United States was pressuring Lebanon to reject Israeli proposals on security arrangements and mutual relations.

OPEC leaders urge new policies

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Leading OPEC members urged the 13-nation cartel Sunday to scrap its month-old plan for supporting oil prices and take more drastic action to prevent a price crash.

If the members cannot agree on a sharing production, the continuing glut might force the first official price cut in the cartel's 22-year-history. That could push down energy prices around the world because non-OPEC prices usually follow the trend.

OPEC ministers said December's Vienna agreement to produce no more than 18.5 million barrels a day was too weak to eliminate the oil glut. The excess oil is weakening OPEC's grip on controlling prices.

COUNCIL from Page 1

River Dr. City Councilman Neil Dillard, 500 S. Oakland; Willie Ivey, 504 E. Larch; and Henry Fisher, 1200 Carter St. They will also automatically proceed to the general election after the primary.

Kelley, a 39-year-old teacher at the SIU School of Law, has lived in Carbondale since 1981. Although he has had no experience in Carbondale government, Kelley said he served on the city council in University City, Mo. from 1978-81. He said he is still planning his campaign.

Dillard, assistant director of Computing Affairs at SIU-C, was appointed to the council in November 1981 to fill a vacancy. A former member of the Citizens Community Development Steering Committee, he has lived in Carbondale since 1964. Dillard, 53, said he will be actively campaigning before the primary.

Ivey, a minister at the Church of Christ, located on Wall Street, has lived in Carbondale for four years. He is a member of the Citizens Advisory Steering Committee and the Parents Advisory Council at the Furma C. Hayes Child Care Center. He is vice president of the Carbondale Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Ivey, 29, said he is still organizing a campaign committee, but noted he is in no rush since he will not be eliminated in the primary.

Fisher, a Carbondale landlord, could not be reached for comment.

University seeks additional state funds

By Rod Stone
Staff Writer

With many of its existing programs and services in dire financial straits, SIU-C is asking the state Legislature to provide funds for three additional projects.

The University is planning to initiate three new programs that are designed to aid economic recovery in Southern Illinois.

The three new service units are: a High Technology Center in Materials Technology, an Engineering and Technology Applied Research Center and a Business Research and Management Institute. SIU-C President Albert Somit announced plans for the service units on Jan. 20.

The materials research center would use SIU-C engineering and scientific research personnel to explore new production techniques and applications for coal and other materials, such as rare metals like platinum.

The engineering research center would help industrial and high-technology firms in the area solve engineering and production problems.

The business research center would provide consulting services to businesses, especially small businesses, in areas where they lack expertise and resources, such as accounting and marketing.

"All three would bring business and industry to Illinois. Southern Illinois particularly," Somit said.

SIU-C is instituting these programs in response to Gov. James R. Thompson's desire to bring high-technology industries to Illinois. Somit said.

Because of Thompson's anxiousness to move Illinois industry into high-technology areas, Somit said he is "reasonably optimistic that at least some of the programs will receive funding."

However, Somit pointed out, the University would be unable to fund these projects out of its current budget.

The programs, which were organized recently, aren't included in the $173 million operations and capital improvements budget recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education to the state legislature for SIU, Somit said. The University may not submit them to the IBHE, but instead may go directly to the Illinois High Technology Commission for authorization, according to Somit.

A modest fee would probably be charged to users of the consulting services, Somit said. "To return some money to the University in order to help others."

The three new services, if they receive funding, would begin next fall. Somit said.

Club moves closer to receiving license

By Karen Torry
Staff Writer

A special meeting of the Liquor Advisory Board unanimously recommended that Airwaves Nite Club, 109 N. Washington St., be granted a Class A liquor license, pending a favorable Carbondale Fire Department inspection.

A final decision on the license application will be made by the Liquor Control Commission at its Monday night meeting, following the 7 p.m. informal Carbondale City Council meeting.

Airwaves owner Mickey Howe told the board that two fire code violations cited by the Fire Department — a door which opened out and an uncovered main circuit box — had been corrected and two additional fire extinguishers needed for approval would be purchased. The Fire Department probably will recheck the club Tuesday, Howe said.

Airwaves will cater to a "somewhat older" clientele, Howe said. Customers will have to be 19 to enter. Those of legal drinking age will be given a "21" stamp, underage customers a "19" stamp.

"I'm not on the strip and I'm hoping that I don't draw the kind of crowd that's on the strip," Howe said. "I'm going to be there combing the floor and making sure no one under 21 is drinking."

The board discussed and agreed with some dissension, to send a letter to the Liquor Control Commission apologizing because only one board member attended a Jan. 12 meeting to consider Howe's license, delaying Airwaves' opening.

"The bottom line is that we screwed up and we oughtn't to do it again," said Chuck Sangrelet, the only member present at the previous meeting.

Board chairman John Mills agreed. "We gave our word that we would do the job. We said we would be here and we did not do it."

Council holds hearing on parking bans

At the request of some residents of South Oakland Avenue, the Carbondale City Council will hold a public hearing Monday night to hear comments about the possibility of limiting or prohibiting parking along the east side of Oakland Avenue between Whitney and Chautauqua streets.

Residents, aggravated by long-term parking along that area of the avenue, have requested the city to restrict parking from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. or from midnight to 6 a.m. City administrators have also noted problems with traffic flow and street sweeping in that area.

The hearing will be held at 7 p.m. in the city council chambers, 607 E. College St., prior to an informal council meeting.

At the meeting, the council will also discuss a recommendation to prohibit parking along East College Street where it crosses the Piles Fork Creek and intersects the Drainways-Greenways path. City officials are concerned that parking in that area obstructs visibility and could pose a danger to pedestrians and bicyclists using the path.

In other business, the council is scheduled to review the city's property and casualty insurance program and the proposed budget ceilings for the city's general and special revenue funds. The council will also consider granting a Class A liquor license for the Airwaves Nite Club, 109 N. Washington St. The Liquor Advisory Board, which met last week, has recommended granting the license.

Rea proposes safe-driving exemptions

State Rep. James Rea announced his position as chief sponsor of a bill that would allow drivers over 69 with a good driving record to waive the requirement of a written test when they renew their drivers' licenses.

If a driver committed no violations for four years, he would be exempt from taking the written test under the new measure. Rea, a Democrat representing the 117th District, said the bill would eliminate age discrimination in the license program. Last year a bill was passed allowing persons under 69 the same privilege.

"This age group may include some of our better drivers," Rea said. "But taking a written test creates much fear and apprehension for some of them."

If questioned orally, they do know the laws and signs."

All drivers would still be required to take the driving test and the eye test periodically.

Secretary of State Jim Edgar and Sen. Darrow of Rock Island are co-sponsoring the bill. Rea said there is a "good chance" the bill will get passed. It is to be introduced in the General Assembly next week.

Attention: Student Workers

WHY A CREDIT UNION?

Your paycheck is not your only benefit as a student employee of SIU. You are eligible for membership in SIU Employees Credit Union.

A credit union is a cooperative financial organization. Members put their savings and borrow from that reserve. The credit union is actually owned by the members. It makes no difference whether you have $25 or $25,000, you are part owner — a shareholder.

Because a credit union is member-owned it traditionally pays a higher interest rate on savings. In addition, SIU Employees Credit Union offers an attractive package of financial services custom tailored to meet members' needs.

CUSTOM CHEQUEING

Now-a-days checking is a thing of the past at banks and savings & loans in the area. Not at the credit union.

The credit union offers a truly cost-free checking account. It requires no minimum balance, no monthly service charge, and no charge for clearing checks.

See today's student members with an average daily balance of only $750 will earn $14.40 annual interest from date of deposit to date of withdrawal. Interest is paid monthly.

Many student members report turning money from other savings accounts to their interest-bearing checking account to earn interest on all of their money — including that which will be spent on living expenses.

The credit union's checking account earns daily interest on all of the money filtered through the account. Even if the funds stay in the account for two days, two months, or two years.

The credit union has one of the lowest minimum balance requirements on interest-bearing accounts in the area and pays without question the highest rate of interest.

Members also receive monthly statements on both plans showing all account activity.

COSTS NOTHING TO JOIN

Membership in the credit union costs you nothing to join or later. Simply maintain $25 in a Share (savings) account. Since you are a part-owner, this represents one share in the credit union. If you should ever decide to terminate your membership, your $25 will be refunded in full. In the meantime it will earn higher than-bank interest.

ONCE A MEMBER ALWAYS A MEMBER

SIU Employees Credit Union subscribes to the philosophy "Once a member, always a member." You will retain your credit union membership for life, even if you are no longer employed by SIU. Membership is a lifelong benefit available to you now.

Editorial

Good work, USO

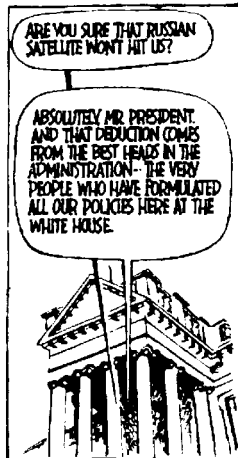

Give the Undergraduate Student Organization credit for taking a founding idea, sticking with it and turning it into a success.

The USO's book co-op will sell more books this year and will earn more money. USO President Jerry Cook predicts earnings will well exceed the $10,000 taken in at the first book co-op in the fall of 1981.

All the credit belongs to the USO for sticking with what seemed to be a lost cause. It was a struggle finding workers in the beginning. The College of Business and Administration at first refused to cooperate believing the co-op would fail. COBA instead intended to operate its own book co-op.

But despite the fact that students using the co-op must wait several weeks for a cash return on books sold to the co-op, the USO idea did not fail, and students no longer need grumble about raw deals from book stores in town.

Cook says the only problem with the program is the limited number of books being sold through the co-op still. So come on students, help the program that is helping you.

Ted Nugent, Wendy O. for president

Yes, they're off and running again folks. The presidential elections are still two years off but from here on out it's going to be "candidate Joe Millionaire said this today" and "candidate Sam Slime said that."

I personally don't understand all this waste of money and time because John Glenn of Ohio and space fame is going to be the winner. I mean, he's a natural.

Look at it this way. If you peruse the presidential history of say, the last 25 years or so, you'll see that America has consistently chosen some poor devil for the top hot seat who they feel, not necessarily best represents themselves, but rather someone they wish they were.

Cases in point: The returning soldiers elected a soldier they wished they were in Eisenhower. The new idealists picked Kennedy (didn't they all want to be young and vibrant and be married to someone like Jackie?). The lets-get-down-to-the-business-of-business people chose a hard and calculating Nixon. As for Reagan, I suspect it had something to do with America's faddish fascination for royalty.

So that's why our post-

Sputnik brothers and sisters, nurtured on Johnny Quest and Spock, are sure to elect the first American to orbit the Earth — John Glenn — to sit in the nation's cockpit, as it were.

All this thinking about presidential elections got me thinking about my own generation and who we are going to pick to represent us in the White House. And rather than selecting one or two candidates, I've come up with a sort of "Who Could Be Who in Early 21st Century American Presidential History."

I think if we're going to continue the trend of electing old codgers to the presidency, Alan Alda of MASH fame might be a strong candidate for the top job. Kind, considerate, tender, understanding — the kind of president who would wake up early in the morning and make breakfast for the First Lady (in a sensitive way, of course.)

Alda's running mate on the Wimp ticket could be Phil Donohue (see description above.) I can hear him now... "Let me get this straight low. Will or will not nuclear war seriously impair the nation's sex life among middle-aged women? Let's get some feedback on this issue. Go ahead m'am..."

Andrew Herrmann

Editorial Page Editor

If we decide to break tradition and go with someone younger I think maybe Ted Nugent, rock n' roll animal, a.k.a Motor City Madman might make a strong showing. Nugent has already established an administrative policy. It's evident in his music.

For instance, urban policy. How about "Intensities in Ten Cities"? Economic plan? "It's a Free For All Baby. It's a Free For All." Foreign affairs? "Snakeskin Cowboy (Who the Hell You Think You Are?)"

Nugent's running mate is a toss-up. Wendy O. Williams of the punk rock band, The Plasmatics, or perhaps Moon Zappa might be more to your liking. I guess it would all depend on whether America liked Dirty Talk ("This country is a f--- mess.") or whether they preferred Valleyspeak. ("Like, this country's current problems are, like, totally awesome!")

I wouldn't mind seeing Gary Coleman, that little munchkin from T.V.'s

"Diff'rent Strokes" in Washington. At 4 foot tall, he'd be a tough assassination target but I'm afraid we might find ourselves in the middle of a raided revolution. The feds would make businesses have special toilets and drinking fountains and schools have teeny-weeny gymnasiums for little people. The N.B.A. might have a short person quota, something on the level of affirmative action.

But if Coleman gets in, I'd want Arnold Swartzenegger to help run the country with him. Arnold's enormous head, those huge arms and that bulging chest would do a lot for our country's image. When a guy like that pounds his fist on the bargaining table, you just somehow know that at least ten South American dictators would jump. And have you ever noticed how the word "barbarian" seems to be understood in just about every language.

Perhaps Brooke Shields and Cheryl Tiegs might consider taking a shot at the White House. Running on the "Wouldn't You Like to Sleep With Me?" ticket, the Designer Administration would change the look of America. Designer interstate highways, designer Johns with designer toilet paper and maybe, oh I don't know, maybe some designer money in a nice earth brown and beige. A little alligator on the front, a polo pony on the back.

The military could have designer jet fighters, designer cruise missiles, designer battleships. We might not be the toughest country on Earth, but wouldn't we look sharp in our Izod shirts and Calvin Klein jeans?

The list is enormous — porn stars Seka and Long John Holmes, John Hinkley and Jodie Foster, big names Mick Jagger and Carly Simon, drug humorists Cheech and Chong... there are so many qualified.

But after I leave SIU-C, I'll forever be a Saluki dog in my heart and I want to see some of my fellow alumni make it big, so I think our own Jerry Cook, Undergraduate Student Organization president, might be just the man to run this country. A born politician, he's an experienced hand-shaker, baby kisser and back slapper — he's perfect.

I see one problem with Cook though. I just wonder how well the people would accept losing one-third of their senators?

'Congress deserved pay raise'

We are writing in response to Bob Delaney's editorial, "Pay puts House on top of the hill" Jan. 19. It is obvious from his words that Mr. Delaney has spent very little, if any, time in the halls of Congress which he so eloquently derides.

Although he quoted a 15.1 percent raise in Congressional salaries, the number of years since the last pay raise reduces that figure significantly. Aside from that fact, surely he must realize that a position such as public servant is a high pressure job. It may be helpful to note that Washington is the third most expensive city in the country in which to live. Not only must a congressman live in Washington, he must keep an active residency in his district.

Mr. Delaney is not only critical of the personal salaries of our congressmen and women, but brings to light office and traveling cost. What he fails to mention are the enormous expenses which are necessary for not only keeping in touch with his constituents but for operating this democracy in the manner which the public demands.

One last point, it is very simplistic to rely on unrelated comparisons. Perhaps if Mr. Delaney would do some basic research into this matter, he would be much less likely to go on blowing in the wind. — David Jolly, sophomore, business and administration, and John Racine, freshman, journalism.

Only moles, worms will survive

Like Heidi Fillmore-Patrick (DE, Dec. 13, 1982), I write this letter with a trembling hand. After having my spirits uplifted by her accurate assessment of the narrow views of Reagan foreign policy and her prescription for action, I was immediately pulled down into the depths of anxiety over Matthew Coulter's views of the price of freedom (DE, Dec. 13, 1982).

Mr. Coulter seems to think that we can win a nuclear war, and labels this "the price of freedom."

I must give you credit, Mr. Coulter, for presenting a fairly accurate view of present arms race statistics. I shudder in disbelief, however, at your misinformation as to the consequences of a nuclear exchange.

Do you actually believe that Soviet missiles are aimed only at missile silos in Western states? What about the military bases all over the United States? There is one outside most metropolitan areas.

Mr. Coulter's scenario of an exchange of 10 percent of existing nuclear stockpiles is also interesting. The Union of Concerned Scientists estimates that the detonation of a mere 10 percent of present nuclear stockpiles would diminish the earth's atmospheric ozone layer by 70 to 80 percent.

A 70 percent loss of ozone from the earth's atmosphere would allow enough ultraviolet radiation to reach the earth to blind all unprotected eyes.

The only creatures able to remain alive will be moles and worms that live underground.

This picture of corpses floating in a global radioactive ocean is what concerned scientists refer to when they tell us that present nuclear stockpiles could destroy the earth, as an inhabitable planet, 10 times over. Once is all it takes.

Yes, Mr. Coulter, freedom does have its price. But we haven't found one we can pay yet. If we use nuclear weapons, the price of freedom becomes death. — Brian Hall, Sophomore, Cinema and Photography.

Virgil enrolls at SIU-C

Few friendships can rival that of the age-old pair of a boy and his dog and, starting today, a version of that friendship will appear twice weekly on the editorial page in the form of "Virgil" a new cartoon strip drawn by Brad Lancaster.

But Virgil is no ordinary dog and his pal, Roger, is no ordinary owner. Together they will be searching for truth, justice and the American way at SIU-C and probably add more than a bit of sarcasm in their quest.

Lancaster, a senior in radio and television, describes his beast and boy combination this way: "Well, I'm not really sure if Roger owns Virgil or not. I suspect that it could be the other way around. Virgil and Roger are both college students at SIU-C, though Virgil is the more developed character. Virgil is the type of student who gets involved, he's the editor of the college paper, he's a Political Science major and takes a skeptical view most of the time. But he believes in the survival of man.

"Roger is perhaps a bit more mellow. He's a Computer Science major and, like many college students, tends to be apathetic."

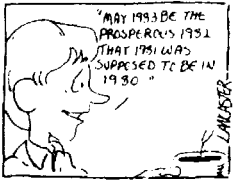

Lancaster, 21, hails from Chicago and has drawn cartoons for the Black Observer but, he says, this is his first attempt at a ongoing strip.

"I might add some additional characters in the future but for now I'm really looking forward to seeing how Virgil and Roger develop."

And, hopefully, so will the students at SIU-C.

Only justice mourned in mob deaths

By Christopher Kade
Staff Writer

The recent demise of two of America's most infamous mobsters should not pass without comment.

There is no reason to mourn the deaths of Meyer Lansky and Allen Dorfman. But their respective underworld careers and the wildly different manner in which each met his Maker should rightly leave a bitter aftertaste in the mouths of all who still conceive America to be a society of democratic values.

For the record, Lansky died peacefully in his Miami Beach hospital bed Saturday, Jan. 15. He was 81. In marked contrast, Dorfman exited the way of many of his colleagues — including the late, unlamented Chicago Mob chieftain Sam "Momo" Giancana. Dorfman was rubbed out last Thursday by unidentified assailants in a Chicago suburban hotel parking lot. He was 60.

Both played large roles in the Mob's penetration of the American economy and both greatly enriched themselves in the process. But there was one significant difference between the two.

Lansky lived a relatively unostentatious life and kept his mouth shut. For that reason, despite years of wiretapping and surveillance by the Feds, Lansky never served a major prison term and died the grand old patriarch and architect of the Mob as we know it today.

Dorfman was not so circumspect in either his lifestyle or his utterances. He paid the price with his recent bribery conviction. And, in becoming a liability to his benefactors, he paid the ultimate price last Thursday.

Such is the code of the Mafia jungle: Keep your mouth shut and stay out of trouble and many are the rewards. But if you get caught, you are expendable.

Dorfman met a deserved fate. Lansky evaded the law and an untimely death. There is reason to regret both.

Dorfman could have told us much about the inner workings of the Mob and its most conspicuous front organization, the Teamsters union. There is good reason to believe that, facing a long prison sentence, he was contemplating just such a move. Score his death yet another smug victory for the Mob over American justice.

As for Lansky, here is a man who did more to turn the Mob into a highly organized and efficient business than any other of his lethal cohorts. The lesson of his life is that crime does pay and pay big. It is a profoundly depressing bizarre and, at the same time, a bizarre fulfillment of the American Dream.

Need it be spelled out who has the last laugh and what is being laughed at?

Pro-lifers lack answers, don't know the problem

By Jennifer Phillips
Staff Writer

Hoary for Jan. 20 the 10th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

Pro-lifers, you can toss out all the statistics they want about how many unborn children are being legally killed every year. You can continue to claim that human life begins at conception, even though a scientific consensus on this point has never been reached and never will. And you can even continue to use ridiculous scare tactics, like claiming abortion leads to communism, Nazism or nuclear war (see Mademoiselle, Feb. 1983 for more on that one).

But you can't convince me and, luckily, a majority of our decision makers that abortion should be outlawed.

The problem, pro-lifers, is that you don't want to compromise.

Abortion is wrong, you say, no matter who is involved for whatever reason, excluding cases where the mother's life is endangered. But you are being a bit naive.

It's true that about 60 percent of Americans are personally opposed to abortion but that same percentage have stated they would not take away a woman's right to one.

They, unlike the narrow-minded pro-life organization, seem to realize that prohibiting abortion will not solve the problem.

The immediate problem? Unwanted pregnancies. The real problem? Double standard sexuality.

If pro-lifers spent more time and energy studying America's sexuality instead of treating it like the black plague, they would realize that the problem goes much deeper than irresponsibility.

Yes, it's sad that parents do not have to consent to their teenaged daughter's abortion but part of the blame lies with society.

What teenager wants to go through the trauma of everyone in her junior or senior high school knowing that she "got caught"? What 16-year-old wants her life preplanned by a shotgun marriage? How many parents actually accept a teenager's pregnancy with open minds?

For most women, abortion is not a casual occurrence. Somehow, people picture promiscuous young women who get abortions so they can continue the "wild life."

But all types of women get abortions. The mother of five children with an unemployed husband. The 15-year-old who thought having sex would make her popular. The 40-year-old afraid to have another child. The 25-year-old just getting into the meat of her career.

A lot of people seem to have this theory that if one ignores sex it will go away. Don't mention contraception and venereal disease to teenagers, for example, and they won't have sex, right?

Very, very wrong.

Hey, advocates of righteousness, the old sexual "morality" concept is gone for a majority of Americans. Accept this and start teaching birth control methods and responsible sex with an open mind — according to today's values.

In short, work to eliminate many of the causes which create the need for abortion. Your views are idealistic but not very realistic.

You can't stop abortions until you stop the need for them.

Quotable Quotes

"My dad always told me, when you're going up the ladder, remember who's coming up behind you. Because if you ever fall down, he'll be waiting for you." — Allen Dorfman, Chicago insurance magnate and convicted labor racketeer who was shot to death last week.

"He was an absolute encyclopedia of knowledge. If he was ever to be debriefed and tell all, it would take a month for the country to stop shaking." — Patrick Healy, director of the Chicago Crime Commission, in the aftermath of the assassination of Allen Dorfman.

NCAA needed to act on athletes

The responses and reactions to NCAA Rule 48 have basically been to block the kick and get a replay on the goaltending call. As I read the reactions, the extra point has been missed.

The point is that some high school athletes come to campus totally unprepared academically. The high schools they attended did not prepare them scholastically or socially for the semi-pro NCAA leagues.

Part of the problem has been the lure of the big bucks for the athlete and those involved in the management of athletics from junior high school to the professional ranks. High school students don't establish the curriculum or the standards for graduation. Reading, math, and science are not necessary to make one aware of the fact that athletic prowess can be a key to financial security.

There is an educational system operating in the nation that has taught students — both athletes and non-athletes — that there is an avenue of least resistance one can follow to get through school. For many black or underprivileged students, the system is often mislabeled "special education."

It does not start in high school. It begins as the "have-nots" learn in third grade that they cannot compete with the "haves" regardless of height, speed or strength that has yet to be developed.

Not only do students learn that they cannot compete academically, they are not expected to compete. Why try? "Put me in special education with my buddies and leave me alone," they say. Once involved in special ed, they are always involved in special ed, until they really need it and it isn't available.

No, the NCAA should not be in the business of determining what the high school curriculum or core courses should be. However, someone should.

The NCAA is concerned with the athlete. The athlete is a student caught up in a corrupt educational system that needs repair. Colleges and universities determine who will teach what to whom and maintain a cyclic, dogmatic control over the educational process.

I find it interesting that the SIU-C representatives are reported to say that "exams such as the ACT and SAT discriminate against minority students and those in rural areas." If those exams discriminate, the obvious question is, why?

Let us study the issue and "fix" the results to read that the student athlete is not prepared for college. Then let us address the real reasons why. It seems dumb to me to conclude that the problem is the environment and the parents. Parents have gone through the same educational process. Let us start where the problem first shows up — in the educational system.

Look out, elementary schools, here comes the NCAA. Welcome them; at least they have momentum. — Richard C. Hayes, Carbondale.

Personality Profile

Education, Joan Martin says, means responsibility, maturity

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles focusing on the human qualities of members of the SIU-C community, and their concerns for students and the University as a whole.

By Duane Schombert
Staff Writer

Joan Martin, assistant professor of English, believes SIU-C has two missions — research and teaching. "Both deserve recognition," she said.

Martin does not do research, but she is supportive of those individuals who do.

"I would gladly teach an extra class, if that's what the department wanted me to do, in order to free one of the people who publishes research which brings SIU-C a national or international reputation," she said. "Those people who do that well should be encouraged and rewarded, but those of us who teach well should equally be encouraged and rewarded."

Unfortunately, an attitude of "only certain people can conduct research and anybody can teach" exists at SIU. This downgrading of good teaching bothers Martin.

"There's an art to teaching that needs to be appreciated," she said. "Just because you teach and don't publish doesn't mean you aren't doing what you should do and that you aren't doing it well."

Martin believes her contributions to making SIU-C a good institution are done in the classroom and not so much the library.

"I relate to people better than I do just sitting in a library doing research. If I can give students a good solid academic foundation, I'm helping SIU."

On the other hand, Martin feels she "probably fails SIU" by not publishing.

"I know that's expected," she said. "I feel I do research, though, because anytime I prepare for class I'm doing research and then I'm giving that research to my students who in turn can do something with it."

Although about 65 percent of Martin's time is devoted to teaching, she also believes some of her leisure time is spent indirectly on students.

"Whatever I read, I'm going to use it in some way in school. If it's a relevant topic in a current newspaper or magazine, such as Newsweek, I'm going to use it for my pre-law students. If it's a literary novel, I'm going to use it in my recent American literature class or in other classes."

Carbondale and SIU-C have been Martin's "whole existence."

She was born in Carbondale and received her bachelor's and master's degrees from SIU-C. She is married to Reid Martin, who is superintendent of Carbondale Community High School. She also raised three children and has been teaching at SIU-C for the past 26 years.

Over the years, Martin strived to bring credibility, sensitivity, and knowledge to SIU-C by helping students "learn academically, but also to help them as individuals."

"I know I cannot reach every student. I use to lie awake at night and worry about that," she said. "I now know there are students I cannot reach, but I have to reach most of them. I have a commitment to care for students so they learn. That has to come first. But the student has to want to learn."

Martin said she expresses interest in students by telling them early in the semester that she cares about them, by getting acquainted with them in the classroom, by remembering their names and some background information, and by remembering them after the course ends.

"I treat them as individuals, not numbers," Martin said. "They also know I mean it when I say they have to do work for the class. I do not understand students who do not come to class. You sign up for a class, you should go."

Martin said her worst fault is that she sometimes has a sharp tongue.

"I have to control that in class sometimes, especially when I get impatient with a student who doesn't come to class or who hasn't completed an assignment." Martin said she feels she has had some influence on her students, especially the pre-law students for whom she teaches an intermediate composition course.

Jean Martin ... SIU and Carbondale are my "whole existence."

"I do so much for them to get into law school," she said. "I hear from them after they go to law school." "Thanks for teaching me to write. I'm surviving law school," they mention in their letters to her. Martin is modest and does not take entire credit for those law students who have acknowledged her help. She does express pride in the fact that students she had in the late 1950s and early 1960s still keep in touch.

Occasionally, she hears from a past student who has been reminded of something in life as it related to a piece of literature Martin exposed them to in class.

"I've heard from students and they say, 'Remember when we read such and such and you said it would relate? Well, it has happened.' So you know you've touched them in that way. If you teach them right, then they'll be able to express themselves fairly all their life."

After 26 years of teaching, what stands out in Martin's mind most vividly?

Not surprisingly, students. Two past students, in particular, have left a lasting impression on Martin because of their "delightful sense of humor."

"The first student was from Brooklyn, New York," Martin said. She and the student had difficulties at first communicating because he did not understand the midwestern drawl.

"His name was Philip Harris. I had him in a 101-class. That year at Christmas, coming back to school, he was killed on the Pennsylvania turnpike," Martin recalled. "I only had the kid one semester, but I've never forgotten him and this happened 23 or 24 years ago."

The other student Martin recalled was killed in Vietnam as a helicopter pilot.

"I have not forgotten him either," she paused, "those are the things I remember. They are sentimental. I remember students who had delightful senses of humor about themselves, about me, about different situations... students whose eyes would sparkle when they'd come up with something I remember students, not the incidents."

Malaysian flyers' graduation held

By Patrick Williams
Staff Writer

One hundred members of the Royal Malaysian Air Force took part in commencement exercises from the School of Technical Careers (STC) at International Hall Friday night.

The students were part of a larger group of 572 Malaysian Air Force members studying aviation technology at STC. The graduates trained in powerplant technology.

"They've done excellently," said research project director Chris Svec.

All the students who took the Federal Aviation Administration licensing exam in powerplant mechanics passed, Svec said. Twelve scored at least 100 on the exams. The usual pass rate is about 96 percent.

Keynote speaker John E. King, chairperson for the Department of Higher Education, told the students,

"You've given up your family and home to come to a foreign country. This took courage."

Awards were given to top students. Chia Chang Kong won sergeant honors. Mark Rabhel Pereira won both top corporal awards and was elected student ambassador by his fellow students. Kanesan Son Of Marappam won the top airman award.

Joe Schiafer, director of the aviation technologies program, was given a special award from the students for his work.

The RMAF choir, led by Kassim Aris, personnel director for the Mara Education Foundation, which sponsored the program from Malaysia, closed the ceremony with Malaysian songs.

Excitement builds in performance

Dance Review

The Missouri Concert Ballet, presented Saturday night in Shryock Auditorium, moved its audience from boredom to excitement. The dancers worked steadily through their performances to a finale that warranted the wait.

The finale, "Une Petite Comedie" was clearly the highlight of the entire night combining the best dancing with the best story line. The dancers appeared to have fun with this one and so did the audience.

In this comedy, toys come alive after dark and act out their own versions of reality, including feelings of love and jealousy. Antoni Zalewski as the marionette, and Mary Barnett as the dancing doll were excellent in their performance as lovers. The evil and jealous Jack in the Box, Anthony Wozniak, however, stole the show with his crazy antics.

Guest artist Zalewski not only performed the role of the marionette, but also, along with Ludmila Dokoudovsky, did the choreography for "Une Petite Comedie." They combined talents throughout the night, as together Dokoudovsky and Zalewski choreographed the four-part "Simple Symphony" and "Le Corsaire Pas de Deux."

The lack of stage props and the unfinished feeling of the blackness that surrounded the stage and the dancers in "Pas de Quatre," "Le Corsaire Pas de Deux," and the "Simple Symphony," left the difficult job of setting the mood totally to the dancers. Sometimes they succeeded and sometimes they didn't, success depending mostly upon the choreography.

The "Simple Symphony" was based on musical themes composed by Benjamin Britten. The 12 female dancers romped about the stage, dressed in pastel blue and pink. Their enthusiasm gave us show a special youthful delicacy. Because there was no scenery, the subtler movements and expressions of these dancers conveyed the essence of the ballet. Without such fine details, the grace and complexity of the dance would have been lost. "Le Corsaire Pas de Deux" was the first occasion on which Zalewski and Barnett danced. This short romantic encounter, powered by Zalewski's energetic leaps and spins and Barnett's grace, was a welcome change from the graceless opening act.

"Pas de Quatre," staged for the Missouri Concert Ballet by Patricia Sorrell, began the evening on a sour note. Even the pre-recorded music was not as bad as the opening act.

The four ballerinas who participated in "Pas de Quatre," Dulce Feito, Carey Mullikin, Lisa Wolfsberger and Laura Smith made their job look more like work than a smooth, effortless-appearing dance. Indeed, at times they looked more like well-trained cows than ballerinas. Fortunately, "Pas de Quatre" was the only low point of the evening.

Classic retold

WSIU to air four-opera tale

By Thomas Sparks
Entertainment Editor

A very special series will debut on WSIU tonight at 8. Richard Wagner's four opera tale, "The Ring of the Nibelung," will be presented in seven parts, beginning with "Das Rheingold" this evening.

As a whole, the four operas relate the tale of gods and mortals involved in a massive struggle to control the whole world through possession of a ring with magic powers. "Das Rheingold" is usually considered the preface to the remaining three operas, in that it provides the background, including the forging of the ring, that is needed to fully understand and enjoy the trilogy that follows.

The first opera retells the Northern Sagas tale of the theft of the gold of the Rhine by the dwarf Alberich, and the forging from it of a ring that gives its wearer power over earth and heaven. The opera ends with the ring possessed by a giant, and the king of the gods, Wotan vowing to win it for himself.

The remaining three operas trace the continuing corruption of the ring causes and the struggle of the hero, Siegfried, as he also attempts to win the ring and escape the curse of death placed upon it by Alberich. The cycle ends with the death of Siegfried and the downfall of the Gods, which leaves only love to redeem and re-order the earth.

What makes this production so special is that it was taped on the stage of the Wagner Festival Stage in Bayreuth, Germany, and was created in honor of the centennial of the premier performance of "The Ring." It is also special thanks to the makeup and scenery used. The giants look like giants and the dwarfs look like dwarfs while mankind appears as a race caught in-between.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY AT CARBONDALE

GRADUATE HEAD RESIDENT POSITIONS IN UNIVERSITY RESIDENCE HALLS 1983-1984

POSITIONS

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale announces the availability of Graduate Assistant positions as Head Residents in University Residence Halls for the 1983-84 academic year. All positions involve developing and maintaining a living environment within a residence hall which seeks to maximize residents' educational, cultural and social experiences and for assisting in the effective management of the residence hall.

APPOINTMENT

Head Resident positions are one-quarter or one-half time graduate assistantships for the 1983-84 academic year.

Remuneration includes lodging and meals for the Head Resident and immediate family, plus waiver of tuition for the Head Resident. The salary for one-quarter time positions is $238 per month. For one-half time positions, the salary is $476.

QUALIFICATIONS

1. Completion of at least an undergraduate degree.
2. Must be enrolled in a graduate program at SIU when employment begins.
3. Experience in residence hall management, supervision, or other leadership experience is desirable.
4. Minimum age of twenty-one years.
5. Candidates may be married or single.

GENERAL INFORMATION & APPLICATIONS

Information concerning Head Resident positions or an application may be obtained by writing:

RESPONSIBILITIES

The major responsibilities include: supervision, training, and development of resident advisor staff; programming; student development; student conduct and discipline; and development of a positive, educational, growth producing environment within the assigned residence hall.

SIU IS AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY-AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER AND ENCOURAGES APPLICATIONS FROM THE HANDICAPPED, WOMEN, AND/OR MINORITIES.

It is also made unique by the liberty that Pierre Chereau and Pierre Boulez took in adapting the classic story to a new stage production that first premiered in 1978. The Chereau and Boulez production caused instant controversy by recasting the story in the Industrial Revolution of Wagner's own day. The Rhine in "Das Rheingold" is contained by a hydro-electric plant and the Rhine maidens who guard the river's gold are recast as prostitutes. Other changes include the names of Alberich resembling a vast urban movement.

Chereau has stated that he made these changes to emphasize Wagner's own theme of mankind's corruption by the industrial age. After three years, the production — despite its early controversy — was widely acknowledged as a masterpiece of stage.

The remainder of the operas will be broadcast in two parts each, beginning with "Die Walkure" on Feb. 21 and 22. Following this will be "Siegfried" April 11 and 12, and "Götterdämmerung" June 4 and 11.

Piano recital set for Shryock

Mahn-Hoe Kang, graduate student in music, will present a piano recital at 8 p.m., Tuesday in Shryock Auditorium.

The recital will feature works by Beethoven, Schumann, Brahms and Liszt. The piece by Schumann, "Sonata in F-Sharp Minor," is not performed as often as Schumann's other works and is, therefore, lesser known.

Kang, originally from Seoul, Korea, graduated with honors from the College of Music at Kyunghee University in 1981 and is currently studying under Steven Barwick.

The recital is free and open to the public.

Soprano to give Senior Recital

Soprano Karen Sinner will present her Senior Recital Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel, accompanying Miss Sinner will be Anita Sutton as piano.

Miss Sinner's recital will present a wide variety of works and styles. Included will be works by Handel, Bach, and Purcell and played in the first half and Brahms and Beethoven following intermission.

Miss Sinner a senior in Music Education, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mel Sinner of Carbondale.

Admission is free and the public is invited to attend.

Panel says science writing field open

By Duane Schombert
Staff Writer

The computer age is here. Technology is growing more complicated. New strides in medicine seem to be made each day.

And there's a boom occurring in the area of science and technical reporting because the public wants to know what's happening in the world, according to Gordon Billingsley, public information specialist with the Agriculture Department.

Billingsley, Gene Charleton, University New Service writer, and Sara Anderson, assistant director of the Dietary Department Clinical Dietetic Services of Memorial Hospital of Carbondale participated in a panel discussion of science and technical reporting Thursday. The discussion was held during a meeting of the Carbondale Branch of the Society for Technical Communication (STC).

Billingsley, coordinator of the Carbondale Branch, said now's the time to enter science and technical writing.

Billingsley believes people who write in this area should be trained journalists who have technical specialties. For example, he noted the Wall Street Journal would prefer hiring a journalist who is trained in a certain area such as the economy.

Charleston noted, "I'm a writer, and I don't claim to be anything else."

He said it is important to relay science and technical information in an interesting and informative way and to "write for the reader, not the source."

Charleton advised writers to stay away from technical terminology because, unless a reader is a specialist, it will have no meaning.

"If I have problems with something, I check with someone who knows. I'm not an engineer or a biologist," he commented. Anderson is a trained dietician who has written five health articles over a period of six months for The Southern Illinoisian.

Anderson said she takes technical knowledge and transforms it into "an interesting article which uses personal issues. If it is an article about diabetes, the newspaper wants me to use personal experience. They want the reader to get involved."

Some people have "no business writing nutrition articles. They don't have the background. They aren't qualified," Anderson remarked, citing several diet books as examples.

She said many diet books are personal opinion and not based on scientific fact.

Awards to winning writers and graphic artists in the 1982-83 technical communication competition were also presented at the Thursday meeting.

Awards were presented in four categories: distinguished technical communication, excellence, merit, and achievement.

The winners were Kaye Howell and Cathy Hall, logo category; Howard N. Rosen and Samuel W. Johnson Jr., periodical article category; Gene Charleton, writing and editing division; Mary Beth Christ, graphics; Aqua-Terre Management Group, Inc., training manual category; Edward T. Crowley, newsletter category; and Linda D. Nicholson and Richard F. Bortz, training manual.

Works by Rosen, Charleton, and Christ received both Best of Show and Award of Excellence citations. Their works now qualify for international competition.

Billingsley said these works will be entered in competition at an STC International Convention to be held this spring in St. Louis.

County discusses reconstruction plans

By Terry Lewecke
Staff Writer

The block scorched by fire in Murphysboro last Saturday is now the subject of another debate: What will be built in place of the charred remains?

Located on Walnut Street, the block is a major part of the business district. Jackson County Circuit Court Judge Richard E. Richmar, has already submitted a letter to the Jackson County Board recommending that the board purchase the site in order to construct a new jail with one or more courtrooms, or to use it for other county needs.

"It's a little early to talk about a jail," said Mae Nelson, Jackson County finance committee chairwomen. The cindered block is privately owned, and none of the owners have made a decision on what to do, according to Board Chairman Eugene Chambers. "We're looking at many avenues," Chambers said. "There's pros and cons whether there should be a jail there."

Chambers and Nelson did approach Rep. Paul Simon, D-22nd District, to inquire about obtaining federal help to fund the purchase for the county.

Men swimmers topple Iowa

JoAnn Marciszewski
Sports Editor

The men's swimming and diving team gave Coach Bob Steele a Bon Voyage party in the form of an 82-31 victory over Iowa Saturday at the Rec Center pool.

"This is one of the most solid dual meets in a long time," said Steele, who left Sunday with a 2-member United States team for competition in France and Holland. "We have more quality down the line than ever."

The Salukis won 12 of the 13 events with a line-up varied from the one usually entered.

"We experimented with some, yet the ones who needed to race in their events got their opportunities," Steele said. "Some of the changes were made initially, just so those working in the same events could get out of ruts."

Even after three weeks of heavy practice, and then swimming in events they don't usually concentrate on, the Salukis still turned in some great times and were fired-up the entire meet, according to the coach.

"They were complaining training too hard and I thought times might be a little flat," he said. "But we had about 18 guys get lifetime or season bests. It didn't matter where they were in, they just wanted to race. They got a chance to swim fast and they made the most of it."

Grillhammar continued to make setting records a regular part of Saluki meets. Grillhammar took first in the 1000 freestyle in 9:12.15, taking a second of the mark he set earlier in the season. He also won the 500 free, clocking in at 4:29.69.

"Anderz knows how to keep coaches happy," Steele said. "He breaks records one-tenth at a time and keeps everyone satisfied."

Also keeping everyone satisfied is Gary Brinkman, who joined the team this month. Brinkman closely followed Grillhammar in the two distance races, completing the 1,000 in 9:18.9 and the 500 in 4:29.72. The two by far outclassed their competitors, as the third-place finisher in the 1,000, Alan Hays of Iowa, came in at 9:41.65, and Hawkeye James Lorys took third in the 500 in 4:37.16.

Keith Armstrong was a double winner for the Salukis, with 20.98 and 45.3 in the 50 and 100 freestyle races. Also grabbing firsts were Pablo Restrepo in the 200 freestyle, 1:42.35; Chris Shaw in the 200 individual medley, 1:53.83; Jim Griffith in the 200 butterfly, 1:54.89; Giovanni Frigo in the 200 backstroke, 1:53.51; Larry Woolley in the 200 breaststroke, 2:09.01.

The 400 medley relay team of Conrado Porta, Restrepo, Shaw and Barry Hahn also was first, as was Johnny Consenui on the one-meter board. Nigel Stanton, another freshman who just joined the team, took the top spot on the three-meter.

"Iowa's a young team, and although their freshmen are national junior champions and finalists, it was pretty much an experience factor, though our freshmen held their own," Steele said.

Netters blanked by Northwestern

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

Men's tennis coach Dick LeFevre doesn't like to lose. But when he's outmanned, out-muscled and outplayed by a much better team, it's something he can live with. Besides, there's always next time.

"We just weren't ready," LeFevre said after Northwestern blanked the Salukis 9-0 at the Egyptian Sports Center Saturday. It was the season opener for both teams.

"We aren't in as good a shape as Northwestern and it showed. But I'll give us a month. We should show a lot of improvement by then."

The Wildcats showed little mercy, shutting out SIU-C for the second straight year. The Big Ten team, which defeated both Michigan and Minnesota, the top two teams in the conference, won the first three doubles and swept the singles matches.

It was an old-fashioned, one-sided whipping of the worst kind, but it was one LeFevre chalks up as experience for his young netters.

"I don't feel as bad losing to such a good team as Northwestern because we played well," he said.

"I'll rather play well and lose to a good team than to play bad and lose to a bad one."

Here's the bad news: SIU-C's No.1 singles player Per Wadmark lost to Danny Weiss 6-4,7-4; No.2 John Greif fell to Jon Kamisar, 6-1,6-1; No.3 David Filer was dumped by Mike Krebs, 6-0,6-4; No.4 Gabriel Coch lost a heartbreaker to Marco Wen, 6-3,6-7,6-4; No.5 Rollie Oliquino lost to Marc Leizman 6-2, 7-5, and No.6 Paul Rasch was defeated by Dave Kabiller, 6-3,6-4.

In doubles, the usually potent Greif-Filer team lost to Kamisar and Krebs, 6-4,6-3.

Wadmark and Oliquino, two freshmen, fell to Weiss and Leizman 6-2,6-1 and a Rasch-Scott Kruger team were defeated by Wen and Dan Christian, 6-1,7-6.

Here's the good news. The Salukis lost the opener last year to Vanderbilt as well as two of their first three. But they bounced back with four consecutive victories and carried a 5-2 record on their spring trip. So losing the first one isn't unfamiliar to SIU-C.

That's good news to LeFevre, who hopes his Salukis, by tournament time, will peak. It's even better news because he'll get another crack at the Wildcats.

"We've got them in the Purdue Invitational," he said. "We'll see if we can beat them then."

The Salukis, 0-1, will try for their first win Sunday against Murray State at the Egyptian Sports Center. Starting time is 2 p.m.

Men gymnasts win three

The Salukis swept their three meets to increase their dual meet record to 4-0, but their defeat of Western Michigan Friday night was not something they'll brag about.

The team scored far below what it should have during its 261.30 to 255.90 win, according to Coach Bill Meade. Saturday afternoon, SIU-C showed more of its potential when it reached 270.85. In the double dual, Wisconsin scored 259.50 and Michigan State, 255.15.

Brian Babcock took first in the all-around with 57.35, and won individual titles in the floor exercise, 9.55; pommel horse, 9.66; parallel bars, 9.4; and high bar, 9.75.

2-1-2 zone to man-to-man defenses. And that was that for the SIU-C forwards, who missed a bunch of shots early and never got back into their earlier rhythm.

Van Winkle said the switch in defenses meant nothing. Indiana State coach Dave Schellhase disagreed. He said he changed up to wake up his team.

"He was really upset," said forward Williams, who led the Sycamores with 26 points. "We were daydreaming, and not motivated enough. We switched defenses and confused them."

"We were going to go out and get them," said Schellhase, while giving high marks on the evening to his often maligned defenders.

"We played good aggressive defense," he said. "That got our running game going."

The Sycamores scored 65 points, a Hulman Center record, in their second half rampage. They had three-on-two breaks, two-on-one breaks, and once, a three-on-one waltz that got capped by a Williams slam.

All told, the Sycamores had 16 layups, tip-ins or slam dunks in the last 20 minutes.

"It wasn't very good," said Van Winkle about his defense. "Defensively, too many fouls and too many second shots."

SIU-C committed 29 fouls, and Goins and Fayne fouled out in the closing minutes. Indiana State was in the bonus less than six minutes into the game, but missed several one-and-ones to keep the game fairly close. SIU-C trailed 21-12 early but rallied behind its inside game.

The Sycamores' second half pullaway was accomplished in full by their five starters. The Indiana State bench combined for three points, two rebounds, five fouls, and two turnovers. All five starters played more than 30 minutes.

After Williams' 26, accomplished on 11 of 15 shooting, there were 25 points from guard Rick Fields, 19 from center Mark Golden and 17 from guard Al Cole.

Other than Fayne and Nance, Walker was the only Saluki in double figures. He had 13 points. Nance added 13 rebounds as the Salukis out-rebounded the smaller Sycamores 48-43. And they committed only 12 turnovers.

Ken Byrd continued to mystify Van Winkle. He played 19 minutes, missed seven of nine shots, and had just six points. Once the Salukis' offensive leader, the senior swingman has suffered through a frustrating month of basketball.

Byrd's slump has been contagious, and the Salukis have lost five of their last six games. In the five losses Byrd had 12 points or less. He had 26 in the Bradley win.

The Indiana State game may have been SIU-C's last chance to pull out of a nosedive. In the next week they entertain first place Illinois State, second place Wichita State, and then travel to Tulsa.

team from a great one."

The relay unit of Mark Hill, Parry Duncan, Tony Adams and Javell Heggs finished in 3:20.17 behind Purdue's 3:19.75.

"It won't happen again," said Duncan, who won the 60-yard hurdles in 7.73 and ran the 300-yard dash. Duncan admitted he ran a "bad leg," but added, "I'm not making any excuses."

Sophomore Mike Franks, who normally runs the anchor leg of the relay, won the 300-yard dash in 31.6 and Adams captured the 400-yard dash in 48.92. Former football player David Featherston put the shot 51.11 for his first win of the season.

"All in all," said Hartzog, "I think we've got ourselves a good track team."

It's Miami, Washington in Super Bowl

By Bruce Lowitt
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Linebacker A.J. Duhe intercepted three passes and sprinted 35 yards for a fourth-period touchdown that propelled the Miami Dolphins past the New York Jets 14-0 Sunday and into Super Bowl XVII against the Washington Redskins.

Woody Bennett, a fullback cut by the Jets two years ago, plowed up the middle of the rain-soaked Orange Bowl for the game's first touchdown — and the only one Miami needed to win the American Conference championship. It came at 2:08 of the third quarter, seven plays after a Richard Todd pass ricocheted off the hands of Jets' fullback Mike Augustyniak's and into Duhe's at the New York 48-yard line.

Then Duhe, a six-year veteran and an All-Pro, took matters into his own hands for the second touchdown. On a third-and-7 at the Jets' 48, he deflected a Todd screen pass, juggled it for an instant, then ran untouched into the end zone for the score that effectively knocked the Jets out of contention.

With Miami's offense sputtering all afternoon in a steady downpour that turned the turf to sludge, the Dolphins' defense took control and swarmed all over Todd.

He was sacked four times and completed only 15 of 37 passes for 103 yards, while Freeman McNeil, the NFL's rushing champion, gained only 46 yards on 17 carries.

TEN from Page 20

SIU-C will attempt to hand Scott the longest winning streak of her career when it goes after its 11th straight against Indiana State in Terre Haute Tuesday night. Following the trek to Sycamore country, the Salukis return home Thursday for their biggest home game of the season against Drake. The Iowans, favored to win the GCAC, will journey to Carbondale to put their national ranking on the line in what could prove to be a tune-up for the conference title match in March.

Despite the streak, Scott, who prefers taking the underdog approach into games, insists that her squad does not deserve the top twenty ranking which it appears on the verge of obtaining.

"We blew that chance when we lost to Western Kentucky and Illinois," Scott said of the Salukis last two losses, both incurred over six weeks ago.

A win over Drake, which defeated the Shockers 87-76 a week ago, would undoubtedly force the pollsters to take notice, however. After running their season mark to 11-3, notice is exactly what the Saluki cagers have been serving their opponents.

Second half plunge puts SIU-C in cellar

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

The first half was something special. The Salukis worked the ball inside to their forwards, slowed a fearsome Indiana State fast break, and kept their poise despite deficits as large as nine points. They battled back, and with four seconds left, Johnny Payne hit a three-point shot to put them on top 41-38.

And then there was the second half.

The SIU-C offense scored just 10 points in the first 10 minutes to blow that carefully constructed lead, and its defense let a heretofore orderly game turn into a shambling retreat.

Halfway through the half the Sycamores assumed a commanding 68-53 lead. Then they cruised home, their fast breaks highlighted by three slam dunks by freshman forward John Williams. His final one, with three seconds left, wrapped up a 103-89 triumph at Indiana State Saturday night.

SIU-C is now 5-9, while Indiana State improved to 6-8. In Missouri Valley Conference standings, SIU-C fell into the basement with a 1-4 record. Indiana State is 2-3, so both teams trail league-leading Illinois State by a wide margin.

To Saluki coach Allen Van Winkle, the difference in this game was that same problem, shooting, that has plagued SIU-C. After working the ball inside in the first half and shooting 51.4 percent, the Salukis lost something, and shot just 38 percent in the second half. Indiana State, meanwhile, shot a blistering 60 percent during their second half romp, and finished with 55.2 percent shooting.

Van Winkle could shed no light on the second half slippage.

"We had good inside play in the first half," he said. "We didn't get that in the second half. You have to have that because you haven't been shooting well."

A non-existent inside attack had doomed SIU-C in its most recent setback, but this time Van Winkle stressed getting the ball into the lane.

The team ran the same offense for most of the game, with three outside players feeding the ball in the lane to the forwards. In the first half it worked.

Dennis Goins, operating at the top of the key, repeatedly got the ball to Charles Nance, Pie Walker and Karl Morris. In the first half that trio made 11 of 16 shots. Nance had 12 of his 20 points early in the game and Goins, who had a starting assignment, built the bulk of his nine assists during the first half.

Johnny Payne also had 20 points for SIU-C. He had repeatedly nailed three-pointers in his last big game, a 23-point outburst against New Mexico State, but this time Payne weighed in with a quiet 20, as the Salukis kept looking inside.

SIU-C came out in the second half with the same offensive strategy, but found Indiana State had mixed up its defense. The Sycamores switched from a Very, very poor.

Those were the words women's gymnastics coach Herb Vogel thought most appropriate to describe his team's performance at Missouri Friday when it placed third in a field of four.

Sunday brought different adjectives to the coach's mind, however, as his team dumped Southeast Missouri and fell just short of a powerful Ohio State club.

The Salukis came into Sunday's meet with a 3-3 record after a disappointing meet at Mizzou. The host Tigers placed first with 175.35 points, followed by Iowa State with 166. SIU-C's 164.74 points were good for a lone win over Mankato State, who finished with 150.10.

The Salukis re-wrote the story Sunday when they returned home to face some of their toughest competition of the year. They turned in a team score of 169.3, just short of Vogel's 170-point goal. SEMO went into the meet ranked first nationally in NCAA Division II with a 16-4 record, but could manage to tally only 167.05 points Sunday to place last in the meet.

Ohio State brought a 3-0 record to Carbondale and kept its slate clean by finishing ahead of both SIU-C and SEMO, with 174 points.

Saluki sensation Pam Turner won the all-around competition with a 35.96 mark. Freshman Jackie Ahr is proving herself to be the second half of SIU-C's one-two punch in all-around and took second place honors on the day with 35.8 points.

"Pam didn't have a good meet at Columbia," Vogel said. "She looked like she had never seen uneven bars in her life, mostly because she hasn't worked out on them in six weeks and had no confidence in herself. She turned in a strong performance today."

"My biggest concern now is getting Pam and Jackie's confidence in beam to drain down to the others," he went on. "I'm also concerned about a few individuals who I don't feel are progressing as they should."

"Maggie Nidiffer is one in particular," Vogel said. "I'd like to see her compete at the level she trains. She works hard in practice, and could give us that fourth strong score we need in all-around."

Vogel said freshman Lori Steele possibly has the potential to be the highest scorer on the team in three events. "I just don't think she's working hard enough in practice," he said. "She spends the time, but not productively."

"This isn't a cut in any of them," Vogel said. "I think when girls have that ability and the coach can't bring it out of them, it's the coach's fault. That's why this week in practice I'm going to have to take some of that responsibility and see what happens."

Purdue no contest for trackmen

Kevin Baker said he was going to do it. And by golly he did.

"I knew it was coming. I felt great," he said Saturday after he led the men's track team to an indoor season-opening win over Purdue and Murray State in West Lafayette, Ind.

"I shortened my run down the runway and it turned things around for me. I don't get as tired before the jump. Heck, I'm capable of going in the 25's easy."

All he needed was 24-11 to win the long jump as the Salukis compiled 88 points, far ahead of second place Purdue's 55 and Murray State's 23.

"I just made up my mind that this is going to be the year," Baker said. "I'm a year older, much stronger and more mature. Plus, as jumping captain, I've got to set an example for the other guys."

And he did. Baker's winning jump qualified him for the NCAA Indoor Championships March 11-12 in Pontiac, Mich.

His winning leap of 48-11 in the triple jump was his best ever. Early success has a way of spoiling a runner, but Baker said it won't happen to him.

"I can't be satisfied with 24," he said, noting the new NCAA rule that the first 20 competitors will be entered in the championships, despite a qualifying mark.

"I know I can go further than that. I'm not even in shape yet."

Coach Lew Hartzog agreed. "I think we're in a worse position than last year," he said about the Salukis.

"We're about eight to 10 days behind right now. But we're lucky we made it without any injuries. We ran sprints, quarters and the 600's without much sharpness, but we ran it with intensity. That did it."

Don't be so modest, Lew. The Salukis destroyed the Boiler-makers, capturing nine first place events.

Elliott.

Keane may have assured himself competition in the fast heat at the Illinois Intercollegiate in two weeks. He won the two-mile run in 9:01.3. Ross, a senior from South Barrington, captured the 1,000-yard run in 2:16.70.

Elliott didn't win the 880-yard dash, but his 1:52 second place finish was mighty impressive.

"He's going to make a super runner," said Hartzog. "He's doing pretty good for so early in the year."

Hartzog also had displeasure with a few Salukis, and it didn't take long to point a finger at the mile relay team. The sixth fastest indoor team in the nation last year, the Salukis committed a big no-no, according to Hartzog.

"I thought it was horrible," he said. "Each of them sat back and wanted the other runner to do the work. They all were tired, so they figured if they cruise along, the next guy would pick up the pace. It's the kind of thing that separates a good
