King peace award presented to Tutu

By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer
and United Press International

ATLANTA — Bishop Desmond Tutu accepted the Martin Luther King Jr. Non-violent Peace Drive Award here Monday, saying that he received it on behalf of his people — who he said have used non-violent means in struggling against injustice and oppression.

Presenting the award to Tutu, Coretta Scott King, widow of the slain civil rights leader, said Tutu "is worthy of honor not only because of his work in the struggle to end racial tyranny, but also because of the non-violent means by which he works."

Tutu, the Anglican bishop of the Republic of South Africa, is one of that country's most prominent leaders in the struggle to end apartheid there. In 1984, he received the Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts to end the ruling minority's policy of racial discrimination.

The ecumenical service honoring Bishop Tutu was held in the historic Ebenezer Baptist Church, where King began his ministry, on the first national holiday commemorating King's birthday.

Senator Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said that the holiday allows King to take his place as the founding father of the second American Revolution — the civil rights movement.

"The rare genius of Dr. King allowed America to confront the evil of apartheid in our own country," Kennedy said. "How we miss him today in our continuing effort to advance his cause in our own land and in the urgent struggle to end apartheid in South Africa.

"Bishop Tutu is the Martin Luther King Jr. of Africa," Kennedy said.

The two-and-a-half-hour service included numerous speakers who not only praised the late King, but also paid tribute to Tutu.

Martin Luther King "commands us with his life but also with his death to sit down at the table of brotherhood," said Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young. "Not only with our American family, but with this world of ours — for injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere."

Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kansas, said that being the Senate manager of the legislation that granted the King holiday was one of the proudest moments of his professional life.

"Dr. King freed us from the prison of our own prejudices," Dole said. "We honor Dr. King because he made America remember her promise."

In his acceptance speech, Tutu said of King, "I tremble in the shadow of such a great person."

The ceremonies included special recognition of Rosa Parks, the woman whose refusal to sit at the back of a bus any longer gave birth to King's civil rights movement in Montgomery, Ala.

Joseph Lowery, now head of King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference, told the crowd packed into Ebenezer Baptist that "Martin cannot be confined to

King's dream saluted by march, tree planting

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

In his 39 years of life, Martin Luther King Jr. was tossed in jail nearly 20 times, cursed, stoned, spat upon and stabbed. He also captivated America, stirred the spirit of the nation and was awarded a Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts.

To re-emphasize his struggle for social justice, about 180 University students and faculty gathered Monday morning near the entrance of Mae Smith Tower to honor the spirit of a modern American freedom fighter.

As established by the U.S. Congress, Monday was the first national observance of King's birthday.

"We can owe the continued following of people to his dream that blacks and whites can come together like this at this march," said Charles Levy, a member of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity and a coordinator of the march.

The march, sponsored by the Black Affairs Council and the Inter-Greek Council, began at U.S. Highway 51 overpass and ended at the steps of Shryock Auditorium.

Luke Tripp, coordinator of the Black American Studies program and a speaker at the march, explained in an earlier interview that King's success as a motivator of people came from his sharing their values.

"He articulated the sentiments of the people," Tripp said. "Those sentiments are still there."

Tripp added that maintaining a national perspective on social justice would be a lasting tribute to King.

"By reflecting on the struggles of the 1960s we have a point of reference for future development," he said.

Mark Glassford, IGC chairman, exclaimed his surprise at the march's turnout, considering the fact that no classes were scheduled for Monday.

"This is fantastic when you consider that we came up with the idea at an IGC meeting last Thursday," he explained. "But if we can do this well in only four days, think of what we can do a year from now."

Tyree Ligon, an instructor in physical education, praised the people who participated in the march.

"Anything for uniting humanity between races is positive and very necessary, especially here at SIU," he said. "You don't see it that much here."

Glassford said that despite rumors of student apathy on campus, "I don't see too much apathy here now."

Derold Wright, a member of BAC, denounced what he termed the continuing violence in the nation by black youths upon black youths.

"We must turn to each other and not from each other if the dream is to come true," he said. "His (King's) investment in this land has not been in vain."

Tripp directed his comments at the rally specifically toward the students, imploring that "we should recognize what

Fast-food in Student Center bids

By Darci Allen
Staff Writer

Two bidders for the Student Center food service contract, which expires in July, plan to install a fast-food outlet there if awarded the contract, according to John W. Corker, director of the Student Center.

The two bidders are Interstate United and the Marriott Corporation. Interstate — holder of the current contract — plans to build a McDonald's in the Oasis dining area, while Marriott says it will install a Roy Rogers, an Eastern restaurant chain similar to Arby's, said Corker.

Recently, a trend of installing fast food restaurants in student centers and student unions has developed, said Corker.

"Bidders now versus bidders five years ago realize they have to put capital investments into their contracts to make them more appealing," said Corker.

The Student Center operates under a management fee contract with Interstate, under which the center pays Interstate a set fee for its services and shares the profits. Corker would not comment on how those profits are shared under the current contract.

The SIU Board of Trustees has asked that the Student

Covert aid to Afghan rebels may continue, officials say

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration has concluded that Moscow is not serious about negotiating a timed withdrawal from Afghanistan, despite signals from the Soviets during the Geneva summit, U.S. officials said Monday. The administration's conclusion paves the way for a new request to Congress for continued covert U.S. military aid for the Afghan rebel groups, based in Pakistan.

Reagan in good health, will push budget cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, bolstered by the clean bill of health doctors gave him over the weekend, Monday prepared for a high profile role over the next few weeks to sell the dramatic budget cuts he is sending to Congress. Reagan planned to return to the White House from Camp David, where he spent a three-day weekend following his first extensive medical checkup after his colon cancer surgery last July.

Gramm-Rudman cuts unequal, official says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Charles Schumer, an opponent of the Gramm-Rudman law, said Monday the balanced budget plan will slash about 28 percent from many social programs but only 17 percent from defense in fiscal 1987 unless Congress intervenes. The first automatic cut under Gramm-Rudman — $11.7 billion for this fiscal year — is scheduled to take effect March 1. The second cut — projected it more than $50 billion for fiscal 1987 — goes into effect Oct. 1 unless Congress can agree on an alternative plan.

S. African dissidents may face death penalty

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Twenty-two black dissidents charged with trying to topple South Africa's white-minority government went on trial Monday and face the death penalty if convicted. Police in Pretoria, meanwhile, reported only isolated incidents of racial violence around the country. Officers fired shotguns and used tear gas to break up riots in some areas but there were no injuries, police said.

Britain, France to build tunnel under Channel

LILLE, France (UPI) — Britain and France agreed Monday to build a $3.3 billion rail tunnel beneath the English Channel that will connect England with the European mainland and fulfill a 200-year-old dream. French President Francois Mitterrand and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher made the historic agreement at Lille city hall in northern France in a festive ceremony marked by flag-waving schoolchildren and skirling bagpipes.

Vietnam, Laos reject investigation for MIAs

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Vietnam and Laos have rejected appeals for an international investigation into reports American MIAs are still alive in Indochina, adding "fuel to the fire" that such sightings are true, U.S. Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said Monday. A four-man U.S. delegation held talks concerning American MIAs over the weekend in Vietnam and Laos

Most recent lockdown ends at Menard, spokesman says

CHESTER (UPI) — A lockdown at the Menard Correctional Center ended during the weekend, a prison spokesman said Monday. The lockdown at the 2,500-inmate maximum-security prison began Jan. 8 after some minor disturbances and because intelligence information indicated that gang activity was likely to escalate, Corrections Department officials said.

Quinn says divestment a plank in his platform

CHICAGO (UPI) — State treasurer hopeful Patrick Quinn says he would withdraw state funds from any financial institutions that make loans to South African corporations or finance South African projects if he is elected. "It's bad business to invest in racism," Quinn said Monday, referring to South Africa's official government policy of apartheid, or racial separation. Quinn, who serves on the Cook County tax appeals board, faces incumbent James H. Donnewald and former Treasurer Jerome Cosentino in the March 18 Democratic primary.

Seven suspended following polygraph refusals

By Jim McBride
Staff Writer

Seven employees of Tuck Industries of Carbondale have been suspended indefinitely without pay from their jobs after refusing to submit to a polygraph test ordered by a company official, said one of the suspended workers.

The suspended employee, Linda Elders, said Laborers Union Local 994 had filed an unfair labor practice complaint with the National Labor Relations Board and a grievance with the company.

According to a copy of a statement Elders said was on file with the NLRB, plant manager Matt Maier ordered 18 employees to submit to the test on Dec. 27 or be fired. The tests were ordered in connection with the alleged theft of 20 cases of tape from the plant, valued at $4,900, the statement said.

Maier said the employees were given a week's notice that the tests were to be administered. He refused to make further comment.

Seven of the 18 employees refused to take the test and were suspended indefinitely from their jobs, Elders said.

Elders said Maier told the 18 employees that they could establish their innocence regarding the theft after test results indicated that they had not lied in response to questions asked by a private detective, who administered the tests. Elders also said the employees were given no written notice that the tests were going to be administered.

Elders, who had been employed at the plant for seven years, said she refused to submit to the test because she is currently under treatment for a blood disease and takes medication which could interfere with the accuracy of the test results.

"I wanted legal and medical advice first," she said.

A letter sent to Maier by Elders' physician said it was "conceivable" that the drugs prescribed to her might invalidate the results of a polygraph test.

John Mell, a company spokesman at the firm's Rochelle, N.Y., headquarters, said requiring employees to undergo polygraph testing isn't normal company procedure, but defended Maier's decision requiring the employees to take the test.

"It's not any more usual than it is for people to steal things," he said. "I can assure you that anything our company does is within the law."

Ron Mitchell, president of Laborer's Union Local 994, which represents workers at the plant, was unavailable for comment.

Carl Moore, business manager for the Southern Illinois Labor Council, said that the council plans to go into arbitration with the company to have the workers reinstated at their jobs with back pay. He called the tests "an invasion of privacy."

"They shouldn't have been required to submit to the lie detector test," he said.

Opposing sides claim control of South Yemen

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (UPI) — Rebels and government supporters both claimed control of South Yemen Monday, but Westerners evacuated from the strategic pro-Soviet Arab state reported new fighting in the nation's capital.

There were conflicting reports on the whereabouts of President Ali Nasser Mohammed.

Various news reports Sunday said Mohammed fled South Yemen for either Ethiopia, North Yemen or the Soviet Union. But the Gulf News Agency Monday quoted reliable sources as saying Mohammed returned to Aden, South Yemen from Ethiopia on Monday and "is still in control" of most of South Yemen, including Aden.

Amid the conflicting reports, Westerners reaching the east African nation of Djibouti after fleeing South Yemen said Yemeni tribesmen were "streaming down from the hills" to join the fighting, the British Broadcasting Corp. reported. Tribal rivalries have beset the nation since it won independence from Britain in 1967.

The semi-official newspaper, Al Ittihad, in Abu Dhabi said Palestine Liberal Organization chief Yasser Arafat, was in the North Yemeni capital of Sanna and had sent 400 "fighters" into South Yemen aboard 30 military vehicles flying white flags to serve as a "peacekeeping force."

Queen Elizabeth II's yacht, the Britannia, was off the shores of Aden waiting to ferry hundreds of stranded foreigners to ships that were to take them to Djibouti, 150 miles away across the Gulf of Aden.

British officials said between 600 and 1,000 foreigners remained in Aden.

A British newspaper, the Sunday Times, said a squadron of Britain's Strategic Air Services, a crack anti-terrorist and guerrilla warfare unit, was flown to Djibouti for possible use in rescuing 40 Britons who were trapped near Aden.

Coup fells Lesotho government

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The military ousted the anti-South African government of Lesotho in a bloodless coup Monday and South Africa allowed fuel and food into the tiny enclave kingdom for the first time in three weeks.

In a 6 a.m. broadcast, Radio Lesotho said the state's 1,500-

The reports could not be independently confirmed. Communications with South Yemen have been cut since Jan. 13, when rebels attempted to oust Mohammed.

Between 9,000 and 10,000 people have been reported killed or wounded in the fighting that broke out after Mohammed tried to quash the attempted coup, staged by hardline Marxists led by former President Abdul-Fattah Ismail.

The rebels were apparently angered by Mohammed's efforts to attract foreign aid from pro-Western Arab states such as Saudi Arabia and Oman. South Yemen, the Arab world's only Marxist state, is a close ally of the Soviet Union.

man paramilitary force led by Gen. Justin Lekhanya had toppled Prime Minister Leabua Jonathan.

"This step has been taken to install peace and national reconciliation, which has been a problem of politicians in Lesotho," said the radio, adding King Moshoeshoe II, the constitutional monarch, will have a role in the government.

Jonathan, who has ruled the country since it won independence in 1966, was reportedly at his mountain retreat outside the capital city of Maseru. It was not clear whether he was under house arrest.

City motor fuel tax short-term answer

CARBONDALE'S PROPOSED MOTOR FUEL tax is a good idea for offsetting the city's projected $600,000 deficit for fiscal year 1987. But the ordinance should be considered only as a temporary measure and should be repealed as soon as the debt has been paid.

In the long run, city residents will probably consider it a routine practice to find cheaper gas down the road. Gas stations could spring into being just outside the city limits, providing consumers with cheaper fuel, circumventing the city's tax.

The City Council cited Springfield as one community that has passed a successful motor fuel tax, which was meant to pay the cost of maintaining the city's streets. Yet, the tax was passed only over severe opposition from area residents. And many gas stations were constructed just outside the city limits following institution of the tax.

SPRINGFIELD DOES HAVE A larger population base than Carbondale, with its current population just over 100,000, and is the only major population center in Sangamon County. There was room for people to open alternative gasoline sources outside the city without severely damaging city businesses. That probably won't be the case in Carbondale, which is but one of three cities in this area with a population over 10,000.

In the short run, though, the proposed tax is an idea that deserves a chance. It is unlikely that city residents, for the time being, will bother to drive to Marion or Murphysboro to buy gasoline. As a result, local businesses probably won't be affected in the short run. But it is almost a certainty that over the long run, there would be an effort by cost-conscious consumers to locate cheaper fuel if the tax put local dealers at a competitive disadvantage.

MANY CARBONDALE RESIDENTS ARE median income at best, and a good portion of the local population is made up of college students who are generally less than affluent. The penny pinchers would probably take their business elsewhere over the long run.

And if local station operators lost those customers, they probably would be forced to close or move outside the city limits in order to compete with cheaper gasoline prices in other area communities. As a result, the city would lose substantial tax revenues that could exceed its present $600,000 deficit.

Carbondale attorney Gregory Veach, representing Veach Oil Co., claims that reduced revenues from a lower volume of gas sales could result in a reduction of funding for social programs by the city, further adding to hardships experienced by the city's poor. And it seems standard practice for government to cut social programs first when facing a financial crisis.

For that reason and because the tax would likely be counterproductive in the long run, the proposed tax should not be locked into place.

Should Bible be censored?

Recently there has been considerable attention directed toward certain "pornographic" magazines dispensed by the University Bookstore, along with many vociferous suggestions regarding discontinuing their sale.

The workload imposed by my major is heavy and it gives me a warm feeling to know that there are people who would help alleviate this problem by doing my thinking for me.

The thought occurs to me that if these people are truly sincere in their desire to remove pornography, they will immediately institute proceedings to remove another book that is widely distributed on campus, and which contains many passages which by these people's own definition can only be described as pornographic.

I am referring, of course, to the Bible.

It fills me with shame; nay with righteous indignation, to know that as I walk through the Student Center that on the desks occupied by certain religious groups lay copies of that text containing vivid descriptions, so vivid that pictures are unnecessary, of promiscuity, adultery, violence toward women and children, deviant sexual practices, cuckoldry and polygamy, to name a few.

Adhere to consistency in the drive to rid our fair campus of pornography. — Thomas Cummings, senior, Electrical Engineering Technology

Exploitation in beholder's eye

I think we should ban cheerleading because it exploits women. We should ban television because TV shows and commercials exploit women. We should ban women who exploit men and other women by using their God-given bodies to force us to buy magazines.

We should ban all wedding ceremonies that promote women's subservience to man. We should ban the Pope and the Catholic religion because they exploit women. We should ban the Bible because it exploits women. Finally, we should ban God, because isn't He the greatest Exploiter of all?

Didn't He create man in His own image? Didn't He give His only Son to exploiters? Isn't He responsible for creating man and woman? Why didn't He give His only daughter?

If we are all born naked before God, why do we spend the rest of our lives trying to hide and pervert that nakedness?

If we ban everything that exploits men and women and children we should ultimately have to ban ourselves. Individuals are responsible and the human race has been an exploiter since day one when Eve gave the Apple to Adam.

It is the nature of the beast to exploit, and censorship will have more negative consequences than positive.

True exploitation occurs when participants are either unaware or unwilling subjects of exploitive acts. Freedom of expression and choice to participate in that expression are not exploitable commodities, but are fundamental liberties guaranteed in the Constitution of the United States.

If you don't like it, don't buy it. And don't dictate your moral trip to me! — Randolph Orland, senior, Geology

Smoke detectors are faulty

If the system of smoke detectors in Woody Hall is an indication of what is to come when smoke detectors are installed in all campus dormitories, there is no way that Carbondale can provide a sufficient number of fire engines to answer the alarms.

Every couple of weeks or so the fire engines are called to Woody Hall by the smoke detectors because of some minor condition that has set off the alarm. The buildings are vacated and two or three fire engines are tied up for the best part of an hour. If this condition is multiplied by the number of dormitories on campus, we may need as many as 30 or 40 fire engines to answer the alarms at a given time. We may have no fire engines left to answer the call when a real fire breaks out.

Plan ahead, mayor, city council and university officials. Don't wait until a calamity occurs before you come up with a solution.

One solution would be for a trained firefighter or two to answer the alarm with fire extinguishers and walkie-talkies in hand. They could report to the location of the alarm in minutes, and order the fire engines if needed. — Ed Kelsey, Office of Research Development and Administration.

USO needs election commission members

In the latter part of the spring semester an election will be held. This election is very important since it will determine who the members of the Undergraduate Student Organization will be for the coming year.

The people of USO are the representatives of the students. Members voice the student's concerns and protect their welfare before the university administration and both state and local governments.

Before the voting can take place though, an independent election commission must be established. The only qualification necessary for membership is SIU-C student status, either graduate or undergraduate. Prior experience in running campaigns or elections would be helpful. Commission members duties include enforcing election guidelines, distributing information to potential candidates, and recruiting people to help run the election. The position has benefits such as valuable administrative experience and possible academic credit.

Pick up an application at the USO office on the third floor of the Student Center. It must be returned to the USO office by Jan. 31. For more information call the USO office at 536-3381. — John D. Rutledge, chairman, USO Committee on Internal Affairs.

Vice President George Bush flew to Atlanta to join Mrs. King in laying a wreath at King's white marble tomb, which stands on a circular island in a reflecting pool outside the King Center.

Monday afternoon there was a parade here in King's honor, featuring nearly 300 units, half a dozen of them military bands whose inclusion aggravated some of his followers. The parade marshals were Mrs. Parks, baseball commissioner Peter Ueberroth and Japanese philanthropist Ryoichi Sasakawa.

It was 18 years ago that a mule-drawn wagon bore King's body to its grave through the streets of Atlanta.

Heavy security surrounded all the activities here. The entire block of Auburn Avenue surrounding the church and the King Center was cordoned off. A small ceremony at the capitol steps brought out at least six unmarked cars of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation.

"We have an obligation to protect against Klan activities," an agent said. "We just heard that some might ride by and we're here to see that nothing occurs."

It was the first federal holiday ever to honor a black man, and it was also observed by 33 states. Eleven others observed King's birthday on its actual date last Wednesday, and in some areas where no holiday was called black children made their own by staying home from school.

Throughout the nation there were marches, rallies, prayer meetings, vigils and gospel-singing jubilees. Television and radio stations broadcast the "I Have a Dream" speech King delivered to 250,000 people at the foot of the Lincoln Memorial in 1963.

In the Alabama capital, blacks and a few whites packed the Dexter Avenue King Memorial Church, King's first church, for an interfaith worship service. Then a crowd of 3,000 walked two blocks to the capitol building where the Selma-to-Montgomery march ended almost 21 years ago.

Neither Gov. George Wallace, one of King's chief opponents in the 1960s, nor any other state officers appeared at the functions.

In Memphis, ceremonies were held at the Lorraine Motel, where King was killed by a sniper's bullet on April 4, 1968.

James Earl Ray, serving 99 years for King's murder, spent the day like any other on death row at the Tennessee State Prison. Although not under the death sentence, Ray was moved to death row for security after a successful escape and a subsequent attempt on his life.

The switchboard operator said the prison warden and much of the staff were not in their offices. "It's a holiday," she explained.

State employees got the day off in Wisconsin, but Gov. Anthony Earl and his staff spent the morning picking corn and asked state workers to do the same.

In Plaquemine Parish in South Louisiana, once the domain of the arch-segregationist Leander Perez, no one at all showed up for classes at predominantly black Phoenix High School. Classes were scheduled but the student council asked the 480 students to stay home in King's honor.

"You can't discipline the whole school," said assistant principal James Jones.

A three-hour television special, broadcast live from Atlanta, Washington and New York, capped the holiday.

On the West Coast "Freedom Trains" were organized to carry people to ceremonies and observances in honor of King's birthday.

Tripp added that future historians and leaders in America should be more proud of the nation's youth, citing the young Rev. King as an example.

"They should look again at what you people have done in history as well as society," he said.

"But in many ways the black people are worse off now than 10 years ago," Tripp continued. "Unemployment is higher now than it ever was in the 1960s."

Tripp said that one way of correcting existing inequalities between the races could begin with placing more meaning with membership in student organizations.

Center consider using a guaranteed-percentage fee contract, through which a company would pay the Student Center a set percentage of the profits.

A management fee has been in use at STU for the past 20 years, said Corker. The Board of Trustees wants to find out whether the guaranteed percentage fee would lead to considerably higher profits, said Corker.

Corker declined to comment on the amount of the management fee paid by the University to Interstate, or on the specifics of the two bids under consideration.

What the management fee says is "if you're going to give me the responsibility, give me the authority," said Corker.

Cooperation urged to save farming industry

By William Walker
Staff Writer

Cooperation between agriculture, business and labor is essential if America is to save its farming industry and end unemployment, agriculture and labor leaders say.

Cryts said "Do you realize out of that 2.3 million farmers how many wore-out cars, trucks, combines, tractors, on and on and on that that represents? And if that American farmer has the opportunity to make a profit, we'll be replacing those and putting the people back to work in our cities."

Wayne Cryts

He said that if farmers were able to receive a fair price for their goods, they would in turn be able to put money back into the economy, which would mean more jobs in other industries.

"THEY TELL us that we have 2.3 million farmers left," Cryts said. Do you realize out of that 2.3 million farmers how many wore-out cars, trucks, combines, tractors, on and on and on that that represents? And if that American farmer has the opportunity to make a profit, we'll be replacing those and putting the people back to work in our cities."

But Cryts, who first came to national prominence in 1981 when he removed his grain from a bankrupt grain elevator and later was jailed for contempt of court, said that for change to occur people must be willing to stand up and fight for what they believe is right.

"IF THERE was ever a time that this nation needed its people to get off of their backs and then stand on their feet, that time is now.

"If we're all tied together and if we're not willing to work together, then we're going to lose what made this country great," Cryts said.

Les Keck, associate director of Illinois Council 31 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Union, agreed that participation and cooperation are essential to fight the policies of President Reagan, who he says "doesn't really give a damn" about farmers and the unemployed.

"RONALD REAGAN has demonstrated his beliefs in his actions," Keck said, citing the president's decision in 1981 to fire the striking air traffic controllers as proof of an anti-labor position.

"The farmer, the city worker are not two peas in different pods," Keck said, emphasizing the need for all working people to work together to change unfair policies.

DAVID GARNER, business representative of the District 111 Machinist's Union, also condemned the policies of the Reagan Administration, saying official unemployment figures are misleading because they show only those receiving unemployment compensation benefits.

He said that in 1975, three out of every four unemployed people were receiving unemployment compensation, but today three out of four are not receiving any benefits.

This is "the biggest indictment against the Reagan Administration of any issue," Garner said.

CRYTS, THE leader of the American Agriculture Movement and a candidate for Congress, told a group of about 100 people at a Herrin school that people must stop "looking at agriculture as a problem and start looking at agriculture as a solution to the economic problems that are facing our country."

Election committee sought by USO

By Brett Yates
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization is looking for students interested in serving on the election committee for the USO elections.

John D. Rutledge, temporary chairman of the USO Committee of Internal Affairs, said the CIA is looking for five to 10 applicants for the election committee. Committee members will be expected to advertise the election, prepare information for the candidates, prepare the ballots, recruit people to sit at voting booths and make sure the election guidelines are being enforced.

In the past years, he said, the USO chose an election commissioner and it was up to that person to choose a committee. However, this year the election committee will have the option of choosing its own commissioner to act as its spokesman.

If the election committee does not choose a commissioner, then the CIA will recommend one for USO Senate approval.

Rutledge said applicants for the election committee will be interviewed by the CIA, and then by the USO Senate for final approval. The USO president can veto appointments but the Senate can override that veto with a two-thirds majority.

The change was made, Rutledge said, to better ensure that the election would be carried out fairly. He said that while he believes complaints of "alleged wrongdoing" against the election commissioner last year were unfounded, the potential for abuse exists.

"The complaints do have some merit in that if we did get someone in there who was unscrupulous, it could be exploited," Rutledge said.

Those interested in applying for the election committee they can pick up applications from the USO office. Rutledge said applications should be in by Jan. 31, but late applications will be accepted.

To meet insurance crisis, officials seek law change

By Tom Atkins
Staff Writer

Illinois should change civil law procedure and increase regulation to help businesses and municipalities deal with the availability crisis in liability insurance, some local officials and businessmen say.

The representatives' comments were made at a public hearing Friday sponsored by the Illinois Department of Insurance, state Sen. Ralph Dunn and state Reps. Bruce Richmond of Murphysboro and Wayne Goforth of Tamaroa. The hearing was the seventh of nine designed to gather public input on the crisis for a select Senate committee.

Thomas Britton, executive assistant to the chancellor for SIU-C, testified that after insurance rates soared to about eight times what they have been for the last five years, the University decided to insure itself.

As explained before the hearing by an insurance manager for the University, Richard Davis, self insurance means that a special account operated by SIU-C is used in case the University is found liable for an incident. The University maintains complete control over the account, unlike an insurance agency, responsible for handling claims filed against the campuses, Davis said.

But not every group hit by the crisis has enough money to start a self-insurance account. Insurance premiums for Jackson County have increased from $56,000 in 1981 to $100,000 in 1983 to a projected cost of $250,000 for 1986, said Larry Lipe, insurance chairman for Jackson County. Many claims made against the county are not legitimate, Lipe said, but are only filed by those who think an insurance agency will pay them what it would cost to try the suit.

"These premium increases, of course, are paid for out of the taxpayers' pocket ultimately," Lipe said in a prepared statement.

Wilburn Lipe, father of Larry Lipe and Makanda Township supervisor, said the township's problems have gone further. "My problem is not high insurance premiums. We don't have any insurance."

Lipe said the township lost liability coverage in June for what the insurance companies said was "due to losses." The attorney for the township has recommended that Makanda's fire department not answer any calls until liability coverage is found, he said.

Not everyone at the hearing agreed on the cause of the problem or what should be done about it. Micheal Bost of Bost Truck Service in Murphysboro recommended state-controlled rate ceilings and a six-month notice for policy cancellations. He also suggested new laws making it more difficult for false claims to be filed.

Lipe suggested that insurance companies be required to justify rate increases.

Introducing Priazzo™ Verona Italian pie.
A classic recipe with meatballs.

We know them as meatballs. But, for centuries, Italians have known them as "polpettas."

Whatever you call them, they're the meaty main ingredient in our delicious, new Priazzo™ Italian pie: Verona.

First, the juicy polpettas (meatballs) are sliced into tender pieces. Then we fill the pie with a flavorful sauce, slices of polpettas, mozzarella and cheddar cheeses, green peppers and onions.

Next, we cover it with a second layer of thin, tasty dough. Then top it with still more cheese. And, finally, bake it to perfection.

Try Priazzo™ Verona Italian pie. It's available after 4 PM Monday thru Friday and all day Saturday and Sunday only at participating Pizza Hut® restaurants.

Pennzoil buys Bracy Building

By Tom Mangan
Staff Writer

A Marion warehouse that is the subject of a $1.14 million lawsuit against the University has been bought by Pennzoil Products Co., the company announced Friday in Marion.

The 66,000-square-foot Bracy Building, a former grocery warehouse that the University once leased for library storage, will replace Pennzoil's petroleum blending and distributing facility in Area Seven of Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge, said Orville R. Bevel Jr., central division manager of Pennzoil's industrial lubricants division.

Pennzoil has outgrown its Crab Orchard facility and had no room for expansion, Bevel said. "We like Southern Illinois," Bevel said of the company's decision to buy the Bracy Building from owner Virginia Cline rather than relocate outside the area.

Bevel said the building's proximity to Interstate 57 and the Crab Orchard and Egyptian Railroad tracks played a major role in the decision. A spur from the tracks, which run along the northern edge of the Bracy property, serves the building.

Despite the expansion, no increase in the 11-employee workforce from the Crab Orchard plant is expected, Bevel said. Pennzoil will begin its move to the building Feb. 8, and future plans call for construction, beginning Oct. 1, that will lead to expanded operations, he said.

The new facility will allow the company to increase its output of petroleum products from its current 1.75 million gallons per year to between seven and 12 million gallons per year, Bevel said, but automation of processes now done by hand will prevent a large increase in the work force.

Pennzoil has been producing petroleum for heavy industry, particularly mining, at Crab Orchard for 15 years. The Marion plant will be the central division headquarters for the company's industrial products division.

The University leased the building from Cline between September 1981 and September 1982 with an option to purchase the building. In April 1984, the University removed the building from consideration as a book storage facility to relieve crowded conditions at Morris Library. The University never used the building for book storage.

In June 1984, Cline sued SIUC for $1.14 million, claiming a purchase agreement had been made. The University says no agreement took place. The case is set for trial after March 1.

Harry Melvin, Cline's son and legal representative, declined comment as to whether the building's sale would affect the status of the lawsuit.

looking at student-athletes on an individual basis.

Charollette West, whose nomination to the NCAA council as an at-large member was formally approved at the convention, also felt the individual was not taken into account.

"Academic entrance requirements should be an institutional decision," West said. "I'm concerned because recent data tells us that many student-athletes who would have had outstanding potential to succeed once enrolled in collegiate program may not get that opportunity."

WEST WAS among the other SIU-C athletic administrators and coaches who felt the new guidelines do not take into account the individual, the racial biases of the standardized test scores and the high school programs from which prospective student-athletes reign.

Livengood and West both agreed that student-athletes who were "border-line" students academically would be a lot more likely to enroll at Division II or III schools.

"What you'll have is an elite group of Division I schools who get the really great student-athletes with the almost-great athletes going to Division II and III schools, who aren't required to meet the new academic requirements," Livengood said. "It has the potential to hurt the Division I-AA schools the most."

ON THE ISSUE of the drug-testing legislation, the SIU delegation agreed by consensus that the legislation was rushed through without enough thought or research.

Proposition 30 calls for the testing of all student-athletes competing in national championship events and college football bowl games. The NCAA, as well, will have the right to conduct random tests on the campuses of all member institutions.

Proposition 30 also banned 79 different chemical substances including steroids, diuretics, over-the-counter drugs, stimulants and street drugs such as cocaine and marijuana.

"THERE ARE a great many things we don't know about the proposition," West said. "You always feel better when you know the specifics."

West said the initial implementation of the drug-testing has already cost the NCAA about $300,000 and that these costs, when passed on to member institutions, could lead to the curtailment of money going into athletic programs.

"We certainly support the education of all students, not just student-athletes, about the dangers of using drugs," West said. "We'd just like to know a few more specifics."

JACK CODY, SIU's representative to the Missouri Valley Conference, said it was a starting place.

"The NCAA had to start somewhere," Cody said. "We'll have to move slowly as to make sure the rights of the individual student-athletes are not violated."

Cody said that all actions involving the drug-testing proposal will have to be examined very carefully in order to prevent possible litigation against the school or the NCAA. West and Livengood agreed that possible litigation against schools or the NCAA was a possibility.

LIVENGOOD, who was opposed to the proposition on the grounds that such drug-testing guidelines be left up to the individual institutions, agreed that caution was the key.

"It was just a no-win situation," Livengood said. "It was like voting against motherhood. You just couldn't vote against the proposition and come out looking good."

Saluki men swimmers dunk Cincinnati Bearcats, 65-47

By Sandra Todd
Associate Sports Editor

The Saluki men clearly dominated the Cincinnati Bearcats at the home pool Saturday afternoon, winning every event, save diving, for a 65-47 final score.

Coach Doug Ingram said that on paper as well as in the pool, the Salukis definitely were stronger, however they did not let that factor affect their intensity during competition.

"A lot of times in athletics, a team will perform down to the level of the other team. We were able to maintain a high level of swimming," Ingram said.

Performing up to that high level by swimming lifetime bests was freshman Tim Kelly, who went a 9:54 in the 1000-yard freestyle and a 4:42.0 in the 500 free.

"Last year he was a consolation finalist at the high-school state meet," Ingram said. "He had to train with our distance guys, who are world-class athletes, which is a real challenge. He rose up and responded to that challenge."

Other lifetime bests were executed by sophomore Phillip Omamo, swimming his fastest times ever in the 100-backstroke split on the 200-medley relay, and individually in the 200 back.

One extremely important performance came from diver Chad Lucero, who took second behind Bearcat Pat Evans, who qualified for the NCAA zone meet, a preliminary step to the NCAA championships in March, with 348 points in the 1-meter diving. Lucero scored a season high of 305.10, also qualifying him for the zone meet to be held at SIU in March.

Also scoring a season-high score on the 1-meter was teammate Scott Rowe, who took third.

On the 3-meter, Lucero missed zone qualification by eight points with 302.025 points and was followed by Saluki freshman Bob Cox, who was third with a career-high score.

"I was extremely pleased with all of the divers' performances," said diving coach Tom Wentland. "They were all very consistent, which is the quality of a good diver."

The Saluki men next will face Auburn, a team which was eighth at the national championships last season and beat SIU in dual competition by one point last year, on Fri., Jan 31. Following on Sat., Feb. 1, SIU will face Nebraska, the Big-Eight champions for five years straight. Both meets will be held at the Recreation Center pool.

Men's track squad gains new teammate

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Saluki men's track coach Bill Cornell announced that he gained an athlete and lost an athlete last week.

Cornell said Sunday that long-jump specialist Brian Bradley has transferred from Iowa State to SIU-C and freshman Phil Steinmetz has quit the team.

"I must be doing something right because after losing my quarter-miler in Steinmetz, I was able to gain a long jumper-sprinter in Bradley," Cornell said.

Cornell said when he receives a release form from the Iowa State athletic director and the Iowa State football coach, Bradley will immediately become eligible to run track for the Salukis. Bradley was on a football scholarship at Iowa State and Cornell said he'll probably go out for the SIU-C football team in the fall.

Bradley, a freshman from Cahokia, has personal bests of 24.6 in the long jump and 10.6 in the 100-meter dash.

While Cornell was happy to gain the services of Bradley, he was disappointed to lose Steinmetz.

Steinmetz, who prepped at Christopher High School, was expected to compete for the Salukis in the 100 and 200-meters and the 4 x 400 meter relay team.

"It was a shock to me after he walked into my office and told me he was going to quit school," Cornell said.

"Phil said he was fed up with school and he was fed up with it in high school. It probably would've been better for him to take some time off before going to college."

Steinmetz was the IHSA Class A 300-meter low hurdle state champion during his junior year at Christopher, but he was unable to defend his state title during his senior year because of an injury.

Steinmetz becomes the second Saluki athlete to quit the track team in six weeks. In early December, sophomore distance runner Richard McDonnell told Cornell he wasn't coming back to school because he was homesick.

Bears, Pats travel to last game of season

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The NFC champion Chicago Bears, one step from equaling the most NFL victories in one season, flew to Louisiana Monday for on-site preparations for Sunday's Super Bowl.

If the Bears, favored by 8.5 to 10.5 points, beat the AFC champion New England Patriots, would wind up with the same record as last year's Super Bowl champion San Francisco (17-1). Miami, which played two fewer regular-season games, was 17-0 after winning the 1973 Super Bowl.

"We've waited a long time for this chance," said running back Walter Payton, who has spent 11 seasons with the Bears but is making his first Super Bowl appearance. "We thought we'd get at least this far last year and the taste in our mouth when we came back from San Francisco (where the Bears lost the NFC title game 23-0) was not a pleasant one.

"That was the low point in my career," said Payton. "I got over it, but I don't want to go through that again."

QUOTE OF THE DAY:

"Everyone thinks they'll have to play us with blackjacks and guns and sledgehammers," said Bears' coach "Iron" Mike Ditka.

Tougher measures on academics by NCAA

By Steve Merritt
Sports Editor

When Jim Livengood, SIU-C's fledgling athletic director returned from the annual NCAA convention, he said the message given to the member institutions came out in a very definitive manner.

"I think the message was loud and clear," Livengood said.

The message in actions taken at the convention was that member institutions are going to be required to pay greater attention to recruiting student athletes able to make satisfactory academic progress towards graduation.

Formerly known as Proposition 48, Bylaw 5-1J, which was passed at the convention, requires that incoming student-athletes recruited by Division I schools must have a 2.0 grade point average (on a scale of 4.0) from high school as well as 11 credit hours in core curriculum courses such as math, science and English.

Proposition 48 was originally passed at the 1983 NCAA convention and was scheduled to go into effect this fall.

Under the new Bylaw, prospective student-athletes will be allowed to substitute higher college entrance scores (SAT, ACT) for below-par gpas until 1988. After 1988, scholarship athletes who do not live up to the minimal 2.0 gpa requirement will forego their freshman year of eligibility.

Livengood attended the convention along with President Albert Somit, Gateway representative Margaret Matthias, MVC representative Jack Cody and director of women's athletics Charolette West.

Livengood said he felt the amended Proposition 48 must not be the answer to the problem of insuring that student-athletes graduate.

"The original legislation concerning the academic regulations was passed in 1983, and it was pretty evident that most schools felt major changes in the established guidelines would not be a good idea," Livengood said.

Livengood voted against the amendment which established minimum scores of either 15 on the ACT or 700 on the SAT but the legislation passed by an overwhelming 206-94 margin.

LIVENGOOD said he voted against the legislation because standardized tests were not a good indicator of a student-athlete's classroom potential and because he personally feels that entrance requirements should be an institutional decision.

Saluki basketball coach Rich Herrin said that the news came as "no shock" and the move to stiffen up academic requirements was one he had long expected.

"Realistically, we all knew it was coming," Herrin said. "About the only thing we could do was prepare for it in advance."

"WE TRIED to adjust starting with this fall — we looked at our potential recruits a lot more carefully and although it'd be awful hard to assure 100 percent success, I don't foresee it as being much of a problem for us."

Herrin said he felt the test requirement was probably not the best idea because test scores could be misleading.

"Testing can be so biased," Herrin said. "I've had students who were real over-achievers in class. They worked very hard and they do well in the classroom but not so well on tests. You've got to consider the individual in cases like this."

HERRIN provided an analogy of the basketball player who was too slow or too short but made up for it by hustling 110 percent of the time.

"And those are the kind of guys you like to see," Herrin said.

Herrin said he felt it would "be a shame to close the door to some students who deserve the opportunity to respond to the collegiate atmosphere."

Saluki volleyball coach Debbie Hunter agreed that such academic standards would be "closing the door" for some athletes.

"I agree conceptually with the NCAA taking a stand on academics," Hunter said. "I'm glad they are concerned. But I'd hate to think we will take a very valuable opportunity away from many youngsters."

HUNTER, like Herrin, also stressed the importance of
