March for Life rally smaller than expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) President Bush told 35,000 protesters marking the 17th anniversary Monday of the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion that "human life in all forms must be respected." Bush, speaking by telephone restrictions on abortion expected March for Life rally, also used the occasion to press the "self-evident moral superiority" of adoption and expressed his gratitude "to the families that adopt babies, giving them care and love and a chance for wonderful lives."

"Human life in all its forms must be respected," Bush said. "The continuing strong presence of the March for Life reminds those of us in decision-making capacities in the White House and in the Congress and in the court, that millions of Americans care fundamentally about this issue and are committed to preserving the sanctity of life."

Bush at Bush spoke, however, some 75 GOP supporters of abortion rights marched on Republican National Committee offices carrying signs that read "This is an anti-Republican," and "We know in her heart Barbara Bush is Pro-Choice."

They urged the GOP to drop its adamant opposition to abortion from the party platform, and Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., one of the Senate's staunchest supporters of legal abortion, told the crowd, "I will do everything I can to assure that that plank is out of our platform forever, and to see that this issue is behind our party forever."

The annual March for Life in Washington is in the centerpieces of activities at the nation on both sides of the volatile issue marking the Jan. 22, 1973 Supreme Court ruling that made more abortions legal.

Abortion rights advocates call pro-life movement misleading

"Your dad supports abortion and he should be killed," was Sheila Simon's first experience with the abortion issue.

The daughter of U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, she faced critics early and emphasized "being vocal with manners."

The Shawnee National Organization of Women, the Feminist Action Coalition and the American Association of University Women assembled in the Free Forum Area for about 15 minutes Monday, the 17th anniversary of the U.S. Supreme Court Roe vs. Wade, to hear the decision that legalized abortion.

Cass Vandermeur of Shawnee NOW estimated the crowd at 100 people. She said the turnout was a move towards a "strong campus organization for choice."

The groups asked for signatures to complete two petitions that would move toward changing pro-life Illinois representatives' views and thank pro-choice politicians.

"Some people compared abortion to the Holocaust, but what they don't tell you is that when the Nazis came to power, they banned abortion and on the ground in which will perform abortions on the 18th week of pregnancy.

State laws had been overturned in 1985, set stringent guidelines that opponents said turned abortion clinics into mini-hospitals, adding unnecessary costs in the procedure and making doctors reluctant to open such facilities.

They had been scheduled for argument before the U.S. Supreme Court and abortion rights advocates wanted the court to use it to further strip women of the right to an abortion, which was granted in 1973.

U.S. District Judge John Nordberg set Feb. 23 as the date for a fairness hearing to discuss the settlement.

"After reviewing the comments and objections, Judge Nordberg will determine if any proposed settlement is fair, reasonable and adequate in accordance with the law," Hartigan said.

If Nordberg approves the settlement, Hartigan said the regulations then will be submitted to the Ambulatory Surgical Treatment Center Board for approval, before going to the Illinois Department of Public Health and the Legislature's Joint Commission on Administrative Rules.

If the judge does not approve the settlement, the case will be returned to the Supreme Court for consideration once again.

College presidents recently have been urged by the American Council on Education to exercise tighter control over drinking, hazing, sexual harassment and academic standards at fraternities and sororities.

Harriet Wilson-Barlow, vice president of student development at SIU-C, said many of the items on the council's list are not a problem on campus. "Any given day you can read of a member of a Greek organization dying from too much drink, being injured in a hazing incident or being raped," Barlow said. "We have not seen these things on our campus."

The ACE, which represents more than 1,500 institutions, noted Jan. 17 that "Greek organizations have received national attention for problems associated with alcohol abuse and unruly or violent behavior."

The statement, issued by the ACE board of directors, included recommendations that colleges:

• adopt sanctions against alcohol abuse and sexual harassment
• enforce rigorous anti-hazing policies
• defer fraternity rush until the second semester or later and support efforts to eliminate the pledge period entirely.

Heavy rains lift Crab Orchard water levels more than a foot

By Phil Pearson

Staff Writer

Recent rains have brought the level of Crab Orchard lake up more than a foot, an official at the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge said.

Jim Cameron, outdoor recreation planner, said the inches of rain that fell last week raised the level of the lake by 25 percent of the goal of four feet. He said hopes are to reach the four-foot increase by April so the lake can support recreational use as usual.

The lake was drawn down four feet last September to allow for repairs to the dam below the waterline.

Cameron said more rain would have a greater effect on lake level than the previous rain because the ground is pretty well saturated. Rain would run into the lake instead of soaking into the ground, he said.

"If we can get a couple more four inch rains, we'll be OK," Cameron said.

Chuck Suprenant, fisheries biologist at the refuge, said the effects of the drawdown could be seen.

The Salukis had to make a transformation in the second half to pull out a 75-58 victory over Chicago State in a game which was closer than the final score indicated at the Arena Monday night.

After man handling Tulsa 71-52 on Saturday, the Dawgs appeared to be sluggish. It took 25 minutes for them to warm up and outdistance the smaller, feisty Cougars.

In trailing 31-20 at the half, the Salukis held only a 24-20 rebounding margin. The Dawgs couldn’t shake their doldrums from the free throw line and managed to connect on 5 of 12 (.417 percent) in the first half.

The Cougars kept battling to stay in the game and trailed by five points with 6:40 left in the contest. That’s when the Salukis went on a 6-0 run to finally take command of the game.

Junior point guard Sterling Mahon delivered a perfect alley-oop pass which Freddie McSwain rammed home with a patented two-hand dunk. McSwain was fouled on the play and finished off the three-point play.

Junior forward Freddie McSwain added an inside basket on a feed from McSwain and McSwain capped the run by making one of two free-throws with 4:00 remaining.

The Dawgs shook out of their cold spell and knocked in eight of 10 charity tosses in the final 2:00.

The Salukis outscored the Cougars 21-14 in the second half and finished with 24 offensive rebounds on the evening.

Saluki head coach Rick Herrin acknowledged the difficulty of coming off of a big game against Tulsa and being mentally prepared.

“When you come off of such an outstanding ballgame,” Herrin said, “It’s tough to bounce back. They did a good job at tackling the press. They appeared to be quicker than we are because I don’t think we had the intensity that we would of liked to have. I don’t have a negative thing to say about our basketball team.”

In the locker room at the half, Herrin said he simply told his players they were capable of playing better basketball.

“I just talked to them and I said we’re better than that and we have to get after them,” Herrin said. “I just said it’s your team and you have to get ready to play.”

Chicago State head coach Tomomy South said the Salukis have the most physical starting five he’s seen.

“They have as physical a team as you’re gonna find,” South said. “They kicked us pretty good in the half. Through the course of the game they wear you down.”

“I think they played better tonight than they played at our place,” South said. “We’re not man enough on one inside.”

The Salukis were spearheaded by senior guard Freddie McSwain’s 21 points — 16 in the second half. Senior center Jerry Jones dominated the glass for the Salukis and finished 13 points and a game-high 14 rebounds.

Senior Forward James Parker scored a game-high 22 points. In winning their third straight game, the Dawgs improved to 15-4. Chicago State dropped 3-15. The deceiving part is that the Cougars’ record is ranked 15th most difficult out of 293 Division I schools.

Salukis heat up late

Fans should ‘just say no’ to hype

New Orleans (UPI) — Don’t worry, it’ll be over in less than a week. But this will not be easy. You can be sure of that.

“Some will be more than the consequence than you ever dared to dream on heaven and earth.”

You will read so many things of such trivial import the mind will turn as sand and the heart will cry for rest.

This is Super Bowl week, the most despising week on the sports calendar. It is a week devoted exclusively to the unrestricted forces of public relations and self-promotion. It is the week of the blockbuster and make-or-break salesman.

If the NFL held the slightest regard for public welfare, Dan’s winning in the Inferno would be wrapped around the Superdome and posted at every sport terminal:

“Abandon hope, all ye who enter here.”

For this is grim, forbidding territory, where every coach is deemed to have the key to unlock the unknown.

No other sport quite conducts itself with the regal arrogance of the Super Bowl. But this week, that arrogance will be spurned.

Rougeau taking charge since becoming starter

Angie Rougeau is as surprised as anyone with her rapid success on the Salukis women’s basketball team.

Rougeau, 5-10 freshman guard-forward from Memphis, TN., has worked her way into the starting lineup and become one of the team’s better all-around players.

“T am very surprised because I was nervous about not fitting in,” Rougeau said. “But Deanna Kibekis, Colleen Heimsead and Amy Rakers have helped my development. I have learned a lot by watching them.”

After beginning the season in a reserve role, Rougeau was moved into the starting lineup Jan. 6 at Bradley. She has started every game during the Salukis’ six-game winning streak and averaged 7.9 points, 5.2 rebounds and 5.7 assists during that span.

“Angie has made tremendous strides,” Saluki Coach Cindy Scott said. “She has lots of natural agent. She is playing as well as a freshman and she is just going to get better and better.”

Rougeau said she doesn’t approach the game any differently as a starter.

“There really isn’t a difference because you have to get fired up for the game if you’re starting or coming off the bench,” Rougeau said. “I just do my job and whatever the coach asks of me.”

There are not many things on the basketball court that Rougeau can’t do. She wasted no time proving that to Saluki fans.

In SIU-C’s first home game of the season against Evansville Dec. 2, Rougeau had eight points, six rebounds, seven assists and a blocked shot. She scored a season-high 14 points against Western Kentucky Dec. 5. In her second start of the season at Western Illinois Jan. 8, Rougeau scored 12 points and dished out a team-high 10 assists. She is averaging 6.8 points, four rebounds and 3.4 assists overall this season.

Rougeau is a force offensively and defensively. On a number of occasions this season she has seen ANGEIE, Page 15

Giants’ Clark signs huge pact

San Francisco (UPI) — All-Star first baseman Will Clark, coming off a 111-RBI season, was signed Monday by the National League champion San Francisco Giants to the largest contract in baseball history — $15 million spread over four years.

The backend-loaded pact also includes a no-trade clause that will keep him on the Giants’ roster through the 1993 season.

“It’s been a walking dream,” with a smile on his face all morning, said Clark, who made $1.12 million last season.

“It was important to me to have the no-trade clause because I love the Bay Area. I love the fans. I want to play here.”

Clark had gone through the formality of filing for arbitration last week, asking for a $3 million contract for the 1990 season.

Azerbaijan's parliament, meanwhile, declared the Kremlin imposed state of emergency null and void, demanding that the Soviet army leave as nationalist leaders vowed a campaign of civil disobedience.

E. German minister resigns amid scandal

WEST BERLIN (UPI) — East German Finance Minister Ute Nickel resigned Monday following charges she misappropriated funds while she was Leipzig city official, delivering another blow to the nation's transitional government. Threats to President Bush being investigated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Secret Service is investigating a growing number of intelligence reports that Colombian drug lords will try to assassinate President Bush when he attends a drug summit in the South American nations next month, CBS News reported Monday. The reports include specific warnings that SA-7 shoulder-fired anti-aircraft missiles are being smuggled into Colombia in an attempt to shoot down Air Force One as it lands at Cartagena, which could be the site of the Feb. 15 summit, the network said.

Barry supporters back Jackson as mayor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supporters of Mayor Marion Barry, fearing they would lose political clout if his career is dashed by drug charges, have joined a group hoping to persuade Jesse Jackson to run for the office, the Washington Post reported. While a Barry spokesman says the mayor, who entered a Florida alcoholism treatment facility Monday, will not reach a decision about his political future for 30 days, Barry supporters are beginning to align themselves with Jackson.

Wheat, livestock condition mostly good, soil unchanged

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Winter wheat and livestock remained in generally good condition across the state as of Jan. 19, while soil conditions were relatively unchanged from last month, the Illinois Agricultural Statistics Service said Monday. It is still too early to tell if the cold temperatures and dry conditions have had any effect on the state's wheat crop, and producers are expressing concern.

English professor’s poetry nominated for critic’s award
Faculty member up for another award for his writing; 'Transparent Gestures' is one of five books nominated

By Jeanne Bickler
Entertainment Editor

Rodney G. Jones, professor of English, is the man to beat in 1990. The last few years have been a very rewarding experience," Jones said.

"Transparent Gestures," Jones' third book, has been nominated for the 1989 National Book Critics Circle award in poetry, one of the poems in the book. "The Rising of Wartiness" has been selected as one of the Best American Poems of 1990 and six weeks ago, he and his wife, Gloria, had a baby.

Try to top that. Jones' book is one of five nominated for the National Book Critics Circle award for the most distinguished poetry book of 1989. Other categories are fiction, nonfiction, biography, autobiography and criticism.

"Being nominated for awards is a "steamroller effect," Jones said. "You need lots of luck to get these awards," he said. "But the more awards you receive, the more you do receive." Don't let this fool you. Awards really don't fall into Jones' lap without any effort.

"Transparent Gestures' was very difficult to write," Jones said. "I think it is even more difficult to read, at least the first few times. There's a lot of work in it."

All of the work has paid off for Jones. The nomination for the award is sure to bring even more

The cover of Rodney Jones' "Transparent Gestures."

"This recognition than Jones has already received from the literary world. "This nomination is a thrill," Jones said. "It's more encouraging than anything else." Jones said he thinks of poetry as the highest form of writing. "It's one of those things that feels very nice when you do it right," he said.

The National Book Critics Circle has a 24 member board of directors. The board will choose the top book in each category on Feb. 12. The awards will be presented March 9 at New York University.

"This is a major nomination," Richard F. Peterson, chairman of the English department, said. "We (in the department) are quite proud of him."

Peterson said this is similar to being nominated for film's Academy Awards.

Jones has many other nominations and awards under his belt. Last November he received the first Kenyon Review Award for Literary Excellence in poetry. His first book, "The Story They Told Us Of Life" (1980), was chosen by Elizabeth Bishop for an award from the American Writing Programs.

His second, "The Untem," written in 1985, propelled Jones to win recognition for his poetry. Being nominated for such awards has a "steamroller effect," Jones said. "You need lots of luck to get these awards, but the more awards you receive, the more you do receive."

Jones said. "It's more encouraging than anything else." Jones said he thinks of poetry as the highest form of writing. "It's one of those things that feels very nice when you do it right," he said.

The National Book Critics Circle has a 24 member board of a Peter I.B. Lavan Younger Poet Award, a Guggenheim fellowship and a fellowship from the National Endowment for the Arts. "The Untem" also was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize in 1985.

Jones, who has been at SIU-C for five years, teaches beginning and advanced poetry writing.

Pettit travels to Florida to give ethics speech

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

SIU Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit will speak on the ethical problems of higher education at a conference of college and university attorneys today in Florida.

Pettit was invited to be one of the major speakers and was asked to speak on ethics at the 11th annual National Conference on Law and Higher Education in Clearwater Beach, Florida. His speech is entitled "Problems of Ethics in Higher Education."

"My purpose is to give an overview and try to put into perspective the ethical problems of today and modern university faces," Pettit said.

In his speech, Pettit will focus on college athletics as a fundamental ethical problem. Pettit's speech questions the ethics of so many profitable rules made from selling college sports.

He says universities "seek necessity through excess popular activities that have little to do with the central purpose of an institution."

College sports programs market themselves to raise enough funding to execute self-sufficiency, while the universities benefit from their name being marketed, Pettit said. The media also profits from covering college sports that attract advertising and there are as many off-campus jobs depending on sports as there are university jobs.

Athletes are not Pettit's only example of the source of ethical problems, but he said it is the most exciting example. He also mentioned sponsored research, faculty consulting arrangements and pre-retirement and service on corporate and bank boards as potential conflict-of-interest problems.

Pettit published an article on ethics in the spring 1989 edition of "Educational Record." He said the article was the main reason why he was asked to speak on the topic of ethics at the conference.

Pettit has a PhD. in political science. His political science knowledge helped him write the speech, he said, even though he feels pretty rusty because he has not taught the subject on a regular basis since 1973.

"I drew from my political science intelligence to describe what I thought was the analytical framework for a topic that was otherwise very obscure," Pettit said.

The speech is expected to run about two hours, he said. The conference is sponsored by the Sterling University College of Law and the National Association of College and University Attorneys.

University directory: a combined hassle

THE UNIVERSITY directory distributed on campus at the beginning of this semester had an added dimension not present in past issues. After years of driving heels and pulling hair, a combined faculty, staff and student directory has emerged.

The combined directory saved thousands of dollars. Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services, puts the number at about $10,000.

More importantly, a new directory will allow students better access to instructors. While students are expected to seek class-related assistance from their instructors during office hours, not all instructors' scheduled hours are convenient. As a result, many instructors counsel with students by appointment as well.

UNLIKE civil service employees who must log in 37.5 hours per week, administrators and faculty have additional duties that extend their hours. Consequently, they are not required to keep the University business hours from 8:30 to 5 p.m. Students unable to contact their instructors during office hours, not all instructors' scheduled hours are convenient. As a result, many instructors counsel with students by appointment as well.

ALBERT SOMIT. University president when the idea was first brought forth, could not "clearly" remember being approached about such a directory, although he said there might have been a proposal under his administration.

Dougherty, who formerly worked for Somit, said the directory idea surfaced first during Somit's reign but was not received well. Further, when compromises were made, faculty concern heightened.

ODDLY ENOUGH, Dougherty cited the possibility of a directory with lesser paper quality and overall diminished attractiveness as faculty concerns.

Concerns such as these are not really concerns at all. Rather, problems of timeliness and cost efficiency should be a concern. If that had been the case, maybe the combined directory would have seen the light of day a month or two sooner.

Administrators and members of the USG shoule strive for better communication. Maybe then these two sectors of the University community can direct their energies toward more worthy pursuits.

Drug lords seek pardon

Colombia's drug bosses either are running scared or are trying to hoodwink their country's government into calling off the joint manhunt. A statement that apparently came from the kingpins of the Medellin cartel said, in effect, that they would give up drug running and terrorism in exchange for a pardon.

Colombian President Cesar Gaviria said that a plan to extradite the bosses to the United States was "to cut in the guts of the drug problem."

Student discovers new process for crosswalk

I used to consider myself a reasonably good navigator. I could usually find my way back home from where I was going, and I could find my way from home to where I was going. But I had not thought about looking both ways - fender immunity! At last!

But I thought, heck, then: really ought to be some crosswalks. I was, after all, a graduate student. So I set to work designing a crosswalk. I was, after all, a graduate student, not a hardware engineer. But I had to have a name for it. I thought about "Jeans," but that didn't work. "Pepper" didn't work. "Rice" didn't work. I finally settled on "Crosses." I had considered the idea of "Crosses" for a while, but I had never thought of it as a crosswalk. It was a crosswalk, after all.

I thought about "Crosses" for a while, but I had never thought of it as a crosswalk. It was a crosswalk, after all.

require a minimum grade-point average for eligibility for the trip.

H. H. Welch, vice president for student affairs, said, "it is good for any national organization to reaffirm these goals, but the University’s overall policies have laid a solid foundation for controlling Greek activities on campus." The University already has procedures and regulations concerning the aforementioned topics and any person or organization found in violation of rules will be disciplined, he said.

Image-Greek Council President Dennis Spies said, "The University is discussing the possibility of extending the fall schedule to give activities that are related to the campus job market. Colleges examining this issue have found that Greek organizations have been caught in the act of robbing the University, but a pledge at an Alpha Upsilon Omaha fraternity last semester ended up needing police and ambulance assistance when he ran away." Additionally, a retroactive law was needed to protect a student against the Beta Alpha chapter of Alpha Gamma Rho and two of its members for throwing him into a pond on Greek Row in Oct. 1987. Welch said the Greek holds liability and anti-hazing seminars each year before the rush week begins. Some fraternity chapters have also decided to loosen the pressure on pledges by not allowing them to make the deposit for the complete one semester at the University.

The Pan-Hellenic council of fraternities, which has been enlarged to one yearly meeting, the Pan-Hellenic council will begin a similar policy in the spring. The final issue brought up by the ACRS was a national grade point average, and Barlow said the University requirements are a 2.0 GPA, although specific chapters may require a higher GPA.

"The Pan-Hellenic council recommends that we post information on induction as well as initiation," she said. Scrupps Howard News Service contributed to this story.

Supremen said the drawdown may go from 4 to 9 feet, but the current species of fish in balance. He said the drawdown crowds the fish into a smaller area which is considered fishery. This is important in a lake with a large population of rough fish such as carp, which Supremen said Crab Orchard has. The most likely form of damage done by the drawdown, Supremen said, is that shoreline plants may have been killed by exposure to cold. These plants are used as protective cover for fish and insects the fish feed on, he said. Supremen said he prefers a summer drawdown, but the construction schedule will take place on the dam. Any damage the drawdown may have caused to the fish populations in the lake isn’t expected to be reversible. The questions to be answered with surveys performed later this year is what damage was done and how long it will take to recover, Supremen said. Soon after the drawdown was completed, the limit on largemouth bass was raised from 15 to 18 inches. Cameron said the restriction will remain until the lake returns to the average summer pool water level.

The speech is expected to run about two hours, he said. The conference is sponsored by the SIU Institute of Law, College of Law and the National Association of College and University Attorneys.
Supreme Court infinitking sizzles following Sixth Amendment ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) - With members trading sharp words over racism, a divided Supreme Court ruled Monday that the Sixth Amendment right to a trial by an "impartial jury," is not violated when blacks are excluded from juries.

Justice Antonin Scalia, writing for the court in a 5-4 ruling, said the decision was a narrow one and not all involved in racial politics. He noted that previous rulings have made it clear that blacks may not be excluded from juries.

However, he said the question before the court was whether the defendant has been denied the right to "an impartial jury." The seriousness of this court's commitment to racial justice is not to be measured by its willingness to expand constitutional provisions designed for other purposes beyond its proper bounds.

Scalia said the heart of the Sixth Amendment was the right to an impartial jury — not one that represents the racial makeup of a community.

In his 13-page decision, Scalia also charged that Justice Thurgood Marshall's court, the only black member, wanted to wave the court's flag of racism.

"Justice Marshall's dissent rolls out the ultimate weapon, the accusation of insensitivity to racial discrimination."

— Antonin Scalia

Marshall, the court's only black member, resisted to waving the court's flag of racism.

Reactions to the ruling, attorney Donald Horrell, who represented the white defendant, said the justices are "naive" if they believe the public will not read racism into the decision.

"This is a little slap in the face to members of black community," Horrell said. "They may be.complex. They can't be banned from serving in trials of black defendants. But in trials of white defendants we have a different situation."

Marshall said the constitutional obligations go beyond the question of impartiality.

The 1990 elections and unwilling legislative leaders make the push to restrict restricting abortions unlikely in Illinois this fall, a feminist group said today.

"I really don't think in this part of the country we're going to see much action in either chamber on choice," said Luellen Laurenzi of the Illinois chapter of the National Organization for Women. "I think the leadership in both houses really don't want to deal with this."

The Illinois chapter held news conferences in Springfield and Chicago Monday to unveil a 10-point "Pro-Choice Declaration of Principle" and release its first-ever money roll of pro-choice state lawmakers.

The appearance were one of many gatherings scheduled by pro- and anti-abortion groups to commemorate the 17th anniversary of the 1973 Roe v. Wade decision that legalized abortion in the U.S.

The declaration of principle contends that all women are entitled to make voluntary decisions regarding their sexuality, childbirth and the course of their lives.

The honor roll lists 18 state senators and 32 representatives who have voted consistently against restricting abortions. The list also includes seven senators with 90 percent pro-choice voting records and three members of the House Rules Committee who refused to move an anti-abortion bill (H5391) out of a subcommittee.

"We feel a need to acknowledge the legislators who have been strong and who have stood up for a non-reductive freedom," Laurenzi said.

Laurenzi said anti-abortion forces may try to bring the bill up for a vote this spring. It would ban abortions on viable fetuses more than 20 weeks old, require the presence of two doctors at any abortion of a viable fetus and would ban public funding of abortions.

Special students have difficulties in seeking help for health problems

By Norma Martin Wellness Center

Who are students in Special Populations? They are identified as underserved populations on the SIU-C campus such as International, African-American, non-traditional and disabled students.

The felt wellness needs of Special populations are to first, define the barriers to deal with stress, personal adjustments, self-scare, family problems and minority group relations. These identified wellness needs are not necessarily different than those of the larger student population; however, distinctly different for special populations are the barriers with which they encounter in attempting to access counseling services.

Barriers to counseling services may be cultural differences (especially, linguistic barriers), excessive amounts of time needed by clients due to speech, hearing, and/or physical impairments (e.g., disabled students) or hesitancy to seek help outside of family or close friendships. Enrollment process in admitting a personal problem exists and lack of awareness of available services.

The Wellness Center's ongoing counseling is available for students who are suffering from mental and emotional stresses. The Center Information desk is located on the lower level of the south end of the SIU Student Center, adjacent to the Big Muddy Room. For further information about any of these workshops stop by or call 453-3636.

University expert: Panama invasion was useless, illegal

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

The United States invasion of Panama was illegal, caused the death of numerous civilians and soldiers, and besides that it was harmful to U.S. foreign policy, SIUC's Latin American expert said.

"It's clearly illegal for the United States to invade (Panama)" for the four reasons that were cited, Washington and she said.

The first reason the government gave was that U.S. lives were at stake, Garnier said. Only one person was killed and two others were injured, and the U.S. has never invaded a country for three people, he said.

The second reason the government gave was the threatened operation against the Canal Zone, Garnier said. The continuous operation was going to be continued, she said, and Washington shut it down for the first time in its 75-year history. She third reason was supposedly to restore democracy, he said.

"You can't restore democracy if it's never been," Garnier said. "Even if it had existed, it is not the job of the U.S. to restore anything to anybody unless it's clearly in our interests of remaining peace," she said.

The fourth reason the government cited was to capture Manuel Noriega, she said. There is no jurisdiction in Panama, Garnier said.

Although the U.S. has gained control of one Latin American country that is a huge incentive to pay for alienating almost all of the other Latin American countries, Garnier said.

According to the Clark Memorandum of 1928, in the Monroe Doctrine, the U.S. did not have the right to intervene in the affairs of other Latin American nations, Garnier said.

Garnier cited other international agreements. She said the United Nations Charter of 1945 and the 1948 Organization of American States charter stated that the U.S. had no right to intervene in Panama's affairs.

"The job of getting rid of a dictator, anywhere, is the job of the people in this country," she said.

In a United Nations vote held in New York in early January on whether to condemn the U.S. invasion of Panama, 20 Latin American countries voted against the U.S. and only three voted for the U.S.

One of those countries was Panama. Another was El Salvador, which gets over $1 million a day in aid from the U.S. and Dominica, an island republic, Garnier said.

On the subject of Guillermo Endara, the president the U.S. supported, Garnier said he might have won the election but the actual results will never be known.

Garnier explained that the president in Panama has been largely ceremonial, and the power in Panama has historically been with the military.

It was obvious that Endara knew that he was going to be given the presidency beforehand because he waited until Dec. 20 to be inaugurated at a U.S. Air Force base, Garnier said.

Panamanian invasion critical to Bush re-election hopes

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

If President George Bush had not decided for an invasion of Panama, he might have been cutting the throat of his chances for a second term, according to an emeritus professor of political science at SIUC.

Bush was forced by the machinations of the American people to invade, Ward Morton, who once taught in Nicaragua, said.

"It was clear that Bush could not `turn over' Panama to Noriega. The American public would label that as `turning over' the Panama Canal to Noriega," Morton said.

In effect, Bush "invaded Panama to conquer in Washington," he said.

In 1990 the complete operation of the canal is to be turned over to Panama. Morton said we can be pretty sure that whoever is running it will be a U.S. States.

Panama, like other Central American countries, has an intense sense of nationalism and they get insulted by our interference, he said.

History of U.S. involvement in Panama

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

A brief chronology of major events in the history of Panama, according to an editorial written in the March issue of The Nation.

October 1903: The first flag of the new country of Panama was raised in the Canal Zone, which is now a U.S. territory.

October 1903: Secretary of the U.S. Army opens its Marine Institute in Panama.

October 1941: Washington announced the overthrow of elected president Amilcar Arias, a nationalist with Axis sympathies.

1956: The U.S. Army opens its School of the Americas. This concerns the 1963 treaty, which says U.S. troops may be present only for the defense of the canal.

1956: The United States creates the Panamanian National Guard (later to be known as the Panamanian Defense Force). It is modeled on Anastasio Somoza's National Guard in Nicaragua.

January 1964: Troops under Gen. Andrew O'Meara kill 24 Panamanians demanding the right to fly their flag in the Canal Zone. The Latin American advisers to the president, Thomas Mann, decides "these people need the application of a little muscle and common sense."

October 1968: Amilcar Arias is again elected president. He is promptly overthrown by soldiers of the National Guard under its trained commander, Col. Omar Torrijos.

April 1978: The Senate approves the Carter Administration's canal treaties.

May 1984: Arias is elected president again. This time he loses out to fraud, and the military installs his opponent, Nicolas Arroyo Barreto.

Jury finds ‘hacker’ guilty for unleashing computer virus

The jury came in with the guilty verdict at 9:32 p.m., after 7 1/2 hours after they began deliberations in the landmark case.

Morris, 25, of Arnold, Md., was accused of violating a nationwide computer network with a program that shut down some 6,000 computers nationwide in 1988. The affected systems included ones at a National Aeronautics and Space Administration facility at Moffett Field, Calif., and the Air Force Logistics Command system at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio.

Morris, 24, of Arnold, Md., the son of the chief scientist for the National Security Agency’s computer security division, is charged with intentionally and without authorization gaining access to federal computers, preventing the unauthorized use of the machines and causing a loss of at least $1,000.

He is the first person to be prosecuted under a portion of the 1986 Computer Fraud and Abuse Act, and faces up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine if convicted of the felony.

Defense attorney Thomas Guidoboni said in his closing argument that Morris did not intend for his program to cause damage or shut down computer systems.

"The government spent a lot of time in this case proving things that weren’t in dispute," Guidoboni said.

Guidoboni recalled that defense witnesses said Morris inserted commands in the program designed to limit its growth, preventing it from clogging the system it entered.

"He made a mistake (in designing the program). He told his friend, ‘I really messed up,’ and Paul (Graham) said, ‘You idiot,’ Guidoboni said. "Paul said, ‘Let’s send another worm out there like a Pan-Mac to eat it up,’ and he said, ‘No, I didn’t do such a good job on the first one.’"

"You’ve heard Mr. Morris, and you’ve heard his testimony. The government, I submit, has made a dent in it,” Guidoboni said.

The government said the defense argument that the worm did not permanently damage to computer memories did not constitute a valid defense.

"Mr. Morris is not charged with deleting files. Mr. Morris is charged with breaking into computers and preventing their authorized use. He certainly did that,” Justice Department lawyer Mark Rasch said in the government’s rebuttal argument.

Morris was suspended from Cornell after a university committee determined he worked alone on creating the program.

"He took each and every one of these steps to avoid being recognized as the creator of this worm,” the government said.

Guidoboni told jurors that there was no question Morris created the worm program and sent it out over a national computer network with the intention of gaining access to federal computers, but he was not authorized to use.

Morris did so with the knowledge his program would cross state lines and that investigating and countenancing it would take computer experts a considerable amount of time, Melzer said.

"Each and every one of you must understand that the worm was not merely a mistake,” Melzer said. "It was a crime against the government of the United States."

Morris, then a Cornell University graduate student, is accused of unleashing a computer worm that shut down some 6,000 computers nationwide in 1988. The affected systems included ones at a National Aeronautics and Space Administration facility at Moffett Field, Calif., and the Air Force Logistics Command system at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio.

NOTICE FROM THE FINANCIAL AID OFFICE
ALL UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS MUST COMPLY WITH THE FOLLOWING SATISFACTORY PROGRESS POLICY IN ORDER TO RECEIVE FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.

SATISFACTORY PROGRESS POLICY FOR UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS AT SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY AT CARBONDALE

The Federal Government, the States, and Southern Illinois University at Carbondale have invested large sums of money in order to provide financially needy students the opportunity to attain a post-secondary education. Financial aid recipients are responsible for using the funds provided in an acceptable manner. Therefore, a student who wishes to benefit from the receipt of financial aid funds must maintain "satisfactory progress" as defined in this policy.

AUTHORITY
The Higher Education Act of 1965 as amended and the final regulations set forth by the Department of Education in 34 CFR 668 require that institutions of higher education establish reasonable standards of "satisfactory progress". A student who does not meet these standards is not eligible to receive federally funded financial aid. Southern Illinois University at Carbondale shall make these standards applicable to all state and institutional aid programs for the purpose of maintaining a consistent and reasonable financial aid policy.

SATISFACTORY PROGRESS STANDARDS
Southern Illinois University at Carbondale requires that a student be making "satisfactory progress" toward a degree if that student wishes to receive financial aid funds. A student is making "satisfactory progress" toward a degree if successfully meeting two basic academic standards. First, a student must complete a reasonable number of credit hours toward a degree each academic year. Second, a student must maintain a scholastic standing, derived from grades, that allows for continued enrollment at the University under current academic guidelines. The following parameters will be used to define these two basic academic standards:

1) Maximum time to graduate: A full-time, eligible student is expected to complete a degree in six academic years (12 semesters). A half-time, eligible student is expected to complete a degree in twelve academic SIUC years (24 semesters). In order to be sure that a student is progressing Academic Cumulative toward that goal, each student’s progress will be measured annually after Terms Hours Spring Semester to determine the progress made for the last academic completed year of attendance. Each term of at least half-time attendance shall be included in the annual review whether or not the student received financial aid for the term. The following chart will serve as a model to determine if each student is meeting this requirement of satisfactory progress.

2) Grades: A student must remain in compliance with the University’s policy concerning scholastic standing, grades, and grade point average as defined under the topic “Grading, Scholastic Regulations, and Credit” in the current Undergraduate Catalog Bulletin. A student who is on Scholastic Suspension is not maintaining “satisfactory progress”. A student who is scholastically suspended may be readmitted under Scholastic Probation status by the appropriate academic dean and remain eligible for financial aid. Each student’s scholastic standing will be monitored after each semester or term of attendance.

A student who does not meet either or both of the standards set forth above and who cannot show "mitigating circumstances" is not maintaining "satisfactory progress" toward a degree and is no longer eligible to receive financial aid funds. (See Appeals)

DEFINITIONS
Credit hours completed shall be defined as the total number of academic credit hours for which a student receives any grade other than a failing grade. Incompletes, withdrawals, audits, and remedial courses which do not count toward a degree shall not be considered as credit hours completed. Credit hours received for repeated courses shall be counted only once.

Eligible students shall be defined as those students who are admitted to the University in a degree-seeking classification. All other students are not eligible for financial aid.

Full-time attendance for undergraduates shall be defined as enrollment in twelve (12) hours or more per semester.

Undergraduate shall be defined as a student who is a freshman, sophomore, junior, senior or a senior with a bachelors degree seeking a second bachelors.

NOTIFICATION OF TERMINATION
It shall be the responsibility of the Financial Aid Office to publish this policy and to notify by letter any student who is no longer eligible to receive financial aid funds. Said notice shall be addressed to the student's most current home address on file with the University. IT SHALL BE THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE STUDENT TO INFORM THE UNIVERSITY OF A CORRECT HOME ADDRESS AT ALL TIMES.

REINSTATEMENT
Students will have their eligibility to receive financial aid reinstated when they have reached the level of satisfactory progress required of them by this policy. They may achieve this status by the completion of incomplete grades, correction of incorrect grades, and by earning sufficiently more than the required number of completed hours for a term or terms of attendance without the benefit of financial aid.

APPEALS
Any student who cannot meet the grades requirement, or the cumulative credit hours completion requirement shall have an opportunity to appeal in writing to explain "mitigating circumstances". The appeal should be sent to the Financial Aid Office within 15 days of the notice of termination. The Financial Aid Advisory Committee will review the "mitigating circumstances" documented in the appeal and provide a written decision within 20 days after receipt of the appeal.

Scripps Howard tabs Mizzou as new No. 1 basketball team

Scripps Howard News Service

Missouri took advantage of a top 10 to 11 point margin that began with No. 1 to No. 1 in this week's Scripps Howard basketball poll, to pull away from Arizona, the Tigers, who fell from eight-ranked Kansas 95-87 Saturday, received 26 of 30 first-place votes.

Seventeenth-ranked La Salle received three first-place votes and No. 3 Georgetown got the other.

Missouri and Louisville were the only teams from last week's top 10 to complete the week without losses. The Cardinals moved up six spots to No. 4.

Second-ranked Kansas and Georgia's each dropped one notch from last week. Oklahoma fell six spots to No. 9, Syracuse six to No. 11, Illinois four to No. 10 and Georgia Tech four to No. 10. Michigan and Iowa were both still moved up two places. The Wolverines are No. 5, and the Blue Devils sixth.

BENTON (UPI) — A video-tape of a disturbance following a weekend basketball game showed supporters of Benton and Pinckneyville as equally responsible, Benton High School Superintendent John O'Dell said Monday.

Immediately after the game several hundred fans poured onto the floor in a disturbance that lasted less than a minute, O'Dell said.

"It was equal on both sides for what happened," O'Dell said Monday after viewing a videotape supplied by Pinckneyville. "We could see the same thing on their side."

Indianafreshmen start with a bang, get off to 15-3 mark for Bob Knight

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Midterm figures are back for Indiana's newly ranked basketball class and the results are impressive despite the departure of Larry Bird.

Six first-year players, plus redshirted senior signee, will again play crucial roles when the 15th-ranked Hoosiers (13-2) play host to Michigan State (11-4) Wednesday night.

Forward Calbert Cheaney has been the most productive of the Indiana newcomers, starting every game and averaging 16.6 points, the most by any first-year regular under coach Bob Knight at Indiana.

The freshman group considered among the nation's best also includes 6-9 Greg Graham, Chris Reynolds, Pat Graham and Tom Caulfield. Caulfield, who has played forwards Chris Lawson and Funderburke, who quit six games into the season after Knight threw him out of a practice. Knight has been shuffling his lineup to find the right combination with his young players, using a dozen different starting alignments so far this season.

"People talk so much about players being young. They'll be talking about who they are when they're seniors," Knight said. "We've been unable to find a lineup that can play against every defense. We've had to juggle the lineup every time a team changes defenses."

Eric Anderson, a 6-4, 200-pound senior, has been crucial inside, starting every game and averaging 18 points plus 7.2 rebounds.

Cheaney has been alongside Anderson most of the time, putting down a team-high 37 offensive rebounds and making a team-best 17 steals in additions to sinking 18 of 40 shots from a 3-point range.

The former Indiana all-state prep player from Evansville suffered a broken foot as a high school senior, but averaged 22.2 points and 8.2 rebounds.

The other most promising player from the freshman recruits was Funderburke, who joined Cheaney as the first two left-handed players at Indiana during Knight's 19 years as coach. Funderburke is enrolled at St. Catherine (Ky.) Junior College, awaiting a letter-of-intent release from Indiana that would allow him to play for another major college team without a loss of eligibility.

Funderburke scored 16 points to lead Indiana past Kentucky, but the Columbus, Ohio, native has indicated he would like to play for the Wildcats. Unless Indiana releases him, his six games for the Hoosiers might be his only competition against college-bred competition for three years.

Offensive coach elevated to boss by Arkansas team

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — The University of Arkansas capped a whirlwind weekend of developments Monday by elevating offensive coordinator Jack Crowe to the Razorback head football coaching position.

He succeeds Ken Hilliard, who resigned unexpectedly Sunday after six years with the Razorbacks to become head coach at Clemson, the school that Crowe came from when he joined the Arkansas staff last year as offensive coordinator.

"He is a brilliant coach and a first-rate man," Athletic Director Frank Braly said in introducing Crowe, 41, at a news conference. "I've been impressed with his poise in every situation..." he said.

Boise State is considering a number of other coaching candidates. With Hilliard's departure, the Boise State football program is in transition period and is evaluating options for the head coaching position.

Former Saluki baseball star striding toward big leagues

By Sean Hannigan
Staff Writer

Joe Hall, former Saluki sluger, is moving one step closer to the big leagues. Hall is in Carbondale working out with his former team before heading to spring training with the Little Rock team of the Double-A Texas League. Hall was drafted by the St. Louis Cardinals organization in 1988. The 1988 Saluki MVP earned the promotion by hitting .292 and driving in 45 bases in the Florida Salinas A League. Both put him in the top ten in the league.

"Joe is ready for Double-A," Jones, SIU-C baseball manager, said about his former player.

"I've talked with Steve Braun, the new hitting instructor for the Cards," he added. "I think it's important that they like you," Jones said.

Jones said the Cardinal organization is very high on Hall.

"He is a really athletic player. The Cardinals are going to have to figure out where they want to play him," Jones said.

"I played mostly outfield and third base last year. It will probably be the same this year," Hall said. Used mainly in the outfield in his first year, Hall had played third for the Salukis.

Hall has been in town working out and ready to hit in the batting cage. Former Saluki and Hall teammate, Steve Finley, also was in town for work outs last week. Finley was the opening day outfielder for the Atlanta Braves last season.

"It's an inspiration to our players to see guys who don't have to be here working hard," Jones said.

Joel Hall follows one of his many Saluki hits. He played here from 1986-88. Hall will play Class AA baseball this season.

"We're working out at 6 o'clock in the morning and these guys aren't just standing around, they're spining hard," Jones said.

Hall is hoping to scrap off the weight he built up after his much needed vacation from baseball.

"I played the most baseball I've ever played in my life," Hall said. "I played a 140+game season and then went to instructional ball for 2 months."

"I've come back here every year since I left to work out with the ballclub," Hall said. He denies being different from the players he was with every morning.

"I've been playing ball awhile. If I see something that can help them out I'll tell them, but that's about it," Hall said.

But .355 with 9 homers and .500 in the field, Hall said he really only did things his way.

Jones thinks Hall could be heading towards the show. "If we get to Double A there's only one player between you and the major leagues," Jones said.

angled some of the better players on the opposing teams, including Angeline Green of Western Kentucky and Barb Perks of Eastern Illinois.

Jones said just an experience because it can boost your confidence," Rougeau said. "I want to be a defensive specialist and be the one to guard the better players on the other team."

There is another part of Rougeau's life that she takes seriously as well. Rougeau, who graduated from Men's Whitehaven High School with a 3.4 GPA, is also a doubling student.

"I set my priorities — after a game I go home and study," Rougeau said. "I try hard to be one of the better hall players. I want to graduate with a 3.5 or better. I don't want to be considered a star, like I was a normal college student."

Rougeau, a Pre-Med major who wants to be a pediatrician, said SIU-C offers a lot to students in academics and athletics.

"During my recruiting visit here, the coaches asked me what my field was," Rougeau said. "Academics come first here. SIU is excellent in academics and basketball. Coach Scott looks for other things in players besides basketball."

Scott looks for Rougeau for this reason.

"Angie is a classy young lady," Scott said. "She is a great student with good goals and priorities in life.

Rougeau starred three years at Memphis Whitehaven High School. During Rougeau's senior and junior years, Whitehaven went a combined 42-17. Rougeau averaged 16.4 points, eight rebounds, 4.1 assists and 3.2 steals her senior year. She hit 53 percent from the field and 80 percent from the line.

During Rougeau's senior year, she was co-captain and MVP of the Lady Tigers in the Southeast Conference. She was named All-State her junior and senior years.

Tennessee is a big state for women's basketball and Rougeau said the competition helped her.

"There is a top AAU team there every year," Rougeau said. "I think that helped me as a person playing against top-ranked people."

Rougeau has been one of many factors in the Salukis' winning streak and quest for the Gateway Conference crown. Rougeau said the Salukis are coming together as a team.

"We are progressing as a team," Rougeau said. "We are learning about how each player can play."
