$80,000 requested for Stone House upkeep

North divulges ‘cleanup’

WASHINGTON (UPI) Oliver North admitted Thursday he shredded reams of sensitive documents last November, while Justice Department investigators sat in his White House office reviewing his files on the U.S. arms sales to Iran.

"I was sitting in my office reading. I'd go out and shred it. They could hear it. The shredder was right out the door," North said. "They were working on their projects. I was working on mine."

His project, North said, was the shredding of files containing documents on the Iran-Contra sales, the diversion of sales profits to the Nicaraguan rebels and other delicate chores he performed as the gung-ho staff member of the National Security Council.

The Marine lieutenant colonel, 43, with his wife, Betsy, seated just behind him, dropped the explosive revelation during the second day of hearings by the select House-Senate committees investigating the Iran-Contra scandal.

The day after the public hearing recessed at 4 p.m., the panel went into a closed session to review classified material.

The electric afternoon of testimony also elicited North's disclosure that in 1985, CIA Director William Casey decided that as the United States launched a secret effort to supply the Nicaraguan Contra rebels -- despite a congressional ban -- North would be the "fall guy" if and when the plan became public.

But last fall, the Iran arms sales and the secret resupply network were "becoming unraveled," in North's words, Casey judged the operation "too stupid, too aware" not stupid enough" to "take the hit."

Six-digit lender code to speed GSL process

By Eric Ostmann
Staff Writer

This fall, students applying for a Guaranteed Student Loan could find their processing time substantially reduced.

Instead of filling an ACT Family Financial Statement and a loan application separately, students now can use a 6-digit lender code number from their bank and fill out a new section on the ACT statement form, said Janet Jeffries, public relations coordinator for the office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

Students will no longer have to get a loan application from their lending institution to submit to the financial aid office, she said.

The ACT Student Need Analysis Services, in Iowa, will transmit the application information to SIUC. The University then will send the application to the Illinois State Scholarship Commission, Jeffries said.

The commission would send the application to the University. From there it would be sent to the lending institution before finally making its way to the ISSC, said Dan Mann, associate director of the office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.

The new method reduces the number of times the loan is sent to the lending institution, which means fewer steps and less time wasted en route through the mail, Mann said.

A similar system was tested at the University of Minnesota and cut the processing time for the loan application from about two months to two to three weeks, said Joseph Camille, director of the office of Student Work and Financial Assistance.
Panel blames pilot error in crash that killed leader

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) - An international investigating team Thursday blamed a Soviet air crew's sloppy flying for a jet crash last year that killed Mozambican President Samora Machel and 34 others. The six man panel of experts from Soviet and Mozambican claims that a decoy beacon lured the Russian-built Tupolev 134 to destruction in a no-man's-land area of South Africa 32 miles west of Maputo. "This was a below-par crew," said Judge Cecilo Margo, a decorated South African war pilot who presided over the NTSB crash with five other experts, including former U.S. astronaut Frank Borman.

Train '10-minute nightmare' leaves 53 dead

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) - Fourteen cars of a New Delhi-bound express train derailed on flooded tracks over a swollen monsoon river Thursday in a "10-minute nightmare" that left 53 people dead, the Press Trust of India said. The news agency said that at least 20 people, who were in a car that plunged into the river and was swept downstream, still were missing. Rescue workers also searched cars that overturned on the flooded tracks about 250 miles south of New Delhi, and look for victims believed trapped inside, the news agency said.

Sikh killing family, guard in spiral of retaliation

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) - Sikh separatists killed six moderate Sikhs — five from the same family — and a bodyguard in Punjab Thursday while Hindus erected by earlier killings looted homes, shops and shrines in violent retaliation. A police officer was injured in New Delhi during the separatist violence that occurred a day after seven people died and 21 were injured in anti-Sikh protests by Hindus in northern India, news reports said.

Resignation ushers in Italian government

ROME (UPI) - Prime Minister Amintore Fanfani, 79, resigned Thursday as head of a 13-week-old caretaker government, clearing the way for an attempt to form a new government based on the outcome of June's national elections. President Francesco Cossiga's office announced the head of state will consult representatives of all parties Friday and Saturday. He is expected to name a candidate to try to form the next government Italy's 57th since World War II — on Monday.

Troubleshooter denies peace plan opposition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Philip Habib, President Reagan's Central America troubleshooter, denied Thursday that the administration is trying to "torpedo" a regional peace plan proposed by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias. He also dismissed as "nonsense" reports that the administration does not take seriously negotiations on the peace plan and had been discourteous to Arias when he visited Washington recently.

Counsel says Deaver lied, protected business

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Michael Deaver, his perjury trial scheduled to begin next week, lied to shield himself from ethics charges, protect his lucrative business and hide its true function — capitalizing on connections to the White House, a special prosecutor said Thursday. Whitney North Seymour, the independent counsel appointed to investigate whether Mr. White House aide had violated the Ethics in Government Act with his lobbying activities, made the charges in an unusual pre-trial memorandum on the evidence he plans to introduce at Deaver's trial, which begins Monday.

2 ferries collide off Long Island, 21 injured

ORIENT POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — Two ferries, the North Star and the Cape Henlopen, carrying tourists and commuters collided in foggy Long Island Sound off Orient Point Thursday, injuring at least 21 people, four seriously, on the North Star. The two ferries collided about 9:24 a.m. in Plumb Gut, a passage between Orient Point and Plum Island 2 miles north of Orient Point in waters about 190 feet deep, the Coast Guard said.

Tapes show Marcos plotted Aquino overthrow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos plotted to overthrow the current government with money borrowed from a Saudi prince and take President Corazon Aquino hostage, tapes showed Thursday. Marcos planned to use the money to buy arms for a July 10 invasion of the Philippines and repay the loan with gold on deposit in Swiss banks and secreted in the Philippines. The May 21 tape was played during a hearing before the Asian and Pacific Affairs subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee.

Trustees OK Guyon, set $106,000 salary

By Jackie Hampton
SUN-TIMES

President John Guyon, whose appointment was approved Thursday by the Board of Trustees, will receive $106,000 annually in salary plus the use of a car, but no housing allowance.

Former President Albert Soml's salary was $89,968, but he also received the use of Stone House. Guyon's package includes no housing allowance.

"It puts the president within the range of peer presidents and at about the right point on the pecking order in Illinois, just below the University of Illinois," Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said.

The board designated Stone House as the residence of the chancellor at its June meeting. The board also praised the selection of Guyon, who has served the school as dean, assistant vice president and acting president.

"We didn't realize the quality we've had until someone like John submits himself to the selection process," trustee Ivan Elliott said. "I think it is gratifying that we ended up with the in-house candidate. We find we have the talent to lead us to greater heights."

The board also said good-bye to a longtime administrator. Vice President for Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne will leave in mid-August to take the president's post at Mitchell College in Connecticut.

"Bruce will be sorely missed as a colleague, administrator and friend," Guyon said.

University Press building named in honor of founder

Thursday named the University Press building in honor of its founder, the late Vernon A. Sternberg.

"Vernon Sternberg founded the press in 1956 and led it to national prominence," President John Guyon said.

Under Sternberg, the SIU Press achieved accreditation in three years, the shortest time possible. It is now under the direction of Kenney Withers and is ranked among the top 15 university presses in the nation in number of books published each year. Annual sales were 65,000 books in 1966, 1967.

Sternberg is credited with the persistence and foresight that helped secure money for construction of the building now named in his honor.

Guyon said the press publishes about 60 new titles per year. Of the 1,290 titles it has published, 600 were published under Sternberg's direction.

Sternberg, a native of Wisconsin, taught English at the University of North Dakota and was associate editor for three years at the University of Wisconsin Press before coming to SIU-C. He died in 1979.
North may have felt he was a hero until a real one put him in his place

OLLIE NORTH got off to a fine start. For a while, it looked as if he were being hounded by a subplot, legal and a rumour of politicians for non-existent reasons that would make him a great patriot.

With his boyish good looks, chest full of ribbons and obvious devotion to God and country, he almost had the TV set. But it has just started coming apart.

It's understandable that the house should look clean and neat when it is used as a meeting place and a guest house for visiting dignitaries. But if, as Vice President Bush and Campus Services Clarence Doughterry said, the house cannot be kept clean by one housekeeper, perhaps the cost of Stone House needs to be more closely examined.

With all the money being spent to keep Stone House clean and fixed, maybe the University should think of just building a new, more economical house with that money.

Or at least a house that a single housekeeper could keep clean.

Cleaning helps trees to grow

Poes of the "destruction" of Thompson Woods do not understand the dynamics of forest growth.

The climax Midwestern forest consists of well-spaced hardwoods with a clear forest floor covered with several inches of duff. The fast-growing, invasive shade trees shunt the growth of honeysuckle, poison ivy and small trees.

It takes more than 1,000 years to reach this climax and a clearing nearly every square inch of Southern Illinois was cut 150 years ago.

Snore nature lover, not Doc

Doc Doughterry is not entirely to blame. Blame me. I've been naggings him on a daily basis for years to clean up Campus Lake.

For 65 years that lake has been a big part of my life. I love it and walk around it almost every day. After the storm it looks like goddown hill. But problems probably were involved: dead bees, poison ivy, honeysuckle choking the healthy trees, and most all the trash picnic tables, chairs, iron grills, cans by pioners for fuel, rail, tools, buildings and field clearance. Man, however, can hasten the process by removing undergrowth, dead trees and non-climax species so that hardwoods can grow more quickly.

Which do you prefer: first and second growth jungle or clear climax forest? Disabuse yourself of Rousseauan solenmentality: either way Thompson Woods will be man­ made. David Drake, professor, School of Technical Careers.

and the non-biodegradable plastic.

Removing undergrowth will make my job of picking up trash easier. One letter talked about erosion. It was correct, but the erosion is south of the spillway and is alarming. The area around the lake wasn't eroding but the lake is sitting and getting smaller.

Talk to Doc for letting me see the lake and keep up the good work. - Alice Limpus, carbonale.

Restoration attack planned on Cairo’s Fort Defiance

By Karen Wells
Staff Writer

The residents of Cairo, along with a retired SIU-4 professor, have decided to take nature into their own hands by claiming one of Illinois’ oldest parks because a state government institution lacks funds to protect the area.

Richard Poston, professor emeritus of community development, has united with the residents of Cairo to help restore Fort Defiance, which is located about one and a half miles south of Cairo. This is the location of the historical Civil War fort.

Poston said the restoration project is expected to cost $25,000, which will cover maintenance and upkeep of the area. He said it will be about three years before the project is fully developed.

He hopes the state, as well as private sources, will contribute money to help with the development of the project.

Iranian gun-boat attacks U.S.-run tanker

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — An Iranian gunboat firing rockets at the United States-operated Liberian flag supertanker in the Persian Gulf Thursday and set it ablaze. No one was injured.

The tanker, which was chartered to Texaco, was empty when hit and the fire was quickly brought under control, shipping and salvage sources said.

The concern grew in the U.S. Congress over the Reagan administration’s plans to extend protection to Iranian oil tankers.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said it was unlikely the attack on the supertanker would affect the U.S. operation.

"I know of nothing right now relating to this incident which would change the plan," the spokesman, Maj. Larry Icenogle, said. State Department spokesman Charles Robert signed the order protecting the U.S. flag tanker.

The House, on a 222-184 vote not enough to override a veto, approved an amendment Wednesday to the Coast Guard Authorization Act which would impose a 90-day delay in the policy, one many members said was hastily devised and poorly thought out.

Liberals try to block Gulf policy

WASHINGTO N, D.C. (UPI) — The move promptly changed. A Senate Republican leader, followed by a group of Republican senators, wanted to stop a GOP stalling tactic that prevented consideration of pending measures urging the administration to delay the “re-flagging” policy.

Negotiators continued on efforts to reach a compromise on the purely symbolic non-binding measure, which they said could not be elected by U.S. warships.

Liberals Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., Brock Adams, D-Wash., and Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., offered their proposal as an amendment to a trade bill due to the Senate floor.

They reasoned that no money be used for 90 days to support administrative costs associated with the Guard paperwork needed to give 11 Kuwaiti tankers the U.S. flag, which would make them eligible for protection from U.S. Navy warships in the gulf. Without the U.S. flag on their vessels, they could not be escorted by U.S. warships.

The House, on a 222-184 vote not enough to override a veto, approved an amendment Wednesday to the Coast Guard Authorization Act which would impose a 90-day delay in the policy, one many members said was hastily devised and poorly thought out.

Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, chief sponsor of the amendment requiring advance notice.

The vote means “the right to (advance) notice has been enunciated loudly and clearly” by the Senate, Metzenbaum said, but he added: “I don’t think you can say the labor (legislative) agenda is off and running” in the Democratic-controlled Senate as a result of the victory.

If the advance notice provision becomes law, he said, “workers have gained a very considerable (new) right.”

“The days of the feudal borough are over in the United States of America,” added Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., co-sponsor of the Metzenbaum amendment. “The question is whether we are going to treat people like people or treat people like cattle and chattel.

Metzenbaum said his amendment was “just a matter of simple humanity, simple decency,” and would have a “shock absorber” effect for laid off workers.

Small businesses and those making temporary layoffs due to cyclical economic swings also would be exempted from the amendment.

10 applicants considered to head disabled services

Ten applicants are being considered for coordinator of Disabled Student Services.

The position will be filled by Aug. 1. Jerry Lacey, associate dean of student services said.

Carla Hayes, acting coordinator of Disabled Student Services, is among the applicants being considered, he said. Hayes served for five years as assistant coordinator to Ronald Blosser. Blosser was coordinator for 12 years before resigning last June.

The coordinator must have a master’s in a field related to disabled student services and must be able to communicate effectively with disabled students and University personnel, Lacey said.

Senate votes to withhold trade bill’s layoff clause

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor won a key showdown with business Thursday when the Senate voted to keep in the trade bill requirement that firms with at least 100 workers provide 60 days notice of plant closings or mass layoffs.

The Senate voted 60-40 against an effort by Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., to strike the amendment requiring advance notice from the bill. Quayle tried an anti-competitive “killer amendment” guaranteeing a presidential veto of the trade bill.

Amendment sponsors were jubilant.

“This is a great victory for labor,” said Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, chief sponsor of the amendment requiring advance notice.

The vote means “the right to (advance) notice has been enunciated loudly and clearly” by the Senate, Metzenbaum said, but he added: “I don’t think you can say the labor (legislative) agenda is off and running” in the Democratic-controlled Senate as a result of the victory.

If the advance notice provision becomes law, he said, “workers have gained a very considerable (new) right.”

“The days of the feudal borough are over in the United States of America,” added Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., co-sponsor of the Metzenbaum amendment. “The question is whether we are going to treat people like people or treat people like cattle and chattel.

Metzenbaum said his amendment was “just a matter of simple humanity, simple decency,” and would have a “shock absorber” effect for laid off workers.

Small businesses and those making temporary layoffs due to cyclical economic swings also would be exempted from the amendment.
Shamir denies demoting agent for Iran-Contra role

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir denied a report Thursday that he had stripped Amir Nir, a key Israeli figure in the Iran arms affair, of his authority as a counterterrorism adviser.

A spokesman for Shamir dismissed a report in The Washington Post that Nir lost his authority because he allegedly lied to Shamir about a secret meeting he held earlier this month with Moshe Gharbanian, an Iranian military figure and another figure central to the scandal.

The Post, quoting informed Israeli sources, said Shamir has not fired Nir because that could be viewed as an admission that Israel erred in its role in the Iran arms deal.

"It is not true," Shamir's spokesman, Avi Pazner, said of the newspaper report. "I talked to the prime minister, and he emphatically denies the story in The Washington Post. Nir continues its function as before."

Pazner also quoted Shamir as saying, "I did not strip him of anything." Shamir himself was not available for comment.

The Post story prompted Lt. Col. Oliver North, testifying before the Iran-Contra congressional committees publicly express his regret over Nir.

Nir was one of the first instigators of connections between the United States and Iran and was part of what has been called "the first channel."

"He is a brave man who has served his country well," North said of Nir. "And I believe that we would like in carrying out our policies well."

He praised Nir's "intestinal fortitude" in making the secret May 1986 trip to Iran with North and former National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane.

"That, gentlemen, is to me, an indication of bravery."

Church calls for halt to violence

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — Leaders of the rebel African National Congress called Wednesday for an urgent end to political violence and criticized the use of "nationalist rhetoric" as a smokescreen to hide political violence.

The Bishops Conference, in a statement dated Wednesday and read Tuesday, urged "reconciliation" among Panamanians, criticized by political, social, economic and ideological walls.

"It is urgent that we put a halt to the violence that has emerged among us like cruel specters," the bishops said.

The statement addressed Panamanians who, in the wake of the crisis sparked last month by opposition demonstrations demanding the removal of military strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, who has been accused of a wide range of illegal activities.

In veiled criticism of the government, the bishops warned against "continuing to use the powers of state to favor partisan positions" and said a "free and sovereign nation" is impossible while the "right to dissent" is not protected.

Opposition leaders charge armed pro-government groups have attacked protesters.

The bishops also condemned the "exploit" of nationalistic sentiments to "distract attention and relieve the anguish and the melancholy of the current crisis." They were apparently referring to efforts by government political parties to call into question the patriotism of opponents.

Noriega, considered the power behind the government of President Oscar Antonio Velasquez, has charged opposition leaders are being egged on by conservatives in Washington who want to undermine treaties giving Panama control of the Panama Canal in the year 2000.

Last month, the bishops issued a similar statement criticizing a state of emergency imposed by the government June 11.

The emergency rule, which suspended key constitutional rights, was lifted last week.

Rebel leaders urge end to apartheid

DAKAR, Senegal (UPI) — Leaders of the rebel African National Congress meeting in Dakar today told white South Africans attending the meeting in Dakar they should join in ending the "tyranny of apartheid."

"We South Africans have to achieve our own liberation," ANC leader Thabo Mbeki told the South Africans, mostly members of the ruling African National Congress group, at the start of a three-day meeting at the Dakar fairground.

On our shoulders rests the task of abolishing apartheid and turning South Africa into a multi-racial society," he said in the opening address to about 60 South African academics, clerics, men, artists, sportsmen and politicians.

"Still greater numbers will persist in fighting a tyranny that oppresses both black and white," he added.

The talks also have been condemned by the Conservative Party.

Stars and Stripes skipper readies for defense of Cup

PORTO CERVO, Sardinia (UPI) — Stars and Stripes skipper Conner has already begun planning his 1990 defense of the America's Cup.

"Decisions are being made right now," Conner said, "whether you win or lose," said the tanned, 44-year-old boss of the $20 million, 9,000-square-foot America's Cup challenger that owned the United States to seize the trophy in 1988. Conner was flying over Sardinia to hold a February off Fremanville, Australia.

Conner and most of the crew members who raced with him in the 1988 America's Cup, which ended in the semifinals, were prompted by the unrest in South Korea as the Games will take place and be hosted by Seoul next year. But that didn't stop Conner from saying that he was confident the games won't be affected by the situation, and we will have a very successful Olympics. The only factor yet to be decided, he said, was the role of North Korea in hosting some events.

"We will go on in Seoul," he said. "If the Games cannot take place there, we will have no Games. We are not considering any other city to take the Olympic Games."

Several cities, including 1964 Olympics host Tokyo, have already been eliminated in the semifinals, partially because of Mediterranean breezes that would have been lost.

"This was like our convention, and if you miss it, then you're not up on things. The Games were a chance to talk shop in a little bit more relaxed atmosphere than at the America's Cup."

The sun-drenched series on the northeastern tip of Sardinia served another valuable competitive purpose.

"This was probably one of our last opportunities for some time to sail against our competitors," he said. "Without this benchmark, we wouldn't have had a very accurate starting point."

With cup deadlines already looming — "how about your design team, your marketing plan, your sailors, where are you going to train, how many boats are you going to build?" — Conner has already begun planning his 1990 defense of the America's Cup.

"Many things have changed," Conner said. "What's in the world of sailing was here: all the sailors, all the sailmakers, all the designers and builders."

"Frankly, the speed we had relative to the other boats meant that we had to sail just to finish fourth in the fleet-racing portion of the championship."

Stars and Stripes was at a disadvantage in removing against the light-air boats — different craft from those that competed in the A-class conditions. But the trip to Sardinia was really a cruise, Conner said.

"This has been the sailing capital of the world for two weeks," he said. "Who's who, in the world of sailing was here: all the sailors, all the sailmakers, all the designers and builders."

"It will certainly be a designer's paradise," Conner said.

One thing that has remained constant is the spark of the Stars and Stripes crew.

Coach Scott's basketball camp still has openings

Olympic bosses: ‘Just say no’ to birth control

FRANKTOWN, Colo. (UPI) — Orders from the International Olympic Committee banning some oral contraceptives from the 1988 Olympics has angered some American women cyclists.

Marshall and other women at the race were given a letter from the U.S. Olympic Committee. It said the IOC had banned the use of any contraceptive with the substance "noretisterone." The letter said resistance was performance-enhancing.

Recreation camp focuses on fun, learning

The SIUC Recreational Multi-Sports Camp, open to youths eight-14, gets underway Monday. The four-day commuter camp will teach sports fundamentals, nutrition, and exercise. Special emphasis will also be given to drug and alcohol awareness.

The camp is divided into four main parts: "Athletics," featuring tennis, marial arts, volleyball, swimming, basketball, soccer and racquetball.

The "Life-Long Leisure Pursuit Division" of the camp includes Frisbee, dance, creative games, aquatics, soccer, basketball, and horses.

"Interdisciplinary Experiences" teaches Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR), first aid, drug and alcohol awareness and proper dietary habits.

"Special Olympics" features a canoe trip, wacky olympics, field trips and campwide tournaments.

Registration fee is $100. This covers transportation, a lunch and a gym bag.

To register, Jane Andrew H. Marshall, coordinator, Division of Continuing Education, at 536-7751.

All-Star teams ready to go

Battered Cubs still plan to play

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Cubs second baseman Ryne Sandberg predicts he’ll know by the end of the week whether he’ll be able to play in Tuesday’s All-Star Game in Oakland.

Sandberg, on the 15-day disabled list with a fractured ankle, was voted the National League starting second baseman in balloting announced Wednesday.

“I should know something by Saturday,” said Sandberg, who began taking batting practice this week. “It will be up to me, the doctors and the Cubs.’

Cubs outfielder Andre Dawson, also voted a starter, expects to play despite suffering a swollen left cheek when he was beaned Tuesday by San Diego pitcher Eric Show.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mark McGwire, a rookie on a pace to approach Roger Maris’ single-season record for home runs, leads 20 players named Thursday to the American League All-Star team.

McGwire, with 31 home runs and 64 RBI entering Thursday’s game, joins Kansas City veteran third baseman George Brett, who failed for the first time in 12 seasons to be elected by the fans.

McGwire became the second consecutive rookie slugger from Oakland to make the team. Last year, Jose Canseco did it, and went on to become the AL Rookie of the Year. McGwire has achieved his home-run total in Oakland’s first 83 games. When Maris hit 61 homers in 1961, he needed only 77 games to hit his first 31 homers.

Manager John McNamara and AL President Dr. Bobby Brown also selected in the infield Cleveland first baseman Pat Tabler, second baseman Lou Whitaker and shortstop Alan Trammell of Detroit and Toronto shortstop Tony Fernandez.

Mets’ Mike Piazza, Minnesota’s Kirby Puckett, Texas’ Larry Parrish, Chicago’s Harold Baines and San Diego’s Dwight Evans join the team as outfields.

Detroit’s Matt Nokes made the team as a backup catcher.

NL President Bart Giamatti and Mets Manager Dave John selected an eight-man pitching staff of Fernandez, Philadelphia’s Steve Bedrosian, Los Angeles’ Orel Hershiser, Cincinnati’s John Franco, Pittsburgh’s Rich Neulother, Houston’s Mike Scott and Chicago’s Lee Smith and Russ Sel目的地. Cincinnati’s Bob Diz and Atlanta’s Ozzie Virgil back up starting catcher Carter.

The NL named a reserve infield of Philadelphia second baseman Juan Samuel, and third baseman Tim Wallach and shortstop Rubie Brooks.

Braswell goes full-time with women’s sports

By Darren Richardson

The Sports Information office at Davies will be able to get the job done more efficiently this fall thanks to the addition of a full-time assistant sports information director.

Hal Braswell, who has worked in either a part-time or graduate assistant capacity at the information office since 1982, will assist Women’s Sports Information Director Mitch Parkinson in coordinating media coverage, compiling statistics and playing up sports events.

“With a permanent staff position, there’s more continuity as opposed to a graduate assistant’s position,” Braswell said. "This will take a lot of the load off Mitch. It’s very hard for him to tell part-time personnel to cover everything about a certain sport because, obviously, they’re only there part of the time.”

Braswell said he knew of very few universities nationwide which had two full-time women’s sports information employees. He said the extra manpower would enable women’s sports to possibly get more media coverage.

“When you look around the country,” Sid(s) have to adjust the services they provide to have available manpower,” Braswell said. “We do better opposition.”

Braswell said he worked as a writer in a variety of media roles and settings.

When a high concentration of recruiting efforts are ongoing, like St. Louis or Chicago.

Hometown feature stories help recruiting, Braswell said, by familiarizing readers and potential students with the Saluki name.

The biggest problem of working on a part-time basis, Braswell said, was to do everything he wanted to do.

“It’s very hectic during the school year when you’ve got so much going on,” Braswell said. “When you think about the amount of work required for each of the 10 women’s sports and only having one full-time person and a part-time assistant to get it done, you can begin to see how much of a task it is. It was hard to be part-time and do as good a job as I wanted to.

“I don’t think the average person realizes how much goes into sporting events,” Braswell said. “Not just from a sports information standpoint, but behind the scenes; promotion, event management, media liaison. That goes on is just unbelievable, especially with the bigger events.”

Braswell said sometimes an occasional protest is voiced about the budgets for major collegiate athletics. It’s a lot more to the picture than meets the eye.

“A lot of people don’t realize high-visibility athletics bring in more contributions to create a favorable image for the school.

When (and if) North gets boring, tune to C. America's peace talks

By Rosary M. Dalba
Staff Writer

There are two ways to put off the inevitable water doldrums.

One is the highly touted testimony of Col. Oliver North, now before congressional committees, investigating the Iran-Contra affair. It promises to be a spectacle that might have inspired the earlier question: "What did the President know and when did he know it?"

The second is yet to come. It is the final conference of Central American nations that will discuss the Contadora peace plan. At this roundtable, which is being held in Esquipulas to discuss the economic and political instability of the region, the United States may provide the largest, single stumbling block to that process.

AN END TO the conflict in Nicaragua that would be devised and implemented by the people and governments of Central America, exactly the solution key American foreign policy strategists are seeking. Reagan wants to avoid a clash with the Sandinista forces in Nicaragua. Knowing Americans have little stomach for the direct invasion of Nicaragua, CIA and Pentagon officers and military strategists schemed to give the United States the opportunity to provide financial and military backing to a pro-Honduran Central American government that is at odds with the Sandinistas. (Sorry boys, you have to supply your own buddies.)

After dubbing the plan a low-intensity conflict strategy, Reid and the Pentagon and the U.S. Southern Command in Panama eventually agreed to articulate a concept called "security defense." Under this plan, which was initiated by the U.S. Army broadened its mission in Central America to include economic development and aid, economic military exercises, small unit training and joint training maneuvers. Reagan couldn't march the Marines into Managua, but he could move American soldiers into the region in a show of force, clearly meant to intimidate Ortega.

ONE SUCH staging ground is Honduras, which the U.S. views as the key to restoring stability in Central America.

In 1980 the United States had 25 advisers in Honduras. In the past seven years, however, more than 40,000 U.S. troops have trained in Honduras, with maneuvers in the region planned until 1996. The buildup began in 1983 with joint military maneuvers. In 1984 the controversial Reaching Trails maneuvers—ostensibly to build roads—began, with U.S. National Guardsmen spending two-week rotations in north-central Honduras.

Although many Americans cannot pinpoint Honduras on a map, it is a given position. It borders three of the four Central American countries, with 400 miles of border on the southeast.

In Esquipulas, agriculture accounts for more than 60 percent of the workforce, but between 120,000 and 150,000 peasant families have no land.

Contras were fleeing from the Sandinista forces in Nicaragua, they choose the mountains of the southeastern region of Honduras to set up their headquarters. United presence in the impoverished nation of four million grows steadily in the past seven years, commensurate with the amount of U.S. military and economic aid Honduras is receiving.

The only country in this hemisphere that is poorer is Haiti. And Bolivia is for the title of poorest nation on the American continent. Honduras has received $1.5 billion in U.S. aid since 1981, with $700 million going toward economic development, and $250 million for military assistance. U.S. economic aid for this fiscal year is $131.6 million, with military assistance at $61.2 million, compared with $89 million in 1981.

The already struggling Honduran economy has suffered because of the encampment of Contra forces in the south. Cattle, Honduras' second largest export after bananas, rapidly has lost ground because the Contras literally have ticked many small coffee growers off their land.

Agriculture accounts for more than 60 percent of the workforce, between 120,000 and 150,000 peasant families have no land. Unemployment is at 25 percent. Half the nation is without electricity, and 80 percent of the annual per capita income ranges from $120 to $800. President Jose Azcona Hoya, bowing to growing anti-American sentiments in the country, and the Contras have promised to leave Honduras.

AZCONA'S OPPONENTS accuse him of being a U.S. puppet, say most Honduran policy emanates from the U.S. embassy in Tegucigalpa. There are 200 American personnel at the U.S. Embassy in Tegucigalpa. In Moscow it's 213.

According to Azcona, the destiny of Honduras will be decided within our borders. "Latin America's military presence and the economic dependence of Honduras on U.S. economic aid indicates otherwise.

Honduras' role at the conference is indeed critical if its conduct is being determined in Washington. Novelist Carlos Fuentes has stated succinctly that Latin America's own destiny cannot be countermanded. "Since the early 20th century, Latin America has attempted to construct an edifice of legal obligations with the United States, to reduce the asymmetry of power in the hemisphere and construct a new relationship based on mutual respect and cooperation, not on domination. But Reagan has shown us that the use of force and disregard for the law in dealing with Latin America are not things of the past."

In light of these efforts, it seems to me that Latin Americans have to say to themselves and their history, their law, their future?"

Park beauty is preserving of the alcoholban

I would like to continue supporting the alcohol ban at Tulrey Park during the Summer. As a resident of Marigold, I think the taxpayers of the district should have an opportunity to listen to music in an environment free from alcohol. I support the alcohol ban at Tulrey Park as well as the alcohol ban at all public alcoholic beverages at various social gatherings and recreation facilities. However, I think it is inappropriate to have alcohol consumption at the park.

Ever since its inception in the late 19th century, the park and recreation movement has had a philosophy of health and well-being promotion through involvement in recreational activities. Parks are a symbol of health and natural beauty in the community.

On the other hand, alcohol consumption traditionally has been prohibited at most commercial and private institutions. I believe the park will have no problems in promoting recreation that can be enjoyed without the consumption of alcohol. This is a role that traditionally has been taken by these organizations and it simply provides the message that there are times and places where people can enjoy themselves without alcohol present.

In today's society there is an increasing awareness of the negative effects of alcohol. In light of these efforts, it seems that the park district should have an even stronger mandate in demonstrating the alternative forms of recreation that are available without the consumption of alcohol. — Douglas McEwen, associate professor recreation.

"Cutting this much has the effect of putting a $20 million on the table," Guyon said. "Some offers have already been made and we will honor those." Guyon said. "Some of the positions open are necessary to the operation."

Pettit said there is little hope the Legislature will reverse its stand on higher taxes. He submitted a preliminary budget "wish list" for the 1989 fiscal year that calls for an increase in spending of 5.3 percent.

The budget request calls for $263.3 million for SIUC and $1.96 million for administration. The budget also proposes a 13 percent salary increase for most employees, a total of 18.7 million.

The board is expected to act on a more detailed version of the budget, which must be submitted to the Illinois Board of Higher Education in October. Although the document is an "honored expression of needs," Pettit said, it will be difficult to convince the Legislature to approve it. "It will be difficult to reach those goals," Pettit said.

year period, Pettit said. Buchanan, Bellows and Associate will design the project, which should save about $90,000 annually. It cost $45,000 for electricity last year at the house, which has electric heating and cooling systems.

The proposed changes are the result of an energy audit, which suggested installation of a $80,800 "variable volume air system" and a $27,000 microcomputer energy management system.

The air system will control the speed of the system's fans and the microcomputer will control the system's temperature.

The board also awarded a $35,000 contract to United Thermal Industries of Marion to remove asbestos insulation at Orange Hall.

Repairs close parking lots

Parking lot 48 near the tennis courts and lot 52 on the hill by the arena are closed today and will not be in use for two to three weeks. Merilyn Hogan, parking division director, said students with red decals may park in lot 23, southwest of the health service, will be closed Wednesday. Students with red decals may use lot 23, east of the lawn.

The lots are closing for lighting and resurfacing projects.

Clarification

Robert G. Lauer says he served as SIU-C president on a temporary basis after the resignation of Delyte W. Morin in 1974, and had specifically requested that his title not include the term "acting president." An article in Tuesday's DE had referred to both Lauer and former acting president Hiram Lesar by that same title.

Some offers have already been made and we will honor those," Guyon said. "Some of the positions open are necessary to the operation."

NASA gets $9.5 billion to resume use of rockets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee approved a $9.5 billion authorization for NASA Thursday, including directives that the space agency resume the use of expendable rockets in addition to the payloads into orbit.

The provision reflects the committee’s view that NASA relied too heavily on the space shuttle program, which has been out of business since the crash of the Challenger last year.

“The Challenger accident taught us never again to put all our eggs in one basket or in one launch vehicle.”

Health group earns award for services

The health education department’s chapter ofEta Sigma Gamma has been named the nation’s outstanding chapter of the year. Eta Sigma Gamma, a national health professional and health science honorary organization, is represented by 77 chapters.

“Leadership by Judy Drolet, associate professor and faculty advisor, and Joyce Fryer, doctoral student and local chapter president, along with the participation and hard work of students and faculty made the award possible,” Don Boydston, chairman of the health education department, said.

The organization sponsored research, service and educational activities. The award, Boydston said.

Some of the activities were: wellness attitudes and practices research among students; support for the Foundations of Health Education annual research symposium; co-sponsors of World Health Day; support and participation in fundraising for the SIU Foundation; participation in the March of Dimes campaign; and sponsorship of educational conferences on qualitative research, health care delivery systems and learning styles.

Workers needed by Simon in Iowa

There will be a meeting on account testing and assisting The Paul Simon campaign in Iowa. The meeting will be at 6 p.m. Sunday in the Student Center Renaissance Room.

The meeting is for those interested in traveling or writing letters to Iowa this summer.

Program offers summer relief to needy

The Western Egyptian Outreach office, 1461 Walnut, Murphysboro, is taking applications for its "medically necessitated cooling program." The program provides utility grants for people with medical conditions that can be made better or more tolerable by running fans and air conditioners in their homes.

These conditions include asthma, allergies, lung disease, stroke and cardiovascular disease. The existence of one or more of these conditions must be certified by qualified medical personnel. Applicants must be able to demonstrate financial need. Applications, taken by appointment only, can be made by calling 684-3341.

Camera-toting policeman shoots to please

By Bill West
Staff Writer

Nelson Ferry, Community Relations Officer for the SIU-C police, probably shoots better with a camera than a handgun, but don't tell his boss that.

Ferry, who isn't ugly but describes himself as "big and ugly," said his interest in photography began with an in-service police evidence course that included photographing crime scenes and motor vehicle accidents.

Before that, most of his spare time was devoted to leisure fishing and tournament bass fishing on lakes in Southern Illinois. He got started in taxidermy because he liked having his catches mounted and hung on his wall.

"THE FIRST time I thought I had an artistic bone in my body was when I began mounting fish," Ferry said.

His art teacher in Taylorville High School once suggested that he would be doing both of them a favor if he somehow managed to discontinue taking art class, he said.

Ferry mounted more than 300 fish in a six-year span before he decided that taxidermy wasn't leaving enough time for photography.

He enrolled in an advanced photography class at John A. Logan College and received a great deal of encouragement from instructor Bob White. Ferry started at SIU-C when he completed the advanced class. After changing his major several times, the East St. Louis native enrolled in the two-year photographic production technology program available through the School of Technical Careers.

THE PPT program was instrumental in giving him an opportunity to start his photography business, Ferry said.

Advice from instructors Bob White and Jack Holterfield has helped me understand the different ways to use studio lighting.

The first wedding Ferry photographed was, in a sense, an unwanted opportunity.

"I didn't really want to do it, be the lady bugged the hell out of me, so I went ahead and shot the wedding," he said. "I was a 17-year-old wreck. I just knew that my film would turn out blank." However, everything came out fine, Ferry said.

His first attempt at portrait work won an award from Kodak. That provided just the motivation he needed to keep the hobby he has been with for more than 17 years.

When working in the studio, he has employed his wife Janet to operate the bubble machine for some photos. The name Creative Images for Ferry's studio was the brainchild of his 13-year-old daughter Angel.

"I get off shooting non-traditional photos," he said. "I recently convinced a couple celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary to have their picture taken while posing with a bunch of stuffed animals."
