Enrollment for summer increases

By Allan Towell

and University News Service

To the surprise of University officials, summer enrollment at SIUC rose like the mercury in a Southern Illinois thermometer in July. 1991 summer enrollment stands at 11,821 students, an increase of 295 more than last summer.

SIUC President John C. Guyon said he was pleased to learn of the increase.

"Of course an enrollment increase like this is beneficial to the university," Guyon said.

"A larger number of enrolled students is helpful to both our summer programs and our income fund." Guyon said the currently weak national economy is probably a major contributor to the increase.

"Conventional wisdom says that as students are faced with greater difficulty finding summer employment, they are more likely to remain in school," he said.

Guyon said despite the summer increase, fall enrollment still is expected to be down 4 percent from the 1990 total.

B. Kirby Browning, director of Admissions and Records, said the summer increase had not been expected.

"It was a bit of a surprise," Browning said. "We expected it to be down a little."

Browning agreed the increase could be a reflection of the current economic recession. He said students might be staying in school longer, hoping the job market opens up.

On-campus summer enrollment grew by 450 students to 8,793. The total includes 81 students who arrived in Carbondale from SIUC's branch campus in Nakajo, Japan.

Browning said while there is no noticeable increase in any one school or college, the total includes a larger than usual number of continuing juniors, seniors and graduate students. It is the highest on-campus summer enrollment since 1975.

The off-campus enrollment total is 3,031 — 45 more students than last year.

The off-campus total includes 250 students in general education courses at the Nakajo campus.

The overall count shows 8,602 undergraduates, 2,894 graduate students, 105 law students and 220 students in medical studies.

Not everyone happy with new couple

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

The opening of the East-West Couple may have eased traffic and the minds of many in Carbondale, but it brings new worries for some.

Phyllis Patterson, a 16-year resident of West Walnut Street, watched Tuesday morning as more vehicles than ever before drove in front of her house.

"It's all cut and dried," she said. "If the couple makes traffic flow better, I guess I'll be a victim on the system.

Walnut Street once had two-way traffic, but is now one-way and a part of Illinois Route 13. The couple opened at about midnight Tuesday and changed Main Street into a one-way street going west and Walnut Street to one-way going east.

Patterson said she is worried extra traffic will tear up the street faster than before.

Lip service: USG gets voice in chamber

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Carbondale business leaders and SIUC student government representatives may not agree on all issues, but the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday granted the Undergraduate Student Government representation at future chamber meetings.

Bud Cole, USG chief of staff, said he thinks having regular student representation can make a difference with problems some students say they are having with merchants.

"It shows we're moving in the right direction," he said. "If concerns come up, we can take care of them."

Similar to the representation USG now has at City Council meetings, the representative will not have a vote, but will be able to convey student opinions as determined by USG.

USG President Jack Sullivan said he was happy with the decision and thinks the relationship with the chamber is going in the right direction.

"We'll be glad to send someone so we can avoid future problems," he said.

Monday Sullivan and Cole presented Joe Kesler, president of the chamber, and Jim Prowell, executive director of the chamber, with a list of complaints about merchants USG has received from students.

$1 billion in home burglaries lost each year nationwide

By Wayne Frazer

The summer months mean vacation time for many students and families. To thieves, summer means easier burglaries.

June, July and August are the busiest months for robbers. Victims lose more than $1 billion a year in more than six million home and apartment burglaries nationwide each year, according to the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority.

Faculty Senate wants veto on bill killing flier bonuses

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

If the General Assembly has it's way, the sky won't be too friendly for most state workers.

The legislature has proposed a bill eliminating frequent flier bonus points for state employees, but the bill exempts legislators, judiciary members and their employees.

SIUC Faculty Senate President Donald Paige was outraged by the proposal and he along with the rest of the Faculty Senate proposed a resolution calling for a veto of the bill.

"Take faculty members who work for a grant and then travel, They should get the bonus," Page said.

SIU also offers courses at military bases throughout the United States. Taking travel bonuses away from professors who use their personal time to teach these classes is unfair, he said.
South Africa returns to Olympics

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (UPI) -- South Africa, long a pariah in the international sports world, Tuesday returned to the Olympics 21 years after being expelled for its racist apartheid policy.

The move was announced by the International Olympic Committee from its headquarters and means South Africa will be eligible to compete at the 1992 Winter Games in Albertville, France, and the 1992 Summer Games in Barcelona, Spain.

South Africa last appeared in the Olympics in Rome in 1960. Ten years later the country was formally ejected from the IOC.

In announcing its decision, the IOC pointed to South Africa's compliance in abolition of apartheid laws, non-racial unification of South African sports and normalization of relationships with African sports organizations.

The final hurdle was cleared when IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch endorsed a recommendation by his group's Apartheid and Olympism Commission.

The announcement, ending one of the most vexing issues facing the IOC, was made minutes after Keke Mpho of Soweto, the commission chairman and an IOC vice president, recommended reinstatement.

His recommendation followed a meeting with the Interim National Olympic Committee of South Africa in the presence of delegates from the South African National Olympic Committee.

Mpho said South Africa had fulfilled the conditions set by the IOC in granting the country's provisional membership in March.

The statement, in part, said: "The Apartheid and Olympism Commission, having met with INOSA in the presence of representatives of South African Olympic Charter, that it has undertaken to do so that it has successfully embarked on the

Tennis teachers provide lessons to budding kids

By John Sommerhof

Some of the tennis racquets were almost as big as the players holding them Tuesday at the law school tennis courts, but ambitions were not small at the first day of the Intramural-Recreational Sports Youth Tennis Program.

Greg Potter and Nobu Onogi were teaching the young players.

Potter said most of the kids, ranging in ages from 10 to 17, never had had any instruction.

"This is the first day and we are trying to teach them a good grip and the forehand stroke," he said.

The tennis instruction will emphasize forehand, backhand, groundstrokes and net play and the rules of the game.

"Right now they just like to hit the ball whether it is in or not," Potter said, as player Daniel Cole swayed a tennis ball into the court next to the one on which he was playing.

Potter said it was too early to tell who would be good players but said Cole was a natural tennis player.

Cole, a 12 year old from Carbondale, said he hopes to play tennis in high school.

"I'm a very competitive person," he said.

"I like tennis because a lot of people think I'm small, and in tennis it doesn't matter about size," Cole said.

Cole said he doesn't like to watch tennis on television; he just likes to play.

Learning the fundamentals of tennis is not the only goal of the instruction.

Potter said they also are teaching the children the way to be good sports.

Kathy Hollister, assistant director of recreation for special populations, said it is important to teach children at a young age

Campus Lake offers beach, sporting area to community

By Rob Nett

University student John Ray sits in a raised chair and keeps a watchful eye over Campus Lake Tuesday.

Another student sitting on a raft in the swimming area yells over to him for the time.

Ray yells back that it's 5 p.m., then turns to his friends on the shore and says "Is he getting hot already?" He's got another 20 minutes out there.

Ray, a senior in psychology from Danville, is a lifeguard at Campus Beach.

Although the work sometimes gets hot, Ray says he enjoys it.

"I like working out in the sun and the outdoors in a social atmosphere," he said.

Thomas Chan, a junior in finance from Hong Kong and a fellow lifeguard, agreed.

"We get the girls and we've got the fresh air," he said.

Ray said beside swimming and sunbathing, beach users also can play volleyball on the court provided on the beach.

Lake-on-the-Campus is a 20-acre lake in an area that includes a boat house, docks, a 650-foot swimming beach, fishing areas, recreation areas and a two-mile path.

Campus Beach is full of students, guests and young children visiting the campus during the hot days of summer.

"About 50 people use the beach everyday," she said.

"We get a lot of younger kids. There are about five different groups, and they make special arrangements with the Rec before coming here. We get a lot of students, too, but we're only open until 4 p.m."

Football team punts game out of Busch

A game between the Saluki football team and Southeast Missouri State on August 31 will no longer be played at Busch Stadium in St. Louis.

The Southeast athletic department moved the Aug. 31 meeting to Houck Stadium in Cape Girardeau because of recent Missouri budget cuts.

"We were looking forward to playing the game at Busch Stadium, but with the latest budget cuts, it seems only appropriate that we cut our expenses by playing the game at Houck Stadium," said Southeast athletic director Richard McDuffie in a press release from Southeast Sports Information.

Southeast had requested the game be played at the stadium home of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The game will kick off at 2 p.m. in southeast territory.
EX-CIA official pleads guilty to withholding information

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former senior CIA official pleaded guilty Tuesday to withholding information from Congress, providing new information about the extent and nature of CIA’s involvement in the Iran-Contra affair, which resulted in the former CIA director, Adm. William P. “ Tricksy” Flick Jr., who headed the CIA’s Central American Task Force, pleaded guilty to two misdemeanor charges and promised to cooperate with the Senate’s investigation into the Iran-Contra investigation. The guilty plea by Flick is expected to lead to an internal review of Robert Gates, a senior CIA official who has been nominated by President Bush to lead the agency.

Violence between Serbia, Croatia re-ignites

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Fresh Serb-Croat violence Monday left at least two people dead in Croatia, and a team of diplomats arrived in Belgrade to complete details of an international observer group that will monitor compliance with a European Community-brokered peace plan. Meanwhile, the Yugoslav government said its military has arrested four Bosnian leaders on their alleged failure to fully begin the EC accord, which is aimed at giving the country’s leaders time to discuss its future and avert civil war. The Yugoslav Presidency complained the breakaway republic had flamed a Monday deadline for demobilizing all its militia units.

Iraq accused of hiding extent of arms program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States accused Iraq Tuesday of failing to disclose the full extent of its nuclear weapon program, suggesting that the Iraqi government may possess enough enriched uranium to produce at least one atomic bomb. Iraqi Foreign Minister Ahmad Hussein claimed that Iraq ordered that weapons-grade material be hidden to safeguard civilianemies against intensive military bombing and denied that the move thwarted an international non-proliferation law. The foreign minister’s remarks were revealed Tuesday and are included in a document Iraq presented to the U.N. Secretary General.

Thomas ‘benefited greatly’ from civil rights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas said Tuesday he “benefited greatly” from the civil rights movement and past criticism of “some are trying to move the goal posts” measuring the success or failure of the war against Iraq. Contrary to criticism that he failed to achieve “instant democracy in Kuwait” or “the total demise of Saddam Hussein,” Bush insisted the triumph was in assembling an international coalition.

Group recommends replacing Gates, commission

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The commission appointed to investigate allegations of institutional racism and violence within the Police Department recommended in its report released Tuesday that Chief Daryl Gates and the Los Angeles Police Commission be replaced by a new police chief appointed by the Independent Commission on the Los Angeles Police Department found a “problem group” of racist officers and a penchant for violence that has occurred in the past. The commission is of the view that it has been able to confirm the reports by commanders. The commission found a problem of excessive force in the LAPD, said John Spinell, chief counsel to the commission.

Expert: Shade eyes during eclipse

By Christine Leninger Staff Writer

People who look to the skies for inspiration may want to look with caution on Thursday afternoon. A partial eclipse of the sun is expected to happen at about 2 p.m. David Meinl, nomologist of television station KYVS Cape Girardeau.

"Southern Illinois viewers will see the moon barely rip the lower edge of the sun," Meinl said. "Roughly 30 percent of the sun will be obscured."

It will be most visible in Hawaii, Mexico and Brazil where the sun will be completely covered for seven minutes.

Viewing the sun during this partial eclipse will be no more dangerous than viewing the sun on a normal day, but it is no less dangerous either. Looking at the sun directly can cause damage to the eyes.

"Looking at the sun is not suggested," said Robert Zitter, professor of physics at SIUC, "because the image is sharp. The sun will burn a hole in the back of the eye. It doesn't hurt but can cause blindness."

Those who desire a vision of one of the world's most impressive phenomena should take precautions.

"One way to safely view the eclipse is with a pinhole device. Punch a pinhole through a piece of cardboard and let sunlight pass through it onto a sheet of white paper. Move the paper forward and back until the image is sharply focused," Zitter said.

Another way to watch the eclipse is to look for the images of sun cast on the ground under a tree by natural pinholes formed by overlapping leaves. This device requires no additional materials to view.

"Zitter said timing is the key when dealing with eclipses."

"Normally eclipses occur twice a year, but because the moon's orbit is tilted, the odds of a perfect alignment of the sun, moon and Earth is slim," Zitter said.

"Because of the timing aspect of eclipses, this could be the last eclipse of the century," he said.

In a total eclipse, the moon completely covers the image of the sun in the sky.

For those who can't see the eclipse in SIUC, the sun's shadow may be visible. In total eclipses, only the moon's shadow will be visible. Scientists measure light from stars reflected by sun," Zitter said.

Zitter said the concept was first introduced by Albert Einstein and is still being researched.

There are two types of eclipses. In a solar eclipse the moon blocks part of all of the sun's image and in a lunar eclipse the Earth's shadow blocks the moon's image. Zitter said the last total eclipse visible in Southern Illinois was nearly 10 years ago. The next total eclipse will not occur until the year 2017.

State group protests violence, boycotts "Terminator 2" movie

By Allan Towell Staff Writer

Despite the film's rave reviews and enormous ticket sales, a national anti-violence organization is doing what it can to terminate "Terminator 2: Judgment Day." The Champaign-based National Coalition on Television Violence has organized several religious and parent groups across the nation in a boycott of "Terminator 2" starring Arnold Schwarzenegger.

The organization is protesting what it perceives as Hollywood's refusal on violence entertainment. Dennis Molfese, professor of psychology, said extended exposure to violent entertainment or behavior tends to desensitize individuals to acts of violence.

"An individual already prone to violence, one may see imitation of violent acts which are shown in a movie or on TV, and conversely, in a timid individual, probably no change in behavior would be seen," Molfese said.

Molfese said general attitudes toward victims of violent crimes like assault and rape can be affected by exposure to violence, causing people to become less sensitive to the plight of the victim. "What we see in the media contributes to our sense of what behaviors are socially acceptable," Molfese said.

"In the case of violence, over time people can come to think such behavior is less aberrant or even excusable," he said.

NCTV Chairperson and Research Director Thomas Radecki, who is a licensed psychologist, said his organization believes Hollywood does not take evidence concerning the effects of violent entertainment seriously.

The NCTV points to "overwhelming" evidence from over 1,000 research studies that the group claims prove the harmfulness of violent entertainment-exposure, especially for younger viewers.

"Three consecutive U.S. Surgeons General, and the American Medical, Psychiatric and Psychological Associations have all come out with statements opposing extreme media violence," Radecki said.

"There is evidence that violence is primarily a learned behavior," he added. "But until the public can send a clear message to film makers that extremely violent films won't be tolerated, Hollywood will continue to turn a deaf ear to this evidence."

Even though a strong anti-war movement is included in the plot of "Terminator 2," Radecki said this does not change the film's real message.

"Despite the movie's positive subplot, the film's repeated use of imagery and repeated violence teaches a barbaric warrior ethic that violence is the best and almost only way to stop more violence," Radecki said.

Edward Varsa, who would like to see a new rating category, "TV," established by the film industry to rate and screen extremely violent films.

Complete resident Kelley Raino, the mother of two pre-teen sons, said she would not be taking her children into a "Terminator 2" movie. "I believe her children would be disturbed by a movie like "Terminator 2," she said. "They would be prone to have nightmares and to fear strangers and unfamiliar situations."

"Unlike cartoon violence, movie violence is not indistinguishable from reality in their eyes," she said.

The summer movies "Robin Hood: Men in Tights," "Princess Bride" and "The Rocketeer" and "Hamdon Hawk" starring Bruce Willis are other films that Varsa feels are aimed at pre-teens and teens, NCTV officials said.

Marshall’s decisions made a difference

THURGOOD MARSHALL WAS NOT a household name before news of his retirement made the headlines on June 78. But the impact he has made on freedom of speech and civil liberties has and will be felt by all Americans.

Justice Marshall lead a basic commitment to objectively interpreting the law for the liberty of Americans. But his engagement in fighting for liberties began years before his appointment in 1967. This commitment was launched when he argued the case of Brown vs. Board of Education in 1952, the landmark case that outlawed racially segregated schools. Marshall has said that segregation is the worst thing that has ever happened.

HE WAS A PIONEER in the field of civil rights law. He argued 32 cases before the Supreme Court and won 20 of those. This achievement speaks for itself.

His fight for equal rights for African Americans is also reflected in his commitment to the NAACP. From 1936 to 1961 he played the various roles of assistant special counsel, special counsel and legal director of the NAACP.

Marshall made strong fights for freedoms of speech and expression. His opinions in the Supreme Court were consistently supportive of the First Amendment. "If the First Amendment means anything it means that a state has no business telling a man, sitting alone in his own house, what books he may read or what films he may see."

MARSHALL LEAVES SOME BIG shoes to be filled. Marshall seemed to understand the way the framers of the Constitution wanted things to be equal and free for the American people. The Constitution in Marshall’s eyes was to be interpreted by the courts and not legislated by the government. Although it has only been a few weeks since the announcement of his retirement, he is already missed.

Quotable Quotes

"They should put them in a pit and let them rot. Putting them in jail would be too easy. They could eat and enjoy life." —Pet owner Rose Tedillo talking about the owners of the Long Island Pet Cemetery who pleaded guilty to fraud charges for not having individual burials of pets, but instead having mass burials.

Doonesbury

by Gary Trudeau

Says who? The country is crawling with dope pushers who solve their economic problems by knocking people off. What do you think guys are doing when they pull a gun and heist a grocery store? What is a guy doing when he steals a car except solving his economic problems? We got to have 10 million people in this country who are solving their economic problems every day by grabbing somebody else’s loot.

That could be exaggerated.

"Nah, that’s conservative because I ain’t including the stockbrokers, the lawyers, the bankers and the other legible purse snatchers. If I toss them in, then I figure half the country is stealing from the other half."

Many economists say there is light at the end of the tunnel; that we are coming out of the recession and good times are around the corner.

"Yeah? Well, it’s like the guy said. The light at the end of the tunnel might be a train coming your way. So you explain this to me. If we’re going to be in good shape, how are we gonna do if our schools ain’t working, if we’re up to our ears in hock to the rest of the world, if we can’t afford to take care of our old people and sick people, if our businesses are getting getting bad by Japan and Europe and if our politicians ain’t got the guts to tell us what’s going on and they got a good deal going for themselves and they don’t want to screw it up by telling us the truth?"

I concede that we have problems. But why do you think we should have another war?

"To take our mind off our troubles."

Card, problems with using checks and credit cards, owners have toward students topped the list.

But during spring and summer terms, the chamber voted not to endorse the student debit card and last month, SIUC President John C. Guyon chose not to pursue the card further.

Sullivan also said checks written on new accounts is a problem. He also pointed out students open new accounts when they come to SIUC. Check numbering for new accounts begins with 101, and many merchants do not accept checks numbered lower than 300.

Kesler presented the chamber board with a summary of the meeting with Sullivan and Cole, and the chamber agreed to listen to a more detailed report from USG at its next meeting and have them attend future meetings.

“We’ve not communicated as well as we should have,” Kesler said. “This should give us a better perspective.”

Steve McBride, a Carbondale Police patrolman, said he was pleased with the way motorists were obeying new traffic signals, even though a few people turned down the street the wrong way.

“I was prepared for the worst,” he said as he watched traffic from the Carbondale Fire Department driveway near the intersection of Walnut Street and Oakland Avenue.

“But things are going really well into a circular one to avoid backing into traffic.”

“Don’t want my whole yard to be a driveway,” she said.

Despite negative feelings from residents along Walnut Street, IDOT officials said the first day of the work, after the couple opened went well. Larry Meyer, IDOT district engineer of planning, said he drove on the couple Tuesday morning.

“Folks were very calm,” said Forey. “But there were no major problems.”

Linda Lewandowski, a Carbondale Police patrolman, said he was pleased with the way motorists were obeying new traffic signals, even though a few people turned down the street the wrong way.

“I was prepared for the worst,” he said as he watched traffic from the Carbondale Fire Department driveway near the intersection of Walnut Street and Oakland Avenue.

“But things are going really well,” he said.

A final count of couple-associated warnings issued Tuesday was not available.

Although construction for the $2 million state-funded project began in July 1990, the final deadline will not be completed until April 1992. Benefiting of West Walnut Street between Oakland Avenue and Illinois Avenue is scheduled to begin today and take about three days to complete.

In 1989, there were more than 170,000 burglaries reported in Illinois, causing about $88 million in losses to victims.

The residence halls are not immune to burglaries. Statistics show a steady increase in thefts during the past four years.

The 36 burglaries reported during the second quarter of this year almost doubles the 31 reported during the second quarter of 1988.

Sgt. Melvin Kersten, public information officer for the Illinois State Police, said victims can take some simple measures to cut down on break-ins:

- Using automatic timers connected to lights and radios to turn them on and off.
- Not leaving valuables lying around your home. Move them to a friend’s or relative’s house.
- Notifying police when leaving and for how long residents expect to be gone.
- Canceling all deliveries.
- Having the lawn mowed while you are gone.
- Not closing shades or blinds.
- Make the home look lived in.
- If possible, parking a car in the garage.
- Kersten said ideas that have been around for years are still very effective.

“Old standards of organizing a neighborhood watch,” selling your neighbors you’re leaving and stopping all deliveries are still the best,” he said. “A deadbolt lock is still one of the best protections.

The ICIA also suggests turning the bell on a telephone to a low volume and having a watchdog at pet.

Jackson County Sheriff Bill Kilquist said the rise in offenses is related to the recession.

“I think we’re going to see that thefts will be going up with the economy being bad,” he said.

Kilquist said there were 196 reported thefts in Jackson County in 1990. During the first quarter of 1991, 75 burglary complaints were filed.

Bachelor of science degrees are offered at several military bases for students wishing to get degrees while in the service.

A total of 59 programs are offered through 46 bases in 21 states.

The base director for academic affairs and research, said professors travel to the bases during the weekend to teach.

Faculty members teach the classes on weekends, so professors catch a flight out of St. Louis and teach Saturday. They return Sunday and resume their teaching duties on campus, Miller said.

Although the legislation will not hurt the program, Miller said he could see why faculty members would like to keep bonus points.

The difficulty in meeting the law, should it be enacted, will offset any savings for the state, said James O’Kane.

As director of Outreach programs for the College of Engineering and Technology, he oversees off-campus military and industrial programs.

“We have to fly as part of our job,” he said. “My people will definitely be affected.”

Because the program gives bonus points to the individual doing the traveling, O’Kane said the state would have to monitor it closely to prevent abuse or create a state travel agency, both of which will be costly.

O’Kane said the bonus points were considered a small perk for the people who were working for projects that require travel, and the loss of them would have a negative effect on morale.

“I think it’s a slap in the face of other state employees,” he said.

Legislators were in Springfield but could not be reached for comment.

Land surveying essay wins two scholarships

By Christine Leninger
Staff Writer

Michael Ring is reestablishing land boundaries to help historians and land surveyors. "Winning scholarships makes it easier to get through school without having to take on a student loan," said the senior civil engineering major from Woodridge.

"Ring's scholarship winning essay, 'Establishing Land Boundaries in Illinois after Earthquakes' won two of his newest awards," Ring said.

Ring won the seventh annual Bernsten Scholarship in Surveying from the American Congress on Surveying and Mapping sponsored by the Bernsten Co. and the Winfield T. Eldridge Award presented by the Famous Professionals and Surveyors' Association.

Ring said before studying surveying he initially wanted to be a photographer.

"It really was a fluke how I got into surveying," Ring said. "When I joined the Marines in 1984, I had to pick preference of study. My first choice was combat photography, but it was closed. My second choice was surveying—and I've been doing it ever since," he said.

Ring said he has no regrets of his choice of field but didn't expect to be in it.

"When I was in high school, I wasn't very good at grasping abstract concepts of trigonometry and calculus. Now that I know applications for the math, I understand it," he said.

Ring was recently elected president of the SIUC student chapter of the IFLSA, the only IFLSA chapter in the state.

As president of the association, his duties will include assisting in the organizing of the annual Engineering Week and informing other students of surveying on how to make it a career during their college years.

Other honors Ring has received include recognition and membership in the Gamma Beta Phi, Sigma Nu, Tau Alpha Pi, University honor and the National Dean's List. Ring said finding out about the scholarships and contests are half of the battle of winning them.

"I was researching a paper for one of my classes when I noticed an advertisement in a magazine for a scholarship for surveying, which I applied and was accepted. The paper was forwarded to ACSM, national award, and won that one," he said.

"Scholarships are now paying my way through school. Without them, I don't think I would have a chance of graduating," Ring said.

Ring graduated from Downers Grove North High School in 1986. After he was honorably discharged from the Marines in 1989, Ring went to work for Midwest Technical Consultants Inc. of Clarence Hill.

He began school in 1987 at SIUC where he received an associate degree in applied science in 1989.

Ring said he plans to someday have his professional land surveyor license. He is currently going through the process of certification to receive the license.

Work study programs minimize pay burden

By Christiann Baxter
Staff Writer

College Work Study helps students pay for college and lessens the burden on the SIUC budget.

CWS is a federally funded financial aid program, said SIUC's financial aid and public relations coordinator, Dianna King.

CWS is a co-payment program, the student is paid $70 percent of the student worker's wages, and the University pays 30 percent.

"There's an advantage for the department because of the federal funding," King said.

CWS is a financial aid award, she said.

"Students are awarded a certain amount of money to make," King said.

The amount the student is allowed to earn is determined by the financial need of the student, she said.

Once the student has earned the awarded money, the student may switch to non-college work study, she said.

The only difference between CWS and non-CWS is the source of the wage. Non-CWS employees are paid by SIUC, she said.

There are currently about 500 CWS students, King said. In the fall, there are generally 6,500 students working on campus in both CWS and non-CWS, she said.

Lauren Pengiel, senior in elementary education, said she joined CWS after she heard about it in a Grove Village, she said she has been in the CWS program for four years.

"She is a proof operator at the barter's office and has worked previously for University maintenance at University Park," King said.

"It helps pay my bills," she said. "Pengiel said if she didn't work in the CWS program, she would probably get a non-CWS job.

Students apply for CWS through federal applications, she said.

State losing time to approve money for workers' checks

SPRINGFIELD (Up) — Republican legislative leaders and Gov. James Thompson warned today that the state of Illinois is running out of time to act on a plan to dedicate state funds to workers' checks that must be paid next week will get their certifications.

Thompson at noon is the deadline for approving a state budget to make workers' checks are processed fast enough to get the employees who are scheduled to be paid on Monday.

However, there were signs of movement when a spokesman for a top Republican said they are discussing the possibility of approving money to protect the employees.

Also, three major unions representing state workers are scheduled to file suit and go to a court hearing Wednesday morning challenging the state's plan, where they will ask a judge to order the state to pay the workers anyway.

Their contention is that the state has in effect foreclosed on their bank accounts and is only paying off the checks because of the budget impasse.

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, the largest union for state workers, said the temporary appropriation is the way to go.

There is considerable doubt as to whether all the people incarcerated for political reasons have been released.

—U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston

Husks said South Africa had taken steps to move away from apartheid, but that dropping sanctions now would be ill-timed.

"I mean, if you want to see progress stop, you lift sanctions," Husks said in Houston, where the NAACP is holding its annual convention. "Sanctions have brought South Africa to the negotiation table and we need it until we get a little further down the road.

Husks said he planned to send Bush telegrams about lifting sanctions.

"I think it would be criminally irresponsible for sanctions to be lifted against South Africa," he said.

"But the objections we are getting are for the Congress to override the veto," Husks said.

The Washington Post reported Tuesday that the State Department has issued a report to the South African government on a reformed State Department obstacle to sanctions now would be lifted.

Africans jailed for violence, even though the apartheid, has met legal conditions for the release of political prisoners, before the sanctions are lifted or suspended.

Bush is expected to declare that all five conditions are met.

The white minority government is in the process of releasing all political prisoners.

After the South African Parliament moved last month to dismantle the last major legal foundations of apartheid, its system of racial segregation, Bush said U.S. sanctions would be removed once the South African government now moving toward the dismantling of apartheid, was again considering the release of political prisoners, before the sanctions are lifted or suspended.

The sanctions imposed by Congress in 1986 over the objections of President Reagan. As vice president at the time, Bush joined Reagan in opposing the action by Congress, warning black South Africans about the economically cuts in trade and foreign investment.

White South African government now moving toward the dismantling of apartheid, however, Fitzwater acknowledged Tuesday that the sanctions maintained by the administration have "some value" in inducing political change.

"We have repeatedly stated that South Africa adopt at least four of five specific anti-apartheid reforms, including the release of political prisoners, before the sanctions are lifted or suspended."

Guns N' Roses singer sued by fan assaulted during riot

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Singer Axl Rose of Guns N' Roses is being sued by a man who claims he was assaulted during a riot that erupted at the rock band's concert last week, injuring dozens of fans and police.

Jerome Harrison of St. Louis filed suit Monday in St. Louis Circuit Court seeking an unspecified amount of damages from Rose, other unidentified members of the band and its entourage, the promoters of the concert and members of the security staff.

The suit claimed Harrison was assaulted during the riot "by unknown individuals," including a member of the band's security staff.

"There were bullets, it appeared they were hit by blunt objects," said a local security official.

Prosecutors and police said they were considering charging a file against Rose, 79, in connection with the incident, but no charges have been filed.

Hundred of police officers were called in to quell the riot, and 16 people were injured, including several who needed hospitalization.

Damage to the band's equipment from the July 2 melee forced Guns N' Roses to reschedule and cancel appearances in Tinley Park and Kansas City, Mo.

On Saturday, the band played a concert Monday night in Dallas without much trouble, although the band's stage was the scene of an extended protest over racial problems among the audience.

Among the injured police officers were a guard who sprained his elbow and a police officer who fractured his arm in the melee.

Harrison's suit claimed he suffered bruises and swelling in the hot and crowded concert venue of the injuries has not been determined.

Robbery, torture leaves Morris woman dead

MORRIS (UPI) — Grundy County Sheriff James Olson Tuesday refused to reveal what a dying Judith Zeman told authorities after her badly burned body was found in the driveway of her home.

The 56-year-old woman, a prominent businesswoman, was robbed, beaten, raped, doubted and tormented as she lay in her driveway in Morris, 67, discovered about 8 a.m. Monday in the Ryke Bungalow Colony in Kiamesha Lake in the suburban Catskills about 75 miles north of New York City.

The couple, both survivors of Nazi persecution, immigrated to this country from Poland in 1949. Their bodies were discovered after Paul appeared to fail at religious services last Sunday morning.

"There were speaker, it appeared they were hit by blunt objects," said a local security official.

Other unidentified members of the band and its entourage, the promoters of the concert and members of the security staff.

Aspirin reduces hypertension during pregnancy

CHICAGO (UPI) — Low doses of aspirin appear to cut the risk of developing the common, potentially serious complication of high blood pressure during pregnancy, researchers said Tuesday.

An analysis of six published studies found that low-dose aspirin reduced the risk of pregnancy-induced hypertension — PIH — by 65 percent, the researchers reported in the journal of the American Medical Association. The analysis also showed that the aspirin reduced the risk that women would give birth to severely underweight infants. Although there is a variety of health problems, the researchers said.

The small results suggest that low-dose aspirin significantly reduces the risks of PIH and severe low birth-weight (among newborn infants)," wrote Drs. James Imparato and Alice Stollenwerk Petroulis of the Case Western Reserve University School of Medicine.

The studies involved a total of 394 women who took doses of aspirin ranging from 60 to 150 milligrams per day during the second and third trimester of pregnancies. The studies found that aspirin had no effect on the overall safety outcomes of fetuses and newborns, and there were no adverse effects on the mother or child from the aspirin, the researchers said.

But while the findings are promising, more study is needed, they said. Important issues to resolve include determination of optimal doses and duration of treatment, as well as an effective and quantitative way of estimating risk," they said.

"Ongoing randomized trials should resolve these issues and confirm the favorable effects of aspirin observed in the analyses," they said. The cause of PIH is unknown, however, there is evidence it may be related to an immune system disorder.

Buckling up for burgers promotes driving safety

FREEPORT (UPI) — Using a seatbelt while driving in Freeport could earn the women not only a smiling police officer but also a free hamburger as a reward.

A public-service announcement Tuesday added a "Buckle Up for Burgers" campaign to the Northwestern Illinois community as one way of complying with the effort by President Bush and Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner to increase more people to wear their seatbelts.

Skinner wants 70 percent of motorists to be using seatbelts by 1998. Only 49 percent now do so nationwide.

Title: Freeport Police, police said who stop motorists for minor violations also would check seatbelt usage, and those with their belts on could get one of 300 coupons that are to be passed out this summer for a free hamburger, fries and drink and a special bumper sticker.

Barde's and the Illinois Insurance Department have already created a special grant program to pay for the food costs.

Jegsley said lap-shoulder belts cut deaths in vehicles by 40 percent and reduce serious injuries by 55 percent.

This is a program called Healthy Communities, Skinner said, "one way to help us manage the government and law enforcement agencies promote safety on our roads."

Insurance industry officials said auto accidents last year killed 1,589 people in Illinois.

Freeport Police Chief Donald Parker said even people unbuttoning their seatbelts while getting out of their vehicles could get the reward.

"So everyone is eligible and everyone should wear their seatbelts," Parker said.

Threat of cancer higher among poor population

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Living in poverty increases the risk of all types of cancer by 20 percent and worsens survival rates, a group of researchers told the President's Cancer Panel Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Health Secretary Louis Sullivan told reporters he is "getting closer" to announcing the administration's proposal to reform the health insurance system, saying he is committed to the concept that every American should have access to necessary health care.

However, Sullivan said he does not want to be "stamped into" a premature proposal when the issue of health care reform is still not released.

Both Sullivan and Dr. Claudia Baquet of the National Cancer Institute praised the President's Cancer Panel that poverty, regardless of race, causes a higher risk of cancer, although there are certain types of cancers that are more prevalent among specific races.

"For all cancers sites combined, for both blacks and whites, the risk of cancer increases as education and income decrease and as population density increases," Baquet said.

"It's not known what specific aspects of living in a low socio-economic environment increase one's risk of developing cancer. But we do see that living in poverty can increase risk by as much as 20 percent," she said, noting her findings did not take into account socio-economic factors.

Her study, conducted from 1978-1982 in San Francisco-Oakland, Detroit and Atlanta, found, that after adjusting for socio-economic differences, blacks had a greater inclusion for death, prostate and cervix cancer than whites. Whites had a greater incidence of breast and rectum cancers than blacks.

And Baquet found that cancer survival rates were lower in those in lower-income, upper-educated categories.

"Upper-income blacks survive better than lower-income blacks. Lower-income whites survive better than lower-income whites," she said.

State group forms to outlaw long trailer trucks for safety

CHICAGO (UPI) — A group of Illinois leaders gets its way, no motorists on state roads will have to confront a 12-foot-long trailer-trucker combination that weighs 150,000 pounds and sways as much as four feet from side to side.

Secretary of State George Ryan is leading the broad-based coalition that includes Illinois insurers, environment groups, and government groups opposed to longer commercial vehicles (LCVs).

Ryan, Chicago Alderman Edward Burke and other leaders planned to outline their opposition to the LCVs at a news conference Wednesday in the McCormick Place West parking lot, where a trailer-truck would be on display to give a visual comparison with an average family car.

The Illinois group is lining up with other organizations across the nation supporting legislation in the U.S. House to maintain the current maximum weight and length of LCVs in the 20 states where they are now legal.

"Our concern is the safety of Illinois motorists, said Ryan, who pointed to the prevalence of public affairs for the AAA-Chicago Motor Club. He said the Motor Club opposed any further increases in truck sizes because the president rime already "taxes the limits of safety."

The new triple trailers are the equivalent weight of 41 mid-sized autos and nearly one-half the size of a football field in length.

New name for fiber cereal

KELLOGGS Co. [Maya, (UPI) — Kellogg Co. announced Tuesday it will change the name of its Heartwise cereal to Fiberwise, saying the cholesterol-lowering product is under new control with U.S. Food and Drug Administration guidelines.

Current FDA policy discourages the use of the term "heart" in brand names.

Once present innovation of a five-year, multi-million-dollar are aimed to provide nutrition and $5,000 privately owned vehicles.

The systems will be linked to a central computer that will keep track of how many miles are driven and warn drivers when it is time to change the oil.

The project is known as ADVA and is sponsored by the Advanced Driver and Vehicle Advisory Navigation Concept — and will be managed by the Illinois Department of Transportation. Traffic is already choking many areas of northern Illinois, causing a loss in productivity, stifling economic growth and endangering the public, said the Illinois Transportation Association. "It's time to take advantage of current technology and to further improve the management of traffic on our freeways and arterial streets," said a spokesman. Skinn's federal spending will cover day and the remaining cost, the state, Motorola Inc. and a consortium of universities.

Private physicians suggest Bush take thyroid medicine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With his overbearing thyroid condition, nearly irritable, President Bush has started taking a new medicine to compensate for it, the White House announced Tuesday.

Specialists at NIH are reporting on the president's checkup earlier in the day by a team of specialists and he was told in the new medication, a replacement thyroid hormone called synthroid. The president, 61, will continue to take the drug daily in pill form for "the rest of his life," said the spokesman, to take over the functions of the thyroid that was destroyed by radiation to combat Graves disease. Bush was diagnosed with the hyperactive thyroid condition, the same as his wife's, after experiencing an extreme heart rate while playing golf, May 4.

Firewater said Bush's response overall to medical treatment is "on schedule," according to the doctors. And the president is still taking a baby aspirin every day and three drugs to combat the effects of the overactive thyroid, including propranolol that he has previously blamed for a "slowing down in the mental process."
Amnesty: Nations repress human rights

141 countries jail suspects, torturing detainees, executing prisoners before trial

LONDON (UPI) — Amnesty International said Wednesday in its annual report that governments were using their armed forces to sabotage the world’s hopes for human rights by executing prisoners without trial, torturing detainees or unfairly jailing suspects.

The London-based group said its survey of human rights violations in 141 countries during 1990 showed that the continued widespread use of force was aimed at subduing or intimidating activists, protesters and demonstrators.

Amnesty highlighted the jailing of political prisoners in South Africa and in Latin America and the alleged torture of prisoners in the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

Report reiterates violations of Kuwaitis’ rights

LONDON (UPI) — Amnesty International said Wednesday that routinely torturing prisoners and responsibility for forced disappearances were among the most serious human rights violations.

The London-based human rights group said in its 1991 report that Iraq had repeatedly used to "extract" large-scale violations was torture, "disappearances" and executions — commitments to the United Nations for the deaths of thousands of prisoners who were allegedly severely tortured, and the deaths of thousands of political prisoners, including nationals from the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

Amnesty said that, despite a general amnesty declared in March for Iraq's President Saddam Hussein's Kurdish opponents living in Iran, Iraq also "continued to listen" to "mass executions" of political prisoners in Iraq.

Amnesty accused Turkey of "mass executions" of political prisoners in Iraq, which it said "continued to listen" to "mass executions" of political prisoners in Iraq.

Guerrero out for leg fracture up to six weeks from roster

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — First baseman Tino Guerrero of the St. Louis Cardinals suffered a hairline fracture of the right leg Tuesday, possibly ruling him out for the rest of the season. Guerrero was injured during the last game before the All-Star break.

He had been placed on the 15-day disabled list, team officials said Tuesday.

Guerrero suffered the injury in the ninth inning of Sunday night’s 6-7 victory over the Chicago Cubs. The first baseman collided with catcher Ben Petrick after catching a foul bunt attempt. Guerrero remained in the game after the collision but could not run to tie the game in both the ninth and 12th innings.

The Cardinals missed Guerrero’s presence in the lineup, as the team was unable to score two runs in the ninth inning to tie the game.

The team hopes to have Guerrero back in the lineup before the end of the season. However, his absence will be felt by the team, especially with the upcoming series against the rival Chicago Cubs.

unification of sports in South Africa as a non-racial entity is undeniably as important in itself as on the normalization of its structure in conformity with the usual procedures and the IOC’s direction.

Sam Ramsamy, who led the South African Non-Racial Olympic Committee while living in exile in London, said he will head to South Africa this year to head INOSA, the newly formed umbrella body that served as South Africa’s gateway to the Olympics.

South Africa President F.W. de Klerk removed the biggest obstacle to restoring his country’s return to the Games when Parliament repealed the final pillar of apartheid laws last month.

The racial division in South Africa violated rule 3 of the Olympic charter, which stipulates that “any discrimination in the Olympic Games is allowed against a country or person on grounds of race, religion or political opinion.”

The major breakthrough came this year when Miller and his delegation arrived in South Africa in March, the first IOC delegation to visit.

The importance of good sportsmanship in the sport of tennis is widely recognized. The USTA, the governing body of tennis in the United States, has established standards for tennis players to follow, which include maintaining a high level of sportsmanship. These standards are enforced during tournaments and other events, ensuring that all participants adhere to the rules and respect each other.

The USTA’s Code of Conduct, which outlines the expected behavior of tennis players, states that “players are expected to demonstrate fair play, respect others’ abilities and rights, and conduct themselves in a manner that upholds the integrity of tennis.”

These principles are essential in maintaining a healthy environment for tennis players and fans alike, and they are upheld throughout the sport’s various levels of competition. Whether in a casual game with friends or a major tournament, players are encouraged to uphold these standards of sportsmanship.
