Record Summer Enrollment Expected

THE EGYPTIAN Southern Illinois University

Volume 43 Carbondale, Illinois Tuesday, June 19, 1962 Number 80

12-Week Session Tested By Freshmen This Summer

Summer session starts today with a 12 week quarter for freshmen and an anticipated record enrollment. Since registration does not end until next Friday, final figures are not available, but based on pre-registration totals the number of students in every category will increase over last year. During the 1961 summer session more than 5,000 students attended classes.

Dean Raymond Dey, expects an increase in the number of graduate students, but he notes that the number of teachers although increasing in number is actually declining in percentage. He attributes this to the fact that many Ph.D. candidates are going into research or government position rather than teaching.

Dean Dey, head of the extension Division, also pointed that the 12 week summer quarter for freshmen will either be extended to include sophomores or be dropped after the current year. The acceptance of the 12 week quarter by freshmen, he feels justifies the former view. An increase in freshmen is expected this summer.

In addition to the increasing number of students attending the summer session, a record number of 71 short courses, workshops and conferences will bring hundreds of participants and guest lecturers to the campus.

Other conferences and workshop will include high school workshops in communications; National Science Foundations programs in anthropology, botany, chemistry, mathematics, microbiology, physiology, psychology and zoology; the School for Advanced Cosmetologists; Public Relations and Sales for Inland Waterways, the Illinois Bankers School; and workshops in art, education, foreign language, geography, home and family, music, physical education and theater.

Dr. Morris Hosts 'Coke' Hour Today

SIU President Delyte Morris will hold a "Coke hour" from 9:30 to 11 a.m. today, on the west lawn of the President's home as a greeting to students and faculty. Dr. and Mrs. Morris, who recently returned from an around-the world trip, will meet informally with students and faculty during the cold drink break.

President and Mrs. Delyte W. Morris will hold a reception honoring the summer faculty Wednesday from 8 to 10 p.m. at their home, 1006 South Thompson.

In case of rain the reception will be held at the University Center.

AMERICAN ingenuity crops up all over the place. Witness this homemade protection devised by one of the many students standing in line under the broiling sun yesterday to register. Fortunately the line was relatively short -- compared to the lines during other terms -- and the wait wasn't too long. Registration and enrollment for summer term continues today.

Summer Classes Begin Today; Finals Aug. 8-9

All summer school classes with the exception of certain workshop courses begin today. Some workshop sessions started Monday and others are scheduled for later periods during summer session. The only break in summer school classes is Wednesday, July 4, Independence Day.

Final examinations will be held Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 8 and 9 with summer commencement scheduled for Friday, August 10.

Summer quarter classes for freshmen will conclude with examinations Thursday and Friday, August 30-31. Only 100 level classes are being taught during the 12-week summer quarter this year. Plans call for extension to sophomore level courses next summer and to junior level courses in the summer of 1964.

70 Selected For 'Showboat' Cast, Additional Singers Needed

Jerome Kern Musical Will Be Presented Aug. 3, 4, 5

Some 70 actors, singers and dancers have been selected for the summer production of Jerome Kern's musical "Showboat."

However, there are still openings in the cast for several major roles, according to William Taylor and Paul Hibbs, who are directing the production.

Still not cast is the part of Joe, Negro bass, who sings the theme song "Old Man River", made famous by Paul Robeson, and William Warfield in the moving picture version of the musical. Also open is the role Queenie, Negro mezzo-soprano, who sings the all-time favorite "Can't Help Lovin' That Man".

The two top female leads in the show will be sung by Katherine Kimmel, who will play Magnolia, and Jane Crusius, who will sing the role of Julie.

Other major roles include Jim McHaney who plays Ravenal, John Keller as Captain Andy, Carol Lee as Parthy, Gay Foster as Ellie, Dick Childers as Frank, and Edward McLain as Vallon. Selection of other roles will be announced soon.

A singing chorus of 30 women and 20 men, and a dancing chorus of 20 men and women has already been chosen. However, the directors pointed out that there is an urgent need for Negro men and women for singing and dancing roles in the chorus.

Persons interested in taking part in the musical are urged to report to Shryock auditorium tonight or tomorrow night or to contact Taylor in Altgeld Hall.

Performances of Showboat will be August 3, 4 and 5 in Shryock auditorium.

Cassidy Named 'Great Teacher'

Thomas E. Cassidy, lecturer in the Department of English, received this year's "Great Teacher" award.

The award was presented by the University Alumni Association at the annual Alumni Day program. It is presented annually as a tribute to an outstanding faculty member.

Earlier in the year Cassidy was picked as the "Most Popular Professor" by the student body during the annual all-campus elections.

A native of Kings Park, Long Island, N.Y., Cassidy has been on the SIU faculty since the fall of 1958. He received his bachelor and master's degrees from the University of Notre Dame and has done further work at Harvard and Columbia. Before coming to Southern he was associated with the faculties of St. John's in Minnesota, Notre Dame, Wisconsin State College and Fordham. During World War II he enlisted in 1942 as a private in the U.S. Army and was discharged in 1946 with the rank of major. He served with the Third Armored Division in Europe and was decorated by the government of United States, Britain, France and Belgium. On the Carbondale campus he has taught English composition and grammar, fiction and introduction to drama. He has taught extension classes at Anna-Jonesboro, Flora, Mt. Vernon and Menard.

Cassidy served as faculty adviser to the Student Council from 1959 until 1961, as a resident adviser to Tau Kappa Epsilon from 1959 to 1961 and as residence halls council adviser during the 1961-62 school year.

Announcement of Cassidy's selection came at a banquet concluding Alumni Day activities. Other programs of the day included an alumni association legislative council meeting, a meeting of the board of directors and class reunions.

Alumni Association officers for the coming year are Glenn Storme of Carbondale, president; William Bracy of Herrin, first vice president; Walter B. Young Jr. of Carmi, second vice president; Mrs. John Lewis of Carbondale, secretary and William D. Hudgins of Carbondale, treasurer. Mrs. Barbara Koenneman of Alton was named to the board of directors. Guy Lambert of

W. Frankfort was re-elected to a board position and retiring association president, John Lester Buford of Mt. Vernon, was named to the board.

Two unique presentations were included in the Alumni Day program. An oil painting of E. G. Lentz, former dean of men, was presented by the class of 1922. Dr. Clyde Brooks of Carbondale, class representative, made the presentation. The picture will be used in Lentz Hall, in the Thompson Point living area.

Guests receiving gavels were Dr. Delyte W. Morris, SIU president and banquet speaker, and Dr. William J. Tudor, chairman of the division of area services, campus affiliate of the Alumni Association office.

Past presidents of the Alumni Association and two honored guests were presented with gavels engraved with their names and the years they held office. The gavels were made from wood from Old Main, oldest campus building, and were the work of students of the industrial education department.

Presidents receiving gavels included Glenn Champ of Central City, Aubrey Holmes of Springfield, Dr. Percival Bailey of Chicago, Lowell Roberts of Chicago, John G. Gilbert of Carbondale, Guy Lambert of W. Frankfort, John Lester Buford of Mt. Vernon, George T. Wilkins of Springfield, Dr. Martin Van Brown of Carbondale, Edward Curtis of Mt. Vernon and Russell Rendleman of Jonesboro.

Grads Told Set Quality As A Goal

Dr. Henry Allen Moe, speaker at the SIU commencement exercises stressed quality as a goal to the 1,180 graduating students and nearly 7,000 visitors in McAndrews Stadium.

Dr. Moe, President of the Guggenheim Memorial Foundation in New York, told the students, "Let quality be your watchword . . . your motto, let quality be emblazoned on your coat of arms."

An honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree was conferred on Dr. Moe. He appeared in the red wool gown of the Doctor of Civil Law, which he won at the University of Oxford.

His main theme of quality in education was coupled with the secondary idea that all facets of education basically are tied together.

"He who divides knowledge, tears a seamless web which had better not be torn," Moe explained. He pointed out that literary work holds much that is useful to the scientist and lawmaker, and conversely that there is much to be learned of English in the writings of such scientists as Charles Darwin and Thomas Henry Huxley.

He stated that "what the subject is, does not matter; only the quality of the product matters." Speaking in pleasant weather, Moe said SIU could combine the elements of spiritual force and clarity of thought to create a university which "will live now and hereafter by the quality of what it does."

Public Lectures Start Thursday

The SIU Public Lecture Series will begin Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Morris Library Auditorium with a lecture about the "Development of Vertebrates" by Dr. Charles Foote of the zoology department.

Lectures will be held every following Thursday for five weeks.

Speakers and their subjects following the Thursday lecture will be: Dr. Paul Campisi, "Social Responsibility of a Scientist"; M. B. Sailsbury, "The use of Laboratory Facilities for Teaching Biology"; Dr. L. Bailey, "Recent Development in the Understanding of Photosynthesis"; Richard Uray and Harold Perkins, "The use of Television in Teaching High School Biology"; and Dr. M. Scherago, "Food Poisoning".

U.S. Women Influence Community Betterment

A charming smile, flexibility of time, sensitivity, and know-how all add up to the successful effect women have for improving the nation's communities, says Dr. Richard Franklin, director of Southern's community development institute.

It must be that "magic touch" that spurs women on to initiate and "dig in" to community development projects. Franklin, who was one of the three judges in the biennial Community Improvement Program Contest, recently toured 11 cities across the United States and says that in nearly every case women played an important role. "They seem to accomplish things men can't," he added.

The cities visited on the tour are finalists in the program sponsored by the General Federation of Woman's Clubs and the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

Rather than limiting their interest to the economic-physical concerns of an area, as men sometimes do, women seem to view the situations with a more humane touch. The money factor is not as important as the people's well-being.

To illustrate women's social concern, junior and senior women's clubs in Winslow, Ariz., saw the need for public facilities for the 90,000 Navaho Indians. After arousing the interest of various groups in town, a hospitality center was started. Fifteen thousand Indians visited the center in 1961.

If a group of women see the need for something to be done, they go ahead and see that it gets done.

Is it a woman's world?

Foreign Language Workshop Opens On Campus Tomorrow

The ninth annual Workshop in Elementary School Foreign Language Instruction gets underway Wednesday, according to Dr. Vera Peacock, director.

The workshop, open to foreign language students, elementary teachers and to high school foreign language instructors interested in teaching a language to grade school children, offers three weeks of intensive training and from four to eight hours credit.

Classes run from 7:30 to 11:35 a.m. five days a week and include oral drills in the language chosen (French, German or Spanish), discussion of methods, lectures on learning problems of young children, observation of pilot classes, practice with special materials, and integration of foreign languages with the child's regular program.

Dr. Peacock said children are now being enrolled for the pilot classes, which will meet from 10:30 to 11 a.m. five days a week and for which the students get a certificate after completion.

Inquiries have been received from many states for the workshop, she said. Last year, there were 58 enrollees. There will also be help,

A new workshop designed to help public school teachers who have responsibility for supervising elementary student teachers will begin at Southern Illinois University today.

The workshop, which runs through July 16, will be held Monday through Thursday from 10:20 a.m. until 11:35 a.m. and taught by Dr. Cleo Carter of SIU's University School staff.

"It will be concerned with guidance of the elementary student teacher and go into such subjects as how to get ready to work with the student teacher, how to help guide her in planning learning experiences she hopes to present to the pupils and ways to help her evaluate growth of her children," Dr. Carter said.

The workshop will also discuss such topics as the student teacher's obligations, conferences, and guiding the student in the transition from a college student to a member of the teaching profession, Dr. Carter said.

Psychology Students Study At Anna Hospital

Carbondale's Largest
Kampus Klippers
715 S. ILLINOIS
Just Off Campus

SIU graduate work at Anna State Hospital shows promise of giving better insight into an understanding of mental illness, school and hospital officials feel.

Under the program, jointly sponsored by SIU, the Anna State Hospital, and the Illinois Psychiatric Training Authority, ten graduate students from SIU are enrolled in a two month summer residence course at Anna State Hospital.

The course is titled Psychology 531, Advanced Psychopathology. At Anna the students attend formal lectures, hospital diagnostic staff meeting, and orientation sessions concerned with the hospital's departmental activities and services such as nursing and dietetics.

In addition they experience informal contacts with patients on hospital grounds and wards, observe group psychotherapy of patients, and receive training in psychodiagnostic methods. Each student receives a minimum of 200 hours of supervision during the course by assistants and Dr. Forrest Tyler, SIU psychology professor, who meets weekly with the students to evaluate the past week's experiences and to plan the following week's activities.

According to Tyler the course "provides a sufficient knowledge about psychopathology and hospitalized patients and their treatment at the pre-intern level so that these students can do research in this area and understand its many problems. The summer helps them decide if they would like this type of work for a career and prepares them for clinical internship."

Tyler, who considers the Anna program "very successful," has written a description of it called "Integrating Scientific and Professional Training at the Graduate Level" which is currently being published in the "Journal of Clinical Psychology."

"Something with which a person is not in daily contact seems a mystery to him; he attaches a stigma to it," said Tyler. "Similarly, any facet of human behavior that he doesn't regularly encounter, he regards with suspicion and fear. The best way to improve a person's attitude toward mental illness is through education."

The knowledge learned at the Anna hospital and at other similar institutions is applied at SIU by the psychology department in an attempt to help students understand the concept of mental illness. "Psychology courses here have this as one of their important goals," said Tyler. To this end, SIU's counseling and testing center and the cooperative clinical services center serve the student and also provide professional help for his psychological problems.

These programs, however, are usually not effective unless they exist in an intellectually stimulating climate. "It is essential to create on campus an atmosphere in which students can learn to understand the problem," said Tyler.

Summer Quarter Begins

The first step toward a full-length summer term for all SIU students is in effect now with the opening of summer quarter. It follows the present trend in American universities and colleges which may eventually lead to year around operation of all institutions of higher learning.

SIU freshman level courses are being given for a full 11-week quarter while all other courses are being offered for eight weeks. "If this program proves successful," says Dean Raymond H. Day, director of summer session, "the sophomore class will be included in the full summer quarter for 1963."

Eventually SIU hopes to offer a summer quarter for all students, undergraduates and graduates. An effort will be made to accommodate the public high school teachers and administrators who attend the University during the summer months for a shorter period but no decision has been reached.

Pre-registration figures indicate a new enrollment record will be reached. Registration figures will not be released for another day or two but if the pre-registration figures are indicative the University's experiment with a full-length summer quarter already is a success.

As summer jobs become harder to find a regular term of schooling may prove more attractive than a summer of loafing. The serious student may find it economically desirable to grasp the "fourth term" as a means of cutting a year off the time required to earn a degree.

SIU's decision to go to the full length summer quarter may bring a change in the local public school. School Board members are considering a full-length summer school.

College's Image

WHY COLLEGE presidents public relations directors get gray hair--you work hard, slowly but you hope surely, toward getting a favorable and correct "image" for your college. Then, in one seven-column, front-page headline, a daily newspaper establishes an image that the average reader will hang on to despite past or future stories about such things as academic excellence. The new image is that "Staffer quits post as Oberlin College OKs kiss-study-kiss plan" (Elyria Chronicle-Telegram, May 8, 1962).

What the headline referred to was the college's commendable efforts to meet the requests of its students for more privacy. Rather than to ignore such requests or to assume no need exists, the college administration was willing to pursue the question in a reasonable way. When study showed that the students do have a point, the college moved toward providing semi-private lounge space in dorms "where students can study and enjoy the companionship of members of the opposite sex without being in open sight of other students or the general public."

The current headlines arose from support of such plans by the joint student-faculty board headed by college registrar George Langelier. One of the board members, Conservatory professor Miss Ina Howland, resigned from the committee in protest to

"the direction in which things seem to be going." Miss Howland added, in her letter of resignation, "It is not that I object to making available areas of privacy for our students, but I cannot associate myself with the thinking which recognizes and condones the possibility that such areas will also be available for sexual intercourse."

Now we submit that there is a world of difference between one person's interpretation of "the direction in which things seem to be going" and any kind of official college policy. But the average newspaper reader may not make the distinction. And to us, a policy under which the college would provide semi-private quarters so that, as Langelier is reported to have said, a student "could study in privacy and, perhaps, kiss a girl" doesn't imply anything more than it directly states. We could hardly justify referring to such a policy in a headline as a "kiss-study-kiss plan."

We sympathize with the college in this temporary setback of its good image. And we hope this insensitive handling of a sensitive and difficult matter won't deter the college from its habit of doing what is right even when there are dangers it will be misunderstood or exploited.

Oberlin (Ohio) NEWS-TRIBUNE

Message From Dean

Dear Students:

The Summer Session has once again been planned to meet the needs of great number of different student groups.

In response to an interest indicated in a questionnaire completed by students last summer, and in keeping with the trend by many colleges and universities to adjust their programs to meet the enrollment bulge facing this country, a full Summer Quarter program has been planned for freshman-level courses. Advance registration indicates that our student body, in most cases, are participating in this lengthened program with no hesitation.

In addition to this experimental Summer Quarter, the usual rather large number of workshops and other short term credit activities have been scheduled for those who can only come to the campus for a short period of time.

Each year a greater number of our regular year students are continuing their education in the Summer Sessio. In fact, at the graduate level there is a larger enrollment during the summer months than at any other time of the year.

Interest in other countries is being displayed by our students not only in our credit courses being offered there, both in Central America and in Europe, but in just traveling in a foreign land. This Thursday, a chartered plane will leave St. Louis for London with 102 Southern students and faculty members and their families, to return from Paris on August 31, eleven weeks later.

Federal funds have helped finance certain programs of general interest to the welfare of the country. Institutes for high school teachers of mathematics, science and German have drawn enrollees from every part of the nation. An eight-weeks' program for outstanding high school students drew nearly 1600 applicants although only 65 persons could be enrolled.

In addition to the month-long program in communications for superior high school students, a two-weeks' program for outstanding high school musicians has for the first time been arranged.

Non-credit short courses and conferences are also more numerous this year than before. New agencies, such as the Transportation Institute and the Center for the study of Crime, Delinquency, and Corrections, mean that Southern has more to offer through the

Giant Strides In Track

SIU's fourth place finish at the NCAA track and field championships is another in the long line of athletic accomplishments that the University has piled up this year. The finish shows the giant strides that SIU track has taken since Lew Hartzog became coach in 1960. Under Hartzog the University has won the NCAA college-division cross-country title, finished second in the National AAU cross-country and seventh in the NCAA major-college cross-country meet.

The NCAA finish is the first of the major track achievements that Hartzog promised to bring to Southern when he came here. In placing fourth SIU finished ahead of such "name" track schools as San Jose State, Oregon State, Kansas, Iowa and several others.

Hartzog hailed the fourth place finish the "greatest I've ever witnessed in all my years of coaching track."

In only his second year at SIU Hartzog has shown that he is capable of developing young men into fine track men.

Congratulations are in order for Jim Dupree, Bill Cornell and Brian Turner who represented SIU in the meet and made such a fine showing. It was the first time that SIU was represented in the meet and thus the first time it had scored. It is hoped that this is only the beginning of the many track achievements that will come this way.

SIU Takes Fourth In NCAA Track Meet

Dupree Runs 880-Yard Dash In 1:48.2 To Win First Place

Jim Dupree, Bill Cornell and Brian Turner turned in their finest track performances of the year Saturday at the NCAA track and field championships as they led SIU to a fourth place finish. The trio scored 26 points, less than a point and a half behind third place Southern California. Southern Cal was the defending champion but this year managed to score only 27 3/7 points. Oregon won the team title with 85 points followed by Villanova with 40 3/7.

It was the first time in the history of SIU athletics that an SIU athlete managed to score in the NCAA track meet.

Jim Dupree won the 880-yard dash with a 1:48.2 timing for Southern's only first place honor. Dupree was seventh after the 440 but came home strong to outdistance the field.

Cornell finished second in the mile behind Oregon's famed miler Dyrrol Burselon. Cornell set a new school record with his 4:00.5 clocking. Burselon turned the course in 3:59.8 and beat Cornell by 10 yards.

Cornell passed Burselon with 300 yards to go but the Oregon miler, famed for his kick coming home, caught Cornell in the stretch to win the race.

Southern's second foreign distance man Brian Turner finished second in the three mile race Friday night. Turner finished behind the University of Houston's Pat Clohessy.

Clohessy ran the distance in 13:51.6 and Turner trailed by five yards at the finish for his 13:53.9 timing.

SIU track coach Lew Hartzog was thrilled at the performances of his three man team. He has been around track meets for many years but none matched the excitement he got from witnessing the finishes of his boys.

"This is the greatest clutch performance I've ever seen by a three-man team in a major meet," Hartzog said referring to the efforts of Brian Turner, Bill Cornell and Jim Dupree.

"It would be great for one to come out and have a good day but it's not very often three men run the best races of their lives like Dupree, Turner and Cornell did, Hartzog continued.

He said there was never any question that Dupree would win the 880. "Jim was so strong there was never any question about who was going to win the race," Hartzog concluded.

SIU has one more track meet this week when the SIU trio heads west again for the National AAU track and field championships at Walnut, Cal.

Fred Orlofsky Wins Berth On U.S. Gymnastic Team

Fred Orlofsky, SIU's gymnastic star and a veteran of Olympic competition, won a berth on the seven-man United States team which will compete this summer in Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Bruno Klaus, also a junior at SIU, tried out for the team which will compete in the World Games but didn't make it.

They tried out for the third and final time last weekend at the Merchant Marine Academy.

Orlofsky, who finished 44th in the 1960 Olympics, is in sixth place standing among U.

THE POWER of SIU's track team was displayed by (left to right) Jim Dupree, Bill Cornell and Brian Turner at the NCAA track and field championships. The three men chalked up 26 points to take fourth place in the meet which attracted the finest track and field men in the nation. Dupree was the SIU standout, taking first place in the 880-yard dash. Cornell was nosed out of first place in the mile run by Dyrrol Burselon of Oregon.

Tennis Clinic Opens Today

A four-day tennis workshop which opens on campus Wednesday is expected to draw several area enthusiasts as well as physical education instructors from various states.

John LeFevre, SIU tennis coach and co-director of the workshop, said southern Illinois tennis fans can attend and participate in the workshop for a nominal $10 fee. The registration fee for non-commuting participants is $0.

The workshop staff includes Bill Price, well-known tennis instructor who developed Chuck McKinley, Stan Drobac, tennis coach at Michigan State University; Bill Lufner, West Side Tennis Club pro at Forest Hills, New York; and John Powless, coach at Cincinnati University and of the minor Davis team.

Work Crew Works Wonders At Eventful Southern Hills

It was 2 a.m. and sleepy residents of Southern Hills were awakened by loud pounding and banging. Burglars? No it was just the maintenance men removing the casing from one of the apartment doors. It wasn't a lost key but a stuck door that caused the trouble.

"That's just one of the problems the men of the work crew have been called upon to solve," related Ron Kelly, maintenance supervisor and acting head resident for Southern Hills. "I'll never forget the time someone called us at eight in the morning and asked us to come over and fish out a toothbrush that had gotten lodged in the toilet bowl."

Working with Ron on the crew are Don Isch, Art Engel, Charles Sutton and Larry Higginbotham. At one time spent nearly an hour trying to free an iron fence post that was stuck in an incinerator. How anyone ever got the post into the small incinerator door still remains a mystery.

"Speaking of incinerators," Ron continued, "an ambitious husband once decided to empty the garbage for his wife and in the process dropped the insides of a coffee pot down the incinerator and we had to shovel it out."

Wedding rings are often lost when dropped down the sink, but have you ever heard of anyone losing a contact lens that way? It happened one morning at 7:30 and the maintenance crew took apart the sink but to no avail.

Another sink problem developed when a housewife spilled dry tapioca down the drain and tried to wash it down with hot water. She learned that hot water and tapioca are very much like cement when combined in a kitchen drain.

The children always keep things hopping at the Hills. One little boy found himself locked in a boiler room for about 45 minutes until the crew came to the rescue. Another boy made a quick trip to the hospital with the work crew after sampling a bug.

Loretta Ott's Door Is Always Open To Coeds With A Problem To Solve

"Mrs. Ott speaking. (Pause) Certainly, I have time. Can you stop by about two this afternoon?"

This is a typical telephone response almost any caller with a problem gets from Mrs. Loretta Ott, whose official title is assistant dean of students, but who is more commonly known as dean of women.

"If you have a problem or are just passing through, stop in," says Mrs. Ott. "Appointments are unnecessary."

And an amazing number of students take her up on the invitation.

Fall and spring terms seem to find Mrs. Ott the busiest. "For obvious reasons," she added. "I never know what each day will bring."

Her office routine usually does not work on an appointment basis and she never knows but what she may be greeted at 8 a.m. by the security officer.

It's not the 8 a.m. greetings she receives that she dislikes, it's the late evening, or as she puts it, "the midnight calls" that she would prefer not to receive.

Mrs Ott commented that she thinks of the ideal student as one who does not think of Mrs. Ott as a tall, green-eyed monster with sharp horns holding a large club, but rather as being interested in them as individuals.

"The best way for students to stay out of trouble is to think," says Mrs. Ott, as she looked over her shoulder at a framed inscription on the wall. "Failure to hit the bull's eye is never the fault of the target. To improve your aim, improve yourself."

On an average day, Mrs. Ott sees about 10 students, mostly coeds. Some come for behavioral reasons, a scholarship or loan question, or advice from Alpha Lambda Delta members, freshman honorary for women, Presidents and judicial board chairmen from campus living centers meet with Mrs. Ott periodically to discuss rules and problems.

This blonde, blue-eyed assistant dean has been at SIU since her freshman year in college. Born and raised in Murphysboro, Mrs. Ott obtained both her bachelor's and master's degrees here. She has been serving in her present capacity since 1948.

While reminiscing about past experiences, Mrs. Ott remarked about the time a cat bounded into the office and onto a chair. When attempting to remove the feline, it was noticed that the cat was about to have kittens. Displaying her efficiency, she accommodated the mother-to-be by putting her in the delivery room (a box). What happened? Kittens, of course!

Her husband, whom she met at Southern, teaches industrial arts at Carbondale Community high school. They have a six-year-old daughter, Carla.

After school interests include swimming, tennis, and listening to records.
