President Reagan said the city council would be able to issue $2,961,150 worth of bonds for downtown redevelopment, which would be used to pay the money back. Reagan said he would support the bond issue if the city could issue in the future for downtown redevelopment, said Frank Moreno, economic development director.

Reagan wants drinking ages raised to 21

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) - President Reagan used the town of a proposed code change and the code change is prospective in favor of penalizing states that fail to raise the drinking age to 21.

Reagan said the benefits of a 21 year legal drinking age are clear - "to save lives, to save the future."

U.S. says growth up, inflation low

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's economy, though slowing a bit from its breakneck expansion, is growing this spring at an unexpectedly strong 5.7 percent annual rate, the government reported Wednesday.

President Reagan called the report "remarkable" and said the growth figure was hard to fault with the new figures.

City denies funds to bank to avoid bond issue limit

By Phil Milano

If City Bank of Carbondale intends to build a $10 million downtown Carbondale office building, it won't be able to count on the city for funding.

The Carbondale City Council agreed Monday with staff recommendations not to make a bond issue to fund construction of the bank.

Issuing the bonds could affect the amount of funds the city could issue in the future for downtown redevelopment, said Frank Moreno, economic development director.

The Rozekowski Bill, pending in Congress, would place a cap of $150 per capita on bond issuance. Carbondale, with a 1982 population of 19,914, would only be able to issue $3,961,150 worth of bonds if the bill is not attractive to that fall, passes. The city might want to use the funds for downtown redevelopment, something not for the bank, which is located just outside the city's designated downtown redevelopment area.

City Manager Bill Dixon said Raymond Burroughs, chairman of the bank, wrote a letter to Dixon on June 7 applying for the bond issue. According to the letter, Burroughs indicated that the $750,000 worth of bonds would be bought by the Mercantile Trust Co. of St. Louis. The city would use the money to fund construction of the bank, and the bank would pay the money back. The bank would also guarantee the bonds.

Burroughs said in the letter that the bank would initially provide 8 to 10 new jobs in the community, and that the bank would also guarantee the bonds. The tax-exempt revenue bonds would bear an interest rate of 10 percent to 12 percent, and are not competitive with private lenders. The current market for private lenders is 14 percent. Burroughs said in the letter that the bank can issue bonds if local lenders loan money out at 12 percent or less, said Don Monty, director of community development.

The project received an administrative checklist total of 67 points out of 100. The checklist is used to evaluate the issuance of Industrial Revenue Bonds.

"When you look at this project compared to all the other industrial development projects, this has the lowest total of all the projects," Moreno said.

Councilman Pat Rick Kelley indicated he would support the bond issue if the Rozekowski Bill were not pending. The council agreed to approve it at its next meeting the staff recommendation.

We've had indications in the past couple of weeks that there may be more money than originally thought in the March budget. Thompson are trying to come to an end-of-the-session conclusion on how much money is really there or likely to be there, "he said.

All of us involved in the budget process . . .

"Do we do more for education? If we can, I'll be the first to sign up," Thompson said.

Thompson proposed spending $2.7 billion on education in the budget to be issued in March, an increase of $2 billion in general school aid over this year's allotment. The General Assembly has added to Thompson's recommendation, with the Senate pushing a $100 million increase and the House proposing about that.

Both chambers also have added money to Thompson's request for state financing of teachers pensions.

In a related development Wednesday, the Senate approved a measure that would tax lottery ticket sales to help education. The proposed 20-cent surcharge would be spent in the region where the tickets were purchased.

The plan was approved in the House earlier this month but failed to clear a Senate committee. It resurrected Wednesday as an amendment to another bill, and will be put to a final Senate vote in the next 10 days. It would have to go back to the House for final approval.

The governor told the teachers that if it want a long-term increase in school spending, they should lobby lawmakers for economic developments that would create jobs and thus more tax dollars.

He spoke shortly after IEA President Reg Weaver echoed political leaders for their efforts to increase the Chicago World's Fair, tourism and other projects without significantly increasing school spending.

AGE: Under-21 ban in bars asked

Watering Hole, the American

1902 and Gaston's in El Ely, is open for about 75 percent of the 412 underage drinking arrests made in Carbondale bars last four years. McMeen said increased police checks of these bars, all located on South Illinois Avenue, would not be effective because of manpower problems, and that "it's the responsibility of the bar owners to increase their self-checking efforts."

Hogan recommended the code change to City Manager Bill McMeen in late March because of the number of underage drinking arrests in Carbondale bars from January 1, 1984 to March 31, 1984. The code change would not apply to establishments in which food sales account for 60 percent of business.

Implementing Hogan's proposal would likely result in an increased number of "kegger parties," according to McMeen, so the police recently suggested an additional ordinance which would discourage keggers.

The second amendment would assign responsibility for underage drinking to the owner or occupants of the premises where liquor is served. A similar ordinance is in effect in the Chicago suburb of Glen Ellyn for several years with good results, McMeen said.

Carbondale has an ordinance that provides for fines if liquor is sold without a license. Kegger parties that do not charge for liquor are not affected by the ordinance. The new ordinance would apply to kegger parties in which alcohol is sold or given away. Another ordinance already on Carbondale's books provides for fines to persons who sell, give away or deliver liquor to anyone under 21. It stipulates that the person directly selling or giving away the alcohol would be fined, and necessarily the owner of the premises. McMeen said the new ordinance would therefore make it easier to discourage keggers.

McMeen has pointed out that one drawback to the new ordinance is that it must be made aware of other drinking on their premises at the time of the illegal activity in order for action to be taken against them.

Muderer electrocuted in Florida

STARKES, Fla. (AP) - Carl Shriver, a drifter who confessed to killing a convenience store clerk but later maintained his innocence, went to his death in Florida's electric chair Wednesday after reading a statement proclaiming his faith in God.

Shriver was pronounced dead at 7:12 a.m., 13 hours after his final appeal was denied by the U.S. Supreme Court and five hours before his death warrant would have expired.

Reading from a piece of white paper while strapped in the electric chair, Shriver calmly delivered a brief last statement to 39 witnesses in the death chamber.

Death row escapees caught, held

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Two Virginia death row escapees, captured as they barbecued chicken outside a garage where they had lived and worked for a week, appeared in court Wednesday and were ordered held in lieu of $10 million bail each.

James Dyrel Briley, 26, and his brother, Lineood Earl Briley, 30, both convicted of murder, rape and robbery, were arrested Tuesday night by two deputy heavily armed FBI agents and several Virginia state troopers.

They were taken without incident, they were not armed, and offered no resistance," said FBI Special Agent John Hogan. "They were standing outside barbecuing chicken, and when we made a positive identification our men moved right in. It was done swiftly."

Photograph spoils family's luck

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - A family's good fortune in winning a home in a charity lottery soured when a newspaper photographer of their option led to their identification as illegal aliens. They now face deportation - for the seventh time.

The true story of Jose and Sylvia Corrada surprised charity officials and a newspaper columnist who wrote about the Mexican family in an article accompanied by the photograph that led to their identification.

Grand jury indicted bomb suspect

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - A federal grand jury Wednesday returned a 21-count indictment against a former mental patient believed to be responsible for making more than 20 pipe bombs and planting them in Chicago and throughout the Upper Midwest.

Earl Steven Karr, 24, who had been living in a Minneapolis rooming house, remained in protective custody at St. Paul-Ramsey Medical Center, where he is being treated for burns suffered when pipe bombs exploded in his rented car outside a restaurant in Madison, Iowa.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service estimated that 2.3 million of an estimated 6 million illegal aliens in the United States would take the opportunity to legalize their status under the amnesty provisions approved by the House.

A proposal by Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Fla., to remove the amnesty provisions was defeated, 232-192. Opponents of amnesty said foreigners would take jobs away from Americans. Supporters said a failure to approve amnesty would lead to wholesale deportations.

After five years, the aliens could apply for citizenship. The Senate has passed a less generous amnesty plan, which the INS said would allow 16 million aliens to remain. The Reagan administration backs that proposal. In addition to penalizing employers who hire illegal aliens, the House bill would create a huge "guest worker" program to import an estimated 36,000 foreigners to the West Coast to harvest perishable crops. That work is largely done by people of Mexico and Central America who slip across the borders every fall.

House passage sent the measure to a Senate-House conference committee charged with reconciling differences between the two chambers' versions. The House's 11-member Hispanic bloc fought the bill for days of intense debate. The Hispanics in Congress said they feared enactment would lead to discrimination by employers against any job seeker with a Latino name or accent.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States also opposed the bill, objecting to the fines against employers who hire illegal aliens and to a requirement that the employers make certain everyone hired is entitled to work in the country. Employers of four or fewer people are exempt from the bill.

The AFL-CIO initially supported the bill but turned into an opponent following adoption of the "guest worker" provision.
IT'S FUNNY how politics can get injected into just about every situation. Actually, it's not that funny at all. Especially when it involves people who don't use the truth.

Sen. Charles Percy chose to use the contamination of Crab Orchard Lake as an issue to make a point, but Crab Orchard Lake is not the only contaminated lake in Illinois. The city of Charleston is also experiencing a similar problem with water quality.

The issue of contaminated lakes is not just a local concern. It is a nationwide problem that needs to be addressed. The federal government should take a lead role in finding a solution to this issue.

In other words, the statements made by Percy can't be considered as a valid argument for his opponent. The need for a comprehensive water quality improvement plan is essential for the affected communities.

Bike-a-thon for preservation of bears comes through state

Effingham (AP) - For five cyclists on a journey from Wyoming to Washington, D.C., it's been what some might call a "grizzly" but "bear-able" bike-a-thon. Under taken on behalf of grizzly bears that inhabit Yellowstone National Park and surrounding national forests, the bike-a-thon passed through this Southern Illinois city this week.

The bike-a-thon brought four of the five cyclists and one support van less than a month after the group began their journey on Memorial Day. Participants are heading to the nation's capital to meet with Congress.

"The grizzly bear is vanishing from Yellowstone National Park and surrounding national forests," Povilaitis said. "And unless the situation improves significantly, the big bear will be lost from Yellowstone - one of its last refuges in the American West."

The American Marketing Association will hold an open discussion meeting at 7 p.m. in the Mississippi Room.

Health department picked for food study

By Jim Lademann
Staff Writer

The Jackson County Health Department has been chosen by the Food and Drug Administration to participate in a nationwide study sponsored by the FDA, according to health department spokesman Jim Bloom.

The study is being conducted by Indiana University and will focus on retail food protection laws and enforcement procedures in effect in 50 states and in 50 local jurisdictions throughout the nation.

Bloom said the department has never had any problems with either procedure or enforcement, and "maybe that's one of the reasons we were chosen.

According to Bloom, the health department maintains jurisdiction over all retail food outlets in the county. Such outlets are inspected about four times a year, which is twice the number of inspections required by the state.

Bloom said the inspection procedures for the individual outlets require that about 45 different items be inspected. He said that when an item is found in violation of one or more of these items, several things may happen, depending on which of the items are violated.

"Most violations are minor, and those that are major can generally be corrected immediately, such as the temperature of a particular item not being correct," he said.

However, sometimes an outlet must be closed. Bloom said that it could be for any of several reasons.

An establishment may have so many violations that a day's closure is necessary to correct them all, he said. Another case may be that the establishment has had repeated violations.

When an establishment has been closed, the necessary corrections must be made and a written request sent to the department to have them reinspect the establishment, Bloom said.

"We're not out to close anyone down," Bloom said. "we're just protecting the public health.

The department closed only six establishments in 1983.

Another aspect of the study will involve the similarities of the department's laws to FDA models. Bloom said Jackson County laws were "exactly the same as FDA models."

Bureau predicts drop in population

WASHINGTON (AP) - America's population may be declining but certainly will be vastly different a century from now, much older and may be declining but certainly will be vastly different a century from now, much older and may even start to fall, the Census Bureau predicted Wednesday.

Most of the population growth will occur in the next 50 years, the bureau said, with increases in the total in 2080.

The lowest series of assumptions would see a population of 232.1 million by the year 2080.

Research by U.S. researchers into the future of the U.S. population

The most optimistic projection, Bloom said, "we're just protecting the public health."

The department closed only six establishments in 1983.

Another aspect of the study will involve the similarities of the department's laws to FDA models. Bloom said Jackson County laws were "exactly the same as FDA models."

Birth rates, death rates, immigration and other factors. The starting point is 1982, when the population totaled 232.1 million.

The middle projection anticipates that the population will rise to 304.8 million by the year 2050 and then growth will slow sharply, with the total in 2080 only 310.8 million people.

The lowest series of assumptions would see a rise to 357.4 million in 2050 and then a drop to 191.1 million in 2080. The high would result in growth to 369.7 million in 2050 and 351.1 million in 2060.

But in all the projections, officials said, there likely will be fewer young people.

Chocolate cards could help close that sweet deal

CHICAGO - Businessmen say that sweet deal

Chicagoland - Businessmen and women now can leave a sweet impression with a new chocolate business card being marketed by a specialty candy boutique and corporate gift service.

The business card, a 2 and one-half by 4 and one-fourth-inch confection made by Yummy-Gram, can be made to duplicate almost any business card, said Rosanna Bernstein, owner of the store in Riverside, a suburb west of Chicago.

The card comes in both dark and white chocolate, and Mrs. Bernstein said she's working on a new version that will have white letters on a dark card.

"We're not out to close anyone down," Bloom said. "we're just protecting the public health."

Reducing waste causes lower bills

Energy conservation a matter of lifestyle

By Debra Collburn
Staff Writer

If you're tired of paying high utility bills, a slight change in your lifestyle could cut at least 25 percent from your bill. Carol S. Yates, customer service representative for CIPS, said that how much money a customer saves depends on how much he is willing to change his habits. For example, setting the air conditioner's thermostat at 78 F may save 15 percent to 25 percent of operating costs, according to Yates. Yates said that by not being wasteful with energy, a person can put money back in the bank.

When the air conditioning is on, simple actions like closing doors, windows and curtains, replacing filters at least once every three months and turning off the unit when the house is unoccupied can help. Air conditioning systems can also be saved a bit by closing doors and windows.

In terms of heat loss, a one-eighth inch gap between the edge of a 5-inch square hole in the door can lose as much heat as a four-foot square opening. Yates said that most older trailers lacked proper insulation. Yet the metal walls and windows have a tendency to leak. Future trailers that still lack an adequate insulation and where tight doors and windows fit, Yates said.

A LEAKY faucet can be more wasteful with energy, a person can put money back in the bank.

Group promotes Southern Illinois arts

By Cathy Brown
Staff Writer

Southern Illinois has no shortage of artistic talent, but getting that talent together requires effort.

Finding and grooming talent is one way Southern Illinois Arts Works meets grants to promote the arts in Southern Illinois.

"There's a lot of talent in Southern Illinois," said Susan Swisher of SIA. "It's just a matter of finding it."

SIA, formerly known as the Community and Educational Arts Association, is a cooperative effort of individuals and art groups from Illinois' 34 southern counties.

SIA's work to promote the arts takes many forms. Swisher spends much of her time working as a booking agent for the Performing Arts series. Performers in the series are chosen by SIA judges, and SIA books them to perform throughout Southern Illinois.

The year's series includes Greengrass, a performance of traditional Irish, Scottish, Australian and Canadian folk songs; performances by Don Bivin, a pianist and professor in the SIUC school of music; and the production of "The Bear," a theatrical comedy.

Swisher said auditions for the next year's series will be held July 14 at Belleville Area College. SIA is looking for talented people who have flexible hours and are willing to travel within a 125-mile radius of their home, she said.

She could not specify how many people would be chosen, but said, "If you've got a good act, we'll make an opening for you."

SIA recently sponsored an essay contest for Southern Illinoisans who are 60 years or older, and some of the winning essays on Southern Illinois may be printed in area papers.

SIA is currently working with the SIUC College of Communications and Fine Arts and the Illinois Board of Education to plan a Very Special Arts Festival to be held in November for handicapped children.

SIA also promotes arts in Southern Illinois by putting out a directory of Southern Illinois artists, available to the public for a small charge, which will include "everything from a magician to a fiddler to a basketmaker," said Swisher.

SIA also issues a quarterly newsletter which includes a calendar of area arts events.

SIA also helps artists get grants of $500 to $5000 from the Illinois Arts Council, and sometimes raises matching funds so that groups that would not be able to receive Illinois Arts Council grants are able to do so.

SIA also helps artists by sponsoring various workshops to help art leaders in management and technical production.

Officer honored for assistance in computer fraud investigation

By Jeff Wilkinson
Staff Writer

An SIU-C security officer has been awarded a certificate of appreciation from the Illinois Department of Natural Resources Enforcement for his part in the investigation of a landmark computer fraud case that resulted in the arrests of two former state employees and recovery of nearly $196,000.

Captain Carl Kirk of SIU-C security received the award for his part in an investigation conducted in conjunction with the Illinois Division of Internal Investigation, the U.S. Postal Service and the United States Attorney's Office over a period of 18 months beginning in May 1982.

As a result of the investigation, Barry Bateman, former director of computer affairs, and E. Hubert Massey, former assistant director, are serving three-year prison sentences for mail fraud and interstate transit convictions. The two were also ordered by Judge Richard Pulliam to serve as their own counsel in the trial.

Kirk said that at the time the state of Illinois had no bid laws that applied to computer sales. As a result, Bateman and Massey set up dummy computer firms in two states other than Illinois and arranged kickbacks from exhorbitant contracts to lease computer equipment and software to the University.

Kirk said the two obtained purchase requisitions from the University to purchase computers and software, collect interest on the funds and lease computers to the University from their own computer firms for a profit.

As a result, from 1976 to 1981, equipment worth $1 million was sold to the University for more than $1 million.

An internal audit in 1982 discovered the computer purchasing irregularities, which were turned over to investigators.

On June 13, 1983, both Bateman and Massey pleaded guilty to all charges listed in the indictment brought against them.

In 1978 Massey formed the Angelina Computer Sales company in LaFayette, Texas, and arranged to have a relative serve as its president. Bateman also formed a company, Virtual Computing Systems, in Port Arthur, Texas.

Massey also became a paid consultant to the Antron Computer Corp., while employed by the University.

Equipment was then purchased through Virtual Computing Systems for $518,222, then sold by Virtual to SIU-C for about $577,000. $390,000 worth of equipment was purchased through Antron. The same equipment was later sold to the University for $114,000.

Kirk said the case was unusual because it was one the first and largest cases in Illinois. He did not know of any case of its type in the nation.

He said that computer fraud at the University had generally been limited to such incidents as work time being stolen on payroll computers.

Societies set trip

The Southern Illinois Audubon Society and the Southern Illinois Native Plant Society will participate in a joint outing to Kaskaskia Experimental Forest Saturday.

Several historic sites and the discussion of the influence of forest types will be included in the trip. Participants are requested to meet at 8 a.m. at the Unity Point Science Complex parking lot and bring a sack lunch.

Fun club slated

The Carbondale Park District is offering a Summer Fun Club for "children ages 6 to 10 at Lenus Turley Park. The program will be from 9 to 11 a.m. Monday through Friday, June 21 through July 22.

The cost of the program is $6 per week, or $14 for all four weeks for residents, and $9 per week or $27 for all four weeks for non-residents. Deadline for registration is Friday.

Mower quits, so she does too

DECATUR (AP) - The sign starked in the front lawn of the Gary and Ann McBride residence reads: "Wife On Strike For Shorter Work Time and Better Pay."

Mrs. McBride, 31, said she decided to set up the one-woman picket line when the lawnmower broke Sunday and nobody offered to help.

"I just sat down, had a beer and quit," Mrs. McBride said.

Gary McBride, a mechanic who works nights, said he awoke Monday morning to discover his wife had taken her job action person to handle. Everybody who works nights, said he, don't get anything out of their horn.

"She earns here," McBride said that when asked what she was doing along with his dishes. That's where I draw the line."

Mrs. McBride said help.

"It's too much for one person to handle. Everybody needs a break. We should have a partnership," McBride, who contended he "earns his keep around here," said he's eager to negotiate.

She presented me some demands and I'm willing to go along with some," he said. "I'll do more yard work, but not the laundry or the cooking or the dishes. That's where I draw the line."

TEAM: Trade time in big leagues

one thing Boston doesn't — solid pitching. Once a powerhouse in the late 1960s, the Sox have come close to becoming a joke. What happened?

The problem is easy enough to spot. During the '70s, the Sox had a nucleus of young stars who peaked at the same time. Married by older, established talent and a good bench, they were one of the most feared teams in baseball.

But while the Sox were playing great, management had put little attention to the farm system and the threat of losing young talent through free agency. Of all those all-stars, only a few remain. Boston is struggling to remain competitive in what is considered to be baseball's strongest division.

Boston isn't the only powerhouse team of the '70s to fall apart. The Cincinnati Reds were one of the all-time great teams.

As with Boston, free agency and bad trades have turned the once-proud Big Red Machine into the National League West's doormat. The Cincinnati farm system, like the Red Sox and Cubs, is in disarray. That is one reason why the Reds recently sent pitcher Bruce Tatum Heights. Mayor of an office and an older man down home office in a line. Tufts. Just 0.6 seconds is all that separated Michael Franks from a trip to the finals of the 400-meter dash championship at the U.S. Track and Field Trials Tuesday in Los Angeles, Ca.

The SIU-C sprinter finished sixth in his heat and third in the dash with a time of 44.95. The top four places in Tuesday’s two heats advanced to Thursday’s final round.

“I walked to Lew (SIU-C track coach),” Franks said, “He said that in his opinion, the dice were cast at the NCAA finals when Michael Johnson took the heat. I just didn’t think that he ever fully recovered. He didn’t have the ability to go all-out and he was protecting himself. He started slowly but came on strong in the last 200 meters, but it just wasn’t enough.”

John Sayre is the only Saluki athlete who remains alive for a spot on the U.S. Olympic team. Sayre will compete in the decathlon competition Thursday.

Saluki hopes rest on Sayre

Decathlete John Sayre is the Salukis’ last hope for a U.S. Olympic team berth.

The second day is when John will be at his best because of the pole vault,” Huff said. “John figures that he can score 4,200 or 4,300 points on the second day. So if he scores 3,000 points on the first day he will be in good shape.”

Friday’s events are the 110-meter hurdles, discus, pole vault, javelin and 1,500-meter run. The top three finishers in the decathlon will qualify for the Olympic team.

Meanwhile, Stephen Wray, a high-jumper on the 1984 Saluki team, qualified for the Olympic team in Barbados, his native country. Wray leaped 7-4 to secure a spot on the squad.
