JOE BOHLEN SEEMS TO BE WALKING ON WATER BUT IT'S JUST A WATER-COVERED PIER

Rainy Days Here Again With 5-Inch Downpour

20-Inch Accumulation Possible for Month

If the March Lion left any footprints around when he roared into town last week, you'll need swim fins and underwater goggles to find them now.

Unseasonal thunderstorms and heavy rains dumped more than five inches of rain on SIU and the Carbondale area in less than 36 hours.

The campus at times looked like the Lake-on-the-Campus multiplied by five.

Floyd Cunningham, director of the SIU Climatology Laboratory, said 4.15 inches of rain fell between 7 a.m. Sunday and 7 a.m. Monday. By noon Monday another 1.20 inches of rain had fallen and there was little sign of a letup. However, the U.S. Weather Bureau predicted the showers would end by Monday night.

"This has been an unusually heavy rainfall for such a short period," Cunningham said. "If it continues--and I don't think it will--we could have as high as 20 inches this month. We already have had more than 7 inches in the first nine days."

Cunningham said the Climatology Laboratory has no way of telling whether the rainfall in the last 36 hours has set any new records locally.

Reports from around campus indicated that the most damage done was to produce up to 12,500 pairs of soggy feet--or more--and a lot of empty seats in classrooms Monday.

Anthony Blass, acting Physical Plant director, said that there hadn't been any report of water damage to any of the campus buildings.

"We had a little trouble with one basement but that was because the water had been diverted the wrong way," he said.

"That was quickly corrected," he added.

The water level in the Lake-on-the-Campus climbed at least three feet and covered the concrete fishing piers around the edge of the lake. One campus rumor had it that Lentz Hall in Thompson

American Flag, State Banner To Guard Student Council

A touch of patriotism will soon be added to the weekly Student Council meetings.

The Student Council passed an amendment Thursday night to acquire a United States flag and State banner to be displayed at Council meetings starting next term. Council member Howard Benson has been asked to check with the American Legion and V.F.W. to see if these organizations would donate the flag.

Council member Micki Goldfeather objected to the amendment, saying, "Do we really have the right to impose a compulsory function like this upon future councils? Traditions are not instituted by compulsory tasks. The significance of the pledge of allegiance will be degraded not ennobled by its becoming a perfunctory task."

Two motions to further amend this bill were defeated. One amendment was "The pledge of allegiance should be recited at the first meeting of each term." The other was "to begin each term's meeting with a silent prayer."

The Council passed appointments submitted by Student Body President, Dick Moore, naming Don Grant to the Campus Judicial Board. Moore also appointed Judith Wolfe and Charles Novak to the University Center Planning Committee.

The Council passed a petition for approval to recognize the newly formed AFROTC Cadet Ladies Club. The proposed objective is to "provide the student wives and fiancées of the members of the advanced AFROTC with a general background and understanding of their importance as wives of future Air Force officers."

SIU Heads List Of Corps Joiners

SIU has had more applicants for the Peace Corps this year than any other Illinois university or college, according to Jim Gibson, assistant director of public affairs for the Peace Corps.

In a letter to the Daily Egyptian, Gibson said only Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan State have more student applicants than SIU. "Compare their enrollments to SIU, and perceive, age-wise, SIU heads the list," he wrote.

An amendment was passed to provide $248 to pay for lodging, food and transportation for the six students who will represent SIU in the Mid-West Model United Nations meeting on March 17 and 18 in St. Louis.

Rain, Rain, Go Away

'Squishy' Shoes Take Alert in Stride; Students Study Through Near-Twister

The students on campus from Southeast Asia must have felt like they were back home during the monsoon season Monday as torrential rains struck the Carbondale area.

But for those of us who are unaccustomed to such weather, walking on flooded sidewalks and paths with water-soaked shoes that "squish" with every step was an added inconvenience to Monday morning classes.

The rain, which began early Sunday morning, was accompanied by a tornado alert that night. What did the SIU students think about the storm, and what were their thoughts?

"I was riding around looking at the flooded streets, and I heard that a tornado might be coming this way, but I didn't give it much thought," said John Wilhelm, a junior from Joliet.

"I was in the Magnolia Lounge, and I heard the thunder and saw the lightning outside, but I didn't know there was a tornado alert," said Lloyd Mietzner, a freshman from Chebanse. "At the time I was wondering how I was going to get home. Even if I had known about the alert, I would have just kept on studying, because I sure couldn't have done anything about it," he added.

"Tornado alert? What tornado alert?" asked Roland Smith, a sophomore from St. Louis. "If there was an alert, I'm glad the twister didn't come this way, because it would have blown my place clear to Murphysboro."

"Somebody came in my room and told me that a tornado alert was out, and I felt like heading for the library," said Dan Garner, a freshman from Chicago. "I've never seen one, but I have no desire to be an eye-witness to one either," he added.

By the way, did the severe weather warning whistle pass its test Thursday afternoon?

Trustees Honor John Allen

John W. Allen, historian and collector of southern Illinois folk lore, has been named by the Board of Trustees to receive the University's Distinguished Service Award.

It will be presented at the June or August commencement, a University spokesman said.

Allen, born in 1887 in a log cabin near Broughton, in Hamilton County, taught school in southern Illinois from 1907 to 1935 and was on the staff of Southern as curator of history for the Museum of Natural and Social Sciences from 1942 until his retirement in 1956.

Since that time he has writ-

Reluctant Ladies Aren't Leaping

Statistics for the winter quarter don't seem to indicate any leap year increase in marriages at SIU.

The indicator is the number of name changes made for women during the quarter. Herbert W. Wohlwend, assistant registrar, said 131 changes of name have been recorded during winter quarter.

"This is just a record we have of women who have requested name changes, and doesn't necessarily mean that they requested them because of marriage," he said.

"Actually, there is no way of telling, but most of these are the result of marriage," he added.

The total is about average for a three-month period, he said.

In Jackson County, however, the marriage rate is higher than last year at this time, but by only three marriages--last year 61 marriage licenses were issued, this year 64.

Must Fill 177 House Seats

Illinois Faces First At-Large Election

For the first time in history, a state will hold an at-large election. That state is Illinois and the election will be the state representatives race in November.

Candidates for the House of Representatives will be nominated at party conventions June 1. They will be nominated by delegates, two from each district, who will be elected in the April 14 primaries. Many candidates for delegate to the convention have announced plans to nominate themselves.

The public will vote at large for 177 candidates. The party conventions may nominate not more than 118 or fewer than 100 candidates. This will assure a minority of 59. If each party were allowed to nominate 177, straight party voting could lead to non-representation of the minority party. The 118 limit on party nominations prevents this.

An independent candidate (one under no party label and therefore not nominated at the party conventions) must file a petition with at least 25,000 signatures from at least 50 counties in order to get his name on the ballot. Write-in candidates need no petition.

Because there are no constitutional provisions governing an at-large election, Atty. Gen. William Clark has said that cumulative voting, in which a voter may give all 177 votes to one candidate or divide them in any way he wishes, will not be allowed.

Separate ballots and ballot boxes will be required and counting is expected to be a mountainous task. Central counting stations will be set up where counting will be handled by special crews.

Alcohol Transport Costs Student $20

Richard Andrews, 21-year-old junior from Des Plaines, was fined $15 plus $5 costs in Magistrate Court for illegal transportation of an open alcoholic beverage container.

The Office of Student Affairs placed him on disciplinary probation through the spring quarter and declared him ineligible for undergraduate motor vehicle privileges.

JUANITA MCNEELEY PREPARES FOR PAINTING OF MURAL

To Depict Roles of Man

Artist Thinks Big; Will Paint Huge Canvas Mural for Library

By Jay Soldner

"The walls of buildings should be covered with paintings rather than simply wallpaper and bricks," says Juanita McNeeley, a graduate student in the Art Department.

Miss McNeeley's search for a wall large enough on which to place her paintings has finally ended.

She has received permission from University officials to prepare a 9-by-20-foot canvas mural, which will be placed on the stairwell wall between the first and second floors of Morris Library. She expects the mural to be finished by June 1.

The mural, which Miss McNeeley entitles "Man's Injustice to Man," will be a composite of ideas done in a free range of oil colors. She explained the theme of the painting as an expression to show the various roles men have assumed in the world today." It will expose some of today's serious problems in terms of what she explained as "some kind of protest."

The painting will be divided into three separate panels. "These panels are normally directly associated, but each part of this mural will tell its own story," she said.

Miss McNeeley will soon begin preparing the mural on the seventh floor of the library. She is now waiting for necessary equipment, including a stretcher to expand and hold the canvas in place. She expressed her enthusiasm to get started on the project, but at the same time doesn't mind the delay, saying, "I'm making many drawings, trying to get ideas. This will be my biggest drawing ever, and I'm trying to 'say it' as well as possible."

She jokingly recalled how the opportunity of doing this project came about. She told of how she started making large drawings when she first came to Southern. One day she was kidding with an instructor about placing one of her paintings in a campus building. "I didn't take the idea seriously, but he did, and the next thing I knew, the whole thing developed," she said.

Miss McNeeley said the money for the project is being provided by the University. "Everybody has been very cooperative with me on this project and I haven't been restricted at all," she added.

She is preparing the mural in lieu of her graduate thesis. She also has a graduate assistantship, teaching freshman figure drawing and basic studio.

Miss McNeeley is from St. Louis, where she graduated from Washington University before coming to Southern. One of her paintings is presently on display in the Mid-South Exhibition at the Brooks Memorial Gallery in Memphis, Tenn. She has had paintings accepted elsewhere, noting that "The acceptance of a painter's works is all a painter's gamble."

After graduating, Miss McNeeley worked at various occupations. She studied art in Mexico in the winter of 1960, where she found art to be a part of everyday life. "I think it should be the same here," she said. She also taught in art centers during summer sessions. She explained that she always tried to keep her working time at a minimum so that she would have time to paint.

As for future plans, Miss McNeeley said she would like to teach people of college age and, of course, paint at the same time. What she really wants is to return to Mexico or to Europe to paint, or, in her own words: "to find out what they're doing."

Returning to the project, she said she's hopeful that the mural will create more interest in art among students at SIU.

Point was to be sandbagged to prevent water damage.

However, Blass said he knew of no plans to sandbag the dining hall. He pointed out that the Lake-on-the-Campus has an overflow ditch to take care of such emergencies as unusual rainfall.

William A. Volk, acting construction superintendent for SIU, said the rain halted all outside work on construction projects such as the Communications Building, University Park, the new Classroom Building and the School of Technology complex.

"But we anticipate such things and figure them in construction time," he explained. "Actually this will have no effect on completion dates."

He added that January was an exceptionally good month and that no work was lost due to bad weather.

"I guess this will just balance that out," Volk said.

He said water probably would have to be pumped out of most construction sites before work could be resumed.

McNamara Sees Progress in War

HOA HAO, South Viet Nam-- In a khaki uniform covered with dust, U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara went by helicopter around South Viet Nam's Mekong River delta Monday and said he saw progress being made.

But here in this village 100 miles west of Saigon, tragedy struck his mission. A U.S. Army helicopter flying security cover in the Communist-infested flatlands lost power and crashed into a field. Two crewmen were killed; the pilot and copilot survived.

McNamara missed seeing it by minutes, but turned grim when told about it later.

The crash marred what had seemed an otherwise successful trip for McNamara, who came here for the second time since December on a mission to learn what's going wrong in Viet Nam's war against a strengthened and aggressive force of Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

With the Vietnamese premier, Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, at his side, McNamara spoke in three places to the people living in this troubled countryside. Each time he was cheered and greeted enthusiastically.

He promised the United States would see the war through to victory for South Viet Nam and called on the people to give their full support to Khanh and what he is doing.

McNamara said later he noted progress in the countryside since he visited in December. He credited Khanh's efforts to bring order out of the chaos in the Vietnamese government since the overthrow and slaying Nov. 1-2 of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Senate Rights Fight Mapped

WASHINGTON -- Southern opponents called a strategy session Monday in advance of the start of an expected lengthy Senate battle over a broad new civil rights bill.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., leader of the Dixie forces who have fought similar legislation in the past, called his supporters to a closed meeting.

Some senators said the floor struggle may last for weeks or even months but few were trying to predict how or when it will end.

Drought Ends In Downpour; Rivers Rising

The weekend rain was southern Illinois' first major relief from drought in nearly a year. It transformed a parched condition to one of potential flooding in less than 48 hours.

The Weather Bureau said the Ohio River would be above flood stage by Wednesday. Smaller streams overrun their banks Sunday and Monday.

The Big Muddy River rose more than 9 feet to within 4 feet of interfering with Murphysboro's municipal water system.

The Kaskaskia River, which had been low enough to threaten some communities' water supplies, rose 3 feet Monday. But it still was less than half-way to floodstage at Carlyle.

Murphysboro began preparing its Riverside water plant for high water, and the Weather Bureau said the Ohio would threaten some lowland dwellers later in the week.

A few rural roads were flooded, but State Police said all highways were open.

Some 24-hour rain amounts included Carlyle 1.26 inches, New Athens 1.75, Benton 1.73, MANILA -- The Philippines was reported Monday to have agreed to establish consular relations with Malaysia.

Supreme Court Tosses Out Montgomery Libel Judgment

WASHINGTON -- The Supreme Court Monday threw out a $500,000 libel judgment awarded a Montgomery, Ala., city official in a suit against the New York Times and four Negro ministers.

In so doing, the court laid down a constitutional standard that a public official may not recover damages for a defamatory falsehood relating to his official conduct without a showing of actual malice, of knowledge the statement was false or reckless disregard of whether or not it was false.

Justice William J. Brennan wrote the court's decision; while it was unanimous, three justices said it did not go far enough.

Justices Hugo L. Black and Arthur J. Goldberg, in separate concurring opinions, expressed regret that the court did not lay down a doctrine of unconditional freedom of the public and press to criticize official conduct.

Justice William O. Douglas noted that he agreed with both concurring opinions.

The libel suit was based on publication of an advertisement in the Times of March 29, 1960. The advertisement had statements critical of the handling of racial demonstrations in Montgomery.

L. B. Sullivan, police commissioner of Montgomery, won the award in Montgomery County Circuit Court with a contention that several paragraphs in the advertisement would be taken as reflecting on him.

Brennan's main opinion said the Alabama law of civil libel, involved in the case, was a form of regulation that creates hazards to protected freedoms markedly greater than those that attend reliance upon the criminal law.

Brennan said the Times' case raised the possibility that a good-faith critic of government would be penalized for his criticism. Such a proposition, he added, "relied on by the Alabama courts, strikes at the very center of the constitutionally protected area of free expression."

Greeks, Turks Battle in Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus -- Ignoring U.N. efforts to restore a cease-fire, Greek and Turkish Cypriots battled with armored bulldozers, mortars and bazookas Monday in flaming Ktima on the west coast.

The Greek Cypriots claimed they had isolated the town, preventing British troops from entering or leaving. It appeared to be the sharpest fight between the warring communities since the current conflict broke out last Christmas.

A Greek Cypriot spokesman said three Turkish strongholds were captured, and the Turkish police station was badly damaged by gunfire.

Three fires in the Turkish quarter sent smoke spiraling skyward. The thud of a bazooka and the rattle of machine guns echoed through the twisting narrow streets.

About 100 British soldiers and several armored scout cars were caught in the Turkish quarter but apparently were in no immediate danger, the British said.

So far, one Greek Cypriot was reported killed. The Turkish Cypriots gave no casualty figures, but Greek Cypriot papers said Turkish casualties are expected to run high.

New Hampshire Voters Have Day

GRANITE STATE SCULPTOR

Bruce Shanks, Buffalo Evening News

Write-In Votes May Decide Winner of First '64 Primary

Here's a brief rundown on the principals in today's presidential primary in New Hampshire:

Barry Goldwater: The senator from Arizona is the acknowledged leader of American conservatives. He's been in the Senate since 1952 and has been campaigning vigorously in New Hampshire.

Norman LePage: This Nashua accountant has been tabbed as a perennial candidate, one who runs for office as frequently as Lar Daly does in Illinois.

Nelson A. Rockefeller: The grandson of the oil billionaire has been governor of New York since his first successful bid in 1958. He's been running hard for President most of the time since then.

Margaret Chase Smith: The senator from Maine is the first woman in modern times to seek the nomination for the nation's highest office. She's giving the primary a new twist.

Harold E. Stassen: He has been known over the years as the "boy wonder" of GOP politics, but he never made the grade in the big time after serving as governor of Minnesota.

The printed names on the ballot end here, but the line below them provides for write-ins. Most prominent speculation has figured around these names:

Richard M. Nixon: He has a long list of "former" titles before his name--congressman, senator, and vice-president. He lost the 1960 presidential election to John F. Kennedy and later, the gubernatorial race in California.

Henry Cabot Lodge: Member of a famous Massachusetts family, he has been a U.S. senator, representative at the United Nations, and in 1960, running mate of Nixon. He is currently American ambassador to South Viet Nam.

Others who could figure: Gov. George Romney of Michigan, and Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania. On the Democratic side, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy is seeking to discourage any write-in votes on his behalf for the Democratic vice-presidential preference. No names have been printed on the Democratic ballot.

Rockefeller Blasts at His Rivals

CONCORD, N.H.--Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller blasted away at his absent rivals, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Henry Cabot Lodge, as the New Hampshire Republican presidential primary barreled toward a possible photo finish in Tuesday's voting.

Campaigning personally in the closing hours, the New York governor flailed at Lodge, the U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam; and Goldwater, in obvious recognition that they represent equal threats to him in the nation's first polling place test of Republican sentiment.

Rockefeller said that a big write-in vote for Lodge--which some pollsters are forecasting--probably would not be intended as such, but would be interpreted as an endorsement of the way things are going in South Viet Nam.

Rockefeller told a news conference that Goldwater, once regarded as a heavy favorite to win in this New England state, had damaged his chances by taking "extreme positions."

"I hereby declare my preference for candidate for the office of President of the United States to be as follows:"

What follows is a list of names, and a space for write-in votes.

Today and Wednesday, the nation's political attention is focused on New Hampshire, where the first presidential primary of 1964 is being conducted.

The spotlight is on the Republicans. Five names are printed on their ballot, but none is on the Democratic ballot because President Lyndon B. Johnson declined to enter.

The five names printed on the GOP ballot are Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, Harold Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, and Norman LePage, who has been described as a Perennial candidate.

But New Hampshire voters can also write in the names of others they favor for the Republican nomination. An organized campaign has been featured for Richard M. Nixon, the unsuccessful G O P candidate in 1960 and a two-term vice-president under Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The second write-in campaign has been organized on behalf of Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam. He was Nixon's running mate in the 1960 campaign.

Write-ins are also figuring in the Democratic ballot,

BARRY GOLDWATER

which has no names printed on it.

Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy has disavowed a movement to seek write-in votes in his behalf for the vice-presidential nomination. President Lyndon B. Johnson has not entered the primary; his position is largely interpreted as based on the proposition that the nomination is automatic for an eligible incumbent President if he wants it.

The President customarily selects his own running mate. Too strong a showing for Kennedy via the write-in route could therefore be embarrassing to President Johnson.

Scientific Study of Finals

One of the more peculiar rituals of the American university system is that in which its members are subjected to days of grueling examinations--the object of which is to test the amount of knowledge they have managed to avoid in several weeks' association with instructors and (supposedly) printed matter. The ritual is affectionately called "final examination week."

Years of experience in enduring the ritual give the elders of the tribe--known as "seniors" or "grads"--a distinct advantage over the younger members of their peer group. It is not unusual, therefore, for the uninitiated to look to the experienced for advice in surviving examinations.

We offer here, for the benefit of new initiates to the university system (and for the older ones who have succeeded in forgetting the pain of past finals) a condensed finals survival advice kit recommended by elders of the tribe.

1. You should have studied during the semester. (This advice is irrelevant now; but good to remember for next semester in case you make it through this one.)

2. The Test is your only enemy. You hate finals, you hate finals, instructors hate finals, and testing service hates finals. (This advice isn't particularly encouraging, but you need to keep in mind who the real enemy is--a single target is easier to hit.)

3. Forget the last night cram. That's the time to drink.

4. Break five minutes for every hour you study; it allows all you've read to sink in. (Don't let the breaks begin absorbing the entire day, however.)

5. Be early for each final. Use the extra time for sharpening pencils, telling jokes, or making a date; but never think about the test beforehand. The realization of what you don't know may prove too much for you, and you'll have lost before the battle is begun.

6. Never say die.

Unfortunately, it is usually the older members of the test-taking clan who follow their rules the least. Sociologically, it seems their years of experience fosters a strange dysfunction; a loss of interest in the integrative values of social stratification and like that.

Last Minute Advice for Professors

Why don't SIU professors devote the last week of class to revision? Revision could take the form of putting their course in perspective or answering the difficulties met by students in their own revision.

Why do the professors keep

Procrastinators Get

What They Deserve

I was interested in reading the article "Students Take United Stand Against Burden of Finals," (Mar. 4.) When I finished, I felt the need to ask this question: "Why are some of these students going to school? Do they come to pass exams, or are they here to learn something?"

At least four students mentioned cramming the night before the final examination. This is wrong! If a student has conscientiously studied throughout the term, there is need to do no more than briefly review the material covered in order to place the information in proper perspective. Any student who waits until the last minute to start to study deserves to have the poor grade which he receives, or to forget the material which he so hurriedly and belatedly "learned."

Final examinations are not given to plague the students, but should serve instead as an opportunity for the students to review material already learned.

introducing new material until five minutes after the last buzz of the clock on the last day of class: Is this fair? Is this reasonable? If a professor feels he must keep hammering till the last available minute couldn't he leave the stuff covered in the last week out of the examination reckoning?

Why do professors give assignments in the last two weeks of class? Why don't students show their appreciation of fair professors by taking fair professor' examinations extra seriously?

Mismanagement of Dialogue Creates Mis-logical Farce

As two of the participants in the scheduled "Dialogue on the Technological Order" of last Saturday (Feb. 29) we would like to protest about the total and disgraceful mismanagement of this event.

After being invited to take part in this discussion, we found that the Activities Development Center was unprepared to give us adequate briefing at the time arranged. Secondly, the public notices distributed around the University were incorrectly worded in regard to the date of the Dialogue and the names of the participants. In addition, the Egyptian was evidently given imprecise information as to the nature of the discussion. It was a surprise and indeed disconcerting for the discussants to learn from Saturday's Daily Egyptian that they were to be concerned with theology rather than technology.

The culmination of this farce occurred on Saturday evening when the participants arrived to find that the Activities Development Center had failed to provide the necessary equipment and facilities. As a result they were completely unprepared to begin the meeting at the scheduled time. We hardly need state that when the meeting was declared cancelled at 8:40 p.m. we were rather irritated since some of us had gone to considerable inconvenience in order that we might attend.

It is essential that if such meetings are to be conducted, in the future, they should be arranged in such a way that is of credit to the University. To this end it is imperative that such arrangements be placed in more capable and responsible hands.

Give and Take of Debate Yields Truth

I read in the Daily Egyptian letters to the editor column where someone said the debate team was engaging in prostitution and then asked for further comments ("Debaters Seeking Victory--Not Truth," March 3.)

In the first place, debaters operate in the area of alternative public policies, where truth is by no means a settled consideration, and is pursued less through consultation with experts and charts than through the give and take of competing interests.

In the second place, juggling, twisting and distorting are tricks that are employed by unsuccessful and poorly coached debaters. Audiences are far less stupid than Mr. Haugness, who wrote the letter, assumes; therefore I have found that using accurate and impartial evidence and valid statistics will persuade more people than will, for instance, quoting out of context (a particularly unfortunate example, since it never works among knowledgeable debaters.) In this way I get my rewards for honesty in this world. The "standard practices" discovered by Mr. Haugness' study of this problem barely exist, and are definitely not required of any college debater.

Frankly, I don't hope to convince Mr. Haugness of this, since he seems to distrust not only debaters but even lawyers, perhaps in anticipation of some unfortunate experience.

I don't know who offended Mr. Haugness, nor where he gets his rather puerile righteousness, but he at least condescended to solicit further opinion, thereby tacitly deferring to the very process which he pretends to condemn.

Saluki Five Loses; Hartman Still Proud of Club's Record

By Alan Goldfarb

"I'm real proud of them." Those were the soft, almost sorrowful words from a glassy-eyed Jack Hartman moments after his basketball team was knocked out of the NCAA tournament Friday by a strong Evansville team.

Hartman was standing outside his squad's locked dressing room to shake the hands of sympathizers after the heartbreaking, 64-59 loss handed the Salukis by the host Purple Aces.

The coach would not allow anyone in the locker room for a few minutes following the defeat in order to let his young players collect their thoughts after the disappointing loss.

"I'm real proud of them," he said again, "I'm real satisfied with them this year. It was a young ball club," he added, summing up SIU's current basketball season. "It's unusual to have four sophomores out there, especially against a club like Evansville."

Across the hall in a jubilant Evansville locker room, Ace coach Arad McCutchan, swarmed by well-wishers and reporters, said "We know Southern was a much better team than the first time we met them and beat them by 23 points. They were good and we respected them."

Asked what was the deciding factor in the close game that was tied six times, "Mac," wearing his traditional red tie, socks and belt, explained, "It was our defense that was the best part, and Jerry Sloan was a bear off those boards."

McCutchan also spoke of the zone defense that SIU threw at his No. 1 Aces. The zone worked beautifully for the Salukis for the first 10 minutes of play, but then long jumpers by Sloan, Buster Briley and Sam Watkins cracked it. "I wanted to get that zone cracked before we lost that lead," McCutchan said.

The Aces never did lose the lead, which was as much as nine points in the closing minutes of the first stanza, until Paul Henry, the only senior on the floor for the Salukis, put SIU on top with a foul shot with 4:01 remaining.

The Aces came right back and held the ball most of the closing minutes of play. The Salukis harassed the Aces and managed to steal the ball twice, but only capitalized once.

When Hartman allowed reporters into the Saluki locker room, it was an almost deathly quiet that filled the stuffy room.

They wanted that game badly. They were up for it and really believed that the Aces could be beaten, but Evansville wasn't to be denied that night.

The Salukis lost to the best team in the tournament, Evansville, with its 23-3 record, is favored to go all the way in the 32-team finals next Friday night. Still, the Salukis did themselves proud. They went down hard.

Hofstra and Akron To Play in Opener

Hofstra, of Hempstead, New York will meet Akron in the opening game of the NCAA college-division basketball quarterfinals at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday in Evansville's Roberts Stadium.

Hofstra, with a 23-5 record, is the Eastern champ while Akron, 21-6, is the Midwest champ. Other first round games Wednesday will pit Adelphi, 18-5, Northeast champ, against North Carolina A & T, 21-6, South Central champ, at 2:30 p.m.

Southeast Missouri State, 20-5, the Southwest winner, will play State College of Iowa, 22-2, the Midwest champ, at 6 p.m. Cal Poly, 23-5, the Pacific Coast champion, will play Evansville College, 23-3, the Great Lakes champ, at 8 p.m.

Boyd O'Neal

O'Neal, Ramsey Get Berths On All-Tournament Squad

By Alan Goldfarb

Some interesting sidelights from the Great Lakes Regional at Evansville:

Southern and Evansville each placed two men on the All-Tourney team and Jackson State placed one. Ball State, which finished last in the four-team field, failed to place any players on the "dream team."

Jerry Sloan, who was named to the first team Little All-American team for the second year in a row by United Press International, was named the tournament's most valuable player.

Boyd O'Neal who started his first two games of the year, in place of Lloyd Stovall, was honored by the press by being named to the top five. O'Neal displayed unusual poise for a sophomore and had a great tournament, scoring 30 points and grabbing 26 rebounds in the two games.

O'Neal, who did an effective defensive job on Ball State's Ed Butler in the first game, was nervous before both games, but settled down after the whistle. Congratulated after the win over the Cardinals, "Sonny," as his teammates call him, seemed very grateful for the well-wishing.

Joe Ramsey was the second Saluki named to the All-Tourney team. Joe had an upset stomach after the Ball State win, but felt much better in his hotel room the next afternoon, after reading that he had been named to the honorable mention Little All-American list by UPI.

Rounding out the all-star squad were Larry Humes of Evansville and Jerry Yarbrough of Jackson State.

Proving that statistics don't mean too much, the two statistical leaders of the tournament didn't even make the All-Tourney team. Butler was the tournament's leading scorer with 34 points and Jackson's Lyvonne LeFlore, a kangaroo-like jumper, led the field with 32 rebounds.

Sloan had 34 points and O'Neal was third with 30.

Duane Warning expressed the feelings of most of the Salukis about the championship game.

"I had a tingling sensation all over my body after the Ball State game. I don't know what it was, but it was funny. I think my ankles were taped too tight. I couldn't jump too well."

Warning was the first Saluki in the locker room before the Evansville game. He came in about an hour before game time and asked Al Jacobs to try to make the tape job a little looser.

"I feel real confident," said Duane, "I know we could beat them. I want this one so bad. I'm going to play like I've never played before."

Frosh Cagers Close Season; Hope for Varsity Duty in '65

After closing their season last week, Southern's freshmen cagers can now look to next winter, when they face the struggle of landing a spot on the varsity roster.

The high-scoring frosh averaged almost 89 points a game this year in rolling over 11 of their 14 opponents. Most of their victories were by wide margins, and their closest win came early in the season when they edged St. Louis Baptist by six points. The Salukis came back later in the season to whip the St. Louis club by 22 points.

Of their three losses, one came at the hands of the Junior Varsity, 74-66, early in the season. Their second loss was dealt by Murray State, but the freshmen forced the Kentucky outfit into overtime before losing by two points.

The third loss also came as a heart-breaker, when they lost to Evansville 68-55. The frosh stuck close to the Aces until the end, when the Salukis were forced to play the final minutes with only four men.

Their strong offense is also indicated by the fact that Coach Lubelt's boys went over the century mark in scoring four times. Two of these victories came against the Salukis' "cousin" Harrisburg J.C. In two games against the Harrisburg team, the frosh scored 214 points. The team's game high of 122 points, which they reached twice, is a new school record for the freshman team.

In commenting about his team's offense, Coach Lubelt said, "We did have a good offense, but the boys were capable of playing good defense too. We weren't able to play a tough man-to-man defense late in the season and had to switch to the zone."

"We finished the season with only seven boys, and we couldn't play the man-to-man because we couldn't risk getting into foul trouble," he added.

WSIU-TV to Offer Phys Ed Course

A television short course for elementary classroom teachers responsible for supervising playground activities or physical education classes will be aired by SIU beginning Tuesday.

The four televised lessons will be conducted by Marjorie Bond, associate professor of physical education for women, who also has prepared a guide book to be used in connection with the series.

Called "Play on a Higher Level," the tele-lessons will be presented over WSIU-TV (channel 8) each Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 and again at 5:30, for four weeks, skipping March 31 which falls during the public schools' spring vacation, and concluding the series Tuesday, April 7.

Lubelt was referring to the fact that he had lost four of his players during the season. A couple of them quit the team, and Dave Renn had to drop out of school because of illness. Renn was averaging almost 13 points a game when he had to drop out. Ed Zastrow, one of the top reserves, missed the latter part of the season because of a foot injury.

The team's offense was sparked by Walt Frazier, who set a freshman scoring record. Coach Lubelt got two pleasant surprises in Clarence Smith and Ray Krapp.

Both of these boys went out for the team on their own without benefit of a basketball scholarship. Smith, a 6-4 forward from Zion, won a starting berth and repaid Lubelt by finishing the season as the team's second highest scorer with a 16-point average. His biggest night came against Mt. Vernon J.C. when he scored 33 points.

Krapp, a guard from Edwardsville, also won a starting assignment and came through as the third highest scorer. He averaged 12 points a game, but his main strength was on defense where he sparked the Salukis in the backcourt.

A milder surprise came from guard Roger Bechtold. The former Belleville prep cager played in all 14 games, but he didn't make any big impression in the scoring column until the final two games, when his 56 points for the two contests topped the Salukis' offense.

Pre-Law Students Elect Club Officers

Donald Grant has been elected president of the SIU Pre-Law Club.

Other new officers are Alan Walker, vice president; Sara O'Neil, secretary; and Seliadi Beza, treasurer.

Engineering Students Planning Technology School Open House

Twenty-one students majoring in engineering are on a planning committee for the School of Technology open house slated for April 4 at Southern.

Exhibits and tours of the engineering laboratories will highlight the open house.

Students on the planning commission include Morris Townsend of Salem, Bernard Niebur, Kenneth Jordan and Dennis Kircher, all of Carbondale; Ronald Kennedy of Decatur; Stephen Riggio of DuQuoin, Raymond Childs of East Alton; Billy Newton of Goreville, Dimitrios Karathanos of Greece; Daniel Stitt of Metropolis; Lowell Russell of Mt. Vernon; John Crawford of New Berlin; Curtis Trapp of Park Forest.

William Ziegler of Pickneyville; Michael Jennings of Rolling Meadows; Richard

Landis of St. Louis, Ryan Rust of Sparta, Stuart Fliege, William McMahon of Vergennes and Richard N. Roberts of Zion.

Wood to Attend Ag Conference

Eugene Wood, associate professor in the School of Agriculture, will attend the 43rd annual Conference on Agriculture Education for the Central Region, today through Friday in Chicago.

The conference, will be concerned with improving Agricultural and vocational education in the midwest.

Delegates from 13 midwestern states will be at the conference.

Off-Campus Group Plans Mock Rally

A mock political convention will be sponsored by the Off-Campus Area Representatives Council on May 22 and 23 in the Men's Gymnasium.

"This will afford an excellent opportunity for all politically minded campus organizations to state their views concerning the oncoming presidential election. The convention will also give students an idea of how conventions are run and how candidates are actually chosen," said Brent Moore, chairman of the council.

The purpose of this mock convention is to nominate, through convention procedure, men for president and vice president who will be representatives of student body opinion. In doing so, Moore would like to form a platform of the student body concerning major political issues.

The candidates will be nominated by a nominating speech accomplished through parliamentary procedure. The convention hall (Men's Gym) will be filled with demonstrators carrying signs for their chosen candidates. Booths will be set up outside the convention hall displaying campaign buttons, signs, and pictures of those nominated.

The steering committee plans to have a news commentator from one of the major news networks at the convention.

Applications are available at the Housing Office to off-campus and on-campus housing units as well as campus clubs to sponsor state and territory delegations. Individuals may apply to serve as delegates or delegation chairmen. Six hundred and fifty students are needed to fill all of the proposed delegations.

NSF Fellowships Now Available

Students in appropriate fields of study who think they can qualify for National Science Foundation fellowships may contact the heads of their departments and schools for information about getting one of the fellowships.

The NSF awards fellowships at all levels of graduate study in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological and engineering sciences, and anthropology, geography psychology, sociology, economics and the history and philosophy of science.

Also included are fields made up of overlapping fields among two or more of the sciences such as biochemistry and meteorology.

Applicants must be United States citizens or nationals as of the date indicated in the particular fellowship announcement.
