Eastern considers filing bankruptcy

United Press International

Eastern Airlines told a federal judge Tuesday it would file for bankruptcy if he did not order its pilots to cross picket lines of striking machinists, but the judge rejected the request, saying federal law calls for the president, not the courts, to intervene in such disputes.

Eastern lawyer David Ross said the company would appeal the ruling of U.S. District Judge Edward Davis in Miami, saying the failure to obtain a back-to-work order for the pilots would make bankruptcy "the only alternative."

Davis ruled that the appropriate remedy for a dispute covered by the federal Railway Labor Act was not intervention by the court but the appointment of a presidential emergency board.

"That is something that has not occurred in this case," Davis said. I certainly have no authority to determine whether that should be considered. I do not have ... the right to grant Eastern Airlines a temporary restraining order as they have requested. Therefore, that motion is denied at this time."

Ross said the company would appeal Davis's ruling to the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

The Air Line Pilots Association wants President George Bush to declare a national emergency that would impose a 60-day cooling off period. A House aviation subcommittee began hearings Tuesday on a bill that would force Bush to declare the emergency.

Bush repeated Tuesday his intention to stay out of the dispute unless other unions engage in sympathy strikes. He urged pilots "not to make the innocent traveling public the pawns in this dispute."

Davis ruled later after a three-hour hearing, during which Ross said, "If the pilots do not come back to work, Eastern airlines is gone."

Pilots cheered as they left the courthouse. ALPA local leader Jack Bavis said the union did not want the company to go bankrupt, but he said that if such action were taken, he hoped it would come as soon as possible so that more assets of Eastern are retained.

IBHE votes: Keep entrance standards

By Mark Barnett
Staff Writer

The Illinois Board of Higher Education voted unanimously at its board meeting Tuesday to reaffirm the mandatory admission requirements for high school students entering Illinois colleges.

If the General Assembly does not delay the requirements from going into effect, Illinois freshmen entering college in 1993 will have to have taken four years of English, three years of math, science and social science; and two years of electives in either foreign language, art, music or vocational studies.

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said IBHE was "backed into a corner" because the media misrepresented the action as a "backing away" from high standards.

"They (IBHE) found themselves on the horns of a dilemma," Pettit said.

Pettit said the question before the board was whether it should decide admission standards for the state's universities. If the board took the advisory stance, the action

Aid office holds breath waiting for ISSC funds

The University could receive $350,000 next week from the Illinois State Scholarship Commission to compensate for tuition waivers granted last fall to students who receive grants, Pamela Britton, financial aid director, said.

A bill, passed in early February, will provide $5.7 million for all public universities in Illinois.

SIU's Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses will receive $900,000 of the $5.7 million bill.

The money will compensate the University's expense of giving tuition waivers to students who receive Monetary Award Program grants, the Illinois Veterans Grant or who are members of the Illinois National Guard.

Kathy Rooney, executive assistant to the director of the ISSC, said the money would probably be given to the individual schools to compensate for the tuition waivers.

"Many schools raised their tuitions this year and the school's administration picked up the tab for those students receiving financial aid from ISSC," Rooney said. "The only way to compensate the schools for this loss of money is to give them funding from this bill."

However, Rooney said a

Need for gas tax hike questioned

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Carbondale citizens were divided Tuesday over the need for a one-cent gas tax to fund a corridor study for a northern bypass or connector.

The City Council held a public forum for the proposed gas tax Tuesday night during its regular council meeting.

Mike Cochran, owner of Cochran's Amoco, 600 E. Main, said the city cannot justify a gas tax increase.

"I'm already operating at a three-cent loss," Cochran said. "An additional tax is ridiculous."

Dave Madlener said the connector study, which the gas stations would be paying for, would detour traffic away from their businesses.

Greg Veech, Veech Oil Company, added, "The city is asking the service stations to fund the demise of their businesses."

However, the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce Transportation Chairman disagreed.

"Nobody likes a tax, but this is a transportation tax going for transportation needs,"

Mike Kimmel said.

He added, "We don't have an option at this time. IDOT says put up or shut up."

The Illinois Department of Transportation pledged to fund 50 percent of the costs for the corridor study for fiscal years 1990 to 1991.

IDOT Secretary Gregory W. Baize told the city it expected the study to cost a minimum of $500,000.

Mary Kimmel, president of the Central Carbondale Historic Area Association, told

No plan for smooth ride in wheelchair

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

University wheelchair users are getting caught between the tracks of the Grand Avenue railroad crossing, a Disabled Student Services graduate assistant said.

Leon Smith said that as wheelchair users are crossing the tracks, the wheels are bouncing up and coming down sideways.

"They are getting hung up on those tracks," Smith said. Smith suggested that the city add rubber padding to the pedestrian walks to make the crossing "smoother and easier."

City Director of Public Works Ed Reeder said that adding more padding would not solve the problem because space would still exist between the padding and the tracks.

"We can't do any better,"

Reeder said.

The Grand Avenue crossing was upgraded in September 1987 with the rubber padding provided by the state and the labor provided by Illinois Central Railroad.

Interim City Manager Jeff Doherty said spacing between the tracks was minimized as much as possible to accommodate wheelchairs.

Reeder said, "We went out of our way to accommodate those people."

Doherty said the new pedestrian overpass across U.S. 51 provides an alternative route to crossing the Grand Avenue tracks.

However, Smith said some wheelchairs do not have the power to move up the ramps and over the pedestrian overpass.

"Besides, the Grand Avenue route is shorter," Smith added.

Human mistakes caused fatal London train wrecks

LONDON (UPI) — Early investigations indicate driver error caused both of Britain's recent fatal train collisions, including a head-on crash in Glasgow, Scotland Monday that killed two people and injured 48, officials said Tuesday. Transport Secretary Paul Channon said initial investigations into the Glasgow crash indicated human error, not a technical fault, was responsible.

China imposes martial law to end Tibet riots

BEIJING (UPI) — China imposed martial law Tuesday on the capital of Tibet after three days of anti-Chinese rioting that left as many as 50 dead, sealing the city inside a security cordon, banning public gatherings and giving police sweeping powers. The decree by the State Council, the government's Cabinet, was the first since violent protests against Chinese communist rule in Tibet erupted in October 1987.

Baker meets with minister, plans May visit

VIENNA (UPI) — Secretary of State James Baker held wide-ranging talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze Tuesday and agreed to visit Moscow in May for talks on arranging a superpower summit. Baker described the first high-level contacts between the Bush administration and the Kremlin at the U.S. ambassador's residence as "quite substantive," while Shevardnadze said the two-hour session was "a good start."

Iran breaks all diplomatic ties with Britain

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iran declared a complete break in diplomatic ties with Britain Tuesday, citing London's failure to ban "The Satanic Verses" and reverse its "hostile stance" toward the death sentence against the writer Salman Rushdie. An Iranian newspaper often reflecting official views urged similar action against West Germany.

Committee probes new allegations on Tower

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., revealed Tuesday that investigators were probing new allegations about John Tower even as the Senate debated his nomination to be defense secretary. Though Nunn would describe the allegations only as more of the same that have dogged Tower's personal and professional history.

Thrift group calls for insurance fund merger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The thrift industry's most powerful lobbying group called Tuesday for the full merger of the two funds that insure deposits in commercial banks and savings and loans. At the same time, Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady told Congress that under the administration's plan, taxpayers would have to fork over more than $40 billion to resolve the savings and loan crisis.

Crackdown on illegal aliens continues in U.S.

United Press International

Immigration agents arrested 92 illegal aliens in Southern California, Boston and Charlotte, N.C. as part of an ongoing crackdown on the smuggling of immigrants aboard airlines, authorities said Tuesday. The latest action brought to more than 450 the number of arrests made by Immigration and Naturalization Service agents since the sweeps began Feb. 27 at major airports throughout the country.

Daley, Vrdolyak represent official mayoral candidates

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Board of Election Commissioners made it official Tuesday: Richard M. Daley won the Democratic mayoral primary and Edward R. Vrdolyak won the Republican matchup. The board proclaimed the results of last week's mayoral primaries, formally preparing the battle among Daley, whose father held the Chicago mayor's office for more than two decades; Vrdolyak, the one-time chairman of the Democratic Party of Cook County; and Alderman Timothy Evans, a black Democrat who is running as an independent.

Model airplane club hoping to take off

Students build model planes, then crash them

By Megan Hauck
Staff Writer

With airline travel problems in abundance, a group of University students are trying to settle the score.

Banded together by a common interest in flying model airplanes, a group of about six students are looking for a few more of their kind to gain status as a registered student organization.

The students, whose majors range from mechanical engineering technology to aviation, are members of the Carterville Sky Squiers, a model airplane club that was originated in 1970.

Vytautas "Luke" Brazdys, 20, began flying model airplanes at 15. The hobby, which can cost between $350 to $400 for an engine, a radio controller and a starter plane, may be expensive, but Brazdys says it's worth every dime.

"The idea is to build them, and then you crash them," he said. "I can safely say that all of the planes will eventually crash."

The planes are built mainly of balsa wood, though some newer models are constructed of plastic and foam. More complex models called RC-scale planes, or remote-controlled planes used for shows and competitions, are made of fiberglass.

The planes range in size from 20 inches to 8 feet models and can fly as far and as high as visually possible.

The planes aren't used as toys, as many people view model airplane flying, Randy Geers, a member of the club, said.

"There's science involved with these planes, and that's the most important aspect of it," Geers said. "The technology of full-sized planes is practically used up, but the technology in remote-control hasn't even been tapped yet — it's still experimental."

Geers, who owns a manufacturing company for model airplanes in Taylor, Mo., said companies such as McDonnell Douglas Aircraft Co. in St. Louis experiment with remote control model planes before constructing a full-sized plane.

"As remote-control improves and becomes more developed, some day it may become possible to remove the pilot from the plane and fly fully remote-control. We're working on applications that some day may save the life of a pilot."

Geers' biplane flies with the greatest of ease in aerobatic maneuvers. The idea is to build them, and then you crash them," club member Luke Brazdys says.

Jazz concert features mix of jazz, rock

Jazz compositions by Herbie Hancock and Lennie Niehaus will be performed at 8 tonight as part of a concert by the School of Music's Jazz Ensemble in Shryock Auditorium.

Admission is $2 for the public, $1 for students.

Hancock's "Speak Like a Child" and Niehaus' "Chordon Bleu" and "Blue Book" will highlight the performance, which is under the direction of Robert Allison, professor of music.

Allison said the 19-member ensemble will perform various musical styles including Latin rock. "The numbers we'll be doing are a little more esoteric ... something that serious jazz listeners get into."

Other numbers include "Frankie's Tune" by Bob Mintzer, "Dancing Eyes" by Mike Tomaro, "Fleece Market" by Howie Smith.

The eastbound lanes of Mill Street will become a two-way detour for traffic.

Superintendent of Water Operations Jim Swayze said people should avoid the intersection because of traffic congestion.

State should direct all TIF plan projects

SHOPPING MALLS ARE not usually a controversial issue, unless one it being built under a tax increment financing plan.

This is what those planning to build the Marion mall have discovered.

The city of Marion would provide $3.3 million in public works and $15 million in tax breaks for the mall to be built. This is possible through a tax increment financing plan started by the Legislature to help underdeveloped areas.

Marion residents, however, would have no additional taxes.

GROUNDBREAKING FOR the mall would be in July or August and it would open sometime in the fall of 1991. The mall would be enclosed and include major department stores such as Sears and Dillards.

The mall is expected to generate 1,000 construction jobs and 2,300 permanent full-time jobs. The entire cost for the mall would be $50 to $60 million. But long range plans for an Illinois Center are in the works. It would include a hotel, multiscreen cinema, apartment complex, restaurants, a strip mall and medical offices at a cost of about $165 million.

SURE, THE MALL would bring new jobs and businesses to the area, but what about the businesses it puts out of business and the jobs that are lost as a result?

Although competition is good to an extent, the mall businesses could create a monopoly and hurt local merchants, not only in Marion, but surrounding communities, as well as business at other area malls such as University Mall in Carbondale and Times Square Mall in Mount Vernon.

It might persuade some people to shop in the area instead of going to St. Louis or Cape Girardeau, but the dollars spent would stay in Marion and would not benefit the rest of Southern Illinois.

THE LEGISLATURE should reconsider the legality of TIF plans. In the case of the Marion mall the plan would not really do what it was designed to do and help increase jobs in the Southern Illinois area.

Since the Marion TIF district was established after a 1986 deadline and cannot receive sales tax money back from the State, the city is not required to submit documentation to the state that it is meeting certain requirements on the TIF project.

Whether the Marion mall project meets requirements is not the issue though.

If the State is going to endorse these projects, it must carefully regulate all of them to certain requirements and see that they serve a public purpose and benefit a large number of people.

Opinions from elsewhere

If the KGB were to gun down peaceful demonstrators in Estonia or Lithuania, even super-salesman Mikhail Gorbachev would have trouble persuading Washington to continue improving relations. But Gorbachev's counterparts in Beijing evidently think that they can murder Buddhist protesters in Tibet without suffering any damage in their ties with the West.

The Chinese communists seized Tibet in 1950, a decade after the Soviet Union overran the Baltic republics. Both Moscow and Beijing used mass terror to suppress un-Marxist cultural and political traditions; both outlawed national flags and other symbols dating from the days of independence; both suppressed religious institutions.

The low point for Tibet came in 1959, when Chinese troops put down an uprising so savagely that the Tibetans' revered Buddhist leader, the Dalai Lama, fled to India.

The latest clash began last weekend, when a small group of Buddhist monks and nuns began a protest march in Lhasa, Tibet's capital.

The government-controlled media claim that Chinese police opened fire to stop armed rioters, but European and American tourists on the scene said that they did not see any demonstrators with guns. In any case, at least a dozen Tibetans were killed, possibly many more; Beijing refuses to let Western journalists go see for themselves. It has even issued its first declaration of martial law since the cultural revolution.

When President Bush failed to raise the issue of human rights during his recent meeting with China's rulers — or even to protest when they blocked a well-known dissident from meeting him — they may have concluded that for the next four years they can ignore him on that issue. Their latest activities make it more urgent than ever that Bush act to prove them wrong.

Football team needs review in terms of benefit to SIU-C

Although the proposal I made to the Intercollegiate Athletic Advisory Committee on Feb. 21 was reported in the DE, there were some misleading implications in the story. I proposed that the IAAC recommend to the higher administration that football be dropped, and my proposal involved a combination of four major considerations.

1. Economic value. Football represents a massive economic loss; presently it costs at least $900,000 a year (a significant portion of the entire athletic budget), and generates only a small fraction of that amount.

2. Prestige value. SIU has never had a strong football tradition and it is unlikely it ever will. Moreover, viewed over a period of some 25 years I have been at SIU, the vast majority of SIU's games have been against smaller and non-prestige schools, and this gives SIU little to no national visibility in the print of electronic media; by-and-large, SIU does not play schools which are its academic peers.

3. Social-entertainment value. Although football provides entertainment to some, many within the University community as well as Carbondale, and the rest of Illinois appear to care little for what the team does.

For example, McAndrew Stadium seats somewhat over 17,000 but over the past 14 years attendance at home games has averaged only about 64 percent of capacity (during the 1983 championship year, home games averaged only about 74 percent of capacity).

4. Academic value. I agree that football in general has had a negative impact on SIU's academic life. This argument is based on my experience as a teacher at SIU, and conversations with others here who are knowledgeable about the academic performance of football players and the antics of coaches on behalf of their athletes.

I suggest that on average perhaps fewer than 25 percent of the football players have graduated over the past 25 or so years.

Based on considerations such as the above, I requested the IAAC to recommend that football be dropped; further, that the funds now expended on football be diverted into two areas: 1. funds from student athletic fees to be invested in those athletic programs (both women's and men's) which already have significant strengths and which have the potential for bringing SIU maximum national visibility in their sports, hopefully of the order we aspire to achieving with our academic programs; 2. salary monies (roughly $200,000) which, I understand do not come out of students, fees should be given entirely to Morris Library whose position as a research library has dropped significantly over the past years. I am aware that $200,000 will not solve all of the library's problems, but it certainly can help in a variety of ways.

Although I did not expect the IAAC to act on my proposed resolution, I requested it to commit itself to publicly investigate whether the football program should be retained to debate the issue and air the pros and cons within the wider University community.

But not one person on the committee was willing to do this, and only two people on the committee publicly objected to some of the points I made. The Athletic Director, contrary to the implications in the DE story, made no comments at the meeting and did not direct any comments to me afterwards. — Jerome S. Handler, professor, anthropology.

Clearcutting editorial was superficial

The Feb. 22 DE editorial, "Clearcutting protests have wrong focus" was typically misinformative and callously superficial. It was indeed illuminating to discover that the U.S. Forest Service "officials" are doing the clearcutting. I'd always assumed it was the lumber companies.

Have any of you ever been to a clearcut? I don't think the Forest Service "claims clearcutting is not harmful to trees when done properly," not even the Williams Brothers Lumber Co. would be so audacious. Perhaps rather you meant that they meant the forest is not harmful. I wouldn't quibble so had you tried "Forest for the trees" opening not seemed to imply that this after all is an important distinction. Here are some facts and distinctions.

There are some 4.5 million acres of woodlands in Illinois. Only 262,000 acres of them

(about 5 percent) are our public lands. The recently revised Forest Management Plan for the Shawnee National recognizes the problems with clearcutting, (subsequent erosion and the destruction of rare habitat) and no longer considers it an adequate management tool. But they intend to go on with clearcuts in Cave Valley, Fairview Church (Pine Hills) and Town Hall in Jackson County as well as Quarrel Creek in Pope County and more!

The new management plan will quietly more than double the board-feet cut per year in the Shawnee. When you suggest that those environmentalists, "they should respect the commercial aspect of clearcutting" you are either being duplicitous, or dupes and you just don't know what time it is. The U.S. Treasury has lost more than $600 million yearly for the last ten years subsidizing deforestation nationwide; building roads and "reconstruction" of bridges.

Despite the insipid reportage of the DE what really crosses the line is the snotty "hoopia," "really need something to worry about" attitude evidenced throughout the piece. Active citizens working on grass roots issues is what the "earth's environment" directly needs. Toxic waste is certainly a huge business, and there is no lack of waste dumping here in Southern Illinois to be reported. Where were you, DE staff, when the Greenpeace ship docked at Culvert City on the Ohio? How can you comment and opine on subjects when you don't even make the effort to know what you are whining about? —

Sigurd Utgaard, junior, German and philosophy.

BAS needed in general study for cultural 'sense of being'

The importance of African American Studies is something that is hotly debated by students and their college administrators nationwide. It is often stated that BAS is needed because African Americans have to know their history. Though this is a statement of fact, it is too narrow and simplistic in its scope.

What is revealed, contrary to what is learned through American culture is the true documented story of a people. A story which has more than touched humanity in every corner of this world. These people are from a continent known to us as Africa.

The continent of Africa consists of 53 nations. African history predates history on all other continents. This history is where all mankind's history began. Not only did man begin in Africa, the foundations of every great early empire was built on technologies and precepts learned in its many diverse lands.

Many aspects of ancient and modern Africa pervade society now. What is called "Spanish architecture" actually came to Spain from northern Africa. Noted artist Pablo Picasso's work, mimics that done by Africans in a day when Europeans were still cave dwellers. Even more important are the achievements in medicine like eye cataracts surgery and the advanced uses of internal medicine which can be traced to early African roots.

The fact that people of European ancestry have a past — a history which is thrust upon us daily in more forms than imaginable — they are able to draw on the better part of this past for a sense of being, stability and pride.

The rich black history denied to African and Euro-Americans through one-aided, incomplete and often false "education" helps to maintain the narrow definition of what an African American is. When people are told through various medium that the African American is a vicious, shameless, callous individual whose history begins during slavery, they without the benefit of true African history begin to believe it.

James Baldwin, the late, noted African American author of many works on the black condition in America, says in his book "No Name in the Street" with no malice intended, that "White children in the main and whether rich or poor, grow up with a grasp of reality so feeble that they can be described as deluded about themselves and the world they live in."

He goes on to say "People who cling to their delusions find it difficult; if not impossible, to learn anything worth learning; a people under the necessity of creating themselves must examine everything, and soak up learning the way the roots of a tree soak up water. A people still held in bondage must believe that 'Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make ye free.'"

The debate over whether BAS should be in the general studies curriculum is rendered null and void in light of the present American situation. When David Duke "ex"-race hater can run for a state legislature and be elected by no small margin, it is the moral obligation of the powers that be to reinstate BAS in the general studies of a major university like SIU. It is regrettable that one even has to be at a university level to get a chance to experience what has always been immediate, and real for many Americans of African origin. — Marvin S. Caldwell, senior, public relations.

Letter blamed victims of the Israelis

The thrust of Paul Todd's letter on Feb. 22 is the PLO's denunciation of terrorism is a great "lie," and Israel is defending her "homeland" against unbating Palestinian threats.

The PLO responded in December of last year to repeated pressure from the American Administration by denouncing terrorism. The PLO, whether Mr. Todd believes it or not, never considered itself a terrorist organization. The PLO made it pretty conspicuous to the American Administration that resistance against military targets inside the occupied territories of terrorism.

The PLO's resistance is predicted on the U.N. charter which grants the right of the occupied people to resist the foreign occupation. Otherwise Europe, the Soviet Union and other countries could not be free today from the Nazi occupation. Those who resist foreign occupation are hailed as national heroes, not terrorists as Mr. Todd wants us to believe.

Armed with the only weapon available to them — stones — the Palestinians rose in protest against the repressive measures taken by Israeli authorities to perpetuate the occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip which the world community, including the closest ally of Israel, considers occupied territories.

In the last 14 months, Israel maimed few thousands of Palestinians because they too demonstrated their refusal to accept the status quo. Thousands of trees have been cut because a young child hid behind them to throw a stone at an Israeli patrol, as if the tree was to blame.

Israel incarcerated over 20,000 men, women and children who languish in Israeli jails. If the Palestinians protesting these measures defies the simplest form of discretion, Israeli intransigence constitutes the stumbling block toward a just and lasting peace in the area.

The PLO repeated its willingness to attend an international conference under the auspices of the U.N. On the other hand, Israel vehemently rejected such conference.

The Palestinian uprising and attacks against military targets will continue unmitigated until the Palestinian objectives are accomplished. These include the recognition of the PLO as the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinians, the right to self-determination, the establishment of an independent state with Jerusalem as its capital, and the right of the Palestinians to return to their homeland. — Omar Elmusa and Wajdi Abdalla, graduate students, electrical engineering and Hilmi Adas, graduate student, English.

Law school's academic intergrity threatened

The academic integrity of SIU's Law School is being threatened by the attitudes of a few malcontents regarding the School of Law Attendance Policy. SLAP dictates, quite reasonably, that law students attend class.

Typically, six or nine absences are allowed — any more, even in the last week before finals, result in the offender's participation in the course being terminated.

There are no exceptions and no excuses (e.g. surgery, funerals, jury duty, etc.). And many professors require a high standard of preparation in order to count as being present. What good is mere physical presence in a classroom when there has been inadequate preparation?

Despite its generous terms, SLAP has been criticized by certain crybabies who seem to feel they are better able to manage their time than professional educators. Some of them are always whining about sick kids and other family obligations. To them I say: when you entered law school you made a choice, if you insist on putting your family first, you have no business here and everyone (including your future clients) would be better off if you simply left.

Some say that in semesters past, when some professors were not forced to impose SLAP, they didn't go to class and still made very good grades. They simply prove the validity of the whole program. Good grades come from learning the material. Learning the material is directly related to class attendance, which SLAP assures. Those capable of getting good grades without going to class regularly have no incentive to attend. They are the ones most in need of SLAP.

Finally, some say SLAP adds unnecessarily to the already high stress level most law students experience. There are two answers to this. First, never miss class and you don't have to worry. Second, law school is supposed to be stressful. The weakest are weeded out, hopefully in the first semester or two. Law is the toughest profession in the world, so law school has to be tough, too.

I would like to remind my fellow law students that the School of Law is engaged in the most challenging and important task in the University. With all due respect to the Doctor's School, while and M.D. may or may not make you get better, the J.D.'s will be shaping the society in which we live forever. A hard school, and yes, a hard SLAP, for a hard job. — Timothy J. Cappe, 3rd year Law Student.

would have been looked upon as a lessening of standards.

In Chicago, Gov. James R. Thompson addressed the board and urged IBHE to uphold its standards, according to United Press International.

"I think it would be a mistake to change what the board has done before," Thompson said before the vote. "I think the board should put to rest any idea of the intent to go backward. It conveys a message, a signal."

In November 1985, the IBHE passed the tougher requirements that would go into effect in 1990. However, the General Assembly delayed the requirements from going into effect until 1993.

With the board's vote the public can know that "it is sending a signal out that we're not abandoning standards," Pettit said.

Pettit also said IBHE's Faculty Advisory Council voted 19 to 7 to recommend the board vote in favor of keeping the mandatory requirements. "They (faculty) want students who are prepared," he said.

The IBHE is telling parents and students that they should start preparing for college at the junior high level, Pettit said.

"The real object is to give guidance to an awful lot of kids who aren't getting it," Pettit said.

Carol Kimmel, an SIU trustee and delegate to IBHE, said "misunderstandings have recently confused the issue" because those who supported the advisory decision were seen as retreating from standards.

"Within this body and among the state's public universities, standards are not the issue," Kimmel said. "The issue is the academic decision process. We are implementing the IBHE standards because our institutional faculties recommended that we do so."

The 15-course requirements will be added to the current admission policies based on class rank and ACT scores.

Freshmen entering SIU-C in the summer of 1990 will have to have taken three years each of English and math, two years each of social studies and science and one year of foreign language, music, art or vocational studies.

In the fall of 1990 SIU-E will be the only university to require its entering freshmen to have taken four years of English and three years each of social studies, math and science.

By fall semester 1993, SIU's entering freshmen will have to meet the 15-course requirement.

United Press International contributed to this report.

the council that the gas tax is the "logical source for funding the study."

She added that if the city does not pay its share now, "the funds will be gone."

Councilman John Yow asked the city to look into Jackson County participating in the funding, since the road will stretch outside city limits.

Councilman John Mills added that the historic society should request funding from its national organizations.

The city adopted a one-cent per gallon Municipal Motor Fuel Tax in 1986 to offset the loss of Federal Revenue Sharing.

At the time, concerns were posed that retail sales would be effected and stations would be opened just outside of Carbondale.

A random check of gas prices during the week of Feb. 20 showed that Carbondale's gas prices were the lowest in the area at 82.9 cents per gallon.

The proposed gas tax would generate about $135,000 in revenue.

Correction

Morton Grove has an ordinance banning the sale and possession of handguns. This information was incorrectly reported in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian.

The Illinois Department of Transportation is responsible for construction on two bridges over Crab Orchard Lake on Route 13. This information was incorrectly reported in the March 1 Daily Egyptian.

final decision has not been made concerning how the ISSC will distribute the money.

"Since it is so late in the year, it may be the only alternative," Rooney said. It would take more than three months for the ISSC to calculate a formula to distribute the money to each individual who is eligible for the award, Renee Brooks, employee of the ISSC, said.

Britton said she was not sure where the first payment of $350,000 would go.

It may just go into a trust fund until the ISSC specifies exactly where it should be put.

Interested group backs off land for University research

By Jeanne Bickler
Staff Writer

The University can proceed with plans to buy the Carterville coal research property.

The Illinois Coalition for the Homeless had expressed an interest in the Carterville coal research building for a shelter until they found out that SIU-C was using the property.

"We did express an interest, but we backed off," Hoover said. "Homeless shelters are very important, but coal research is too. Especially in this area."

The Illinois Coalition for the Homeless saw the Carterville property on the Department of Housing and Urban Development's homeless shelter list and inquired about it, she said.

"We didn't follow through with an application letter because we discovered through a newspaper article that SIU-C was already using the property for coal research," Hoover said.

"There are other buildings we can use in the area, like abandoned motels and renovated houses. We don't need the Carterville property," she said.

Last week the Department of Health and Human Services said a homeless coalition had inquired into the purchase of the Carterville property, but had not filed an official letter of application.

Any coalition wishing to acquire the property had to file by last Friday to be considered a serious inquiry.

SIU-C has used the Carterville property as a coal research lab since 1983 through a governmental education grant.

In early January, the property was listed on the HUD homeless shelter list, meaning the property is government surplus and can be bought. However, the homeless coalitions would have priority in purchasing.

At that time, the University decided to try to purchase the property to continue development of the center.

Board of Trustees to vote on fee hike for medical and Rec Center

By Mark Barnett
Staff Writer

SIU's Board of Trustees will take action on a recommended $6 increase in the Student Recreation Fee and a $5 increase for the Student Medical Benefit Fee at its meeting Thursday at the Edwardsville campus.

Half of the $6 increase for the Rec Center would be used for operations while the other half would be used for the Fitness Center addition, Michael Dunn, director of intramural and recreational sports, said.

The medical fee increase has been proposed to cover inflationary costs that Blue Cross-Blue Shield has projected, Sam McVay, director of the Student Health Service, said.

Blue Cross, which provides the insurance for University students, projected a 20-percent increase in the cost of claims the insurance company will have to pay next year, McVay said.

If passed by the board, the $11 increase in student fees would begin fall semester 1989. The recreation fee would rise from $47 to $53 while the medical fee would rise from $39.50 to $44.50.

The board also is expected to pass an amendment to its policies so the University complies with the Drug-Free Workplace Act, passed in 1988.

According to the act, the chancellor must compose, publish and distribute a statement notifying employees that unlawful manufacture, distribution, possession and use of controlled substances is prohibited in the workplace; establish drug-free awareness programs.

By Nora Bentley

The 42nd annual Theta Xi Variety Show, which took place over the weekend, exceeded last year's attendance by 120 people, Robert Cerchio, director of Shryock Auditorium said.

Tracy Baurenfeind, one of the show's three producers, said that aside from three or four rows being open, the auditorium was full. However, much of the balcony was taken up by the performers.

The grand prize in the large group competition went to the Sigma Kappa sorority and Alpha Tau Omega fraternity for their performance of "Rags to Riches." First runner-up was Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity for their performance of "Those were the Good Ole Days."

'89 - '90 CHAIR SELECTION

Prof emeritus of zoology dies

University News Service

Willard M. Gersbacher, 82, professor emeritus of zoology at SIU-C, died Feb. 28 in Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Gersbacher worked at the University between 1936 and 1966. He started as an assistant professor. In 1939 he became the zoology department's second chairman, a position he held for 17 years.

Gersbacher's was coordirector of the University's Health Science curriculum, an undergraduate program developed to train professionals for public health careers, and aided in the direction of the Illinois Junior Academy of Science.

Gersbacher left the University in 1966 to accept a teaching position in biology at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

Gersbacher earned a bachelor's degree from SIU-C and master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Illinois.

He was succeeded in death by his wife, Eva, in 1973.

Survivors include one son, four daughters and two grandchildren.

He was buried in Spingerton, where he was born.

Memorials may be made to the American Diabetes Association.

Drill canceled because of weather

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

The tornado drill scheduled Tuesday in the public schools and hospitals of Jackson County was canceled because of the bad weather, Tom Harris, employee of the Emergency Services and Disaster Agency, said.

Icy roads covered with snow caused the cancellation of public schools Monday and Tuesday.

"Since schools are the main participants of the drills, we felt it was necessary to reschedule the drill," Harris said.

The outdoor warning system froze during recent weather conditions and was rendered inoperable

The outdoor warning systems, which sound off when a tornado is spotted or a drill is in progress, froze during the cold weather, making it impossible to sound the alarms.

Harris said.

The tornado drills begin when the Emergency Broadcast System sounds the alarms. Participants in the drill go to designated shelter areas and cover their heads until the drill is over.

Harris said the drill is timed and reported to the Emergency Service and Disaster Agency.

Jackson County was the only county in Illinois to cancel its drill, Harris said.

The drill has been rescheduled for March 21.

Education organization to give scholarship

The Elementary Education Student Organization will offer a $400 scholarship to an eligible member of EESO.

To be eligible, a student must be in the Teacher Education Program, have had a minimum of three method courses, an active member of the E.E.S.O., and be an Elementary Education or Early Childhood (K-3) major. Applicants can be either full or part time students.

Applicants will be judged on grade point average and activity in EESO. Applicants also must write an essay on "How taking part in professional organizations can help a person become a better teacher," said Dr. Donald Paige, professor of education.

EESO membership or scholarship applications may be obtained at the EESO executive board meeting 5 p.m. today in Wham 302.

The completed application and essay must be turned in by March 24, 1989.

Three Department of Curriculum and Instruction faculty members will make up the selection committee.

Despite prior rejections, liquor license granted

2 misdemeanors previously stood in man's way

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

The Liquor Control Commission overturned its Feb. 22 rejection of a Chester man's application for a liquor license Tuesday to grant James Schulte a Class A liquor license.

With a 3-1 vote, the commission approved a license for Schulte Enterprises, Inc. as Jimmy's Egyptian Polo Club, 315 S. Illinois Ave.

The commission rejected the liquor license request last month because of Schulte's two prior misdemeanor convictions and a report from Carbondale Police Department recommending denial of the license.

The police submitted no recommendation for approval or denial of the license to the commission Tuesday.

Police Chief Ed Hogan told the commission that he did not feel it was within his authority to recommend or deny the request because Schulte did not violate either part of the license code.

The code states that a license cannot be granted to a person "not in good character and reputation with the community in which he resides," or to a person with a felony conviction.

The Liquor Advisory Board sent its 3-1 recommendation for approval to the commission March 2. The board also sent an approval recommendation to the commission Feb. 22 with a 3-2 vote.

Schulte told the commission that his former St. Louis business, Mike Talayna's, 800 N. 3rd Street, received no liquor violations during the three years he was a partner.

Councilman Keith Tuxhorn, who cast the only vote against approval, said he appreciated Schulte's attitude but did not feel the polo crowd was going to "flock to his business."

Schulte plans to turn the building, which housed T.J.'s

Watering Hole until 1996, into a club "emphasizing the polo club and Egyptian theme."

The U-shaped building will be divided into three sections with separate entrance to each section. The smaller section will feature a private club for polo players, the middle section, a food service and the remaining section, a dance club. The age restriction for admittance will be 21.

Schulte said he is scheduled to open April 1 but "can't make any guarantee."

GATEWAY, from Page 20

"Seals and Fitzpatrick couldn't miss," Drake coach Susan Yow said. "They canned those outside jumpers. Not only that, they hit the critical shots. That was the difference of the homecourt advantage."

Fitzpatrick slipped under the zone twice, drawing fouls on both plays. She converted on an Amy Rakers assist, then put back a missed shot for consecutive three-point plays that contributed to her game-high 22 points.

Then Seals, who missed her only shot attempt in the first half, started to pop from the outside. She hit 6 of 11 shots and finished with 17 points.

"I guess you could say I had a case of the nerves in the first half," Seals said. "It didn't feel comfortable. But in the second half I picked up a whole lot. When I started hitting, it seemed to lift us up."

Bolstered by the example of the seniors, freshman point guard Colleen Heimstead (10 points) added a little creativity with her passing game.

From halfcourt she hit center Cathy Kampwerth with a lob pass for an easy bucket, then duplicated the effort to reserve Cyd Mitchell, who dropped in an uncontested layup for the Salukis' first lead, 38-37, at 16:27.

With Kampwerth in foul trouble, the 6-2 sophomore Mitchell was given the task of guarding Drake's senior center, Caroline Orr (17 points).

In the first half, Orr had scored 9 points by making ball-fakes and then driving to the basket. In the second half, Mitchell engaged herself in a push-come-to-shove denial defense on Orr.

"I let her know I was there, and she pretty much did the same to me," said Mitchell, who finished with 8 points and allowed Orr only 6 of her 11 second half points.

With Mitchell and Orr going toe-to-toe, the 6-2 Rakers had an open route to the boards. She collected 10 rebounds, 7 on the defensive end, and also had 19 points.

"Coach Scott told us we got outrebounded 20-9 in the first half. We're not used to getting outrebounded. We knew we had to go to the boards," said Rakers, whose tenacity under the glass gave SIU-C a 21-11 second half rebounding ad-

Raker's put-back of an offensive rebound with 4:19 left sent the Salukis ahead 65-58.

Despite a late scoring surge by Drake's Jan Jensen (17 points) and Yvonne Simons (16 points), SIU-C controlled the momentum. Seals added a pair of jumpers, Rakers had another goal, and the Salukis made 7 of 9 free throws down the stretch.

Illinois State beats Eastern in semifinals

NORMAL — Illinois State sophomore center Cindy Kaufmann had 29 points and 5 rebounds to lead the Redbirds past Eastern Illinois 83-71 in a Gateway Conference semifinal Monday at Redbird Arena.

Senior guard Pam Tanner had 14 points, Ellen McGrew had 13 and Leslie Ferrell 10 for Illinois State (21-7), which improved its home record to 11-1. The Redbirds are 7-0 at Redbird Arena, their new homecourt since moving over from Horton Field House in midseason.

Laura Mull and Tracy Roller each had 14 points for defending champion Eastern Illinois, who bows out at 16-12.

Illinois State, which led 39-29 at halftime, was bolstered by Char Govan's 10 rebounds, 7 from the offensive end.

Saluki diver sets pool record at Illinois-Chicago

SIU-C's Dave Sampson, a 5-7 junior, captured first in three-meter diving at the Midwest Independent Invitational Championships held last weekend at the University of Illinois-Chicago.

Sampson, a co-captain and two-year letterwinner, had a 181.75 score in the preliminary rounds, a 311.35 through the semifinals and finished with a 470.35, which set a pool record.

The previous mark was 465.30, set by Eastern Kentucky's Mark Eschliman.

In the one-meter event, Sampson took fourth with a 384.40, edged out by Southwest Missouri's Derek McCrea, Southwest's Jim Moore and Western Kentucky's Chuck Yager.

The Salukis' John Becker, a 5-9 senior, took sixth with a mark of 374.30. He suffered an injury prior to the finals, and was unable to compete.

Henson tells team to forget Indiana win, prepare for Iowa

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Illinois Coach Lou Henson said Tuesday his No. 5 Fighting Illini have to forget about their high-wire win over conference-leading Indiana this past weekend and look ahead to No. 17 Iowa.

Forward Nick Anderson hit a last-second bomb to give Illinois a 70-67 victory over No. 6 Indiana Sunday. The win put the Illini at 25-4 overall and 12-4 in the Big Ten, but still two games behind the Hoosiers, 14-2 in the conference.

"We're hoping to forget about the Indiana victory and have a good game against Iowa," Henson said. "That's really what we're trying to do."

For the first time in six weeks, Illinois will have the services of guard Kendall Gill for Wednesday's contest. Gill, one of the team's top offensive performers, was sidelined with a broken foot Jan. 22 in a game against Georgia Tech.

Henson said Gill will not start against Iowa but could play as much as 30 minutes.

"We could have brought him back earlier, but we didn't want to rush things," said Henson. "I would say he'll play about 25 to 30 minutes. If we get that much out of him it would be good."

Iowa Coach Tom Davis said Tuesday Illinois would be a stiff challenge for the Hawkeyes — with or without Gill.

"I think Illinois' playing so well right now," said Davis. "(Gill's return) will have some long-term impact, but I don't know how much better Illinois can play. They lost one of their best players, now they're winding him back into it and that's going to make them just that much tougher."

Iowa, 21-8 and 9-7, will be trying to halt a two-game losing streak against the Illini. And to make matters worse, Davis's team has its own injury problems. Guard B.J. Armstrong has a sore knee and his playing time Wednesday night, like Gill's, is a matter of speculation.

"They're not the same club without B.J.," Henson said. "That doesn't mean they can't win. But if they get B.J. back it would definitely help Iowa."

Davis said Armstrong, who is averaging 18.2 points a game, would probably play "a couple of minutes" against Illinois.

Big time coaches earn hefty sums in shoe contracts for their teams

By Mike Station
Providence Journal

Next time you're at a college basketball game, check out the shoes the players are wearing. Big East coaches are paid well to outfit their teams in particular brands of basketball sneakers.

Nike, the Bigfoot of the business with sales of $300 million last year, has five Big East coaches under contract: Georgetown's John Thompson, Connecticut's Jim Calhoun, Syracuse's Jim Boeheim, St. John's Louie Carnesecca and Seton Hall's P.J. Carlesimo. The coaches receive from $60,000 to $200,000 per year for favoring Nike.

Pony pays Pitt coach Paul Evans $90,000 and Boston College's Jim O'Brien $80,000.

Villanova's Rollie Massimino is in the last year of a four-year contract with Puma worth $150,000 annually. Providence coach Rick Barnes is in the first of a four-year deal with Converse for an estimated $65,000 this season.

Coaches can earn five-figure bonuses for making the Final Four.

Contract figures are based on interviews with sources in the shoe industry and college athletics.

"The biggest difference when you coach at this level is the sneaker contracts," says O'Brien. "A lot of people want you to be part of what they're trying to sell."

Why are sneaker companies tripping over each other in the rush to buy up coaches? The answer is simple: advertising.

"It's all subliminal," says Bob Carr, editor of Sporting Goods Business. "If a prominent athlete wears this shoe, the implication is that this is a quality product. If you make the cover of Sports Illustrated, that's the pinnacle."

College athletes cannot legally be paid to endorse products. So, the best way to an athlete's feet is through his coach. To the shoe companies, the coach's most important duty is to see that his players wear the company product — at practices, in airports and hotels, in photo sessions.

"Nowhere is it spelled out in the contract that the coach has to force his players to wear the shoe," says Nike representative Sonny Vaccaro. "Instead, it talks about a certain number of speaking engagements and clinics and about serving as a consultant to help make the product better."

Says Seton Hall's Carlesimo, "It's an unspoken understanding that you'll 'recommend' your players wear Nikes."

When Patrick Ewing was at Georgetown, Thompson went so far as to have him wear a Nike patch on his T-shirt during a nationally publicized showdown with Virginia and Ralph Sampson in 1982. The NCAA later passed legislation barring that kind of blatant advertising.

When Georgetown played Syracuse on national television at the Carrier Dome a few days ago, Nike planned the occasion like a fashion show to unveil new uniform styles.

Under a provision common in sneaker deals, Massimino and each of his assistant coaches are entitled to $5,000 worth of free Puma clothing and shoes a year. In addition, the company provides about 120 pairs of shoes annually for Villanova players. The team also receives free warmups and recreational shoes for players' use.

ACC send 3 teams in Top 13 into league tourney

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlantic Coast Conference, which always stages one of the most prestigious postseason college basketball tournaments in the country, sends three of the top 13 teams in the nation into its tournament this weekend.

The ACC tournament begins Friday at the Omni, and the league could send as many as six of its eight schools into the NCAA playoffs.

"When has the ACC not been regarded as one of the best conferences in the country?" Virginia Coach Terry Holland said when asked if he thought it was the toughest in the land. "There have been years when one conference or another has been considered on par with us. But every year, the ACC has been a conference that other conferences compare themselves to."

That's certainly true this year. The ACC has four 20-game winners — No. 7 Duke (22-6), No. 8 North Carolina (24-7), No. 13 N.C. State (20-7) and unranked Georgia Tech (20-10). Virginia and Clemson are 18-9 and likely NCAA entrants.

N.C. State earned the top seed in the ACC tournament with a 10-4 conference record, but Wolfpack Coach Jim Valvano says there is no way his team could be considered the tournament favorite.

"I don't think you can pick a favorite with as many good teams as we have," Valvano said. "But, if I did, it would have to be Duke or North Carolina — two teams which also have to be considered serious candidates for the national title as well."

N.C. State finished one game ahead of those two and Virginia after splitting its two games with those higher-ranked teams and losing both meetings with Virginia.

"The regular-season records don't mean a whole lot when you get into a tournament," Valvano said. "It's a whole new season. Everybody starts 0-0. One loss and you're on your way back home. I try to totally separate the regular season from the ACC tournament and the ACC tournament from the NCAA. It becomes a survival situation."

In Friday's ACC semifinals, N.C. State, which had to go four overtime periods before beating seventh-place Wake Forest last Saturday, plays last-place Maryland (8-19); North Carolina plays Georgia Tech, which beat the Tar Heels by 2 points last week; Duke plays Wake Forest (13-14); and Virginia plays Clemson, which beat Duke and Georgia Tech last week.

"That strong finish has us feeling good about our ball club," Clemson Coach Cliff Ellis said. "Our game with Virginia is very important since, with both of us with 18 wins, it could have a definite bearing on the NCAA selections. I think we both deserve to be in the NCAA, but I don't know whether or not they'll take six teams from our conference."

Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski thinks they will.

"I don't think that should create added pressure," Krzyzewski said. "There'll be enough pressure just trying to win our own tournament. ACC tournaments are always wide open and this year is certainly no exception. Everyone has a tough draw, and to win our tournament you'd better be prepared to play three good games."

Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins agrees.

"It's anybody's tournament," he said. "It's hard to believe that we won 20 games and wound up 8-4 in ACC play and then have to open the tournament against North Carolina."

If it is any consolation to Cremins, North Carolina Coach Dean Smith also dislikes the first-round pairings.

With North Carolina, Duke and Virginia tied for second, the seeding was decided by ACC Commissioner Gene Corrigan.

"We're not very happy," Smith said. "We closed our regular season with losses to Georgia Tech and Duke and now we've got to go back to Atlanta to play Georgia Tech again. If I had had a choice, I would have drawn another opponent."

Smith, who has had teams in the NCAA playoffs in 18 of the past 22 years, points out that in the years prior to 1975 when an ACC team had to win its conference tournament to get an NCAA bid, winning the ACC tournament was a must.

"Since then, with winning the ACC tournament not the only way to get into the NCAA," he said, "the ACC championship has not been our long-range goal."

DUMP, from Page 20

Herrin said. "We are an outstanding basketball team. It is tough to win 20 games with our schedule. This game gives an automatic bid which is why it is such a disappointing loss."

Barone said the Salukis deserve to share the NCAA glory with the Bluejays.

"They absolutely deserve an NCAA bid," Barone said. "I'll be disappointed if they do not get a chance to show off their talents and the conference."

Nurnberger and Jones were named to the all-tournament team along with Gallagher, Farr, Bob Harstad and Matt Roggenbuck.

Gallagher again tore up the Salukis inside as he led Creighton's charge with 25 points. The sophomore has 71 points in the three games against the Salukis this season.

Roggenbuck added 20 on six of eight 3-point shooting.

Tony Harvey tied the score at 65 for the Salukis when he hit one of two free throws but Harstad, playing with four fouls used a move in the lane to put the Bluejays back on top 67-65 with 5:06 left. The Bluejays never lost the lead.

Harstad opened the margin to four with 4:39 left and after Gallagher put in a rebound to extend the lead to six, Farr hit two free throws to open up an eight-point 73-65 lead with 2:46 left as the Bluejays rode an 8-0 run.

Jones cut the lead to four with a free throw and McSwain put in a jumper off a rebound of Jones' missed second attempt to cut the lead to two 77-75 with 1:17 left.

Big 8 players pick the best of their peers

By Tom Shatel
Kansas City Star and Times

Some preferred Kansas point guard Kevin Pritchard to Kansas State's Steve Henson. Some chose Missouri sophomore forward Doug Smith over Victor Alexander and Shaun Vandiver. Oklahoma stars Mookie Blaylock and Stacey King could agree on only two things: Missouri guard Byron Irvin and Kansas forward Milt Newton.

Youth movement in Valley bodes well for future

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

WICHITA, Kan. — If Missouri Valley schools are relying on senior day to pack their arenas, they had better reevaluate their thinking.

But what MVC schools lack in upperclassmen they more than make up in talented youth.

Around the MVC

This season has seen statistics dominated by freshman and sophomores as the influence of teams like Creighton, Tulsa and SIU-C is being felt.

Of the top 10 scorers in the MVC, seven are underclassmen and the same numbers hold true in rebounding.

For people like MVC commissioner Doug Elgin the more youth the better.

"I'm optimistic about the future of this league," Elgin said. "Universities are committed to getting the best athletes they can have."

Regular season champion Creighton sports one of the youngest, yet some argue most talented, lineups in the league.

The Bluejays start MVC first-team player Bob Harstad, a sophomore, second-team player Chad Gallagher, a sophomore and Todd Eisner, a sophomore with a deadly 3-point shot.

The Salukis also seem to have a foundation set for the future. SIU-C starts juniors Freddie McSwain and Jerry Jones, sophomore Rick Shipley and freshman Tony Harvey.

And sophomore Sterling Mahan and freshman Kelvin Lawrence off the bench and the Salukis will return six players with quality playing time next season.

Equally experienced will be Tulsa. The Golden Hurricane sports junior Lamont Randolph and sophomores Jamal West and Michael Scott.

If those three teams weren't enough proof of the Valley's young tradition to come, Illinois State has no seniors and will return players like juniors Jarrod Coleman, Rickey Jackson, Sonny Roberts and Randy Blair next season.

But with name recognition there comes pressure not only from fans but on the court from defenders, Harstad said. "At least it feels like that, but maybe I do it to myself," Harstad said. "It is going to be tough the next two years because I've made a name for myself and things will come a lot harder."

"If you use pressure in the right way it can help though," Randolph said he doesn't see the coming years as a pressure situation, just one that will allow him to improve.

"I came to a school where I thought I could help right away," Randolph said. "I made a little impact this year and I hope I can get that much better next season."

Shipley is busy making impact right in Wichita. His 20 rebounds against Illinois State in the semifinals set a tournament record.

"It was just one of those games where every ball that came off seemed to come to me," said Shipley, who along with Harstad is one of the premier power forwards in the league according to Creighton's Tony Barone.

"I don't have a lot of athletic skill that some others have," Shipley said. "I just try to get position and anticipate where the ball will come off."

Harstad said his rebounding, good for tops in the Valley at 9.7 per game, is much like Shipley's in that he gets position and anticipates.

"I don't have a lot of jumping ability," Harstad said. "You have nights where everything comes to you. You have to anticipate where and when they'll shoot and go up where you think it will come off."

Younger players in the league are picking up the tricks of the trade quicker Mahan said.

"The younger players are maturing faster now," Mahan said. "We're in the championship game and Creighton is young and they are here too. It gives a lot of experience."

"I have picked up a lot from Kai (Nurnberger) and from Steve Middleton when he was here. They did not just drive to the basket every time out. They would pull up and hit a jumper and you've got to learn that."

"People will expect me to do more than this year and I will expect myself to do more," Mahan said. "Kai did his thing, now it's time for me to do mine. I just hope I can do it as well as he did."

Harstad, who admitted he has surprised himself with his success, said the league will be tough the next few years with players like himself on the prowl.

"There are so many young

Said Rick Shipley (40), a sophomore forward, is just one of the many young Missouri Valley players who are already mainstays for their teams. Shipley set a conference record for rebounds in a single game (20) in Sunday's semifinal.

players," Harstad said. "You can't really pick someone ahead of another without a lot of skepticism."

Randolph said all the young talent is a credit to Valley schools' recruiting standards.

"The conference did well to recruit those types of players," Randolph said.

in the lineup."

While the team appears set defensively, the pitching staff is a question mark. With senior Shane Gooden (1-2) undergoing treatment for a sore shoulder, only three returning pitchers remain: junior Chris Bend, left-hander Rob Hass and sophomore Dale Meyer.

"In the first two days, I hope to throw all 11 of our pitchers and give them the exposure on the mound they need," Jones said.

The remainder of the staff are newcomers: Sean Bergman, Paul Conn, Mark Hokanson, Bryan Oestreich, Kent Wallace, Rob Carter, George Joseph and Ryan Williams.

"It's inevitable that these guys are going to get beat around initially," pitching coach Sam Riggelman said. "How quickly they recover is the question. They'll be more successful as they get out of the mind-set of striking out people."

Media picks Big Ten team of the decade

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former Indiana stars Isiah Thomas and Steve Alford were the top vote-getters in the Big Ten's basketball Team of the Decade, released Tuesday by the conference.

Thomas, who received 100 first-place votes among the 110 media representatives and college coaches participating, also won the conference's Most Valuable Players of the 1980s.

Thomas and Alford, who led the Hoosiers to national title in 1981 and 1987 respectively, were joined on the first team by former conference greats Kevin McHale of Minnesota, Joe Barry Carroll of Purdue and Scott Skiles of Michigan State.

Thomas, with the NBA's Detroit Pistons, played at Indiana from 1979 to 1981. He led the team in scoring in 1980 and 1981.

Alford, now with the Golden State Warriors, became the top scorer in Indiana history with 2,438 points. That total made Alford, named the club's Most Valuable Player from 1984 to 1987, the second highest scorer in Big Ten history.

Bluejays dump Salukis again

2-point loss repeat of past game

By David Gallanetti
Staff Writer

WICHITA, Kan. — The Salukis will certainly remember Creighton senior James Farr.

After hitting a jumper with seconds left in Omaha on Feb. 16 to beat the Salukis, Farr put on an encore performance in Levitt Arena Tuesday night. His jumper with three seconds gave the Bluejays a 79-77 win and the championship of the Missouri Valley Tournament.

But the game in the Salukis' eyes was marked by a photo finish that should have been reevaluated.

Jerry Jones put up a jumper at the buzzer which was blocked by tournament MVP Chad Gallagher, a block that was not clean Jones and Saluki coach Rich Herrin said.

"If you don't think Jones was not fouled, look at the tape," Herrin said. "If officials call a good game for 38 minutes and 58 seconds they ought to call it for the other two."

Jones said Gallagher hit his arm when he went up for the shot which he took after a full-court pass from Rick Shipley.

"He got a piece of my arm," Jones said. "Maybe the ref didn't see it or he just did not want to make a call like that at the end of the game."

Creighton coach Tony Barone said he felt the referees made the right call.

"I thought it was a clean block," Barone said. "I would agree with Coach Herrin if I was Coach Herrin."

Farr missed a jumper with 35 seconds left and sophomore Sterling Mahan drove the lane for a basket with 13 seconds to tie the score at 77. But it was Farr who had the last laugh, and the Bluejays who won the automatic bid to the NCAA tournament.

"Mahan was all over me and I faded back and luckily it went in," Farr said. "I thought I should have hit the first one. When I missed, I was kind of down but I knew I'd stay with Kai (Nurnberger) so he couldn't go down and hit a three."

The Salukis were led by Nurnberger who set a tournament record by hitting 83-pointers. The senior finished with 28 points.

"It is a tough loss," Nurnberger said. "We lost at the last second like that at Creighton. I think this shows we deserve a post-season bid."

The Salukis finished the season at 20-13, a record Herrin said is plenty good for a post-season play.

"It would not be a fair situation if we don't get one,"

Carlyle bound for Elite Eight

Carlyle High school ended Class A Super-sectionals with a win over Norris City-Omahla-Enfield High School Tuesday night in the Arena.

The final score, 63-58, places fourth-ranked Carlyle into the state tournament with their first game at 1:45 p.m. Friday in the Assembly Hall.

The Indians led the entire game with 6-foot-8 senior forward Tom Michael scoring team high of 23 points and 7 rebounds. Michael, who fouled out in the fourth quarter with four minutes left, said, "I can't do anything sitting on the bench. They (Norris City) hit their free throws at the end and that's the key."

Michael, who has signed a letter of intent to play at the University of Illinois, has a season average of 28.1 points and 9.3 rebounds a game.

Norris came alive to come within nine points with three minutes left in the third quarter. The excitement began in the fourth quarter when Norris began their comeback.

Norris' 6-4 sophomore Reed Jackson came alive to score 13 of Norris' 18 fourth quarter points. Norris came within one point of Carlyle with 29 seconds left in the game. But Carlyle moved ahead to score the last four points and clinch the super-sectional trophy.

Carlyle coach Brad Weathers lead the Indians into the super sectionals with a 26-3 season record. "We shot the ball well last half," Weathers said. "Norris City doesn't know when to quit."

Saluki Amy Rakera scores for a jump shot before Drake's Jenni Fitzgerald (21) can close in. Rakera scored 18 points and had 10 rebounds in SIU-C's 80-65 Gateway semifinal win over Drake. The 19-9 Salukis play top seeded Illinois State Thursday in Normal for the conference championship.

Play Illinois State Thursday

In the midst of recapping SIU-C's 80-65 Gateway Conference semifinal victory over Drake, Saluki coach Cindy Scott suddenly remembered to inquire about hotel accommodations for the championship game.

Being the superstitious sort, Scott had not bothered to make reservations beforehand.

"In tournament play, it's bad luck to plan ahead," Scott said. "Of course, now we don't have any rooms."

Even without any lodgings, the vagabond Salukis will pack their nine-game win streak and stalwart "player" defense in a collective knapsack, then set their sights northward to Normal.

In a rematch of the 1983 title game, second-seeded SIU-C (19-9) will take on regular-season Gateway champion Illinois State (21-7) at 9 p.m. Thursday in newly-opened, 10,500-seat Redbird Arena.

The game will be broadcast by SportsVision, a Chicago-based cable-TV outlet. The winner is granted an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament.

Illinois State won the 1983 meeting 62-54 over SIU-C in what was the first-ever Gateway championship. Since then, no conference tournament final has been held without one of the two schools making an appearance.

Both teams each have two titles to their credit. SIU-C won last in 1987, and also took the 1986 championship, though no tournament was held that season. Illinois State also won in 1985, another season in which the regular-season champ was awarded the crown.

Illinois State reached Thursday's final by beating Eastern Illinois (16-12) in an 83-71 runaway Monday, thus avenging last week's 8-point loss to the Panthers.

The Salukis, who handed the Redbirds a 53-51 loss on Saturday, had to erase a 10-point, first-half deficit Monday against Drake to advance.

"We really needed to make adjustments to our offense," said Scott, whose team trailed Drake 31-27 at halftime. "We put (Dana) Fitzpatrick at high post and had (Tonda) Seals stay stationary on the wing."

The strategy proved effective. Even with Drake overextending its zone defense to compensate for the shift, the Salukis' senior guard tandem found room to operate.

Grapefruit league action awaits Itchy's ball club

By Troy Taylor

As far as baseball coach Itchy Jones is concerned, all the paperwork that goes with planning a spring trip to Florida won't end soon enough.

He's plenty ready to trade pencil, paper and calculator for bat, ball and lineup card.

"The moment we get on the plane," Jones said, "everything's either been thought of or forgotten."

The Salukis open their 11-game spring swing 11 a.m. Friday against Fairleigh Dickinson at Mark Light Stadium in Miami. That evening they play the host Hurricane, a 1988 College World Series qualifier.

"I expect our players to take the things they're doing here and apply it to live competition," Jones said. "We're not an established team, in that we have a set lineup, so we'll just feel our way along."

The Salukis, who were 40-22 last season, feature senior Rick Damico (.318) in left field and junior Brad Hollenkamp (.331) in right field.

Junior Dave Wrons (.310)

will be at third base, sophomore Shaun Lewis (.285) will be at first base and junior Doug Shields (.289) will be in centerfield. Another letterman is junior catcher Matt Giegling (.294).

Newcomers that have broke into the lineup are junior second baseman Tim Davis, a transfer from John A. Logan, debrock, a shortstop from Effingham High School.

Jones stressed that he will be looking at different personnel to fill different roles, though. "Some other kids are going to have an opportunity to jump in. That's the fun part of coaching, going out and finding what different guys to put
