Air strikes to continue

WASHINGTOB (AP) - President Nixon announced Monday night he has ordered entrance of North Vietnamese ports mined to keep weapons and supplies from what he called the "invaders." Nixon said U.S. forces have been directed to take appropriate measures to interdict delivery of supplies by sea. Nixon said rail and other lines of supply will be cut off, while air and naval strikes continue. In a nationally broadcast address, Nixon said the measures he had ordered taken were already underway.

He spoke to the nation several hours after U.S. warplanes had returned to attacks in the Hami area after a three-week lapse. And he announced the decisions after he had worked over the plans in a three-hour session with the National Security Council.

Nixon said he had ordered the blockade, but he said Hanoi must be denied weapons and supplies of war. Nixon said that all Americans would be withdrawn within four months from South Vietnam, and the mining of North Vietnamese sea approaches halted at once, if two conditions are met:
1. All U.S. prisoners of war are returned.
2. An internationally-supervised ceasefire is instituted.

Nations supplying ships to North Vietnam have been notified they have three days to get their ships out unhampered from the port of Haiphong.

He said any ships entering North Vietnamese waters after that will be sunk at their own risk.

With that, he disclosed the steps taken to seal off North Vietnamese ports, actions that recalled the naval quarantine that preceded the crisis over Soviet missiles in a decade ago.

Nixon prefaced his announcement by saying there appeared to be only three available courses of action: to withdraw American forces, to simply continue negotiations, or to take decisive military action.

He said he made certain certain in the first two courses, there is "really no choice." Nixon said the Communist offensive launched five weeks ago was made possible by tanks, artillery and other weapons supplied by the Soviet Union and other Communist nations.

Study of community fee approved by U-Senate

By Richard Lorenzo Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

By a 19 to 12 vote, the University Senate Monday night, approved a resolution calling for an investigation to "be made into the possibility of forming a community fee.

The operating budget subcommittee of the planning committee was assigned the task of investigating the size, the method of assessment and the appropriateness of such a fee.

Any recommendations of the subcommittee are to be considered by the Senate for the current fiscal year. The Senate reserves the right to make the final decision on any recommendations...

By Gary Dickerson, undergraduate representative, originally proposed the idea as a legislative proposal at the April 10 meeting. Robert G. Laver, serving as a proxy for William Simoone, proposed the amendment changing the legislative proposal to a resolution. Laver's amendment passed 23 to 7.

Dickerson asked the senate to recognize the principle that "you get what you pay for." He expressed the feeling that it is unfair that some groups have to pay the burden of university-wide activities while some have a freebie.

Dickerson cited the Daily Egyptian, the Health Service, campus recreational facilities and the U-Senate as examples of university-wide activities.

Some of the members questioned the services at the Health Service which are available to non-students. Nicholas Verge, professor of art, said vaccination and accidents which occur while on the job are the only services performed for non-students. Laver confirmed Verge's opinion.

Wage violation charged

• CFUT files formal complaint against SIU

By David L. Mahsun Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT) will file a formal complaint Tuesday with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), charging that more than a dozen SIU administrators have been given pay raises in violation of Federal wage control guidelines.

Garth Gillan, CFUT president, charged Monday that the dozen administrators-vice presidents and their assistants-received salary increases of from 9 to 31 percent, an apparent violation of the 5.5 percent limit allowed by the guidelines. Gillan said he obtained his information from a special correspondent from the St. Louis Post Dispatch, who made a check of SIU budget records.

But Richard Gruny, Board of Trustees legal counsel, contends that the pay raises are well within the wage control guidelines. Gruny said Monday that at the time the raises were granted, at the Nov. 30, 1971, meeting of the Board's executive committee in Terre Haute, Ind., the only Federal regulations were that a single company's aggregate pay raises must not exceed 5.5 percent. If the raises are considered together with the faculty and staff raises, they total a 14 percent increase, well within the guidelines, he said.

Gruny said that effective Dec. 31, 1971, pay raises must fall within the 5.5 percent limit according to "appropriate employee units." He said that SIU might then be separated into the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses for employee units, but pay increases would still be within limits of the law.

After the Nov. 30 meeting, the Board released a statement saying that faculty and staff had been given raises amounting to a 4.14 percent increase, but have never made public the salary increases for second-level University administrators. Minutes of the meeting say only that "faculty-administrative" salary adjustments were made, "with the understanding that this salary adjus-

Organ maker renovates, donates ‘Number 1’ to SIU

By University News Service

Back around the turn of the century, a Highland, Ill., cabinet maker and his son, a watchmaker brothers combined their talents and turned out a pipe organ at the suggestion of the local Catholic priest.

This week "Number One," restored to its original condition, was presented to the Museum at SIU by Mr. and Mrs. Martin W. Wick of Highland. Martin Wick, president of the well established Wicks Organ Co. in that city, is the son of Louis Wiek, who with his brothers John and Adolph built the instrument above the watchmaking shop.

The success of the first organ, which Martin Wick believes was originally built for St. Paul's Catholic Church in Highland, prompted the brothers to build another, and then another and by 1906 the company was incorporated and has been in continuous operation as a family company ever since. Today the company employs approximately 80 skilled craftsmen.

After a time, Wick said, the organ was transferred to St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Church in Lovely Grove, where it remained for at least 50 years, until Wick was able to buy it back.

The official presentation was made at a luncheon at the Student Center May 3 by Mr. and Mrs. Wicks. Accepting the organ on behalf of the University President David R. Derge, William J. Maloney, vice president, termed the gift "a most generous and greatly appreciated one" and said the instrument would be installed in the Museum wing of the new Humanities Building, now being constructed.

Other speakers expressing appreciation for the Wicks's gift were Basil Headrick, director of the museum; Dale Whitehead, musician-musicologist; and Kenneth R. Miller, executive director of the SIU Foundation.

"Number One," as the management and employees of the Wicks company affectionately refer to the instrument, was hardly deteriorated when Martin Wick reclaimed it, he said. The pipe casework, originally stained walnut, had been painted with many coats, as had the pipes themselves.

Both casework and pipes have been restored to their original appearance. "Traces of the original decoration could still be detected under the paint on the front pipes," he said, "and we were able to restore it.

Operation of the organ is entirely mechanical and it originally was equipped with a hand pump to provide air, but this mechanism has now been replaced with an electronic blower.

The original wind chest had been replaced during the 1960's Wick said, "and this one had so deteriorated by 1975 that it was unusable. We have attempted to provide a new wind chest as much like the original as possible."

Nowhere in the organ is completely operable, and is said to have an excellent tone.

Fraternity's Heart Fund benefit starts Thursday

The Gamma Eta Chapter of Sigma Alpha Mu social fraternity at SIU has announced plans to conduct its third annual "Bounce for Beats" benefit for the Jackson County Heart Fund Thursday and Friday.

Craig Knowles, chairman, said the plan of this marathon basketball-bouncing benefit will be a "bounce ball" continuously, day and night, while members collect for the fund.

The "Bounce for Beasts" event will begin with a dance at Merlins on 8th Street Thursday night. The proceeds of the dance will go to the Heart Fund. The "Bounceball" will begin at 8:30 a.m. Friday, outside the main entrance of the University Center.

Taylor seeks student unity

Taylor

Editor's Note—This is the first of two columns. Taylor, who will take office next month as Student Government President for 1972-73.

By Randy Thomas
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Jon Taylor grew up on the south side of Chicago in a neighborhood he called "Blackstone Ranger" Territory. He attended a Catholic grammar school and high school where he participated in track and cross-country and served as vice president of his senior class.

He first arrived at SIU in the fall of 1966 and as a freshman served as vice president of the East Campus Student Government. As a sophomore he became friendly with Dwight Campbell, then president of the student body, and as chairman of the Unity Party, became one of the leaders of the Student Revolution. He has since served as chairman of the Five School and of the Black Student Union (BSU).

In June, Taylor will officially assume the position of president of the student body which he won in the recent campus election.

In a series of interviews last week in the Student Government office, Taylor reflected on himself and his experience as a long-time member of the Student Government.

"To be quite honest," said the new president, "I decided to run for office only after closely examining my own conscience. I was up there almost every day this past quarter and plain as day there was no direction—nothing—to create insight. I sensed what has to be called mediocrity. By running for president I thought I could do my part and saddly a lot of ideas that have been buzzing around here for a long time.

"How did the Jon Taylor-Susan Collett team come about?

Taylor leaned back in his swivel chair and smiled. "I believe I first met Susan several years ago at a protest march in Washington," he said. "Last summer is when I really got to know her. Women's liberation on campus needed an office and we weren't using the BSU office so we let them use it.

"As for us getting together as a team, I knew that my being black might alienate a lot of people. When I heard Susan was thinking about running for vice president I was immediately attracted to her because of her experience as a leader and organizer. We both foresee an alienation problem and by getting together, I think we solved it."

Taylor and Ms. Collett as well as the Unity Party are viewed by many on campus as extremely radical. When asked how he felt about this "reputation," the new president replied: "Compared to what's been happening in Student Government, yes, we are radical. But I prefer to call it an extremely progressive. A lot of our ideas are not particularly new. Let's just say we'll be taking a lot of creative initiatives.

"As for the administration's feelings toward us, they might be decrease. But I think we've dealt with administrators in a very personal way. I will be judged for what I am instead of my associations.

As a black student at SIU has Taylor ever felt he was personally discriminated against by the administration or faculty?

Taylor frowned at the question, jammed a toothpick into his mouth and chomped it. "institutional discrimination—that is what you have to call it. Sure. I've experienced it. I'm sure a lot of other students have, too. But I am dealing with administrators in a very personal way. I will be judged for what I am instead of my associations.

Taylor stood in front of a blackboard covered with notes. "This year's senate didn't do much because the role of student senator was never well defined," he said. "There's a lot more to be a senator than just going to meetings. Next year the senates will hopefully spend a little more time with their constituents." To make this possible, Taylor said the Student Senate will meet only two times a month and said he planned to attend as many meetings as possible, "We don't want all students to feel as though they've got someone representing them. I've gone to get students interested in student government even if it means dragging people to meetings and throwing away Roberts' Rules of Order."

Taylor feels strongly about something to unify students.

"Being president is definitely hard but at the same time it feels rewarding," he said. "However, after thinking about it, you come to realize what it means and what it could be. I really feel the potential."

Taylor stopped and looked around the room. Suddenly he took the toothpick from his mouth and leaned forward.

"The main thing I want to do is unify the student body. We are all students with common needs regardless of the color of our skin or our religion. Unless unity becomes a reality, Student Government just isn't worth a damn."

Tomorrow-Susan Collett, who is president of the ALF (American Legion of Feminists), has some programs in mind for SIU women but she doesn't think the incoming Student Government administration ought to be concerned.

Taylor had said that the Board has the power to raise salaries and increase to low-paid faculty in the recent past without raising adminstrative salaries. He said that if the CFUT rule of separate bargaining units is applied to the faculty, raises raise in personal pay and not administrative. He would increase pay for the administratively.

"The University is run by administrators," Taylor charged.

John Selden, a member of the CFUT executive board, said that because state money for SIU is limited, the trustees have fired faculty members and refused them pay raises so that more adminstrators could be hired and that they could get more money.

Another administrative argument is that the administrative pay raise goes along with increased responsibilities that have resulted from decentralization at SIU, Gruny said.

Do you need it?
The pot of gold at the end of the educational rainbow is empty. College graduates are no longer the sought after commodity they once were. Employment recruiting campaigns have dropped 65 percent from 1968 and no major comeback is foreseeable. A number of factors have contributed to this deplorable job situation. The most prominent factor is the economic situation in the United States today. But they also say there are too many people they feel they must send their children to college.

In a survey conducted by the Northwestern University Placement Service, about 65 percent of the 180 major companies contacted said they thought too many students went to four-year schools. About 80 percent replied they would have significantly more positions for junior college and vocational school graduates if college graduates were not so plentiful.
The survey indicates that the traditional four-year education is unnecessary for many of the jobs college graduates are finding. But due to a serious mix-up of priorities in the educational planning system, students feel they must complete college to gain a successful position in society.

This unfortunate situation has not only glutted the job market in many areas but has also forced a costly college education on many who really have no desire for it. A good portion of those entering really have no need for that education when pursuing the careers they have chosen. But social conditions have dictated that "one really must go to college."

What is needed to remedy this situation is a hard look at educational priorities. The image of the university and the liberal arts education that baccalaureate degree, but vocational training should be stressed. More career counseling should be made available so students can take a better look at their wants and desires. Everyone should have the right to make his own decisions about his career. Social pressure should not force unwanted education on anyone.

Legislators and educators had better awaken to the demand for vocational education before the job situation forces them to correct the point where realignment of priorities cannot reverse the trend.

Selective repression made clear
To the Daily Egyptian
The selective intimidation and repression used by various University administrators has become very clear in the last few weeks.

When SIU Vietnamese students tore up the sign of anti-war Vietnamese students who had come from all over the country to protest Vietnamization at the SIU-Vietnamese Studies Center at SIU, no Interim Policy on Demonstrations was read. When SIU Vietnamese students disrupted the panel discussion of the anti-war Vietnamese by shouting and running up to the front of the room, no Interim Policy on Demonstrations was read.

Yet, when four members of the Committee to Defend the Right to Speak peacefully tried to protest a banner, without involving with the rights of others, the Interim Policy on Demonstrations was read and we were threatened with arrest. When students peacefully sat in President Derge's hallway two weeks ago to ask for his answer to a letter—Ed Hammond was quick to read the Interim Policy on Demonstrations and refused to tell us in what way we were disrupting normal business, since we had left an aide for people to walk through.

When Prof. Schlippe spent whole class sessions attacking his colleague Doug Allen, and attempting those who may support Prof. Allen, no attempt is made to relieve him of his livelihood. Yet when Prof. Doug Allen speaks out in public against the complexity of the University with the war in Vietnam, he is fired for "criticizing the university."

When Prof. Altshuler personally attacks his colleague, Doug Allen, as a "self-righteous.ibis" there is no retaliation against him in the form of a denial of salary increase. Yet, when Prof. Gardner exposes the incompetency of the staff of the Vietnamese Studies Center through documented evidence, he is denied a salary increase.

While President Derge gets a salary of $30,000 a year, and his staff gets similar increases out of line with the Pay Board's recommendations, 118 faculty members, mostly women, are fired.

Library hours are cut due to the lack of $6,000, yet the Vietnamese Studies Center, which teaches an average of ten students per General Studies course, continues to get approximately $2 million of university funds. Let's not allow this selective repression and intimidation to go unanswered.

Misdirected criticism
To the Daily Egyptian:
Upon reading Sir Randy Daniel's reprimand of SIU Convocation Students in general, I felt the need to both defend the majority of us "Convo goers" and point out a couple of seemingly ignored facts. First of all, it could be observed that the conduct of the students at Convo when we are presented with a worthwhile program is nothing less than attentive, commendable and even enthusiastic (the most recent example being the Spanish Dancers). It is certainly a pity, that SIU can not provide us with more than two or three such good presentations per quarter.

Secondly, I would like to say that each time a noticeable disturbance has occurred this year, it was always the minority who were the problem. It is my responsibility for it sat right in the middle of a huge group of students who gather weekly in the Southwest corner of the union. After that, it only fair to point this out, Randy Daniels, after your public "hard-nosing" attempts to make us mature, aware adult like yourself might have noticed the rowdiness in the center last Thursday and evaluated the situation fairly.

Incidently, I'm sure all of us "little children" enrolled in Convo would love to become as "grown-up" as the students who do not make a scene. I think you should do the same as us, why don't you try stopping, and concentrate on those kiddies in the corner who really need it! !!!!!

Missed a good time
To the Daily Egyptian:
In these depressing times, how can we neglect anything that brings back the joy of being alive? What a pity that the Bijana Folk Dances on Ice, one of the happiest shows ever brought to campus by Celebrity Series, was so poorly attended! That very large, superbly trained group of dancers from Yugoslavia—the tiny, acrobatic young men, the girls, every one of them beautiful and graceful—brought us dances varying from funny episodes in folklore to elaborate fantasies, omoegoes in color and lighting, rich in a seemingly endless change of costumes.

And while all gliding on flashing skates! Not the least fascinating item of the program was the ice they brought with them, with which they paved the floor of the Shryock stage: four-foot squares of a plastic material so amazingly resistant that the company has been traveling with the same pieces for almost a year.

You missed a very good time, folks!

State visit results are hellish

By Arthur Hoge

The Daily Egyptian

Washington. October 31, 1972—President Nixon arrived here late last May—shortly after his trip to China and Canada and prior to his journeys to Latin America, Africa, C'ub, Greece and Antarctica this past summer.

At the time, the White House revealed that advanced planning for the Nixon trip had been secretly made by Mr. Henry Kissinger over a long seven-year period. Nixon's spokesmen do not believe Dr. Kissinger was hidden away in a Jersey City motel with a Hollywood starlet.

After the National recovery tour was in tial shock, reaction to the President's announcement was widely favorable. Nixon's spokesmen contended clearly that Americans should have no truck with either Hades or Premier Beelzebub.

While the letterbearers were that Mr. Nixon had built his political career on condemnations of Beelzebub and warnings to his fellow Americans not to be taken in by "the universal Hades conspiracy" and those who were associated with it.

Even his Democratic opponents were grudgingly forced to endorse the trip. But they were quick to point out that for years they had been urging Nixon to go there.

After all, the visit, the second-day itself was something of an anti-climax. It produced little hard news for the 1973 newsman accompanying the President.

On their arrival behind The Fiery Curtain, Mr. and Mrs. Nixon were greeted by Premier Beelzebub himself. "To be perfectly candid," the President said on shaking hands, "we expect no miracles." The Premier looked appropriately embarrassed.

At the welcoming banquet that night, the two leaders exchanged numerous toasts in firewater, the potent local drink.

"While we cannot close the gulf between us," the President said cautiously, "we can try to bridge it so that we may be able to talk across it." The Premier admitted himself by quoting extensively from Scripture.

During the week, the two held numerous "serious and frank" discussions. Rumors that the Premier had offered his "whole-hearted support" of the American war effort in Vietnam were denied by Presidential aides.

The only outward result was the news Hades was contributing two griffins to fight the British in Washington. What the President gave in exchange was not revealed. But it was noted columnist Jack Anderson had been missing since his arrival with the press party.

Most of the time was spent in sight-seeing. Mr. Nixon, after visits to the Devil's Workshop and Hell's Kitchen, declared: "I've eaten hellish food all over the world, but for deviled ham there's no place like Hell.

The President, on gazing into the lowest depths, said: "I think you would have to conclude this is a real H·o·double-toothed..."

On his return today, the President cautioned Americans not to set their hopes too high. "We have many more doors to push than ever." he said. And he added "I've made no secret deals of any kind with Premier Beelzebub, etc.

Nevertheless, the experts now agree to the man that, as a result of the trip, Mr. Nixon will win next Tuesday's election in a landslide.

More letters to the editor

To the Daily Egyptian:

As one of the SIU Vietnamese present at the Friday afternoon panel discussion conducted by Dougall Kline, a member of the Vietnamese Student Association, I must object to several of the statements and assertions by those persons.

First, the SIU Vietnamese did not, with the exception of one speaker, convey on the podium until after the discussion was over and organized to them by a memorandum address, and also only one of the students, did not attempt to begin first with Americans sitting in the audience. Most, if not all, the time was given to the visiting panelists.

This letter is written so that we, as Vietnamese-educated in Vietnam for the most part, objected to the entirely erroneous nature of the information given by Nguyen Van Long on several matters of Vietnamese history and culture and wish to correct this for the benefit of the American audience. There has been too much distorted information already disseminated to the American public about Vietnam and its people. As a student I go to unchallenge and uncorrected. Doug Allen's statements, made before several years ago, was inarticulate, indicated that he held to the American pattern of speaking for Vietnam as if they cannot speak for themselves and all the time. I believe that the Vietnamese students could not grasp the entirety of it with their eyes as in Viet Nam.

Finally, while it should now be abundantly clear to the student population that all of us were agreed that this war is destructive and undesirable, the students at SIU as well as students from Vietnam attending should understand that as students as competent to represent Vietnam or Vietnamese students. The many factual mistakes, apart from allowance of Vietnamese students and visitors. It sheds much doubt upon the ability of these persons to speak about Vietnam and represent themselves as such.

U.S. strengthens troops in Thailand

BANGKOK (AP) — The U.S. Air Force has built new airbases in Thailand in the last few weeks under a mandate of secrecy that has covered air operations here since 1954.

The withdrawal program which saw U.S. troop strength drop by 13,000 between July 1972 and May 1973 to a level of 22,200 has been reversed.

Informed sources said 2,000 airmen have arrived secretly in Thailand in the last month to handle a new buildup of combat aircraft. Another 3,000 men are due in the near future.

Some are being flown in at night to avoid observation, informants said.

Takhil Air Base, 100 miles north of Bangkok, is now in use as an airbase at a cost of $58 million by the U.S. government and closed in 1973 as part of the withdrawal program, has been reactivated.

Some 200 American airmen are engaged in bringing the big base back to operational status for use by F4 Phantom fighter-bombers.

Ten squadrons of warplanes including Phantoms and B-52s have been ordered to Thailand since the North Vietnamese offensive in South Vietnam began March 30.

Fighters brought from Takhil bases once more are rolling down "Route Package One," the Air Force code name for the heavily defended Red River Valley in North Vietnam.

Besides Takhil, U.S. airmen in Thailand are stationed at Udorn, Utson, Nakhon Phanom and Korat, all in the northeast, and at Utagan, 90 miles south of Bangkok. Types of aircraft range from the eight-jet B-52s to helicopters and small observation planes.

In the current stepped-up air campaign, Thai-based planes are flying round-the-clock missions.

The B-52s have bombed deep into North Vietnam for the first time in the war. Rescue helicopters are again making pickups of downed American flyers far into North Vietnamese territory.

The present buildup has been done quietly. What few announcements there have been have come from Washington, in keeping with the long-standing low-profile policy covering U.S. activities in Thailand.

Less than a week ago, the U.S. mission in Bangkok claimed there were no plans to reactivate Takhil.

Now, some are allowed to visit any of the air bases in Thailand. Pilots and GIs have strict instructions not to talk to them.

Although the bases were built by the United States, they remain the property of the royal Thai air force. An agreement, the terms of which have never been made public.

Finance committee hearings to determine budget allocations

Hearings on allocations of student activity fees began Mondays before the Student Senate finance committee which heard requests from the Campus Crusi ce to Defend the Right to Speak, Southern Illinois Peace Committee and Mobilization of Volunteers to Africa.

John Consil, committee chairman, said he had received several requests and several amounts requested. He felt this could cause needless trouble.

The hearings are open and will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. in Activity Room C of the Student Center, Consil said, and probably will continue until May 19.

The Student Senate, Public Interest Research Group, University Band and Orchestra and Student Mobilization Committee are scheduled for Tuesday.

Any other organization may want money. Budget request forms listing certain criteria can be picked up at student government office. Cutoff date for all the forms would be in Friday.

Services held
Monday for slain student

Investigators continued to look for leads into the death of Michael Ger- chenkin as the SIU student from Highland Park was buried in Palatine Monday.

State police reported no new developments in the case of Garchenkin who was found shot to death alongside Interstate 57 near West Frankfort Wednesday. An earlier report that his missing car had been located in Chicago turned out to be erroneous, police said.

Funeral services were held for the dead student at the Northshore Congregation Israel Temple in Glenview with burial following in the Skokie Memorial Park in Palatine.

Garchenkin was survived by his parents, Emil and Norma Gerchkenin, and a brother, Jeffery.

Judge to decide on student case within one week

The case of SIU student Howard Blair is now in the hands of the court.

Attorney Schwartz, associate judge of the Jackson County Circuit Court, took the case of Blair under advisement after a three-hour trial Monday and promised a decision within a week.

Blair is charged with public consumption of alcohol and resisting arrest as a result of an incident in front of Marion night club April 9. He charged the officers involved in the arrest with using excessive force.

A hearing before the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners concerning Blair's complaint will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday in City Hall.

Lyric protest against strip mining to be held

The Student Environmental Center will hold a program of musical and poetic protest against the abuses of strip mining at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Ballroom D of the Student Center.

Entitled "Battle Ballads from the Strip Mining War Zone," the program will feature songs sung by poet William H. Crown and his wife Doreen. Crown, who represented the United States during a poetry seminar at the 1968 Olympics, Mexico, was a leader in anti-strip mining activities in 1979 in Kentucky. His book, "The World of Man," is a book of poetry concerning his observations at the Olympics.

Ray Lewis, adviser to the center said that in addition to music and poetry, the program will feature discussions on what individual Illinois citizens can do to fight strip mining abuses in this state.

Retired SIU prof dies in Phoenix after long illness

By University News Service

Retired SIU professor James I. Ochs, visiting professor in the department of secondary education at SIU, from 1962 to 1968, died last week in Phoenix, Ariz. He had been ill for more than three years.

At the time Ochs retired to the Southwest he had written or co-authored approximately 30 books. He taught at Clark College in Oregon, University of California, University of Minnesota, and Indiana University before he came to SIU. He was a special friend to scores of international students on campus here.

Survivors include his wife, Helen, and two sons, Robert Frederick and Edward James.

Hanoi area target of strikes in action to halt offensive

SAIGON (AP) - American planes carried the war to the Hanoi area area yesterday, and the U.S. Command said "are helping to support the Communist invasion" of South Vietnam.

According to Radio Hanoi, the strikes around Hanoi followed heavy air strikes over wider scattered areas of North Vietnam on Sunday, including an attack on a storage facility at Nam Dinh, a city in the Red River Delta about 55 miles southeast of the capital. The attack on Nam Dinh, one of many military bases in South Vietnam, damaged some of the capital. The U.S. Command in Saigon said dikes were not on the planes' target lists.

Before the 1966 bombing raids by President Lyndon B. Johnson, one body of military material in South Vietnam were delisted, but said the strikes were deliberate. The U.S. Command in Saigon said dikes were not on the planes' target lists.

No new major ground action was reported Monday on the scattered fronts in South Vietnam. But enemy pressure remained high and renewed attacks were expected in the central highlands and on the old capital of Hue.

A U.S. headquarters announcement said planes flying from 7th Air Force carriers carried out the strikes against targets about 15 miles west of Hanoi.

The targets included storage facilities, barracks and training facilities which are helping to support the Communist invasion across the demilitarized zone," the command said. It added that "all U.S. aircraft returned safely from the strikes.

The command announced that the strikes were made by Navy tactical aircraft and 7 A-66 bombers were involved. Bilts were used April 16 in attacks near the port city.

Saigon (AP) - American planes in action to halt offensive.

The command said that while the strikes were being made in the Hanoi area, "other U.S. aircraft and naval gunfire support strikes were attacking military targets south of, in and north of the DMZ." It also was learned that the United States was carrying out a concerted air assault in the southern panhandle of North Vietnam to destroy war material before it could reach forces in the South.

Alternative '72 sponsors films

Alternative '72 will sponsor a science fiction film festival Wednesday through Sunday in the Student Center Auditorium.

Two films will be shown each night, one at 7 p.m. and one at 9 p.m. Nancy Marder, cochairman of the film series, said:

The films include "Trip to the Mind," "Metropolis, The Lost World," "Bride of Frankenstein," "The Day the Earth Caught Fire" and "The Day the Earth Stood Still.

The movies are free and open to the public.

TV performance seeks audience

Anyone wanting to view a "in person" TV performance Wednesday night at the Communications Building may attend the taping of "The Sesame Street Weekly" program produced at WITI.

Appearing on this week's show will be Bob Remke, a folk artist-comedian who will soon be performing at the East of Old Town in Chicago, according to Bruce Scale, producer of the show.

Admission to the WITI-TV studio is free and the audience may sit in the audience's seats for the program's 9 p.m. starting time.

Arab students plan banquet

The Organization of Arab Students is sponsoring a banquet at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in the Student Center ballrooms.

Ticket prices are $2.50 and are available at the International Student Center in Woody Hall. Sadat Hassan, representative of the Palestinian Liberation front to the U.N., will speak on the Middle East crisis.

This is the first activity for the organization this quarter and anyone who is interested in the Middle East crisis is welcome to join.

Chinese students set to discuss recent visits to mainland China

By Rita Fung
Student Writer

Three Chinese visitors from the University of Illinois and Indiana University will present their views and relate experiences of recent visits to China in a public discussion, 7:45 p.m. Thursday at Davis Auditorium.

The event, sponsored by the Southern Illinois Peace Committee (SIPC), will include an informal discussion on the China-Taiwan question and a slide show on the places visited in China.

Chen Hien-Chieh, a native of Taiwan and a doctoral candidate in international law at the University of Illinois, will speak on his two-month visit in China during the fall of 1971. He toured Peking, Hangchow, Shanghai and other big cities with a group of four other Chinese students, all of them holding passports issued by the Kuomintang government in Taiwan.

Chen has reported that he met Premier Chou En-Lai in Peking and discussed with him the future of Taiwan.

After Chen returned to the States, he began to voice his views openly in advocacy of an autonomous Taiwan which is also to be a province of mainland China.

As a result of his China trip, Chen said, his passport was revoked by the Kuomintang government together with those of his four colleagues who toured China with him.

Jerry Chen, one of his four colleagues who are at present doing research in computer science at the University of Illinois, also will present his views on China in the discussion.

According to Chen (Jerry), his passport also has been suspended and his brother has been expelled from the air force academy in Taiwan.

Benny Ko, a graduate from the medical school at Indiana University, also will convey his first-hand observations of China in the discussion session. Ko has just returned from a one-month stay in China.

GSC okays half-time grant for president

By Richard Lorenzo
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A resolution granting a half-time assistantship to the president of the Graduate Student Council (GSC) was approved Friday by the GSC.

Under the plan, the Graduate School will designate the president as a half-time graduate assistant at a rate equal to his normal salary in his department, with waiver if needed.

The council received two nominations for its upcoming elections of nine top officers. Lyssa Pulispetr, graduate student in geography, and Garry Marrs, graduate student in zoology, were nominated to serve on the Graduate School Council. Both are currently members of that council. The GSC will have five members on the Graduate School Council.

No nominations were received for the four GSC officers. Supposedly, new officers are to be elected at the May 19 meeting. Nominations for the positions are being accepted, and any graduate student is eligible.

The council approved a motion which called for the election of new GSC representatives in the May 19 meeting. Representatives are to be elected by the graduate students in their departments according to procedures agreed to by the respective electorates. The newly elected representatives will take office following the May 19 meeting. Written certifications signed by appropriate graduate students in the departments for the department chairman's signature is needed.

According to precedent, there is to be one GSC representative from each department with less than 50 graduate students, and from departments with over 50 students there is a maximum of two representatives.

No nominations were made for resigning University Senate representatives. Chris Jensen, GSC secretary, said it is likely two U-Senate representatives will resign.

The council endorsed a plan offered by John Olmsted, dean of the Graduate School, which allows teaching assistants one week's vacation for each month of work. The vacation is to be taken during the work period.

Discussion, but no action was taken on the possibility of asking the graduate status and welfare committee to write a legislative proposal concerning contracts. Of particular concern was the need for a hearing procedure. Action was delayed because of the lack of a quorum.
People who had seen Davis in other days commented on him now and his changed attitude. "It's going to take a lot more than students to end the war," he admitted, talking to reporters before the rally.

Dressed in a short-sleeved, white turtleneck sweater and faded jeans, Davis seemed scrawny, scrawny, "there's no security anywhere, even in Miami Beach, for him and his kind."

Then he described a three-point plan for any man wishing to run for a political office: 1) an immediate repair and an early date when all U.S. troops will be withdrawn, 2) an end to Vietnamization. "Defeat of Richard Nixon is an initiative for 1972. And, he added with a smile, "we are going to win. Robert Humphrey's ass out of the primaries, too."

He urged students to "take a little time to try to get in touch with the people in the community, to tell the people about the three-point plan, to talk to Kiwanis Clubs."

"It might be far-out," he said, "for every one of us to bring our parents to sit outside the Democratic and Republican conventions in peaceful protest."

With a smile, he described the move of the Republican convention from San Diego to President Nixon's fear that antiwar forces might pollute the convention. He said he would go there, and Nixon would have to let Richard Nixon know.

"It's a national scandal, c'mon, that there's no security anywhere, even in Miami Beach, for him and his kind."

The theme of the rally in the Old Main Park seemed to be a new movement to reach people outside the universities in the effort to end Vietnam conflict.

Fred Braasman of Project Air War, told students to contact their parents, neighbors, people they work with.

"The pride, the false pride that we have carried for so long in the antiwar movement is going to be smashed this summer," he said.

Fred was going to blow the whistle in a city that he will attend to Chicago. Rennie Davis replied, "Fred was one of my closest friends and I wouldn't dignify that with a comment. Everybody knows that Cook County States Attorney Hansen killed Fred."

Davis said he was going to attend the 1972 conventions in Miami and break them with a referendum on Vietnam.

Skolnick was in Carbondale to hear Davis speak.

"I came down," he said, "because I have done everything legal to confront Rennie with these charges."

"He flies into a town, makes his speech, and flies right back out again," he said. "If I ever get a chance to protest once, it would freak the government out." Skolnick said.

Rennie Davis denies charges filed by Chicago legal researcher

By Maureen Walker Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Rennie Davis denied charges leveled against him by Chicago legal researcher Sherman Skolnick.

Skolnick contends that Bernard C. Davis and others are backed by the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and that a "storehouse appears to be a government agent" whose job is to infiltrate and lead the peace movement against the Vietnam war. The government consent can be channeled and controlled.

During a 20-minute interview Skolnick denied Skolnick's accusations saying, "Skolnick has a personal thing against me and others of the "Conspiracy Seven.""

Davis said that during the conspiracy trial in Chicago, Skolnick was upset because the CIA had opened an investigation of the "Conspiracy Seven" group that the latter said was a "storehouse" of CIA agents.

Skolnick wanted to be the attorney for the "Conspiracy Seven" but they already had an attorney and so refused Skolnick's services.

"He is either getting paid by the government himself or he is out of his mind," Davis said.

A day later, Skolnick filed a seven-page motion with the United States Court of Appeals requesting that the court conduct a complete investigation of the Chicago Conspiracy Seven trial because it was a "fraud upon the court." The request was turned down.

The motion said, "members of Skolnick's committee have been instrumental in focusing a certain federal probe into Judge Otto Kerner, of this court, resulting in Kerner's recent indictment. In the course of that work, the committee became aware of the fact that Judge Kerner was being pressured and manipulated to grant almost unlimited and widespread travel permission to some of the Chicago Seven."

"A key ruling by Judge Kerner came of July 13. In prior to the conspiracy trial, Kerner, at the drop of a hat, almost instantly upon application, ordered that Rennie Davis be authorized to travel to Paris, France, and to Haros, North Vietnam, commencing that same day. Rennie Davis was able to travel to North Vietnam, which is now an impartial and neutral country, to confer directly with a P.O.W. he helped bring back," the motion said.

When asked about his permission to travel to foreign countries while someone like Angela Davis can't go out into her own back yard, Rennie said that "the power structure is more tolerant of white radicals than black revolutionaries."

When asked if he had heard the rumour that in the black community "Fred Hampton was killed because he found out that Rennie Davis was a CIA agent and I was a P.O.W."

Fred was going to blow the whistle in a city that he will attend to Chicago. Rennie Davis replied, "Fred was one of my closest friends and I wouldn't dignify that with a comment. Everybody knows that Cook County States Attorney Hansen killed Fred."

Student artists awarded prizes in Alternative ‘72-sponsored show

Twenty-four artists received monetary awards ranging from $5 to $50 for their entries in the Alternative ‘72 Art Show held last week in the Student Center. The winning art works will be on display May 19 through June 2 in Gallery 51 of the Student Center.

Awards were given to artists for paintings, drawings, mixed media, ceramic pieces, photography, jewelry, and object forms of art, said Larry Ger­ vain, president of the Art Student League.

Gervais said graduate and undergraduate works were judged together since the judges felt that the art categories had been set up were unfair. Therefore, no one received first, second or third prize and judges awarded monetary prizes as they saw fit, Gervais said.

The art show will continue through Wednesday afternoon and artists can pick up their works either Thursday or Friday, Gervais said.

Winners included Phyllis Rowe, Robin Moraratz, Gale Grosset and Jackkie Sundries for weaving; Terri Dempers, Thomas Jameson, Sherri Holte and Greg Heummage for drawings; Robert Butler, Frank Vescaggi and Leslie Kessell for prints; Gary Edener, Jim Stapleton and Robert Farles for paintings; and Kennedy Hinkenhunz, Ransel

New fire halts rescue efforts at silver mine

KELLOGG, Idaho (AP)—A new blast of heat and smoke turned the Sunshine silver mine into an inferno Monday. It ham­morred rescue crews trying to reach 58 men missing since Tuesday's flash fire which killed 26 miners. Temperatures at two separate elevator shafts shot up to 125 degrees.

There was serious doubt that the men trapped almost a mile deep for six days had any chance of survival. The rescue still were 1,000 feet above the 4,000-foot level where the men are believed to be. Power failures made it impossible to work either one of two cages. A probe with the compressed air machinery also had failed and a plan to send a man team down in a specially con­structed capsule.

General Manager Marvin C. Chase who had been optimistic that the missing men could be saved, conceded the fresh outbreak of smoldering fire and the additional smoke hazards has changed the pic­ture.

“We still have a chance to get the hoist going and we still have a chance of getting survivors out but I can't say I am as optimistic as I was before,” Chase said.

The rescuers below did not ac­ually see any new blaze but the stilling heat was evidence enough that somewhere around the 3,700-foot level the stubborn fire was again eating through the holdings of timber.

Mine officials said they expect the government to close the mine within 90 days while government in­vestigators try to determine the cause of the fire. Mine President Er­win Underweirs of New York said the company would not lose money during the closing since insurance will provide $6,200 per day.

He said he expects the price of silver to rise from Friday's closing of $1.59 per ounce to as much as $4.00 per ounce. He cited the bonus.

Many shift workers will be laid off during the closing, he said and al­lowed several other mining companies have agreed to hire them on a tem­porary basis.

Campus briefs

R. Buckminster Fuller, world-renowned designer-philosopher and University Professor, S.S.-Edwardsville, is to address an audience of philosophers Saturday at the Sherraton-Jefferson Hotel in St. Louis. Fuller's speech on creative synergy is a part of the three-day conference slated here by the Society for Philosophy of Creativity, in conjunction with the 70th annual meeting of the American Philosophical Association, Western Division.

The program is organized by the Foundation for Creative Philosophy, incorporated in 1967, to enhance research, teaching and publication. The Carbondale-based foundation, directed by the William S. Minor, publishes the Philosophy of Creativity Monograph Series.

Thomas M. Brooks, dean of the School of Home Economics, has been scheduled for three consumer education conferences. He was to be a panelist on "Consumer Education—What's Being Done" at the Wisconsin Consumer Assembly in Milwaukee Saturday. On Tuesday he is to speak at a Southern Illinois Dietetic Workshop in Marion, discussing the dietitian's role in consumerism, and on Thursday is to talk on "The Need for Consumer Education for Kindergarten through 12th Grade" at a workshop at Carbondale Central High School. At the Carbondale workshop, sponsored by the Office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Karen Craig, chair­man of the Department of Family Economics and Management, also is to speak, discussing "Planning Financial Security for Families.

Rose Padgett, Chairman of the Department of Clothing and Textiles, participated in various committee meetings of the American Association of Textile Chemists and Colorists at the association's Research Triangle in Chapel Hill, N.C., recently.

Miss Padgett is a member of the committees on textile education, stain resistance, color fastness to atmospheric con­ tamination, and weather resistance, but also visited sessions of groups on flammmability and fire resistance, soiling of household textiles, and knit fabric technology.

Subir K. Bose, assistant professor of physics, has published two research papers recently on symmetry aspects of some elementary particle interactions in the Japanese journal, Progress of Theoretical Physics. One of the papers was co-authored by P. Narayananwamy, associate professor of physics at SIU-Edwardsville.

Dining room name contest reopens for new proposals

Clarence D. Dougherty, director of the Student Center, has announced the reopening of a contest to find a name for the formal dining room near the director's office in the Student Center.

The decision was made by the Student Center Board, said Dougherty, based on the feeling that none of the names submitted so far were exactly the one desired.

Names may be entered on cards that are available at the cashier's desk in the dining room. Included should be an explanation of why that particular name is being suggested, and the name, address, and phone number of the person entering the name.

The prize for the winning name is dinner for two at the dining room and two free tickets for the next Arena concert.

Entries must be returned to the director's office by June 2.

Friday last day for loan requests

May 31 is the deadline for applications for Illinois guaranteed loans for the spring quarter.

Applications must be submitted by May 31 for subsequent quarters should be submitted now to expedite loan processing and check a student's program by the beginning of those quarters, said Larry Dust, financial aid director.

Netmen lift record to 14-2 with weekend 'grudge' wins

By Ernie Schwindt

Daily Press Sports Writer

The win pushed SIU's regular season's record to 14-2. Of the last nine games, 6-3 beating of Tennessee was the most important. The Volunteers had lost once prior to taking the court against Southern. That lone defeat came in a highly regarded Georgia last week.

Two Salukis netted some revenge on an individual basis. Graham Snook got two with Paul Van Minn when he beat the freshman from Holland in three sets. 6-4, 7-6. The win boosted Snook's record to 13-1.

On May 4 Van Minn beat Snook, 7-5, 5-7, 7-4 as part of the Volunteers' 3-1 win over Southern. At the time it was Snook's first defeat in a dozen matches.

Also getting in some revenge was Jorge Ramirez, Southern's No. 2 man beat Robert Van Malder 6-2, 6-4, 7-5. Ramirez had lost to Van Malder when the two met at SIU & Southern. Ramirez's eighth win was against four defeats.

The Salukis took two of three doubles contests from the Volunteers to seal the victory. Snook and Ramirez teamed up to beat Van Minn and Ian Huber 6-2, 6-3 while Greenfield and Broscue defeated Perez and Scott LeFur 6-4, 6-3.

Chris Gunnung and Mike Clanton were defeated by Van Malder and Bolle at No. 3 doubles 7-6, 7-6 in the final and third doubles match.

The tennis teams are set to action next against Murray State Saturday outside at the courts. It will be Southern's final home appearance of the season.

Quarters back look sharp

Football intraquad ends in 7-7 tie

About 28 seconds remained on the clock in the AIIll Public Schools Stadium. The Reds were trying to keep a new drive going as Terry
Krieger moved to the line of scrimmage.

The ball never reached its examiner. Evans Bell of the Reds pocked the pass off on 39-yard line and set plenty of last weekend's upset in play.

That about the way it went for both squads made of the day as the SIU football intraquad game for charity ended a 7-7 deadlock Saturday.

As usual we drafted our teams," we intended to make both sides even, said Southern's Todd Johnson. The teams were chosen by a 5-4 count.

Not only was the score equal, but so were most of the statistics. The Reds scored 163, Whites 151 and 255 in total offense and 13 to 12 in total yards.

Although the Reds had the No. 1
Quarterback—Larry Perkins—the Whites were the first to score. The Salukis' leading career passer Johnson split the goal line from the two-yard line with 3:27 remaining in the half. Louns's touchdown capped a 93-yard drive engineered by White-quarterback Jim Sullivan.

The big play on that march was a 48-yard pass from Sullivan to freshman Willie Turner. The Reds tied the score with H 21 left in the game when Sam Reed ran 10 yards for a touchdown. Reed ended the game as the top rusher with 75 yards in 12 carries.

It was a good day for Sullivan, whose performance brightened SIU's quarterback picture. Perkins previously had been the only strong candidate.

Sullivan was the most effective passer Saturday in the Red-Dead heat, completing four of eight for 81 yards.

The Watsonto product "enhanced his position somewhat," said O'Boyle. Sullivan had been considered the Salukis' third or fourth string quarterback this spring. Head coach Dick Torens was pleased from defense from halfback.

"O'Boyle would not say if he thought Sullivan was now a threat to Perkins as the No. 1 quarterback candidate but he did say Sullivan looked good. He was the long plan

The game is expected to be the last ever played on natural grass in the stadium. A new AstroTurf carpeting is expected to be in place by the Salukis first home game Oct. 7 against the University of Dayton.

Simp Sigma Kappa versus Chico State with an 18-hole score of 78, followed closely by another veying, Bill

Mong, who carried a 72.

Other scores consegmed by the squad on 78 were from John

Williamson, Richard Tock and

Davis Perkins, 79; Vinn Scapen and Jack

Bloom, 80; and God Young and John

Bartolino with respective marks of 81 and 83.

Make Reitz of Murray State was the meet no 1 medalist with a 74.

Results of the last competition before Monday's conference meet were best summed up by coach Lynn Holter who said, "The youngsters did a real fine job but our sensors didn't compete as well as they could, hopefully regarding, that brought our score down.

Holter will send six of his boys to the two-day MC affair starting next Monday at the Lake Country Club in Orland Park. Those slots will be determined Wednesday afternoon in an intraquad meet.

Baseballers drop 3 out of 4 games

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Southern Illinois staggered through its worst baseball weekend of the season, losing three of four, and carried home a limp shortstop afflicted with pulled hamstring muscles in his right leg.

That news "highlighted" three exceptionally frustrating days for the Salukis. On Friday and Saturday, the last two of three Midwestern Conference games at Illinois State. And Sunday, SIU entered the showdown with a 2–1 rain-shortened decision at Vanderbilt.

The Saturdays game at Illinois State lasted eight innings. SIU losing 5-4, and 12 innings, the Salukis winning 4–3. Each was scheduled for seven innings. Friday's score was 1-0 in favor of the Redbirds.

During the 1-state series, shortstop Stan Mann injured a hamstring he originally hurt last spring. "It may be worse than last time," said coach Richard "Red" Jones. "I think I'm going to treat it to plenty early."

Mann's injury culminated a weekend of injuries for the Salukis. In St. Louis, Mo. He committed three errors, upping his team-leading total to 17.

Mann will remain sidelined indefinitely, at least through this weekend's home series against Northern Illinois. On Thursday, Southern will host St. Louis University in a makeup doubleheader.

Danny Rashid still moves from third to short. Danny Thomas will move from first to third, with Jack Liggett or Rody Tackett taking his place.

Despite losing two of three at Illinois State, the Salukis remain in second place of the Midwestern Conference behind Northern Illinois. The Huskies stand 4-1 after winning a pair and dropping one against Indiana State.

The Salukis are 3-2 in league play (24-61 overall) followed by Illinois State (35-41), Indiana State (44-1) and Ball State (46-61).

In 34 innings over the weekend, Southern Illinois pitchers yielded 24 walks while striking out just 16. Scott Waltzmate lost Friday's decision, dropping to 6-3. Despite Bob Randahl's home run, Southern lost 7-1.

But it wasn't all pitching that sent the Salukis down for at least two games were committed, two of which led to both Vanderbilt runs on Sunday.

Saturday's 16–11 loss to the Commodores saw Saturday's doubleheader games and the Tennessee series when Waltzmate pitched shutout ball for eight innings before losing in the ninth.

Rick Ware and Jim Fisher pitched strong ball for six innings apiece Saturday before being replaced.

"We just didn't hit with men on base," said Southern's Jones in explaining the sudden turnaround. "We had 17 of its previous 18 before the bases were loaded.

"We out hit Vanderbilt (62) but couldn't hit with men on base," Jones said. "If we get the bases loaded, we might score one run on a sacrifice fly or an infield grounder. Something like that."

"Heck, at Vanderbilt, we hit into four double plays. At St. Louis we didn't manage to least seven men on base. Rain ended Sunday's game in Nashville after the seventh and cancelled a second game.

Southern Illinois and Vanderbilt met four times. The first game was cancelled due to a paper shortage. The second was cancelled due to a rain delay. The third game was a sweep by the Commodores. The fourth game was an 8-6 victory for SIU.

Lambert signs Joliet guard; swimmers get juco champion

Kevin Hogan, a standout guard from Joliet West High School, has signed a national letter-of-intent to attend Southern Illinois. Coach Paul Lambert made the announcement Saturday.

The 6-2 Hogan averaged 19.1 points per game his senior year at Joliet West while leading the Tigers to a 21-4 season.

A sharp ballhandler, Hogan led Joliet West in assists both his junior and senior years. "Kevin is a great team leader and tremendous feeder," coach Bill Edwards of Joliet West said.

"Hogan was selected to all-area All-All Illinois 9 Conference teams both his junior and senior years. He was named special mention All-Chicago this past winter.

"Kevin represents one of the outstanding guards in the state," said SIU's Lambert. "He combines excellent playing ability, determination and leadership."

Trackmen lose Kansas duel, 81-73

By Ken Stewart
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The track Salukis lurked in the shadow of Kansas' Jayhawks Saturday. Waiting to move out front in the waning moments the dual meet Saturday in Lawrence.

In the end, rain obscured all shadows and the Salukis were on the losing end of a 81-73 decision.

"We wanted them pretty badly," said SIU head coach Lon Hartung. "But Southern Illinois couldn't pull out the much-wanted upset.

SIU trailed Kansas Jayhawks closely most of the meet and was down by three points, 78-75, going into the final event, the mile relay. Whoever took that one took the meet.

Accompanied by wind and rain, the relay was kicked off by leadoff man Gerald Smith of SIU falling 10 yards behind Bob Borgsen, an alternate jumper on the last U.S. Olympic team.

Smith was clocked at 49.5 in his 220-yard leg before he gave the baton to Avery Lott. Avery Lott fell well behind four yards of Kansas' Mark Lutz and Crockett ended his leg with a 4:53.9.

Then came Saluki Eddie Sutton who recorded his best time ever on 220 leg with a 4:53.9.

"But a bad baton pass to Terry Erickson lost SIU valuable yardage. Erickson caught Phil Stepp in the final stretch but the Kansas man was able to hold.

Kansas winning time of 3:03.8 was a meet and school record. SIU finished in 3:09.0, a "good" performance according to Hartung.

It was one of those "barnburning" finales, as Hartung calls them. Kansas' effort to hold off the Salukis was the greatest mile relay that will be seen in the U.S.," Hartung said.

"We thought we could beat them and we were disappointed we didn't win the mile relay," he added.

The Salukis had been quite an underdog but as Hartung put it, "The kids new they were probably thinking they're going to lose."

Hartung's hopes of defeating Kansas in 1969 ended in 10 years of brightening when the Salukis scored some key turnovers in the backfield and a long jump. Phil Roberts took the triple, which tripled the Salukis and Bill Bernard unexpectedly dominated the high jump.

Southern Illinois lost some ground in the running events. Key runners such as Erickson, Dave Hill and Sutton weren't able to loosen up in the rain and it showed in their early competition.

However they came back for outstanding races later, said Hartung.

The Salukis won seven of the 10 events and one event was only double winner. The 100-yard dash in 9.3 and the 220 in 21.9 (meet record).

Although Jack St. John finished third in the 110-yard hurdles, he managed with his 9:12.0 was good enough for a school record.

The 440-yard relay team of Erickson, Sutton, Stanly Patterstone and Crockett won in 44.8. Also known as the Ove, the relay team seem to be picking up the best times in the nation this season.

The loss dropped the Southern Illinois outdoor dual meet record to 7-3-1.

Southern hits the road again this weekend for the Illinois Intercollegiates in Normal. It won the indoor track during the winter and a win Saturday will mark the first sweep of both meets in the same year by any team.
