Sheppard case being treated as a homicide

By Anita Jackson
Staff Writer

After confusion and contradiction surrounding the death of SIE C student Deborah Sheppard, police now say her death was a homicide and they have a suspect in the case.

A police news release said an investigation of Miss Sheppard’s apartment indicated that someone was present when she died and police are certain that person contributed to her death. The suspect’s identity was not disclosed.

Miss Sheppard, 23, was a senior in marketing from Olympia Fields.

Police said Miss Sheppard’s death had been treated as a homicide when it was reported, and as a result, the direction of the investigation will remain the same.

Police have been “cautious in releasing specific details of the case because of the investigatory value of such information,” the news release said.

Results of a second autopsy performed on Miss Sheppard in Chicago revealed there was a compression of the muscles in the back of her neck, indicating that someone may have strangled her. The cause of death is as yet undetermined.

Initial autopsy indicated that Miss Sheppard died of a pulmonary edema, a condition that results from the lungs possibly resulting from a seizure or drug overdose. However, police said Miss Sheppard’s medical records showed no history of behavior clues and toxicology reports showed no signs of drugs in her body.

A friend found Miss Sheppard’s nude body lying on the bed in her room, police said. She was found in a bedroom that was still operating.

The release also said that a window was removed in the bedroom where Miss Sheppard was last seen, but second story windows in a bedroom were still locked.

No wounds were found on Miss Sheppard’s body or any signs indicating she had fought with an assailant, police said. Her neatly kept apartment showed no signs of a struggle.

Britain breaks lull; Argentine targets shelled and bombed

By The Associated Press

Britain shattered a four-day military lull Sunday, bombing and shelling Argentine military targets on the Falkland Islands and strafing an Argentine fishing boat.

An Argentine helicopter engaged in ‘‘air combat’’ was shot down earlier over the South Atlantic islands. British Independent Television reported. There was no official confirmation or reports of casualties.

Argentina said its forces repelled the aerial assaults on the Falklands in the first battle action reported since Tuesday when British bombers hit airfields on the islands and an Argentine massacre wrecked the British destroyer Sheffield, stunning Britain with its first major loss since the specific battle was launched.

The British attacks followed reports that Argentina had repaired the island’s main airstrip at the capital of Stanley and its planes were defying the British blockade to resupply an estimated 9,000 Argentine troops on the Falklands.

Reports Britain is preparing for a full-scale invasion.

The British Defense Ministry announced the resumed fighting, nine hours after the British claimed British ships and helicopters attacked Stanley and nearby Darwin and

Rail project land-buying on schedule

By Bob Bondurant

Nine years after it was designated a part of the national railroad realignment program, the Carbondale Railroad Relocation Project is moving towards eliminating problems caused by the city’s heavy railroad traffic.

The U.S. 31-35 Illinois Spur overpass and a planned trailer-on-flatcar service facility are located north of the city was the third component of the project to receive construction funding in March. The property acquisition process will be completed by spring 1986.

In contrast with the city’s property acquisition for the downtown convention center and parking garage project, in which 20 lawsuits were filed to acquire the property, no legal battles have occurred because of the overpass, even though the acquisition process is almost halfway completed.

To BUILD the overpass, 20 parcels of land need to be obtained. In some cases, large sections of land are needed, while others are slivers of real estate.

Sixteen businesses will be displaced by the project, and three have already come to terms with the city — the Moose Lodge, R.B. Stephens Construction Co., and Hunter Sales Corp.

Appraisals have been completed on 12 of the other 17 parcels. Last month, Elton Gonnell, director of the city’s Railroad Relocation Unit, gave the go-ahead to appraisers to assess the other parcels.

Of the businesses displaced, some are planning to relocate in Carbondale, some may go out of business and some have problems finding locations to move to.

FOR ART HAZEL, owner of Art and Jack’s Auto Repair, “there’s no place to move a shop to.” Hazel said he may have to go out of business, at least for a while, he said he has talked with several realtors, but has found no suitable buildings in Carbondale to house a body shop.

John Krack, owner of Krack’s Auto Repair, faces a similar problem. Most of the property available for relocation is too expensive, Krack said, and “there’s nothing suitable to what I need.”

The Carbondale Moose Club’s lodge will also be forced to give way to the overpass, and lodge

Reagan challenges Soviets to join in nuclear reductions

EUREKA (AP) — President Reagan on Sunday challenged the Soviet Union to join the United States in halting the tense arms race threatening to give the world a "super weapon".

Reagan said he had proposed to the Soviet leadership that the two sides agree to a "zero option" — a start toward a more stable and less threatening world.

He proposed that as a first step, the United States and the Soviet Union reduce by one-third their stockpiles of long-range nuclear missiles and warheads.

In a commencement speech at his alma mater, Eureka College in Illinois, Reagan assured Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev that "his government and his people have nothing to fear from the United States."

He proposed that as a first step, the United States and the Soviet Union reduce by one-third their stockpiles of long-range nuclear missiles and warheads.

"I hope the commencement today will also mark the commencement of a new era — in both senses of the word — a new start toward a more peaceful, more secure world."

Israeli planes attack PLO bases

By The Associated Press

Israeli jets pounded PLO guerrilla bases along southern Lebanon's Mediterranean coast Sunday and Lebanese officials said at least 16 people were killed and 40 wounded. Palestinian guerrillas retaliated with artillery barrages on northern Israeli border towns.

In Beirut, the Palestinian Liberation Organization and Lebanon's state television said Israeli air and naval bombardment of PLO bases in southern Lebanon, said a spokesman for the government office in Sidon, 20 miles south of Beirut. A police spokesman in the Lebanese capital, also quoting hospital officials, said another six were killed and 16 wounded in air strikes on inland and coastal targets.

Associated Press reporters Edward Cheldin and Natasha Abu Asab in Sidon said PLO guerrilla strongholds were hit by Israeli naval vessels. Guerrillas retaliated by sending 12 missiles to bases of NAM-8 missiles at the craft, they reported.

A PLO statement said the raids began at 2 p.m. local time (10 a.m. CET).

Sierra Club sets up political group

ROCKFORD (AP) — Sierra Club members met over the weekend to outline strategy for a new political action committee to be known as the Sierra Club Committee for Political Education.

The aim of the new PAC is to raise money and recruit volunteers for pro-environmental candidates in the November elections, according to SCAPOE Illinois organizer Larry Johnson.

"We for so many years have stood outside the political process," said Johnson before the Rockford meeting. "For the first time we're saying, 'We're going to get right into the political fray.'"

SCCPOE Illinois will not announce its endorsements until sometime this summer, but Johnson said it would probably support candidates whom the Sierra Club's members feel have good voting records on environmental issues in the past.

Elgin police officer held in slayings

ELGIN (AP) — A 25-year-old police officer described as "average and well liked" was denied bond Sunday after he was charged with the shooting deaths of a young man and woman, officials said.

Patrolman Horace Glenn, a three-year veteran of the Chicago suburb's police force, was ordered held without bond on charges of murdering James H. Wright, 16, and Lillian Finaly, 20, said Sgt. Kenneth Anderson of the Kane County Sheriff's Department.

Anderson and other police officials declined to comment on a possible motive for the killings. On Saturday, Deputy Police Chief Warren R. Danielson said investigators had found "no connections whatsoever between the officer and the couple."

"We're pretty much in shock," said Danielson. "It's un­ believable any time something like this happens, but when you have a police officer involved it's even more unbelievable."

Sunday was ‘Reagan Day’ in Eureka

EUREKA (AP) — The day had several official titles — commencement day and Mother’s Day — but it clearly belonged to favorite son Ronald Reagan in Eureka Sunday.

The President returned to this Central Illinois community where he graduated to address the 86 graduates of the Class of 1952 and commemorate his 50th anniversary of graduation from Eureka College, where he was a big person in a small liberal arts school founded 127 years ago and in a wooded area of this community which he called home.

Reagan arrived in a helicopter, one of four that dipped down from sunny skies onto the college baseball field just east of Reagan Center, the old gymnasium named after Reagan and his brother Neil, both college alumni.

The helicopter carrying the President came from the south, dipping appropriately, if not ceremonially, across the college football field where Reagan starred as a senior.

“‘He sat on the bench mostly,’” said Linda White, a Eureka area farmer who was among a crowd of about 1,000 who mingled in 85 degree heat outside the gymnasium.

“I was in high school here when he was in college,” said White. “I remember him as a very likable fellow Everybody loved him then.”

White said he doesn’t necessarily agree with all of Reagan’s policies, but added, “I was on the county road board for five years. I wouldn’t take his (Reagan’s) job if they gave it to me.”

After Reagan was safely inside the building a cheer went up from a nearby dormitory where the 86 graduates in black robes and caps and members of the college board — including brother Neil — in maroon robe had been standing in the heat.

Jim Ulrich, a retired Eureka farmer, chatted briefly with Neil as the line of graduates and faculty passed through a large metal detector. One woman asked Neil to give his brother a bunch of flowers she had sheltered from the sun with her hand, but he declined.

“‘He and the Secretary Service wouldn’t like it,’” Ulrich said. “Reagan said Reagan’s landslide victory said something about the mixed of this country, reflected in the mood of Eureka.

“We’re common folks here, and we realize, probably better than most, that we just can’t go on this way anymore,’” Ulrich said.

The entire college is a good example of what the common people have done for themselves “without the benefit of the big government giveaway,” he added.

An example Ulrich said, is the Melnik Library, one of the newer buildings on the campus.

It was the gift of the Melnik brothers, Ulrich said. “They came here from Iowa years ago and bought the telephone company. Then they sold it to its present owner, but they gave something back to the community when they gave money for the library.”

The mood was mostly pro-Reagan. Four students from Illinois Wesleyan University in nearby Bloomington stood on a parking lot and carried neatly hand-lettered signs about the arms race.

“It’s just that we had something to say, and this is how we chose to do it,” said student Marty Johnston from Glen Ellyn.

When told that Reagan’s speech would cover a call for a reduction in nuclear weaponry, he said simply, “far out.” Then he added that he could hardly wait to read about it in the papers.

Several blocks from campus a group of young people sat under the shade of a tree on Conover Street watching the commencement on a color TV set. One of them, student Richard Polley, said the whole affair was “more exciting than the fourth of July.”

Gun-control laws will help reduce amount of crime

Jay Cook would do well to check his sources before writing calling Mike Scalleata's column on gun control. He argues that the gun-control laws of Mexico and the lack of such laws in Switzerland with the proposed laws in the United States. Milsap review was out of line; concert was excellent, enjoyable

I AM WRITING in response to the Ronnie Milsap concert review by Laurie Landgraf, entitled "America," on page 30 of the Focus.

I was definitely dissatisfied with the review. Ronnie Milsap's show was not "tacky" or "incredibly glossy"; it was excellent entertainment. According to Landgraf, the trio of female vocalists visual impact considerably outweighed their auditory contributions. Let me ask this, are background vocalists supposed to be more audible than the star performer? I do not think saying that Milsap has sharpened his skills by "years of stamping around" is a very accurate way of describing the past. After all, the man was born with terminal glaucoma. Many will agree that Milsap has accomplished a great deal in the country music industry.

Also, his keyboard skills were not "camouflaged by instrumental overkill." The only performer who was camouflaged by instrumental overkill was Leon Everett.

Landgraf reported that during Milsap's version of "America," "highlighting a huge American flag high above the center of the auditorium seemed overwhelming a bit." In my opinion, and by the sound of the applause, the crowd seemed to have appreciated it a great deal. What has happened to patriotism, anyway?

THE "BLOOMING fiames of flame and smoke" were an added item that the audience applauded. They were not "as tite as an Oliva Neutron Bomb headband." As for AM radio wearing holes in your shirts, if you were the crowd, you would be too busy doing hit songs, hide them away in the corner. Maybe the crowd did not go wild, but they did not sit still and just watch their boots and bob their "carefully-sprayed" beads of hair (whatever was meant by that statement). In fact, if I were to believe, but believe none of my friends even sprayed their hair for the concert or wore their boots. I heard screams from all over the arena and notice the crowd simultaneously. Many people purchased albums and T-shirts as souvenirs. In fact, you could look around and see a lot of people wearing Milsap T-shirts.

Landgraf made no mention of Milsap's encore, or the fact that when he came on for the encore that he was wearing a Southern Illinois T-shirt. I believe that Milsap's genuine appreciation for the fans was highlighted by this fact. It really makes me wonder if Landgraf even stayed for Milsap's entire performance, which lasted over an hour and a half.

It seemed as though Landgraf was trying to use descriptive words to impress readers. The fact is that the incorrectly described a very enjoyable evening.

Well, at least Landgraf's review was not entirely twisted. Credit was given by the statement, "When Milsap declared 'I am proud to be a country music singer'" it was obvious that Milsap's review was definitely out of line.

The title of the review should have been "Milsap Shines" — period — Angela Sierakowski, Secretary, Academic Affairs.

Activism can help stop arms race

As a member of the Coalition For Change, the Illinois Public Interest Research Group, the Coalition of Progressive Social Scientists and other activist groups, I feel it is my duty to inform your readers about the most critical issue of our day: the nuclear arms race.

Each year the superpowers add tens of thousands of atomic weapons to their already overwhelming stockpiles. This is much like the snake swallowing its tail: the United States and the Soviet Union combined can destroy the earth 27 times, with enough left over to atomize some of the minor planets. (This is the equivalent of two thousand million Hiroshima bombs.) Destruction on this scale is thinkable, yet thinkable.

My comrades in activism and I see little wisdom in the government's desire to add a few more rounds of planetary destruction to the pot. In fact, if the arms race continues much longer, neither side will survive. However, with mutual, partial disarmament, war would be a question of winnability, not survivability. Partial disarmament is a very attractive compromise, in light of the facts above, and we hope it is a solution you'll support.

Falwell fosters intolerance

INSTEAD THE FIRM implantation of monotheism in major cultures of the Western World has been the oppression of one group by another. Many groups claim possession of divine revelation from one God, and they have been many occasions for certain groups to claim that sole possession of the divine revelation. Often this claim of "right" revelation has induced its followers to persecute, both physically and psychologically, groups who are perceived as opposing this "right" revelation. Christianity has long been one of these religious groups. There are many subgroups of this practice. Further, Christians even persecute each other as each subgroup attempts to hold the correct doctrine to the exclusion of all others in addition to the Bible, the revelation to end all revelations.

In this context it is appropriate to discuss the consequences of the actions of one subgroup of so-called Christians, as well as the internal contradictions apparent in this group's words and deeds. There exists in this country a group called the Moral Majority, led by Jerry Falwell, a contemporary Tertullian — who has brought once again to the forefront the most insidious kind of monotheistic intolerance. This group seeks to use biblical revelation, sacred to many, to further its own views. The Moral Majority, like Falwell himself, is thinking with the past, back to "traditional morality" by denying the rights of countless individuals whose lifestyles or ideals conflict with those of the Moral Majority.

Falwell movement is threat

Here in the United States, we, as a people, and large adheres to the principles and stance of ideologies. We like to think of our- ourselves (rightly so) as a people on a much more compassionate manner and a manner that endeavors to help ourselves on our ability to compromise. This is misguided to say the least.

This ability to solve our greatness — that is why Falwell's beliefs on the religious movements today, in particular, is that Falwell's "Moral Majority," are a great threat to the very soul of the country. I say this because Falwell's movement attempts to force the morals and values of its supposed "majority" on all the peoples of our country. This is to be done not on any moral manner, as churches and religious sects have always done, but since the dawn of time, but in a political manner instead. They intend on doing this by causing a religious fervor throughout this "Silent or Moral Majority." This "majority" adheres to the policies that the "leaders" set out, with a fanaticism that can be enacted by very few things other than a blind faith in religion. This is clearly seen in the introduction of political in our (government) one need go no further than the work of the Great Crusades or the terrors of the Spanish Inquisition.

Thus, I must make an appeal to the Moral Majority and all other religious groups who feel no need to save any of the constraints of government. Although it is undeniable right as American citizen's to be politically active, please, do not try and impress through government regulations on the values on us who do not agree with you, for this is not a democracy.

The most oppressed peoples in the World are the minority beneath the majority. — Michael J. Bury, Senior, History.

SIU-C community needs to take part in recycling

All it took was two cardboard boxes and some helping hands and it's working. In the last two months the Commencement Department has collected 2,000 pounds of newspapers for recycling. We realize that this is just a drop in the bucket considering the waste paper circulation in our community. We also realize that our department and the other departments offering and individuals using our Pollution Control services are not the only ones that cannot collect as many newspapers as should be collected throughout our community. Newspaper recycling, we have learned, is a very little time and is most rewarding. We encourage other local businesses and individuals to begin or attempt to increase use of newspaper recycling programs.

Students, staff and faculty who frequent Communications Building are encouraged to place recycling boxes located next to the Daily Egyptian. The paper is then left at the main entrance or just inside the door of our second floor office. Better yet, Communication's new recycling box, which we deposited all our papers, is located just the building and is available for your use.

It's time to become more educated and the benefits of newspaper recycling. It's time for us to take a stand. Change Student, Senior, Speech Communication.

Brecht is again a public scapegoat

We wanted to publicly thank the City Department for producing the play "Brecht on Our Stage" in these days of cultural pragmatism, thought-provoking art works becomes more rare.

Operating from a minuscule budget, the cast performed admirably before half-full houses. Why pertinent classes and its cast performed on the stage that they must save the theatre. If there were no Theatre Department for students and faculty, the play would never have been performed when given an opportunity to explain it justifies it and says that it's necessary for a truly "true" Brechtian style of OKness.

Our theatre department's coverage of the meeting on May 3 with Shaw was terrible. It missed the whole point. What happened at that meeting was an emotional appeal of students addressing their grievances about a man in a computer science class, Chancellor Shaw.

The demonstration April 30 at the chancellor's office was just that, a demonstration. Its purpose was to make more aware, public, and student's views of certain issues to be wrong with a little spontaneity? If it is not emotationalism that will make the difference.

It is not understandable why a man of such high authority, who represents tens of thousands of students and faculty members, should speak in this style, if given an opportunity to explain it justifies it and says that it's necessary for a truly "true" Brechtian style of OKness.

Don't terminate Hans Kuss

I am writing in support of Jack Carter's letter on teacher cutbacks in which he speaks about one of these teachers, Hans Kuss.

I, too, believe Hans is a wonderful teacher and not at all a missed. Hans has a teaching style that is educational, interesting and thoroughly understandable. He gives the students the chance to do most of their work only in class, but through countless hours in the computer room in the help of his teaching and the work of the computer class, which are both on his own time.

Hans is a teacher who puts himself on the same level as the student and is a teacher that students can relate to.

During my past two years at SIU, I have never had a teacher like Hans Kuss. In my eyes, Kuss is one of the best teachers at SIU and huge University who qualify for termination before an educator like Hans Kuss.

I sincerely hope that the students through course evaluations and our administration evaluate their teachers before this is a changing from the administration to the SIU administration. '-Beameung, Junior, Accounting.

Letters - Make the poor work for their educations

I'm sick and tired of hearing people who are complaining about not getting their free ride through college. I was a 21-year-old Air Force veteran and I was able to go to school free. We were getting anything for free. The money we get as veterans was for taking risks while you were doing your time. We were still safe in your mother's arm's. The military did not pay for us.

In reality we are financing both your education and ours. We are paying so you can compete for grades and we will compete with you on the job market. As far as I'm concerned you're spending money you didn't earn. All you said was "I'm poor" and they gave it to you.

I think there should be a better system where people would be required to earn their money. So instead of getting food hand out by giving it to them.

Meanwhile, scrap the BEOG system. If you need money to help get a job like I did. You may have to go day by day. So in order to get the student status or only go to school one semester a year. If you don't improve your grade out of school, you don't have enough interest to be here in the first place. The worst that can happen if you're really interested in education is that you won't graduate with all your high school buddies. And we all know what a tragedy that can be.

Everyone should fight for his or her rights, but an education is a privilege that we have earned, not given away at the price of others — Dennis Jones, Junior, Advanced Aviation.
Performers and lean dialogue combine for effective ‘Porch’

By Laurie Landgraf
Entertainment Editor

“Bittersweet” was the word used in publicity information to describe the Victory Gardens Theater production of the drama “Porch,” which played in the Student Center Friday night.

The “bitter” in that description may have frightened off a few would-be playgoers. The weekend before finals is enough to put anybody in a blue funk without depressing plays around to further darken the mood.

It’s a relief as the play unfolds to find that it’s a warm, touching story of three people, and it’s flavored liberally with humor. Not comedy, but the stab of understanding that brings a chuckle. We witness a situation in which anyone of us might have been a participant at one time or another.

Herbert’s manipulations peak with the engineered arrival of Sam, Amy’s old sweetheart, now divorced and running a photo supply store. He makes an endearing attempt to rejuvenate the relationship. Roger Mueller portrays the small-town good guy to the hilt, complete with polyester slacks, large steel wristwatch and a nervous rat-a-tat laugh tacked onto the end of his lines.

As they try to touch, the characters merely succeed in glancing off one another, but the effort doesn’t sink into pathos. And there are no melodramatic outbursts, no shocking climaxes.

Writer Jeffrey Sweet’s dialogue is lean almost to the point of sparseness, and it often seems to issue spontaneously from the characters. It does an effective job of bringing us a well-rounded story in the tight time-span of 70 minutes.

Rainbow concert was well-balanced

By Joe Walter
Staff Writer

Rainbow, led by former Deep Purple guitarist Ritchie Blackmore, put on a show Friday night that had many ups and a few downs—but generally it was one of the better rock concerts the Arena has had this year.

Rainbow started the show with a recording of Judy Garland singing "Somewhere Over the Rainbow." As the song played, a backdrop with hypnotic eyes painted on it was unveiled. Then the band ignited the frenzy of the crowd of about 4,000 by firing up an electrified performance.

Sure enough, the audience's response said they knew they were not in Kansas anymore, as the line from "The Wizard of Oz" goes. Audience members frenziedly waved arms resembling tree branches in a hurricane.

Blackmore looked generally as if he were in the midst of melancholic lethargy, but did erupt into a few spurts of activity, like leaping in the air to land on his knees, furiously plucking his guitar. He performed very well.

The Rainbow concert did not undercover the flashing lights, and they were not overdone either. Rather, they were balanced to accent the show, not to overpower it.

Blackmore actually has the skill to play the guitar and not make the mindless noise that most rock guitarists pawn off as solos. His version of the fourth movement of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony displayed the skill of a classical guitarist.

However, Blackmore botched a riff during his lackluster rendition of the Deep Purple hit "Smoke on the Water." Old Rainbow tunes, though, like "Man on the Silver Mountain," and "Long Live Rock and Roll" were done well and fast.

Blackmore was not alone in presenting a good solo. Drummer Bobby Rondinelli performed a fine drum solo that did not become long and boring. However, keyboard player David Rosenthal's solos were a disappointment. Rosenthal pounded the keyboard with his fast and carried on in a way that came across more like a childish tantrum than serious music playing. His synthesizer playing during his tenure in the spotlight sounded like Pac-Man game.

Vocalist Joe Lynn Turner performed emotionally and sounded a lot like Foreigner's Lou Gramm. But despite all his intensity, Turner lacked the magnetism of Blackmore, who played with an air of excitement, head hung low, his dark eyes occasionally sweeping across the stage and audience.

The opening band, Charlie Midnight, also deserves mention. Arena Director Gary Drake said the band wanted to open for the concert very badly.

N. Illinois Ave. Tuck Williams, one of the owners, said that the first approach had just been done on his property.

Daily Construction will complete the site.

Other businesses which will be displaced by railroad construction are Carbondale Concrete Products, J.W. Williams and Sam Stollar Lumber Co. (distribution point), Delivery Systems, Global Auto, Raymond Stollar Lumber Co., R.B. Stephens Construction Co. and Mid-Continent Energy Systems.

THE TRAILER-On Flat-Car facility will be used by Illinois Central Gulf to load semi-trailers onto railroad cars. The old TOFC, owned by ICG, is on the site of the temporary trainway, and the U.S. 51 overpass location was selected from six possibilities, Gosnell said.

The overpass itself will be four lanes wide, with two bridges over the north and south legs of the spur's eye. A sidewalk will run along one side, and a curb, gutter, storm sewer and guard rail will be added as well as a 2,000-foot embankment. The leg of the eye will be moved north, and the overpass itself connected to the east of the present railroad which will be used as a detour during construction.

Cost estimates of the entire group of projects were escalated to $6.6 million from the $2 million estimated in 1976 for the average daily traffic on U.S. 51 continues, to increase, the railroad relocate plans felt that the overpass become necessary.

If the overpass is not built, the crossing will be a severe problem in the future, Gosnell said.

THE MOST expensive portion of the project is construction of the rail depression, now estimated to cost $5.71 million.

Until the engineering of the depression is completed, it will be hard to estimate the total cost of the project with good accuracy, Gosnell said. Before the depression can be dug, a temporary railroad must be constructed.

The federal government is supposed to pick up 96 percent of the project's costs, with the rest to be split between the city, state, University, and the ICG.

However, Carbondale has been able to compete successfully for the limited federal funds available to the project because of the cooperation between the local agencies involved with carrying out the plans, Gosnell said.

Problems that many cities are facing, and in this case being involved in a railroad washout, bickering between the railroads over which right-of-way to use, that kept the projects from advancing.

THE KEY is being able to advance one step with the funds available, and then being prepared for the next step of funding, Gosnell said. This creates a continuous flow of progress on the project, which maximizes the project's efficiency in the eyes of the federal government. Gosnell said.

"Three or four" other cities are in positions to begin work on their railroad projects if funds are made available, Gosnell said. Carbondale is in the top two, he said, in terms of preparation for the project.

The public hearing held in August 1976, no speakers opposed to the entire concept of the railroad relocation project.

THE TRACKS historically have been a source of consternation for both local residents and SILC students and forced the town to build an east-side and a west-side fire station. An average of 20 freight trains and two passenger trains use the tracks each day.

The railroad relocation unit is in place on a step of the project once it is complete. Carbondale was awarded a $5.7 million federal grant for the construction of the U.S. 51 overpass and the TOFC facility in mid-March. This exhausted the allocation of federal funds to the national program for the current fiscal year.

Future funding for the project depends on what Congress decides to do in its budget for fiscal year 1983-84, which begins Oct. 1. Gosnell said funds are needed next year for the completion of design and engineering for the rail depression, which would cost $4 million.

THE TOFC facility was scheduled to be built at the same time as the rail depression, but it was later decided that it would be more economical to build that portion of the project, and buy the land for the facility, Gosnell said. He explained that the Federal Highway Administration and IDOT must approve the building of the facility, and if they decide against it, the FHA will withdraw their portion of the federal aid from the $7.7 million award.

West German warns of Soviet influence on Third World press

By Charles Victor
Staff Writer

The Soviets are using the debate over a New International Information Order to influence Third World nations to adopt Soviet-style press policies, a West German professor visiting SIU-C said. Hans Kepplinger, a visiting scholar from the University of Mainz in West Germany, had some hard things to say about the NIO debate in a recent meeting with the Journalism School's International Communications class.

For the past ten years, UNESCO, the sponsor of the debate, has provided a platform for charges and counter-charges, proposals and counter-proposals on the NIO. Kepplinger, currently involved in media research in various countries of the world, warned of the dangers to freedom of information posed by the positions of some Third World and the Soviet bloc governments.

"The Third World feels that international flow is dominated by the big four news agencies of the world, which are not about their own countries is often reported by the Western agencies from a Western point of view. Some of these charges are legitimate and must be taken seriously," Kepplinger said. "But the Soviets are trying to use the Third World nations stringing in their own system of the press." "The Soviets believe it is possible to distinguish between right and wrong in news as in science. But the ordinary people are not able to discern the truth for themselves. Only the Communist Party is equipped to do it. So the work of the media is to support the Party," Kepplinger said.

According to Kepplinger, the Soviets still believe their press is free because for them freedom means only the freedom to do what is right. "The Soviets say," he said, "if a man wanted to jump out of a window because he thought he could fly, it would be the obligation of a person with insight to stop him. The Party is the one with insight and so has the obligation to instruct the people in the truth. The West, the other hand, believes in reporting events as they happen."

Beg your pardon

It was incorrectly reported in a story on Page 15 of Friday's Daily Egyptian that SIU-C's Law Library was the fastest-growing law library in the country in 1980 and 81. SIU-C's Law Library is the 30th fastest-growing law library in the nation.

END UP SINGING AWAY THEIR RIGHTS
when they put their press to pretend resolving solutions.

"The West has economic and military domination over the Soviet Union. So the Soviets concentrate a lot on politics. Communist countries readily offer to host conferences of the NIO debate so they can have more control. The West must wake up and take interest," Kepplinger said.

Kepplinger described the workings of the news agency in East Germany. "It is typical of other communist news agencies," he said. "There is only one agency, owned by the government. It supplies three kinds of news dispatches — one ordinary one to the newspapers, another special report on international news for the journalists, so they know a little of what is going on in the world and the last one, a top secret dispatch, for government leaders alone. The news agency doubles as an intelligence agency for the government because it is easier for journalists to obtain information." Kepplinger said.

Communists' part in opium trade told

WASHINGTON (AP) - Communists in Burma along China's border are beginning to take an active role in opium trade that supplies heroin to addicts in the United States, State Department officials say.

Processing as well as production of opium intended for the U.S. market is being taken over more and more by the Burmese Communist Party, Dominick L. DiCarlo, assistant secretary for narcotics, said in a report to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

DiCarlo estimated that the party has an armed strength of as many as 12,000 men, and can call on a militia of 30,000 to protect the large areas it controls in Burma's Shan plateau, the biggest center of opium poppy cultivation in Southeast Asia.

The Burmese Communists, after losing some financial support from China, have developed what DiCarlo described as a working relationship with Chang Chi-Fu, a local war lord who runs 15% of the multibillion-dollar opium business in the "Golden Triangle." Under that relationship, DiCarlo said, the Communists cultivate the poppy in the "Golden Triangle" - where the borders of Burma, Thailand and Laos meet - and Chang processes it into heroin or heroin base in Thailand.

But DiCarlo said the Communists recently have been moving closer to the Thai border and have begun to take more interest in the lucrative refining and marketing aspects of the business.

Dish is "ear" for PBS programs

By Greg Dresdson
Student Writer

Ever wonder if somebody was trying to contact unknown beings somewhere in the universe with that space age dish behind the Communications Building?

Actually, the parabolic dish is what enables WSIU-TV to receive Public Broadcasting System programming direct from Washington, D.C., via the new WESTAR IV communications satellite.

Although this is a little-known and much-wondered-about fact, it is an important one to the quality of the television programming WSIU-TV broadcasts.

THE PARABOLIC satellite dish, 10 meters, or 33 feet, four inches in diameter, sits on a 50-by-50-foot concrete pad.

Its function is to receive the microwave signals broadcast by PBS, which are first sent to the relay for rebroadcast at another frequency.

"The biggest cost of the project here was the size of our dish," Allan Pizzato, WSIU-TV station manager, said. But, "the larger the dish, the more signals will be picked up." Although the dish and receiving equipment cost $150,000, Pizzato said, it was "worth it.

Pizzato said a larger dish means a better quality picture.

The WSIU-TV dish, installed in 1978, is larger than the 5-meter dishes used today. The later, smaller dishes (two in the area) are "steerable" - they can be aimed at other satellites.

SIU-C WAS BILLED for $25,000 of the cost of the "earth station" - dish and receiving equipment - but paid $15,000.

The rest of the bill was funded by a grant from the Kruese Foundation.

Costs included labor, construction, the microwave dish itself and the receiving equipment necessary to convert the satellite signal down to a usable frequency so WSIU-TV could broadcast it, Pizzato said.

The output frequency of WSIU-TV is 950 megahertz, compared to 3.7 to 4.2 gigahertz - billions of frequencies per second - a microwave frequency. Because of this, a converter must be used to change the frequency from the signal that is broadcast by a satellite.

Satellite dishes are used by about 300 PBS stations across the country. The PBS satellite dish system cost $93.5 million and was completed late in 1978.

SIU-C'S SATELLITE dish was one of the first installed by PBS, and WSIU TV was the first station in Southern Illinois to receive most of its programming by satellite. Pizzato said WSIU-TV saved "a hundred percent as compared to the costs of phone line transmission," Pizzato said, when the station began receiving the PBS signal - By satellite.

About three weeks ago, WSIU-TV's video and audio quality improved along with the variety of programming because of the new satellite now being used.

The old satellite, WESTAR I, owned and operated by Western Union, was launched in the mid 1970's and has been used by all PBS TV stations including WSIU since 1978.

But the "new satellite," WESTAR IV, offers twice the number of "transponders," or channels, that WESTAR I provided, and has improved technical quality, Pizzato said.

WESTAR IV has 24 channels while WESTAR I had only 12. WSIU-TV uses four of the channels that PBS has contracted for, he said.

WESTAR IV, located 22,300 miles above Earth's equator, is in geosynchronous orbit - an orbit that appears to be fixed, but in fact the satellite is revolving with the Earth. Pizzato said that only from a satellite in geosynchronous orbit can WSIU-TV receive direct broadcasts from the PBS broadcast center in Washington, D.C. "Other than using phone lines that cost a great deal more.

"Twenty-four hours a day, any day of the week, we can always receive our programming," he said.

PHONE LINES owned and operated by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. used to cost the Corporation for Public Broadcasting "too much money," he said. "By eliminating the use of the phone lines, interference, malfunctions, and the problem of fading reception, costs was also greatly reduced.

"The advantage of satellite communications, for TV uses, is that the quality of the video and audio signals is far superior to that of phone lines," Pizzato said.

Though WSIU-TV's satellite is "steerable," the dish behind the Communications Building is stationary.

Show will present Malaysian culture

By William Jason Yung
Student Writer

The traditional dance and song of the Sabah state of Malaysia will be presented in a show at 6 p.m. Thursday in Ballroom B of the Student Center sponsored by the Sabah Student Welfare Council.

The 130-member council represents Malaysian students from Sabah, which among the 13 states in Malaysia has the largest number of students at SIU-C.

The cultural show will feature a variety of traditional dances and songs by Sabah students, according to Herman Tiongsoh, chairman of the organizing committee.

Tiongsoh, graduate student in educational leadership, said the show will include traditional dances such as "sumasau," "daling-daling," and "munganatip." Malaysian songs in the Malay and traditional Sabah language will also be presented.

The cultural show, he said, has been organized in conjunction with a Sabah festival that celebrates the padi harvesting season in May. The festival is traditionally celebrated by a tribal people called the Kadazans, who is the chief crop grown by the tribes in Sabah.

Sumasau, the traditional tribal dance of the Kadazans, will be the main event of the night, Tiongsoh said. Translated literally, Sumasau means "to dance." The problems, habits and behavior of the tribe are manifested in this dance, Tiongsoh said. Basically the dance involves tilt-toe maneuvering.

The male dancers make high-twitched screams from time to time, signals for the dancers to shift their positions, Tiongsoh said. This part of the dance indicates that the farmers shout in order to show the birds away from their padi seeds, he said. The tip-toe maneuvering of the dancers, Tiongsoh said, symbolizes the building of rooftops for temporary small huts in the padi field.

The dance traditionally is accompanied by music from groups to provide harmonious coordination among the dancers. However, these instruments are not available here, and recorded music will be used instead, Tiongsoh said.

According to Ambrose Mudi, head of the musical committee, guests will be entertained by about 10 dancers and four singers. There will also be a solo instrument performance by Mudi himself.

Mudi, a sophomore in music, said he will use what is considered one of the world's oldest musical instruments a samponon. This instrument, Mudi said, consists of eight finger-size bamboo pipes bound together by rattan strings. The instrument is played by blowing air into the mouthpiece, causing the reeds inside it to vibrate, he said.

Tiongsoh said invitations to the cultural show have been extended to Provost Albert Sumit, Chancellor Kenneth Shaw, Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, and John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs.

Sixty SIU faculty members and administrators and deans of all the colleges have been invited Tiongsoh said. In addition, senior staff of the Graduate Student Council and the International Education Office have been invited, he said.

Tiongsoh said six city officials and their spouses have been invited. They are Hans Fuch, Carbondale mayor; Carroll Fry, city manager; Archie Jones and Neil Dillard, city councilmen, and Sammy Alksman and Helen Westberg, city councilwomen.

Tiongsoh said that since WSUI-TV has to contend with regarding satellite communications is ice and snow. "When the dish begins to fill up with snow or ice, the quality of the microwave signal degrades," he said.

Pizzato said that since WSUI-TV is a perfect parabolic surface, even a small amount of snow and ice can warp it.

SMC TRACK MEET

Duncan, who said after the meet that he needed more work on his start, burst out of the blocks Saturday for an early lead and hung on to break the tape in 14.6.

Adams, a potential world class sprinter at 400-meters, "took it easy," in that event, trotting in at 47.04. The sophomore, who has unlimited potential in the 400, also anchored the winning 1,600-meter relay team in 3:11. Randy Geary, finished second and freshman Mark Hill finished third.

"It's a kind of discouraging sometimes," said Hill, who along with Franks won the state mile relay for O'Fallon Technical high school in St. Louis.

"But what can I expect right now? I mean, we've got the best quarter-milers you'll find anywhere. Hopefully, by next year, I'll be stronger and ready to go," Hill said.

Speedster Marvin Hinton put the icing on Salukin' cake in both the 100- and 200-meter dashes, chalkling up a third in the former and a second in the latter. Taylor placed fourth in the 100.

Gavin Harshbarger and Kevin Baker placed 2-3, respectively, in the triple jump, and high jumper Stephen Wray came close to clearing 7-3 in the high jump, after winning it in 7-3.

"I wasn't relaxed," said a disappointed Wray. "The first time I just didn't take my time. I exploded over the bar and it hit the top. No, I just think I was working at it too much.

Versatile Tom Ross came from behind to win the 800-meter run in 1:52.9, and the Salukins one-two punch in the 400-intermediate hurdles. Sam Nwosu and Brent Barth, placed first and second. Nwosu broke the tape in 51.5.

Mike Keane was second in the 5,000-meter run, while Bill Moran had another dual with Illinois' Pete Fitch for third place. Moran couldn't take the Illinois runner and was nipped at the tape.

The Salukins, who have won every Valley title they have competed in, will put that streak on the line Friday and Saturday when they travel to Wichita, Kan., for the conference championships.

went out in froost early. I think Pat 0'Hara and I were the first two to get there, but she never did. And after you get the end, you're just trying to try to make up 100 yards.

Debra Davis broke former Saluki Annette Frans' former 25.5 in the 260 by running 25.3 and making the preliminaries of the event. Eastern Illinois took the top three spots in the 260, with Blackman's time of 24.2 seconds

Blackman said he "changed the pattern" in the relays, and came up with two of her better times in the 1,900 and 800 relays.

Karen LaPorte, Monica Porter, Claire Czajka, and Cindy Clausen combined to take over five seconds off the school mark in the 1,900 relay, recording a 3:53.5 to take fifth. The four- some tied for first in the 800, too, with the first-time this season, bettered the Salukis' best time this year by over 12 seconds.

LaPorte led off with a 1:00.3 split, and Porter ran "her race of the year," Blackman said, recording a 1:09. Davis usually runs the anchor leg as relays, but Blackman used her in the third spot to "take some of the heat off of her." And she came through with a 54.8. Clausen, a "gusty runner who'll go after them," ran a 57.3 in the anchor leg.

"The nice thing about it is that those of three that are back next season," Blackman said. The relay will lose only LaPorte to graduation.

Clauses, a senior, still has a year of eligibility and will return, Blackman said.

The Salukins, who have won every Valley title they have competed in, will put that streak on the line Friday and Saturday when they travel to Wichita, Kan., for the conference championships.

Celtics crunch Sixers by 40

BOSTON (AP) — Reserve center Rick Robey scored 15 of his 19 points in the second quarter, when the Boston Celtics pulled away from the Philadelphia 76ers and went on to overcome a 13-8 Philadelphia victory Sunday in the opener of their Eastern Conference Association semifinal playoff series.

Game Two of the best-of-seven series between the two Eastern Conference rivals will be played Wednesday night in Boston.

Robey, another frontcourt substitute, Kevin McHale, had nine points apiece in the first seven minutes of the second period as the Celtics outscored Philadelphia 26-7 to extend a 1-0 first-quarter lead to 52-31.

Robey, whose regular-season high was 17 points, got three more baskets in the period as Boston led 62-46 at halftime.

The Celtics look to become the first team to repeat in the playoffs.

NBA champions since they did it in 1986, never trailing after a 10-1 start in the first quarter, gave them a 57-37 lead with 7:05 to go.

Boston's tight defense, which held Philadelphia to 38.8 percent shooting from the field in the first half, kept the Sixers in third quarter, ending any hope of a 76ers comeback. Larry Bird scored 11 points and Robert Parish 10, as Boston outscored Philadelphia 31-11 in the third period for a 95-56 lead.

Philadelphia hit only five of 27 shots in the third quarter.

The largest margin of the game was 31 points, 110-82, midway through the fourth quarter.

Bird and Parish led all scorers with 24 points apiece. And C. Tony cultivated 15 for Philadelphia, while Julius Erving, Maurice Cheeks and Earle Burton had nine each.

The last time the teams met in Boston, on March 29, Philadelphia won 116-98. Things were much different this time.

For a while in the frantic, underscoring fourth quarter, it looked like the 76ers would make their best effort yet to duplicate the 1983 victory in the history of their franchise, which started in 1960 when the Syracuse Nationals moved to Philadelphia.

The Sixers had last lost 139-91 to the New York Knicks Nov. 29, 1972. They also lost by 47 points to Chicago Nov. 13, 1971, and three times they lost games by 40 points.

Bird, Boston's leading scorer during the regular season, and Parish humiliated the 76ers when the game turned into a rout in the third period, blocking numerous shots and controlling the game at both ends of the floor.

About the only offensive spark the 76ers had was Erving, who scored all of his 11 points in the first half.

Sox and Cubs win; Cardinals lose

WHITE SOX

Rudy Law drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly in the 11th inning to back the night's pitching of Richard Dobson, Kevin Hickey and Salvatore Barba as the White Sox defeated the Detroit Tigers 4-3 Sunday to sweep their three-game weekend series.

Tony Bernardi singled in the White Sox's second run in the third on Steve Kemp's single just under the glove of Detroit first baseman Richie Hebner and scored on a double off the third baseman Greg Luzinski. Kemp scored on a sacrifice fly by Tom Paciorek.

The Sox went to 11-2 in the second inning, scorin 15 for Philadelphia, when Bob Horner hit an RBI single in the second inning and belted his ninth home run in the sixth to power the Atlanta Braves to a 3-4 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

CUBS

Joes Davis on the left side on 76ers the second for the 3-4 lead.

Robey walked. Larry Hendon on first the two batters and Lou Whittaker forced Hendon at second as Irie scored.

But the White Sox added a run in the ninth when Carlton Fisk was hit in the leg by a pitch from Dave Rozema, was sacrificed to the third base and Wally Morris and scored on Law's triple.

Trackmen do it again, dump archrival Illini

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

CHAMPAIGN - Illinois' men's track and field squad couldn't have done it any better than if it was decorated and presented on a silver platter.

The Big Ten team, weakened by injuries and filled with frustration, handed the Salukis a 94-51 win here at Memorial Stadium Saturday. SIU-C outdistanced Illinois for the third time this season, and second in the last two weeks.

The streaking Salukis had no trouble capturing 12 of 17 events en route to the win, marking the eighth time SIU-C has beaten Illinois in the last nine years. The Salukis lead the series 11-4.

"It was another super job," was the only comment Saluki Coach Lew Hartzog could muster after the meet.

Poor Illinois' manpower stricken and limited, the Salukis racked up points at will, competing against a skeleton lineup in almost every event. In two events, the Salukis were the only competitors.

Though Illinois didn't win an event, four SIU-C records fell, in the 10,000-meter run, 200 dash, and the 800 and 1,500 relays.

Patty Pymire-Houseworth broke the school mark in the 10,000 for the third time this season. The senior from St. Joseph ran 35.34 2/3 to take about six seconds off the mark she set at the Becky Boone Relays two weeks ago. She placed second in the event to Illinois' Chris Reid, who ran a 34.58.

"I would never have guessed that the top three would score over 100 points," said Coach Judy Auld. "But by the second day, Drake and Wichita State took over. They had so many people in the finals.

"Drake led going into the final day, she said, but Wichita State, with five of the six final singles players, came on strong to win. Bradley also came on strong, Auld added, though she feels Illinois State is a stronger team and did not play as well as it's capable of playing.

Three points were given for a victory and one point for consolation wins. Two singles players and two doubles teams were seeded and given byes in each flight. Drawings determined first-round matchups.

As expected, the first indoor courts at Bradley posed some problems for the Salukis.

"Lisa (Warren) didn't get in her first match too well," Auld said. "She was not getting ready fast enough." Warren lost her first match 6-4, 6-4 to Lori Evans of Bradley, but came back to win a consolation match 6-2, 6-0 over Pat Conover of Creighton.

Heidi Eastman finished 1-1 in flight two, beating Katie Waters of Illinois State 6-3, 6-0, before falling 2-4, 2-4 to Wichita State's Susan Dean, the eventual winner in that flight.

Aleksandra Molinari, Stacy Sherman and Maureen Harney each finished 1-1, and Amanda

Illinois State. 4-8.

The Salukis will host the Valley tournament, which begins Friday. The top two teams in each division will play in the double-elimination tourney.

The Salukis will open the tourney against the Western Division champ. Wichita State, at 11 a.m. Friday. The Salukies will face second-place Creighton at 3 p.m. at Symco Field.

The Valley champion receives an automatic bid to one of the NCAA regional tournaments.

Netters third in MVC

Wichita State and Drake overshadowed the four other Missouri Valley Conference teams at the women's MVC tennis tournament over the weekend in Peoria.

Wichita State won the tournament with 67 points, and Drake scored 57 for second place. SIU-C finished third with 36 points, while Bradley at 21, Illinois State at 14 and Creighton at 10 made up the bottom half of the field.

"We were in contention the first day," said Coach Judy Auld, "but by the second day, Drake and Wichita State took over. They had so many people in the finals.

"Drake led going into the final day, she said, but Wichita State, with five of the six final singles players, came on strong to win. Bradley also came on strong, Auld added, though she feels Illinois State is a stronger team and did not play as well as it's capable of playing.

Three points were given for a victory and one point for consolation wins. Two singles players and two doubles teams were seeded and given byes in each flight. Drawings determined first-round matchups.

As expected, the first indoor courts at Bradley posed some problems for the Salukis.

"Lisa (Warren) didn't get in her first match too well," Auld said. "She was not getting ready fast enough." Warren lost her first match 6-4, 6-4 to Lori Evans of Bradley, but came back to win a consolation match 6-2, 6-0 over Pat Conover of Creighton.

Heidi Eastman finished 1-1 in flight two, beating Katie Waters of Illinois State 6-3, 6-0, before falling 2-4, 2-4 to Wichita State's Susan Dean, the eventual winner in that flight.

Aleksandra Molinari, Stacy Sherman and Maureen Harney each finished 1-1, and Amanda

Illinois may have run away with the women's state AAIAW track title, but Saluki Coach Claudia Blackman's team finished as high as she thought it could.

"I was very pleased with our performance," Blackman said. "I don't think this team could have done any better than it did."

The Salukis scored 49 points to place fifth at the 10-team meet over the weekend at Creighton.

The Illini claimed the state crown with a whopping total of 128 points, dropping defending champ Western Illinois. The Westernwinds scored 129 points to take the runnerup position. Eastern Illinois at 114 and Illinois State at 87 rounded out the top four.

The teams that took the top spots didn't surprise Blackman, but the relative strength of those teams caught her a little off guard.

"I knew it in not knowing how strong Illinois was," the Saluki coach said. "Also, I think some of the other teams, such as Western, didn't run as well as they could have."

"The ISU coach told me she thought we couldn't score 80 points, and that that would take second place," Blackman said. "I would never have guessed that the top three would score over 100 points."
