Protestors, police clash in Madrid

MADRID (UPI) - President Reagan and Soviet leader Gorbachev will meet with the city council "towards the end of the month," at a highly classified meeting with the council Tuesday.

"We are considering the situation," said City Manager Bill Dixon. "The city has taken steps to provide better compensation for the sergeant. Beginning May 1, the city began paying the sergeant for working overtime.

Since the sergeants are considered supervisory, they were not previously eligible for overtime, but a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling on the Fair Labor Standards Act requires that cities such as Carbondale pay police sergeants and some other city supervisors overtime wages.

City agrees to fight bus service cut

By Thomas Mangan
Staff Writer

Carbondale officials don't plan to sit by while Gulf Transport Co. abandons its bus route between the city and Springfield.

The City Council agreed Monday that the city should contact the other 28 cities on the Carbondale-Springfield bus route to determine whether they are willing to fight the bus service cutoff. The council suggested that if the cities band together with Gulf to see what measures need to be taken to maintain service.

Gulf reported the Illinois Commerce Commission that its route between Carbondale and Springfield averaged a $1,500 net monthly profit, while other routes stretching from Cairo to Carbondale to East St. Louis have been losing money.

Councillman Patrick Keilty said the city should pass a resolution opposing the abandonment, meet with Gulf and discuss route changes that would increase the company's profit and as a last resort -- accept the abandonment as fact and search for another bus line that will provide linking service between Carbondale and other bus routes.

"Our best allies may be the cities along the affected route," said Councillman Keith Toshner. He suggested that the city council meet with Gulf to see what measures need to be taken to maintain service.

City Council denies request for police union

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

A request by Carbondale police sergeants to form a collective bargaining unit was denied by the City Council on Monday.

The sergeants asked the council two weeks ago to delay consideration of the matter until Monday's meeting. None of the seven sergeants involved, however, pursued the issue at the meeting.

City Manager Bill Dixon recommended that a union for the sergeants not be allowed because they are considered supervisors. Dixon said state law does not grant police sergeants the right to form a union. The council unanimously agreed with Dixon's recommendation.

Stg. Johnnie Knapp contends that the police sergeants do have the right to form a union. "The law says that they (the council) don't have to recognize us, but we do have the right to form a union," he said.

The city has taken steps to provide better compensation for the sergeant. Beginning May 1, the city began paying the sergeant for working overtime.

Since the sergeants are considered supervisory, they were not previously eligible for overtime, but a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling on the Fair Labor Standards Act requires that cities such as Carbondale pay police sergeants and some other city supervisors overtime wages.

"Our best allies may be the cities along the affected route," said Councillman Keith Toshner. He suggested that the city council meet with Gulf to see what measures need to be taken to maintain service.

Councillman John Yow said the city should request that legislators pass a resolution objecting to the abandonment and pass the resolution to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has typically overruled objections to bus route abandonment. In 90 recent cases in which a state refused to grant a bus company's abandonment request.

88 decisions were overturned by the ICC, according to a report from James McCombs, the city planning director.

Keilty said any further activity beyond what had already been recommended would be inappropriate in light of past ICC decisions. "We should pursue any avenue with Gulf," he said in the meeting.

Mayor Helen Westberg suggested that city staff contact all the cities that could be affected by the service cutoff and invite them to a possible meeting with Gulf representatives.

Chiefs justice wants panel to help reduce court cases
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren Burger urged the nation's newspaper publishers Tuesday to support a proposed super appeals panel to reduce the "avalanche" of cases before the Supreme Court. Burger called for the creation of an experimental "Interlocutary Panel" to settle disputes between the nation's lower court circuits of appeals. He said the panel, meeting twice a year for no more than two weeks, would relieve the Supreme Court of up to 40 cases — roughly one-third of the cases in which the court issues opinions.

Heart recipient's brain stops hemorrhaging
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — William Schroeder's heart has stopped hemorrhaging, according to a second test performed Tuesday on the world's longest-still-living artificial heart. Schroeder received the permanent artificial heart. The hemorrhage was detected by an X-ray scan on Monday, exactly one month after he moved from Humana Hospital Audubon to a specially equipped "half-way" house across the street. Asked if the bleeding in the brain was life-threatening, Hayle said Dr. William C. DeVries, who implanted the Jarvik-7 and is in charge of Schroeder's case, was "reserving his decision.

Democrats agree on plan to reduce spending
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two key Democrats — Sens. Lawlor Chiles, D-Fla., and Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., who had been advocating separate budgets — agreed Tuesday on a plan to hold down spending on Social Security and the Pentagon. However, the Democrats were divided in general over the politically sensitive Social Security issue and a regional spending pattern for the top Democrats who agreed on a plan predicted it would not pass.

O'Neill reaffirms position on aid to Contras
WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said Tuesday he opposes U.S. aid to the Contra rebels fighting the leftist government of Nicaragua, explained President Reagan's suggestion otherwise as "disinformation." O'Neill and House Democrats last month had accepted a request for $14 million in aid for the rebels fighting the Sandinista government. However, a visit by Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega to Moscow following the House vote prompted some members to question their vote against the aid package.

Jackson compares Nazi policies to apartheid
STRABSBOURG, FRANCE (UPI) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson compared Nazi policies to the policies of South Africa's white minority government. Jackson toured the Struthof concentration camp with a group of Socialist members of the European Parliament Tuesday.

Rival militias initiate new clashes in Beirut
BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Rival militias exchanged fire along their downtown battle lines Tuesday, just nine hours after a bloody artillery duel killed at least 28 people and forced hundreds to take shelter in basements, cinemas and underground garages. New clashes erupted in several areas along the Green Line — a string of line barricades and bombed-out buildings that divides the capital — but the fighting was mostly limited to small arms and rocket-propelled grenades.

Dotson requests new trial, passes lie detector exam
CHICAGO (UPI) — Gary Dotson, who has served six years in prison for a rape he accuses now says never occurred, expanded his avenues for seeking freedom by filing a request for a new trial Tuesday in Cook County Criminal Court. Dotson passed a lie-detector test Monday night, buttressing his claims of innocence.

Valve may have caused salmonella outbreak
CHICAGO (UPI) — A valve that violated federal rules by potentially allowing tainted raw milk to mix with raw milk is the “most likely” source of the nation’s largest outbreak of salmonella, health officials said Tuesday. Dr. Bernard Tur- nek, acting Public Health Department director, and Inspector General Jeremy Margolis said a task force investigation found the raw milk supply coming into the Jewel Cos. Inc. dairy probably carried salmonella.
Small business growth encouraged

By Jeff Curl
Staff Writer

State government officials would like to see more small businesses — and are funding programs to make that goal realistic, said a state official at a small-business conference Tuesday in the SIUC Student Center.

Norm Peterson, director of the Governor’s Commission on Science and Technology, spoke at a symposium titled “Innovation, Technology and Capital: Promoting Growth and Development.”

The symposium, sponsored by several state and private businesses, dealt with creating a climate for financing Illinois businesses.

Peterson said that since “low-tech” Illinois industries such as coal mining or farming probably won’t increase in job opportunities, it’s important for entrepreneurs to start high-tech small businesses.

Norm Peterson

such as those selling medical equipment and electronics.

High-tech communities such as California’s Silicon Valley have less unemployment and are where the future of businesses are heading.

Peterson said.

East and West Coast businesses are buying research information from universities such as Harvard and Stanford and are turning the information into cash to be added.

That’s the kind of relationship Illinois businesses should be having with the state’s universities, Peterson said.

“That’s the kind of culture we want to see create in Illinois…”

To help, the state has created a number of programs which are trying to “localize, decentralized,” cooperation between universities and people wanting to start small businesses.

One example is the Illinois Resource Network, a statewide electronic directory of faculty information accessible by those in business, government, and education.

Board will vote on five-year review

By Karen Willberger
Staff Writer

The SIU Board of Trustees will vote whether to eliminate the five-year review of the chancellor and the SIU presidents Thursday when it meets in Carbondale for the first time this semester.

The meeting is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. in Student Center Ballroom B.

The board will also honor a request from the SIU Student Coalition to Free South Africa that spokesperson Rue Lewis address the board.

Chairman Kenneth Shaw said the request was granted even though Lewis wasn’t prescheduled on the agenda because it will be the last meeting conducted when most students will be in the area.

The board’s proposal concerning the five-year reviews recommends that the extensive reviews be abandoned and that greater reliance be placed on annual evaluations of the administrative positions.

The proposal stems from a February report card from an ad hoc committee about the recent five-year review of Shaw. It concludes that the benefits of such an evaluation “do not seem to justify the effort, and the goals of the review cannot be met through annual reviews.”

Constituency leaders from Faculty Senate, Graduate Council and Graduate and Professional Student Councils, however, last month opposed the proposal, which does not include provisions for continuity or interested party involvement.

Lawrence Dennis, president of the Faculty Senate, said that the faculty should be formally involved with the one-year and five-year reviews of the chancellor and the SIU presidents.

Dennis suggested that the faculty and the board work together to develop a rating scale for the evaluations.

A Graduate Council resolution on its constituency involvement as well as more time spent by the board, namely six months in response to the constituency groups’ reports.

Glenn Stolar, president of the GPSC, suggested the board postpone its judgment of elimination of the five-year reviews until it completes the first comprehensive reviews of the presidents due for fiscal year 1986.

HE ISN'T LOOKING forward to it, but for the five Marine Corps graduates who are Catholic bishop of Des Moines, the recent political events of about a stretch in jail. He is aware that in the early church, a prison rec...of defying the Roman Empire was all but a job requirement for a bishop. Dingman knows also that the latter King's most prophetic call to conscience was his "Letter From a Bir-ningham Jail." For many, Dingman deserves to be locked up for 17 years, and after being a bishop for 17 years, he is becoming something of an unladylike terror.

About the Caesars in the Pentagon and their Central America strategies, he wrote last summer that, "We are drifting, inevitably toward war. The signs are obvious for all to see." Earlier Dingman took a conspicuous part in a protest outside a Strategic Air Command base in Nebraska. He didn't hup the fence or blow the horn. Instead he gave blessings to demonstrators who repaid the SAC enforcement from "peace is our profession" to "war is our profession." In DOZENS OF SERMONS, Dingman has spoken openly against governmental visitation of the farmbelt, cowardice among politicians and his own personal feelings about the current lack of leaders. As a citizen, he is uneasy: "I look at the United States and I become fearful." Dingman himself is seen as a leader; that's what nags at him. In a conversation the other morning in his Des Moines apartment, which is a first-floor walk-in near a poor section of the city, he spoke candidly about the role of the church. "Where do you go and how far do you get ahead of your people?" he asks. In Iowa and the other farm states, Dingman is known as a forceful opponent of the forces destroying family farms. He refers to the land ethic and quotes the teachings of Pope John XXIII and John Paul II. Then he applies the theories to the forced liquidations, bank closings, high interest rates and long prices, suicides, and despair that are the nais being hammered into the farmsteads of the Midwest.

ALONG WITH OTHER Catholic bishops who are now crafting a pastoral letter on America's flawed economic system, Dingman sees accountable-fiscal power as a major threat. "There is a grave temptation in our system of capitalism that a corporation will use the land to its advantages to gain undue profit. I'm not saying it's wrong to work for a profit, but I say it's terribly hard to control that profit motive. If they can make a dollar, they're usually going to make it. And if it destroys the land, it doesn't matter. But a farmer doesn't view land as a commodity. Farmers understand that land has a social significance. If corporations in Chicago own land in Iowa, do you think they care what happens to the land as long as they're making a profit and can tell their shareholders that they've got to keep their ends?"

Dingman, the son of a southeast Iowa farm family, and whose nephews still work the land in that area, is revered in the Midwest for his role as part patriarch and part bell-ringer. In a February gathering of thousands of farmers at Ames, Iowa, Dingman told the professors Amos and Isaiah and delivered a fiery speech worthy of his heroes.

HOUSING THE CROWD is one thing, uniting another. Dingman has been telling the farmers to get over their useless factorialism: "It is difficult for them to realize the farmers to get over their individualism and to organize themselves. Every other segment of our society organizes, and then they have cloud and can get things done. There is need for change in the church, and there is even greater need for a cooperative collective agricultural organization. It is part of the farmers themselves." By his years and his achievements he was the host for Pope John Paul II in his 1979 visit to an Iowa farm and he has earned the right to ease up. What hounds a man like Dingman is that the more he hears he is ahead of his people, the more he realizes how far he lags behind his personal goals. The public leader wars with the private ideals: "I'm struggling with when to retire," he says, "and devote myself to crucial issues full time." Perhaps he will end up in jail after all. If so, his years will be the years of reconstruction in a man's life with actions of defiance.

Reagan administration courting dictators, sabotaging Sandinistas

In recent weeks President Reagan has repeatedly condemned Nicaragua, a small, poor Central American nation wedged between Honduras and Costa Rica. The president has accused the Nicaraguan government of innumerable crimes, from gross human rights violations, repression of the church, travel restrictions and censoring the press.

In response, thousands of U.S. citizens across the nation have worked to provide accurate information about the nation and the problems that confront this volatile region.

Now, the rhetoric has been heightened by the defeat of contra funding in the House of Representatives. While criticizing the Nicaraguan government for being undemocratic, supporters of the administration have resorted to McCarthy era tactics in attacking their opposition.

As a result, the democratic processes of our own nation are threatened in much the same way as the hopes for democracy in Latin America have been threatened by Reagan's militaristic posturing.

While leaders in Washington mouth unsubstantiated accusations of Sandinista human rights violations, they ignore the more glaring and well-substantiated accusations, directed at their friends.

In the Amnesty International Report "Torture in the U.S." 15 nations in the Americas are cited for gross human rights violations. These include Argentina, Chile, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Mexico, Paraguay, Peru and Uruguay.

In El Salvador and Guatemala such repression is still an immediate reality. Thousands of innocent lives are sacrificed each year. The militaries of both nations have been implicated in the widespread use of torture, illegal detention and murder.

In Guatemala the numbers of murdered and missing are overwhelming. Conservative estimates cite 40,000 deaths—all victims of the generals who assumed power after the democratically elected government was overthrown by a CIA-sponsored coup in 1954. Less conservative estimates indicate that the murdered victims of government repression in Guatemala may have now exceeded 100,000. These numbers grow everyday.

In a recent publication for Amnesty International, the world's preeminent human rights organization, a priest expelled from Chile testified.

The government is committed to torture: it finances it, then works to cover it up. And the courts aren't acting to stop it." The priest was expelled for circulating a Christmas card that carried anti-torture message.

The Reagan administration has cuddled up to these repressive military regimes while spending millions to overthrow the Sandinistas in Nicaragua. After creating an army to attack Nicaragua from Honduras, after mining Nicaragua's major port, after pressuring international lending agencies to cut off loans to Nicaragua. The Reagan administration points with glee to the fact that the Sandinistas have been sent begging to Moscow and Eastern Europe.

In the meantime, the repression continues in Chile and Guatemala. Reports from Peru worsen daily. Civilian deaths at the hands of the Salvadoran military continue to mount, and the work of human rights organizations attempting to bring these truths to the American people becomes an ever increasing burden.

It comes as no surprise, then, to see our president honoring fascist SS troops with his visit to the cemetery at Bitburg. After all, their contemporary equivalents throughout Latin America are his best friends.

Keith Luebke, Southern Illinois Latin America Solidarity Committee.

Athletics programs offer benefits

As a few student-athletes representing Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (IAW) at SIU-C, we would like to respond to Mr. Christensen's letter in the Daily Egyptian May 2.

Mr. Christensen wrongfully condemns both athletes programs on the basis of a few people's misjudgments.

How can [athletics programs be held responsible for scandals involving a few individuals or for the destructive acts of "a small group of tailgate burns"?]

What is even more amazing is that Mr. Christensen simultaneously that athletes are to blame for the general public's apathetic regarding physical condition. Interest in athletics often enhances interest in personal health and fitness.

The most distressing of Mr. Christensen's accusations are his allegations that athletes have not interest in academic excellence and that none of the "skills" acquired from involvement in sports will benefit the student-athlete in the "real world".

In addressing the first issue, we think our dedication to our studies is exemplified by the fact that IAW boasts a gpa that is consistently higher than that of the undergraduate student body gpa at SIU-C. As a matter of gpa, four out of 10 IAW teams earned overall gpa's of 3.0 or better last fall.

Finally, contrary to Mr. Christensen's belief, many of us have acquired valuable "skills" through our participation in athletics. The physical exertion alone provides abundant benefits; research has shown that physical fitness improves on the job performance. The most important aspects are those that are not so easily measured.

Through our commitment to sports, we have matured and accepted the responsibilities of time management and discipline. We've learned how to work with and respect, as well as how to cope with, pressure. This dedication and hard work has instilled in us a deep and lasting sense of pride not only in the University but in ourselves and in our teammates. These are but a few intrinsic values of athletes.

We'd like Mr. Christensen to know how extremely fortunate we feel to have learned so much by participating in something we enjoy. — Chris Royd, Zoology, volleyball. (Note: This letter was signed by 27 others.)
Mainstreet East provides a comfortable atmosphere

By Tanya Abramoske
Student Writer

Loud, rhythmic disco music blares in through the speakers. The disc jockeys are searching through albums in a small room lit only by a red light. The dance floor is empty. But it’s still early—9 p.m.

A blond young man is sitting at the bar. Smoke from his cigarette rises in a beam of light from the ceiling. Lights from fixtures here and there beam down like lasers through the smoky air.

It’s 9:15 now. Five people sit at the bar. Groups of people are sitting at the tables in the anonymity of the darkness. The music is louder than before. People lean toward each other to be heard as they talk.

“RELAX,” says Franko Gees to Hollywood, begins to play. Soon the dance floor fills with couples moving to the music. The couples are of the same sex.

“When Mainstreet East opened, the idea was to give gay people a place where they could feel comfortable,” says Paul Amato, manager and part-time bartender at the bar. Mainstreet East opened in August of 1982. Because the bar, named The Bar, that occupied the building prior to Mainstreet East was a gay bar, it wasn’t difficult to attract the clientele.

Mark and Austin come to Mainstreet often, four or five times a week. Both are 21 and both admit that they are gay and speak freely about it, although they prefer their last names not be published.

AUSTIN AGREES that Mainstreet has a comfortable atmosphere. “I don’t feel uncomfortable at most other bars,” he says. “I used to feel bad about myself.” Mark says, “I feel much better now that I have accepted that fact that I’m gay.”

Robin bounces up to the bar and joins Mark and Austin. “Hey girls!” she says in a loud, high-pitched voice. Robin is one of the regulars at the bar, but she belongs to the 15 to 20 percent of the clientele who are heterosexual.

“I like Mainstreet East because it’s the only bar I can be whoever I am. That’s not gay, but different,” she says.

PAUL SAYS THE mix of gays and straights has been educational for everyone. “I think a lot of people are intimidated to come here at first but finally they are forced to interact and I think that’s good,” he says.

The four agree that being gay is slowly becoming more accepted. Paul is talking about how surprised he was by Carbondale. At first he was hesitant to move here from Boston to help manage the bar. He thought Midwesterners would “be a bunch of rednecks,” but he says the City Council, as well as the police have been very helpful.

Austin and Mark remember the first time they came to Mainstreet East.

“AT FIRST this place scared me because it was so new. People were openly being gay and I didn’t know how to react,” Austin says.

Mark says, “When I first realized I was gay, the thing that scared me the most was the thought that I would never fit in. I felt I was alone.” But Mark met other people who were gay and slowly learned about the gay community.

Statistics from the Gay and Lesbian People’s Union say that about 10 percent of the population is gay. So with 22,000 students at SIU-C, statistically about 2,200 are gay.

Band to lose leader, regroup in fall

By Martin Folan
Staff Writer

The dance floor was alive at Gatsby's Monday night as Dr. Bombay performed one of its last local performances for the crowd.

The seven-piece local bar band has operated in Carbondale bars for eight years playing its "wild and crazy" rhythms and blues, but after May 27 the performances will cease.

"Carlos (Penny) will be leaving, and it's kinda like his band. He has been the organizer," said guitarist Dan Schingel. "So when Carlos goes, the namesake goes with him."

The band originated in 1978 over a bottle of gin, Schingel said.

"CARLOS WAS sitting up with a bottle of Bombay gin one night, so he figured that wouldn't be his doctor," he said. The band was named shortly thereafter.

A mainstay for local musicians, anywhere from 20 to 30 musicians have played for Dr. Bombay through the years.

Six guest musicians played a few numbers with the band Monday night, Schingel said.

"It's not out of the question for other band members to play with us," he said. "Guys who were once with the band sometimes come back to play."

The crowd at Gatsby's was shaking to the band's original tunes as well as James Brown and Mighty Joe Young music.

The local band Dr. Bombay performed at Gatsby's Monday night, it was one of the final performances for the group, which has performed in Carbondale for eight years.

THE HORN section is a significant sound of a local band. Many four-piece bands don't include horns because of the added expense, but Dr. Bombay wants the novelty, Schingel said.

Plus, the horns are an added advantage because replacements can easily be found.

"Lee Rodriguez (tenor saxophone player) isn't with us tonight because he has a final tomorrow, so we have Dan Ward on the trumpet to take his place. That's kinda what we do," Penny said.

The present band has played together for a year and a half, with four of the seven band members, as students at the University.

The band will be looking for the new member, one most likely from another local band, when Penny leaves in May.

"MANY LOCAL bands are breaking up, so we'll probably pick up a local bass player," Schingel said. "And when Carlos leaves, we're going to some Chicago music, some David Bowie, some Talking Heads. We're gonna corner the market for horns."

The new band, whose name has not yet been chosen, also plans to release an extended-play record next fall.

"We want to put new songs on stage, try them out and trim them down. Then we'll see how it goes," Schingel said.

Penny, whose life is music and writing and speaking on commercials for shops on the Strip, will travel to Portland, Ore., to continue his music career.

Annual art show open to public at Stone House

The 1985 Faculty Art Show will open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at Stone House, the home of SIU-C President Albert Somit.

The annual exhibit will be the first of a planned series of art shows at Stone House, the home of SIU-C presidents since its completion in 1971. Stone House is located on Douglas Drive, south of Campus Lake.

The work of more than 20 faculty artists is represented in the show, which comprises 69 pieces in a variety of media.

Farmer tells of land value loss

WASHINGTON (UP) — Iowa farmer Farris Gray and his wife described how the value of their farm shrank by 76 percent during the farm economic crisis, and will benefit city residents too. It would stabilize farm income, assuring a steady supply of food and will give farmers the money to begin buying manufactured goods, they said.

Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, introduced Gray as "a good, solid dirt farmer" and congratulated the "gracious" operation with suggestions that credit problems in the industry were the root of the matter. Gray said the Gray farm near Le Claire, Iowa, has won conservation awards and Gray was named an Iowa master farmer in 1987.

"Can you imagine your $109,000 home here in Washington reduced to just $3,000?" Gray asked a roomful of listeners as he described how his net worth had declined 76 percent over four years.

In the past three years, 22 businesses have closed in the Le Claire area, a town of 1,600 about 30 miles southeast of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and near the Missouri-Iowa border. Gray said Agriculture Department officials in Des Moines, Iowa, told him that one-third of all farms were in financial trouble or farmers had curtailed their operations.

However, Jackson said the whole controversy could have been avoided if the USO had called her and asked for an explanation.

"I was out of town when it all started," she said. "When I got home I heard I was being sought after by the USO.

Jackson said she didn't have anything official from the University until she received a letter from an SIU-C attorney requesting verification of the phone calls.

"The whole thing was explained to the max," she said. All of the calls I made, except those to my mother, were for legitimate purposes to build student unity. I had no intention of misusing my phone privileges.

Jackson said the USO didn't have a clear phone policy while she was vice president. "Everybody made a few calls to their mother once or twice. If one person has to pay for their personal calls, all should have to pay," she said.

Although she admits her reputation has been damaged by the whole affair, Jackson said she doesn't harbor a grudge against SIU-C or the USO.

"I still love SIU," she said.

"ESTABLISHED SERVICE YOU CAN DEPEND ON"
F-Senate amendment includes formal involvement in reviews

By David Lisk
Staff Writer

Evaluations of the SIU chancellor and presidents should include formal involvement of consequences, the Faculty Senate said Tuesday.

A resolution raised by the senate in April, which said that the Faculty Senate be included in the formal one-year and five-year evaluations of both chancellor and president of SIU-C, was amended Tuesday to state that inclusion in the evaluations should be formal.

The amendment came in response to a statement from Chancellor Kenneth Shaw recommending strictly formal involvement in the evaluations. Shaw said formalization tends to “turn the evaluation into a major event — often a media event.”

Brantlev maintains that the election committee did its job exactly as it should have done.

On the other hand, Appelman said that the election committee did nothing wrong.

In response to the alleged harassment incidents, Appelman said that whether he “harassed someone” depended on the definition of “harass.”

Appelman said he was “upset” when he saw campaign literature for another candidate lying on top of a ballet box at a polling place.

“Excuse me for getting a little upset, but two of the people who disqualified me not more than 30 hours before were looking extremely favorably toward another candidate,” Appelman said.

Candidate Stuart Lowrey said he was disappointed with the election committee’s action and that he questioned its basis.

Lowrey asked how a complaint could be non-biased.

“I can’t see how the judicial board can say it made a ruling based on facts,” Lowrey said.

“It doesn’t make any sense.”

The judicial board was the target of misinformation and misuse of authority,” Lowrey said.

“I’m going to keep my keys open and be watching for the students, and I’m going to say aloud that participating in student government next year,” Independent Party candidate Dan DeFosse, who voted to become president-elect if the judicial board ruled against Appelman, said the decision did not surprise him, either.

“I’ll be an interesting year next year,” DeFosse said, adding that this has not discouraged him from remaining involved in student government and that he intends to work with Appelman next year.

The senate also elected new officers and committee heads.

The senate last week unanimously re-elected Dennis, a professor in educational leadership, as president. Donald Ugent, professor in botany, as vice president and Roger Poppen, associate professor in mathematics, as secretary.

Elaine Alden, associate professor in the School of Technical Careers, will head the Curriculum Committee, and Robert Griffin, associate professor in English, will head the Undergraduate Education Policy Committee. Gail Waters, professor in finance, will head the Budget Committee.

Donna Falvo, associate professor in the School of Medicine, will head the Governance Committee, and Robert Griffin, associate professor in English, will head the Undergraduate Education Policy Committee. Gail Waters, professor in finance, will head the Budget Committee.

ений the major goal of evaluations, he said, which is to improve performance.

Senate President Lawrence Dennis said in a statement to the Board of Trustees that the senate should be involved formally as well. Informal involvement has a number of faults in that opinions are covert, there is no accountability for expressing them, they are necessarily biased and frequently self-serving,” he said.

The senate, Graduate Council, Graduate and Professional Student Council, and Administrative and Professional Staff Council passed resolutions calling for constituency involvement in those annual evaluations.

The senate also elected new officers and committee heads. The senate last week unanimously re-elected

As for Appleman and Stone, they said they are glad it’s over.

“This has been dragged on so long. Students are tired of this. It should never have happened,” Appleman said.

“I know for a fact that each and every one of the members of our party acted fairly. We won fair and square. Everyone deserves to be commended. I should be very proud of it,” he said.

Asked what he was going to do now that he has been officially named president-elect, Appleman answered on a timely note.

“The first thing I’m going to do is go study for my finals,” he said.

UNION: Council denies request

Police Chief Edward Hogan said the amount of money that the city will have to pay in overtime to the sergeants is not yet known. The five lieutenants on the police force and the police chief will not receive overtime pay.

Another recently adopted compensation policy for the sergeants allows them to choose between receiving doubletime pay for working on a holiday or receive the regular pay rate and take a day off after the holiday.

Knap said the sergeants are “disappointed but not surprised” at the council’s decision. He said he expects the sergeants to accept the city’s compensation plans.
Defense claims woman’s death a ‘mercy killing’

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — A 75-year-old man fired two bullets from a rusty .44-caliber pistol into his wife’s head to end her “living hell of suffering,” the defense claimed Tuesday.

Roswell Gilbert is on trial for the March 4 shooting death of his terminally ill wife of 51 years who was suffering from Alzheimer’s Disease, an ailment that destroys the brain cells.

Defense lawyers believe it is the first mercy killing in the nation in which the defendant has been charged with first-degree murder. Prosecutors contend mercy killing is not a legal defense for homicide, but say they will not seek the death penalty.

Gilbert wrote a letter to his neighbors from his jail cell a few days after the shooting. The letter, in which he apologized for the killing, was read in court Tuesday by defense lawyer Joseph Varon.

“I just could not allow my lovely lady of 51 years to descend into a living hell of suffering and degradation,” Gilbert wrote.

Varon told the jury of 10 women and two men that Mrs. Gilbert, 73, suffered from Alzheimer’s Disease, which reduced her mental capacity to that of a child, and from osteoporosis, a degeneration of the spinal column that resulted in frequent fractures and excruciating pain.

The pain was so intense, he said, that on the day Emily Gilbert died she burst into a board meeting of the condominium association her husband was attending.

“Please end my suffering!” she screamed at Roswell Gilbert, Varon said. “I want to die. Kill me.”

Varon said Gilbert took his wife to the couple’s 10th floor condominium, propped her up on the couch and carried out her request, firing two bullets into her skull from a lager he had kept in the home for years.

Varon said Gilbert’s neighbors would testify that Emily Gilbert repeatedly asked them to “help her die.”

But Assistant State’s Attorney Kelly Hancock disputed the defense portrayal of Emily Gilbert’s health.

“She could walk on her own. She could eat on her own,” Hancock said. “She was not on life support, she was a functioning human being.”

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three college students are cashing in with their string of stands offering tourists a chance to get their picture taken with a life-size, cardboard photograph of President Reagan.

The company, called innovative Ideas Inc., has grown in one year to several stands in Washington and five other cities, more than 15 employees and monthly profits in six figures, the owners said.

Kevin Darcey, 23, Joe Nelson, 23, and John Lame, 22, all University of Maryland fraternity members, first offered tourists a chance to get their picture taken with 'Ronnie' last May, with a Polaroid camera and a $1,000 loan from Nelson's father.

"We have captured the spirit of Reaganomics to a tee," Lame said.

"We open a new stand every day somewhere," Darcey said. "Whether they hate him or love him, people love to get their picture taken with Reagan."

The men have learned about the business world by trial and error.

"It's almost impossible for three guys like us to do this right, but we're learning slowly," Lame said. "It already has gotten too big to handle at times.

Darcey said they are financially secure and will not have to go looking for jobs as others their age do.

"We're doing unbelievably well for our age," Lame agreed. "We live very nicely — though most of our money goes back into the company."

They share a Georgetown townhouse and work out of a downtown office, where they have a computer and a receptionist — and they may soon hire secretaries.

City hopes to woo Saturn by using superhero comic LOVES PARK (UPI) — While most cities are using slick pamphlets and stacks of data to woo General Motor's new Saturn plant, this city of 15,000 is hoping a comic book will do the trick.

The three-page book, complete with a muscle-packed superhero extolling the virtues of Loves Park, located just north of Rockford, is the creation of Dick Kulpa, a local politician and professional cartoonist.

"It's the hybridization of the editorial cartoonist and the comic book artist," said Kulpa, 32. "Besides, I always wanted to look like one of those guys."

Kulpa, who has drawn nationally syndicated cartoon strips including the now-defunct Star Trek strip, is unique among politicians because he doesn't wait for editorial cartoonists to fire salvos at him.

Kulpa has used his cartoons to serve his political purposes several times, including political campaigns, battles with agencies such as the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, to chase a police chief out of the department and to tease local police about their love for doughnuts.

Kulpa, an elected official, draws cartoons lampooning the local daily newspaper, which has no local editorial cartoonist.

Kulpa, a Milwaukee native, was a Loves Park alderman for seven years and last year the Republican Kulpa was elected to the Winnebago County Board.

His campaign literature included a pamphlet with a comic book featuring Kulpa, who drew himself as a muscle-packed superhero bursting into a county board meeting. The meeting was attended by Charlie Brown, Mickey Mouse, Goofy and characters from Sesame Street.

The literature also includes a 196 strip who shows police officers, lights and sirens blasting, racing to a doughnut shop only to be charmed to find is closed.

The police cartoon convinced Kulpa that to use his artistic talent in politics.

"I really came to appreciate the value of cartoon communication when the Loves Park Police demanded that I resign my city council seat," Kulpa said adding while the police hated his cartoons the public loved it.

"I was just amazed at the response if there would have been an election for mayor of Loves Park the next day I would have won," Kulpa said.

Loves Park Mayor Joseph Sinkiewicz falls short of saying Kulpa could ride his cartoons to the mayor's job. He does, however, agree Kulpa has a powerful weapon in his political arsenal.

Classical guitar seminar planned

A five-day summer seminar in classical guitar will be conducted at SIUC starting under the instruction of concert performer and music faculty member Joseph Buznak.

Teachers, college students and high school students are being targeted for the seminar, which will focus on classical works and cover musical periods from the Renaissance to the present.

Separate sessions are scheduled for beginning advanced guitarists. The seminar is the fourth conducted by Buznak, an internationally recognized concert virtuoso. He has performed in North and South America and the Far East.

Sessions will meet four hours daily. Registration fee is $15 for the advanced performer I level, and $8 for the beginning Performer II level. Capacity is in the advanced course and 20 at the beginning level.

Registration forms and more information are available from Marie Malnauskas, Department of Continuing Education, 536-7251.

Registration deadline is June 1.

Space allocation draws controversy

By Jim Ludeman
Staff Writer

A decision by the policy and space committee of the Student Senate has generated controversy among group leaders and has raised questions about office space in the Student Center.

Mike Zurek, chairman of the committee, said the committee recommended last Thursday that the Student Senate Project and the Student Environmental Center be removed from the first floor offices they share with the Gay and Lesbian People's Union.

The SUIU-C American Marketing Association would then move into the available offices.

Both MAPP and the SEC oppose the decision. Nathan Shepherd, MAPP's president, said both the SEC and MAPP are against the decision to the committee.

"We need our offices to facilitate our work," Shepherd said.

The committee has a list of guidelines and criteria that they are supposed to use at making these decisions, Shepherd said.

"But there's no way that they have gone by some of the guidelines and ignored others," he said.

KURT KURAS, AMA president, agreed with Shepherd, saying that the chairman of the committee made it clear at the hearings that some guidelines would outweigh others.

"I'm surprised that all the guidelines can always apply. He said he could only assume that that is what Shepherd and Kuras were talking about when they mentioned some guidelines having more weight than others.

"For instance, one of the guidelines deals with an organization's need for current office space. If they don't have office space, then that guideline doesn't apply," he said.

ZUREK said the committee makes its recommendations based on well the groups apply for office space of meet the guidelines.

"We compare the organizations to the guidelines," he said.

One of the guidelines that must be considered, according to Shepherd and Zurek, is the compatibility of interests of groups that will be sharing the office.

Zurek also said that while the committee does consider compatibility of interests, it generally tries to avoid giving office space to groups with similar interests or goals.

SHEPHERD QUESTIONED the AMA's ability to get along with the GLP, but Shepherd agrees to the office space in question.

"MAPP, SEC and the GLPU are very compatible. We all get along, and it's a good decision," said Zurek.

Zurek said that the SEC has not had enough office space anywhere else, a point that Shepherd and Kuras said is not true.

"I don't want to attack the SEC, but if they've already got office space, then they could use that," he said.

Fattori said the AMA had no real guidelines to place it with the shephed and the GLPU.

"They can get along," he said.

But Zurek pointed out that the SEC has never had a full office before.

"Now we feel like we do deserve one. I've accomplished a lot this past year. We're a complex organization, we have a full membership and seven vice presidents. If we had an office, we could get things done a lot more efficiently," he said.

Both Kuras and Fattori agreed that it was clear that they had no idea of the outcome of the application for space, which has to be done annually by those groups wanting office space.

"We had no idea we'd be ousting someone. We felt we deserved the space, we appreciated it. We didn't know that this would be the outcome," Kuras said.

Zurek explained that MAPP and the SEC would be allowed to appeal the committee's decision to the same committee.

"They'll come before us again, and each side will have 10 minutes to present their argument."

Writer faces charges of contempt of court in comedian's death

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - A free lance writer was held in contempt of court Tuesday for refusing to testify about an interview he conducted or about any story he wrote that Evelyn Smith reportedly admitted killing comedian John Belushi with a drug overdose.

Journalist Chris Van Ness was the first witness called to testify on the contempt case of Smith's preliminary hearing, which will determine if she should stand trial on one count of murder and 13 counts of administering cocaine and heroin to Belushi three years ago.

"The witness is basically held in contempt of court by the judge," said Van Ness, whose testimony began at 10:07 a.m. at the Sunset Strip hotel on the Sunset Strip in March 1987.

In the interview, Montagna said, Smith did not mention supplying heroin to John Belushi, injecting him numerous times, authorizing and accepting responsibility for his death.

When called as a witness, however, Van Ness refused to answer any questions about Smith or the taped interview.

Stalberger says women golfers have bright future

By Anita J. Stoner
Stalks Writers

Sonia Stalberger coached the SIUC women’s golf team through several up-and-downs in her first year at the helm, but she looks forward to even better results next year.

“Third place at the conference meet was disappointing, but the future is bright considering the talent we’ve got and the improvements we’ve made. The greatest improvement is by the freshmen, and that’s what’s so encouraging,” Stalberger said.

Among the freshmen making great strides, Gi Magnusson dropped her strokes averaged from 81.7 in the fall to 80.1 in the spring. Tina Kozlowski improved a stroke from 84.3 to 83.3. Myona Weller cut 3.2 to 83.8, fall to spring, while Vicki Huggerson qualified for the first time this spring.

Pat Putman, who has two years of eligibility remaining, also cut a stroke from 84.6 to 83.6.

“The significant point is that all the improved players are coming back next year.” Stalberger said.

In post-season conferences with the Salukis, Stalberger discussed each player’s season, what aspects of their games still need to improve and what they should practice over the summer.

“I’m fully assured that they will come back in the fall after a full summer of tournament golf and they’ll come back even better golfers,” Stalberger said.

Myona Weller

Stalberger said.

The Salukis will need to make up for the loss of senior Lisa Kartlehens, who captured two tournament victories in the fall season, led the Salukis with 14 rounds in the ’80s for a 79.4 strokes average and finished top 20 in six of the nine tournaments she didn’t win.

Jill Bertram, returning junior, did not cut strokes from her fall to spring average, but tied for second and eighth in two of the six spring tournaments.

Magnusson led the freshmen with four of five top 10 tournament finishes in the fall; a medalist finish in the spring, and three other top 20 spring outings. To accomplish that, she fired 10 rounds in the ’80s, including the SIUC record-breaking box under par 70 at the Saluki Invitational.

As a team, the Salukis placed higher in the fall season, with a second, third, fourth and sixth. The spring season placed the Salukis 99th, 12th, fifth, fourth and third, but Stalberger said that the best four finishes of the year were the last four.

“It’s hard to compare, because each tournament is different. I think the spring season was much more difficult, the caliber of competition was better,” Stalberger said.

Although the Salukis were defeated by the stiffer competition, Stalberger plans to make the schedule for next year include more big college tournaments with larger fields.

“I think the only way to make the program better is to play better competition,” Stalberger said.

Women's cage team ranks nationally in 3 categories

By Anita J. Stoner

The Saluki women's basketball team ranked in the top 30 in three categories of the NCAA Division I final statistics, released May 1 in NCAA news.

The Salukis finished sixth in the nation in scoring defense, allowing opponents just 58.5 points per game. An even 50 percent from the floor earned SIU-C an 11th rank in field goal percentage. SIU-C also finished 28th in rebounding margin.

Ali claims boxing has declined because blacks dominate sport

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Muhammad Ali said Tuesday that boxing's popularity has declined in the United States because the sport is dominated by blacks.

Ali, a black, said those who hold the world heavyweight title three times, said the lack of white contenders and promoters has produced disinterest in the sport among whites.

"It's missing white people," Ali said during an appearance with District of Columbia Mayor Marion Barry at the mayor's office.

"Boxing is controlled by blacks — fighters, promoters and trainers," Ali, 43, added. "It's the black man that supports it.

For a resurgence in interest in boxing to occur there must be an increase in the number of whites participating in the sport, he said. Boxing needs more "good white contenders — more Jack Dempseys."

He cited the swirl of interest in the June 11, 1980, World Boxing Council heavyweight bout pitting Larry Holmes, who is a black, against Gerry Cooney, a white contender, as evidence that white contenders attract greater interest.

Ali overlooked the fact that some of the sport's top promoters — like Bob Arum and Don Duva — are white. So are some of the top trainers, like Angelo Dundee, who handled Ali and Sugar Ray Leonard.

Ali also said he opposes several bills in Congress that would either regulate or completely ban boxing in the United States.

Separate bills from Reps. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., and Pat Williams, D-Mont., seek to reform the American boxing industry by establishing quasi-public agencies, modeled after the U.S. Olympic Committee, to oversee the sport.

Both bills require voluntary compliance with existing state athletic commissions.

Another measure, sponsored by Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, would completely ban professional boxing and would establish a federal agency to handle amateur boxing.

"They'll never ban boxing," Ali said. "It's the world's best sport."
Tony Anderson, the leading receiver for the football Salukis last season, has signed a one-year free agent contract with the Washington Redskins of the National Football League.

Anderson, a 5-foot-11, 170-pound speedster who came to SIU-C from Chicago Julian High School, set a single-season school record with seven touchdown receptions in 1984. He also led the Missouri Valley Conference in total receptions with 75.

The highlight of Anderson's season came against Eastern Illinois Oct. 11, when he caught six passes for 146 yards and two touchdowns. He had 573 yards in receiving yardage for an average of 13.5 yards per catch.

Anderson was converted from running back to wide receiver prior to his senior season. He gained 429 yards rushing as a sophomore in 1982.

Anderson will report to the Redskins' training camp on Monday. He could not be reached for comment.

Anderson becomes the second Saluki to sign an NFL free-agent contract in the last week. Derrick Taylor, a two-year starter at linebacker and SIU-C's second all-time leading receiver, signed a two-year pact with the Denver Broncos last week. Taylor and Anderson were teammates at Julian and both were recruited to SIU-C by former coach Ray Dempsey.

GIGANTS COMPLETE TWO-GAME SWEEP WITH 5-3 VICTORY OVER PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Gary Raapich led a second-inning attack with a pair of run-scoring singles and three pitchers combined on a seven-batter Tuesday to give San Francisco a 5-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Giants their first winning streak of the season.

The triumph over Pittsburgh was the Giants' third straight and marked the first time the National League West's last-place team has won more than two in a row this year.

"Now we're starting to score some runs and turning it around," said winning starter Jim Gott, 2-0, who gave up five hits and three runs before he was pulled for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. "We've had good pitching, but we weren't getting the hits.

"We're not going to stop throwing well now just because the bats are coming around. But it'll even out. I know there will be times late in the year when the arms might give out, and they'll have to carry us."

The Pirates know exactly what Gott was talking about. The main reason they also are last in the National League East is because they too have had trouble producing hits and good pitching in the same game.

"We've had games where we had good pitching and no hitting, and we've had games with a lot of hits where we didn't have the pitching," said Manager Chuck Tanner.

We've had two out of the three (from the Los Angeles) Dodgers over the weekend and I really thought we should have swept them. After the weekend, I thought, now we're on a roll. But (starter Jose) DeLeon got a little wild last night and Tunnell was a little erratic here and there today. That's okay. It can happen to anybody."

Tunnell, 0-3, gave up all five Giant runs on nine hits over the first five innings Tuesday.

The Giants took a 3-0 lead in the third. With one out, Gott singled and scored on Dan Gladden's triple. Gladden scored on Tunnell's wild pitch. Jeff Leonard walked one out later, stole second and after Chili Davis walked, Raapich singled him home.

San Francisco made it 4-0 in the fourth. Jose Uribe singled with one out, stole second and scored when third baseman Jim Morrison fielded Gladden's grounder and overthrow first base for an error.

Spend-a-buck won't pursue triple crown

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (UPI) — The owner of Kentucky Derby entrant Spend-a-Buck, said Tuesday he will forgo the Preakness Stakes and a shot at horse racing's Triple Crown for a chance at the biggest payday in racing history in the Jersey Derby.

"This was an extremely difficult decision to make, but one we're very happy with," said Dennis Diaz, owner of the bay Buckaroo I'll who won the Kentucky Derby with the third-fastest time (1:49 1/5) in the race's history.

As the winner of Garden State Park's Cherry Hill Mile and Garden State Stakes and the 1985 Travers Stakes, Spend-a-Buck could win $2.6 million by taking the Jersey Derby May 27. The race offers a $600,000 purse. Spend-a-Buck could also take home a $2.2 million bonus for winning all four races.

Diaz, 42, of Tampa, Fla., and trainer Cam Gambolati said they didn't want to push their horse by having him run in the Preakness at Pimlico just nine days before the Jersey Derby.

"This is a colt who gives you 110 percent every time he races," Diaz said. "It begins to worry us that we might be pushing him too hard."

Diaz said while the possibility of a Triple Crown could enhance the stud value of the horse, he doesn't consider his decision a risk.

"I don't think I'm taking a big chance here," he said. "We're probably going to go out at 2 1/2. Anyway, this is a game of chances and this is the best thing for us to do. We have a shot at the biggest payday in racing history. Why not take it?"

Spend a Buck won the Kentucky Derby leading wire to wire and finishing with the largest victory margin (5 1/2 lengths) in 29 years. Diaz said his horse has already proven himself with that victory.

"Our horse went into the Preakness in the other day and ate the lions and he didn't leave any sts," he said. "This horse doesn't have to prove anything to anyone."
Padres strike early, pound Cardinals 12-2

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — St. Louis pitcher Whitey Herzog was looking for the exit early once the San Diego Padres slammed the door on the Cardinals' chances.

Steve Garvey went 4-for-4 and Terry Kennedy drove in four runs Tuesday, powering San Diego to a 12-2 rout of St. Louis.

The Padres, who had 11 hits, grabbed a 5-0 lead in the first and Bob Dernier had two of the next three innings to put away the Cardinals, whose starting infielders each made an error.

"That was a beauty," Herzog said. "You can't wait for a game like that to end. I don't think I've ever been in a game where each infielder made an error. It was just one of those days."

Dave Dravecky, 1-2, went six innings and yielded four hits for the victory. Bob Fosch, 2-2, took the loss.

"The support was outstanding. "Alfredo Griffin," Herzog said, who was making his third start of the year. "The guys swung the bats real well and Tim Flannery was on."

"It was one of those games where it all came together," Herzog said.

Kevin McReynolds' bases-loaded single in the first inning gave San Diego a 2-0 advantage. With the bases full again, Carmelo Martinez doubled for two more runs and when Mark Carper's sacrifice fly made it 5-0.

"This was a real smash," Sox Digest manager Bob Williams said. "Sometimes, things go this way for you. I'm just glad it was for our side for a change."

St. Louis closed to 6-1 in the third when Willie McGee doubled and scored on Terry Pendleton's single but the Padres added a run in the third and two in the fifth. Pendleton's sacrifice fly made it 5-0.

"I'm glad we got good defense to have a chance," said Tom Neuman, who relieved Bill Campbell in the third.

Bill Campbell, who relieved Forsch in the third, gave up two runs in the fourth. Tony Gwynn, who was 0-for-2, stole second and scored on Ozzie Smith's error and moved to second on teammate Dempsey's sacrifice fly. They advanced on a fly out and scored on Kennedy's single.

The Padres made it 12-1 in the sixth on Kennedy's two-run single. Kennedy singled home two with a double off of Tom Tolman but his second sacrifice fly of the game scored McReynolds. St. Louis got a run in the seventh on Ivan DeJesus RBI single.

Lopes, Dernier pace Cubs to victory over L.A.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Davey Lopes drove in two runs with an RBI single and a sacrifice fly and Bob Dernier had two hits and scored twice Tuesday, pacing the Chicago Cubs to a 4-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Lopes, a former Dodger, drove in the Cubs' first run with his sacrifice fly to right in the fourth inning scoring the score.

He singled in an insurance run in the sixth.

Dick Ruthven, 1-1, pitched six innings to earn the victory.

Lee Smith, who fanned Al Oliver with runners on second and third and two out in the ninth, hurled two innings for his seventh save.

Los Angeles took a 2-0 lead in the second when Mike Marshall led off with a single and went to third on Terry Whitfield's one-out single. R.J. Reynolds then lifted a fly to center that Dernier caught against the wall. His throw doubled up Whitfield at first base but Marshall scored before the double play was completed.

The Cubs tied it in the third off Tom Brennan, 1-2. Dernier led off with a double over Whitfield's head in left, went to third on Sandberg's single and scored on Lopes' sacrifice fly.

In the fifth, Sandberg singled leading off and stole second. Lopes walked and Sandberg went to third on Leon Durham's fly out to right. Keith Moreland followed with a single, scoring Sandberg, and Davis followed with a single, scoring Lopes.

The Dodgers got within 3-2 in the sixth. Steve Sax led off with a double and one out later scored on Ken Landreau's double. Chicago came back with a run in its half of the inning when Dernier singled, stole second and scored on Ernie Banks' sacrifice fly.

Erasmo Ramírez, another former Dodger, pitched three scoreless innings to close out the victory.

Softball Salukis set for GCAC tournament

By Steve Merritt

The fifth-ranked Saluki softball team will begin tournament action Thursday when they take on No. 4 seed Southwest Missouri State in Des Moines, Iowa in the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference Championship.

The Bears have long been a problem for the Salukis, who have beat the Bears only once in thirteen tries. The Salukis got their first win over the Bears last year, breaking a winning streak that dated back to the initiation of the series in 1970.

Earlier in the season, the Salukis sat through a three-hour rain delay before completing seven errors on route to a 6-1 loss to the Bears.

"After the injury to (third baseman) Ken Graziano, we just fell apart," Saluki Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. "We'll be taking a full lineup at them this time and hopefully it'll be a different ballgame." The Salukis finished the season with a conference record of 8-9 and an overall record of 22-27, marking the first time the Salukis have won 20 games since 1979.

Placed in the top bracket of the double-elimination round-robin tournament, the Salukis could lose one game and still hold a chance of winning the conference title. Teams losing in the first round are dropped to the losers bracket, the winner of which plays the winner of the losers bracket.

"Everyone is guaranteed two games. Of course, if you lose them both, you go home early," Brechtelsbauer said.

"The conference is so well balanced that anyone could get on a roll and take it this weekend. And I've seen teams come from the losers bracket and take the whole thing," she said.

Other games in the Salukis' bracket include No. 8 seed and defending champion Western Illinois vs. Missouri State and Oklahoma State. The winner of this game will then take on top-seeded Illinois State, a team that the Salukis defeated two out of three times this season.

"We'll need to get good pitching performances and play good defense to have a chance of winning the tournament," Brechtelsbauer said.

Brechtelsbauer, whose team has played seven consecutive errorless games, "We'll need to get some clutch hits, too.

The pitching around the league is phenomenal this year, and pitchers are averaging scores low. The team that makes the big play and is hard pressed to come back."
