Jackson County Circuit Judge David W. Watt Jr. has ordered Camellia Foulks to her next evalu tion appointment with the Illinois Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities or face

Jackson County State's Attorney Michael Wepsiec filed a motion requesting Friday's hearing after Foulks missed her first appointment Feb. 24 with state psychologist Mike Jasmon. She also was scheduled for a March 17 appointment

"That effort proved fruitless, as the defendant failed to keep the appointment," Wepsiec wrote in the

Advisory board targets keg parties

By Aaron Butler Daily Egyptian Reporter

Keg parties, the unlicensed sale of alcohol and the many ways underage drinkers get it were discussed at the Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board Thursday, John Mills, LAB member and former city councilman, said the board wants to reduce the number of keg parties which are really unlicensed liquor establishments.

"We have people trying to sell alcohol without a license, in houses that have been renovated into bars, and that's illegal," he

Mills said the LAB does not want to stop all parties, just make sure existing laws are enforced.

"We don't want to stop anyone from having a good time, if it's legal. I know we just raised the bar-entry age, and some people might be thinking 'now they want to stop us from partying all together,' but the bottom line isn't to stop anyone from

Mark Robinson, chairman of the LAB, said keg parties sometimes result in beer being sold to underage drinkers, and the board wants to encourage responsibility by initiating some type of keg registration. "The city would like to see people sign their name when they get a keg." he said.

Salvage logging bill may affect Shawnee

By Dave Katzman Daily Egyptian Reporter

A bill currently in a congressional conference committee may affect a recent decision suspending logging activities in Shawnee National Forest.
The Gorton Salvage Rider Recession Bill would allow an unlimited amount of salvage logging in public forests. This would be done to maintain forest health.

The bill, written by Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash.,

yould suspend all judicial review on the activities Mark Donham, president of the Regional Association of Concerned Environmentalists (RACE), said the current wording of the bill raises concern..

"Until we see what comes out of conference com-mittee, it's hard to comment," he said. "A lot is going to depend on how the word 'salvage' is going to be

Becky Banker, acting public affairs officer of the Shawnee National Forest, said she does not know what would happen in the Shawnee National Forest if the bill

"No decisions have been made at this time about the role that the Shawnee National Forest would play in this," she said. "As a result, we don't know what the potential effect will be.

Donham and the U.S. Forest Service recently arrived at a compromise in a lawsuit he had filed against the government concerning two proposed timber sales at Bell Smith Springs in Pope County. Under the compro-mise, the Forest Service agreed to suspend logging until it has a chance to re-evaluate the proposed sales and conduct an environmental assessment of the area.

As a result of the compromise, Donham dropped his Donham said that under the Administration Procedures Act a citizen can challenge government actions in court.

"If a citizen is grieved by an agency's actions, he or she has a right to take the agency to court," he said.

Donham said he is concerned with what the Gorton bill would do to the ability of citizens to challenge the actions of government agencies.

"If a citizen has the right to challenge these decisions, it's a lot easier to accept compromises when you've had a chance to make your arguments," he said. "If you a chance to make your arguments," he said. "It you don't have the opportunity to go to a third party, then you've got nothing. You just have to accept what the government comes up with."

Donham said Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Marion, and Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, both voted yes on the preliminary version of the bill. Neither congressman was available for comment.

Maintenance policy wastes time, effort

PICTURE THIS SCENARIO. IT'S 4 P.M. - NOT yet time for the custodial crew to come in - and the leftover chicken fried rice someone deposited in the wastebasket at noon is really ranking the place up. Some enterprising soul decides to take out the trash so the office staff can breathe again, when ninja warriors from the SIU administration burst through the door in full combat gear, red tape and memos a-flutter, to stop this outrageous and unlawful conduct, since waste removal by anyone other than a licensed sanitation worker is a violation of University policy.

Spare us all.

BECAUSE OF UNIVERSITY LABOR AGREEMENTS and state law, it is illegal for an individual employed by the University to perform tasks outside his or her specific job description. Bill Capie, associate vice president of administration, says department leaders often do not call University electricians, painters, laborers and other maintenance employees to perform simple tasks because they do not wish to stretch their departments' budgets to cover labor costs.

At a University that often seems to use budgetary problems as an excuse to raise tuition, increase student fees and cut programs, one might expect administrators to encourage efforts to reduce unnecessary spending. Calling maintenance for such trivial matters such as moving furniture or setting clocks is a waste of time, money and effort when someone on the premises is perfectly capable of handling the problem.

A UNIVERSITY IS SUPPOSED TO PREPARE ITS students for real life. In the real world, we do not call the doctor every time we chip a nail. When we have a problem that we can correct ourselves, we correct it and go on with life. Under state law, however, University employees are sometimes required to be as helpless as possible.

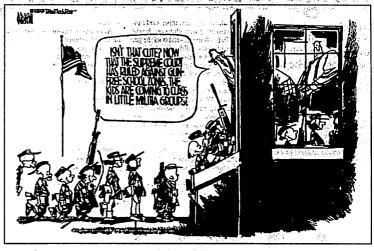

Obviously there are some situations in which "do-ityourself" efforts are inappropriate. An English professor should not attempt to rewire Faner Hall if the lights go out in his office. A transit driver should not attempt to overhaul the engine in the Women's Safety Van if the vehicle breaks down. President Guyon should not shampoo the carpet in Anthony Hall if he spills coffee in his office.

However, it should not be necessary to fill out mountains of paperwork for the privilege of waiting (in the dark, by the side of the road or with coffee staining important documents) for maintenance to change a light bulb, check the oil or use a paper towel to blot up a spill.

SINCE MOST OF US WERE TAUGHT FROM childhood to clean up our own messes and take care of our own problems as much as possible, it is ludicrous to think that violations of this law can be tracked down and enforced. Capie said he receives about 30 violation complaints a month, and these are just the incidents that are reported. How many more infractions go unmentioned?

To enforce the policy effectively would require a special anti-do-it-yourself police force with enough guards to staff every room on campus, 24 hours a day, monitoring students and faculty to make sure no one exercises too much selfsufficiency.

WHILE SIUC MUST OBEY EXISTING POLICIES as much as possible, state and University-mandated helplessness and inefficiency seem laughable at best. If SIUC is to provide a decent education for its students at a reasonable price, it is time to lobby the "powers that be" to modify or eliminate illogical policies that waste precious resources.

Parking fee increase unjustified

this is comedy. I have sighed at some of the executive decisions that have been made here at Southern Illinois, but never have I laughed out loud like I did at this latest scandal.

OK ... we need more money. The natural way to remedy this com-mon problem is to tax the public. Fine. Do it. Yippy!

So as a student, I suppose we should expect to see incremental parking sticker increases the next few years, right? That's how they are implementing tuition and athletic-fee increases. Wouldn't it be fair to assume that sticker fees will increase in the same way? Wrong!

Parking stickers currently cost $10 per year. Next year, let's charge ... $30. Hello! What happens in one year that requires raising the sticker fee 200 percent? All for incremental

Mr. Adam Kantrovich is on the traffic and parking committee. He says that the students don't mind the increase. What students did this gu talk to?

Whoever they were must have been representing the 90 percent of the SIU students that take five and six years to graduate. Those are the ones who will see the money at work. Speaking of — is anybody else embarrassed of going to a University that graduates one out of ten

Iranian trade embargo plan poor; citizens will suffer high gas prices

Clinton is going to bar trade with Iran because he says they are terrorists. He did not back up this terrorism charge with any facts; it is only an accusation. His act will have the effect of reducing the oil supply and so increasing our gas prices. The Gulf War also had the effect of reducing the oil supply and increasing oil prices.

I submit that if one does not prove charges but takes action to increase gas prices, then they cannot prove the charges. It is likely that the only purpose was to increase gas prices. Everyone knows our politicians take bribes and payoffs from oil producers. Our politicians are greed goblins who show themselves to have all the morals of cannibals. They horribly murdered Iraqi civilians (including children) and devastated the entire nation of Iraq just to remove it from oil produc-tion and so create the shortage that would increase gas prices. Now they are doing a similar thing in Iran. First we age removing them as a U.S. supplier of oil to raise the gas prices.

But since they will still be oil producers on the world scale, this will not be a permanent reduction of the oil supply. Therefore it is likely that we will try to remove their oil production in the future by doing the same horrible murder and devastation to them that we did to Iraq. In Iraq we did not even kill one individual who was responsible for the Kuwait invasion, but we killed hundreds of thousands of innocent civilians and their chil-

We stopped short of killing Saddam personally because our goal of reducing the oil supply and increasing gas prices was met. It was a horrible crime against mankind, but the greed-goblin politi-cians and oilmen didn't care they had their pound of flesh. Now we are preparing to do the same thing to Iran, again in the name of greed. And again millions of civilians will suffer. Ain't capitalism grand. Fill 'er up.

DE correct in running pro-life ad

Personally, I saw nothing wrong with the Daily Egyptian having the pro-life material as part of the newspaper on April 26. As far as having it a campus newspaper, a college campus is one of the best places for this type of material to be circulated. The material was totally appropriate, and to call it garbage is sad. Sometimes clear thinking is extremely difficult, and any and all advice and all options need to be known

Young, and sometimes not so young, people need guidance. To make a mistake that can never be changed but has to be lived with for the rest of your life is serious. I understand the material that was in the Egyptian was pointing out one side, but in my opinion, it was the best side. If it helped one person, it succeeded.

GOP 'Contract with America' drawing important publicity for party's emblem

Since the presentation of the Republican "Contract with America" on the political marketplace of ideas, the ele, hant, symbol of GOP, has noticeally been very prominent in the proceedings. Real-life elephants now pop up

Real-life elephants now pop up even in the most unusual places — Capitol Hill, for instance.

The triumphal procession by the circus elephants in the hallowed precincts of the Capitol Building after passage by the House of Representatives of the "contract" was the culmination of America's rediscovery of the elephant.

This "guest" appearance of the elephants underscored the fact that the fleshy jumbos have taken center stage in Washington.

Just as Hannibal of ancient Carthage set out to conquer Rome on elephant back, Professor Newt Gingrich stormed Washington on the back of the Republican elephant.

Thanks to international satellite broadcasters, the elephant owners, trainers, worshippers and even poachers of the world were able to see the Republican elephant show in Washington.

It seems to me that elephants are now almost as important in Washington as they have been in many Third World countries from time immemorial.

Some people in Asia - where elephants are both deity and beasts of burden - must have had mixed feelings about the sudden high profile the elephant has acquired in the American media.

As the main battlefield of the debate over the "contract," the press has latched on to the elephant meta-phor and is having a field day with elephant is certainly the animal of the hour in the United States, the "in" thing among the politically enlightened.

If this preoccupation with the ele-phant has a deja vu look to it, it is probably because in the last several years, the world has focused its attention on saving the elephant from being extinct in the wild. Wildlife experts have told us time without number that the jumbos are on the verge of going the way of the dinosaur and the dodo.

As a native of Africa where whole villages, cities and even countries swear by the elephant, I m tickled by all the attention lav ished on this gigantic symbol of strength and invincibility. During her just-completed tour of South Africa, Zulu admirers of Queen Elizabeth II called her the "Great She-Elephant." Are we seeing the beginning of a "global elephant village?"

This seems to be the year of the elephant, and it all boils down to a elephant, and it all boils down to a golden opportunity for the Republicans. It seems to me that as they anticipate the next 100 days of their political program, their asso-ciation with the elephant is a godsend, a chance to score points with their political opponents and make an impression on the rest of the world.

If I were in Professor Gingrich's shoes, I would strive to dispel the notion that Republicans are heartless, environmentally insensitive rich men and women.

Here's my suggestion on how to accomplish this feat: The Republiaccompass in real, the republi-cans need to slip in a phrase or two in the fine print of the "contract" to the effect that they will help rescue their party mascot, the elephant, from extinction in the wilds of Africa and Asia.

I am sure such a statement will do wonders for the image of the Republican party.

Unfortunately, this strategy can be foiled by one small group —

The party must strenuously resist the pressure of its own numbercrunchers who will argue that it would be politically unwise to give block or any other grants to foreign governments for the upkeep of "foreign elephants

The Republicans must not let them have their way at a time when world attention is focused on the ant and its plight.

If the current elephant fever is anything to go by, the world is in for a lot more elephant business in the days ahead.

Suspected conspirators should be turned in to combat terrorism; all must do part

In the aftermath of the Oklahoma bombing tragedy, it has been alleged that certain suspects may have been former members of the Republican party or could have attended a conservative meeting. It is time to put a stop to these groups which obviously breed terrorism.

Every true American must do his or her part to combat these people. If you know of any person who is a member of the Republican party it is your duty, as a true American, to turn that person in to the proper government officials. These people may be neighbors, friends or even family members and you may feel uncomfortable reporting them to the authorities. However, Republicans pose a clear and present danger to our Great Society, seeking to overthrow the government of the United States through legitimate means. Here are some other menacing characteristics to look for

■ Angry white males (These people are often white, male and on occasion, angry.)

Gim owners (These people obviously lack faith in their government's ability to protect them at all times and in all places.)

■ Farmers (These people possess large amounts of fertilizer which they purportedly use for "nourishing crops.")

Those who have spoken out against the government (These people breed discontent. They may be heard espousing radical anti-government notions about "cutting federal spen-ding" or promulgating divisive thetoric about the need for "welfare reform." They may be Republicans, or know someone who is.

■ Those who listen to conservative talk radio (The hatred on our airwaves is instrumental to causing what happened in Oklahoma

Reading financial news, one could conclude United States on losing end of World War II

By Michael Dobbs The Washington Post

Reading the financial pages of American newspapers, you could be forgiven for concluding that World War II was lost by the United States, Britain and Russia and won by Germany and Japan. Fifty years after V-E Day, the yen and the deutsche mark reign supreme.

. Today's headlines about the turn-Joing dollar bring to mind the plot of a popular '50s movic called 'The Mouse that Roared.'' The film tells the story of the Duchy of Grand Fenwick. In order to stave off regional bankpurger, this observer. Mous national bankruptcy, this obscure country declares war on the United States. The plan is simple: to lose the war as rapidly as possible, which will make the hithertounknown country eligible for huge amounts of financial assistance from a guilt-stricken Uncle Sam. nately, the plan goes awry, and the duchy wins the war by mistake. Victory proves to be a complete disaster

Needless to say, "The Mouse that Roared" is a caricuture of what hap-pened after World War II, but it contains a grain of truth.

In the immediate aftermath of the war, hyperinflation wiped out the value of the German and Japanese

The financial situation in both countries stabilized around 1949, thanks in large measure to rigorous economic shock therapy treatment applied by the occupying powers.

Since then, the yen and the deutsche mark have appreciated steadily against the dollar. One dol-quarter the number of yen, and roughly one-third the number of s, as in 1949. The depreciation of the British pound has been even more marked. The old Soviet ruble is about as valuable as wallpaper.

Defeat may have been a blessing in disguise for Germany and Japan, because it enabled them to concentrate their national energies on eco-nomic recovery, rather than military

The Marshall plan laid the groundwork for Germany's postvar economic miracle, just as the Dodge plan helped Japan struggle back to its feet

Barred from deploying forces abroad, Japan and Germany devot-ed a much-smaller proportion of their economic resources to defense than the victor nations.

Both countries have benefited greatly from the Pax Americana, paid for with so much U.S. blood and treasure over the past five

Both Russia and Great Britain were economically drained by the enormous sacrifices they made in World War II. Britain bore the brunt of fighting alone against Hitler for more than a year, at a time when the rest of Western Europe was under Nazi occupation. Soviet losses were even more staggering.

Unlike Japan and Germany, America's allies did not have the luxury of starting from scratch after the war. Both had huge empires to support and Big Power obligations to fulfill. Britain finally laid down its imperial burden after the disastrous Suez adventure of 1956. The Kremlin had bigger ambitions, and ter resources. Thanks to its far-greater resources. Thanks to us oil wealth, the Soviet Union was able to maintain a global presence from Cuba to Vietnam until 1991, when it finally collapsed from a combination of economic exhaustion and ideological fatigue.

The United States is now in the unenviable position of having won, not just one major war in the last half-century, but two: the Second World War and the Cold War. It is the only power that can project its

nal attempts new life in 'Kiss of Deat

By Benjamin Golshahr Daily Egyptian Reporter

"Kiss of Death" generally deliv-ers the action and drama one would expect with actors like David Caruso, Nicolas Cage and Samuel Jackson

Its plot follows some of the conventions established in the film noir tradition with a dark plot and an innocent man who tries to redeem himself from his criminal past.

The movie is loosely based on the 1947 version of "Kiss of Death."

This film keeps the older theme fresh by providing a detailed characterization of the protagonist as a flesh and blood man.

Caruso's character, Jimmy Kilmartin, is a family man who has matured beyond the criminal life he once knew. He wants to leave his ast behind him and live a normal life with his wife and their baby daughter but his past will not let him go easily.

Family honor to his blood-cousin Ronnie, a younger man seriously lacking morals, played well by

Rapaport, draws him back into his old occupation of stealing cars, chopping them up and re-selling

r he is apprehended, he finds himself in a battle of mighty oppo-sites, the mob underworld and the York Police Departs both of them corrupt to a degree.

Caruso brings color to his charac-ter. He has proven himself a deft actor in past films ("Mad Dog and Glory," "An! Officer and a Gentleman") and the hit TV series NYPD Blue. In "Kiss of Death," he allows the audience to believe in the character's trials and tribulations

The chief bad guy, Little Junior, is a less believable character played as well as the script allows by Nicolas Cage. Little Junior is a physically threatening crime lord who cannot serio-comic and romantic roles ("Raising Arizona,", "It Could Happen to You"), but in this film his character simply lacks the depth eems to need to make real. The blame for this shouldy character may lie with the script writer, Richard Prize ("Color of Money").

Samuel Jackson plays Calvin, a police, officer, who, believes Kilmartin shot him; though in reality Kilmartin tried to stop the bullet,

His character is also a "good an" who is trying to believe that there is justice in the world even though everything around him points to the contrary.

Other characters include Kilmartin's wife, played by Helen Hunt ("Mad About You"), and Omar, a mysterious underworld character in league with Little Jimmy, played by Ving Rhames ("Pulp Fiction")

Director Barbet Schroeder

Nicolas Cage, Pavid Caruso, Samual Jackson star in drama

ese his dying father. ("Single White Female," "Barfly.")

at the past, Cage has played good to tries to bring some of the realism

He succeeds in places, like the brilliantly done fight scene at the end, but misses in others, such as the D.A.'s interrogation of Kilmartin.

pretty well. Schroeder, with the help of a professional cast of actors, m to make "Kiss of Death" a fairly interesting film in terms of aracter study and plot structure.

Disagreement in a free society is one of America's great strengths."

Mark Robinson Liquor Advisory Board Chairman

Robinson protested in January against Mills' proposal to disband the LAB, but said that will not get in the way of working with Mills now that Mills sits on the board.

"I will work with anybody," Robinson said. "I really don't know why he's on the board, but he's Robinson said there will probably be disagreement among the members, but the disagreement would strengthen the board.

"Disagreement in a free society is one of America's great strengths," he said.

Mike Nolan, the former student LAB member who also protested Mills' proposal, said Mills will most likely work very hard for the board because he worked so hard as a councilman

Nolan said the board is important to the city because it is one of the only ways the city can get input from the community about liquor

"I was getting my input and opinions from 20,000 people — the students," Nolan said.

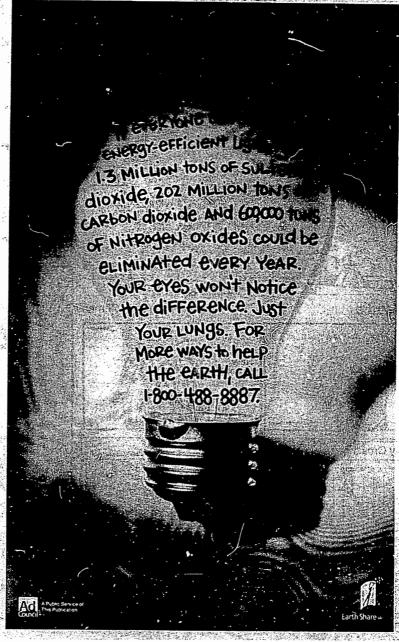

That is the purpose of LAB and it is not useless one, Nolan said.

Mills said the board needs to know how the city's liquor com-mission does its job and he is the person to show them.

"I thought the board had become stale — doing just renewals (of liquor licenses)," Mills said. "The council was doing the same thing. It was redundant.

Mills also said the board had become a political sounding board for certain individuals, but would not claborate on the identity of those individuals.

They'd stand in unison, 14,890 of them, and begin to clap, stomp, scream. When the timeout ended, you absolutely couldn't hear. Human noise. Boston Garden might have been the last building in the universe where a simple chorus of "Boooooo!" could scare the beck out of a grown man

But the last remnants of basketball purity have been put to rest now, replaced by scream-ing-maniac P.A. announcers and people leisurely eating pasta in the second balcony. And the definition of playoff basketball is the series Madison Avenue held its breath for:

Hopefully, the quality of play will justify the jersey and sneaker sales, because what we had at the outset of the Magic-Bulls series was more u tainty than anyone would have thought possible.

But the Bulls have some strange things going on, too.
And unfortunately for them, the strangeness involves Jordan.

In expressing such distaste for United Center as opposed to Chicago Stadium, Jordan seems to have psyched himself out completely. He's shooting about 2 percent at the west end of the new place and can't seem to get over the fact that the beloved Stadium is coming down in a heap across the

If that's not enough, Jordan said after a shaky Game 4 victory over Charlotte that for the first time in his career he's become uncomfortable with his teammates' looking to him to take all the shots. What?

That sounds like Scottie Pippen, not Michael Jordan. Maybe he was just tired, maybe it was the frustration of not shooting well at United Center.

Dawgs drop four to Wichita State

Four-game sweep by Shockers eliminates SIUC from post-season

By Doug Durso Daily Egyptian Reporter

The SIUC baseball team's chances of making the Missouri Valley Conference Tournament were hammered as the Wichita St. Shockers swept the four-game series over the weekend.

To have a realistic shot at getting into the tournament, the Salukis had to win five of their last eight games. but the Dawgs could not come through against the seventh-rated team in the country.

On Sunday, the Shockers jumped out to a 4-0 lead, watched as SIUC closed the gap top 4-3 an then exploded for eight runs in the seventh inning to win 16-3.

Trailing 4-0 in the second, the Salukis strung five hits together, with a double by Pete Schlosser, an RBI single by Brad Cosgrove, followed by a single by Jay Mansavage.

After an infield single by Bill True. Braden Gibbs singled home Cosgrove, and Mansavage scored on a throwing error by Shocker third baseman Casey Blake.

Wichita State scored two runs in the sixth and lit up SIUC pitchers Jason Kline and Chris Schullian in the seventh inning.

The big blow in the eight-run inning was right fielder Jerry Stine's grand slam.

Kline started the game and pitched six innings giving up six runs on 14 hits. His record fell to 3-

Salukis Pete Schlosser, who had three hits, and shortstop Braden Gibbs, who reached base four times led SIUC offensively.

The Salukis drop to 19-28 on the year and 6-19 in the MVC. The Shockers improve to 45-12 and stay in a virtual tie with Creighton in the league at 20-8.

Game three - Wichita St.-7,

The Salukis had a chance to take the second game of Saturday's doubleheader, after Tim Kratochvil's home run put the Dawg's up 2-1 in the third inning.

Brad Cosgrove's bid for two more runs was snagged as Wichita St.'s left fielder leapt above the wall to catch Cosgrove's would-be

After a Shocker home run put Wichita St. up 3-2, Saluki starting hurler Dan Davis and reliever David Piazza, walked four straight batters and gave up a hit for four Dan Davis, who pitched a two hit shutout earlier in the week, took the loss dropping his record to 3-6.

Game Two — Wichita St.-6,

SIUC saw a 5-2 lead slip through it's fingers and continued to fall rey to the Shockers.

In the third inning, the Salukis jumped out to 3-2 lead on Tim Kratochvil's home run in the fourth inning and continued to hit Wichita St. pitching in the fifth, putting two e runs on the board.

Wichita St. got one run back in the sixth and tied the ball game in seventh on a home run by catcher Adam McCollough and a single by

The contest stayed tied at five until the ninth inning when Jason Ficken's RBI double scored Travis Wyckoff and gave the Shockers the victory.

Home runs and excellent pitching showed the Salukis why Wichita St. is a nationally-ranked team.

Jason Adams, Jerry Stine, and Casey Blake (2) all went deep as the 'Valley's" most dominate starter Mike Drumright kept the Salukis off-guard giving up only two runs on three hits and striking out five.

Dave Farrow went seven and a third innings giving up six runs on seven hits dropping to 3-3 on the

SIUC softball squads' playoff dreams dashed

By David Vingren
Daily Egyptian Reporter

In the first inning of game one, Saluki softball ace pitcher Jamie Schuttek mowed down Northern lowa 1-2-3. In bottom of the seventh of game two, Kim Holder picked up the final out that sent the Salukis home hoping to pack its bags for the eight-team Missouri Valley Conference Championship Tournament.

In between, the Panthers never

As SIUC strolled to 7-0 and 6-1 wins on Friday at IAW Fields, one could not help but wonder how the Salukis could be anywhere near the feeble-looking Panthers in the MVC standings.

But, even with such convincing wins, the Salukis (8-12 in MVC) are headed down the same road as Northern Iowa (5-15) as Southwest Missouri may have pulled off the unexpected — a weekend sweep of Creighton and a win over Wichita State with the other game rained

The Bears, a 4-10 team, swept three games against teams that were a combined 23-11 and may sneak off with the final playoff spot the Salukis were battling for.

It is the Salukis 8-12 record and .400 winning percentage versus SMSU's 7-10 record and .412 victory percentage. SIUC's only hope was that the MVC committee that had the final say on the playoff seedings would have held the Bear's seven non-played conference games against them and let the Salukis in.

But, the Salukis are one of three

Terre Haute, Ind. for the first round of the post season on Thursday. The official tournament match-ups released by the MVC office last night did not have the Salukis' name Saluki head softball coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said despite the MVC committee basing its decision on winning percentage, it was her squad that determined its fate.

"We had 20 (conference) chances, but we only won eight of them," she said. 'This (being out of the playoffs) might make us a stronger team next year."

But, how did it even come down to this for the Salukis (24-24 overall), who seemed to accomplish so much this season? Simply look at Friday's games

. The Salukis tied the school record for most hits in a season when they picked up their 21st on the day to total 405 for the season.

· Schuttek's 14th win of the season in the first game tied her for fifth-best in school history.

· Mandy Miller tied the school record for drawing the most walks in a season when she drew her 32nd base-on-balls in the third inning of the second game.

. Dawn Daenzer went 8-for-9 on the day and all of a sudden placed herself into the MVC batting title Game one: Schuttek tossed a complete game shut-out to extend her record to 14-6. The sophomore

The Salukis men's track team posted five first-place finishes against Purdue, but they were not enough to overcome the Boilermaker's attack.

"We had to many holes to fill, as Purdue is a good dual meet team," SIUC head coach Bill Cornell said.

"But I am pleased with some of our individual performances, as it appears some of the athletes are arting to save their best for the conference championships."

Junior Neil Emberton raced to a 1:50.53 in the 800-meters, finishing at the top of the pack for the Dawgs, while track teammate Jubal Alvis completed the 400meter dash with a personal best time of 48.98, good for third in the Field athletes Ken Norkus and Allen Bradd also grabbed person-al bests, as a 161-3 distance in the discus and 55-3 1/2 shot put throw, respectively; were both enough to earn victories for SIUC.

More first place finishes were garnered by Garth Akal in the steeplechase, posting a season's best time of 9:02.37.

High jumper Cameron Wright leapt to a 7-1 1/2 height, while

NBA: Profits, not purity, drive game

By Michael Wilbon Washington Post

BOSTON-The line of the week comes from Shaquille O'Neal, who, when asked Friday night how he'll like sharing a playoff stage with Michael Jordan, said, "I'll enjoy being on the same court with him. He gets publicity, I set publicity. There's enough marketing to go. around for everybody."

Talk about transitions. It must have been some sort of blasphemy, that Shaq would sit in the purest basketball gym ever constructed, the St. Parick's Cathedral of ball, on the night of the Celtics last game there, and talk about playeff stuff, just ball: basketball in terms of TV com- How in the

It's almost as if the old Boston Garden simply gave way under the weight of all the sneaker and soda commercials, the sky boxes and corporate contests during time outs. It's like the old place couldn't switch, wouldn't join and just died from being out of date after 68 years. Friday night, like every other night inside the old barn atop the train station on Causeway Street. they rolled out a rack of balls, the players warmed up, they played. No pre-recorded music, no mascot, no ideos, no tumblers at halftime, no fans shooting 3-pointers. No silly indoor fireworks and the lights turned out during the intros? Is this what marketing has given us: free sandwiches if the home team scores 120 points, babies crawling from baseline to baseline during time-outs, and people dressed like goril-las and bumblebees dunking from trampolines?

You know what happens during timeouts at the Garden? Organ music. That's it. For years and years it's been the only place where ing a timeout you can think about the game. You could look up at the roof, at the 35 Bruins banners and the 20 Celtics banners and perhaps think about what Bob Cousy or Bill
