SPRING 2002 Semester in Photos

DAILY EGYPTIAN

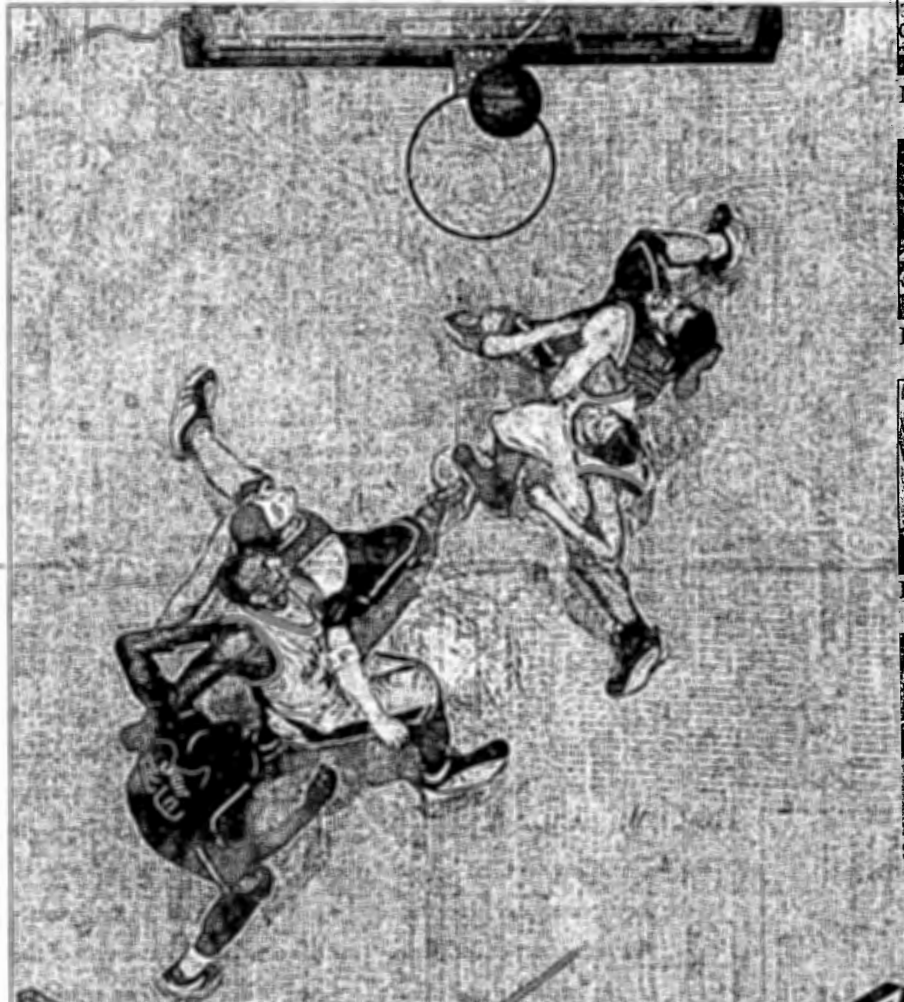

VOL. 87, No. 149, 20 PAGES

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY

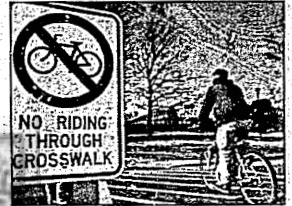

WEDNESDAY, MAY 8, 2002

It was a sweet ride

From the courts of Carbondale to the Carrier Dome in Syracuse, N.Y., the Saluki men's basketball team and their Sweet Sixteen appearance in the NCAA tournament was a highlight of the semester and school history.

Salukis' Brian Roberts (left) and Statton Malveston fight for position after a free-throw attempt by Jeremiah O'Shea during a game against Drake at SIU Arena in February. SIU's 29-8 season brought national attention to the University, but left many people wondering just what is a Saluki.

I thought to myself in the fall, "Wow, I am moving up quickly in position, but the responsibility enough to do the job properly? Despite this being my third at the newspaper, I knew it all at the start of the semester, I quickly learned that I didn't know it all: I had much to learn and much to deal with. Fortunately, I had a terrific staff to work with and guidance from some pros in the industry (you know who you are) to help me get through it all.

My Two Cents
BY STEVE JAHNKE
sjahnke@dailyegyptian.com

I realize now that the experiences I have had over this semester as the photo editor, despite being stressful at times, were ones that I would never trade for anything in the world. I know that all the hard work that I put in will pay off for me ten-fold in the future.

This issue is designated for capsulating the most important events of the semester in images rather than words. It is also the time for our staff to showcase its best work. My hope is that the images that our staff published day in and day out not only were interesting to look at, but that they made a deep impact on you, the reader.

Following the death of a student in September, Chancellor Walter Wendler lowered the campus speed limit by 5 mph to 20 mph and placed new pedestrian crosswalk signs to ensure campus safety. In a recent DE poll of 100 students in the SIU Student Center, students were split on the administration's decision to improve crosswalk safety.

J. D. Mathis (right), an employee of the Vienna Correctional Center was present with his son, Cody Mathis (middle), and his mother, Mary Ann Evetts (left) at a protest on the Vienna courthouse lawn on February 23. More than 1,000 people gathered in the town to protest Gov. George Ryan's proposal to close the prison. Despite several protests since February opposing the closing and an upcoming lawsuit filed by workers at the facility, the prison is slated to be closed in July. The closing is expected to cause economic problems in the Southern Illinois region.

Chancellor Wendler speaks out about the proposed 18% tuition increase to less than 15 people in attendance at an open forum at the Lesar Law Auditorium. While Wendler held the forum to give students a chance to ask questions about the tuition increase, only three students came and shared their opinions. During a second forum, over 100 people came, voicing concerns about the issue.

In accordance with Carbondale's encroachment ordinance, a Carbondale police officer checks the ID of a local late-night bar patron who was congregating with several other people on Illinois Avenue. The ordinance spurred controversy in the community and was called "unconstitutional and vague" by an SIU law professor.
