Polled Students Discount Concept of Obligation to Professors

By Charles Holek
Third In A Series

Does a college student owe his professors anything?

A question such as that usually brings a resounding laugh from most students who insist that the profs are here to peddle a product and the students are here to buy it. So, their reasoning goes, the student doesn't owe the prof anything more than he would owe a shoe salesman in a downtown store.

But minutes before or minutes after that question was asked, any number of those students might vigorously insist that the college experience should be "meaningful" and not put in such crass merchandizing terms. This is especially true of such subjects as student rights and student voice in administrative decisions.

In seeking to find out just what responsibilities students felt they owe to their teachers, the Daily Egyptian received these answers:

"Most teachers are only workmen," Walter C. Keiley, a senior from Berwyn, said.

"The aura surrounding a Schweitzer of a Posin is limited to a few. The student has no obligation to the teacher."

If the student goes to a state institution, he has an obligation to the taxpayer. "But the student's obligation to himself is whether to develop or not, he added.

Walter felt that to the professor, "while he is in the classroom, it is a position of courtesy."

What is the obligation to the professor? When asked, Gary Gumbel, a freshman from Joliet, mused "You don't owe anything to anyone but yourself."

However Jerry Young, a junior from Moline, said "You've got to think of your fellow man. My obligations when I am in a class are to the taxpayer, mankind and me. It depends on the individual, whether he is in college to get a grade or to learn something."

When asked whether he

Wheel's Night Will Describe SIU Activities

Students are invited to visit exhibits and booths of over 60 campus organizations at the annual Wheel's Night from 7:30 to 10 p.m. today in the Agriculture Building.

The event is intended to acquaint all students with activities open to them and to give them the opportunity to join the groups.

Wheel's Night cochairmen Jackie Watkins and John Zink emphasized that the event is open to both upperclassmen and underclassmen.

A main information booth will be placed in the Agriculture Building breezeway. Students should report there first for directions to specific displays and for answers to questions about Wheel's Night.

Sunday Bus Route Will Now Include Off-Campus Units

Protestant churches in the area will begin furnishing free bus service to student living units Sunday.

The measure to include non-university housing in the free bus service was voted by the Carbondale Ministerial Association.

A bus will leave South Wall Street and East College Street, at 8:50, 9:20, 9:50 and 10:20 a.m. The corresponding return trips will be made from the churches after worship services.

The present route is south on Wall from College, to Grand to Woody Hall.

Marshall Assesses Position Following Leadership Talk

American participation in Viet Nam was "a tragic blunder from the start and the blunder is being compounded because the United States is now fighting to tie, not win, Gen. S. L. A. Marshall said Thursday.

Marshall made the comment in an interview following an address at the Thursday morning session of Freshman Convocations. He spoke of "The Nature of Leadership." "We will never win if we do everything too late. When the decision was made four years ago to commit ourselves to the crisis, no move was made to protect the military installations. It was a tragic blunder," he said.

Applications Ready For Spirit Council

Applications to serve on the steering committee of the Spirit Council are available starting today at the information desk of the University Center.

The applications should be submitted before Wednesday to John Rush, president of the council, or they may be left at the Student Government Office.

The Spirit Council promotes student support at all SIU athletic events.

"Now the policy has been reversed: not enough troops are being sent in. They need at least two more divisions (roughly 30,000 men)."

Marshall was asked to predict the outcome of the war. He replied, "The whole situation is contingent upon so many factors that prediction would be foolish. If the Pakistani-India conflict had continued or if Sukarno had been toppled these things would have changed the whole situation in Viet Nam."

Marshall told the convocations that contrary to some opinion, leadership can be taught. But it cannot be taught to someone who is unfit for leading, he said.

Marshall, a military historian whom Carl Sandburg called the greatest authority on modern war, said the ability to carry out an assigned task and do it completely is an indispensable requirement for leadership. If a man has that ability, he said, the manner of a leader can be acquired later.

A leader must be true to himself, he said. Also, he must respect his subordinates, and be perfectly natural in dealing with others, particularly his subordinates.

Marshall said that a leader must be able to test his men because "to mollycoddle is to command only contempt."

A final leadership trait is accurate command of one's data in dealing with any dilemma, he said.

Marshall underscored his points by discussing three of his fellow officers in World War II, Gen. George S. Patton, Gen. Omar N. Bradley and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

Patton, he said, expected his men to be able to do as much as he could, and that was too much to expect. He described Patton as an almost superhuman soldier, but said he was "as much a ham as a soldier."

Nimitz and Bradley, he said, exemplified the ideal of leadership in that they were "perfectly natural men in command" and could "delegate authority with full confidence in the men under them."

Reply to Complaints

Making Room for 1,400 Held Basic Factor In Decision to Open Unfinished Dormitories

The opening of the University Park residence halls before they were entirely completed was the result of a choice between providing University housing for 1,400 additional students or letting them find housing on their own.

John S. Rendleman, vice president of business affairs, said, "We thought the students would rather have less than adequate facilities temporarily rather than being denied housing altogether."

Last February, to insure that the basic facilities of housing would be ready for the fall, the University advanced additional payment to the contractors to have men work overtime, Sundays and holidays, he said.

"We have a great sympathy for those living in less than normal facilities," Rendleman said, "and we will correct the situation as soon as we can."

The vice president also replied to the complaints on a petition drawn up by students living in the University Park dormitories.

With regard to the complaint about inadequate drainage in the showers, Rendleman said the University will, as quickly as possible, correct the situation.

JOHN S. RENDLEMAN

Concerning the complaint of inadequate lighting with only one overhead light, he said the University purposely planned no overhead lights because it would be difficult for one student to sleep if another wanted to study.

In response to the complaint that there is a lack of room furnishings, Rendleman said that although all the equipment has not been delivered, it has been ordered, and as quickly as possible, the situation will be taken care of.

Regarding the complaint of a rat and bug problem, the vice president said the situation will be corrected as soon as the area is stabilized.

The janitorial system, or rather the inadequacy of it as stated in the complaint, is complicated by continuing construction in the housing area. When it is finished, Rendleman said, there will be adequate and effective janitorial work.

Council Must Be Informed

At last week's Student Council meeting the vice president, John Paul Davis, told the student senators that they must keep in contact with the people whom they represent.

At least one or two constituency meetings a term were suggested. This is a good idea, but it is only a start. In running for office, the senators put themselves at the hands of the voters.

Two of the most important items to come up in the last council meeting were discussions of the Carbondale motorcycle tax and the street lighting situation in this area.

Both of these problems were brought to the attention of the council because several students went to their representatives, told them their stories, and asked that these matters be brought up in the next meeting.

This is the type of action that student governments and publications have been advocating for years. Because of it, the council acted as an organization working directly for the student body.

It got the council off to the best start it has ever had. And if the senators wish to continue, they must maintain, strengthen and extend their student contacts.

Newsletters and meetings can provide communication from senator to student. But the reverse, student to senator, will be the factor that determines just how seriously the senators are taking their responsibility.

The first step might be to let the constituents know the names of their senators. Second, the senators should be available. This, logically enough, would entail a location at which they could be reached in person and by phone.

Thus, senators are obligated to ensure that each constituent has been informed of the name of his senator, and that each senator is available to his constituents. After that, it is up to the voters to make the council aware of student problems.

Tim Ayers

Motorcycle Tax Is Equitable

The Carbondale City Council recently adopted a resolution which made the motor vehicle tax for this city applicable to motor cycles.

Frank A. Kirk, coordinator for the President's Office and a member of the City Council, called the move both equitable and necessary.

He explained that the basis for their decision was that motorcycles contributed to the traffic problem and necessitated more traffic control, and also that the cycles caused wear on streets and traffic facilities, much as automobiles do.

He said that the $3.50 tax on each motorcycle would contribute to funds used for traffic control, street and parking facilities maintenance.

On the basis of this explanation, the vehicle tax is desirable and necessary. The onslaught of motorcycles has placed a considerable strain on traffic conditions in Carbondale and the new tax is one means of increasing control and facilities to alleviate this problem.

Letters to the Editor

Lentz Isn't Grand Central Station

I would like to take this opportunity to explain why Lentz Hall's Game Room cannot be opened to the entire university.

We have only three pool tables, one snooker table, and two ping pong tables. This is hardly enough for our 1300 residents, much less the entire 17,000 students on the Carbondale Campus.

The Game Room is financed by the Thompson Point student government in conjunction with the Thompson Point administration. It would be impractical and unfair to the residents of Thompson Point if we let everyone play and thus restrict the recreation facilities.

The reasons for allowing University Park students are obvious since they are already burdened with problems of construction. We are simply trying to be cooperative and helpful by letting them use our facilities until theirs are ready for service.

We have always opened our events to the entire university and will continue to do so. Our movies, dances, forums, and outdoor facilities are available for everyone's use. We invite other students to join us except in this one area where facilities limit participation.

Don't Be Naive About China

This is in reply to the October fifth letter by Mr. Michael A. Countee, Jr., a student of international relations. First, let me agree with several points such as that the only true China is mainland China, and that that country has made tremendous advances in industrializing. These two points are true, but an intelligentsia stating policy to an absolute dictatorship is rather absurd, especially in view of the recent lack of certain American intellectuals in a relative democracy. I read American journals and newspapers and I have not noticed that "starving and faceless China" is the picture being presented. Of course when mismanagement (admitted by Peking) and natural disasters come at the same time, a few people, out of 600 million, might starve, but I do not believe this was ever exaggerated. Our relations with Britain on the subject of recognition have not been alienated as they were twelve years ago when she set up her present consular relationship. Granted, relations were strained when de Gaulle sent an ambassador to Peking, but an understanding of "la grandeur francaise" could better explain his reasons. And so through the most of your letter one can decipher fact from your imagination. This is most evident when you, after Korea, North Viet Nam, Laos, South Viet Nam, India and Thailand, do not wish to classify China as being "warmongers."

SIU Lifeguards Practice PR

The undersigned would deeply appreciate your printing a tribute to the lifeguard section in charge of the campus lake facility this past summer.

We represent a fairly large cross section of the country and have had numerous occasions to use facilities such as yours, both in the United States and abroad.

Never have we seen such a well organized, friendly, helpful group engaged in public service as was evidenced at the lake this past summer.

"MINOR SURGERY - REMOVAL OF A BIRCH SPLINTER"

'Thet Little Pope Feller Ain't So Bad After All'

By Arthur Hoppe
San Francisco Chronicle

"The Pope seems like a mighty nice feller," said The Kindly Old Philosopher, leaning back in his rocker and snapping his gulluses. "And it was a great speech he made to the U. N. But I think you got to hand it to our President, Mr. Johnson, for the way he brought the whole thing off."

Brought what off? "Why, the meeting," said The Kindly Old Philosopher. "It's a touchy thing when one of our democratic Presidents meets a Pope. If he ain't reverent enough, there goes ten million Catholic votes. And if he's too reverent, he loses six Bible belt States and all of East Texas."

"But he's got to worry about protocol. Now it's protocol you got to kneel and kiss the ring. I hear the boys down to the White House was pretty worried about this. But finally the President makes up his mind. 'Nope, boys,' he says humbly, 'it just wouldn't look right, the Pope kneeling to kiss my ring and I ain't a-going to make him do it.'"

"So's the President flies up to New York to have this chat with the Pope. Course, they got to talk to each other through interpreters. I sure been looking forward to howdying with you and pressing the flesh," says the President for openers.

"The President wishes to welcome Your Holiness to America," explains the interpreter.

"The Pope says that's right neighborly. And he says he's come to say how much he's in favor of peace and helping out poor folks, sick folks and the whole blessed human race."

"At this the President beams. 'Pope,' he says, 'I can't tell you how tickled I am you've come all this way to endorse the Democratic Party platform and my legislative record with Congress. And a speech like that's sure going to go over big here in New York. Course, I'd be obliged if you didn't hit the hustlings. No offense, but I reckon an endorsement from you might be a mistake down home in Texas and such places."

"This kind of riles a few of the Pope's aides and one mentions the Doctrine of Infallibility. 'Hold on,' says the President, raising his hand and bowing his head, 'a lot of my best friends cotton to that there Doctrine. But not me. Like I tell them in all humility, I did too make a mistake once, I think it was back in 1934. Or maybe '35.'"

"Well, with this out of the way, they get down to a nice chat about world problems. And the President don't mind giving the Pope his advice. Like, 'Now what you should've done with that there Ecumenical Council is invite the opposition up to a barbecue and drop a few hints about dams and postmasterships.'"

"So finally the meeting's over. He goes out to bless the crowd. And the Pope does too. 'Y'all come back in 19 and 68,' says the President for closers. 'And I'll grant you another private audience.'"

Now wait a minute, I said interrupting The Kindly Old Philosopher, from reading papers I couldn't believe it happened that way at all.

"Well, maybe not," he said, his kindly old eyes twinkling through his kindly old specs. "But from what I read, you still got to hand it to Mr. Johnson. Yes sir, he swallowed his pride and treated the Pope like an equal."

This year four members of the SIU staff hold executive positions in the United Fund Drive. Henry J. Rehn, professor of management, and Joseph C. Eades, assistant professor of sociology, are serving on the Budget Committee, of which Robert L. Carlock of the Community Development Service is chairman.

RELAXATION TIME - Cynthia Isaacs and Vicki Womac, freshmen from Anna, meet Byron E. Hill, assistant supervisor, and Clarence G. Dougherty, director of the University Center. The women took time to relax in the Magnolia Lounge, where furniture was reupholstered this summer after the equivalent of 80 years' use.

Student Center Furniture Usage Equivalent Computed at 80 Years of Household Wear

Lounge and cafeteria furniture in the four-year-old University Center has already gotten about 80 years of use.

That's according to the arithmetic of Clarence G. Dougherty, director, who pointed out that experts on the matter figure furniture in such buildings gets use in just one year equal to 20 years in a private home.

Open 16 hours a day, seven days a week, the building has about 20,000 visitors daily. And most of them sit down somewhere, which makes a respectable total of cushion contacts per year.

How ever you add it up, Dougherty said, SIU students are pretty considerate and careful of their University Center.

Luna 7 Failure Suspected

JODRELL BANK, England (AP)—The director of Britain's big radiotelescope said Friday all evidence indicated Russia's Luna 7 moon rocket had destroyed itself on hitting the moon.

Sir Bernard Lovell, the director, said radio signals from the moon rocket ceased at 10:08 (GMT) Thursday at 10:08 p.m. GMT Thursday.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, had said earlier the rocket had been scheduled to land on the moon at 10:08 p.m. (5:08 p.m. EST).

"It is impossible to do more than guess at what, if anything, has gone wrong. But our assumption was that the Russians intended to make a soft landing of instruments on the lunar surface," he said.

"On that assumption the final stages of firing the retrorockets were only partially successful.

"We would be surprised if Tass announced that there was anything but a crash landing."

Lovell said the possibilities that there might be a package on the moon which survived the crash could not be excluded—"but at the moment, if there should be, we have received no signal from it."

The giant radio telescope registered a change in Luna 7's signals at 8:58 p.m. GMT (3:58 p.m. EST) indicating that the retrorockets had been fired to change the moon shot's velocity. Shortly afterwards, the signals stopped, then came back and finally ceased altogether at 5:08:27 p.m. EST.

The United States plans to make its first attempt to soft-land on the moon in January.

If the Russians have succeeded, it would put them ahead of the United States in this particular field of the moon race, but not in all of them. The United States leads in some areas and the Soviet union in others, so it is difficult to judge who leads over-all.

"The problem of landing instruments on the moon and obtaining decisive data about the lunar surface is proving outstandingly difficult," Lovell told newsmen.

"The general evidence is now that the Russians have been trying for two years to do this experiment."

Bethesda Naval Hospital Assumes Role of Temporary White House

WASHINGTON (AP)—Never in White House history—maybe never in the annals of medicine—has there been anything quite like "Operation Operation."

Friday Lyndon B. Johnson has his gall bladder removed, and the President, ever a fastidious and meticulous planner, has to be pleased with the thoroughness of the preparations.

Seven physicians, headed by Dr. George A. Hallenbeck of Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., are ready. Early Thursday, Bethesda Naval Hospital already looked like what it soon would be the temporary White House for the 10 to 14 days the President will be there.

Johnson's room is on the third floor. A room for Mrs. Johnson is nearby. One floor below a press room has been set up in the big foyer of the auditorium where briefings can be held on the President's condition.

Bill D. Moyers, news secretary and a top presidential assistant, has set up shop in an office down the hall. As is true wherever the President goes, Secret Service men have moved in to protect him.

More than 100 extra phones have been installed for newsmen.

Photographic dark rooms have been put in so that pictures can be sent coast to coast, and abroad, direct from the hospital.

Sneaked a Smoke

Youth Fine After Being Trapped in Cave

MEDINA, Ohio (AP)—A 15-year-old boy who was trapped nearly 26 hours after he went into a cave to sneak a smoke said Thursday he's giving up cave exploring, but not necessarily cigarettes.

In fact, said the boy, Morris Baetzold, "I was dying for a cigarette when they brought me out."

But he said he didn't plan to visit any caves again "at least for a long time." His imprisonment "seemed like days," he said.

He was on an outing when he was trapped in a foot-wide crevice. He had ducked into the cave to smoke because smoking is forbidden by the Methodist Children's Home where he lives.

Morris, who started smoking when he was 13, said he had been caught "once or twice" by teachers.

"You're supposed to get kicked out if you smoke, but I don't think they would," he said as he talked calmly to newsmen from the hospital bed where he was taken for rest and a checkup.

Hospital officials pronounced his condition "good" but would not say when he would be released.

Thursday morning he ate his first meal since he was trapped—cereal, toast and coffee. He drank several glasses of fruit juice Wednesday night.

He added he hoped to be out of the hospital by Saturday so he could visit a lawyer friend in Springfield, Ohio.

The only visible evidence of his experience was a large bruise on his left cheek, which he said he got when hit by a rock as he was pulled from the crevice 60 feet from the entrance. The cave, in an isolated area 12 miles north of here, was blasted shut soon after Morris was rescued.

Morris was trapped about noon Tuesday when he followed a dead-end passageway in the cave after leaving two companions.

A teacher, William Powell, attached his belt to the youth's feet and tried unsuccessfully to pull him out, he said.

Mike Ulrich, 15, of North Royalton, finally got ropes and straps around the boy's body, and he was pulled out.

Buck Passed on Cow

Housewife Samples Bureaucracy

LEMONT, Ill. (AP)—Mrs. Harvey Fleming won her five-day battle with bureaucrats when the Illinois Highway Department buried an unidentified cow on the bank of an unnamed creek Thursday.

The creek is on the property of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fleming just east of Lemont, a suburb of Chicago, at 1358 Hillcrest Drive.

Harry Fleming found the cow Sunday while he was picking apples. Apparently the animal had been hit by a car and had died on Fleming's property.

The highway department conducted the bovine burial in lime and dirt and graded over the site with a bulldozer.

"Someone had to remove that cow," President Seymour Simon of the Cook County Board of Commissioners said, "and there was no point in arguing over who was going to do it."

So Simon directed the Cook County Board of Health and the Illinois Highway Department to "get together and get rid of that cow."

The highway department came through.

Simon came to the aid of Mrs. Fleming, who had reached speechlessness by Wednesday night over the buck-passing tactics of Chicago agencies.

"I don't want to talk about it," she told a reporter Wednesday night. "I've had enough."

First, Mrs. Fleming called the Chicago Board of Health, which directed her to its dead animal removal section.

The dead animal people said since the cow was outside Chicago, they couldn't do any removing. They said to call the Cook County Board of Health.

The county board of health said to write a letter. When Mrs. Fleming complained about the state of the animal, the board said to call the sheriff's police.

The sheriff's police suggested that the Cook County Highway Department be summoned.

The highway department said to call the Illinois State Police.

The state police said it was none of their business.

"I'm just waiting for some of these politicians to come around and ask me to vote," said an exasperated Mrs. Fleming.

'Madwoman' Comedy Is Study in Conflict

The Southern Players' 1965-66 season will begin with the comedy "The Madwoman of Chailloy," opening at 8 p.m. Oct. 28 for an eight-night run in the Playhouse.

The play, written by Jean Giraudoux, is set in Chailloy, one of the districts of Paris. According to Eelin Harrison, instructor in theater and director of the production, the play illustrates a conflict between what might be called modern enterprise and a genteel irrationality.

The winner of the conflict, Mrs. Harrison said, is irrationality, personified by the eccentric madwoman, Countess Aurelia. The countess saves Paris from commercialization by an oil combine by imprisoning its board of directors in a sewer.

The resulting actions are what Mrs. Harrison describes as wildly extravagant.

The role of Countess Aurelia, the "madwoman," will be played by Charlotte Owens. Tom Stokoe is cast as the president, and the three local madwomen of neighboring districts are Madame Constance, Marilyn Stedje; Madame Gabrielle, Yvonne Westbrook; and Madame Josephine, Kaybe Everett. Other roles:

The baron, Charles Gattin; waiter, Jerry O'Malley; little man, Bruce Potts; prospector, Al Young; street-singer, Jim Weicker; rag-picker, Gene Jurich; deaf mute, Dave Beckett; Irma, Nancy Lowe; shoelace peddler, Leo Gher; broker, Peter Goetz.

Juggler, Ken Mueller; Dr. Jadin, Naggy Faltas; policeman, Robert Beardsley; sergeant, Ross Porter; sewerman, John Callahan; three prospectors, Al Young, Jerry O'Malley and James McMahon.

Three press agents, Rudy Barello, Robert Greenberg and Bruce Potts; Therese, Katherine Best; Paulette, Kathleen Buchanan; third woman, Noralee Lyons; flower girl, Rita Vereb; and the three Isn't it time you joined the Dodge Rebellion?

Forget all you've seen and heard about '66 cars. Because Coronet is here . . . sharp, smart and sassy, the greatest thing from Dodge since Year One. Loaded with luxury the higher-priced cars haven't caught onto yet. With a choice of five engines, each one designed to make the walls of Dullsville come tumbling down. And with a whole slew of standard equipment that used to cost extra. Like an outside rear view mirror. A padded dash for extra safety. Variable-speed electric windshield wipers and washers. Backup lights. Turn signals. Seat belts, two front and two rear. And, as some extra frosting on the Coronet cake a 5-year or 50,000-mile warranty.*

Enough said to get you really tempted? Now let's get away from the look-alike, drive-alike, first-cousin cars with Coronet, a car with a lively personality all its own.

Six music students can add "European concert tour" to their list of credits. They toured eight European countries last summer with the American Youth Band and Chorus, a 100-member group representing 18 states. A five-day clinic and a concert in Washington, D. C., preceded the air trip to Europe. The young people gave concerts in France, West Germany, Monaco, Italy, Switzerland, Scotland, Belgium and England during the five-week tour.

SIU students who were selected for the tour included Jack E. Montgomery of Alton, Ellis R. McKenzie of Herrin, Steve Cantrell of Salem, Thomas Young of Wood River, all members of the 1965 Marching Salukis, Sharon Marlow of Steelville and Janet Carlson of Salem, music majors. Cantrell, Young and Miss Carlson are new students this fall.

Exhibit, Job Interviews

Career Day at SIU Planned for Oct. 19

Representatives from 30 corporations, schools and government agencies will participate in the 5th annual Career Day on Oct. 19 in the Ballrooms of the University Center.

The career day is an expanded version of the Chicago Land Career Day that has been held for the past four years. At last year's exhibit of job opportunities in the Chicago area, representatives from 28 firms talked to about 4,000 students and faculty members.

According to Wes J. Sandness, assistant director of the Placement Service, who is coordinating the exhibit, more students are expected this year because of an expanded format.

The exhibit was changed from Chicago area firms to nationwide basis because many SIU students get jobs outside of the Chicago area. Many firms, such as McDonnell Aircraft Corp. of St. Louis and Eli Lilly and Co. of Indianapolis, are not from Chicago, but consistently hire SIU students.

Representatives of the firms will be able to tell students about all the jobs available with their firms.

Students who would like to make individual appointments for interviews with the representatives may do so by contacting the Placement Service in Anthony Hall.

The exhibit is being sponsored by the University. Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity, will assist in preparations.

Some of the organizations

WES J. SANDNESS . . . CAREER DAY COORDINATOR

participating in the exhibit are Allstate Insurance Co., the Boy Scouts of America, Cadillac Motor Car Division, Inc., the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry, Chicago Public Schools.

Chicago Tribune, Eli Lilly and Co., First National Bank in St. Louis, General Telephone Co. of Illinois, Illinois Bell Telephone Co., Illinois Central Railroad, International Harvester Co., Kemper Insurance Co.

Students Consider Professors Salesmen; See No Obligation

would express his concern for a class he felt was being mistaught, he answered: "I think I would, but as a student I wouldn't tell it directly to the teacher, I would go to his superior."

Reminiscent of the frequent tales of professors with well-rehearsed, annual lecture notes, Dennis B. Lenahan, a junior from Vincennes, described his recent encounter with a professor "who gave the exact lecture he had given the previous Friday."

Despite this, he felt "we owe the teacher our undivided attention while in class."

This idea of a student owing an obligation to his instructor proved quite sobering to all questioned.

Dale Melton, a freshman from Westfield, felt "the student will put out as much as the teacher. If the teacher doesn't care the student won't care. A lot depends on the teacher."

Mike Pinnell, a freshman from Kansas, Ill., placed the obligation on the student. "It's for your own benefit. It's up to you."

"You don't owe the teacher anything," said Don Crawford, a freshman from New Berlin. "The teacher's job is to teach; ours is to learn. You don't owe him anything except as an elder or a grownup. Like a seller in a store, his job is to sell."

Two Will Attend Design Meeting

The School of Home Economics will send delegates to a design symposium Friday and Saturday in Chicago.

Lucy Stewart and Norman E. Slack, instructors from the Department of Clothing and Textiles, will attend the symposium in the Merchandise Mart.

Attending will be people in education and professionals who are members of the American Institute of Architects, the American Institute of Interior Designers and the National Society of Interior Designers.

Some of the subjects to be discussed are total design and the total environment, elements of the environment—contract products, design education and the contract industry, and disciplines of the designer in specific installations.

SIU Faces High-Ranking Grid Foes

Northern Michigan, Southern's opponent on Parents Day, is ranked third in the country in the first football poll of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

The Wildcats have rolled over their first three opponents, and were ranked behind only Concordia of Minnesota and Findlay College of Ohio in the NAIA poll. Another Saluki opponent is also making headway in the fight for national attention. Tulsa's twice-beaten Hurricanes boast one of the nation's finest passers in Bill Anderson. Anderson ranks second in the country in passing gains with 668 yards in three games. He has completed 66 of 116 attempts.

Anderson's favorite target, end Howard Twilley, is also in the limelight. Twilley has caught 30 passes for 362 yards to place him as the nation's second leading pass receiver.

In pass defense, the Hurricanes rank ninth in the country. They have given up an average of only 59 yards a game through the air.

Another Southern opponent, Wichita State, leads the nation in pass defense, having given up only 42 yards through the air in two games.

Shroyer Welcomes Support At 'Hart-less' Home Game

when the Salukis face Lincoln University at 8 p.m. Saturday, they will be playing without quarterback Jim Hart, one of SIU's best passing specialists.

Hart, who suffered a knee injury in last Saturday's game with Youngstown, also was the victim of five interceptions, four of them in the second half.

Student support at this second home game, termed an "opener" by some because the full number of students is now on campus, may have an effect on its outcome.

"Playing before an enthusiastic student audience may be just what this club needs," Shroyer said, "and after two disappointing showings on the road it couldn't come at a more opportune time."

The changes in the backfield lineup, necessitated by Hart's absence, include Doug Mougey as quarterback, Monty Riffer as linebacker, Hill Williams as fullback, and Eugene James as left halfback.

Five home games remain for the Salukis, including the Lincoln game, and three away games are left.

This list of cumulative statistics compares SIU in three game totals with its opponents:

Activities Limit Arena Use; 'Drop-in Athletics' Ruled Out

"Drop-in athletics" is a main concern of Dean Justice, SIU Arena manager.

Justice is sympathetic with the students' desire to stop by the Arena and exercise but he can also show why this cannot be permitted.

All activities in the Arena must be supervised by trained personnel who are classified as at least graduate assistants. The regulation seeks to limit injuries which often occur in unsupervised sporting events.

Furthermore, the building is in such great demand that it must be kept on a strict schedule, Justice said.

Seventy-four classes meet every week on the Arena floor. Another 122 classes meet in the classroom section of the building during the week. After class hours, varsity athletics practice and games take up the rest of the time available.

To try and cope with the problem basketball goals have been installed on the black-top area just east of the Arena.

For the present, students are asked to use these and the other recreational facilities provided, rather than the Arena building. An organized recreational program is planned for the near future, which will allow more use.

Salukis Hitting Hard In Drills for Lincoln

Disappointed by their loss to Youngstown, the Salukis have been hitting extra hard in drills preparing for Saturday's game with Lincoln, according to Coach Don Shroyer. "Since I've been coaching, and that includes professional as well as college football, I've never seen any team hit as hard in practice as these boys have been," the coach said earlier this week. Shroyer railed the first-team offense against the first-string defensive unit early in the week and said he was encouraged by the workout. "This scrimmage was good for the sophomores," he noted. "It's better to hit a live defender than a dummy, and I think this might help them," he said.

After seeing films of the Youngstown game, Shroyer said he thought some of the trouble came from confusion in blocking assignments. "They made some defensive switches and this pulled us off since some of our younger linemen didn't know whom to block," he said.

The Saluki coach indicated the offensive line might have additional trouble in blocking assignments against Lincoln. The Tigers often go with a somewhat helter-skelter defense, and this tends to make blocking more difficult.

But the offense is not alone in its woes since the Salukis defensive unit faces the task of containing Lincoln's perennially fast backfield. "I think we can handle them inside," Shroyer said, "but with their speed we'll have to keep them from getting outside."

Lincoln's speed was the big factor in its 23-21 victory over the Salukis last year. That win was their first in the three meetings between the teams.
