Grow Up

College freshmen are supposed to be on the level of the adult human beings, but on occasion they act like a convention of unchaperoned first-graders.

The special occasion to be discussed is the weekly convention of freshmen which is held every one, but those possibly, by some remote quirk of fate, are interested to be allowed to concentrate.

However, considerable number of freshmen, and possibly some upperclassmen, seem to find convocations conducive to discussing up!

the last gossip with cohorts, playing checkers, etc., and make good use of the opportunity.

At times, the din reaches such a volume that a speaker finds it difficult to make himself heard even with the aid of a public address system.

I realize that the entire assemblage should not be criticized for the actions of a minority. But if I may borrow a time-worn phrase, if the shoe fits, wear it.

I would like to leave the convulators with these words: Grow up! It is time to discuss up!

Representation No. 3

After looking over two of the suggested representation proposals, we come to the third and most confusing.

Does it have any good points? Does it have any bad points? System No. 3 is set up this way. Representation would be granted to groups by the number of votes cast by that group.

For instance, say Men's Residence Halls put up a slate of 5 representatives to the student government polls.

If a group was entitled to more than 100 individual group votes, a popularity contest would be underway rather than electing representatives to the student government group.

If a group was entitled to more than 100 individual group votes, a popularity contest would be underway rather than electing representatives to the student government group.

If a group was entitled to more than 100 individual group votes, a popularity contest would be underway rather than electing representatives to the student government group.

The point would be that should apply at the student employment office as soon as possible.

Walt Whitman Collection Given To Library Collections Room

"This is an attempt to gather together our fine books and put them all in one place to be seen and protected," declared Dr. Ralph E. McCoy, director of the library, at the opening of the Special Collections room.

Opening the room, an informal reception was held in the library lounge Thursday afternoon for Charles E. Feinberg, book collector and Detroit industrialist.

Mr. Feinberg's gifts of Walt Whitman books and examples of fine printing were placed on display in the Special Collection.

Feinberg spoke to students on book collecting. He has one of the finest Whitman collections in the country.

Mr. Feinberg also spoke to an English seminar of faculty, graduate students and library staff at 10 that morning in the Special Collections rooms.

Included in the SIU Whitman collection are Whitman's works, biographies about him and original photographs.

Personally autographed editions of Whitman and galley proofs of Johnson's Talks On Racial Problems.

Racial prejudice, as seen by the Negro, will be discussed by an SIU colored student, Julius Johnson, at the Wesley Foundation Thursday night at 7:45 p. m.

The members of Wesley Foundation have been discussing the issue among themselves for the past several weeks, but they are anxious to hear what the Negroes have to say about it.

Following Johnson's talk, a discussion period will be held.

Paul Simon, publisher of the Troop Tribune and representative to the Illinois Legislature, spoke at the J-Day dinner Thursday evening.

Simon Delivers Talk At Banquet Journalism Awards Presented

Human interest is the most valuable tool you can use in getting an idea over to the public. Paul Simon, youthful editor of the Troop, III, Tribune said Thursday night.

Simon, selected as one of the outstanding legislators in his first year as a state representative, was the principal speaker at the annual Journalism Day banquet in the SIU cafeteria.

Only 26 years old, Simon gained statewide fame for his crusade against organized vice and gambling in St. Clair County several years ago.

Another highlight of the banquet was the presentation of the Egyptian Service Award, Henry Clay Tate, editor of the Bloomington Pantagraph, received the award.

Following the banquet, a party was given in the typography lab by the Journalism Students Association.

The third and last mountain cited was the problem of world commerce.

Simon said, "As it stands now, the taxes, especially the sales tax, are mixed up and need to be restructured."

Simon said, "We are restricting food production in a world that is starving. Recently in British Guiana, the Communist party took over in an allegedly conducted election."

Simon said, "When I asked one newspaper man why the country was Communist, he said he knew nothing about the Communist party, but that he was in favor of anything that put food in his stomach."

SIU Baseballers Split Two With Huskies, 5-3, 7-11

By Wayne Raguse
The Northern Illinois Huskies fell prey to the five-hit pitching of Ronnie Ayers as he and his SIU teammates won the first game of a doubleheader Saturday 5-3.

A long home run into left field, by Saluki lead-off man, Gene Tabachi, gave SIU the lead from the first inning. It was a lead that the Abe Martin-coached nine did not give up.

Southern's other run in the first game when Charles Scheibel singled following Tabachi's lead-off home run. He went to second on Wayne Williams' fly to the center fielder.

In Southern's half of the third inning, walked Williams to start the inning. Norby Vogel's second hit of the day advanced Williams to second. With Buyan at the plate, Williams was safe when Northern's second baseman, Jim Elliot, who kept the base locks well scattered.

Northern scored their first run in the sixth inning when Ayers walked the second man, Bob Solits. Vogel scored on second baseman Saluki catcher, J. W. Sanders who had trouble holding on to one of Ayers' tosses to Dick Ackerman, the next hitter. Ackerman fled to center field for the second and it looked like Ayers might get out of the inning unharmed.

Northern refused to give up as the scrappy crew from DeKalb came back in the seventh to score two more runs after Egan had struck out and Nedry had grounded out. Czarniecki started it off as he received a base on balls from Ayers.

The big stickmen for the Salukis in the game were Tabachi, and Ayers and Vogel, who each had two for four.
