Limiting occupancy law to be enforced

Owners of all indoor public assembly buildings in Carbondale are being told by the Code Enforcement Department to display prominently the sign pictured on the right and adhere to the occupancy number which will be placed in the circle of the sign. The enforcement was prompted by problems arising from overcrowded "sight spots." The limiting occupancy law was adopted in 1966 into City Ordinance 1264 from the Illinois Rules and Regulations for Fire Prevention and Safety.

"More going on than just noise"

To the Daily Egyptian:

In yesterday's Egyptian article "Dr. Brown tells of role as SUI trustee," there was mention made of San Francisco State College and a "radical group" that "got into" student government and removed all funds from the support of intercollegiate athletics. I taught there for six years, and can tell you several things about this matter.

First, the radical students "got into student government" by the legally constitutionally elected process. Second, the funds that were removed from the athletic program were largely employed to replace funds for the large and quite wonderful program of tutors for ghetto kids. This program, which had been in operation for several years with very little funding, had been staffed by an enthusiastic group of volunteers from the student body of the college. That it was not "funded" by the college of the city is sad.

That the city schools are bad so that it is necessary for such a program is appalling. That the students saw fit to eliminate athletics in favor of expanding and amending the material thing is one of the most morally responsible actions I have witnessed among students.

The SF State administration has since then tried to discredit the program and the students in it, and this has been done by many as an essentially racist operation. There is not more noise from a few radical non-student disrupters, and it is high time the press faced the real issues honestly, especially in public statements.

Teens aid community

A group of Port Huron teenagers, calling themselves "Guerillas for Good," regularly perform civic duties in their community, including washing the obelisk and the other public monuments. However, for the most part, this good deed goes unpublicized. Perhaps these people should "preach" what they "practice."

Conspiracy?

The Daily Egyptian has often unintentionally provided its readers with classic examples of irony and humor—usually due to editorial incompetence or journalistic blind techniques. The paper for April 2 gives an excellent example.

The photograph on page 4 showing AFROTC cadets performing a memorial service for General Eisenhower includes the huge graffiti directly foreground of the half-masted American flag "Down With the Jewish Big Brother."

The Johnson and Gilpin cartoon on page 4 is further evidence of continued deterioration of an AFROTC cadet into a Nazi officer. Any caption on the photograph on page 1?

The Egyptian has also misquoted Humanities librarian Alan Cohen, supplying "underground" and "underground" and "Adolphus" for "Eisenhower's slaves."

Are we to assume a connection between the "Jewish Big Brother" and the conspirators who "defaced" our million volume library? And are we also to assume that it is "AFROTC cadets" who are defending us against the red menace by canceling the library? And are we to assume that communist ideals and ideals of Fascism? I'm sure Lenny Bruce would have appreciated the irony and "vista" in the humor of the situation.

What kind of world?

European Court deserves attention

By Robert M. Hutchins

Since the survival of the human race depends on its ability to build and maintain a strong defense, all experiments in the formation of transnational communities are of first importance.

Hence the tenth anniversary of the European Court of Justice deserves more than passing attention.

The court has handed down 529 decisions. All of them have been observed by the government and the citizens of the six "sovereign" states that form the European community.

Helped by Luxembourg, Holland, West Germany and Italy have modified the rulings of the court in accordance with the supremacy of the law of the community. France did not have to change its legislation because it already gave treaters an authority superior to that of the laws.

The treaties establishing the community have therefore laid the foundation of the Supranational Union and have led to the formulation of a new common law. In addition to the European court, the other 4,000 rules and regulations adopted by the community and enforced by its courts.

Robert Lecourt, president of the court, reports that the obligators of the character of the treaties, the regulations and the judicial decisions have never been doubted by the governments or individuals affected by them. The court is constantly being asked for interpretation, and administrative organs of the community, by member states and by denizens of the community, are led by interpretations are accepted as binding.

In the guidance of the European Court, the national courts have developed a new concept of the law of the community. A remarkable degree of cooperation has developed between the European court and the highest courts of the member states. The cooperation system, rather than through appeals, that the European Court of Justice performs the function of the law of the community.

This law is not something remote from the existence of the citizens of member states. It pervades all other things, with such matters as commercial competition, agricultural production, and so on.

It is highly significant that the French President, in his first speaking, is that matters important in their daily lives to a court located in Luxem- burg. The President has a court of appeal, and a court of appeal, and a number of "foreigners."

It is well known that it turns out that they will be foreigners no longer, or at least no more foreign than the people of Texas or New York.

The contrast between the success of the European Court and the failure of the Court of International Justice is most depressing. The latter is the judicial organ of the United Nations that has been emasculated by the reservations attached to the adherence of the members. The United States, like most of the other big powers, acknowledges no obligation to appear before the court. It does not accept the court's jurisdiction except when it feels like it.

Therefore, the court has no cases. Though many of the disorders in the world could be set by judicial means, never occurs to anybody to take a burning issue, like the Arab-Israeli dispute, to the United States Court of Justice.

In the United States everybody talks about the rule of law as the means to peace. The platitude uttered by Abraham Lincoln in 1865, that the world would fill a volume at least as big as this, is the third international dictionary of law that we must bear a large part of the responsibility for, and make a measure toward the rule of law on a world scale.

The highly successful European Court should encourage us to greater efforts.

No praise

To the Daily Egyptian:

The Egyptian's front page photograph of the AFROTC memorial ceremony for Dwight Eisenhower is a remarkable study. The underlined executive confesses he missed the full impact of the picture until it was turned upside down, bringing into focus some handwriting in the gutter.

If experience showed that mere words against peoples' will to sticks and stones, we might safely ignore them. But that would be denying words the power for good as well.

Some of the arsenal of anti-Semitism seem to have fallen into new hands. So long as the weapon is strictly verbal, our commitment to freedom of expression pretty much ties our hands, but it most certainly need not lose us tongue-tied.

No expression of anti-Semitism should be left unchallenged, whether the source is known or concealed in anonymity. While it is sometimes satisfying and effective to counter such expressions by discrediting the known source for perversion, illogic, or scoop-gating, the main target remains the content, no matter how threadbare and stereotyped.

Let it will hardly have made any gain in the battle against racism rationalism in the chief casualty.

I believe that the administration of this University owes a public apology to the memory of Dwight D. Eisenhower. Even if the administration does apologize, which I'm sure they won't, the great wrong, done could never be corrected.

Seeks apology

To the Daily Egyptian:

Upon learning of the death of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, President Nixon immediately cancelled all of his appointments for the next five days. The President also designated all of last Monday as the national official day of mourning. Yet, I was asked also to announce that Southern Illinois University only saw fit to mourn the death of General Eisenhower for five minutes during the noon hour.

I ask, what kind of mockery is this to the memory of a man who gave fifty years of his life to the unseen service of his country, including such apparently insignificant positions of supreme Commander of the Allied Expeditionary Forces during World War II and the Presidency of the United States?

I believe the administration of this University owes a public apology to the memory of Dwight D. Eisenhower. Even if the administration does apologize, which I'm sure they won't, the great wrong, done could never be corrected.

Religion dead?
Not at SIU- it's expanding

By Terry Peters
Staff Writer

In the midst of a cultural which often proclaims that God is dead and religion is irrelevant, SIU is expanding its Religious Studies Program.

Opposing current cultural and intellectual directions may not be typical of American universities, but then John Hayward, professor and director of the Religious Studies Program, is not an average American professor.

Hayward, an articulate and urban Unitarian minister who holds a Ph.D. in theology from the University of Chicago, brings a broad perspective on the concept of religion that the program should have something to offer even to the alienated and the non-believer.

The program was instituted in 1967 by Milton D. McCran, who came to SIU as visiting professor of religious studies in 1966. He continues to work with the program, while Hayward, who came to SIU in 1967, has taken over as director of the program.

Currently the program offers an authorized minor of 32 hours in religious studies. Those hours can be drawn from a number of sources other than the program itself. Hayward cited sociology, history, philosophy, psychology, fine arts and English as areas in which courses relating in some way to religion are offered.

"Religion has been around for a long time. It has a dramatic impact, especially with a liberal education desires to know something about that history," Hayward said.

"We should also look at the rebellions from the 1960's. That world of rebellion was and is secular, unofficial religions have taken its place?"

There may be forms of social organization that are not called religions but which have a kind of religious significance, he said. "Many call them 'functional alternatives.'"

"Does patriotism serve as a functional alternative to religion (or a substitute for it)?"

This last consideration points to a major concern that I have--the interaction of religion with culture. How do cultures affect religions and how do religions affect them for better or worse, Hayward said.

Hayward's emphasis is on concepts of sociology rather than theology in the usual sense.

"Part of the genius of religion is that religion and morality to a world view and into a worship," he said. "Instead of asking ethics and morality to maintain the church, unchurched, religions have always tried to connect ethics and morality to what you believe and have a 'truth' to make us more than simply to tell him 'he's got to do it, without any reasons.'"

Concerned about the meaning of 'reality picture,' Hayward explained: "It might include metaphysics, or it might be much more pictorial. It might be a reality picture derived from the arts, or a political structure."

"For instance, you have a 'reality picture' imposed by the Declaration of Independence, 'all men are created equal.' That's kind of a religious principle right there."

Although there is no specific course, the broader perspective of the program becoming a full-fledged degree program. Hayward did not disclose the possibilities.

He said the Religious Studies Program, in conjunction with the Department of Philosophy, will bring Mike Elia, the Avery Distinguished Service Professor of History of Religions at the University of Chicago, to SB. May 8 and 9.

'Mr. Highpockets'

to be staged again

By Dean Rebeffoni

The second SIU production of "Mr. Highpockets," the prize-winning 'modern morality' play about Abraham Lincoln, will be staged by the Southern Players at 8 p.m. Friday through Sunday in the University Theater of the Communications Building.

The play, which had its world premiere last July, will also be performed April 18-20 at a total of six performances—and anyone who loves (or just "likes") the university theater might make plans to attend.

Why? Because "Mr. Highpockets" is a unique play: one which its audiences have greatly enjoyed, and one which its SIU director, Christian Moe, associate professor of theater, says "has very good commercial possibilities."

While a commercial success certainly doesn't indicate anything good or enduring in a play, "Mr. Highpockets"—if judging from its performances here last summer—would seem to have both qualities.
It's centered around an old favorite of playwrights, but the Lincoln of "Mr. Highpockets" isn't the Lincoln of legend.

The Abraham Lincoln in this play is a very human individual," Moe said. "And the play itself is one with many affirmative comments about the human condition—

unlike those who like such things. Actually, there are few of these in today's plays."
The play was awarded the $1500 first prize in a competition sponsored by the Daily Egyptian.

By 6-1 margin, voters okay sewer plant

Large voter turnout marked the end of the sewer issue with a final 6-1 tally at the polls in favor of the proposal, which will permit the city to sell $2.3 million in bonds for sewer improvements.

The total vote was 2,106, of which 1,805 voted 'for' and 301 voted against the bond issue.

Members of the Carbondale City Council expressed relief when the results were announced. Congratulations were tendered to the city voters for the overwhelming endorsement of the sewer improvement plan.

Approval of the referendum clears the way for an additional $2.1 million in state and federal grants that will be used to construct a new treatment plant and interceptor sewer system.

The city has been banned for three years from making any sewer line extensions until increased treatment facilities are provided.

Councilman Randall Nelson summed up the general feeling when he said, "Let the minutes show five signs of relief."

Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar, when he learned of the referendum results, said "this shows what can be done when a community really gets behind a thing and supports it." He termed the 6-1 margin "a significant victory." Breakdown on the vote by precinct number shows: No. 1, 271 for, 71 against; No. 2, 335 for, 117 against; No. 3, 550 for, 68 against; No. 4, 624 for, 71 against; and No. 4, 649 for, 71 against, 720 total.

Howard R. Long, chairman of the Department of Journalism and fiscal officer of the Daily Egyptian, will appear to present the Egyptian budget request.

Other budgets to be discussed this morning will be the Agriculture Student Activities at 8 a.m., Athletics at 10 a.m. and VIT Activities at 11 a.m.

The hearings are open to the public.

3 more petition for campus posts

Three more students added their names Tuesday to the list of candidates vying for student government positions in the upcoming spring election.

Ronald Ross, 600 W. Mill, took out a petition for student body vice-president, making the total number of students seeking that position seven.

Pete Golfo, West Frankfort, and Carol Montgomery, 701 1/2 S. Illinois, each filed for a Senate seat.

Petitions for executive or Senate posts, which can be picked up at the Student Government office in the University Center, must be turned in by April 23. The election is April 30.

Riot-damaged cities get aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, expressing dismay that riot-damaged cities have not yet been repaired, announced Thursday that $9 million is to aid 20 cities start cleanup and repair efforts.

Nixon said the survey of the riot-scarred cities still bearing the marks of violence and destruction pointed to the "inexcusable" of modern government.

"There could be no moreewishing symbol of governmenletal inability to act than those rubble-strewn lots and desolate, decaying buildings, once a vital part of a community's life and now left to rot," the President said in a White House statement.

Nixon also called on the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to accelerate more aid in approved or pending programs aimed at restoring facilities and services in the riot-torn areas.

HUD Secretary George Romney announced that he will send survey teams to 20 cities to see what can be done to help clear away rubble and assist in projects to revitalize the riot-damaged areas.

Nixon listed 10 cities with the worst remaining damage as Newark, Baltimore, Washington, Boston, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Kansas City and Los Angeles.

These and other cities are areas HUD plans to start working with and it invites other cities to join in the effort.

The $9 million in interim assistance for a short range, immediate effort will be made available to cities that can undertake to provide $200 million in approved or pending programs aimed at restoring facilities and services in the riot-torn areas.

Nixon's statement said.

Council candidates to speak

Candidate in the upcoming city council elections will appear at 7 p.m. today in the University Center Ballroom prior to the regularly scheduled Student Senate meeting.

"Li'l Abner" creator

Cartoonist Al Capp to speak at Convoy

Al Capp, creator of the "Li'l Abner" comic strip, will speak at University Convocations at 4 p.m. Thursday at the SIU Arena.

Capp, a widely celebrated humorist and frequent lecturer to college audiences across the country, provides a satirical comment on politics, sex, law enforcement and human capacity in general.

Born in New Haven, Connecticut, Capp grew up in poverty, and was thrown out of three art schools for non-payment of tuition. Later, while living in Greenwich Village in New York City, he turned out advertising strips at two dollars apiece.

Capp was later hired by the Associated Press as a stock cartoonist at $50 per week. He became an assistant to Ham Fisher, creator of "Joe Palooka" cartoons. As Capp later recalled, "I wasn't the assistant-type kid."

Consequently he left Fisher, sold his first "Li'l Abner" comic strip and became almost an overnight success. By 1941 "Li'l Abner" was running in 400 newspapers and Capp no longer had financial worries.

Capp's critics and admirers believe that he has created a twentieth-century folk tale in his "Li'l Abner" comics through a new style of writing—a mixture of prose and hieroglyphics.

A coffee hour will be held in the University Center Building immediately following the convocation.

Wrestling recruiting begins

Saying state wrestling championships, recruiting potential college material, and finally selling and enticing the individual to come to SIU are all part of spring recruiting for Lisa Long, Southern's wrestling coach.

"We've been turned down by two good prospects," Coach Long said. "Out of that we are just getting down to recruiting. Right now we are finding out who's interested and who is not."

Coach Long has his eyes on 10 men he feels could fill the gaps presently in the SIU wrestling program.

"There's 10 men that we're dancing with and until they turn it down for the final dance, we keep on dancing," Long added. "Hopefully, we'll get to have the last dance."

Asked if any Illinois boys were included in the 10, Long replied, "We felt that there were only five youngsters that we could consider 'cream' in the state of Illinois. Out of those five, one has indicated that he wasn't interested in Southern. I think that we have a fair opportunity to land the other four."

"When the boys are signed, sealed and delivered, we'll let everyone know."

In all recruiting there are certain problems that every coach runs up against. Long has noticed that the majority of the men he has contacted seem to be unaware of the excellence of the SIU wrestling and academic program.

"We've run across a few obstacles for some reason the word of the excellence in the SIU wrestling program has not been spread around," Coach Long commented. "In other words, all the good wrestlers aren't beating down the doors to come here. We have to go out and sell them."

"If you take any dual meet record of any college or university & the state of Illinois, you'll find that we have one of the best," Long added. "But when it comes to recruiting the state wrestler we just don't get them and it's because they don't know how the entire program is."

Long feels that there are several schools such as Oklahoma, Oklahoma State, and Iowa State, that really don't have to go out and sell their school to the potential collegiate wrestlers because of their wrestling reputation, the schools naturally attract the outstanding grapplers.

"Until we are highly successful we won't attract, we'll have to go out and sell our program," Long said. "This isn't a resort like some schools are. And until wrestlers understand that they have to go where it's tough, they're not going to get anywhere."

Fishing begins to 'pick up'

The 1969 fishing season gathered momentum over the weekend with good catches from area lakes.

Leading the bass brigade was Walhalla, located north of Toled. A 5½ pound, 19-inch bluegill taken by Don Wagner at Devil's Kitchen, south of Walhalla, was declared the biggest catch of the weekend. A 2½ pound bass, caught by Burt Harris of Makotka, took a five and one-half pounder.

'Frozen in Devil's Kitchen'

Fish of all species were beginning to bite as the weather warmed and the Devil's Kitchen bone-dock reported good catches of bass, bluegills, bullheads, and channel catfish. Crab Orchard proved good for large-mouth and stripers.

Improvements to the refuge are continually under way. We are putting up buildings for the warden's residence,' said Mehroff. 'There will be two at each of the four beaches. The camping areas used to be run by concession, but we took them over so more attention can be given to the needs of the public. New sewers, waterlines, showers, and docks will be added this summer,' he said.

Crab Orchard was started in 1937 as the Crab Orchard Creek Project to develop reservoirs and reclaim poor land. During World War II it became the Illinois Ordnance Depot, then consisting of 21,000 acres.

'After the war the Fish and Wildlife Service retook the land, negotiated leases and transferred the acreage into the refuge. In 1947 the area became a refuge operating under the Department of the Interior.'

The refuge contains Crab Orchard Lake, Little Grassy Lake, and the later completed Devils Kitchen Lake.

'There are now over 9,800 acres of water, 10,000 acres of land, 7,000 acres of water and 127 miles of shoreline at Crab Orchard Lake,' said Mehroff.

Two million expected

Refuge plans for visitors

By John Zeleny

With the beginning of summer the Crab Orchard Refuge is preparing for nearly twice the number of visitors as last year. The 43,000-acre refuge offers an abundance of recreational opportunities to people from all over the country. Already this year there have been about 20,000 registrations from far and wide outside of the state. 'About five percent of the people who visit the refuge come from the Chicago area,' said L. A. Mehroff, Jr., project manager of the Crab Orchard Project.

The refuge has 65 percent of the visitors come from within 25 or 35 miles radius of the refuge. There were about 1,700 visitors last year,' Mehroff said, 'and we expect more this year. On a summer Sunday we have as many as 500 or more boats on the lakes, plus several thousand swimmers and picnickers throughout the year of the refuge. Half the registrations said that they will bring over 21,000 acres for the visitors to roam.

Many SIU students use the facilities at the refuge. Mehroff said, 'We have more trouble with non-students in the same age group as the students,' he said, 'but unfortunately the students get the blame.' Because of beer parties and late night parties, the beaches close at nine each night, but the rest of the open half of the refuge can be used 24 hours daily.

Tenth shutout of season

Paetzhold gets fifth as Salukis win

By Mike DeDonder
Staff Writer

Baseball Coach Joe Lutz has two problems right now that few, if any college coaches would ever want to solve: First, his team is having trouble scoring more than 11 runs or getting more than 13 hits per game. Second, large crowd turn out and have a little sorry for those fans who see them leave, but we’d take the games like this the rest of the way out.

So it went Tuesday when Jerry Paetzhold hit his third win of the season and completed a three-game sweep against Missouri State with an 11-0 victory.

Bill Clark hit a triple to right center in the sixth for SIU’s thirteenth hit of the game and scored the eleventh run when the outfielder’s throw to third was wild.

Until that time SIU had scored nine other runs in the inning on six hits and three walks. After Clark crossed the plate with the eleventh run, three SIU batters went down in order.

The last time the Salukis managed 11 runs was against Missouri, That time they had nine hits.

Lutz said, “Confident, steady batting is the big factor in our play right now. That plus the fact that we’re getting consistently good pitching.”

Since the Salukis came back from Fortis State as the twelfth ranked team in the nation, they have unloaded 10 runs in seven games. Six of those games have been home-game shutout victories.

The other game was a 9-1 victory at Memphis State.

SIU gave Paetzhold all the runs he needed in the first inning when Mike Rogodinski hit a ball that Missouri centerfielder Jim Allbota used for a fumbling act before he dropped it and Rogodinski pulled up at third and then scored on a double by Bill Stein.

One run wasn’t the only thing that Rogodinski gave Paetzhold in the first inning. Paetzhold watched Rogodinski hit him out of some trouble when Rogodinski made a spectacular catch of a ball hit over his head by Jim Hurley and then threw to Terry Brunfield who relayed to Larry O’Sullivan at first base to double up Jerry Degenhardt.

Until the sixth inning it looked as if Rogodinski’s catch was going to be the difference in a closely played game, and then the roof fell in on Missouri starter Mike Berg.

Clark led off the sixth with a walk and Bob Blakely followed him with a single. A walk to Randy Coker loaded the bases and a walk to Brunfield sent Clark across the plate.

At that point, Missouri Coach Bill Thomas brought in reliever Duane Ramstad, who gave up consecutive singles to Paetzhold, Jerry Bond, Rogodinski, Stein and O’Sullivan.

When the inning was over, a once close game was far out of Missouri’s reach. Paetzhold struck out four batters on the way to the win and also had a fine day at the plate with three singles in four plate appearances.

Steve Stein, the team’s leading hitter with a .377 average, also went three for four and Blakely went two for two. Bond got his ninth stolen base of the season in the seventh inning.

Other SIU hitters with averages above .300 are Bond, .311, Coker, .308, and Blakely, .309.

SIU takes a 16-4-1 record against North Dakota at 3 p.m. today on the SIU diamond.
