Report says fall tuition hike could be $100

By James Derk
Staff Writer

Tuition could go up $100 in the fall if the recommendations of President Albert Somit's Budget Task Force are followed.

The committee released a final report Friday concerning budgetary uncertainties for the 1983 fiscal year. The recommendations included:

- To save $4 million: the above cuts, plus $250,000 in support cost cuts, $400,000 in equipment cost cuts and a subsidy cut of about $120,000.
- To save $6 million: the above cuts, plus another personnel cut, another $450,000 in support cost cuts, and a final $470,000 in state support.
- To save $11 million: a general salary action of $4.250,000. This translates into faculty layoffs and across-the-board reductions in faculty and staff salaries.

These three areas are to be cut in case of a revenue shortfall. Areas include support costs, equipment costs and personnel cuts. The report includes cuts in state subsidies for activities which also generate revenue from other sources. These areas include Touch of Nature, University Press, athletics, Health Service and the Arena.

Aikman mounts write-in bid for two-year term on council

Carbondale City Council candidates are running for the single two-year city council seat. Aikman, who announced her candidacy Friday, said her decision was made in response to "many requests of many friends and acquaintances." Aikman, 43, is a member of the Democratic Party. She is running for mayor.

Sammye Aikman candidates would file for the election.

Aikman said she was disappointed that no women entered the race for the three open council seats. Although she is a candidate for mayor, she decided to run for the council because of the lack of women candidates.

Statue unveiled as tribute to Morris

By Vicki Olgreny

Delyte W. Morris was a dreamer, a mover and a builder. He was a visionary. He was a symbol of the University and of Southern Illinois.

The statue unveiled Saturday by Dorothy Morris was the spirit of the University that was developed by the people.

More than 300 people donated money to the SIU Foundation for the purchase of the statue, which was unveiled just one day shy of the first anniversary of President Morris' death.

The statue cost $100,000.

William Norwood, a Board of Trustees member who graduated from SIU during Morris' tenure, called the statue a vision.

"When I speak of a vision," said Norwood, "I see a person who instills a spirit." He said the people who attended the ceremony.

"Morris left us with the spirit of can-do. He left the spirit that "we together can accomplish anything."

The statue was also a planner, a builder and a motivator, according to John Logerum, who came to SIU early in the Morris years. "He took a crumbling brick and made a mansion.

WIDB-SPC affiliation gets first OKs

By James Derk
Staff Writer

A proposal that would affiliate WIDB with the University Programming Office has been received preliminary approval from the WIDB staff, the Student Programming and the Undergraduate Student Organization.

The move would change WIDB's local responsibility from the Office of Student Development to the University Programming Office. The move would establish an affiliation between SPC and WIDB, with both organizations operating under the University Programming Office.

"This would allow a mutually beneficial relationship between SPC and VIDB," said Cook.

Cook said it would be utilized to promote SPC and Student Center events, and thus any funds invested in WIDB would be a recycling of student fees.

Draft-aide link kept voluntary, for now

By Vicki Olgreny
Staff Writer

Students who receive federal financial aid next year will not be required, for the time being, to sign a statement that they have registered with the Selective Service. Students are not required to do so.

But University officials are recommending that students sign the Statement of Educational Purpose-Registration Compliance and keep the link voluntary.

"Signing the statement is voluntary," Director of Student Financial Aid and Timer Joe Camille said Friday. "If you are female or do not qualify for the draft in any other category or have already registered with Selective Service, our best advice is to go ahead and sign the statement.

Students were required to sign such a statement before they could receive federal financial aid under the so-called Selective Service Act.

"Students could be required to sign the statement and supply verification of Selective Service registration if they are required to register, before they could receive aid after July 1.

University officials had told students that they must sign the statement and supply verification of Selective Service registration if they are required to register, before they could receive aid after July 1.

But recent events indicate that implementation of the Selective Service Amendment may be delayed.

Gus says the Statement of Educational Purpose-Registration Compliance is an eloquent declaration by a wailing government.

be delayed for students who don't sign the statement.

A bill that Committee

enforcing the law pending the final determination in the case was a University statement released Friday.

Implementation would be delayed until February, but the court's order does restrain the Department of Education from enforcing the law pending the final determination in the case, said a statement released Friday.

Camille said financial aid for the 1963-64 academic year could be denied for students who don't sign the statement. "Students should be aware that if the enjoyment is lifted, they may have to sign the statement retroactively," he said.

The Department of Education has not yet finalized regulations implementing the Solomon Amendment, and has indicated it will revise the rules published in the Federal Register in January. A regulation requiring draft-eligible men to provide college officials with copies of their registration documents was published for at least the next two years.

"We don't really know what the final outcome will be," Camille said. "This is typical of what has happened in student aid delivery in the last three years.

Changes in federal regulations have come so quickly that their implementation has been confused and difficult at best.

The registration compliance statement lists exemptions for females, those in the armed services on active duty, those who are younger than 18 or who were born before 1869, and permanent residents of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands or the Northern Marianas Islands.

Camille said that fewer than 16 students of the 1,700 who have turned in their Student Aid Request forms for the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance have had problems with signing the statement.

Democrats eye Chicago campaign

Democrats eye Chicago campaign

CHICAGO (AP) — Democrats are keeping a nervous watch on Chicago's mayoral campaign, fearing that defeat for their presidential nominee, Harold Washington, on Tuesday could draw away vital black support for their 1984 presidential nominee.

Some Democratic leaders see illtimed and disciplinary measures against Chicago ward bosses backing Republican Bernard Epton against Washington, who is campaigning to be the city's first black mayor.

Some black leaders say the party must be held to account if it doesn't deliver. "People who otherwise may be apprehensive about a Washington defeat would discourage blacks, the party's most reliable supporters, from turning out in 1984."

OPEC cuts to spur economy

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein on Sunday scrapped negotiations with PLO chief Yasser Arafat for a joint ap­ proach toward talks with Israel and said he would not enter the talks independently, dealing a crippling setback to President Reagan's Middle East peace plan.

Well-informed PLO sources said Hussein was angry that Arafat had reneged on a tentative agreement to sign a joint communiqu 1e that would have embraced the Reagan plan as a basis for negotiating with Israel.

In Washington, Reagan blamed "radical elements" in the PLO for Jordan's refusal to join the peace talks, but said he had spoken with Hussein and remained hopeful an agreement can be reached.

Hussein scraps PLO talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The recent cut in oil prices by OPEC will save America at least $2 billion a year and help spur economic recovery, an energy research firm predicted Sunday.

According to a new report, OPEC's $5-a-barrel price cut will save consumers as much money annually as the first two years of President Reagan's tax cuts.

Endorsing the Office of Energy policy from lower energy bills should help strengthen what so far appears to be a fragile and un­ certainty, as well as give consumers a boost of con­ fidence after years of feeling victimized by rising energy prices, the report said.

REPORT from Page 1 survives the Legislature intact. The odds of that, Cook said, are rather slim.

Cook also indicated that the second tuition increase would be offset by corresponding cuts in student fees. Thus, students would pay $100 more in tuition, but $100 less in fees. Cook also managed to bring home the possible introduction of a second tuition increase until after the third fiscal year. "It is a grave situation for student services," Cook said. "We are facing a reduction in state subsidies for areas supported by student fees." Cook said if tuition goes up more than $200, revenue would be rather slim.

In the report, Baker indicated that tuition increases would be treated as surcharges to give some flexibility if a tax decrease materializes. The tuition increases, support cost fund shortage, and personnel action could be reversed if necessary.

The general salary action, amounting to over $4,721 million, would leave funding for health and child care at about the same levels as last year, other community programs would feel the full force of the budget decrease. The proposed budget calls for $70,000 going to the Senior Citizens Center to be cut from $75,295 this year to $15,200 next year. Funding to the Women's Center would also be cut in half, from $10,000 this year to $5,000 in fiscal year 1982-84. Two other programs, the Attucks Board Youth Program and the Jackson County Youth Service Bureau, will receive no funding next year if the proposed budget is adopted. This year they received $35,000 and $4,740, respectively.

The only other community service agency to receive city funding, the Attucks Board Unified Social Services program, would receive $21,500 from the city, the same amount as last year. The city's Municipal Solar Utility program would also receive heavy cuts. Last year the energy program received $26,182, while this year's proposed budget is $45,637. The cuts to the MSU and community services are accompanied by a virtual freeze on the city's operational and maintenance budget. The only department to receive a substantial funding increase under the proposed budget is the Code Enforcement Department.

As directed by the council, Fry has proposed increasing the department's budget from $102,587 in fiscal year 1982-83 to $162,239 for next year.

Fry, in an interview last week, explained how he determined where to make the proposed budget cuts.

"This is only what I have proposed," he said. "I don't know if it's going to stick but I do know that the council is going to have to bite the bullet. They've told me to beef up code enforcement and yet everyone wants to keep funding social programs," he said. "All I'm saying is that if they want to fund these programs at this level last year, they're going to have to pull money from some other operational program. Philosophically, I'm opposed to that, but these are only my suggestions. The council has to make the final decision."

"The proposed cut to the Senior Citizens Center is softened to a degree because the city has given it the former Springmore School building," he said. Because the center will no longer need to rent space from the city, the funding cut should be easier to bear, Fry said. Fry said cuts to the Women's Center were recommended partly because the majority of participants in the program live outside of Carbondale.

The cut to the Attucks Board Youth Program was proposed partly because "the city has pumped a lot of money into that program and there've been no results," he said. Fry also said that residents already pay taxes to support youth programs through the Carbondale Park District.

Poor performance was also the reason for the proposed cut to the MSU program, Fry said. He said that after examining the results of the program it was decided that some of the money would be better used for housing restoration. He said that if there is a demand for the MSU programs proposed to be cut, the council can reallocate the money for such a purpose. He said the energy education program will continue under the proposed MSU budget.

The council is scheduled to vote on the proposed budget next Monday.
THE DAILY EGYPTIAN endorses Bruce Joseph and Stephanie Jackson of the Trojan Party for Undergraduate Student Organization president and vice president. The election will be held Wednesday evening.

WHILE WE RECOMMEND that the Joseph and Jackson Trojan team be elected, the Maverick Party has put up two good candidates in Steve Petrow and Mike Greathouse. Both of the Maverick candidates have seen blackboard publications and understand the role they would have to play in the USO as president and vice president.

However, they have based their campaign platform on the accomplishments and achievements of their predecessors — the Maverick Party has been in control of the executive branch of the USO for the last three terms.

The two Maverick Party candidates argue that the continuation of a Maverick Party is a must. They claim that they have built up an important relationship — an understanding, a respect — with the University administration. Any disruption of this continuity would dislocate the student body; they say.

But if the two Maverick candidates choose to run their campaigns on the basis of past party accomplishments — and there are many — then Petrow and Greathouse must also take blame for the party's shortcomings: the dominance of the USO executive branch, the weakening of the student senate, the botched student directory, and the lack of student representation at City Council meetings this year.

PETROW, THE MAVERICK presidential candidate, is a sophomore. The USO presidential position is no place for a sophomore. He hasn't had much experience with student government, and he ran for USO president only recently. His running mate, Mike Greathouse, a former USO senator, appears to have a better knowledge about the USO. He would not have run for office if his running mate hadn't.

The Trojan Party, making its first appearance on the campus political scene, has offered two good candidates in Joseph and Jackson. Both realize that the incumbent party has, on occasion, forgotten its constituents. And while both parties say they are for an "open door policy," the Trojans were the only party to offer a way to accomplish that: a volunteer "I Got a Trojan Question," a monthly meeting, the USO executive branch, vice president and various senators would meet constituents from the four geographical areas, in four geographical areas. Also, the Trojan open-door plan, topics to be discussed by the student senate will be posted in locations in the various colleges. The Trojans have also stated that they would set up a land-tenant union to help iron out housing problems and reform the USO constitution to give more power to the students. One of the main problems in the Trojan campaign is the lack of student participation. Petrow has pledged to cut their own salaries by $15 a drop in a bucket compared to the hundreds of thousands of dollars that the USO actually controls.

JOSEPH, THE TROJAN presidential candidate, is experienced in campus government. He has served on the Bowling Committee and the Campus Cost Committee. He has served in business administration and wants mainly to get student government spending in hand. He is a good choice.

If he is elected vice president, Jackson will run the senate. While she cannot promise the same kind of pressure on the administration, as do the Trojans, she is a "people person," she is hard to pin down on specifics. If elected, we hope Jackson sticks to realities and relies less on generalities.

The Maverick Party has been in office for quite some time now, and they have enhanced the USO. But we think that it is unhealthy for the student body to be represented by the same party year after year. Both parties have put up good candidates. We feel the Trojans are the better choice.

But undergraduate students should not take word alone, or anybody's word for that matter.

THEY SHOULD MEET the four candidates, pin them down on specifics and should not stop asking until they are satisfied with the answers. The candidates are always at the Inter-Club Center in Building D in the Student Center. They should make their own decisions.

These two parties want to represent the undergraduate students of SIU. If they want to remain the underdogs to make sure they are going to represent them right.

One will search in vain among the buildings of the campus of the campus of the University of Illinois, at Carbondale for a "Tenney Hall" or other physical monument to make itself known. Charles Tenney, the most important founders of this University.

Charles Tenney was a philosopher, a scholar, and a music lover. He was one of that kind of teacher most likely to leave a lasting imprint on the lives of his students. He said "at his feet", as to speak, when he was a teacher of literature during the presidency of Henry Shryock and can say from personal experience that as a teacher, Charles Tenney had nothing short of inspirational.

As an administrator, Charles Tenney was to the university, "Tenney Hall" is the most important to the university. It was the only public school to be elected representatives. The issue of public school to be elected representatives, rather than in the boardrooms of state commissions heavily influenced by private self-appointed interests.

Why so little black music at SIU-C?

As a newcomer to this University, I would like to be enlightened as to who's responsible for the scheduling of concerts at the Union Arena. Doesn't the Black Affairs Council or the Black Togatherness Organization have a voice in these activities? This past year, such groups as Journey, John Cougar, Tom Petty and most recently, Willie Nelson, have performed here. These groups are "heavyweights" i.e. the entertainment world, however, they only attract one particular ethnic group. What of the other ethnic groups? It's possible that whenever is responsible for the scheduling of concerts isn't aware that there groups such as Rick James, Stevie Wonder, Earth, Wind & Fire, The Bar-Kays, to name a few, are "heavyweights" in the black entertainment world and they tour the country every year. I am aware that blacks are a minority on this campus, but if they feel attendance or interest would be a problem, there is a large geographic area outside of SIU-C such as Western Kentucky, South Missouri, Western Tennessee and Southernmost Illinois, that lacks for activities and would be certain to attend.

Logically, whenever is behind lining in these groups must have clout. Isn't it possible that such groups are the only ones with the clout to bring in entertainment that would appeal to the other ethnic groups? It also would be a problem in that area? Don't they realize, that we realize they are, we are not doing their job for us? — Lynne Nelson, Junior Administrative Science
COME WEDNESDAY, four of our fellow students will be asking you to go to the polls and elect them to the top two Undergraduate Student Government (USG) offices. The reason you will ignore their beckoning call, not vote, and go about your business just like any other day.

Perhaps you have not been aware that the two student parties have come up with bastardizations of the English language like "Mooday" (Mooday Trojanation) to sell themselves. If you're like me, these two blocs are the epitome of what the nation's future looks like as it impacts "Have a nice day," "Stop war and love one another" and "The University to.." Now, I know that there can be no write-ins candidates for Wednesdays' presidential and vice-presidential election, and I'm not asking you to try in vain the most-reverent USG bylaws by scratching my name in.

SEE, THE JOB that I want does not need votes; it needs a strong army. People, I don't want to be USO president, I want to be King of the USO, so I'm going to promote the SPH-bernazzanomics.

Under Spherrymanomics, I would abolish the USO administration entirely (let 'em learn and die yet). I would sell the student directory (just call information, it's a lot easier), the book co-op (which now I'm going to call the "bookstore"!), the cleanup crew (we made the mess, let the city pic it up) and the Saluki Savings Card (no comment.)

Under my plan, the USO has to play with. And as King, I would take half of that — about a hundred grand — right off the top as a salary. (Hey, if a king is going to be a king, he's going to make like a king)

BUT WAIT, THERE IS something under Spherrymanomics for you subjects, er, students, too. Something that students — all students — will be able to benefit from. Not just a self.

Part One of Spherrymanomics: Three-day weekends, instead of two-weekend weekends. I'm going to make sure they meet you out worse than the week-end. I need time to rest and recuperate from staying awake at night. I need time to do my homework. I need a day to just lay a little, maybe take a sunbath, maybe have a few drinks, etc. etc. etc.

Which leads me to Part Two: Half the reason I'm so tired from the work is because there's too much of it. So I'm going to do away with the Monday off.

Part Three has three parts: subtitled Delivery. Free delivery check-cashing service. Call a number (NO-BUNG) a guy comes to your door, you write him a check, he gives you the bucks Simple escape.

Free delivery booze — no more of that endless waiting for kegs at parties, no more of the "Are we there yet?" stuff anymore.

"I would love to get a beer but the liquor store is a half-mile away." Have it delivered.

MORE FOOD DELIVERY. Not the stuff they have now — pizza, hot dogs, hamburgers, hamburgers — I've had enough of that. No, we want a full range of food, real food. From spaghetti, cheese with cranberry sauce, free delivery beers rocks with gravy and mashed potatoes, free delivery bacon cheeseburgers with home- made fries and a salad with blue cheese dressing. That's what we need and that what we'll get under Spherrymanomics.

Part Four: we replace the book code with a test and a homework code-op. See, most students know where they can get their books. What they need is a place where they can get used texts and used homework. What happens to that stuff now? The good grades, it, gives it back to you and you lose it. Under Part Four, students could sell (recycle it, if you prefer) their old tests and homework at one of the bookstores in the Student Center. Now that would be a popular program.

AND, PART FIVE is what I like to call More bars for the Downtown Area or MDA. The Strip is a mess, and I'm sure the City Council agreed. It's just too many bars in a small area. But it doesn't need a convention center. What it needs are more bars. As it is now, it is impossible for a bungalow on the Strip because they can't get liquor license from the city. Meanwhile, store fronts and Dead Face stand empty, the sidewalks crumble and the streets are becoming more and more like the Strip, every night. I say, close South Alton Avenue, put some decent sidewalks in, brick the street, put a few bars of- course at the end, too. Call it the "King's Encompost" — the name to the King's Encompost (after myself) and let it rock.

So that's it, Spherrymanomics is a nothing. With a program like that the USO could bankrupt the country in any way it wanted. But with me, you'll get free food, free books, delivery booze and no more book code.
Helping others achieve goals is aim of ‘natural born leader’

By Duane Schombert
Staff Writer

For Karen Prichard, assistant professor of guidance and educational psychology, "Women are natural born leaders, there are following one."

Her perception of herself and her role as an educator is displayed on the bumper sticker of her car.

"I have the type of personality that people generally warm to," she said. "I can talk with people easily, and I can help them arrive at goals or achieve particular things, so I would say I’m a natural born leader."

If leadership was measured by the length of time a person has been at an institution, Prichard would not be considered a leader because she has only been at SIUC since 1981.

However, Prichard believes being "the new kid on the block" is an asset because she can offer new energy and fresh ideas to her department.

"I’m in the one here with the most current training. If there are new or different things going on in our field, I’m probably a little closer to them than some of my colleagues because I’m a new recent college graduate," she said.

Prichard also sees herself as a leader because of her dual university training in counseling and school psychology.

"Students who can integrate these two disciplines may find themselves in a unique job position," she said.

"When we pair these two disciplines together, it broadens the scope of human service. Because of this broadening of professional service delivery, I perceive myself as a leader," she said.

Prichard believes she can help students become leaders by helping them recognize their potential and realize they are responsible for who they are. "My reason for being in education gets back to the idea of being a leader," she said. "Providing students with knowledge and skills that lead to self-actualization is important."

"I would also like for students to recognize that while change is scary, there is potential in change. A person shouldn’t put up barriers and become defensive in the possibilities change offers if one is willing to become involved in it."
And change is what Prichard believes education to be and education to remain credible. Prichard said the prevailing aim in education is to provide people with skills and information, not just training people to cope with rapid change, she said.

If education continues along the lines of having a student memorize information, Prichard believes, society will suffer. "I have a pessimistic view of education if this miseducation continues because we're going to end up training people with antiquated material that is going to be worthless; therefore, our educational institutions will be worthless," she said.

On the one hand, education can give a person the ability to understand the learning process, Prichard said. "People are going to need a better understanding of learning, teaching, and problem solving processes," she said. "It's not giving people the answers since answers will change. It's providing people with means that offer a variety of options and answers is chosen from.

Prichard, who was born in New York, moved with her family to Wichita, Kan., the summer before she was 12. Her childhood experiences helped her to mold a philosophy for women being natural born leaders, she said. "For a long time, I was an only child, so my father and I did lots of things that I now know are usually done with a group," she said. "We worked on model railroads together, and utilized all kinds of mechanical tools used by men. At the time, it seemed like a natural circumstance and I assumed that all kids did these kinds of things with their fathers."

She also mentioned that her father traveled for a living, and her mother had to make all the financial decisions. These events contributed to her perception of women as strong and independent individuals. However, during her adolescent years, Prichard said, she subordinated her leadership qualities so she could fit into the social circles of a typical high school. "I heard that girls shouldn't be too smart or assertive, and clearly not too aggressive," she said. "So, I chose to put away some of my leadership qualities because I wanted to be liked and one of the gang."

Prichard said her leadership qualities re-emerged about 10 years after she received her bachelor's degree in journalism from Wichita State University. "For a while, I was the typical suburban housewife and disfratized," she recalled.

But through the initiative of another woman, Prichard got the opportunity to work at Wichita State University as a part-time cashier during enrollment.

"I left my children in a nursery school and they survived," she said. "And I got to be with people who weren't talking about soap operas. I also met someone who was a counselor and I thought she was wonderful, I went to see her and said, 'I want to do what you do."

Prichard received her master's degree in counseling from Wichita State University and her doctorate in counseling psychology from Kent State. Additional working experience enabled her to also be a school psychologist.

Prichard said she balances her leadership roles as educator and single parent carefully, giving the necessary time and commitment to both her profession and her two seven-age daughters.

"Sometimes these dual responsibilities are in direct conflict," she admitted. Sometimes, I'll be sitting in my office and I'll want to write a research report and at the same time I'm remembering that I have to go buy milk and bread or make a dental appointment for my kids.

How does Prichard resolve such conflicts?

"I rationalize a lot," she said. "I recognize that I have high expectations for my children. If we need 'bread and milk, sometimes they're going to have to go get it on their own."

I can't expect the two areas to ever be resolved. I expect it to be a continuous process of me trying to make that balance work of being a good role model at home and in the office."
Versatile Duo Plays at Gatsby’s

By Terry Levecke
Staff Writer

Looking for something different after yesterday’s softball game, Gatsby’s may be the place to go. Each Monday night the bar is filled with sounds of acoustic guitar played by C.R. & Gither. The blasting noise level that accompanies most of the rock bands that play in Carbondale is forsaken for harmonious guitar riffs unwinding familiar songs of the seventies.

Clark Rowden and Roe Gither have been playing every Monday night at Gatsby’s for over a year now. They have created a loyal following of fans that seem to tire of their music. Rowden and Gither’s talented guitar playing is complimented by their full-ranged voices, which enable them to sing anything from pleasant harmonies to vibrant rock-and-roll tunes.

Their song list covers just about everything that can be played on acoustic guitar— from Paul Simon to Neil Young to Bob Seeger to Eric Clapton to Glen Miller to The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band. They also play a few numbers not normally associated with acoustic guitar music—such as “Pinball Wizard” and “Piano Man.”

They rely on interaction with the audience, and requests, which creates a friendly informal atmosphere. Their music is an original blend of old and new, but as Rowden said, “You have to play other artists’ music to let people know you can play.”

Rowden and Gither’s talent does not end with the acoustic guitar. Rowden also plays the 12-string guitar and the flute while Gither adds diversity with the harmonica.

The duo from Belleville have concentrated all of their efforts on music, and have been making a living at it for about two years. They share the spotlight as well as their friendship. Each has about half an hour. Some of the crowd’s favorites are Gither’s version of Bob Dylan’s “Possum Kingdom” and Rowden attempts to completely sing John Prine’s “The Answer.”

Their friendship is one that has lasted since childhood. They lived two miles apart while they grew up in Belleville, but they didn’t really get to know one another until they started playing music together. Gither said Rowden is now 34 and Gither is 22.

This Monday night after the rock band Gither was playing in, Rowden’s brother broke up. “Clark already played acoustic guitar and I wanted to,” Gither said. Since then, they have built a great relationship.”

Gither said both are natural musicians. Most of their skills were self-taught. They have started out playing the banjo when he was 10 years old and Gither started our on clarinet. He picked up the guitar in 8th grade.

Gither was influenced by rock-and-roll, following the works of heavy-metalists like Jimi Hendrix and Alice Cooper. He said, “I have played with a lot of different artists like Seals and Crofts, America and Neil Young.”

They’re brought out the opposite traits in each other. Rowden said, “He brought out the rowdy in me and I brought out the mellow in him.”

They now play in the Southern Illinois and St. Louis region. They say they don’t get frustrated at small crowds, which is typical of a bar on Monday nights. “We have fun on our own, whether they have a good time or not,” Rowden said referring to the crowd.

Their first job in Carbondale was at The Club, but they are not exclusive to Gatsby’s. “We usually find a bar we like to play at and stick with it,” Rowden said.

They call Carbondale “our home away from home.” It doesn’t compare to most of the places they play at, Rowden said. “We’ve never experienced anything like Carbondale,” he said. “They sure have a lot around here,” Gither said.

They have plenty of plans for the future, including recording as soon as they get enough originals. Rowden said, “In the mean time, they’ll be filling Gatsby’s with their unique blend of music every Monday night.”

The second portion of the program involved vignettes that were meant more to make the performer the "star" rather than simply observe. The characters portrayed were all faceless, and usually their faces were portrayed by masks. On occasion, the entire troupe caused "magic" to happen.

Overall, the show demonstrated creativity of the highest order; the body can be incorporated into a performance that leaves the audience bewildered and entertained.

1983 Spring Semester Final Examination Schedule Information

The examination schedule attempts to avoid examination conflicts by providing separate examination periods for Tuesday-Thursday lecture classes. Some questions might develop for which answers can be provided at this time.

1. Classes that meet longer than one hour on Tuesday and Thursday will have four credit hour classes. These classes would hold their examinations at 3:10 p.m. Tuesday, May 12. This applies also to two-lecture type courses or a series of two-lecture type courses. Classes that meet for one of the Tuesday-Thursdays are assigned a specific examination time, usually between 12:30 and 2:30 p.m. However, students of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departing faculty lists of three classes that cannot hold their examinations in their regularly scheduled space or time. This will be done sufficiently in advance of the final examination days to provide sufficient notice for all.

The following points are also pertinent to the final examination schedule:

1. Students who find they have more than three examinations in one day may petition, and students who have two examinations scheduled at one time should petition their academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period. Petitioning for each examination period does not mean that students may decide to miss the regular examination period. This is to be used only for students whose petitions have been approved by their deans.

2. Students who must miss a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given students who miss a final examination and are not involved in a situation covered in (a) above will be given to students in the examination bulletin, and is to be given to students in the examination bulletin, and is to be given to students who receive the formal final examination summons.

1. Classes with a special exam time

Oscar odds in ‘Gandhi’s’ favor

By Duane Schember Staff Writer

A 13-inch, eight-pound statuette weighing 35 pounds of gold-plated britannium will be the center of attention at 8 p.m. Monday on ABC and the majority of the 50th Annual Academy Awards.

While stars arrive at the ceremony in black limousines wearing tuxedos and designer gowns, an estimated 45 million viewers will sit before their TV with a hefty supply of buttered popcorn nearby as the winners in 36 categories are revealed.

With "Gandhi" carrying 11 Oscar nominations into the awards ceremony, it would seem that director Richard Attenborough’s epic about Mahatma Gandhi has the awards all sewn up. Well, not necessarily.

Although "Gandhi" is a solid artistic achievement, "E.T." may be a surprise winner in the best picture category.

In addition to being the biggest movie maker of all time, "E.T." is also director Steven Spielberg’s most imaginative and personal film.

None the less, "Gandhi" will win the best actor and best director categories. Sensitive and demanding role as a father, a mixture of ambitious, compelling and intelligent, much in the style of the famous 19th-century Indian leader as Lawrence of Arabia and " Patton."

Other best actor nominees are "Tootsie," "Missing," and "The Verdict."

Five distinguished actors comprise the list of best actor nominees.

Heading the list is Paul Newman as an alcoholic lawyer in "The Verdict." With five previous Oscar nominations, Newman deserves to win for his sensitive and demanding role world-spinning director Sidney Lumet’s film. Closely behind Newman for top honors are two very distinguished and diverse actors.

A member of the Royal Shakespeare Company since 1967, Ben Kingsley delivered a powerful performance in his screen best picture, "Gandhi." However, Dustin Hoffman in a double role as a New York actor and actress in "Tootsie" was equally as good.

Jack Lemmon, winner of two previous Oscars, is nominated for his performance as the father of a missing journalist in "Missing." Also nominated is Peter O'Toole for his delightful performance as an alcoholic actor in "My Favorite Year."

The best actress category contains one strong contender, a normal woman who pulls off an upset, and two actresses who would not have been nominated.

Meryl Streep is the strong contender for her performance as the Polish victim of a Nazi concentration camp in "Sophie’s Choice." With an Oscar already for "Kramer vs. Kramer," Streep appears a sure thing for her performance.

If there is an upset in this category, the award could go to Jessica Lange for "Frances" or to Julie Andrews as a woman pretending to be a man to works as a female impersonator wins.

After credible performances from Streep, Lange, and Andrews, the list of best actress nominees gets weak.

Although an appropriate choice as Richard Gere’s love interest in "An Officer and a Gentleman," Debra Winger was not on screen enough to warrant a nomination. The same can be said for Sissy Spacek, who didn’t do more than act irrational while she and Jack Lemmon searched for her husband in "Missing."

The supporting acting categories rarely get enough attention because the performers are usually overshadowed by the star of the film. Such is the case for two of the nominees, who both hold their own against the stars of their individual films.

Should Lou Gossett win for his role as drill instructor Sgt. Foley in "An Officer and a Gentleman," he will become the first black actor to receive an Oscar in this category.

If Jessica Lange wins for her supporting role in "Tootsie," as well as for "Frances," she will become the first actress to ever win in both categories in the same year.

While Gossett is almost certain to make Oscar history, Lange probably will only go home with an Oscar for "Tootsie."

Other best supporting actor nominees are Charles Durning, the governor in "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," John Lithgow, the transvestite in "The World According to Garp;" James Mason, the unscrupulous lawyer in "The Verdict;" and Robert Preston as Julie Andrews’s gay manager in "Victor-Victoria."

Lange’s closest competition comes from Glenn Close, who played T.S. Garp’s straight forward mother in "The World According to Garp."

Teri Garr for "Tootsie," Lesley Ann Warren for "Victor-Victoria" and Kim Stanley for "Frances" round out the solid list of best supporting actress nominees in a year when women were overshadowed by an extra-terrestrial, an actor in drag, and a peaceful little man from India.

City plans to hear arguments on downtown redevelopment

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Carbondale residents will have their chance Monday night to voice their opinions about the controversial and troubled-plagued plans for a downtown redevelopment project.

With the original plans for a downtown hotel-conference center and parking garage project tied up in court, city officials have scheduled a public hearing for 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers, 607 E. College Ave.

A spokesman for the project said the original plan would need to be scaled down because the land would need to be bought from several owners and some had refused to sell.

The half-block parking garage project was to be built along the east side of South Illinois Avenue between Elm and Walnut streets. The full-conference center was to be built on one block north on Illinois Avenue, between Walnut and Monroe streets.

Higher education lacks leaders in the most challenging and difficult period in its history, said James L. Fisher, a friend of the late Mayor Hans Wood.

"We are at once confronted with dramatic decline in enrollment, alarming reductions in funding from both state and federal governments, a curriculum that is only beginning to rebound from the excesses of the 60s and 70s, and a society that needs and expects more from institutions of higher learning than at any time in their entire history,"said Fisher.

Fisher, speaking at Shryock Auditorium, said that when he spoke at an assembly of college and university presidents in Washington, it was "a lot like trends in evidence.

"I have long stated that our present state of fiscal situation in our state universities would have us receive "unimaginable" cuts, Fisher said.

"And in my home state of Illinois,"he continued, "I must give you a word of caution and sympathy. The long-run results could be calamitous."

In the face of this unprecedented crisis, he said, the governing boards of colleges and universities are more interested in plant managers than leaders as presidents.

"In my view,"Fisher said, "the project ruled is made, but have not yet reached that the city is under some type of action on the project before Friday."

Mayor Hans Fischer said last month that a few developers expressed interest in building some type of downtown project if the city can acquire the land.

Speaker says colleges lack leaders

The city, claiming it was acting within the bounds of its home rule powers, appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court in January. The court is expected to hand down its decision soon.

The court delay created further headaches for city officials. Project developer Stan Johnson pulled out of the deal in November because the delay prevented him from finishing the project in time to meet his financing deadlines.

Johnson also jeopardized the city's $2.671 million grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development slated for purchasing the land needed for the project. Because the purpose of the grant was to clear a blighted area of town, the city may be able to retain the money if they can come up with a project acceptable to HUD.

HUD officials said the city is handicapped until the court ruling is made, but have not been able to reach an agreement on the land.

The project was scheduled to be underway by now, but was delayed late June when Jackson County Circuit Judge Richard E. Richman ruled the city's method of land acquisition unconstitutional.

Women golfers escape with fourth

Lack of depth and a bad third round combined to drag the men’s golf team down to a tie for eighth place in the 15th annual Illinois Invitational Golf Tournament over the weekend. SIU’s first two rounds of 301 and 395 put them in a tie for fourth, only a few strokes out of third, but a disastrous 468 final round plummeted them to fifth place in the 14-team field.

Purdue claimed first place in the tournament with a three-day total of 1143, followed by Missouri at 1154, Illinois at 1154, and SIU-Edwardsville at 1154. SIU tied for eighth with Michigan with an 1169 team mark.

Coach Mary Beth McGarr said the key for the Salukis, placing fifth overall (with a 227 total) behind rounds of 22, 75 and 79. Scott Briggs followed with 231, with rounds of 74 and 81 and 13th overall place.

Jan Janacek’s rounds of 77, 75 and 83 put him in 20th place overall and third for SIU-C with a 235 total, ahead of Mike Stin, 243, Tom Jones, 249, and Tim Sass, 262.

Lack of depth has been a thorn in the Salukis’ side all season and a major factor in the team finish at the invitational. With Bob Hammond scratched from the lineup because of a death in his family, and absences being worse rather than for four team totals, the golfers didn’t have the personnel to break into the top half of the field.

Assistant Coach Brian Wallace said the loss of Hammond from the lineup was a key factor in the tournament outcome for SIU-C, possible the difference in fourth and eighth place.

Wallace said the weather also played a key role in the tournament scores. There was strong rain and temperatures under 30 for much of the weekend.

The Saluki softball team is still sidelined by rain over the weekend, I'd talk to them about playing a doubleheader, said Jones. "I'm also talking to the coach of St. Louis to see if he wants to play two.

If the Salukis do manage to get a game in, let's hope Richard Ellis and Tony Adams' best is still ten days away, and then Jones will get the word from David Lipieccas as to whether it's worth it to make the trip. If the field is playable, the team flight will leave at 9 p.m. if it's raining in Memphis, and it was Sunday, the Salukis will come back to campus and Jones will try to set up a game with Louisville.

But even that is dependent on Abe Martin Field drying out. The field looks good, said Jones Sunday, "it's just under water. We're going to try to get a game in, if it doesn't rain today and Abe Martin is open." Tuesday and Wednesday the Salukis have scheduled single games with Murray and St. Louis.

Baseball team still sidelined by rain

By Dan Devine

Associate Sports Editor

The SIU-C baseball team spent Friday and Saturday in the rain, a night at the Sheraton Hotel, and no time on the baseball diamond this weekend.

The Salukis’ trip to Ohio for a four-game weekend series with Miami of Ohio turned out to be an exercise in futility. The team arrived in Columbus at 4 a.m. Friday, ran a long bus ride, and then came right back and ran a rain delayed Friday night. Rain, and the prospect of more rain, wiped out the series.

It's been more than ten days since the Salukis last played, the longest weather-forced break of the season. And many fans were wondering if it were going to be looming on the horizon, in the form of another rainslide, and still more rain.

SIU-C is scheduled to play at David Lipscomb College in Memphis, Tenn Monday, or, if the field is unplayable, Evansville will come to Carbondale to make up at least one game of a doubleheader canceled last week.

"We're talking about shots in the dark right now," said Jones, whose plans for tomorrow sound about as complicated as mobilization plans for a war.

The Salukis will get to the airport Monday at about 8 a.m. and Jones will get the word from David Lipscomb as to whether it's worth it to make the trip. If the field is playable, the team flight will leave at 9 p.m. if it's raining in Memphis, and it was Sunday, the Salukis will come back to campus and Jones will try to set up a game with Louisville.

But even that is dependent on Abe Martin Field drying out. The field looks good, said Jones Sunday, "it's just under water. We're going to try to get a game in, if it doesn't rain today and Abe Martin is open." Tuesday and Wednesday the Salukis have scheduled single games with Murray and St. Louis.

If Murray got rained out over the weekend, I'll talk to them about playing a doubleheader, said Jones. "I'm also talking to the coach of St. Louis to see if he wants to play two.

If the Salukis do manage to get a game in, let's hope it's rain free, said Richard Ellis and Tony Adams will probably go to the mound, although Jones entire pitching staff is well rested to say the least.

Despite it's NAIA status, David Lipscomb has usually been able to finish SIU-C's fair games.

duff hitter on second base. The Salukis knocked the game 1-1 when Neila opened the door with a single, and advanced to second on a ground out. In the 2nd, a strategy the Salukis have come increasingly proficient in Grounds collected her second RBI of the day when she rolled Neila home to give SU a 2-1 lead.

Jones opened the second win, single moving into scoring position on yet another sacrifice fly by Upchurch. That occurred next could most accurately be termed a comedy of Spartan errors.

With Jones on second, Brosd opened a sliding middle that was cleanly fielded by the shorts. She turned to the right and gunned down a sliding Jones at second. Brosd, never batting, was half-sent for second when the throw arrived from third, but was well, almost arrived. The relay from third sailed up and over the outstretched glove of the Spartan second baseman, allowing Brosd round the bases and give the Salukis their game-winning run. For good measure, Lindsey Wilson also completed the scoring and gave Brechtelsbauer's squad a 3-1 win.

That, however, was as far as the tourney got. Saturday was greeted by rain and more rain. The Salukis, now 11-5, were one of only two teams standing remaining, and stood only a game away from clinching the Pool I title and advancing to the semi-finals.

SU will take on Lincoln Junior College and the weather on Tuesday in a 2 p.m. doubleheader. Brechtelsbauer, whose club has seen more than a dozen games washed away thus far, took the rain-outs in stride. "I think we’re going to see some sunshine. We’re halfway through the season and we’ve lost at least 11 games, probably more," she said. "It’s hard to tell how far we would have gone in some of those tournaments."

We’re just fortunate that we’ve got a lot of games scheduled. The teams that don’t have very many games scheduled are going to be in the ones that are hurt the most."

Saluki swimmers have big weekend

The men’s and women’s swimming teams placed eighth overall with a combined point total of 109 points at the U.S. Senior Nationals in Indianapolis over the weekend.

SU qualified three swimmers for the World University Games, to be held in Edmonton, Canada in July. Junior Pam Ratcliffe and senior Jordan Coombs qualified for the women, and former Saluki and Johnon qualified for the men’s team.

VonJouanne also qualified for the National Sports Festival in July as well, along with Amanda Martin, Stacy Westfall, Ratcliffe and Coombs. Seattle’s women’s 400 medley relay of Ratcliffe, Martin, Westfall and Rene Royalty broke a school record in 3:50.78 to place seventh, with Ratcliffe being 59.51 in the leadoff backstroke to break another school record.

For the men, VonJouanne placed in the 200 IM and 200 Fly.

Women tracksters gain confidence and second
By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

Believe it. The women's track and field team is starting to believe in themselves. And Coach Claudia Blackman, it's making all the difference in the world.

"We competed today," she said after her Salukis captured second place at the five-team Dog and Cat Friday at McAndrew Stadium.

"Overall, I think we ran well. The weather may have kept us from having super times, but I'm please with our performances."

On the heels of speedster Denise Blackman and the shoulders of Rhonda McCloud, the running Salukis collected 70 points, 14 behind first place Missouri, but seven and one half ahead of Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference for Eastern Illinois. Being so close to the powerful Tigers and staying ahead of the pecky Panthers was exactly what Blackman had in mind. Her mission was accomplished. "I can't remember the last time we beat Eastern," Blackman said of the team she faced three times during the indoor season. "It's because they are conference school, it made it even more important."

Northwesterners finished fourth with 14 points followed by SIU-Edwardsville, who garnered 12 points.

The Salukis captured three of 17 events as Nina Williams continued her assault on SIU-C long jump record, sailing 19 feet, 10 1/4 inches. Williams bested her previous record of 18 feet, 1 3/4 inches set in 1983.

Coach Blackman said the performances of the Salukis' emergence as a respectable track and field team. "Nina layed off a few days and didn't compete last week, now she comes here with a bad ankle and jumps her best," Blackman said.

Denise Blackman's dual with Missouri's Rufina Ubah in the 100-meter dash went wire-to-wire as expected, with Ubah winning in 12.94. Blackman was second in 12.29, while Missouri's Roe Jones and SIU-C's Ann Lavina finished third and fourth, respectively. The top spot in the 200-meter dash was pulled out of the 200 because of a minor leg injury, mostly due to the cold. Even then the Salukis didn't get a chance to run against Blackman for a second time; she had time for the freshman. "She's good," Ubah said after watching Blackman run away from her Tiger teammate.

"Roslyn Dunlap, in the 200, Blackman ran a tremendous third leg of the 400-meter relay team, erosion last yardage from the No. 1 leg. She helped the Salukis from the rear to second and anchored the 1,500-meter relay to a 4:00.6 second place finish.

SIU-C's scoring came on a barrage of second and third places, just what Blackman had said they had to do. The Salukis captured seven seconds and one half and 14 behind EIU.

Much of the credit went to McCloud, who placed second in the 400-meter relay and triple jump, and grabbed third in the 3000-meter steeplechase and high jump.

Junior Debra Davis was first in the Salukis' final event, the javelin, along with Army's Garett Koors.

"It was an awesome day," Blackman said after her team's performance. "I don't see us getting better. "

The Salukis' efforts resulted in a first place finish in the conference meet with 206 points. EIU was second with 188, Northwestern was third with 179, SIU-Edwardsville was fourth with 114, and Illinois College was fifth with 83. The Salukis now have 31 conference titles since 1981, 27 of which were earned under Blackman.

Babcock stars for gymnasts, but Salukis finish near bottom
By John Markowski
Sports Editor

UNIVERSITY PARK, PENN. - Brian Babcock placed third in all around and took All-American honors in three events as the Salukis placed ninth at the men's NCAA Gymnastics Championships at Penn State this weekend.

Babcock scored 11.75 in the all around behind Peter Vidmar of UCLA, whose 116.95 was the highest score by an American gymnast this year. Nebraska's Scott Johnson was second with 115.95.

The individual event finals Saturday night, Babcock was fourth on pummel horse, 9.8, tied for second on parallel bars, 9.7, and tied for third on high bar with a 9.8. He earned All-American honors in those events by finishing in the top six and has already earned All-American honors in all around. He was fourth for the saturday's compulsory and then set a new personal record of 77.75 on the still bars, 9.7, with a best ever score.

The Salukis all around competitor, John Levy, finished 25th with his best ever score of 101.75.

Babcock and Tom Sloveni reached the finals in rings, but did not place. Babcock made the vault finals, but scratched because of tenderness in his knee. Sloveni scored 9.4 on rings.

Nebraska won the team competition for an NCAA record fifth consecutive time. The Cornhusker's score of 287.8 was also a record. UCLA finished second with 286.8 and Penn State was third with 295.3.

"We are less than a point away from our average, so we did have a couple of disappointments in a few places, but the kids responded well. We've not had a Brendan could have got them down, but they overcame that," Meade said that the freshman's absence cost the team about two points.

"It was the first competition of the season, but they didn't let the pressure get to them. I'm proud of that." After a nine month layoff from competition because of a knee injury suffered February of last year, Babcock managed to catch the attention of selectors, athletes, coaches and fans.

"Babcock's performance had to make up for any personal disappointment after all the "After working with him for five years and seeing him overcome adversity, it was great to see him do such an outstanding job. That part of coaching no salary can make up for."

Meade also had praise for his other Salukis. "All the kids contributed. It was a team effort. There is nothing to be ashamed of. All the kids were ready to go."

The 41st Gymnastics Championships was highlighted by some of the most difficult routines exhibited by American gymnasts.

"Nebraska was awesome," Meade said of the winners. "Scorewise, they could have placed fourth in the world behind the Russians, Japanese and Chinese. This speaks well for our national team and indicates that it is stronger than it has ever been."

Softballers shine until rains fall
By Brian Higgins

If the rash of rain cancellations have been bothering Salukiball softball coach Kay Brechtleibacher, she's not letting it show. Neither is her club.

Mother Nature quelled her tempestuous downpours long enough for SIU-C to hint that they might have been the best team at the Illinois State Redbird Invitational this weekend and the first time before the Salukis could prove it the four-bit starting of pitcher Meredith Stengel, edged Illinois Chicago 3-2 in the opening round of the 13-team Classic Friday in Normal.

The Salukis opened the scoring in the second inning when senior catcher Val Upchurch singled home Tony Green who had reached first via the walk. Third baseman Diane Broe followed with a ground-out to short, allowing Nancy Mckay who with first, first on a throwing error and advanced on a Brian Jones sacrifice bunt, to score the Salukis' second run of the game.

The Flames countered in the third, however, when Kelly Nelse had trouble handling a rocket to center field, allowing two runs to score. Felicia redeemed herself in the fifth, sacrificing Tonya Lindley, who had singled and taken second on a throwing error to third base. That set up a game-winning RBI by Pat Fenn, who singled to score Lindsey, bringing the game to the rest, striking out six Flame batters and giving up no free trips to base.

The second contest in pool play pitted SIU-C against Michigan State, but was wasn't much of a surprise winning 13-0. The Spartans wasted little time getting on the board, scoring an unearned run on a Michigan State throwing error put the
