Simon to confirm candidacy today

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

U.S. Sen. Paul Simon will informally announce his candidacy for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination today in Washington, D.C.

David Carle, Simon's press secretary, said the Makanda Democrats' announcement would merely confirm speculation about the senator's candidacy.

Thursday's announcement, however, will not be Simon's formal campaign declaration.

"The formal announcement will be in Carbondale," Carle said, but he declined to say when. "He will issue a statement and read the statement to members of the press but he will not answer any questions."

State Sen. Vince Demuzio, D-Carlinville, confirmed the planned announcement Wednesday. Demuzio, Illinois' Democratic party chairman, said Simon told him of his intentions Tuesday during a phone call.

Demuzio said the call reinforced his understanding that Simon would run. He added that they discussed the matter optimistically Friday over dinner.

John Shelby, press secretary to U.S. Rep. William Lehman of Florida, said he "could confirm Simon's announcement to run."

Lehman and U.S. Rep. Peter Stark of California led a "draft Simon" campaign in Congress last summer. Fifteen U.S. representatives wrote letters to Simon urging him to run.

Carle said Simon's reasons for running, as well as why he considers himself presidential material, will be included in today's statement.

The 58-year-old Makanda resident alluded to a reason Sunday in Carbondale during a meeting of supporters and organizers from Simon's tenure in the House of Representatives. He spoke of a homeless man in Monmouth who was shouldered with a $227,000 hospital bill.

"You know, we have to help people like that ... I see the potential for moving on all kinds of things that this country ought to move on," Simon said. "And that makes me want to do it."

Other encouragement came after Lehman's letter campaign, Carle said.

A Harris Poll of Democrats nationwide in February ranked Simon fourth among Democratic presidential contenders, behind frontrunner Gary Hart of Colorado, Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York, who has since withdrawn from contention, and U.S. Sen. Bill Bradley of New Jersey.

"That's the only national poll to mention Simon by name," Carle said. High name recognition in neighboring Iowa, the site of the presidential campaign's first candidate showdown, and endorsements from labor organizations and teachers unions also have bolstered Simon's hopes, he added.

Demuzio said he advised Simon to declare his candidacy as early as possible because some people might view him as indecisive.

USO debate issues include SPC funds, IPIRG, parking lots

By Renee Nanesta
Student Writer

Student Programming Council funding was the hottest item debated Wednesday night in Student Center Ballroom B when Phoenix and Access party candidates for the Undergraduate Student Organization squared off before the April 15 election.

"I was sad to see SPC cut at all," Access candidate Vince Kelly said.

He added that he would like to see the funding for SPC restored.

"The SPC cuts were justified and I would do it again," Phoenix vice presidential candidate Charles Levy said.

Ten thousand dollars of the SPC budget was not accounted for, Levy said.

Phoenix presidential candidate John Attard said the cuts were necessary to balance the USO budget.

"What SPC needs to do is tighten up the budget," Attard said.

Student government involvement was named as a goal for both parties. Attard stressed continuity and consistency while Kelly called for access to the university and student government.

Both candidates supported the Illinois Public Interest Research Group.

Attard said IPIRG would be good for students, but questioned the reusable fee.

Kelly said IPIRG would look out for students by lobbying for them or comparing prices for such things as grocery stores and laundromats.

"I would unequivocally support a reusable fee," Kelly said.

The need for a day care center, such as Rainbow's End, was important to both candidates.

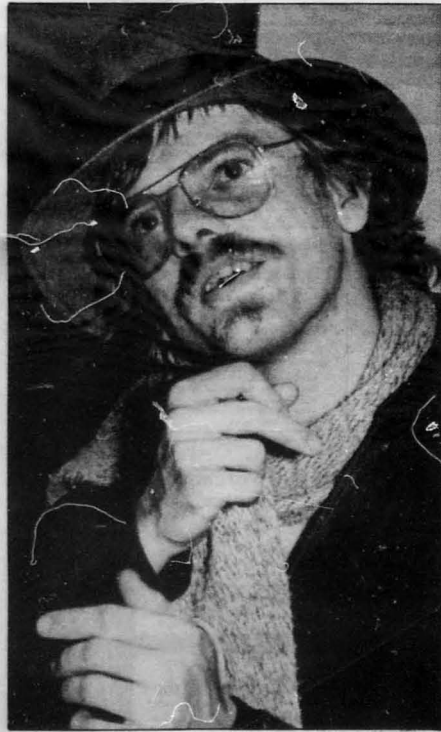

"No one can say no to day care" Attard said.

Kelly suggested a cooperative day care center be built on campus allowing students who could not afford the service to donate their time for payment. Kelly questioned the need for an additional fee to support Rainbow's End.

Lack of central parking space was also an issue.

A central parking facility for students on campus is expensive, according to Kelly, but so are parking tickets. Kelly suggested the University use half of the money from

$1 trillion plan to trim deficit OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Budget Committee approved a $1 trillion spending plan Wednesday aimed at shrinking the federal deficit with a mix of program cuts and an $18.5 billion tax and revenue package.

On the other side of Capitol Hill, debate began in the House on a similar plan, described by House Budget Committee Chairman William Gray, D-Pa., as "the best choice" for tailoring domestic and military programs to fit spending restraints.

Each plan offers an alternative to the $1.02 trillion spending proposal offered by President Reagan, who wants to increase military spending while trimming the deficit with domestic spending cuts, sales of government assets and new fees for people who use federal lands and waterways.

"Those are the wrong priorities, and we took another direction," Gray said as he introduced his committee's proposal on the House floor for two days of scheduled debate.

Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio, the committee's ranking Republican, labeled the proposal "a typical Democrats' budget — tax and spend, tax and spend."

Mumps epidemic hasn't flown south to SIU-C

By Tracy Bartoni
Staff Writer

SIU-C students have escaped the lumps and bumps of a mumps epidemic that is plaguing college students in northern Illinois.

Dr. Lawrence Frisch of the SIU-C Health Service said no cases of mumps on campus have been reported — at least to his knowledge.

"SIU-C is not part of the epidemic going on up north, but there is no reason to believe it won't," he said.

Compared to the number of number of reported cases of mumps since Jan. 1 in Illinois has increased nearly 800 percent, said Susan McSherry, immunization representative from the Illinois Department of Public Health.

Illinois, which does not require immunization by law, has reported 39 percent, or 1,002, of the nation's 2,567 cases of the communicable disease, according to statistics compiled by the national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga.

Nine colleges and univer-of the 1,002 mumps cases, she said.

In 1985, the state reported only 292 cases of mumps, McSherry said. That figure jumped to 2,743 in 1986.

Mumps usually strikes children under 15, most often between 6 and 10. The infectious disease is caused by a virus that attacks the cells of the saliva glands.

Symptoms include fever and loss of appetite, followed by an earache, headache and swelling of the saliva glands.

Delayed guerrilla funeral spurs hit-and-run battles

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — At least 5,000 IRA supporters marched Wednesday through Roman Catholic areas of Belfast for the twice-delayed funeral of a slain Irish Republican Army guerrilla and fought sporadic battles with hundreds of riot police. No injuries were reported. Hours after Lawrence Marley's body was buried, hundreds of masked youths operating in dozen-strong gangs fought hit-and-run battles with police in Catholic West Belfast, hijacked more than 20 buses and cars and hurled Molotov cocktails at security forces.

Wounded Palestinians evacuated from camp

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Wounded Palestinians were evacuated Wednesday from the Shatila refugee camp where Syrian troops one day earlier ended a five-month siege by the Shiite Moslem Amal militia. Yellow bulldozers cleared away earthen barricades and piles of garbage from the camp's entrance and streets to permit ambulances inside the shantytown in south Beirut to remove 23 wounded residents.

Loophole allows Japanese to plan whale hunt

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan plans to hunt hundreds of whales in the Antarctic for research and eventual consumption under a loophole in an international ban on commercial whaling, Japanese officials said Wednesday. Japanese officials acknowledged the plan could provoke retaliation by the United States. The U.S. Embassy in Tokyo declined comment on the plan, which was submitted March 31 to the International Whaling Commission for review before a June meeting of its scientific committee.

Divers find 123 bodies in wreck of ferry

ZEBRUGGE, Belgium (UPI) — Divers located 123 bodies in the wreck of the British ferry Herald of Free Enterprise, raising the known death toll to 184 in one of Europe's worst peacetime disasters, authorities said Wednesday. The search of the auto ferry, which capsized and sank March 6 with more than 500 people aboard, was suspended at midnight because of the danger to divers working in submerged portions of the vessel.

Wisconsin teen-ager receives Jarvik heart

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — A Wisconsin teen-ager with congenital heart failure Wednesday became the youngest person in the world to receive a Jarvik 7-70 artificial heart, and may have suffered brain damage during the five-hour operation, doctors said. Christopher Larson, 15, of Esdalesville, Wis., was listed in very critical condition Wednesday night after receiving the smaller version of the artificial heart, which is aimed at keeping him alive until he can receive a permanent human heart. Such a condition is common for patients who have just undergone such surgery.

Apartment building, store collapse; 5 dead

NEW YORK (UPI) — An apartment building and a grocery store collapsed after an explosion Wednesday in the rundown South Bronx, killing at least five people, injuring 24 and trapping at least three under the rubble, officials said. Police and firefighters struggled to reach two people who lay motionless beneath piles of bricks and lumber, but they also were feared to have perished in the collapse, which was believed to have been caused by a natural gas explosion.

Air traffic controllers' errors on the rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Operational errors by air traffic controllers increased by 18 percent during the year ended last month, far short of the 2 percent reduction the Federal Aviation Administration set as its goal, an agency official said Wednesday. Many of the errors appear to be caused by poor communication, lack of coordination and ineffective use of equipment, Keith Potts, associate administrator for air traffic control, said in an internal message to FAA controllers.

ABC, CBS reject binding arbitration proposal

NEW YORK (UPI) — ABC has joined CBS in rejecting a proposal from striking news writers that both sides submit their differences to binding arbitration in an effort to end a five-week-old walkout. ABC confirmed a report Tuesday by the Writers Guild of America that the network had turned down the proposal. Network spokesmen would give no reason for the decision. Guild spokesman Martin Waldman said the proposal was made last Friday and the delay in ABC's response led the union to believe the network was seriously considering it.

'Underrepresented' city voters' turnout low

By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer

The Carbondale neighborhood that has provided the majority of City Council candidates in recent years — the Southwest side — came out to vote in force in Tuesday's general election.

However, relatively few people cast ballots in the neighborhood that unsuccessful mayoral candidate Norvell Haynes claims is underrepresented.

Haynes claimed throughout the campaign that the predominately white, affluent Southwest side had an unfair voting advantage in the city and on the council. Similarly, he said the predominantly black and largely student Northeast side had an unfair advantage because its residents constituted a minority of city voters and because three of the five current council members are from that neighborhood.

In each of the two neighborhoods there are five main precincts.

On the Southwest side of town there are 2,620 registered voters, 44 percent of them — or 1,160 people — voted Tuesday. On the Northeast side, there are 214 more registered voters for a total of 2,834 people. Of that total, about 18 percent — or 506 people cast ballots.

As a rule, city elections do not receive as high a voter turnout as state or national elections, said Robert Harrell, Jackson County Clerk.

But the ward-alder-man referendum, which Haynes said would most benefit blacks and students, was expected by political observers to increase the voting percentages in those two groups.

How Many Voted

Total ballots cast	2,871
Voter turnout	17 percent

Total ballots cast	1,160
Voter turnout	44 percent
Northeast Neighborhood (5 precincts)
Registered voters	2,834

Archie Jones, the only black to have sat on the council in recent years, said while he expected a higher overall voter turnout from the Northeast side, he thought Haynes was "a little" optimistic about how many people would vote in favor of the referendum.

"I know so many people who did not support it," Jones said.

He did say he was glad, though, that the people elected a minority candidate to the city council. He was referring to Richard Morris, a black, who received the most votes of the four council candidates.

SIU-C student Dave Madlener, who helped get the referendum on the ballot, said that while he felt there was a good turnout on the Northeast side, students in other areas did not vote.

One reason more people didn't vote, he said, is that they didn't feel it would make any difference.

"When a group of people are historically underrepresented, or feel they are underrepresented over a number of years, they won't go out and vote," Madlener said.

There wasn't a lack of support for the ward-alderman system, though, he said. "I think there's a lot of interest in favor of it, but more against it."

The precincts in both neighborhoods showed voting increases in overall ballots cast in the 1985 election. But the most significant increases came from the five precincts on the Southwest side.

In the 1985 general election for City Council, 904 of the registered voters living south of Rt. 13 and west of Oakland Ave., about 31 percent, cast a ballot.

This year the number of registered voters on the Southwest side was 2,620, down from 2,930 two years ago. However, a higher percentage of voters (44 percent) turned out.

The number of registered voters living east of the railroad tracks and north of E. Freeman and College streets also showed a decrease since 1985 when there were 3,183 people registered. In that election there was 15 percent voter turnout on the Northeast side.

The vote count will be made official in the ballot canvass at 2:30 p.m. Monday, April 13 in the mayor's office, 607 E. College.

contention in February to support a possible White House bid by U.S. Sen. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas. Bumpers, however, withdrew a month later and Simon reconsidered his earlier decision.

"I told him that he has to do it soon because his indecision has got everyone else strung out on other candidates," Demuzio said. After Simon's decision in February, Illinois Democrats began talking to other candidates.

"It's a good idea to move early to 'test the waters,'" Shelby said.

He added that Simon's apparent ability to be elected isn't limited to Illinois.

"Simon is well known in certain circles of the Democratic Party but not in others," Shelby said. "But he doesn't fit the mold of most politicians and I think most people want that."

Democrats of Lehman's district in Miami, Fla., "are well aware" of Simon because of his 1984 defeat of three-term incumbent Charles Percy for the Illinois senate seat, Shelby added. "Percy was a powerful senator."

Carle said many of those who voted for Reagan in the president's landslide 1984 election switched over and voted for Simon. "Percy didn't get all of the Republican voters who voted for Reagan," he said.

Washington threatens opposition

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Harold Washington Wednesday warned machine Democrats who opposed his successful re-election bid to come into his fold or their political life could be over.

"I'm simply saying to the party unless you clean up your act, you won't exist—period," Washington told a City Hall news conference one day after becoming the first mayor to win reelection to a second term since the powerful Richard J. Daley a decade ago.

"It is very urgent that the Democratic Party of Cook County clean up its act," Washington said.

Washington, who described Tuesday's victory as a vote against the machine politics of the past, scored a decisive victory over his two challengers.

With 98.76 percent of the vote counted, Washington received 591,220 votes, or 53.19 percent, of the approximately 1.1 million votes cast.

Edward Vrdolyak, chairman of the Cook County Democratic Party who led the mayor's City Council opposition in the infamous "Council Wars" battles that marred Washington's first term in office, picked up 41.75 percent as a third-party candidate.

Republican Don Haider, a Northwestern University professor who also dropped his Democratic Party affiliation to run as the GOP nominee, received only about 4 percent of the vote.

Washington insisted his victory was a "mandate" for the continuation of his reform-style administration, but refused to liken himself to the legendary Daley, the "Boss" of machine politics who was serving his fifth term in office when he died in 1976.

"If you mean leader, first among equals ... prestige in office, those kind of things, yeah, there's power there," he said. "But not 'Boss.' 'Boss' is just a misnomer in this situation. That concept just doesn't exist anymore."

Racism is not dead on U.S. campuses

SEVERAL INCIDENTS OF racially motivated violence on college campuses across the country seem to indicate an upsurge of racism among students. At The Citadel, a military academy in South Carolina, five white cadets entered the dorm room of a black cadet and burned a paper cross. A wooden cross was set ablaze in the front yard of a black sorority house on the University of Alabama's predominantly white Greek row.

The problem is not limited to the traditionally less tolerant South. At Columbia University in New York, four white students beat a young black student in a racially motivated assault. Dartmouth, once considered the least prejudiced of the nation's Ivy League schools, also has experienced various episodes of racial intolerance during the past year.

The rising tide of racism is not confined to America's college campuses. Racial tensions have flared from Howard Beach, N.Y., to Cumming, Ga., to Tampa, Fla. This does not bode well for a country that just a few years ago prided itself on the progress it had made toward racial harmony.

No one should expect the nation's campuses to be isolated from the trends taking place in society as a whole. After all, the campuses are merely a microcosm of American society. But it is disappointing that the institutions America has looked to for so long as examples of progress and enlightenment have been poisoned by such a base sentiment as racism.

THE RESURGENCE OF racism on America's college campuses comes at a time when black student enrollment is declining across the nation. (Whether the two trends are related is uncertain.) At the start of the decade, blacks constituted about 11 percent of all undergraduates enrolled in the nation's universities. In the 1984-85 school year, black enrollment dropped to 8.8 percent.

At the same time, the number of black high school graduates going on to higher education dropped from a high of 50 percent in 1977 to 42 percent in 1985. The percentage of whites going on to college, almost identical to the black rate in 1977, ballooned to 59 percent.

The problem is nearly as bad among graduate and professional students. According to the American Council on Education, black enrollment in graduate and professional schools declined 11.9 percent between 1980 and 1984. The percentage of black faculty and administrators at America's colleges decreased by 4.3 percent in that period.

What are the reasons behind the declining black enrollment? Many point to cuts made by the Reagan administration in student loan programs and the gutting of affirmative action policies. According to the national College Board, federal aid to postsecondary students has dropped from $22.2 billion to $20.7 billion since 1980. The president's budget calls for another $2 billion cut in 1988.

Since census data indicates that blacks are more than twice as likely as whites to live below the poverty line, the cuts hit aspiring black college students particularly hard.

The Reagan administration also has been lax in its duty to see that colleges and universities are following affirmative action guidelines. Only four of the 18 states ordered in 1970 to step up desegregation have managed to increase the proportion of minority enrollment in their universities.

SO FAR, SIU-C seems to have been spared the national trends of racism and declining black enrollment. Combined undergraduate and graduate black student enrollment actually increased, from 8.96 percent of the University population in the spring of 1986 to 9.07 percent in the spring of 1987. The number of black males and females hired by the University also has been increasing.

But numbers do not tell the whole story. Although no incidents of racial violence have been reported at SIU-C, that does not mean the campus is free of racism. On the contrary, some would argue just the opposite. For instance, in his visit to campus in February, distinguished black alumnus Dick Gregory called SIU-C "a white-racist institution."

It is up to all students and employees at this University to prove Gregory wrong and finally lay to rest the specter of ignorance and intolerance that is racism.

Letters

Letter took a cheap shot at 'racist race'

This in response to the letter by Ernest Brown (4-6). I am not one those foreign students that your letter was aimed at. However, after reading your letter, I found myself wondering if you were actually interested in the lack of involvement and socialization of these students, or if the letter was just one more cheap shot at the so-called "racist-race."

Yes, there is racism on campus. There is racism everywhere. It exists, however, for two reasons, not only one as you so boldly implied. There is, of course, the obvious reason — some people are racist. Surprisingly enough, Mr. Brown, racism extends much farther than the white community. No group is exempt. The other reason is that there are people like you who fail to recognize that not everyone is a racist. Within each ethnic group, racists are a minority. When a person accuses an entire ethnic group of being racist on account of the actions of a few, they have just created a prejudice of their own. Is it fair to assume that since you are prejudiced against me (I am white; therefore I am racist), that everyone of your race, creed or color is also prejudiced?

If you will only look around campus, you will see that there are many exclusively black clubs or organizations. (This is, of course, true of many ethnic groups). Just for the fact that white people are excluded from such clubs, should I be insulted? Should I say these clubs and their members are racist? No, instead I choose to look deeper into the situation and realize that the reason many people belong to such clubs is because they are proud of their heritage and are interested in associating with others of similar heritage.

As for the amount of racism at SIU-C or wherever you go, I would like to say, if you look for it, you will find it. Think before you accuse, Mr. Brown. It is just as easy as childishly stereotyping thousands of people. — Sandra Nowers, mathematics.

Brown's assumption is groundless, racist

This is in response to Ernest Brown's assumption and quick conclusion about racist and segregated foreigners. We feel that your assumption is erroneous. You cannot judge all foreign students by the group that you encountered at the Student Center. There are American students who do the same. Have you realized that?

Maybe you should take the initiative of getting to know them. You should learn something about their background, culture and country by reading as much as you can. Be well informed and talk to them intelligently. And for goodness sake, do not ask them if they live in trees back home. We have had many American students ask us if Malaysia is in China. That shows how ignorant some Americans really are.

We would like to say that we do not isolate ourselves and neither do we feel that we are "smarter than the average white" on campus. You, Mr. Brown, are the one who is racist. You mentioned only whites on campus. What has happened to the blacks? Re-examine yourself, Mr. Brown, and get your facts straight. —

Suttipong Wisessang and Jayanthi Sothirajah, graduate students, telecommunications

Black studies can turn hatred to tolerance

I am concerned about the future of the Black American Studies program at Southern Illinois University.

At a time when racial tension is increasing on college campuses and society in general, SIU-C seems to be reducing its commitment to a program which is designed to educate students on the problems of racism.

It should be obvious to all that Black American Studies courses should be an important part of the general curriculum of every university and college.

When I was informed that the University had removed several Black American Studies courses from the general education curriculum, I was angered and dismayed. I think this action on the part of the University was racist and reprehensible.

In this world there is a lot of hate. Maybe we could turn some of that hate into tolerance if not love through enlightenment which can be gained by taking courses offered by the Black American Studies Program. — Karen Evatis Rainey, secretary of the Black Together Organization and junior in speech communication.

NOW THAT the Student Programming Council has opened up applications for next year's chairperson positions, new opportunities open up for students interested in working in the business world. The Undergraduate Student Organization's belittling of the SPC's budget will require budget-conscious programmers.

While the SPC's main charter is to provide diverse, low-cost activities for the SIUC community, it is also a laboratory of success. The SPC consists of chairpersons and committees. Committee members responsibilities include a wide range of activities such as stage crew, security, hospitality, photography, graphic arts, advertising, promotion and production and packaging, video production and editing, video documentaries of performances, Fine Arts program production and craft sales and so on goes the list. Chairperson responsibilities include public relations with the university and the community, fiscal and committee responsibilities and management, program planning, negotiation of contracts with agents, overall program packaging plus the task of being a full-time student. After all, it is the Student Programming Council.

AFTER EACH EVENT is over, detailed reports are made of many aspects of that event. The financial management, production, promotion, attendance demographics and impact of the event are all evaluated and recorded for posterity. The SPC's detailed reports are utilized for the planning of future new programs and revision of old, ineffective programs. The example of this year's film program comes to mind. While this year's esoteric film program will likely show a year-end loss, the films that bombed this year will serve as a lesson to future film chairpersons. Last year's Film Chair, Rich Grost, made money hand over fist while providing such diverse entertainment as the controversial "Hail Mary." By cutting budgets of programs that experience lemons, the USO encourages extinction, not evolution.

IF THE USO is going to cut budgets solely on the aspect of whether a program chases the almighty dollar successfully, then it should re-evaluate its charter. If the majority of SIUC students are indeed being represented by the USO and if the USO is becoming a business venture that takes Johnny's allowance away when he misbehaves, then the USO should look at other organizations, programs, activities, etc. they fund that don't make money and cut their budgets in proportion to the SPC's. It is quite strange to see the SPC's budget cut when last year they received an increase. In the fall of 1986, a USO administered poll asked: "Should organizations like the SPC's funding be cut to give more money to other RSOs?" Funding of SPC was favored over funding cuts by a majority of SIUC students interviewed.

YET ANOTHER angle on the SPC budget is that Miller beer has eliminated the entire Miller Rock Series. This is the series which brought us all the bands at all the Springfests and all the Saturday night bands that played at the last Halloweens. Some students may remember rumblings that Miller was going to pull out of Halloween 1986 and then the Daily Egyptian headline ran that stated "Miller Supports a Rockin' Halloween" and SPC got their money and the SIUC students got a shiny Miller Calendar for free in the DE. The fact was that John Earls of Southern Illinois Wholesale called me and told me that he wanted the Saturday night entertainment cut because he was "pressured by merchants." Seeing as Bud'slick and Company's American Tap is Illinois' largest Miller account, it seemed logical that Mr. Earls was feeling pressure. So Mr. Earls suggested to me that the SPC start the bands at 4 p.m. and end them at 8:00 p.m. so as not to compete with sparse business on Illinois Avenue Saturday night of Halloween. Only because an alumnus of the SPC was in a top-level position at Gary Reynolds and Associates, the firm that handles Miller's advertising account, was SPC able to receive any money for this last Halloween. At any rate say goodbye to $10,000 worth of programming at Springfest and Halloween at the hands of Miller Beer and those who sell it.

NOW, PERHAPS some will join me in not drinking Miller products. Perhaps a few SIUC students will join me in calling Phil Lyons or the Budget Director or their Senator at the USO office (536-3381) and ask them how we can stop them cutting our programs like Springfest and Films, our alumnus programs like Homecoming and our Parents' programs like Parent's Day.

I'm certain that the SPC can survive USO's budget cuts, cuts which total the costs of the last three Springfests or one Fabulous Thunderbirds-Scorchers concert or one UB40 concert or nearly two Summer Sunset Concert Series, or three Stanley Clarke concerts. Perhaps the SPC can survive and perhaps SIUC students want their fun. Perhaps someone is grinding an axe for SPC.

Brian Elmore is a senior in psychology and computer information processing. He has also served as SPC executive chair.

Letters

Students are victims of colonialism

"Why do foreign students remain isolated?" asked a letter published on April 6. There is no simple answer to that question. Almost three years as a foreign student on U.S. campuses has enabled me to develop several hypotheses.

First, a lesson in history. I hazard that more than 90 of the foreign students on this campus come from those nations that were, during recent history, under the dominance of some colonial power.

The most damaging result of colonialism was the displacement of native cultures. Exchange of ideas is to be welcomed in any society. But in our case here, there was no semblance whatsoever of an exchange. The colonials had motives far removed from gentle intercourse. The native cultures were penetrated and ravaged with terrible speed and intensity. In the wake of this onslaught, there remained but remnants of once-dignified people, now divested of their languages, gods, kings and heroes. "Who are these fearful people before whom our gods and our fathers tremble? Our warriors outnumber them one to a hundred, but they reduce

Under the new alien masters the people search for their lost honor and dignity. Abnegation and self-hate follow. One by one, the weak and then the doughy among them, succumb to the splendor of the conquering armies, singing along with them "Rule, Britannia, Rule."

Today, these nations (save a few) are proudly independent. But we forget history. The colonial masters retreated but left all their baggage behind. (By baggage I mean Christianity, railroads and all that....) It is a characteristic feature of any slave-master relationship that the slaves begin to look up to the ways of the master, emulating his refined manners. "Why refined?" you ask. Why did Gandhi decide to wear a top hat and take dance lessons when he first visited England?

The colonial experience caused the spontaneous generation of a new-culture among the native elements, given to drooling adoration of the ways of the white colonial masters. This breed of sycophants believed that liberty, democracy, the industrial revolution, and by the white man. They found them tucked away in the viceroy's attic, I suppose.

Have I answered the question, "Why do foreign students remain isolated?" Yes, I believe I have. At least for those students from the old colonies.

These students suffer from an inferiority complex. It is pathetic, but one explanation for the shuffling diffidence is a lack of confidence in themselves and their people. Their tongues recite from Shakespeare, Newton and Blake but their hearts ache for utterance. They are "natives" looking terribly ridiculous in their blue-jeans and rocking to Bruce Springsteen.

No, Mr. Ernest Brown, they don't consider themselves superior in intelligence. On the contrary, they are only piqued when you don't notice how Westernized they have become. Pat them on the head when you meet them the next time.

You seem to have a penchant for raising embarrassing questions, Mr. Brown. —Verghese Jacob, graduate,

Career Day for future teachers set

Career Day is nothing to be taken lightly, says Donald Beggs, dean of the College of Education.

Career Day is open to anyone who has a teaching certificate, or who is about to receive a certificate, Beggs said.

Career Day is set for 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 15 in the Student Center ballrooms. The College of Education has invited midwestern schools here to give graduating seniors a chance to make contact with prospective employers, Beggs said.

"Career Day gives students a chance to present themselves, get a feel for the job market and a better understanding of their competition," Beggs said.

Schools are serious about wanting to hire," says John Allen, Department of Recreation chairman. Employers accepting the Career Day invitation must have job openings, Allen said.

Allen said 36 of the schools invited already have accepted and 50 are expected to accept.

Most of these schools are from the Midwest; however, there are schools coming from as far away as California and Georgia, Allen said.

Music professor to give recital

Marianne Webb, professor of music, will perform an organ recital at 8 p.m. Friday in Shryock Auditorium.

Webb will play Olivier Messiaen's "La Nativite du Seigneur," a set of nine meditations based on Biblical tales surrounding the nativity of Christ.

Webb will be accompanied with Scripture readings by the Rev. Lewis A. Payne of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church. Admission is free.

Last month this ad ran in the Daily Egyptian:

John,
It's been a year since the night at Fred's. Hope no one "drops in" on us this time
Happy Anniversary
Love,
Amy

As you can read, not only was the Fred's name mentioned but the ad was designed to titillate and arouse the general public interest.

Well John and Amy, since the Fred's name was used Fred has the right to know what really happened.

What do you mean by "drop in"? Did you meet at Fred's, go home and then become interrupted while you were involved in discourse, ie: mutual exchange, or were you still at Fred's and someone just fell on your table? Fred's has a reputation to maintain and we need to know if some form of sleazy, social interruptus took place on our dance floor or in our lofts.

John and Amy, in light of the recent scandals such as Fawn Hall, Jimmy Bakker and Vava White you both need to come forward and expose yourselves, letting us know who you are so we may clarify the situation.

Another thing, why and what has been a whole year? Is it that you haven't done whatever you alluded to for a whole year, or is it that you haven't been to Fred's for a whole year? If you haven't been to Fred's in a year, we think you should come back; we miss you. If instead it's been a whole year since you did whatever tawdry thing you do, why so long? Was it that good or that bad, or do you need a year to recuperate and regenerate?

We hope meeting at Fred's didn't keep you apart for a year. Please don't be embarrassed, meeting at Fred's is very respectable; no one will laugh.

Visiting artist encourages 'seeing and touching' art

By Laura Milbrath
Staff Writer

Stephen De Staebler says he should have known when he was 6 years old he was destined to become a sculptor.

As he sat at the dinner table each evening waiting for his parents to finish eating so dessert could be served, his little hands would begin to reach for objects to touch. His exasperated father, he says, usually would end up shouting at some point during the meal, "Stop fondling the butter!"

DE STAEBLER HAS moved away from fondling butter to creating beautiful and unique sculptured art made from clay and bronze. He has been commissioned to sculpt for museums, universities and churches, and his work has been exhibited in Japan, California and New York.

Speaking Friday at the Student Center as part of the SUC Visiting Artist Program, De Staebler recalled that although he always had been interested in art, he did not take up sculpting until he attended the University of California at Berkeley as a graduate student and decided to take a course in it.

De Staebler said he feels too many people view sculpture as a piece of art only to be looked at and not to be touched.

"I THINK SCULPTURE really is about the feel of things," he said. "You go look at sculpture and they won't let you feel it. We're not in a society that is particularly sensitive to touch."

To find the inspiration for his sculptures, De Staebler often works for hours until he is almost exhausted. "That's the very time when inspiration might take over," he said.

Another creative technique he likes to use is to turn off all the lights in the room. He explained, "As you see less and less, you're freer. Instead of your eyes making the decision, your hands make the decision, and they often know more than we give them credit for."

DE STAEBLER DESIGNED the sanctuary of a Berkeley church in which such elements as the chairs and altar were locked or fused into the floor. De Staebler said he had wanted to create the image of all of the elements "merging out of the earth."

In 1970, he was commissioned to create a sculpture for a rapid transit station in San Francisco. He made water flow over a cement backdrop to create a unique vision and said he found water "to be an incredible medium."

Once, when a large sculpture of De Staebler's was being displayed in a museum, De Staebler asked the museum guards to allow children to walk on it. "Touching through your feet is probably one of the most underrated experiences," he said.

HIS DESIRE FOR his works to be felt and explored is not always accepted easily by some people because so many view art as fragile.

De Staebler explained that at one museum, people were so fearful of getting close to a sculptured chair he had designed that signs were put up to encourage them to sit in it and enjoy their feelings.

Color is one of the most neglected elements in sculpture, De Staebler said. He has discovered that painting his sculptures often adds to the feelings they project but said he never stops to plan where the paint will be placed on the object. It is a "fantastic freedom to not have to think about what I'm going to paint," he said. "I just let the impulse take over."

APPECIATING A WORK of art is a different experience for each person, De Staebler said.

"When you look at a work, it doesn't matter what the artist was thinking. It's what you get out of it," he said.

He compared enjoying art to looking at images in the clouds. Every minute there are new ideas and feelings, he said.

De Staebler often goes into his studio without a definite idea in mind because it helps him to explore and experiment with many different thoughts.

"You can say you're working best when you don't know what you're doing," he said.

OFTEN, HE WORKS on several sculptured objects simultaneously because there is enormous pressure involved in concentrating on just one work.

"A lot of times you will go for months without working on one piece," he said.

Once, he used a certain sculpture as the object on which to take out all his bad impulses and ideas. "Poor scapegoat thing," he said, chuckling.

De Staebler says he often feels students in art classes have their creative impulses destroyed because of deadline pressures.

"Art was never meant to be crammed into one semester," he said.

Birds 'strutting' on runway put airplane pilots on alert

JACKSON, Wyo. (UPI) — In the spring, the male sage grouse's fancy turns to hens. In Grand Teton National Park, that means pilots using Jackson Hole Airport have to be on the alert for birds strutting their stuff on the runway.

Park Naturalist Linda Olson said the airport was built on a centuries-old mating ground.

"When the runway was built, they just still considered that to be part of their display ground and continued to use it," Olson said. "I think what they are looking for is a flat, open area that doesn't have any sagebrush or anything around it so while the males are displaying, the hens can watch them."

Airport Manager Carol Lewis said the birds began the mating ritual this week and it usually continues for about five weeks. During that time, runways are checked before takeoffs and landings to be sure no birds are in the way.

DE STAEBLER DESIGNED the sanctuary of a Berkeley church in which such elements as the chairs and altar were locked or fused into the floor. De Staebler said he had wanted to create the image of all of the elements "merging out of the earth."

In 1970, he was commissioned to create a sculpture for a rapid transit station in San Francisco. He made water flow over a cement backdrop to create a unique vision and said he found water "to be an incredible medium."

Once, when a large sculpture of De Staebler's was being displayed in a museum, De Staebler asked the museum guards to allow children to walk on it. "Touching through your feet is probably one of the most underrated experiences," he said.

HIS DESIRE FOR his works to be felt and explored is not always accepted easily by some people because so many view art as fragile.

De Staebler explained that at one museum, people were so fearful of getting close to a sculptured chair he had designed that signs were put up to encourage them to sit in it and enjoy their feelings.

Color is one of the most neglected elements in sculpture, De Staebler said. He has discovered that painting his sculptures often adds to the feelings they project but said he never stops to plan where the paint will be placed on the object. It is a "fantastic freedom to not have to think about what I'm going to paint," he said. "I just let the impulse take over."

APPECIATING A WORK of art is a different experience for each person, De Staebler said.

"When you look at a work, it doesn't matter what the artist was thinking. It's what you get out of it," he said.

He compared enjoying art to looking at images in the clouds. Every minute there are new ideas and feelings, he said.

De Staebler often goes into his studio without a definite idea in mind because it helps him to explore and experiment with many different thoughts.

"You can say you're working best when you don't know what you're doing," he said.

OFTEN, HE WORKS on several sculptured objects simultaneously because there is enormous pressure involved in concentrating on just one work.

"A lot of times you will go for months without working on one piece," he said.

Once, he used a certain sculpture as the object on which to take out all his bad impulses and ideas. "Poor scapegoat thing," he said, chuckling.

De Staebler says he often feels students in art classes have their creative impulses destroyed because of deadline pressures.

"Art was never meant to be crammed into one semester," he said.

Birds 'strutting' on runway put airplane pilots on alert

JACKSON, Wyo. (UPI) — In the spring, the male sage grouse's fancy turns to hens. In Grand Teton National Park, that means pilots using Jackson Hole Airport have to be on the alert for birds strutting their stuff on the runway.

Park Naturalist Linda Olson said the airport was built on a centuries-old mating ground.

"When the runway was built, they just still considered that to be part of their display ground and continued to use it," Olson said. "I think what they are looking for is a flat, open area that doesn't have any sagebrush or anything around it so while the males are displaying, the hens can watch them."

Airport Manager Carol Lewis said the birds began the mating ritual this week and it usually continues for about five weeks. During that time, runways are checked before takeoffs and landings to be sure no birds are in the way.

parking fines to build a parking facility on campus.

The building of a garage on campus would cost over $1.5 million and the money would likely come from an increase in fines, Attard said. He proposed a transportation system that would bring students from distant campus parking sites to a central location on campus.

Attard is the USO vice president and said if elected he has the experience to get things rolling. He is a finance major and a member of Delta Chi, and Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternities.

Kelly said that access to higher education is eroding and he wants to restore access to the University. A native of Carbondale, Kelly is a non-traditional student with a degree in mathematics. He was the president of Synergy Student Auxiliary and president of the student senate in high school.

Swelling of the sex glands also can occur. Sterility in men has been known to occur after a case of the mumps, according to the "New, Illustrated Family Medical and Health Guide."

The most extreme and dangerous effects of mumps are sterility, hearing loss or deafness, and inflammation of the brain, or encephalitis. It also can cause inflammation of the pancreas, heart problems, nerve inflammation and, in rare cases, diabetes.

Because no cure is known for mumps, its symptoms are treated to relieve discomfort and usually disappear within 10 days.

Frisch recommends that people be immunized against the virus, even though it isn't required by law. He said students can be immunized at the Health Service.

"We are very anxious that students be immunized against mumps, rubella and measles," he said.

Robert Michel of Illinois added, "It certainly looks as if a chain saw was used to make these cuts (in defense spending)."

The Senate committee's plan — a modified version of a proposal rejected last week on a 12-12 tie — won approval on a 13-11 party line vote from the Democratic-controlled panel. The measure is expected to be sent to the full Senate later this month.

Senate Budget Committee Chairman Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., said his committee's plan is intended to balance the budget by 1991.

Council discusses funding road resurfacing project

By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer

An upgrading project on two county roads south of Carbondale may receive city engineering services for resurfacing that could begin as early as May.

The City Council Monday night discussed providing engineering services to the project, but is not scheduled to vote on the matter until its next meeting April 20.

Reservoir and McLafferty roads, are scheduled to be resurfaced using more than $878,000 in federal and state funds. Because the roads are within corporate limits and improvements may affect city owned facilities, William Munson, Jackson County Superintendent of Highways, has asked the city to provide engineering services at a cost not to exceed $45,000.

Bill Dixon, city manager, said the jurisdiction may revert to the city after completion of the project, but the council is only considering providing assistance with the resurfacing.

Councilman Patrick Kelley said he was not convinced there were any advantages to city participation in the project.

The City Council also approved the city's participation in the Keep America Beautiful Program. The city has approved to apply for a $15,000 Illinois Clean and Beautiful Program grant from the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs.

The grant requires a $15,000 cash match.

The council denied a zoning change that would have permitted Michael Wadiak to build four-unit apartments at the corner of Poplar and Elm streets. Residents in the areas presented a petition to the council at its last meeting opposing the zoning change from low density to high density residential.

Advocates offer hints on 'keeping together'

By Paula Kurtzweil
Staff Writer

Kiwi Cazzaniga and David Peterson are a duo, not only in their own lives, but for the Health Advocates' speaker's bureau.

As girlfriend and boyfriend, Cazzaniga and Peterson lead discussions on healthy relationships for students who live in the residence halls.

"They know what it takes to keep together," said Pete Nabilec, a freshman who has attended one of their presentations.

"Between You and Me," which focuses on improving interpersonal relationships, is one of two presentations added to the speaker's bureau this semester.

"We're keeping up with what the students are interested in," says Patricia Fabiano, coordinator of Health Advocates.

The other new program, "How Safe Is Sex?" deals with sexually transmitted diseases.

Fabiano said the addition of the two presentations corresponds to the increased use of the speaker's program. She said 56 presentations were made during fall 1985 while 111 were made during fall 1986.

The other topics covered by the speaker's bureau are stress, birth control, sexual myths, date rape, nutrition, alcohol awareness, and drinking and driving.

Health Advocates, sponsored by the Wellness Center, began two years ago as a way to give students a chance to educate other students on health matters.

In addition to the speaker's bureau, the program consists of three wellness outreach centers, which are staffed by advocates who advise students on health concerns or make referrals. The centers are in Lentz, Trueblood and Grinnell halls.

Health advocates receive training during the spring semester by enrolling in Health Education 461. Students then may receive up to 12 credits for volunteering as an advocate through the Credit for Structured Volunteer Services.

Advocates only provide information to students living in the residence halls, but Fabiano said plans are underway to provide talks for residents of Evergreen Terrace.

She also said that characteristics of students volunteering to become health advocates are expanding. "We're training more international students, more men and more graduate students."

Researchers trace AIDS to virus in African monkeys

NEW YORK (UPI) — A virus found in African monkeys may have passed into humans and slowly evolved into the virus that causes the deadly disease AIDS, a Harvard research team said Wednesday.

Researchers at the Harvard School of Public Health cloned a recently identified AIDS-like virus found in apparently healthy African monkeys and discovered it is virtually identical to an AIDS-like virus found in two separate African monkey species.

The virus — found in both humans and monkeys — is very similar to yet another recently identified virus called LAV-2, which is believed responsible for a small percentage of acquired immune deficiency syndrome cases in humans.

"Our study would suggest monkeys share a virus with humans that is closely related to another virus known to cause AIDS in humans,"

James Mullins, assistant professor of virology at Harvard, said in a telephone interview.

Mullins said it is possible for new viruses to enter the human body and to mutate, changing their function and possibly creating previously unknown diseases.

The vast majority of AIDS cases are caused by the HIV virus first identified by French and American researchers in 1983 and 1984. However, last year researchers at the Pasteur Institute in Paris announced they found that a similar virus, LAV-2, caused AIDS in some cases.

It was quickly determined that LAV-2 is similar to a virus called STLV-3 found in African Green and Macaque monkeys.

Mullins cloned four copies of a single HTLV-4 virus from a human and compared it to STLV-3 viruses from African Green monkeys and Macaque monkeys and discovered they were virtually identical.

Shultz 'damned upset' over Soviet snooping

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz, saying "we're damned upset" about Soviet snooping at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, said Wednesday the sex-for-secrets scandal will "cast a heavy shadow" over his meetings in Moscow next week.

Shultz told a news conference that as secretary of state he takes responsibility for security lapses that allowed Soviet KGB agents access to the most sensitive areas of the embassy by enticing Marine guards with sexual affairs.

"The person in charge is the ambassador. The ambassador reports to me. So I am responsible," Shultz told reporters at the State Department.

Shultz said all steps are being taken to investigate just how serious the security lapses at the embassy were and to correct the problems.

He said that even though the U.S. government is fully aware of the fact that Soviet intelligence is constantly probing for access to official secrets, "the reality of it is a shock."

He dismissed allegations by the Soviets that the scandal is being trumped up by the United States to sabotage the chances for success of his talks in Moscow next week.

"We didn't break into their embassy. They broke into our embassy. They invaded our sovereign territory and we're damned upset about it. We're upset at them and we're also upset at ourselves and we intend to do everything we can to correct our problems," he said.

Shultz said the suggestion that he cancel his trip to Moscow next week because of the security situation has "come up from a number of quarters" but President Reagan decided he should go forward.

Soviets say spy scandal is fake

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union said Wednesday President Reagan had fabricated the embassy security crisis to undermine next week's visit to Moscow by Secretary of State George Shultz.

With only five days left before Shultz arrives for crucial talks on prospects for an intermediate-range missile agreement, the visit appeared firmly enmeshed in the U.S. Embassy sex-and-spying scandal.

"It can hardly be considered an accident that such a crucial moment, when preparations are nearing completion for the visit ... was chosen for yesterday's (Tuesday's) series of anti-Soviet pronouncements," Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Petrovsky said.

U.S. Ambassador Jack Matlock presented a formal protest to the Soviet authorities Tuesday over Soviet espionage in both the present U.S. Embassy and the new building under construction. An embassy spokesman said there had been no reply Wednesday.

In Washington, President Reagan ordered Shultz to raise the charges in Moscow that Soviet agents, with the aid of two U.S. Marines, had entered sensitive areas of the American Embassy in Moscow.

Reagan also decreed that the new U.S. Embassy, under construction since 1979 and still years from completion, remain unoccupied until it is deemed secure. Under a reciprocal agreement, the completed Soviet Embassy in Washington cannot be used before the American one.

"Everything put forward by the American side has no grounds," Petrovsky said. "It is all a fabrication. It is not serious."

Marine suspect arrested, linked to 1981 spy incident

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The sex-for-secrets scandal spread Wednesday to the U.S. consulate in Leningrad and back to 1981 with the arrest of a Marine suspected of espionage while assigned as a guard there six years ago, the Pentagon said.

Sgt. John Joseph Weirick, 26, of Eureka, Calif., was arrested Tuesday at the Marine Corps Air Station at Tustin, Calif., and was confined to the brig at Camp Pendleton, Calif., on suspicion of spying and having contacts with Soviet women while at the consulate, Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims said.

The sergeant, who is married, has not been charged with a crime. He will be transferred to the Marine base at Quantico, Va., where three other Marine suspects are being held, Sims said. Two of them have been charged with espionage.

Sims also said Staff Sgt. Robert Stufflebeam, 24, of Bloomington, was formally charged Tuesday on three counts of failing to report his contact with a Soviet woman in Moscow.

Senator wants bicyclists to walk, not ride, if drunk

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — There's a new twist to drunken driving — drunken bicycle riding.

Sen. Forest Etheredge, R-Aurora, has introduced legislation (S543) that would require bicycle riders who are under the influence of alcohol or drugs to get off their cycles and walk. He said that at least in suburban DuPage County, drunken riding is becoming an increasing problem and that his bill is meant in all seriousness.

"It sounds kind of funny, but like a lot of these things, it was brought to me by a constituent," Etheredge said Tuesday.

That constituent is Warrenville Police Chief Robert LaDeur, who said that as the state's drunken driving laws have become increasingly strict, more people are riding their bikes after drinking instead of driving their cars.

"We've been seeing drivers who have lost their licenses for DUI turning to bicycles," LaDeur said. "The problem is they're still getting intoxicated and the courts have said there's really not much we can do about it."

The state's traffic laws generally apply to bike riders, but LaDeur said one exception is drunken driving. However, he added, pedestrians — or drunken bicyclists who are walking their bikes — can be fined a maximum of $500 for being intoxicated along a roadway.

"The problem we have is that until someone falls off his bike, he's not a pedestrian," LaDeur said.

He said that if bicyclists are riding in a dangerous manner, they can be cited for improper lane usage or some other traffic offense, but he contends that traffic citations would not deter drunken riders.

"If they're weaving between lanes or something, I can get them for improper lane usage, but where's the penalty when they cause an accident and somebody gets killed?" the chief said.

Although Etheredge's bill does not call for a penalty for drunken bicycling, LaDeur suggested it be a petty offense with a maximum $500 fine.

A spokesman for Secretary of State Jim Edgar, a leading proponent of drunken driving legislation, said his boss has no position on Etheredge's bill. Gary Mack said Edgar probably will seek the advice of his Bicycle Safety Advisory Committee before coming out either for or against the legislation.

Illinois lead shot ban needed, official says

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — If Illinois doesn't resolve its 10-year-old lead shot dispute soon, the state will face federal restrictions on its best waterfowl hunting grounds, a Conservation Department official says.

T. Miller, a department biologist, said Tuesday two prime counties for waterfowl hunting — Lake and Clinton — and parts of Jefferson, Carroll, Henderson, Calhoun, Putnam, Mason and Cass counties, could be closed to hunters this fall. To prevent the restriction, he said the state now has no choice but to prohibit gradually the use of lead shot and promote steel shot.

Primarily because of hunter opposition, Illinois is the only state along the "Mississippi Flyway" — a huge waterfowl migratory path along the Mississippi River — that has yet to ban lead shot, Miller said.

Many hunters long have objected to using steel shot because it is less dense than lead shot and requires hunters to lure birds closer to hunting blinds. They also contend there is no documented evidence of significant lead poisoning in waterfowl.

But Conservation Department officials maintain that lead shot fired over waterfowl areas and later swallowed by ducks and other wildlife causes lead poisoning and reduces ability to fight off disease. Miller said lead shot is believed to kill 2 percent to 3 percent of the nation's waterfowl population annually.

With the declining waterfowl population in Illinois and other Mississippi Flyway states and tougher federal environmental regulations, he said Illinois now must move this year to begin banning lead shot.

Women's softball team drops pair to Evansville

By Wally Foreman
Staff Writer

The women's softball team dropped both games of a doubleheader to the University of Evansville Tuesday at Evansville, Ind. by the scores of 3-1 and 3-2.

The Salukis are now 12-11 overall and 3-1 in the conference.

In the opening game the Salukis scored once off seven hits and made four errors, while the Aces made the most of four hits by scoring three runs and an error. Lisa Peterson was the losing pitcher for the Salukis.

Cindy Espeland and Jenny

Shupryt were both 2-for-3 in the first game.

In the nightcap the game was tied at 2-2 thanks to a two-run homer by Shelly Gibbs until the seventh inning.

Peterson came in to relieve Stacy Coan and allowed the winning run to score in the bottom of the seventh.

Gibbs went 2-for-3 in the second game. The Salukis had four hits and one error and Evansville collected six hits and made one error.

Kerri Bladlock, from Herrin, picked up a pair of victories for the Aces by pitching two complete games.

The Salukis will host three doubleheaders in a five-game span starting Friday at the IAW Fields as the Gateway Conference race swings into action.

"We are starting a long homestand on Friday against Illinois State and during the next nine days we will be hosting five Gateway doubleheaders," coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. "This is the meat of our conference schedule. If we are to get a good seed for the conference tournament, we need to take advantage of our home field advantage and pick up as many wins as possible."

The doubleheader against the Redbirds Friday will start at 2 p.m.

Illinois State, 17-7, will be opening its Gateway slate against the Salukis and are ranked 14th nationally.

The Redbirds have two of the best pitchers in the conference in Lisa Vogel (12-6, 0.49 ERA) and Linda Welt (5-1, 0.78 ERA).

The Redbirds also have solid hitting from Kerrin Donis with a .359 batting average followed by Becky Barrigarr, .328, and Cindy Ries at .327.

The Salukis are ranked second in the conference in team batting average at .267. Illinois State is sixth with a .248 batting average.

Shupryt leads the Salukis in hitting with an average of .365 followed by Gibbs, .359, Susan Wissmiller, .356, and Espeland at .328.

At noon Saturday the Salukis will host Indiana State in a doubleheader.

The Sycamores, 11-13, lost to the Salukis 1-0 earlier this season at the Saluki Invitational in a non-conference game.

The top pitchers for the Sycamores are Wendy Dobbin (5-4, 1.90 ERA) and Mara Kanary (4-6, 1.55 ERA).

Indiana ranks third in the conference with a .248 batting average and are led by Rene Strasser with a .376 batting average. Strasser has 32 hits, 11 RBI and has scored 17 runs.

Fielders sign twins, four others

By SIU Sports Information

Coach Julee Illner has announced the signing of six field hockey recruits who will compete at SIU-C.

Identical twins Chris and Cas Dickerson of Stafford, Va., Lisa Biondo of Amherst, N.Y., Laura Duffy of Homewood, San Dee Dekker of Flossmoor and Cathy Dahlquist of Deerfield will join the Saluki fielders next fall.

SIU-C, 9-8-3 last season, will lose eight starters to graduation, including the entire front line. With two returning fulltime starters and a goalie who split playing time last year, Illner expects three and possibly four of the recruits to start.

The Dickerson twins, who come from an area noted for strong field hockey, are both expected to take starting roles. Illner describes Cas as the stronger defensive player while Chris is stronger offensively. Both players are quick and have good speed, Illner said.

The pair attended the same (North Stafford) high school as returning Saluki goalie Chris James. In 1985, their high school team won a state championship.

Biondo, another probable starter as a freshman, will likely play in a forward position for SIU-C.

Biondo was a second team All-Star in 1985 and made first team this season. As a senior, her Sweet Hone high school team went 12-0 and won a division championship. At SIU-C, Biondo plans to major in physical education.

Dahlquist, whom Illner describes as the "sleeper" in her recruiting class, probably has the greatest potential of any recruit because of her untapped talent. While most of this year's field hockey recruits have some soccer background, Dahlquist has an extensive background in that sport as well as field hockey.

As a senior, Dahlquist was named All-State after serving as captain and MVP of a team that placed second in the state for the second consecutive year. At SIU-C, Dahlquist plans to major in clothing and textiles.

The two other recruits, Duffy and Dekker, both played at Homewood-Flossmoor high school, where their team finished fourth in the state this past season.

Duffy, an honorable mention All-State pick her senior year, was a two-year varsity starter and is expected to see playing time this fall as either a halfback or sweeper.

Campanis resigns after racist slur

By Jeff Hasen
UPI Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Dodgers Vice President Al Campanis, who told a nationally-televised audience that blacks lacked the "necessities" to become baseball managers, Wednesday resigned under pressure from team officials and political and civil rights figures.

A Dodgers spokesman said owner Peter O'Malley asked for and received the resignation. The team said executive vice-president Fred Claire would temporarily handle Campanis' duties.

On the ABC program "Nightline" Monday, Campanis was asked by host Ted Koppel why there are no black managers, general managers or owners in the major leagues.

"The only thing I can say is that you have to pay your dues when you become a manager," Campanis responded. "Generally, you have to go to minor leagues. There's not very much pay involved, and some of the better-known black players have been able to get into other fields and make a pretty good living in that way."

Asked if he thought racial prejudice still existed in baseball, Campanis said, "No, I don't believe it's prejudice. I truly believe that they may not have some of the necessities to be, let's say, a field manager, or perhaps a general manager. "So it just might be — why are black men, or black people, not good swimmers?" he said. "They just don't have the buoyancy."

Campanis, calling it "the saddest moment of my entire career," Tuesday released a statement apologizing for the comments. Vice president for player personnel for the Dodgers for 19 years, Campanis, 70, had served as player, scout, manager and instructor in the Dodgers organization since the 1940s.

Campanis played alongside Jackie Robinson in 1946 when Robinson broke into organized baseball as a members of the Montreal Royals, a Dodger farm team. Only three black men have managed in the major leagues: Frank Robinson, Larry Doby and Maury Wills. Doby and Wills each managed less than a full season. Robinson managed the Indians from 1975-1977 and the Giants from 1981-1984.

During a news conference Wednesday, both the NAACP and the American Civil Liberties Union said Campanis' apology Tuesday missed the point.

"Blacks should be hired in key management positions and there is no justification for their exclusion," said Raymond Johnson Jr., president of the NAACP's Los Angeles chapter.

Johnson challenged Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth and O'Malley to establish an aggressive affirmative action hiring program.

ACLU representative Mark Rosenbaum, who joined Johnson at the news conference, said racism has long been a part of baseball. "For years the color line has been synonymous with the baseline," he said.

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley said Tuesday that he "does not accept" Campanis' beliefs.

O'Malley said in a statement issued by the club Tuesday that Campanis had erred.

"The Los Angeles Dodgers deeply regret and apologize for the statements made last night by Vice President Al Campanis," O'Malley said. "Furthermore, as far as the Dodgers are concerned, black Americans are just as capable and dedicated as any other Americans and therefore equally as qualified to hold positions of responsibility, whether in baseball or any other field of endeavor.

Admission ban reigns Mustangs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Southern Methodist University will continue its ban on special admissions for athletes although the Mustangs will become "noncompetitive" in big-time sports unless other schools adopt similar standards, a school official said Wednesday.

Dallas oilman Ray L. Hunt, chairman of SMU's interim executive committee, told a meeting of the American Society of Newspapers Editors that SMU's ban on accepting athletes who cannot meet normal admission requirements will remain in place.

"Currently, the vast majority of (NCAA) Division I schools allow highly recruited athletes to be enrolled, even though their academic records would have prohibited them from being enrolled were they not athletes," Hunt said.

"SMU has adopted a policy of not admitting any prospective student — no matter how good an athlete he or she is — unless one could assume by virtue of that athlete's high school records that the athlete has a very high probability of graduating and receiving a degree from the university," he added.

Asked if SMU could compete without special admissions, Hunt answered: "I totally expect that if we make these changes and other schools do not follow suit, we will be noncompetitive."

An interim ban on special admissions was imposed earlier this year after the latest NCAA investigation into improper payments by boosters to SMU football players. SMU officials had not indicated if the ban would be made permanent, pending the report of a committee of students, faculty members and administrators studying the role of academics and sports at SMU.

Southwest Conference athletic observers have predicted that if the ban is made permanent, it could end SMU's chances of competing in football and basketball.

Football will save the Saluki athletics program

In a lot of places across this athletic-minded country of ours, there are just two kinds of sports — fall football and spring football. These are places where sports like basketball and track exist just to keep the kids in shape and out of trouble.

And who's to say that's all bad? An examination of the state of athletics here at SIU-C points to football as the "savior" of a financially-strapped and struggling sports department.

Of 19 intercollegiate sports at SIU-C, the most nationally prominent are the men's gymnastic and baseball teams, the women's basketball team and the swimming teams. Of those, just gymnastics and women's basketball are revenue producers.

Regardless of the number of consecutive wins or how high the national rankings, women's basketball and gymnastics will never have the potential to pull in 12,000 or 13,000 fans like the football team consistently does. It may not be fair, but it is a fact that should be faced. There's just so much demand for the minor sports, and past or present excellence doesn't seem to be much of a factor.

Obviously, a nationally-ranked men's basketball team would be the best thing for earning money and exposure, but Rich Herrin's chances for establishing that kind of program are slim, at best.

Confined to playing and recruiting in the shadows of nearby powers like Illinois, Purdue and Kentucky, local talents have always found someplace other than SIU-C. Changing that situation won't be easy for Herrin and staff, as proven by two fruitless recruiting efforts.

Which brings us back to football. With the limited markets, fan support and national interest for activities like gymnastics and women's basketball, it should be obvious that football offers the most bang for a buck.

Let's look back to last fall, when Saluki grid fans filled McAndrew Stadium at a 16 percent greater average than in 1985. Attendance for I-AA football games across the nation outgrew attendance figures for I-A attendance by almost 2 percent, proving that there is a national interest in I-AA football.

From the Press Box Steve Merritt

The Salukis kept in the running for a playoff spot till the final week of the season, and kept SIU-C's name in the national rankings for most of that span. Coach Ray Dorr followed up with his best recruiting effort in four years at SIU-C, adding one more stone to the foundation he is trying to build.

Everybody was getting into the act last fall, as proven by the Saluki Tailgate, the overwhelming attendance at Saluki Booster Club meetings and a group of diehard fans who followed SIU-C's gridders to places like Normal and Murray, Ky. It was, to say the least, a good time for Carbondale and SIU-C athletics.

The administration of SIU-C even got into the act, finally deciding that McAndrew Stadium was deserving of new turf and maybe even lights (countering the fact that funding to football was slashed by 10 percent in the most recent budget).

Instead of cutting funding and scholarship, SIU-C's administrators should fully evaluate the benefits that could be reaped if a full-fledged commitment was made to the football program. Ways to use the football team to the University's best interests should be explored and experimented with.

With the Salukis winning the I-AA championship in 1983 and contending for a playoff spot last season (when they weren't suppose to be any good), they already have established national recognition. With attention-grabbing schools like Kansas, Fresno State and I-AA powerhouse Arkansas State on the 1987 schedule, SIU-C's gridders have a chance to help build a winning tradition in football that could carry over into positive national exposure for the entire institution.

I'm just wondering how long it'll take for everyone to realize what a good thing they have in Saluki football.

Women netters start four-match sweep at EIU, end at Indiana St.

By Wally Foreman
Staff Writer

The SIU-C women netters will play four tough matches Thursday and Friday, with the first match being against Eastern Illinois today in Charleston, Ill.

Women's tennis coach Judy Auld will be without the services of Julie Burgess, No. 6 singles player, and Sue Steuby, No. 4 singles, will see limited playing time because of a sore muscle in her left shoulder.

Auld said Steuby has been able to practice for about 30 minutes hitting balls and might not use her in the match against the Panthers today. "I don't want to lose her for the season," Auld said.

The Salukis defeated Eastern Illinois twice during the fall season 8-1 and 6-3.

"I just want to get past the first match, but we have to play well," Auld said.

On Friday and Saturday the Salukis will be in Terre Haute, Ind., to participate in the Indiana State Invitational.

The Saluki first match will be against Western Illinois at 10 a.m. Friday.

"Western Illinois is one of the top teams in the conference and are a solid team throughout the lineup," Auld said.

"The players have been looking forward to playing Western all year," Auld said. "Western is a team they really want to play, and they are definitely beatable."

Auld said she will try to play Steuby in the Western match if the trainer says she is alright.

"Western is one of those teams you can lose to one day and then turn around the next day and win," Auld said. "The key is to get points from the whole lineup."

At 3 p.m. Friday the Salukis will take on Bradley.

"Bradley is not a team to be overlooked and I just have to make sure the players remember to play one match at a time," Auld said.

The Salukis final match for the weekend will be at 9 a.m. Saturday against host Indiana

State.

The Salukis defeated the Sycamores 8-1 during the fall season.

Auld said Ellen Moellering, No. 1 singles player, has been putting a lot of pressure on herself by having an unrealistic goal of not losing one match.

"Ellen has been playing well, but has had a problem with her confidence," Auld said. "The No. 1 spot is a hard position to play because you get pushed in every match because every team has a good No. 1 player."

Dorr scheduled for booster lunch

SIU-C football coach Ray Dorr will discuss the progress of spring football practice at the Thursday meeting of the Saluki Boosters Club, scheduled for noon at the Holiday Inn.

SIU-C men's swimming coach, Doug Ingram, also will speak at the luncheon.

Leonard-Hagler bout fixed by influence of big money

MONDAY AFTERNOON the Daily Egyptian newsroom was buzzing with speculation on the outcome of the approaching Sugar Ray Leonard-Marvelous Marvin Hagler bout. Opinions as to who would reign supreme were mixed, but Hagler seemed to be the overall favorite, the consensus pick. Of 30 sports writers polled by USA Today, 24 predicted a Hagler victory, 21 by knockout.

And as far as my humble estimation of the ring war went, if the fight was on the level, Hagler would annihilate the rusty Sugar Ray.

If the fight were on the level? Where does someone so remote from the making of the fight find the audacity to suggest that such a major sporting event might have been staged?

It's a one-word answer as far as I'm concerned: Money.

Please don't read between the lines too much. This isn't being written to take anything away from the accomplishment of Sugar Ray Leonard, or to even suggest the fight indeed was "rigged." And it's not to say that athletes who've spent their entire lives training for and achieving the dream that must have captivated them so much in their youth should not be rewarded handsomely enough to live affluently. It's just to say that a public that shares so intricately in the heritage of American sports should not have to worry that something that ought to be a matter of athletic ability could turn into a matter of financial gain.

NOT THAT BOXING is the only suspect sport, or that

Trackmen off to Tennessee to run in Dogwood Relays

By Wally Foreman
Staff Writer

Men's coach Bill Cornell says he expects a couple tracksters to do great things at the Dogwood Relays in Knoxville, Tenn., this weekend.

Cornell said he thinks Ron Harrer will qualify for the NCAA championships in the discus and All-American Andy Pettigrew will break the school record in the mile run.

About 40 teams are expected to participate at the non-scoring meet.

Harrer will need a toss of at least 190 feet to qualify. His personal best this season is 184 every sporting event is suspect. But it seems that the honor and respect traditionally held for athletics has decreased in direct proportion to the amount of money awarded the participants.

For those old enough to remember the intrigue and drama surrounding a Louis or Marciano title defense, a Stan Musial at bat in an Eisenhower-era all-star game, or even a last quarter touchdown by the Green Bay Packers in one of their many nail-biting victories, the weight of the dollar's shadow upon the sporting world somehow has dulled the admiration of those who dedicate themselves to a passion that has become an open market when it comes to the money-making possibilities surrounding the event.

I'm reminded of an elderly gentleman in an Indianapolis bar, who, as I sat absorbed by a "down to the wire" football game between the Washington Redskins and the New York Giants, elicited a laugh from the bar room patrons with his tension-breaking observation.

feet, 1 inch.

Cornell set the school record for the mile run with a time of 4 minutes, 00.74 seconds in 1982 when he was a sophomore at SIU-C. He finished second in the NCAA championships in the mile and later was named SIU Athlete of the Year.

"This is Pettigrew's first opportunity to run the mile outdoors," Cornell said, "and based on his indoor performances, I think he can break the school record."

Cornell said Pettigrew ran a 4:02.89 mile indoors and, in the right race and with the right weather conditions, he could set a new record.

"Take the cash out of all this rough-housin'," the old man said, "and we'd be callin' 'em lunatics instead of heroes."

Lunatics instead of heroes, indeed. But these days we tend to categorize them as millionaires or multi-millionaires who also happen to be pitchers, quarterbacks, or middleweight champions of the world. There may be no parallel to a world championship, but now, at least, there's also good money if you strike out with the bases loaded in the 10th or hit the canvas 30 seconds into the first round once one reaches a certain prominence.

AND WHAT DOES the fan who complained that $20 was a bit much to spend for close-circuit viewing of the Leonard-Hagler fight while eagerly awaiting post-round updates on the Cable News Network stand to learn from it all? The same lesson that can benefit the world of professional sports as well, a lesson that can benefit anyone who sees material gain as a definitive measure of success.

And if the lesson were to be imparted in the form of a thought-provoking moral, as though delivered in a telegram sent by some Yogi Berra-like sage just in time to return a little spice to the current flat taste of pro-sports, it might go something like this: You know you're on your way to being a winner when you're doing even what you want to be doing even if nobody cares what you do or if you win or lose.

Ah, but how we care! Some figures estimated that we cared enough about Leonard-Hagler to spend $70 million on the product. My faith in the integrity of professional sports, boxing in particular, will be boosted if it doesn't happen, but I'd almost give odds that we'll be just as enthralled by the rematch. And Sugar Ray and Marvelous Marvin will be icing down their $333,000 per minute soreness all the way to the bank.

Gateway honors seven Salukis for academics

By Wendell Young
Staff Writer

Twenty-two Salukis received praise from the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference as they were selected to the Presidents' All-Academic Award Winners team for their scholarly accomplishments at SIU-C.

The Dogs placed seven athletes on the initial team and 15 others received honorable mention honors.

Leading the way for the Salukis was Beth Winsett of the volleyball team. She was joined by Deb Koher (women's hoops), Beth Boardman and Patricia Yeager of the women's tennis team. All four scholars compiled perfect 4.00 grade point averages.

Two Saluki women tankers were chosen among the top 47 student-athletes in the conference, as Sue Wittry and Iris VonJouanne each tabulated 3.81 GPAs, respectively. Freshman Lisa Ravetto of the women's track team was highlighted among the elite as she duplicated the 3.81 academic performance.

Others who earned honorable mention recognition for their classroom efforts were Dawn Thompson and Christi Franklin of the volleyball team. They were cited for 3.77 and 3.61 outputs. Women swimmers Lori Rea and Jackie Taljaard were rewarded for their academic accomplishments after they compiled 3.78 and 3.55 GPAs.

Five football Salukis were recipients of the honor as Randall Brave (3.74), Stephen Johnson (3.67), Charles Harmke (3.58), Ryant Wooten (3.50), and Douglas Reid (3.50) hit the text books with the same authority they employed to tackle their opponents. Karen Peterson and Julie Shumaker of the women's golf team paved their way to receive the honors by driving 3.69 and 3.61 GPAs into the hole.

Marialene Jenkins (women's hoops), Maria Coch (women's tennis), Sue Anderson (women's track), and Cynthia Espeland (softball) earned their honors by gaining 3.75, 3.66, 3.63, and 3.53 GPAs, respectively.

Men cagers sign Shipley

By Wendell Young
Staff Writer

The Saluki men's hoop squad beefed up its front line Wednesday when it signed 6-8, 205-pound forward Rick Shipley of Centralia High School during the first official day of the spring signing period.

Shipley, who nabbed co-Southern Illinois Player of the Year honors with Lucis Reece of Cairo, guided Centralia to a 20-7 output on the hardwood during the 1986-87 season. He turned in a solid 16.5 ppg and 11 rebounds an outing during his senior year.

Shipley also scored impressive numbers on the ACT as he compiled a 25 to overcome Proposition 48 guidelines. He plans to enroll at SIU-C as a business major next fall.

Fred Huff, SIU-C's sports information director, said Shipley chose SIU-C because he would have a good chance of competing in basketball and baseball as a Saluki.

Although Saluki head coach Rich Herrin was in Chicago Wednesday, Huff said Herrin wasn't "real optimistic" about signing anyone yet. However, the rebuilding coach has until

By M.J. Starshak

The SIU-C baseball team got a taste of its own medicine courtesy of its cross-state cousins, as the SIU-Edwardsville Cougars defeated the Salukis 4-3 Wednesday afternoon at Abe Martin Field.

The Salukis' record dropped to 21-7 as a result of what started out to be a strange ball game.

Cougar leadoff hitter Tom Klenke singled in the first inning and centerfielder P.J. Riley followed him with a homer over the right-center field fence.

Klenke watched Riley's home run and may have thought it was a routine fly ball because he stood on first as Riley passed him on the bases. Riley was called out and Klenke came around to score the Cougars' first run.

"You won't see that in a ballgame too often," Saluki coach Richard "Itchy" Jones said.

Cougar pitchers Chuck Floarke (3-1) and Pete Delkus held the Salukis to 10 hits, five of which came in the last two innings. Floarke only struck out one, but SIU-C helped him by hitting into three double plays in the nine-inning contest.

"We did not make any adjustments at the plate," Jones said. "We went up trying to pull everything. We needed to wait."

Robert Fleming (1-1), who entered the game with a 2.94 ERA, pitched five innings for the Salukis, allowing eight hits and two runs. Junior Cliff McIntosh came in on relief but was pulled in favor of outfielder-turned-relief pitcher Doug Shields.

The freshman right-hander pitched two innings and allowed one run on one hit. The coach said that Shields may continue in short relief for the Dogs.

"He came (on) in a clutch situation and did a good job," Jones said.

The Saluki offense failed in many of the game's clutch situations, however, leaving six men on base. The SIU-C team batted 10-34 and did not capitalize on the hits, at least not until the late innings.

Junior Charlie Hillemann, who entered the game hitting .350, knocked his second home run of the season over the left field fence with one out in the eighth to put the Dogs on the board.

Chuck Verschoore (3-4) followed with a line shot down the left field line to begin an SIU-C rally, but Steve Finley ended it as soon as it began as he hit popped into a double play to douse the Salukis' flame.

Junior Rich Campbell struck out the Cougars in order in the ninth and it looked as if the Dogs might have a chance to pull off a come-from-behind victory.

Senior first baseman Jim Limperis (2-4) led off the ninth with a single to right and Chuck Locke (1-4) did the same to put Salukis on first and second with no outs.

Cougar coach Gary Collins pulled Floarke for relief ace Pete Delkus. The right-hander senior entered the game with an impressive 0.72 ERA and a 2-1 record.

Rich Gaebe bounced into a fielder's choice to put Dogs at the corners with one out. Shortstop David Wrona, who started the game batting .318, doubled into the left-center gap to score Limperis and Gaebe.

The two runs were too little, too late as pinch-hitter Dan Hartleb bounced out and catcher Joe Hall swung at a bad pitch for the last out in what was not a Dogs' day.

Pitino gets cager Coach of Year

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Coach Rick Pitino of Providence College, who led the Friars to their first appearance in the Final Four since 1973, has been named the 1986-87 College Basketball Coach of the Year by The Sporting News.

Pitino's team won the NCAA Southeast Regional in Louisville, Ky., last month.

The regional championship capped a whirlwind spring that was marred by the death of Pitino's infant son.

Pitino, who coached formerly at Boston University and was an assistant coach with the New York Knicks of the NBA, arrived at Providence two years ago and instituted a five-year plan to revive the floundering basketball program.

The coach installed a running offense and pressure defense. With several of his shooters taking advantage of the new 3-point shot this season, the Friars compiled a 25-9 record and qualified for the NCAA tournament.

Cage women ink Logan star

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

The women's basketball Salukis started the national letter of intent period at the top of the key.

"Top of the key, that's my favorite spot," said Deanna Sanders, a 5-8 standout point guard at John A. Logan College who signed a scholarship offer to play for the 13th-ranked Salukis.

She says of the recently approved NCAA bonus hoop, "I'm going to love the three-point shot. I'm going to work on my range this summer—all around the circle."

Sanders is no stranger to national success. This season she earned all-tournament honors at the junior college nationals, where the Vols took third with a 36-3 record her freshman year and eighth this year with a 30-6 mark.

"I like to think when the Salukis go to the NAAs, (an) experience like that helps a lot," Sanders said.

Sanders paced the Lady Vols from the point with 12.5 points per game with 43.4 percent accuracy. She fired 175 assists, general also may boost SIU-C free throw shooting, as she drops in 75.2 percent from the line.

"Deanna has just about everything you could ask for in a point guard," Saluki recruiting coach Julie Beck said. "She's quick, unselfish and can handle the ball well. She's a heads-up player with a tough mental attitude and an excellent outside shot."

The Salukis will likely call Sanders by her nickname "Bird," which stuck with her since high school. "Sometimes even my mom calls me Bird," she said.

A multi-dimensional athlete, "Bird" ran distance and sprints in track, and also played softball in high school.

"I like all sports, anything competitive except golf," she said.

Sanders joins Belleville's 6-1 forward-center Amy Rakers in this year's recruiting class. Rakers signed during the early period last November.

Later in the signing period, the Saluki coaches hope to receive word from additional top prospects who are still visiting SIU-C and
