Chancellor scores top marks in interview for new position

By Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

SIU Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit appears to have made the grade in his interview for the presidential position at the University of Colorado.

Pettit visited all four CU campuses last week, meeting with constituency groups, board members and students.

The president position at CU is the system head of the university, equivalent to the chancellor position at SIU.

"There's not much to say at this point, but that it went very well," Pettit said.

Kathleen Arnold, chairwoman of the search committee and vice chairwoman of the CU Board of Regents, said Pettit made a positive impression during his visit.

"I think the Pettits are exceptionally fine people," Arnold said.

Arnold said Pettit's high ranking in his administrative ability, multi-campus experience and ability to work with faculty and students were all seen as strengths.

Pettit was the second of five finalists to be interviewed. The other three candidates will be interviewed this week, Arnold said.

A decision is not expected until the end of April.

The other four finalists include Gene R. Nichol Jr., dean of the CU Law School in Boulder; Albert Joseph Simone, president of the University of Hawaii in Oahu; Joan Krueger Wadlow, provost of the University of Oklahoma in Norman; and Luther Steward Williams, assistant director of education and human resources at

Cooler air on the way as boiler repairs begin

Repairs began Monday morning on Boiler 2 at the Physical Plant leaving SIUC one step closer to turning on the cool air.

Boiler 2 should be repaired and ready to be tested by this weekend, said Chuck Williams, Power Plant mechanical engineer.

Harrel Lerch, superintendent of building maintenance at the Physical Plant, said it has yet to be determined if repairs to the boiler could generate enough steam to run the air conditioning.

Lerch said normally only three boilers are needed to cool the University, but the repairs to Boiler 2 may not produce the needed steam.

Boiler 1 is scheduled for repairs toward the end of the month and should be working by the first week in May, Williams said.

The two boilers broke down

Court mandates printing stores get OK on copyrighted articles

Class packets with copyrighted material reproduced without copyright permission by local copy shops and companies are illegal under the Fair Use Doctrine.

The U.S. District Court, Southern District of New York, ruled March 28 in a two-year case between Kinko's Graphics Corp. and nine publishing companies that copy companies must receive permission for use of copyrighted material in class packets.

The Fair Use Doctrine under the Copyright Act of 1976 allows educators, with some limitations, to use copyrighted material for non-profit purposes without permission from the copyright holder.

The federal court ruled, however, that profit-making copy companies cannot reproduce material for professors and students without copyright permission under the Fair Use Doctrine.

Kinko's, 715 S. University Ave. in Carbondale, has halted the sale of some class packets to comply with the court decision.

"The court case really won't affect our store's business," said manager John Kimmo. "It will be an inconvenience for professors and students though."

Kinko's must obtain written permission from the copyright holder of material before it sells the material in class packets.

Many college professors use class packets to compile excerpts of information from court decisions, periodical articles and books for classroom use.

Copy companies reproduce and bind the material for sale to students.

Don Urberger, partner in Kopies & More, 809 S. Illinois Ave., said the court decision is going to cost

Education Department unveils plan to revamp student loan program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Education Department outlined a program Monday for putting its own house in order so that the federal student aid program, plagued by billions of dollars in loan defaults, fraud and abuse, will be run more effectively.

"We are serious and we are aggressive," Acting Deputy Secretary Ted Sanders said at a news conference.

The Education Department and the Office of Management and Budget reviewed the federal guaranteed student loan program and, not surprisingly, found "real problems," according to the review.

Chief among the programs, it said, is that "too many shoddy schools" were in the student loan program. Because of woefully unsatisfactory oversight by the Education Department and others, there has been ever-rising loan defaults — most of which have been at proprietary, or trade, schools.

By the end of 1991, there will be more than $55 billion in outstanding loans and $2.7 billion in loan defaults. The overall default rate now is about 17 percent, but proprietary schools averaged a 27 percent default rate in 1989.

"Another result has been abuse of the system, and outright fraud," the report said.

The review also found the Education Department "failed to react early and take effective steps" to prevent the financial collapse of one of the nation's largest student loan guarantee agencies, the Higher Education Assistance Foundation. HEAF's failure cost the government at least $30 million.

Also, the review found too few qualified financial analysts at the Education Department to review, audit and enforce program requirements.

And the General Accounting Office said it could not audit the loan program because accounting records were poorly maintained. In the guaranteed student loan program, the 8,000 participating postsecondary schools verify student eligibility for loans, 13,000 private lenders make the loans, and 45 state and private guarantee agencies insure the loans against default.

The Education Department, in turn, insures the guarantee agencies against default, passes judgment on the agencies that accredit the schools and approves a school's participation in the loan program.

Gus says the Education Department will have to stay after school to clean up its act.

Parents plan Christian school for Carbondale

Carbondale may add another school to its roster by fall 1991.

A group of people "concerned about the education of children" continued planning for a new Christian high school Monday night at the Murdale Baptist Church.

Mike Mibb, a member of the group, said the high school will "reflect Christian values. It will give our kids a solid liberal arts education from a strictly biblical viewpoint."

Dawgs hoping to unleash on Aces

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

College baseball teams tend to get fired up to battle national powerhouses Creighton and Wichita State, but the Salukis have much more to worry about.

The SIUC baseball team will meet Creighton and Wichita State the next two weekends, but it has to deal with Evansville first.

The Purple Aces swept a doubleheader from the Salukis last week in Evansville, Ind., and are in Carbondale today to try to repeat that feat.

The first seven-inning game of the doubleheader at Abe Martin Field begins at 1:30 p.m. with the second game immediately following the first.

The Dawgs are in the midst of an eight-game losing streak, its worst skid in two years. Four of those eight losses came at the hands of the Bradley Braves this weekend. The Salukis' offensive attack fizzled scoring only 6 runs in 32 innings of play in Peoria.

Part of the lack of offense was a result of the absence of the team's leading hitter, freshman Dan Esplin. Junior shortstop Brian Heather and sophomore outfielder Marcus Grace are also out of action, causing more problems for SIUC's scoring attack.

Esplin and Grace are out with symptoms of strep throat and Heather was out with what could be a sprained thumb, said Saluki coach Sam Riggelman.

"There are some things happening that just are not in our control," Riggelman said. "We were struggling enough offensively and then we have three kids of that calibre go out of our lineup, so it makes it tough."

Riggelman does not expect any of the three to play today.

The Salukis are still without the services of senior third baseman Mike Kirkpatrick, who is out of action with a broken hand. He was hitting .386 with three home runs and 12 RBI before he went down. Kirkpatrick is not expected to be back until the Missouri Valley Conference Tournament.

The Salukis were scoreless in their doubleheader at Evansville, losing 7-0 and 1-0. In the two games, SIUC mustered only five hits off the Aces' John MacCaulay and Gary Croakin.

Senior pitcher Bob Finder threw six innings for SIUC in the second game, allowing just two hits and no earned runs, but took the loss because of the lack of offense.

Riggelman, not taking the health of any of his players for granted, is unsure of his starting pitchers for today. He said if senior Dale Meyer is healthy he will start the first game.

If sophomore Brian Oestreich is healthy, Riggelman said he could use him in the second game.

With Meyer, who has been playing third base, on the hill and Heather out of the lineup, the Salukis' infield will be jumbled.

Riggelman has moved junior Kurt Endebrock, the regular second baseman, to shortstop and will insert junior Ed Janke as a freshman Clint Smothers in at the base. Freshman Jeff Cwynar will play second base. All the changes could hurt SIUC, but Riggelman said the reserve players are prepared.

"They have done the very same thing everybody else has, so there's really no difference in our approach with our practice situation," Riggelman said. "They have done as much hitting and defensive work as anyone on the team. The thing they lack is the game experience."

Following the Salukis' chances at revenge against Evansville, SIUC meets Southeast Missouri State at 3 p.m. Thursday.

Men's track victorious at competition

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

The Dawgs ran away from the competition at the SEMOTION Relays in Cape Girardeau.

The SIUC men's track and field squad won six events in the competition. That is the most the team has won since the Salukis began competing in the SEMOTION Relays in 1982.

The meet was unscored, but the Salukis finished with twice as many victories than their nearest competitor, host school Southeast Missouri State.

Saluki head coach Bill Cornell said the team pulled together at the right time.

"We had a fantastic weekend," Cornell said. "I was proud when we walked away from the track. We had so many coaches saying we did a fantastic job, it made me proud to know we had."

The 4x100-meter and 4x200-meter teams of juniors Pat Bridges, Garrett Hines, Ed Williams and senior Guy Sikora won both events by healthy margins. The 4x100

LeMonnier cornerstone for Salukis

By Cyndi Oberle

Saluki senior Angie LeMonnier takes a cut during the doubleheader against Bradley Saturday. LeMonnier has been a starter all four years at SIUC.

Senior Angie LeMonnier really wanted to be a Brownie Scout in grade school, but her parents decided softball would be a better route to travel.

As things turned out, it was.

LeMonnier, who plays first base for the SIUC softball team, said she started playing baseball when she was six years old and softball when she was eight.

Originally a right fielder, LeMonnier was skeptical when her high school coach asked her to play first base.

"The first baseman sprained her ankle," LeMonnier said. "When the coach told me to play it I thought I wouldn't be able to, but all my coach said all I have to do is catch the ball."

LeMonnier soon proved to herself and everybody else she could play the position and play it well.

A four-year starter for the Salukis with 1101 putouts and only 27 errors in her career, LeMonnier has made a mark on Saluki softball.

In Gateway Conference play this weekend against Western Illinois University and Bradley, LeMonnier was a tower of power.

LeMonnier leads the team in conference play with a .556 batting average. She also had three RBI and belted out one triple.

"Angie is very consistent in terms of temperament," head coach Kay Bretchelsbauer said. "She doesn't let things get to her. Angie has also come through at the plate for us, but she is not a flashy hitter, she just holds her own and is very strong when she is at bat."

LeMonnier said playing first does not put any pressure on her and she said she thinks it is one of the easiest positions to play.

"All I have to do is catch the ball," LeMonnier said. "I look at Mary Jo (Firnback) at third and Cheryl (Venorsky) at shortstop and realize I could never play their positions like they do."

Brechelsbauer said LeMonnier has been a real cornerstone on that side of the infield while Firnback holds down the fort at third base.

"Angie and Mary Jo have provided stability in the infield coming from each side of it and that is important," Bretchelsbauer said. "Angie's greatest asset to the team is her defensive play. She gets the job done day in and day out."

"Angie also plays with no real fanfare. She knows it is her job and lets the other players know they do

Weekend trip encourages netters

By Julie Autor

The women's tennis team came back from its Virginia trip with a 1-2 record for the weekend, but Coach Judy Auld said the team did what it wanted to do.

"The girls are not discouraged with the way they played, they are encouraged," Auld said. "We played some good tennis."

The team lost to West Virginia 1-8 Saturday, but came back to defeat Rutgers University 5-4. The Salukis also lost to Penn State 1-5 Sunday.

SIUC's only win against West Virginia came from No. 3 singles player junior Lori Edwards. Edwards beat Kathie Hall 6-3, 6-1.

The Salukis dropped all three doubles matches to West Virginia.

"There were a lot of people cheering on the West Virginia team," Auld said. "But it didn't bother the girls at all. We were there to play good tennis and we did it."

The team was more successful against Rutgers.

Gallagher, Joseph, senior Michele Toye and sophomore Karen Wasser beat their opponents in singles play.

Gallagher won 6-1, 6-0 and Joseph won 6-4, 6-2. Toye won her match 6-0, 6-2 while Wasser took her match 6-0, 7-5.

The top three players for SIUC, Jeffrey, Varnum and Edwards were defeated by their Rutgers opponents in singles competition. Varnum and Edwards took their opponents to three sets before falling to Rutgers.

In doubles play, Varnum and Gallagher won their match 7-5, 6-1 and Toye and Joseph won 6-0, 6-0.

Jeffrey was replaced by Wasser after her tendinitis in her ankle started to bother her. Jeffrey did not play against Penn State the next day. Wasser and Edwards lost the doubles match 6-3, 6-3.

Auld said Jeffrey will have enough time to recover before the Salukis get back into Gateway Conference play.

"She usually has enough time to recover," Auld said. "Rather than pushing her I wanted to just make sure she is healthy. It's not worth it to push her."

SIUC's only win came from a default. Joseph defeated Karri Kohr 7-5, 0-1 after Kohr turned an ankle.

Varnum lost to Kelly Erve: 5-7, 5-7, 6-2 Edwards lost to her opponent 7-5, 6-2.

Gallagher lost 6-4, 3-6, 7-6 while Wasser lost 6-3, 6-4.

The Salukis get back to conference action this weekend against Illinois State and Drake.

Men's tennis drops tough match to Drake

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

The SIUC men's tennis team couldn't hang on to beat the conference favorite Drake Bulldogs Saturday.

The match went down to the wire, but the Dawgs dropped it 5-4. Of the nine individual matches, four went three sets. SIUC had the early lead in three of those matches, but won only one of them. Saluki head coach Dick LeFevre said the team needs to work on its stamina during matches.

"We should have won," he said. "We won four matches and were ahead by a set in two others. We can't finish our opponents off, but that will come with experience. We have to keep working."

Freshman Tim Derouin and sophomore Jay Merchant were both up a set in singles play, but then dropped the last two sets. LeFevre said they were playing well but couldn't sustain it.

No. 1 player Joe Demeterco continued his winning ways, beating Drake's Martin Dionne in straight sets 6-2, 6-1. LeFevre said the score didn't indicate how good a player Dionne is.

"Last year Dionne won the Rolex Invitational last year," he said. "That tournament determines who the best player in the NCAA Region Five is at that time. That includes the MOSCOW (UPI) — The president of Georgia warned Mikhail Gorbachev Monday of a general political strike in the southern republic if army troops sent to its troubled Ossetian area are not withdrawn. Interior Ministry troops have been in the area for months trying to keep peace. Ellis Rubin, an attorney representing 35 of the families, also said a 20-month investigation by his office had uncovered the "real truth" about what caused the 16-inch gun turret No. 2 on the Iowa to explode April 19, 1989. He accused the Navy of attempting to hide the true cause of the explosion.

COLA students rewarded for academic achievements

By Natalie Boehme
Staff Writer

More than 50 College of Liberal Arts students were recognized with scholarships ranging from $100 to full tuition waivers on Honors Day Sunday.

John S. Jackson, COLA dean, said most of the about $15,000 in scholarships given were based on academic performance.

"It's a very nice occasion to be able to honor our hard-working students," Jackson said.

Four of the awards had college-wide competition.

The Delyte W. Morris Memorial Scholarship went to Jill Butler, English major, and Holly Loy, political science major.

Butler and Loy, both seniors, were chosen for their display of high potential in scholastics, character, social leadership and ambition.

Usually only one Morris scholarship is given each year, but Butler was unable to receive further financial aid. Although both Butler and Loy were honored, the entire $500 the scholarship is worth went to Loy.

"I've been pretty lucky with scholarships in the past few years," Butler said. "It's got me through school."

Brandy Kommer, sophomore in history, won the $150 Leah M. Reef Memorial Scholarship.

The scholarship, which has been awarded for more than 30 years, is based on academic achievement.

Kimberly Nordin, a senior in paralegal studies from Mount Vernon, won the Carrie M. Bunn Memorial Scholarship which amounted to $125.

"When I first heard I had won, I was very surprised," Nordin said. "I didn't even know I had been nominated for the scholarship."

The annual Bunn memorial rotates among the SIUC colleges each year. Qualifications for the Bunn memorial include high scholastic commitment, ability and potential.

The Robert W. Davis Memorial Scholarship went to Mark Henry, English major, Lincoln Lounsbury, history major, and Kimberly Kuhlengel, paralegal studies major.

The scholarship is given to juniors who have demonstrated high academic achievement and high potential in their fields.

"I didn't realize the college gave out this much money," Kuhlengel said. "I was really glad, though, all my hard work paid off."

The COLA Outstanding Teacher Award was presented to Albert P. Melone, political science professor.

City verifies April 2 election ballots

By Leslie Colp

Vote totals from the April 2 municipal elections are now official.

The Carbondale Canvass Board, which is composed of Mayor Neil Dillard, City Attorney Michael Wepstec and City Clerk Janet Vaught, verified the ballots Monday morning.

Vaught said there was no difference in the number of votes recorded by the Jackson County Court House April 2.

The cards voters used for the election were fed into a computer at the Court House and the votes were distributed to the appropriate candidate.

Jackson County Clerk and Recorder Robert Harrell said 1991 is the first year Jackson County has used a computer to count votes for the consolidated general election.

A computer system has been used for in primary and general elections since 1972, he said.

The consolidated general election forced the computer to handle more information than in other elections, Harrell said.

Dillard, who was running unopposed for mayor, received 1054 votes. Richard Morris, John Mills, and Kyle Engert, competed for two councilmen positions and received 932, 914 and 294 votes respectively.

In the election for park commissioner, Sandra Henry Bartelsmeyer received 761 votes to defeat incumbent Michael Curtis, who received 426 votes.

Athletics enhancing University's image

IF UNIVERSITIES WERE JUDGED solely by the success of their athletic programs, SIUC might be considered as tough competition on a national basis.

Universities actually can be judged by such standards because the greatest contact students from other schools have with SIUC comes from watching its teams play.

Not only have they been seeing them play, but they have been seeing these teams win more and more.

Each individual and team representing SIUC to other universities in such a good light need to be congratulated for their efforts and success.

A FEW OF THESE include:

- The six Salukis who brought home All-American honors at the NCAA Swimming Championships in Austin, Texas. The women's swim team also represented SIUC in national championships for the first time since 1988.

- The women's basketball team, which reached the Gateway Conference Championship Finals, and the Saluki basketball team, which made it to the third round of the National Invitational Tournament.

- SIUC's women's track team for taking first in the University of New Orleans Track and Field Classic as well as to sophomore Jennifer Bozue for being named Outstanding Field Performer at the event.

- The SIUC softball team remains undefeated in their conference records.

- ATHLETES SHOWING CONSISTENT excellence, such as basketball senior Amy Rakers and track sophomore Darrin Plab, who draw attention not only to their teams but this University.

By no means is this list comprehensive; rather, it is representative of the success the University's athletic programs have achieved.

These achievements increase the confidence of the teams and the school as well as gain more recognition to SIUC itself.

Their success spills outside of the athletic circle; the entire University benefits.

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potentially libelous material or because of extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

Commentary

U.S. troops return from gulf overplayed

THEY'RE GETTING UP there in years, the World War II vets. But they're still my choice as this century's most remarkable generation of men.

Most came of age in the Great Depression. Because of hard times everywhere, men who had the brains to be physicists or engineers were happy to get jobs as apprentice toolmakers or carpenters. Or digging ditches, if that's all there was.

Then they won the biggest, bloodiest war in the history of this planet.

And when it was over, they came back and went right to work making this country the most powerful industrial and economic force in the world.

Recently I wrote about how a few of them felt about the homecoming hoopla that followed the abrupt ending of the Gulf War.

They were generally amused when they compared the TV coverage of festive airport reunion scenes with their own quiet arrivals.

That column brought a small flood of mail from other WW II vets, sharing their memories. None begrudge the Gulf War troops their due.

But some are skeptical about flag-waving politicians; others think the word "hero" is being tossed around too freely; and most have wry, amused memories of their own homecomings.

So I thought I'd share some of their views.

An Indiana man, who preferred that his name not be used, said: "I was in the Pacific for three years. Took part in the fight for Iwo and some other islands. Came home on a stinking ship and hot bus. My mom made me dinner.

NOW A TOWN NEAR where I live is planning a big parade for one of the local boys who was in the desert. He was there three months and they sent him home because he has a kidney infection. Hey, come on!"

A physician, David Berner, of Condon, Mont., took note of a proposal by a congressman that all Gulf War troops be given a $10,000 bonus. Berner fired off a letter to the congressman, and sent me a copy.

"As a combat infantryman (New Guinea, Solomon Islands, Luzon), I've decided to join you in the orgy of euphoria engulfing the nation. Admittedly, this war was a pushover and most of the troops saw no combat, experienced little danger, and weren't 'over there' very long, as wars go, but that shouldn't detract from their all being 'heroes' in the eyes of the multitudes.

Some may feel that the genuine heroes of the world are belittled by such a mass anointment, but they're obviously soreheads.

"ANYWAY, YOUR IDEA to break the bank on behalf of the Gulf vets should logically apply to us who served before — generally longer, bloodier and with less media and public adoration. Your idea for a $10,000 bonus sounds swell, and I would like mine in one lump sum — with interest, of course, dating from December 1945.

Furthermore, though I witnessed ample gore and brutality in my two years overseas, I haven't yet needed 'readjustment counseling,' which I know is obligatory for all inconveniences.

But I'd like Congress to send me a lot of money for the counseling I'll doubtless need in my old age.

"I confess that I would be embarrassed to accept this money. You see, I never really thought of myself as a hero. I did think of myself as just another in that endless series of poor slobbs paying the repetitive penalty for failure of national or tribal leaders.

"However, I heartily join the bandwagon. I will accept your payola, I'm practicing a hero's swagger, and I'm eagerly looking forward to some sort of maladjustment."

Agree or disagree, you have to concede that Doc Berner knows how to write a zinger.

Jacquelyn Jefferson, of Hinsdale, Ill., says of her husband: "He remembers only one conversation after his return from the war. He met a close friend in a neighborhood bar and asked him where he'd served.

THE FRIEND TOLD HIM and asked the same question, adding: "Did you see any s--- ?" My husband said: "Yeah, some. How about you?"

The friend said, "Yeah, me, too." And that was the total extent of his discussion of his war experiences."

That's another quality I've seen of the WW II generation. They were doers, not talkers.

Another homecoming memory, from David Dander, of Tiffin, Ohio: "Had four and a half years, most of it in the Pacific. Coming back, it was 21 days on a troop ship.

Then five days on a troop train to New Jersey. Then a train to Pittsburgh. My older brother, who survived his destroyer being blown up on D-Day, picked me up at the train station at 2 a.m. But that was OK. I hate parades, anyway.

Ken Morris, of Council Bluffs, Iowa: "Thanks goodness the desert war was over quickly and with few losses. But all this euphoria has a movie atmosphere.

I was in WW II and Korea. Two of my brothers were killed in WW II and buried at sea. They called it shark feeding. I don't think some of the people putting up yellow ribbons and waving flags could tell you much about the Bataan Death March or Iwo Jima.

I don't think they know about the reality of war and how bad it can really be."

Maybe Jim Hill, of Arkansas, sums up the feeling of his generation best: "I was attached to Patton's Third Army. I seldom talk about the war, the freezing of days and nights, the fatigue, the fear, the dirt, mud and smell of dead bodies.

THERE WAS NO BIG welcome for us. The welcome was in our hearts, our thankfulness for being back and alive.

Our welcome was seen in the smiling, joyous faces of our parents, brothers, sisters and sweethearts or wives. We didn't need parades."

Maybe Jim Hill didn't need parades. But today's politicians surely do.

Security Council acknowledges Iraq's acceptance of gulf cease-fire

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. Security Council will send a letter to Iraq Tuesday to acknowledge that country's acceptance of a cease-fire resolution and declare an end to the Persian Gulf War, diplomats said Monday.

The letter is in response to Iraq's notification on Sunday to the council and the U.N. secretary-general that "it has no choice but to accept the resolution." Diplomat said it will be transmitted to Iraq at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The decision to send the letter was taken during a private meeting of the 15-nation council Monday afternoon. The body met to consider Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar's plans for a peace force to monitor the cease-fire, discuss emergency humanitarian needs for Kurdish refugees and a British proposal to set up U.N.-led enclaves for the refugees in northern Iraq.

The letter to Iraq will state that its acceptance of the tough provisions in cease-fire resolution 687 is "irrevocable and unconditional," British U.N. Ambassador David Hannay told reporters.

The council's president, Belgian Ambassador Paul Noterdaeme, prepared the letter informing Iraq that it has met a condition in resolution 687 and that "the formal cease-fire referred to (in the resolution) is therefore now effective."

Hannay, who was directed by his government to discuss the formation of enclaves with the council, said Perez de Cuellar will send urgently a team to Iraq for a first-hand report on possibilities to set the safe havens, in which Iraqi refugees would be protected by the United Nations as was proposed by the European Community in Luxembourg Monday.

The EC has voted also $180 million in emergency aid to the Kurds.

Hannay said he has received strong support from the council for the enclaves, but he was not pressing the council to adopt the plan immediately and would wait for recommendations by the U.N. team.

U.S. Ambassador Thomas Pickering said the enclaves would "match our hopes to provide assistance to the Kurds."

Perez de Cuellar said initial logistical units will be sent to the 125-mile-long buffer zone between the two countries "almost immediately" when the council approves his plans.

The sending of the U.N. Iraq-Kuwait Observer Mission (JUNIKOM) will be the first step to implement cease-fire resolution 687, which imposed punishing terms on Iraq, including destruction of that country's weapons of mass destruction.

students 20 to 30 percent more for class packets.

"Students will end up paying for the extra time and royalties because of a blatant abuse of the Fair Use act," he said.

Kopies & More will not have to alter its procedure for selling class packets because it already obtains copyright permission from the holders, Urberger said.

Under copyright law, the holder of a copyright controls use of the material and can sell the copyright for use of the material for a fee.

Most publishers charge a fee for use of the material and charge royalty fees.

Gipsey Hicks, assistant to the director at University Press, a non-profit publisher at SIUC, said the law is designed to protect authors and to ensure they get paid for use of their material.

"Authors who have spent a great deal of time and energy don't appreciate not getting paid," she said.

Hicks said University Press loses money on the sale of its books when a professor offers the same class packets during many semesters.

"When they do that, it ceases to be fair use," she said.

Michael Esler, assistant professor of political science, said compiling small sections of a variety of text into a class packet is a nice service for students.

It also saves students the cost of buying complete textbooks for only a small use of the book in class.

Esler, who has offered class packets three or four times through Kinko's, said the copy company has said it takes care of contacting the publisher for copyright permission.

A packet Esler has required for a political science class this semester cannot be purchased at Kinko's since the court decision.

Kirk Wayne Phillips, assistant manager of Kopies & More, said that even if a professor gets copyright permission from a publisher to reproduce excerpts of material, the copyright permission is not transferable to a copy shop.

The copy shop must obtain permission in its own name to publish the material, he said.

in February, cutting the plant's steam production and making it impossible to turn on the air conditioning.

SIUC is footing the $300,000 bill for repairs to both boilers, Williams said.

About $30 million had been allocated to the Physical Plant for two new boilers and the renovation to the two existing boilers, but the funds have been frozen because of state budget problems, he said.

The boilers are more than 30 years old, although the life expectancy of one is 25 to 30 years.

Of the four boilers, one is kept off line for reserve and is used when the others are receiving scheduled maintenance.

During winter months all four must remain operational. The loss of even one boiler results in a loss of heating capacity necessary for seven million square feet of building space, according to a letter from Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit's office to Gov. Jim Edgar requesting the frozen funds be thawed.

On Dec. 4, Boilers 1, 2 and 3 were on line, and Boiler 4 was being repaired.

When Boiler 2 failed, the freezing temperatures at the time resulted in the closing of steam tunnel valves leading to Thompson Point, University Park, Brush Towers complex, Communications Building, Agriculture Building, Law School, Life Science II and Lindgren Hall, wrote Chuck Williams in a Feb. 12 letter to Physical Plant Director Duane Schroeder.

Boiler 4 was repaired and service was returned to the buildings, Williams stated.

Road, the new high school will not be associated with the Covenant school, Mibb said.

Members of the group expressed a need for a Christian high school because instruction at Covenant Christian School ends with eighth grade.

Roy Keehn, also a member of the group, said between 15 and 20 families have expressed an interest in the new school. But the idea of having a Christian high school originated about three years ago.

Mibb said the new high school probably will rent or lease an existing building before constructing a new one. Money to build the new school will be raised from tuition and donations.

The group will meet again at 7 p.m. next Monday at the Murdale

Baptist Church to elect a school board, make a list of interested teachers, begin planning a curriculum and find a name for incorporation purposes.

The group wants to become incorporated to receive donations.

People interested in becoming a teacher or providing other information can contact Mibb at 453-3228 or 893-4217.

CU, with an enrollment of about 43,000, is a multi-campus system with branches in Boulder, Colorado Springs and Denver.

The $127,000-a-year top job at CU has been filled by an acting-president since last June when former CU President Gordon Gee became president of Ohio State University.

SIUC's chancellor position currently earns $125,040 a year.

Arnold said CU's presidential search has generated a great deal of public controversy, instigating a lawsuit filed by the Denver's Rocky Mountain News asking for the release of finalists' names.

Before any action was taken on the lawsuit, finalists' names were leaked to a competing paper, The Denver Post.

Arnold said the Rocky Mountain News pressed candidates' names to be released at the very beginning of the search which caused many candidates to drop out of the search process because they didn't want to harm their present positions.

"We need to find a better search process," Arnold said. "I don't know what it would be, but I plan to look for it before CU tries to fill another position."

Business ethics, jobs, trends topics during executives' visit

By Sherri L. Wilcox
Staff Writer

An external board of 30 business executives will be on campus Friday afternoon conducting seminars and panel discussions with SIUC students.

Students are invited to attend, but there are separate discussions for graduate and undergraduate students.

Rebecca Fournier, assistant dean for the College of Business and Administration, said the panels are divided up because students at different levels have different interests.

The COBA student council organized the panel discussions for the undergraduate, and the Graduate Student Association organized the program for their students, she said.

Undergraduates in any area of study will hear discussions on jobs for women and minorities and the current job market. The discussions begin at 3 p.m. in the Student Center Saline Room with a reception from 4 to 5 p.m.

Graduate students are invited to attend panel discussions on business ethics, placement for graduate students, how international students can find jobs in the United States, business trends and the effects of foreign competition on the economy. The discussions will be from 3 to 5 p.m. in Rehn

13. Fournier said the panel discussions are a semi-annual event and all speakers are members of the COBA Advisory Board, which helps in Alumni Hall of Fame elections, nominations for Business Leader of the year and assists in making other decisions concerning programs and events in the college.

British woman believed dead for 7 years found in hospital

LONDON (UPI) — An elderly woman believed dead by her family for seven years had been found in a mental hospital that recently notified the relatives the woman had to be moved because the facility was closing, officials said Monday.

Katherine Mary Murphy, 69, a patient at the Rainhill mental hospital near Liverpool, around 150 miles northwest of London, was discovered alive by her relatives in February, seven years after they attended her funeral.

She was reported to have died of pneumonia but Rainhill officials now say the woman who died was actually named Mary Katherine Murphy, with no next of kin.

"The issue has only recently become apparent," said Derek Cummings, chief executive of the St. Helen's Health Authority. "The patient who died unfortunately was not Katherine Mary Murphy, who is still at Rainhill Hospital."

The mixup came when the hospital apparently mistakenly switched its patient records, Cummings said. Relatives of the family were notified in February that Murphy would have to be moved when the hospital closed.

"She knows that she has no real visitors, but she has no real concept of time," Veronica Angus, Murphy's niece told The Independent newspaper.

"Clearly it is something we regret having happened. It is a tragic incident," said Cummings.

ISC re-elects past president

Ghose to expand International Week during next term

By Kylie Robertson
Staff Writer

THE INTERNATIONAL Student Council, which represents students from more than 30 countries, re-elected past president, Nabarun Ghose for the 1991-1992 term last week.

Azher Bandukwala, junior majoring in marketing and economics, was elected vice president for internal affairs and Sissel Urke Olsen, sophomore majoring in food and nutrition, was elected vice president for finance.

GHOSE, DOCTORAL candidate in business administration, specializing in marketing, said he was re-elected because of the success of past programs and his leadership qualities.

This year Ghose gained a proclamation from the Gov. Jim Edgar for International Week in Illinois.

THE WEEK WAS established to coincide with ISC's annual International Festival, said James Quisenberry, ISC faculty advisor.

In response to a letter from Ghose, a letter from Vice President Dan Quayle's office stated its support of ISC's International Festival.

"This not only gained credit for the council and its programs, but for SIUC as well," Quisenberry said.

GHOSE SAID HE plans to expand International Week, the council's biggest event, to include other universities and states, he said.

Ghose also said he hopes to include a public affairs position in the council's constitution.

"A public affairs person would help the ISC deal with publics like the Governor and other dignitaries," he said.

To deal with recommendations for co-sponsorship of member associations, cultural and social events, Ghose said he will propose the establishment of a finance committee.

"If this past year is any indication, the next (year) will be better," Quisenberry said. "In the two years I have been in charge, I have seen a lot of bickering and competition in the council. This year has been much better."

GHOSE HAS HELD decision-making positions in the council for five years, Bandukwala has three years experience and Olsen has been with the council a year.

"This is sort of a training experience," Ghose said.

Quisenberry said the new council will work well together and that he supports them.

Ghose has an undergraduate degree in political science and public administration from the University of Madras, India and has completed his masters in international journalism at Baylor University in Texas.

Germany flooded by 50,000 Poles on first day of unrestricted travel

BERLIN (UPI) — Tens of thousands of Poles came to Germany Monday, the first day of unrestricted travel, and, in some cases, were greeted by rock-throwing neo-Nazi shouting, "Foreigners get out!"

By midday, customs officials said about 50,000 Poles had crossed into Germany, taking advantage of an agreement, effective at midnight, lifting visa requirements for tourists travelers between Poland and six European Community countries, including Germany.

In most cases there was no trouble, and at some border points Germans gave flowers to the visiting Poles. But the welcome was far less hospitable at several German border towns, including Frankfurt an der Oder, the scene of violent protests the night before.

About 250 right-wing rioters at the Oder River town threw stones, stink bombs and other fireworks, gave the Nazi salute and shouted, "Foreigners get out! ... Sieg Heil! ... Germany for the Germans!"

Two members of a Polish orchestra were injured when rioters threw stones at their tour bus, police said. Officers used batons and tear gas to disperse the rioters and arrested several of them.

Similar, smaller protests were held in other border towns, including Guben, where rioters blocked the bridge over the Oder linking Poland with Germany for more than an hour.

"We don't like the Poles," one of the rioters said. "They steal our cars in West Berlin."

The brawls prompted Polish police to a temporary close the crossing in Slubice, where Poles were directed a few miles south to Swiecko and a 4-mile line developed.

Waiting times were up to six hours at some border points.

Many of Polish traders were stopped at the border and returned to Poland after customs officials found illegal quantities of goods apparently meant for trade, particularly cigarettes, Poland's Main Customs Office said.

European leaders consider $180 million in aid to Kurds

LUXEMBOURG (UPI) — European Community leaders considered a proposal Monday to send $180 million in humanitarian aid to Kurdish refugees and create an enclave for hundreds of thousands of Kurds fleeing northern Iraq.

British Prime Minister John Major and EC Commission President Jacques Delors separately proposed that the EC immediately provide the aid to Iraq's Kurdish minority. Initial reaction from other EC leaders was positive.

British spokesman said the money should be made available this week. A spokesman said the German government supported proposed financial aid package.

"We have had to cope with disasters in the past," Major told the 11 other heads of state who gathered for the special one-day meeting "but it is rare that the international community has to respond to a disaster in such a scale and one that is man-made."

The arriving EC leaders were greeted by about 100 banner-waving demonstrators urging help for Iraq's Kurdish minority.

The special summit was called at France's request to review the European role during the Persian Gulf crisis, but the Kurds' plight emerged as the focus.

Britain said the aid could be found from existing EC budget sources, although some other nations were skeptical such a large outlay could be quickly freed up.

Britain, France and the EC Commission already have begun sending aid to the Kurds, but the sum debated by EC leaders would dwarf their efforts. Britain has pledged $35 million.

The British prime minister said creation of an enclave in northern Iraq "would provide shelter and housing to the Kurds until it is safe for them to return to their own homes."

"I realize that that could be a long-term commitment," Major said. "But if we cannot get rid of Saddam Hussein we may at least be able to provide some protection for the most vulnerable of the Iraqi people."

The British ambassador to the United Nations, Sir David Hannay, planned to meet in New York Monday with U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to discuss the British proposals.

But Major counseled against using force against Saddam's army, saying "the consequences of military intervention on the necessary scale would be bloodshed on an even larger scale than what we are already seeing."

Authorities seal Israeli capital for Baker's visit

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli authorities sealed off Jerusalem Monday to Arab residents of the occupied territories as part of a general security alert meant to prevent the violence that accompanied Secretary of State James Baker's previous visit.

The government stationed 1,000 police officers around Jerusalem and along the route to the capital from Ben Gurion International Airport for Baker's arrival.

Prompting the extraordinary security measures were fresh memories of the four women who were fatally stabbed near a Jerusalem playground by a Palestinian man from the Gaza Strip just before the secretary of state's last visit March 12. A grim-faced Baker was shown on Israeli television the next day visiting their graves.

Rifle-toting police snipers were stationed on roofs surrounding the stately King David Hotel, where Baker was to spend two nights.

Students to perform in symphonic concert

By Annette Holder
Staff Writer

Non-music majors will get to strum their stuff at the spring symphonic concert at 8 tonight in Shryock Auditorium.

Most of the band members are non-music majors who have played instruments since high school, said Dan Phillips, conductor and professor of music.

Jennifer Sheets, sophomore in child and family services from Cobden, said it is not difficult for her to keep up with her classes and instrument practice this semester because she is not taking many classes.

Sheets, who plays flute, said "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" is her favorite because she likes J.S. Bach.

Tracy Kavelman, freshman in psychology from Lincoln, said it is difficult to juggle practicing her instrument five hours a week and keeping up her school work.

Kavelman's favorite song to perform also is "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" because it is a pretty melody.

The music is an arrangement of different styles chosen to take advantage of the strengths and weaknesses of the band, Phillips said.

The selection includes music by Bach, Russell Alexander, Clifton Williams, Malcolm Arnold, Leonard Bernstein and W. Francis McBeth.

Phillips said "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" will be the most difficult piece the band will play.

"It is easy to assume if something is slow it's easy. However, it's just the opposite," Phillips said.

Tim Fink, graduate student in theater from Anacortes, Wash., will be the conductor for the selections from "West Side Story."

Fink said he chose "West Side Story" as an in-memoriam to musical producer Bernstein, who died this fall.

"I like the rhythm and vitality of Bernstein's music," Fink said. "It is fun music."

Jean Krejca, freshman in biological science from St. Charles, Mo., said her favorite piece is "West Side Story" because she likes the conductor.

"He's a nice change of pace," Krejca said. She plays the flute.

Dave Cump, freshman in aviation from Chicago, also said the melodies of "West Side Story" are easy to play.

"But it is difficult to play (so) the band sounds united," Cump said.

Ann Roder, undecided freshman from Chesterfield, Mo., said "The Southerner" by Alexander is her favorite because it has so many different dynamics — soft and loud. Roder plays the piccolo.

Tickets are available at the door and cost $1 for students and $2 for the community. All proceeds will go toward School of Music scholarships.

Hangover

Darryl Upton, senior in finance, pulls a broom and utensils out of a wall at his apartment on Wall Street Monday afternoon. The damage came from an after-hours party, Upton said.

Landon fighting inoperable cancer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Veteran television actor Michael Landon conferred with doctors Monday about his options for treatment of what appears to be inoperable pancreatic and liver cancer, his spokesman said.

Landon, 54, met with doctors at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center to "explore his medical alternatives," hospital spokesman Ron Wise said. "It could be chemotherapy or it could be some other option. I'm not sure and that's the reason for the meeting," Wise said.

He said tumors were discovered on Landon's liver and pancreas.

Landon was informed of his condition Friday. The actor who portrayed an angel in television's

"Highway to Heaven," the father of the Ingalls clan on "Little House on the Prairie" and Little Joe on "Bonanza," is currently involved in the production of his fourth television series.

He had checked into the hospital Wednesday evening, after returning to Los Angeles from a Utah ski vacation with his family.

Student Party short 6 names on petition, remains on ballot

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

The Student Party received one strike against it Monday after the USG Election Commission found it did not have a sufficient number of signatures on its petition from students living in the Thompson Point housing area. It has seven strikes left.

Michael Parker, West Side senator and Reform Party presidential candidate, found the problem with the petition and challenged its authenticity, asking the Election Commission to disqualify the Student Party from the ballot.

The USG bylaws require a prospective presidential candidate to submit a petition with 375 signatures, including at least 75 from each of the five geographic districts — Thompson Point, Brush Towers, University Park, West Side and East Side.

On the Student Party petition, six of the people's signatures from Thompson Point lived in other districts.

Jack Sullivan, West Side senator and Student Party presidential candidate, said he gave the Thompson Point petition to a senator to fill out and did not have time to check the names before the petition was due March 29.

Sullivan did not contest the charge and said getting the signatures would not be a problem.

Rochelle Goree, USG election commissioner, said the USG constitution does not state what an appropriate sanction would be, so the commission decided on giving the party one strike.

Under Election Commission rules, a party is allowed eight strikes before it is taken off the ballot.

Parties receive strikes for their own violation, and receive one strike for each strike one of their senators receive. Senators are disqualified after three strikes.

Goree said the strike was a fair sanction and that disqualification was too severe for missing only six signatures out of 375.

Sullivan said the problem with the petition was an oversight on the part of the senator and the decision of the commission was fair.

Parker said he believed a party couldn't participate if the requirements weren't met but he looks forward to campaigning against Sullivan.

Bulging budget: Props, costumes sport steep price tags for TV

RADNOR, Pa. (UPI) — Salaries aside, almost everything, from diapers to doughnuts, determines the cost of producing a television show.

TV Guide, in its current issue, researched the cost of doing business to uncover such price tags as $130 for the stopwatch that ticks away on "60 Minutes" to $29.95 for the sneakers worn by Fred Rogers on "Mister Robert's Neighborhood."

Each half-hour sitcom can cost from $500,000 to $700,000, while an hour-long drama can run $900,000 to $1 million or more.

Wardrobes can be a costly item. The weekly wardrobe budget for the four women on "Designing Women" is $12,000 to $13,000, while it costs $2,500 per episode to cloak Katy Sagal and Christina Applegate on "Married...With Children."

Each of Andy Griffith's pale blue seersucker suits used on "Matlock" costs $2,000, including handwashing and aging to make it appear Matlock never wears new clothes. On the other hand the cost of costuming Elizabeth Pena on "Shannon's Deal" is just about $20 per episode, less than it costs to outfit Bill Cosby in suspenders, which run $30 to $70 a pair.

Drycleaning clothes costs $3,000 per "Perry Mason" TV-movie and $400 for each "Father Dowling Mysteries" episode.

Ties are big items. Each Mark Russell silk bow tie costs $50, the ties for Elliot of "thirtysomething" are $52 each. The ties for the "Baby Talk" producer who handles the infants cost $65 to $75 each and so far 11 of 12 have been ruined.

Speaking of "Baby Talk," diapers and other baby products cost $300 to $350 per episode. Topping that was "American Baby." When they ran out of diapers on one show they halted production until more could be bought. Overtime for the diaper wait cost $1,000.

Sally Jessy Raphael's trademark red eyeglasses cost $5,000 to $7,000 per year.

They have special anti-glare coating and Raphael has half a dozen or so extra pairs.

By-the-way, the Kleenex cost for Raphael's show is about $200 per year. It's handed out to crying guests and gum-chewing audience members.

Food for some 60 to 70 cast and crew on a TV show can run $1,000 per meal. ABC's "Nightline" spends $120 a month for coffee while "Twin Peaks" producers spend $150 a week for agent Dale Cooper's doughnuts.

L.A. police chief wins court order to return to job

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Police Chief Daryl Gates won a court order Monday allowing him to return to his job until a hearing later this month on the validity of his involuntary 60-day suspension by the Police Commission.

The controversial chief is expected to be back at work "first thing" Tuesday morning.

Superior Court Judge Ronald Sohigian, however, ordered an April 25 hearing on a lawsuit filed by Gates that challenges the action by the Police Commission, which forced him to take a paid administrative leave pending the outcome of its investigation of the notorious videotaped Rodney King police beating.

"The result today clearly indicates the judge recognizes the fundamental right the chief has to his job," said Jay Grodin, a Gates attorney.

Gates' win on the restraining order came only hours after a coalition of civil rights groups filed suit to intervene in his case, claiming Gates and the City Council colluded in order to get the chief back on the job.

Last week, the council ordered the city attorney to immediately settle Gates' anticipated lawsuit so he could return to his post quickly.

But the judge refused to sign off on the settlement, instead allowing the civil rights groups and an independent attorney hired by the three police commissioners to present their arguments.

As a result, Gates' leave has turned into a convoluted legal situation that forces the courts to step in and direct the usually smooth-running machinery of city governance.

Harold Washington feared assassination—FBI records

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The late Harold Washington, Chicago's first black mayor, feared he had been targeted for assassination by unnamed enemies, the Chicago Sun-Times said Monday, quoting FBI records.

A 1981 memo by an FBI agent to an agency official, obtained by the newspaper under the Freedom of Information Act, says Washington "feels that his life is in jeopardy." Washington at the time was a member of Congress.

"The congressman feels that since he was elected as an independent, there could be a politically motivated conspiracy, possibly to kill him," the memo said.

FBI reports show that during his years in Congress, a bullet hole was found in a window near his secretary's desk, his South Side Chicago district office was "fired upon," his office was ransacked by burglars and an extortion attempt was reported to the FBI.

An investigation discovered "no violation of federal law" in any of the activity, according to a report to then-Director William H. Webster, the newspaper said.

There was no indication in the memos of who Washington thought might want him killed.

Goldfish gulping

Tequila shots with live fish removed from Florida bar menu

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Live goldfish were struck from the menu by police order at the Everglades Club bar, where patrons had gulped down the squirming fish in shots of tequila or peppermint schnapps.

A SLIGHTLY SQUEAMISH patron witnessed the goldfish gobbling at the club Sunday and called police, who ordered live fish removed from the menu.

"I guess maybe it's cruelty to animals," police officer Ray Edmondson said as he left the bar to write his report. "First time in two years I've had a call like this."

In a fad that harks back to the Roaring '20s, about three dozen goldfish a week have been served at the club since manager Michael Sill took over a year and a half ago.

Priced at 50 cents in plain water or $2 in a shot of liquor, the fish were item No. 9 on the menu, right after hot chicken wings and pickled eggs.

Sill started selling the fish "as a goof" but admitted Monday he was too squeamish to swallow one himself.

"I'm probably the only one who hasn't tried it," he said.

He said the club wasn't formally cited for any offense.

CLUB REGULARS SAID swallowing live goldfish is no more cruel than dumping a live lobster in boiling water. Those who partook said eating the fishy fare was good fun.

"They're invigorating," said customer Donna Louise of Palm Beach. "It's the sensation as they go down."

Peppermint schnapps and tequila were the marinades of choice, Sill said. Sometimes, however, the liquor killed the fish before they were swallowed.

"THIS ONE WAS flopping around like crazy in a shot glass," patron Terry Becker said. "They poured some Cuevo (tequila) on it, and it flipped once, twice, that was it."

Sill said there had been no complaints about the goldfish before Sunday. Purchased from a pet store, the fish swim in a lighted aquarium that sits on the bar next to jars of hard-boiled eggs and pickled figs.

"They're very fresh," Sill said. "Just like sushi in your finest Manhattan bars."

Second spacewalk success; astronauts test equipment

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Two shuttle spacewalkers took turns zooming along a track in Atlantis' cargo bay Monday, pumping a space-age railroad handcar and testing other people movers that may be used during assembly of NASA's space station.

Astronauts Jerry Ross and Jay Apt also took turns riding on the end of Atlantis' 50-foot robot arm to determine the suitability of such fragile space cranes for moving future station hard-hats from one point to another and to determine realistic speed limits for such work.

Ross and Apt began their second spacewalk at 11 a.m. EDT Monday when they ventured out into Atlantis' payload bay for a six-hour spacewalk to complete experiments they began Sunday after repairing a crippled $617 million astronomy satellite during an emergency spacewalk.

The excursion Sunday was the first spacewalk in more than five years and only the second carried out on an emergency basis. The excursion Monday was more relaxed but nonetheless exciting to the crew.

"Holy cow, what a view!" Ross, making his fourth spacewalk, exclaimed as they got to work.

The goal of the second six-hour "extra-vehicular activity," or EVA, was to evaluate the performance of manually, electrically and mechanically powered carts to move astronauts and equipment from one point to another. Similar devices will be needed during construction of NASA's planned space station Freedom.

With commander Steven Nagel, co-pilot Kenneth Cameron and robot arm operator Linda Godwin looking on from the flight deck, Ross and Apt quickly got to work, setting up a 48-foot monorail track on the left side of the cargo bay.

Four charged with auto burglary after police watch with binoculars

By Gregory Norfleet
Staff Writer

SIU Police arrested four people early Monday morning on suspicion of auto burglary and criminal damage to a vehicle.

Catherine M. Early, 21, 118 Kellogg Hall, Deanna R. Feezor, 21, of Riverside, and two juvenile males were arrested after police observed one of the four break into a parked car and then leave the scene in another car with the other three suspects, police said.

All four were arrested and transported to Jackson County Jail.

Each were charged with four counts of burglary from an auto and four counts of criminal damage to a vehicle.

At 1:38 a.m. Monday an SIU Police officer was flagged down at Parking Lot 23 near Douglas Drive by someone who said his car had been broken into. He told the officer that a portable radio had been stolen from his car and he had observed another car being broken into, police said.

The officer ran a check on the license plate of the second car and then notified the owner of the car. The owner checked the car and said the in-dash radio had been stolen.

The same person who flagged down the officer reported he had seen a car driving around Lot 23 with its headlights off.

At 2:14 a.m. the same morning, an SIU Police officer was watching Parking Lot 106 across from Meadowridge Apartments through binoculars from the Quads area. He reported seeing people moving through the lot and heard loud noises.

The officer reported seeing a person looking into a vehicle. He said he believed the person opened the door of the vehicle because he saw the interior light turn on. He then saw the person get into a 1985 Audi with three other people and leave the parking lot.

The officer radioed for assistance while he went to the lot to check on the vehicle where he discovered two blue Fords had broken windows.

The owners were contacted and one reported a radar detector stolen.

The officer who stopped the Audi found the missing items in the car.

Bush in the dirt with first pitch of 1991 season

ARLINGTON, Texas (UPI) — President Bush threw out the first pitch of the baseball season at Arlington Stadium Monday night and failed to find the strike zone.

Bush, with a capacity through looking on and a national cable television audience tuned in, threw a pitch from the mound that bounced a foot in front of Texas Rangers catcher Geno Petralli.

The President, who had thrown practice pitches in the Texas clubhouse in order to ready himself for his one throw from the mound, expressed visible displeasure at failing to throw a strike to Petralli.

After exchanging greetings with Petralli, Bush trotted off the field and watched a portion of the season opener between Texas and Milwaukee from the luxury box of former Texas owner Eddie Chiles.

Bush came to the season opener at the request of his son, George W. Bush, current majority owner of the club.

Bush was joined by his wife Barbara and a 13-year-old

Quayle misses high and wide in Orioles-White Sox opener

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Vice President Dan Quayle, wearing an Orioles' warmup jacket despite 89-degree temperatures, threw out the ceremonial first pitch before the opener between Baltimore and the Chicago White Sox.

Quayle, a self-proclaimed Baltimore Orioles fan, toed the rubber and let loose with a high and wide pitch to Orioles catcher Bob Melvin.

Despite the location, Quayle raised his right hand, signaling a strike.

The next two "first pitches" were thrown by Virgil Trucks and Bob Turley. Trucks pitched for the White Sox and Turley the Orioles in the first opening day at Memorial Stadium in 1954.

The Orioles move to their Camden Yards stadium next season.

Monday also was Opening Day for Orioles radio announcer Ken Levine, who writes scripts for TV sitcoms "Cheers" and "The Simpsons."

He also has written an occasional movie script.

Levine moved into the booth this year with the highly respected veteran announcer Jon Miller.

Levine said his biggest task was keeping all the Ripkens — Cal Sr. and sons Cal Jr. and Billy — straight.

"I know that there's a Cal Ripken and a Billy Ripken," he said.

"There's two of them, right? I used to get confused.

"And then there's a Cal Ripken and a Cal Ripken and I'm still a little confused about that."

In the game, the White Sox trounced the Orioles 9-1.

Starter Jack McDowell struck out 10 in a complete game performance, and Sammy Sosa hit two homers to lead the Chisox.

The appearance by Bush, combined with all-time major league strikeout leader Nolan Ryan starting the season opener for the Rangers, brought about a huge media crowd.

"I don't know what we have more of here," said Texas shortstop Jeff Huson, "media people or secret service people. There are a lot more of both than there are players.

"Is this what the World Series is like?"

The stands were only a little more than half full when Bush surprised the crowd by walking onto the field 45 minutes before the game.

He walked out of the Milwaukee dugout and behind home plate, where Brewers' manager Tom Trebelhorn was hitting ground balls during infield practice.

The President and Trebelhorn shook hands and Bush then headed for the Rangers' clubhouse for a brief visit with members of the team.

handicapped boy from Brownwood, Texas in the ceremonies prior to the season opener at Arlington Stadium.

Bush's presence brought about an intensive security net around the stadium, one that forced each of the more than 43,000 spectators to walk through a metal detector.

His stopover in Arlington came at the end of a cross-country trip that included meetings with the heads of state from Japan and Mexico. Shortly before traveling to Arlington, Bush attended memorial services in Dallas for one-time GOP U.S. senator John Tower, who died Friday in a plane crash.

Clark, Clemens help Bosox crush Blue Jays in opener at Skydome

TORONTO (UPI) — Boston's new cleanup hitter wasted little time cleaning up on Toronto hurler Dave Stieb.

Jack Clark, signed in the offseason as a free agent, slugged a grand slam and Roger Clemens allowed just one run in eight innings Monday, pacing the defending American League East division champions to a 6-2 Opening Day triumph over the Blue Jays.

"Probably the biggest hit of my career," said Clark, who's third-inning blast gave Clemens a 5-1 lead. "It was certainly my best opening day. I've never had a big one like that."

Facing Stieb for the second time in the game, Clark took two breaking balls for called strikes, before drilling an inside fastball into the second tier of stands in left.

"He started me off with two sliders, and he's got as good or better a slider as anyone in the league," said Clark who is now with his fifth club in a 15-year career. "Fortunately, I didn't have to hit that one."

Clemens, pitching while appealing a five-game suspension for verbally abusing umpire Terry Cooney in the final game of last year's ALCS, had little trouble with either the minor league umpiring crew or the Blue Jay batters.

After giving up a run in the second on a pair of hits and a sacrifice fly, Clemens retired the next 14 in a row before Rance Mulliniks' one-out single in the seventh. Clemens gave up six hits in the game, struck out six and did not walk a batter.

"I made some pitches and tried to get everybody off stride," he said. "I felt very focused and if you stay focused it helps."

One Blue Jay who was impressed by Clemens was newcomer Joe Carter, who was acquired from San Diego in an off-season trade. Carter had a single in three at-bats off the Red Sox pitching ace, and made his Toronto debut really successful by slugging a ninth-inning homer off Jeff Gray.

"He (Clemens) is different than what I saw in '89, he's more of a pitcher now," said Carter. "It's scary. It used to be you'd go out there and look for a fastball and get a 94-95 mph fastball."

National League play begins as Mets squeak by Phillies

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Mets Manager Bud Harrelson couldn't have advertised his season opener any better.

Harrelson, who promised a more aggressive brand of baseball in 1991, watched Monday as his Mets strung hits together and took the extra base in posting a 2-1 Opening Day victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Vince Coleman and Gregg Jefferies stroked back-to-back doubles for a run and Hubie Brooks scored on the back end of a double steal as the Mets backed the strong pitching of Dwight Gooden.

"I thought we played aggressive," Harrelson said after his first Opening Day as Mets manager. "We wanted to come out and be aggressive today. There's times when you can steal some runs, and this time it worked."

Stealing runs hasn't been part of the Mets' arsenal for several years, as clubs under the guidance of Davey Johnson preferred to drive them home with the long ball. Stolen bases weren't given much priority, much less stealing home.

Harrelson waited all of four innings to change that thinking.

With the Mets leading 1-0, Brooks opened with a double off Terry Mulholland and went to third on Howard Johnson's short fly to right, just beating a strong throw from Dale Murphy. One out later, Tommy Herr walked.

With the count 1-2 to Charlie O'Brien, Herr took off for second. Catcher Darren Daulton threw in an attempt to nab Herr, allowing Brooks to take off from third. Second baseman Wally Backman cut the throw off and fired back to Daulton, but the return came too late to tag Brooks.

"I felt I could take it (home) in that situation," said Brooks, acquired in a trade with Los Angeles over the winter. "Fortunately, it worked."

The steal of home was the first for the Mets since June 13, 1985, when Danny Heep turned the trick against the Phillies.

"We're not going to use it a lot," Herr said. "In fact, now that it's going to be shown on national TV, we may have to put it on the backburner for a while."

New York scored its first run of 1991 before any Mets batter recorded an out.

Coleman, signed as a free agent during the winter, led off his Mets career with a double off the right-field wall and scored when Jefferies doubled off the left-field wall.

Reds rewarded with rings in rain at Riverfront

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Despite a driving rainstorm, the Reds received their 1990 World Series championship rings before their opener against Houston. The first ring was presented to Marge Schott, the club president.

"I've waited five years to get this," said Schott, referring to the time she owned the ballclub before the team achieved her goal of winning a world title.

Schott recently was hospitalized two weeks for a serious blood infection.

Doctors said they had been concerned about Schott's survival until she began responding to treatment. Schott defied doctor's orders to stay home Monday.

Not left out of the championship ring ceremony was Schott's St. Bernard dog, "Schottzie," who received a special king-sized "ring" in the shape of a dog collar.

League umpires back to work after calling strike

NEW YORK (UPI) — Major league umpires reached a four-year contract agreement with the American and National leagues Monday, hours before the start of a new season.

Because the dispute was settled so late, not all the umpires made it to their scheduled Opening Day assignments, particularly for afternoon games. Non-union crews worked the day games at Baltimore, Kansas City, Detroit and the New York Mets.

The settlement averted what would have been the umpires' sixth work stoppage in 21 years.

The umpires refused to work the last two days of spring training and contended the club owners were prepared to lock them out if a contract were not reached by Opening Day. Major league baseball was prepared to use

Roger Clemens compliments replacement umpire crew

TORONTO (UPI) — Boston Red Sox ace Roger Clemens, who has had his share of run-ins with major league umpires, offered nothing but praise for the minor-league crew that worked his Opening Day 6-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

With the umpires' strike settled too late for a major-league crew to reach Toronto in time for the 2:05 p.m. EDT start on Monday, Clemens and Blue Jay hurler Dave Stieb were forced to pitch before a crew with nothing higher than Triple-A experience.

"They did a great job, a perfect job," said Clemens, who is pitching while appealing a five-game suspension for verbally abusing umpire Terry Cooney in the final game of last year's American League Championship Series.

"If you'd asked anybody I don't think they would even have noticed, (that it was a minor league crew)."

"I walked out at the start and asked (home plate umpire Jim Higgins) for a new ball and I said to him that I heard the strike was settled and asked him what he was going to do tomorrow. He said he was a chef.

amateur umpires for as long as the stalemate lasted.

According to the basic agreement that will extend through 1994, umpires will receive a hefty salary increase, an extra week of vacation and better retirement, life insurance and medical benefits.

In turn, the Major League Umpires Association relinquished to the league offices the unrestricted right to select umpires for all postseason games, and also forfeited its pay for exhibition games.

"We would like to present major league baseball at its finest and that includes having the finest umpires in the world," said Commissioner Fay Vincent, in Arlington, Texas, before the Rangers met the Milwaukee Brewers. "We are glad they are back to work. Aside from the economic issue, the most important thing was that we wanted to have control of the postseason."

"Now the postseason and World Series will be on performance only, which is the way it should have been."

Richie Phillips, attorney for the umpires' union, and Robert Kheel, representing the two leagues, met non-stop from 4 p.m. EDT Sunday to 7:30 a.m. Monday. The official signing of the contract came at 12:12 p.m. in the law offices of Willkie Farr and Gallagher, of which Kheel is a partner.

Missouri Valley Conference and the Big Eight. Dionne is an excellent player."

After the tense match, LeFevre said his team isn't down on itself about the loss.

"We're disappointed we didn't win," he said. "But we're better than we might have expected with a young team."

Other winners for the Salukis were freshmen Danny Gonzalez and Kai Kramer and the No. 2 doubles team of sophomores Jay Merchant and Rikard Stenstrom.

Gonzalez defeated Andrew Vancott 3-6, 6-3, 7-5 and Kramer destroyed J.D. Nieman in straight sets, 6-0, 6-2. Merchant and Stenstrom played an extremely long match against Ross Nwachukwu and Nieman but won 7-5, 6-7(7-4), 7-6(7-5).

The tennis team is in action Saturday and Sunday at the University Tennis Courts in a quadrangular meet. The first match begins at 9:00 a.m.

Golden Bear pursues seventh Masters title

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Suddenly, Jack Nicklaus winning a seventh Masters doesn't seem quite such a long shot.

Nicklaus, who last won the Masters in 1986—his last non-senior triumph—enhanced his chances this weekend when he overcame a 12-shot deficit to win the PGA Senior Tradition at Scottsdale, Ariz.

"I didn't think I could make up that much ground," Nicklaus said after shooting 66-67 in the final two rounds. "I'd never done that in more than 30 years of playing golf, so I had no reason to think I could do it now. I didn't think I could catch anybody."

That Nicklaus was even playing at all was a surprise. The week before the Masters he invariably hones his game with extra practice at the Augusta National course.

Before his victory in Scottsdale, Nicklaus was listed as a 25-1 shot to win the Masters, tying him for 21st on the list. The favorite, at 7-2, was Englishman Nick Faldo, who will attempt this week to become the first to win three straight Masters.

Jose-Maria Olazabal of Spain, at 5-1, and Greg Norman of Australia, at 7-1, were also among the favorites with two-time U.S. Open champion Curtis Strange the highest rated American at 6-1.

Faldo also could become the first golfer to win the same major three years in a row since Peter Thomson of Australia did so at the British Open in 1954-55-56.

"It's something that would be great to achieve," Faldo said. "But there's not that much pressure because it's not like you expect to do these kind of things. We all point toward the major championships. The Masters is the first of the year, so it's time to give it everything you've got."

Eighty-nine golfers are expected to play in the four-day tournament with the purse in excess of last year's $1.25 million.

Although Gary Player (1961, 1974, 1978) was the only foreign winner in the first 43 Masters, foreigners have won six of the last 11 with Seve Ballesteros of Spain winning in 1980 and 1983, Bernhard Langer of Germany in 1985, Sandy Lyle of England in 1988, and Faldo the past two years.

time of 49:58 seconds is only 48 seconds off the NCAA Outdoor Championship provisional qualifying standard.

Other winners included the distance medley team of freshman Darrin Williams, sophomores Bernard Henry and Gerallt Owen and junior Nick Schwartz, Williams in the 110-meter hurdles, sophomore John Bookout in the decathlon and junior Mark Stuart in the 3,000-meter steeplechase.

Stuart's performance of 9:08.61 bested the competition by 17 seconds and placed him seventh on the Saluki's all-time Honor Roll.

In the 100-meter dash, Hines and Bridges finished second and third respectively behind an unattached athlete, Tim Williams. The three runners finished within .06 seconds of each other.

Other Salukis who placed at SEMOTION were freshmen Brian Miller, fifth in the shot put and Torry King, seventh in the discus and sophomores Darrin Plab and Ross McKnight, who placed second in the high jump and fourth in the decathlon respectively, and Johnathan Hirsh, eighth in the javelin.

not have to be right on target with their throws. Someone could throw it in the dirt and Angie would dig it out nine times out of ten.

"The rest of the infield knows she will get the ball no matter where it goes and this lets them play with a little more ease."

LeMonnier, a physical education major from Tinley Park, said after she graduates she plans on teaching and coaching softball on a high school level.

"I someday hope to teach and coach at a collegiate level," LeMonnier said. "But I also want to get certified in athletic training and then get my master's degree in physical therapy. Teaching high school will probably be a stepping stone for whatever I plan to do next."

LeMonnier said with the team this season there is no reason for it not to make it to the NCAAs.

"If everyone on the team stays healthy and plays softball like I know they can, we will have a definite shot at the NCAAs. This is the one of the best teams I have ever played on," LeMonnier said. "We play well together and there is also good chemistry between us. We are like sisters and we are also a good ballclub."

"The game against nationally ranked (No. 10) South Carolina over spring break proved to me we can play anyone in the United States."

The Salukis face Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville today at 5 p.m. and LeMonnier doesn't want the team's attitude to jeopardize its 11-game winning streak.

"We can't take any team lightly" LeMonnier said. "We have so much going for us we have to take it one game at a time. And for me, being a senior, this is the year to win as much as we can and go as far as we can."

LeMonnier said Edwardsville is a lot like Bradley but they have more consistent hitters and a very strong pitcher.

SIUC beat Bradley in a double header Saturday 6-1 and 3-1.

LeMonnier said even though this is her last year as a Saluki, she thinks the team will continue to win in the future.

"Whatever competition the team faces in the future it will be prepared for," LeMonnier said. "I wish nothing but the best for them after this year."

Bretchelsbauer said LeMonnier is one of the best first basemen SIUC has ever had and she will be greatly missed.

"Angie makes it look so easy," Bretchelsbauer said. "Her defensive play in the infield is outstanding. Many times it is her that makes us look good. She will be missed over there at first. It will be hard to replace her."
