Board unable to approve reallocation of fees until meeting in September

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Reallocation of student fees, which would benefit SIU's Health Service, will have to wait until September for approval by the Board of Trustees.

Jeff Burns, undergraduate and chairman of the Student Fees Priorities Board (SFPB), said dragging of administrative fees will prevent SFPB's report from going to the Board Friday. But Danilo Orescanin, executive vice president, said "a lot of discussion" must precede a "very conscious decision" on reallocating student money.

SFPB was created to review the method of student fee allocation, and to make recommendations to align student desires and the disbursement of their money. Without increasing total student fees, the SFPB unanimously agreed to reallocate monies from the Athletic Fee and the Student Welfare and Recreation Fee to the Student Medical Benefit fee.

Burns feels the recommendations will not get Board approval because the administration is not backing them. He said the administration is trying to build an athletic powerhouse at the expense of students, who don't give athletics high priority.

Burns said he felt the administration approval was delayed because of concern over the Health Service's possibly receiving a surplus of money, while other programs suffered. He said this could be prevented by an annual meeting of the SFPB or its equivalent.

SFPB's report recommends $2 be taken from the $10 Athletic Fee and given to the Student Medical Benefit Fee. It also proposes $8 of the present $15 for Welfare and recreation go to the same place, giving the medical fee $21.50, instead of the present $11.50.

Orescanin said he and SFPB agree in principle, but reducing outright the money for athletics and for welfare and recreation would be "less than helpful." He said attention must be given to future requirements.

"We're not meeting our anticipated income now," Orescanin said. "We can't just reach out somewhere and find $50-60,000 (for athletics)." The estimate referred to money which would be lost through SFPB's plan.

Orescanin said the administration's supposed desire to become an athletic powerhouse "is all new to me."

"The SFPB report said the administration used primarily student fees to finance athletic programs, contrary to student wishes. It cited a fall 1972 survey which showed students felt the athletic program was most deserving of cuts which would benefit Health Service and its activities. The welfare and recreation fee was next in line for the financial ax, the report said.

"Past recommendations and referendums do not reflect student support of an athletic program as a high priority," the report stated. Orescanin countered that "an awful lot of students" appear interested in sports, judging from attendance at athletic events.

Orescanin suggested raising ticket prices at athletic events to cover the proposed cut in athletic fees, explained Burns. He questioned the feasibility of such a move. He said he felt sports fans should not "be taxed" for their interest.

Agnew calls charges 'lies', not resigning

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew denounced as "damned lies" allegations involving him in political payoffs from Maryland contractors, and said Wednesday he has no intention of resigning or even temporarily stepping aside.

"I have no intention of being skewered in this, I have called this press conference to label as false, scurrilous and malicious these allegations," he said.

Agnew appeared somber and somewhat angry as he met with newsmen to break a self-imposed silence on the published accusations.

"Let me say right now, I have no expectation of being indicted and I am not going to face any contingent thinking of that type at this time," he declared.

The nation's second highest elected official said "I have not" when asked if he was giving any thought to resigning, even temporarily. President Nixon, he said, has expressed confidence in him.

Agnew said repeatedly throughout the 31-minute news conference that he had nothing to hide and that his lawyers would decide on the appropriate way to make his personal records available to the U.S. attorney's office in Baltimore.

However, the vice president avoided answering whether he would personally appear before the federal grand jury. The investigators have not asked to see him personally, he said.

A source close to the investigation said prior to the news conference that Agnew would be invited to appear before the grand jury as a "normal courtesy." He said a subpoena was not contemplated at this time.

About the same time, a White House spokesman said the fact that Agnew is under investigation is no reason for the President to lose confidence in the vice president.

Nixon "expressed confidence in me, which is all I need," Agnew told a packed auditorium of newsmen and a national radio and television audience.

The investigation, directed by U.S. attorney George Beal in Baltimore, involves an alleged kickback scheme of political payoffs from private contractors in exchange for state and federal contracts while Agnew was governor of Maryland and later as vice president. A number of his close political associates in Maryland also are involved in the probe.

"I am denying them outright and I think I should be permitted this departure from normal language and labeling them, 'damned lies,'" he said of the charges.

Asked if he ever received money for his personal use from firms holding contracts with the state or federal government, Agnew replied: "Absolutely not."

The vice president said he was not aware of the specific charges against him. But at one point, he referred to the rumors which he said prompted a federal investigation of bribery, tax fraud, extortion and conspiracy allegations.

Asked specifically about published reports that a former member of his staff, Joseph B. Wolff, has told federal prosecutors that Agnew received kickbacks of $1,000 a week while governor, the vice president said he wasn't sure that any such charges were made.

"I would not respond to something I'm not certain of," he said.

However, a source close to the investigation confirmed the report, adding: "Obviously, they got it from somebody who knows what is going on."

The vice president said that on the cocktail circuit, various allegations coming out of the investigation have "mentioned my name." He said he did not think it would be correct for him personally to contact the U.S. attorney's office, so hired counsel.

A letter from Beal, a 35-year-old Republican appointee of Nixon, formally notified Agnew of the investigation on Aug. 2. Agnew issued a statement Monday night disclosing that he was under criminal investigation, but denied any wrongdoing.

Board to reconsider trailer court closing

The SIU Board of Trustees is scheduled to reconsider a proposal to construct a 675-car parking lot on the site of the University Trailer Court at its August meeting Friday in Edwardsville.

Residents of the trailer court objected to the construction project, approved by the board last month, and have petitioned the board to reconsider its decision.

The board is also scheduled to consider proposals to institute a grade forgiveness policy at SIU-Carbondale. This "Second Chance" proposal was suggested by President David R. Derge last November 1972. It has been under study by administration and faculty groups since that time.

A resolution calling for termination of programs under the SIU Latin American Institute also will be acted on by the board. Budget considerations and financial reallocations caused the institute programs to be eliminated.

Amendments to the Carbondale campus motor vehicle regulations also are scheduled to be considered.

A proposal for a Master of Science in Public Communication Arts to be offered at SIU-C also will be considered, after being tabled for several months to allow additional work on the degree.

The board staff will present material dealing with the budget request for fiscal year 1973-74 to be made to the Illinois Board of Higher Education. This will include statements of the University's scope and mission of each campus.

In addition, other reports from trustees serving on state-wide committees and reports from the two campus presidents and board staff will be presented.

Murder case still open

By Sam Denoms
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
The murder of SIU coed Colleen Battaglia remains unsolved after a month of investigation by local and state law enforcement officers and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI).
Mrs. Battaglia's nude body was found around 3 p.m., July 9 in the trunk of her abandoned car in the Carbondale City Dump. The car was later identified as one used by four men in the armed robbery of $11,000 from the Elkhavite State Bank in Elkhavite about 90 minutes earlier. Police theorized at the time that Mrs. Battaglia, a 22-year-old graduate student in the Rehabilitation Institute, had been abducted by the bank robbers to provide them with a getaway car and was killed before the bank hold up took place.

Capt. Edward Hogan Carbondale Police said most of the initial theories have not changed concerning the Battaglia case and its link with the Elkhavite robbery.
"Presently the situation involving this case is in a state of limbo," Hogan said. "However, some new evidence has been sent to the FBI crime lab in Washington, which may lead to a quick solution of the crimes."

"If our crime lab is able to interpret the new evidence, it will implicate others not known to us before," an FBI spokesman said.
"This is one of those cases in which the solving of one crime will in fact solve another."
Both local police and the FBI declined to say exactly what the new evidence was or when the lab results were expected.
Michael Battaglia, graduate student at SIU, returned to Carbondale last week from Sommers, Conn. where his wife was buried.
A source close to the Battaglia family said Battaglia plans to re-enroll in SIU this fall and complete his master's degree in technical engineering.

Fee change delayed

SFPB's report said the welfare and recreation fund could be cut this fall, since funding will have been completed for an $8.9 million campus recreation building. The report said this reduced fee would still enable the new building to be maintained for two years.
Orescanin said this recommendation should be tempered since enrollment may decline in the next few years. He said it would be unfair to future students to raise activity fees which would be reduced by SFPB's proposal.
Burns and Orescanin agreed SIU's Health Service needs expansion. But while Burns advanced a method for immediate improvement, Orescanin said budgets for fiscal 1973-74 have already been submitted and would be difficult to alter. Orescanin said preliminary budget plans for 1975 will soon be required by the Board of Trustees.

Although the administration is following the normal course for budget matters, Burns said there remains an immediate need for upgrading SIU's medical program. He said money is needed for employment of a night-time physician, a gynecologist and a radiologist, for improving the pharmacy, and for replacing or buying equipment.
Orescanin recognized money for SIU's ambulance contract with Doctor's Hospital would have to come first. Although he echoed Burns' concern, he repeated that the situation must be seen in light of "what it means in five years."

Account audits still incomplete

Audits of the three largest accounts in student activities will not be completed until the end of August, a spokesman at the Student Activities Office said Tuesday.
The accounts from Student Government, Student Government Activities Council and Black Affairs Council are being audited because they had been given the largest appropriations this year.

Agnew calls charges 'lies'

The news conference signaled a shift in tactics for Agnew who declared in the initial statement that he would make no further comment until the investigation was completed.
But he charged that "defamatory leaks to news media" indicated to him that the tradition secrecy of such investigations is "not going to be extended to the vice president."
Because of these leaks, "I cannot adhere to my original intention to remain silent."
Asked how he thought the investigation would affect his presidential chances, Agnew said such charges are always bothersome to public figures but that he was not thinking about them in that frame of reference at this time.
"I am not ready to characterize myself as under a cloud," he said. "A cloud is often in the eyes of the beholder."
Agnew said his income tax returns have been prepared by a professional accounting firm since 1967, which he noted was the year in which the allegations involving him were said to have first arisen.

Library plans to issue new literary publication

A new literary journal, entitled ICarbS, will make its appearance this month at SIU.
To be published twice-yearly by Morris Library, its contents largely will be articles based upon research in the library's special collections.
Publication was made possible by Freidens of Morris Library, who raised almost $2,000 last year by a book sale and a dinner dance.
The Friends already are planning a second annual book sale in October. R. Corydon Finch of Anna, president, said.
An excerpt from a new unpublished novel by Kay Boyle will be the lead item in the first issue of ICarbS. Miss Boyle, currently professor of creative writing at San Francisco State University, has won two O. Henry Short Story awards and has held two Guggenheim fellowships. The Morris Library owns the bulk of Boyle manuscripts.
Other articles in Vol. 1, No. 1 of the journal will include: "The Lawrence Durrell Collection at S.I.U.," by Ian MacNiven, Australian researcher; "William James and George Santayana," by Sidney Hook, philosopher and former president of the John Dewey Foundation; "The John Dewey Papers Come to S.I.U.," by Jo Ann Boydston, project director for the University's Center for Dewey Studies; "Hemingway's 'Metaphysics' in Four Stories of the Thirties: A Look at the Manuscripts," by John M. Howell; "Robert Graves' Papers: The Artist and the Personality," by Ted E. Boyle and Richard F. Peterson; "The Artist as Rebel: Some Reflections on Francis Stuart," by Jerry H. Natterstad; and "Progress at Morris Library: Pluses and Problems," by Ralph E. McCoy.

Editors of ICarbS are David V. Koch, rare book librarian; Kenneth W. Duckett, curator of special collections; and Alan M. Cohn, humanities librarian and professor of English.
Subscriptions for ICarbS are $5 per year for institutions and individuals alike. A subscription includes membership in the Friends of Morris Library and any and all of its additional publications. Subscriptions and manuscript queries should be sent to Michele Doyle, editorial assistant, Morris Library.

Mayor reviews surge in city's development

By Stan Kosinski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Mayor Neal Eckert traced Carbondale's surge from an industrially-barren community to a rapidly-developing city at the Rotary Club's weekly luncheon meeting Wednesday.

"Industrial expansion is just getting off the ground as a result of private groups providing time and money through the Carbondale Industrial Corp. and the Business and Industrial Development Association. The city has joined the effort by establishing an industrial development department and by pledging to purchase 100 acres for a new industrial park," Eckert said.

"Within the last year, the Gannon building was profitably sold, a building was purchased for Tuck Tape expansion and two new industries have started—Interstyle Inc. and the Nutrition Headquarters," Eckert added.

Commercial expansion, he continued, can be seen on both the east and west sides of the city, and city sales tax revenues increased from $571,148 in 1970-71 to $712,483 in 1972-73.

However, even though Carbondale is becoming a regional shopping center, action in the downtown area has been slow, Eckert said. Responding to this inactivity, a citizens' group called the Downtown Task Force collected money and spent considerable time in developing a plan for the downtown area, Eckert said.

"As a result, plans are underway for increased parking and remodeling of buildings. With the help of Congressman Ken Gray, a $10 million federal grant to depress the railroad will open up new commercial areas downtown and alleviate many traffic problems. If all goes well, the downtown area will also host a $5 million federal building and civic center complex," Eckert said.

The principal nutrient to Carbondale's economic growth, Eckert said, was an increase in population. Prior to 1940, Carbondale's population ranked fourth in southern Illinois, trailing Mount Vernon, Marion and Murphysboro. With the end of World War II, the city was born, Eckert said.

"Population increased from 8,550 in 1940 to 22,816 in 1970 as a direct result of the tremendous growth of Southern Illinois University," he said. Not mature, the period was "characterized by haphazard unplanned developments, speculative building, inflation in land prices, increasing crime and an unmet demand upon city services."

To professionalize this undirected approach, the Council-Manager system of government was initiated to cope with problems of providing city services, Eckert said.

"Growth and change in government were as great as the growth and change in the town itself during this period," he said. Eckert paralleled the 1950's and 60's with the 20's.

Before assuming the mayor's office in May, 1971, Eckert described the city's condition as "one of unfavorable national publicity, speculators going bankrupt, city against university, liberal against conservative and a deficit city budget."

"Although there was no apparent relationship, the student protests and destruction which closed SIU in May, 1970, appear to have been the inevitable conclusion to the SIU growth era—the era of dissatisfaction with change combined with a diverse population who could find few areas of agreement," Eckert said.

"Annexation does not necessarily mean economic growth but it does contribute to the financial base of the city. Since May, 1971, we have annexed 5,194 people and 1,107.95 acres of land. This total included the semi-controversial annexation of SIU living areas," Eckert said.

The population increase, permitted Carbondale to become eligible for home rule as well as advantages dispersed on a population basis—motor fuel tax, state income tax and federal revenue sharing.

Construction, Eckert said, continues to be significant. "Since May, 1971, permits have been issued for $18.5 million in construction of which $12.6 million was private capital. SIU construction within the city was $4.7 million giving a grand total of $23.3 million in slightly more than two years."

City services have also improved.

he said. The total crime rate in the city was cut almost in half since May, 1971, Eckert said.

"This reduction is a result of increased personnel, training and professionalism within the Police Department using $262,000 in state and federal grants as well as more city resources for crime prevention," he said.

The Department of Public Works has carried out several major projects and the Planning Department has worked with citizen groups in completing the 1990 Land Use Plan, Eckert said. A new housing ordinance was past and a new zoning ordinance proposed. The city can function financially and the federal commitment to the Urban Renewal Department increased from $2 million last year to $3.1 million this year. The relationship between the city and SIU has improved considerably, Eckert said.

Eckert offered his personal thanks to City Manager Carroll Fry for work as the manager. Eckert said the city council, in which he is an member of equal power, "has adopted a strong affirmative action program which not only requires equal opportunity in city employment but also stipulates that firms dealing with the city have an approved affirmative action program."

Eckert said the city still has some promises: overbuilt conventional student living areas; the need for a four lane highway to St. Louis which he said is critical for the future development of Carbondale; storm waters which continue to plague residents and those who are affected must speak out to channel capital improvement funds for that purpose.

These problems and problems in the future shall be attacked with an open government, Eckert said.

"Carbondale is in an area of transition from a state supported economy to a diversified economy. The cooperation and understanding of all resident will be needed to make this transition. It will require us to take a new look at our natural and human resources to determine a wise course for future development and maintenance of our economy. Specifically, we must examine recreation and tourism and attempt to resolve environmental concerns associated with this development. Attracting new industry and commercial development must remain top priority," Eckert said.

"IT'S ONLY YOUR IMAGINATION!"

Don Wright, Miami Herald

Editorial

Pleasant Valley Sunday

In this time of high food and gas prices, governmental upheaval and local unrest due to high tuition prices, plans for a needless monorail, etc., etc., I was surprised to find one federally associated organization which is benefitting mankind.

Picture mom setting the table and dad out back cooking steaks or hot dogs or hamburgers with current meat prices. The kids are in the yard playing quietly. The next door neighbor stops over to exchange some idle chatter. This is the scene at Evergreen Terrace, a 304-unit apartment complex for married couples.

The Federal Housing Administration financed the building of Evergreen Terrace. To be eligible to live there, a couple must have a certain family income limitation which cannot be exceeded. The family's size also is taken into account.

Rent is pretty reasonable: $118 a month for a two-bedroom unit and $131 for a three-bedroom. Utilities are included in this fee.

Each of the 38 buildings elects one representative for the complex's activity council. This group is funded from a $1 fee included in each month's rent. It sponsors parties, picnics and other events for the children and adults.

The apartments are fully furnished and have central heating and air conditioning. There are more than enough parking spaces and laundry facilities are provided.

There are playgrounds located at various places around the drive for the 400-plus children. About 99 per cent of the families have children—a couple of families were there before it was required.

Nine apartments are arranged for persons who use wheelchairs. Another big attraction is that there is no damage deposit. A forwarding address, however, must be submitted when a family moves out. If any damages are found, the family is billed through the University.

So what about the inevitable? The drawbacks? One resident said that she thought the lights along the drive were too dim, endangering small children playing after dark. Most of the children are 12 and under.

The biggest drawback, however, is not suffered by residents. It is suffered by the people and families on the waiting list every fall that is a country mile long.

With all this contented, satisfied, friendly and considerate living happening out at Evergreen Terrace, I wonder why another one or two aren't built to relieve the people on the waiting lists?

Letters

Needed first is practical demonstration of Christianity

To the Daily Egyptian:

I did read with avid interest and agreement Ruth Eshenaur's letter of 1 August. But it would seem in fact the application of Christianity, or Christian ideals if you will, to daily living is an all too rare practice but if enough people did this it would have a positive effect upon civilization.

Now people in the Christian community speak of witnessing, that is, telling others of the very real nature of the Spirit of Christ. It is unfortunate there is so much irresponsible witnessing going on, whereby the people witnessing are sometimes more interested in the deliberate calculated manifestations of mysticism or in quoting loosely and incoherently from the scriptures, practises which are vague and confusing to the person being witnessed to or amount to the mere casting of pearls before swine.

What is needed first is a practical demonstration of Christianity, that is, the Spirit of Christ and its power to influence the world. The Scriptures mean nothing to one unless they are able to understand them and this often requires a certain feeling which must come from inside; it is in part a feeling of love and service for our fellow man.

Paul Revere writes again

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would first like to thank you for the use of your column and say I had almost forgotten how good it was to write a letter to the editor. My reason for using your medium is simple — 1. you have a wide following and 2. some have a chance to learn about another student's views on subjects which may be of a foreign nature. My writing is to make your readers aware of a Red Cushman putt-putt vehicle bearing License No. U 8379, with University News Service labeled on the side. The driver of this vehicle, Wednesday, August 1, at 2:30, totally ignored a pedestrian crossing sign on Campus Drive and forced the rider of a bicycle to speedily come to a jarring halt. This left me wondering, "Doesn't the university make sure their employees can read?" After all, reading might help remedy a few of the lawsuits brought against the university (which are most likely paid for by student funds of some sort). Watching out for our brothers and sisters can only help.

Marty Martin
Radio-T.V., Design

Bicycle safety is a matter of great concern, but under the rules of the road laid down by Illinois Secretary of State John W. Lewis, the rider in the incident described above was out of line if he used a traffic pattern reserved for pedestrians.—Editor.

With this in mind I was thinking of the inscription to be found outside of Davis Auditorium; a statement to the effect that we should strive each day to win some victory for mankind. This is not as difficult as it sounds for there is much to do. Most of us have at one time or another felt the very real and strong need to do something for someone and probably know others who have felt the same need but did not know what to do.

The first step is to make a small sacrifice and give just a little of yourself. We have throughout the country the beginnings of an effort to mobilize volunteer work, from the local organizations such as the on-campus M.O.V.E. to the National Center for Volunteer Action in Washington. However, interested people are needed and it is a rewarding experience and a rich opportunity to help the lonely, the afflicted, the emotionally depressed, the poor and the handicapped. Helping and loving our fellow man whenever we can and in every way possible is a very practical way of affecting the course of civilization.

It can happen here

To the Daily Egyptian:

Despite the rather perplexing and as yet unresolved problem concerning the credibility and veracity of the witnesses that have so far appeared before the Senate Watergate Committee, it is quite obvious by now, from following those hearings, that what has happened in and around the White House prior to the 1972 Presidential election constituted an elaborate and far-reaching exercise in political subversion. Notwithstanding their lip service to democracy, the principals in the Watergate scenario have, apparently, little respect for the democratic processes inherent in the American system of government.

It is, therefore, easy to conclude that the Watergate fiasco was simply a badly bungled experiment in "It Can Happen Here," which blew up in the faces of its assiduous, but clumsy and inept perpetrators.

Let us hope that the timely disclosures of this sordid affair will serve as a deterrent to other potentially totalitarian individuals and their life-minded, opportunistic, mercenary lackeys.

Cox beefs up probe of ITT case

WASHINGTON (AP)—Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox has beefed up his investigation of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. case which will be among the first orders of business for the new Watergate grand jury when it convenes on Monday.

A spokesman for the prosecutor's office confirmed Wednesday that Richard J. Davis, head of Cox's investigation of political espionage and dirty tricks in the 1972 campaign, has shifted temporarily to the probe of the administration's handling of the ITT antitrust settlement.

He also confirmed that the White House has not yet responded to Cox's request for an ITT file the prosecutor described as important evidence.

At a news conference July 27, Cox

Walker signs bill

to return tax funds to southern area

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—A bill to return $4.5 million a year in sales tax to Illinois counties where the miners were obtained was signed into law today by Gov. Daniel Walker.

In signing the measure, Walker said it would give a "long-sought economic boost to the coal producing counties in Illinois," particularly those in the extreme southern part of the state.

Under current law, much of the one per cent local sales tax on coal goes not to the counties where the mineral is mined but those where it is used. The new statute is effective Sept. 1.

Walker said the existing law "has meant tax discrimination against coal regions, particularly the 11 deep Southern Illinois counties that produce 70 per cent of Illinois coal."

The measure also applies to other minerals, including oil, sand, and gravel.

called the file of the utmost importance and said his request for it had been pending for some time without "a favorable answer or a negative."

Five days later, at the Senate Watergate committee hearings, chief counsel Samuel Dash released a March 30, 1972, White House memorandum about ITT which Dash said indicated former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell had committed an apparent act of perjury.

Mitchell testified under oath at

Pilot plant succeeds in changing coal to gas

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Interior Department announced Wednesday the successful operation of a pilot plant showing that coal can be converted into synthetic gas on a large scale.

George R. Hill, director of the Office of Coal Research, said the pilot plant, in Chicago, ran continuously for more than 100 hours, putting together for the first time all of the steps in the conversion process.

It succeeded in converting three tons per hour of Montana lignite coal into pipeline-quality gas, he said.

Harmful pesticide found in Red Cross Macaroni

CHICAGO (AP)—The federal government filed suit Wednesday seeking to shut down a Red Cross Macaroni Co. plant because the Food and Drug Administration says a harmful pesticide has been found in Red Cross products.

The suit, filed by the U.S. attorney's office for the FDA, seeks an injunction to shut down the Chicago plant for 10 days.

The suit said inspectors in February found the chemical pesticide strobane in the spaghetti to be expensive, compared with present prices for natural gas, but Hill said it should be economically attractive by the time the process is ready for commercial use.

Gas distributors, caught by a shortage of natural gas, have already begun importing liquefied natural gas from abroad, at costs two to four times as high as domestic natural gas.

Hill said gas converted from coal should be at least 20 per cent less expensive than imported gas.

Coal conversion research is being conducted jointly by government and industry.

and macaronis manufactured by Red Cross. Strobane is considered dangerous in any amount.

The company was warned not to use the pesticide in their walk-in dryers but later inspections still turned up strobane in the products, the suit said.

The suit said residues of the chemical remained in the wooden interior of the dryers even though company officials said the dryers had been washed out.

Senate hearings on the nomination of Richard G. Kleindienst to be his successor as attorney general that he knew nothing of the $400,000 pledge before the suits were settled.

Flood repair funds released

CHICAGO (AP)—Emergency conservation assignments totaling $300,000 were announced for three more Illinois counties Wednesday by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The allocation is for repair of spring flood damage in Alexander, Jackson and Randolph counties and will be distributed by the Illinois State Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation committee.

An allocation of $170,000 previously had been made for 18 Illinois counties.

Unclaimed bikes stored by police

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

About 25 ownerless bicycles have found their way to the basement of the SIU security office. They include, new 10-speeds and rusty, balloon-tired antiques. Some stand on their own while others teeter or wheelless frames.

When a bicycle is brought to the security office, its serial number is checked against a list of stolen bicycles at the office and at the Carbondale Police Department, Ed McCue, security officer, said Wednesday.

If no serial number can be found, other identifying marks are noted. An attempt is then made to match the bicycle's physical appearance with description of the ones reported stolen.

"It's surprising how many stolen bicycles are not reported," McCue noted.

If the bicycle is not on the stolen list and has not been registered with the office, it is sent to the basement until the owner claims it.

McCue said there are no regulations concerning how long the office should hold the unclaimed bicycles. Usually, they are kept indefinitely.

Last October, bicycles which had been stored for more than a year were collected and shipped to Menard State Penitentiary where the prisoners painted them and fixed them up, McCue said.

Restored to good condition, the bicycles were given away as Christmas presents to needy children in the area.

To claim a bicycle, a student must show proof of ownership. "We realize the proof of ownership is difficult to come by," McCue said. "We will go along with almost any kind of proof of ownership. We try to be easy but we're not pushovers."

By registering the bicycle with the security office, a student can avoid needless hassles over identifying it, McCue said. Registration also increases the chances that it will be recovered if stolen.

Horse meat seller fined

OAK PARK (AP)—A meat market owner pleaded guilty in Circuit Court Wednesday to selling horse meat he cut and displayed as steaks.

Nicholas Cardamone, 48, of Cicero, was charged June 22 with violating the state's meat selling laws. Horse meat can be sold by a meat processor authorized by state and it must be clearly marked as such.

Credit union sign-up to continue at center

A table will again be set up on the first floor of the Student Center from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday for anyone interested in becoming a charter member of the credit union being formed by Student Government.

Dan Zwicker, administrative assistant to Student Body President Mike Carr, said the table will remain until 300 persons apply for charter membership.

Zwicker said more than 80 signatures were received Wednesday afternoon and he expected the 300 charter members to be signed by Friday afternoon.

Students, faculty and staff from SIU and Carbondale residents are eligible to become members of the union. However, only those who don't belong to another credit union can become charter members.

If the charter is approved, members of other credit unions also can join.

Information concerning the credit union will be available at the table.

Kremlin treats Watergate carefully

By William L. Ryan
A P Special Correspondent

Watergate and related Washington sensations have created news coverage for the Kremlin and regimes in its orbit.

Treatment of what the Soviet press calls the "Uotereit" affair varies from one Communist-ruled capital to another. The closer to the West, the more abusive the treatment is likely to be.

But Moscow's treatment is extraordinarily careful, restrained and in most cases objective, leaning if anywhere, in the direction of defending President Nixon.

In sharp contrast, the Soviet press was quick to report Tuesday that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was under investigation, in a non-Watergate affair, informing both Soviet and foreign audiences of the development and listing some of the charges said to be under inquiry.

On Watergate and President Nixon's role, however, the approach has been hesitant. Sometimes, propaganda directed abroad seeks to take advantage and is far different from what is directed to home audiences; but overall, comment in either department by Moscow media is relatively rare.

All this suggests jumpiness among members of Leonid I. Brezhnev's regime. Much of the reason for that could lie in the fact that the Communist general secretary's policy of détente based on "peaceful coexistence" rests on his 1972 and 1973 summit meetings with President Nixon.

Today's line is that the cold war is dead, that trade and economic cooperation are the keys to the future. Brezhnev has staked his leadership on reaping gains from this policy.

down categorizing Watergate as typical of U.S. politics and noting that those involved were "men who belong to Nixon's political party."

"We should note, dear comrades, that with this Watergate case the United States...casts shame on U.S. democracy," it said. But when the broadcasts are in the English language, they tend to be terse and factual, seemingly careful to avoid giving any offense to the Nixon Administration. Lidewise, in domestic treatment, the subject is handled with what can only be described as delicacy.

Psychology grads to offer dating tips

Male students who would like to improve their ability to relate to women and ask for dates can receive assistance from two graduate students in psychology.

Thomas Barrett, a second-year graduate student in counseling psychology, said many men are caught in a vicious circle. They lack self-confidence, which hinders their ability to relate to women, which has a negative effect on their self-confidence.

"One of the problems of minimal dating behavior is that it is caused by minimal dating behavior," Barrett said.

The program will require two evening meetings a week for four weeks. Participants will be encouraged "to start calling up girls, going out with girls, and to attack the self-concept in regard to dating," Barrett explained.

By using videotape equipment and four women volunteers, Barrett will help the men examine their behavior in interaction situations and role-playing exercises. The women are two single undergraduate students and two marriage graduate students.

Barrett said people often receive a "shot in the arm" by seeing themselves on videotape. They realize they may be interacting more effectively than they had presumed. The videotape helps build self-confidence he said.

The program, which will begin late in September, is free and open to any male student who would seriously like to improve in this area, Barrett said.

Barrett can be contacted at his home, 457-8644, or through the graduate office of the Psychology Department for more information.

Grades available through transcripts

By Kathy Banish
Student Writer

Students needing grades for courses completed before the end of this summer's 11-week session may get them by requesting transcripts on which the grades will be recorded, said Henry Andrews, assistant registrar.

Grades will be submitted by instructors after the eight-week session, after each four week session and after each five and a half-week session, he said.

Students may request one transcript per quarter without charge. Further transcripts can be obtained by paying a one dollar fee for each copy.

The split summer session created deadline problem for the registrar's office, Andrews said.

He explained that confusion arose because each of the seven summer sessions had three separate deadlines: for withdrawal with a full refund, for withdrawal without a letter grade and for withdrawal from the course.

Some students thought they had to complete a separate registration and pay a separate fee for each session, Andrews said. He explained only one registration and one payment were required even though a student might have entered one course for four weeks, one for eight weeks and one for eleven weeks.

"We attempted to explain the calendar in the summer class schedule booklet, but I'm afraid that we created more confusion," Andrews said.

Gay Libs open 'Outpost'

The Gay Liberation Organization has established an "Outpost" to serve as a meeting place for discussion groups, counseling and informal get-togethers, Kenneth Kegley, president of the organization, announced Wednesday.

The "Outpost" at 304 E. College will open Friday with the first meeting and discussion scheduled at 7 p.m.

Up to now, the Kremlin attitude seems to have been that the details of Watergate are none of the Soviet public's business. Only barest outlines have been reported.

Occasionally, Soviet propaganda directed abroad seeks to take advantage. For example, in June Moscow Radio broadcast in the Quechuan Indian language to Bolivia, Ecuador and Peru a run-

Bombers stage record number of strikes near Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—U.S. warplanes, pushing their attacks to the highest level in a month, blasted suspected positions of Communist-led insurgents Wednesday in an area 1½ miles from Phnom Penh airport.

The strikes were to cut off the escape of infiltrators who blew up the capital's international radio transmission station Tuesday night, or to smash possible troop buildups around the city.

Thirty infiltrators seized the radio installation near the airport without firing a shot after government guards threw down their weapons and fled, military sources said.

The infiltrators planted explosives in several radio rooms. The charges cut much of the capital's commercial communications with the world.

At daybreak, Thailand-based F4 phantom jets began attacks 1½ miles from the airport. Airliners continued to take off and land during the tactical strikes.

Passengers at the terminal could see black smoke billowing up from the attack area. The daylong bombing jarred Phnom Penh seven miles away.

In Washington, the Pentagon said that U.S. bombing is at its highest level in a month because of increased pressure by Communist-led forces.

A Pentagon spokesman gave no specific figures, but said the number of single B52s missions rose from 40 to about 50 per day and that the number of tactical fighter bomber missions was higher than the 200 a day average of recent weeks.

At Neak Luong, newsmen were allowed to pay a 30-minute visit to the Mekong River garrison town hit Monday in a U.S. bombing error that left at least 137 persons dead and 268 wounded. The newsmen reported two-thirds of the town of 7,000 soldiers and their families was destroyed or damaged.

In Washington, a former Air Force pilot charged, and the Air Force denied, that enemy hospitals in Vietnam were sought out as targets for American warplanes.

The officer, former Capt. Gerald J. Greven, said that hospitals were on target lists he used for directing air strikes as a forward air controller in 1969.

In New York, the government successfully appealed a federal judge's order of July 25 forbidding U.S. bombing of Cambodia.

Addicts source of city's crime

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—A retired printer and the city commission chairman agree that the drug addict's need to get money for his habit is a major factor in crimes that kept Albuquerque at the top of the FBI's crime index for the second year.

The FBI's Uniform Crime Reports, released Wednesday, showed the Albuquerque metropolitan area reported 5,910 serious crimes per 100,000 residents last year, highest rate in the nation.

The figure was down slightly from the city's top 1971 rate of 5,927, but was still well above the second highest 1972 rate of 5,470 reported by Stockton, Calif.

"Most of it is property crimes, burglaries," said Paul Griffith, 68, a retired printer who's lived in Albuquerque 14 years.

"If they would let drug addicts go to doctors with prescriptions and get their drugs from the government, there'd be no reason for them to go out and steal to pay for them."

City Commission Chairman Louis Saavedra said, "We believe addicts represent a significant factor in our crime problem. If left to their own devices, they will steal."

Officials in the past have reported a strong flow of drugs through Albuquerque. The city is about 250 miles from Mexico and lies along U.S. 66-Interstate 40, a major route to and from the West Coast.

Statistically, the average Albuquerquean stood about a 1-in-17 chance of becoming the victim of a serious crime in 1972.

FBI reports rate of crime up in Illinois

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal government reported Wednesday that serious crime decreased in the nation in 1972 but increased in Illinois.

Crime statistics compiled by the Federal Bureau of Investigation showed that serious offenses in Illinois increased from a rate of 2,450.2 per 100,000 inhabitants in 1971 to 2,483.8 last year.

Increases showed in all categories studied except murder, which decreased from 9.6 per 100,000 to 8.8, and auto thefts, which declined from a rate of 475.8 to 443.

The other categories studied, all of which showed increases, were violent crime, property crime, forcible rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary and larceny of $50 and more.

Following is the total crime index per 100,000 residents in some major metropolitan areas in Illinois during 1971 and 1972, in that order:

Bloomington-Normal 1,541.3 and 1,799.7; Champaign-Urbana 2,358.5 and 2,376.4; Chicago 2,891.4 and 2,913.5; Decatur 2,037.9 and 1,811.8; St. Louis Missouri and Illinois 3,522.9 and 3,587.1; and Springfield, 1,880.3 and 2,492.6.

Aerialist tries ocean crossing

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP)—Former jockey, singer and standup comic Bob Sparks caught a westerly wind Wednesday in an attempt to become the first transatlantic balloonist.

To the cheers of nearly 1,000 spectators, Sparks, 37, wafted off from Bar Harbor Airport in the Yankee Zephyr, a nine-story red, white and blue balloon.

After crew members adjusted the ballast and Sparks cut the anchoring ropes, the helium-filled aircraft glided across a field and soared up, up and away.

"I'll see you in Paris Monday," said one of the ground crewmen.

Sparks said he expects to reach Europe in five days. He said he's aiming for France, "but I'd consider anything from Finland to Italy a pinpoint landing."

The Tamiment, Pa., resort entertainment director kissed his daughters, Susan, 11, and Vickie, 9, before taking off shortly after daybreak.

Then, moments before the launch, he yelled to the girls through a bullhorn to be sure to get to bed early.

Ten minutes later, the balloon disappeared in the hazy sky. Within another hour, the airport had lost radio contact with the balloon.

Sparks and his 20-member ground crew had spent the past three weeks near this resort town, awaiting the go-ahead from a meteorologist in New York when wind and weather conditions were just right.

Brewer shows luncheon group how to cut entertainment cost

By Diane Mizialiko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Take one part pioneer heritage, one part flair for adventure and one part patience. Stir in some malt, water, sugar and yeast. Leave the rest to Mother Nature and in less time than you'd think, you'll have a delicious home brew.

This was the recipe presented to the Lunch and Learn audience Wednesday by Robert Russell, professor of health education, who's been whipping up gallons of the amber stuff for 13 years.

Russell's presentation exposed his listeners to the technical requirements of concocting 10 gallons of home brew (in a stone crock or polyethylene gargage can, as one's style dictates) and touched on the philosophical ramifications of the brewer's craft.

Switching to the practical aspects of his subject, Russell pointed out the considerable economics of brewing refreshments at home. After making an initial investment in a crock and capper, all that remains to be bought are the simple ingredients for each batch. Russell said the cost of brewing 10 gallons works out to a mere five cents a quart.

Russell cautioned the luncheon audience to have respect for the brew once it's entrapped in bottles. A miscalculation on the right time to bottle the nectar could create a situation right out of an old Doris Day movie.

Furthermore, Russell said, "it's not very cool" to proudly open a bottle from one's private stock and have it shoot up to the ceiling and spray down upon one's guest's.

A hydrometer and close attention to detail can help prevent such soggy mishaps, Russell said. It is crucial to bottle the brew only when the hydrometer indicates the time is right. If bottled too soon, a potentially explosive situation will be created. If bottled too late, the brew will be flat, he said.

"You have to feel it's fun, like an art, not just a job," Russell said in summation. He demonstrated the fun—and rewards—of brewing by sharing samples of his creation with the Lunch and Learn group.

Lunch and Learn ended on a festive note as small glasses of the beverage circulated the room. The audience exclaimed over the light, easy taste of the brew while Russell, as any craftsman would, beamed with pride.

Siphoning tube, about 3 feet long, weighted on one end with a clamp on the other.

Bottle capper

Bottle caps

Beer hydrometer or accurate facsimile

Bottles, at least 85 quarts.

Ingredients

One 3-pound can of Blue Ribbon Hop-Flavored Malt Extract Syrup.
7 pounds sugar. (A 5-pound bag plus 4 and 2-3 cups or a 10-pound bag minus 7 cups.)

2 cakes or envelopes of yeast.

10 gallons water, 3 or 4 gallons of it heated.

Directions

Place the crock in an isolated, heated location, elevated two to three feet above the floor. Heat the opened can of malt in a pan of boiling water for 10-15 minutes to soften. Meanwhile, measure out the sugar.

Pour three gallons or so hot water in the crock. Water must be hot enough to dissolve the malt and sugar. Add malt syrup to the water, stir to dissolve lumps. Add sugar and stir until dissolved.

Add water to bring the total liquid to 10 gallons. Temperature of mixture must be 95-100 degrees. (Comfortable on the wrist.)

Dust powdered yeast over top of liquid mixture or crumble in two cakes yeast. Stir gently, or don't stir as the mood dictates. It doesn't seem to make a difference.

Cover crock with a towel or cheesecloth to keep out bugs, but allow air to circulate.

In four days, check the brew with a hydrometer. If not ready to bottle, check daily. When the hydrometer sinks to the red line, it's time to bottle.

To bottle, put weighted end of siphon in the crock, and hold tube in place with masking tape or a light board. The bottles, of course, must be lower than the end of the siphon in the crock.

Fill the bottles to within an inch from the top. Cap and store. After about one week, the sediment will have settled, the brew has carbonated and is drinkable. Two weeks is even better.

Chill the bottles. Open the first one cautiously. (Some batches are a bit too lively.) Pour into glass with one motion so the sediment stays at the bottom of the bottle. (Some sediment in the glass does not affect the taste.)

Enjoy.

Bicycle parking banned east of Student Center

Bicycle parking will no longer be allowed at the east side of the Student Center, said security police. Robbin Kirkland, administrative assistant at the center, said no parking signs will be placed at the east entrance Thursday.

Bicycles will have to be parked in the racks between the east and southeast entrances he said. Kirkland said security police will begin issuing warning tickets Thursday to anyone who parks illegally.

Starting on September 24, first of the fall quarter, bikes parked in front of the east entrance will be removed, he said.

Kirkland said bikes parked have created a hazard and prevent easy passage into the center.

Boydston era: Ten national titles

Editor's note: This is the third of four stories dealing with SIU's athletic history. Today's article concerns the Boydston years, an era when success suddenly flung the school into national prominence.

By Jim Braun

Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Unsatisfied with the school's mediocre athletic record in 1957, several Southern Illinois coaches sent a letter of recommendation to Jack Grinnell, Dean of the College of Education.

Their unanimous choice to succeed the departed athletic director, Carl Erickson, was a 37-year-old chairman of the Department of Health Education—Donald Boydston.

"Jack told me that I would be the athletic director for a short time—probably a month—until they found a suitable replacement," Boydston recalls. "It sure was a long temporary job."

Boydston stayed on as athletic director until last fall. In those 15 years, Saluki athletic teams experienced a rate of growth incomparable in collegiate sports. But take it from Boydston—it took a lot of hard work.

In '57 season, Jim Wilkinson's wrestlers placed first in the seven-school Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference IIAC. But the overall record showed the Salukis one point out of the cellar.

Boydston's only previous athletic claim-to-fame before arriving at SIU in 1955 occurred as an undergrad at Oklahoma State where he held the world high jump record at 6-8 1/4. He quickly learned how to run an athletic program.

By 1959, Southern had won the league's All-Sports Trophy and had won 75 percent of contests in ten sports. Then came the breakthrough.

SIU swimming and cross-country teams won national championships in the NAIA, a moment that topped them all, as far as Boydston was concerned.

"People talk about the 1967 NIT championship basketball team being the greatest thing that ever happened to Southern," Boydston said. "But I think those first two national titles was my greatest moment. We had been in the cellar just three years before."

Eight national crowns were to follow, four of them in 1964. Gymnastics under Bill Meade won in the university division, while tennis (Dick LeFevre), golf (Lynn Holder) and baseball (Abe Martin) squads copped college division crowns.

How did the success story all come about? Boydston modestly doesn't want to take all the credit, but insists that he had to work hard and take others' advice.

"I wasn't an authority in any sport," he said from his Health Education office. "But I was very selective in the coaches that I did hire."

Boydston hired Lew Hartzog as track coach, only after a number of letters had been sent to Midwestern coaches. All replies noted Hartzog, then coaching at Northeast Louisiana State, as having "a brilliant future."

After several inquiries, Harry Gallatin became basketball coach, later to serve in that capacity with NBA St. Louis Hawks and New York Knickerbockers. NIT coach Jack Hartman's application was received along with 40 others, Boydston said.

Money was also of concern to Boydston, since SIU did not possess a scholarship program up to 1957.

"I went around to all of the deans of the various colleges here to get some tuition awards for the athletes," he said.

By 1962, Southern's teams had won 18 of 20 conference titles in two years. It was then that Boydston decided to sever ties with the NAIA-affiliated IIAC and join the NCAA as an independent.

The Saluki AD felt that the university outgrew the NAIA.

Southern became a Midwestern Conference member in the fall of 1970 with Northern Illinois, Illinois State, Indiana State and Ball State. Saluki teams totally dominated as nine of ten sports placed first. Southern decided to return as an independent the next season after it won six more trophies in the now-defunct conference.

As fortunes in the 60's increased so did the number of scholarships. By 1968, Southern was receiving the maximum 220 NCAA "full rides." These grants-in-aid include room and board, tuition and $15 per month for other expenses.

In Boydston's 15-year tenure, the athletic budget, which included scholarships and operating costs, had increased by 800 percent. The $100,000 budget needed to run SIU's intercollegiate program in 1957 had risen to the $800,000 bracket upon his resignation last October.

A pair of No. 52s, Walt Frazier (left) and Carl Mauck, were two of the most outstanding SIU athletes to come out of the 1960's. Frazier is now an All-Pro guard for the world champ New York Knicks while Mauck plays center for the NFL San Diego Chargers.

Sooners placed on probation

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Big Eight Conference dealt the University of Oklahoma football team, ranked No. 2 nationally in 1971 and 1972, a severe blow Wednesday by placing the Sooners on probation for two years for recruiting irregularities.

The Oklahoma basketball program was handed a similar period of probation, likewise for violations of recruiting rules. In addition to the probation, the proud Sooner footballers, who skyrocketed into national prominence 2 1/2 years ago by installing the Wishbone formation in midseason, will be barred from postseason competition and television appearances for two years. Wade Walker, Oklahoma athletic director, said in Norman, Okla., he felt "the penalty was severe."

Oklahoma will be unable to play in bowl contests this season and in 1974 and cannot appear in televised games in 1974 and 1975. The Sooners will honor their television contracts in 1973 under National Collegiate Athletic Association rules since these had been signed before the disciplinary action, taken Tuesday in Chicago by the league's faculty representatives, its governing body.

Oklahoma plays Texas Oct. 13 in a televised contest and Nebraska Nov. 23.

In the years following the productive one of '64, three more NCAA gymnastics titles plus the Walt Frazier-led Saluki NIT title have filled up the trophy case. During that same span, gymnasts have finished runnerup on four occasions while baseball has placed second to perennial winner Southern California twice. Wrestling and track squads have finished fourth.

Professional athletes who graduated from SIU have come and gone in 15 years, and it would take Boydston more than an hour to sift out the best. Southern boasts 39 former All-Americans and 20-odd Olympic and Pan American Games participants. In addition, seven coaches have won "coach of the Year" honors.

With the expanding athletic program, better facilities were prerequisites by the 1960's. As Boydston commented, "We were bursting out at the seams."

The 10,000-seat SIU Arena replaced the antiquated Women's Gym in 1965 for use in basketball, gymnastics and wrestling. A new baseball diamond was constructed that same year while the SIU tennis courts, built in 1961, hosted the 1967 NCAA championships.

"Those were real outstanding years," summarized Boydston. "We won 80 percent of our contests and I believe only UCLA and Southern Cal won as many national championships as we did during that time."

Friday: Athletic director Doug Weaver looks into the crystal ball to see what the future holds for SIU's intercollegiate program.

Bonaparte's, Hey Now win softball titles

Bonaparte's scored ten runs in the first two innings and coasted to a 12-2 win over Merlins in the intramural 16-inch softball championship.

Hey Now defeated Yuba City Honkers 7-3 to gain the 12-inch title Wednesday.

Bonaparte's was declared the winner in an abbreviated five-inning game because of an intramural ten-run rule. The winners got started in the first with three runs on hits by Bob Maravich and Terry Pauly.

Bonaparte's exploded for seven runs in the next frame. Captain Jim Burke got a key hit when he doubled to left-center driving in two runs.

Merlins got their lone runs in the first two innings and Bonaparte's scored its final tallies in the fifth.

Hey Now started its scoring in the first on a sacrifice fly by Rich Glover and a groundout by Steve Cosgrove. Yuba City Honkers tied it up the next inning on an error and sacrifice fly.

Hey Now got two more in the fourth when Jay Wilkerson scored on a sacrifice fly. Teammate Rich Glover then doubled, stole third and scored on a base hit.

Hey Now put icing on the cake in the fifth and sixth frames with three runs to notch the victory.

Gibson surgery a success

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Veteran pitcher Bob Gibson underwent surgery Wednesday to remove torn cartilage from his right knee, and the St. Louis Cardinals' team physician said the operation was a success.

Dr. Stan London said Gibson, 11-10 this season, would be hospitalized for about three days. Gibson is expected to be on crutches for another week to 10 days before beginning therapy.
