Donald Ward, manager of personnel services, will resign, effective Oct. 1, to take a position in Portland, Maine. At the time of his resignation, he was 29 years old.

Ward, an SIU employee for 19 years, said he accepted his new job Thursday as director of personnel services for the Portland firm Tanenbaum & Brandt.

He said the resignation was not the result of differences with SIU staff or administrators.

"I have no unhappiness here," Ward said. "I've been pleased working with Robert Gentry, vice president for personnel at SIU, and our Japanese exchange program director, Kent Mino.

"But I've felt it was time to be my own boss," he said. "I've been thinking about doing a similar job here for a while, but I was more interested in something else." Ward said he decided to accept the job after a significant amount of interest from other companies.

One of the responsibilities of the personnel director position he will assume will be to oversee the hiring and firing of employees. Ward said he will need to make many difficult decisions in that role.

Ward said he plans to continue working in personnel management. He said he is interested in learning more about the field and in achieving greater success in his career.

The resignation was effective Oct. 1, and Ward will officially resign from SIU on Oct. 8.

Ward said he is looking forward to the new position and is excited about the opportunity to work in a different environment.

"I think it's going to be a good experience," he said. "I think it's going to be a good opportunity for me to grow and to learn more about the field of personnel management.

Ward said he is looking forward to spending more time with his family and friends, and he said he is looking forward to the opportunity to travel more.

Ward said he has enjoyed his time at SIU and that he has made many friends there. He said he is looking forward to spending more time with his family and friends, and he said he is looking forward to the opportunity to travel more.

Suffrage day starts at Anthony Hall

By Chris Moenich
Staff Writer

About 50 men and women gathered under a tree near the east side of campus on Friday afternoon to take part in the rededication of Anthony Hall, once a women's dormitory, but which has housed SIU administrative offices.

The rededication, which was more than just a tribute to a building unit built in the early twentieth century. It was a celebration of those who helped the women's movement flourish.

The Women's Center of Carbondale sponsored the rededication as part of a two-day symposium. Friday was the 55th anniversary of the passage of the women's suffrage amendment.

The Friday and Saturday jamboree began with an appearance of the four speakers at Friday's rededication. Barr was sympathetic to the women's movement. He named the women's building after Anthony because she "was a woman after whom every girl could well pattern her social and academic life," Fladeland said.

Fladeland said Anthony was "not a woman of charisma, but her force in the suffrage movement was unparalleled and organization." Anthony began her reform work with the temperance movement, but shifted to the women's movement under the guidance of Susan B. Anthony at the women's National Woman Suffrage Association (NWSA) president.

Joyce Webb, president of the Women's Center and a speaker at the dedication, characterized the suffrage movement as "essentially the same." She mentioned the ongoing fight for equality as a recommendation for Susan B. Anthony in saying, "what do women want? Women want to be in law as they are in fact fully contributing persons in our society."

On Saturday, the celebration will end at the Women's Center. An introduction to the center will begin at 9 a.m.

After the tours, workshops will be conducted from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. The workshops will look at non-traditional jobs and professions for women, health, women in American history and women in government.

At 3 p.m., Warren Brandt, president of SIU, and Ed Hogan, Carbondale police chief, will be among the men to offer homemade goods for a bakery auction at the Women's Center. Bumper stickers and buttons with feminist messages will be for sale at the center.

Carter: Increase NATO spending

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, in a policy directive released Monday, wants the United States to increase spending on NATO and to improve American strategic capability to deter any Soviet attack in Europe, it was learned Friday.

The directive, the product of several months of study and debate in the National Security Council, says the United States should be able to inflict what one official called "an unacceptable degree of damage" to any attack from the Soviet bloc.

It states that U.S. policy should be aimed at ending any such conflict as favorably as possible.

An official who disclosed the policy directive also said it had been carefully considered and authorized by President Carter.

The official said the United States had indications that South Africa was moving toward a nuclear explosion but that U.S. contacts with South Africa and consultations with the British, French and Russians resulted in South Africa's promise last Tuesday that it will not explode any nuclear devices.

The policy directive reflects a concern by the administration official that the U.S. defense relations be not altered to the extent that deterrence of a deterrent attack is impossible.

The message to Defense Secretary Harold Brown, titled "Presidential Directive on National Strategy," was discussed in an interview with the official, who called it an effort to provide a more sophisticated, updated analysis of the cooperative and competitive U.S.-Soviet relationship.

The official said the directive indicated a three percent increase in defense spending would be made if other members of the NATO increased their defense budgets by a like amount.

The United States has currently budgeted $46 billion for NATO.

High lumber prices hike home costs

WASHINGTON (AP) - The price of new houses will go up another $700 to $1,500 because of a sudden increase of lumber prices in the last six weeks and a shortage of insulation, Housing Secretary Patricia Harris said Friday.

She said the Council on Wage and Price Stability will begin an immediate investigation into why lumber prices have increased between 35 and 40 percent since July.

"Our concern is that increased prices in lumber and shortage of insulation may lead to time-consuming delays in housing construction," Mrs. Harris said. "The main result is increased cost, which is passed on to the consumer."

The average new house in the United States cost $15,300 in the first quarter of the year. The new lumber and insulation costs alone, she said, will drive up prices $700 to $1,500.

Mrs. Harris said a 2 to 15 percent increase in insulation costs is less dramatic but is a problem because it results in a shortage of material.

"It is our goal to make the standard home once again affordable to the average American family," she said.

A spokesman for the lumber industry said Mrs. Harris' remarks are the start of another round of jaywalking, which has never been successful in the past.

Police ignore towing bond clause

By Dennis Sullivan
Staff Writer

Carbondale police are informing motorists that they must pay towing and storage charges before they can receive their vehicles, despite a clause in a Carbondale traffic ordinance which enables citizens to regain possession of their towed vehicles by paying a $25 bond.

Linda McKechnie, an attorney with the Land of Lincoln Legal Foundation, discovered the clause while researching the case for a client whose car had been towed and impounded by a police officer.

The client, Suzanne Brown, 609 W. Elm, had contacted the police on July 19 to attempt the return of her car, which had been towed two days earlier.

Brown maintains police failed to inform her about the bond and instead told her to pay all charges in advance. "They told me 'pay up or else,'" she said.

McKechnie says when she contacted Asst. City Attorney Phil Gilbert, he also failed to mention the bond clause, but did offer to "drop the towing charge and pick up the ticket if Suzanne would pay the storage fee," she said.

McKechnie says she was finally able to obtain a copy of the ordinance and immediately instructed her client to submit the $25 bond in a demand for both the return of her car and a jury trial.

McKechnie has charged that the failure of police to inform people of the bond clause amounts to a "deprivation of property without due process.

U.S. District Judge Tom Moss of the Carbondale Police Department explained that the procedure of the department is to tell people where their cars are stored and that they will have to pay the storage and towing fees in order to obtain their cars.

"We don't tell them what the fees are because we don't know," Moss said.

Moss also explained that police don't mention the bond because it's part of a bonding procedure, which is handled by the city attorney.

Moss added that people who wish to contest their ticket are referred to the city attorney's office. "That's all we tell them," he said. "Because we don't make the decision. It's usually handled by the city attorney."

But McKechnie maintains that the real question involved here is not "how much," she said, but rather why "anybody should pay any bond at all." She asked "normally a driver's license can be posted prior to trial. Why not here?"

Moss added that the imposition of either a bond charge or advance payment constitutes a hardship for many people, who may not be able to afford either," she said.

Moss noted that Brown has demanded a jury trial to decide whether the law is constitutional, and that Brown was arrested in excess of 72 hours on a city street and to obtain a "local interpretation of the ordinance.

Since Brown's car was towed for the bond clause, McKechnie participated in what is known as a "sticker" method of affirming the owners of illegally parked cars that their cars will be impounded.

The stickers, which are approximately 3/8 of an inch in the method of "clunking" the trees of all the vehicles, have been posted on Aug. 15. Moss said
Rape, violent crime caused by subversion of male roles in society

Linda Thompson's remarks on the subject of rape and especially her censure of Judge Simonson were correct and appropriate. But she seems to miss the profound social problem which is being tragically, that is, tragically, by bring my role in a drive for power, dominance or revenge, men.

Besides rape, over the last decade there has been an unprecedented rise in other violently aggressive crimes, especially the rape of old people, that is, the rape of the elderly, I believe there is a common causal factor—the subversion and consequent atrophy of the male role.

Margaret Mead once wrote that the central problem for every society is to define male roles. Female roles have been irrevocably defined by the ability to bear children, but male roles must be culturally defined. In our society, their role in procreation, males are assigned the roles of provider and protector. These roles serve the obvious function of socializing the males by affirming their masculinity.

When male roles are subverted, men, increasingly uncertain of their masculinity, will tend to assert themselves by means that "charged the center physical or sexual aggressiveness. The summation of the two after boasts, leads to the correct version of my statement, I went to my files.

Subversion of male roles has occurred largely as a result of the mobilization of women into the job market, the birth control methods of women and by women's increased control over conception. These are relatively recent social changes.

By male roles I should like to be construed as anologist for rapists or other sexually violent perverts, whereas what I mean is that the action is integral to social well-being. But it should be obvious that social phenomena, such as violent behavior, cannot be explained or counteracted solely by examination and action in individual cases. Social dynamics is what is at issue, and it is the result of social changes inconsistent with the existing social structure.

Vietnamese Center head abused truth about critics

Added and abetted by Professor Dinh Hoa Nguyen, director of the Vietnamese Center, and writer Edgar Tate, a story in the Daily Egyptian Aug. 14 abused both the truth and the present writer.

Tate telephoned me on Aug. 3 to check a direct quotation by me which he had seen. When he read the quotation to me, I told him it was wrong. Suggesting that he read the correct version of my statement, I went to my files. With the text of the much-publicized letter in hand I asked Tate to read Hoa Nguyen's letter. He then read the one and only original statement.

"The difference between them, in fact they are contradictory," I said.

"That troubles me," Tate replied. When I suggested it concerned the Center, he said that Hoa was out of town and the last summer's Hoa Nguyen was sympathetic. Tate "doctored" the Hoa Nguyen quotation by deleting "Gardiner" and substituting "history professor." This permittedremoved him from a legal standpoint but at the expense of journalistic integrity.

As for Professor Hoa, he, as quoted, is either unconvincingly forgetful, ignorant, or consciously lying when he asserts that the Center was founded for Vietnamese Studies and Programs with training prostitutes and pimps for the Saigon regime. As far as I know, the Center's chief, regrettable its fighting instinct did not include military service in defense of his country when it most needed patriots in arms.

In conclusion, Hoa's statement "If anyone in the world doubts to what degree Vietnamese are blooded from SIU." is so much bloodshed from an academic empire-builder胆识

Hurrab for payable critic

Hurrab!! for Nancy Bosse. She has expressed what so many people are feeling. The question is: what if you feel if you made a $5 raise for a year's work? What is the use in doing a good job? You aren't going to get a raise. The currency is so low that we have found out, are not getting paid for it.

Administrators, if this doesn't push collective bargaining through, what will.

CHARGING FOR CHECKS, ANOTHER STUDENT RIPP OFF

Well, SIU has done it again. Starting Monday, Aug. 28, the Student Financial Services office will begin checking for something we've received without charge for many years.

The Bursar's office got tired of the tough job of cashing personal checks and gladly let the Student Center take over. But wait, the transition takes money (of course) to complete, which means the students won't be able to cash checks for free anymore.

Another reason given was that the Student Center is more convenient and will be open longer hours. So, for one, would rather walk the me (or so to Woody Hall and cash my check during school hours than pay an average of $3 (for myself) per semester.

I accept that workers have to be paid for working those extra hours. Their wages are so high it has to be made up somewhere. I agree that we should pay to cash our checks, but only during the hours that the Bursar's office is closed. If you want to cash a check on a weekend or at night, be prepared to cough up.

Why must we be punished every year with some new rip off? After three years of free check cashing I'm not about to pay now. And we are daisied if we do andDamn it where can we. go to get anything for free anymore?

U.S. companies should force change in South Africa

Regarding South Africa, the U.S. should use its power, through both economic pressures and aid to black military forces, to make through peaceful negotiations or otherwise, the present racist regimes in Africa.

The U.S. has not hesitated to act forcefully in Vietnam and countless other places where "communism has something to do with it; it should not hesitate to do so in the case of racist regimes in Africa.

"Islamization," however, which is an understatement in describing the reluctance of American society to do so. The prerequisite for such a new U.S. policy is change in the current climate of belief to the effect that American policy in South Africa is business as usual.

It is here that the executive director of the SIU Foundation, and large name in South Africa. Apparently echoing the existing climate and concerned only with justifying the Foundation's present investment policies (which could be changed with just a line or two of comment), Mr. Goodman has now argued (DE, Aug. 30) that regimes from the company are more than adequate.

But Mr. Goodman apparently used only the narrowest of questions on the companies in the first place. Can the American companies honestly deny that their investments in South Africa are a part of the American investment in that country? And, trade with, South Africa could be a significant factor on business there, and in political regime in that country? Should not American citizens on this campus speak up against these companies?

These are the questions that deserve an adequate reply from the SIU Foundation.

University pays only lip service to its own stated goals

We have waded through another summer of our discontent. This in itself is not strange for we have come to expect exploitation in whatever guise as part and parcel of our lives. In our desperation we have since embraced a dream as our own world.

A new dimension was added to our discontent when it was revealed that the SIU Foundation has investments in several of the up apartheid regime of South Africa. Mr. Goodman, however, refused to acknowledge that commonplace fact that multinational corporations investing in South Africa are just accomplices in crime. This confession, if taken at face value, would be a blow to the truth. Since then Mr. Goodman's conscience continues to keep him from the vacillations between his different positions paper.

The fact that the Foundation has in invested in companies such as Sandvik and several others, which are directly implicated. But, Mr. Goodman, this does not alter the fact that the people of the current constitutes justice. In the case in point, it is the very negation of justice. Not only does the Foundation's continued in-determination whether this University wants to associate itself with such a blatant system.

University does not adequately the system of apartheid and therefore can be no asistance towards their living a normal life. The corporations claim to provide a quick buck in the world, yet blacks make only $11 a year while whites make $7,000 who when they upgrade the skills of blacks; but a skilled slave is still a slave nonetheless.

I suggest that Goodman bring the executives of these corporations here on campus so that the students can look down their throats everyday they open their mouths and students concerned over this hypocrisy can voice their opinions and take part with the Coalition Against Racial Exploitation or other groups in protesting SIU's questionable ties with South Africa.

Senior, Administration of Justice

Wesent in these companies contrive South Africa's goal of white supremacy, democracy, inspiring respect for others, as for ourselves, even promoting freedom with responsibility... but it also constitutes a blatant abuse of power and should be taken for granted that SIU pay only lip service to its own goals. Should I also laud Goodman for saying that the end and purpose of the Stamp Act of 1765 was supposedly to help maintain the British crown over every. If I am protected the economy.

Africans would rather have "all the voyage of their lives bowed in the shadows of death and misery" than have their freedom for a price for "better" off condition. This is the path we opted for decades and cause why degradation of our own societally a so-called Western value, freedom continues to be the innate right of every human being. Thus, we should not be bound by the whims of those who are following us. And rest assured, we shall overcome.

FIREFLIES PROVIDE ENLIGHTENING RESEARCH

Some three million fireflies caught in northern Illinois are on their way to Antioch Laboratories, where their lanterns will be used in medical research.

The Antioch brothers, Steve and Alan, pay for the million-man salamanders - many of them school children's penny each for the insects whose cold light has fascinated scientists since prehistoric days. The fireflies are gathered in fields at dusk and kept in plastic bags in freezers until they are sold.

The champion collector is the Norman Buhk family in the community of Harvard. He, his wife, Myram, and two daughters usually catch from 10,000 to 30,000. The "lightning bug" season lasts only a couple of weeks every year, and many are out by Labor Day. "We freeze-dry them in jars and farm them out to local families who separate their tail lights from the bodies," says Steve Antioch.

A mother and children working on the kitchen table can separate hundreds while watching television. They pay 25 cents each. When we are rushed, high school girls come in and help us in the lab," he continued. "They don't work as fertilizer, and we tried feeding them to fish, but the fish died. We're waiting for some predator to find a use for them. They're nearly 100 cents per pound.

"As for the lanterns, their exact composition cannot be duplicated by any process," Antioch said.

Froze-dried, processed firefly bioluminescent is used in laboratories in France, Canada, New Zealand.

Steve Antioch said: "The male firefly has a lantern at the rear end of the body. The female has a lantern at the rear end of the hind wing. When the two meet, the female Bicycle flies directly to the bottom of the male lantern. The male flies directly to the bottom of the female lantern and is then dimly illuminated by the female lantern. The male then flies to the bottom of the female lantern and is then dimly illuminated by the female lantern. The male then flies to the bottom of the female lantern and is then dimly illuminated by the female lantern. The male then flies to the bottom of the female lantern and is then dimly illuminated by the female lantern. The male then flies to the bottom of the female lantern and is then dimly illuminated by the female lantern. The male then flies to the bottom of the female lantern and is then dimly illuminated by the female lantern. The male then flies to the bottom of the female lantern and is then dimly illuminated by the female lantern.

Japan, Taiwan and Spain for research.

Tests have been developed by Antioch that show fireflies can be used in a variety of treatments for children with muscle dystrophy and certain other diseases. Antioch said: "The laboratory analysis of a few drops of blood collected on a special filter paper and mailed in.

There are about 2,000 species of firefly that have been named, and those with the finest chemicals we've been to come from northern Illinois, especially around the Fox River Valley," said Steve Antioch.

Some firefly facts:

Firefly eggs are laid in the ground. A firefly lives for only a few weeks. They don't eat. Making a firefly is a process that has been done through synchronizing the temperature of their lanterns with a Morse Code. The code tells the female the species of the male. The female is a little larger but has a smaller lantern. Therefore, only males are acceptable by Antioch Laboratories and their collectors are schooled.
Tom Chapin's sound is his own

By Kenneth Kurd
Walterville

Whenever Tom Chapin does a concert, he represents the style that he has a brother Harry who is a more tuneful singer. He does not need to be reminded. But, between sets at Thursday night's performance at Desert Playhouse in the Student Center, Tom had to explain once again that his brother, Harry, doesn't perform in his own push for prominence.

Chapin told the audience during his second performance at the Playhouse about the previous press interview. "The first five questions were about Harry. The sixth question was 'Do you get upset about people asking you about Harry Chapin?"'

Tom Chapin has spent 20 years in the performing business. He released his solo album last year and said he hopes to release a second by Christmas. Yet for all his effort, he is still regarded by the media as Harry Chapin's little brother.

A Review

The audience, however, liked Tom's solo effort. His music, lyrics and voice. His voice, if compared to his brother's, is much clearer and more skilled than that of his brother. His songs are sometimes humorous or loving comparisons which have been criticized for being depressing. His music is diverse. He sinks a solo guitar excellently.

Tom Chapin's way not only involved the audience from the second set. He also gave them indication that, in spite of his "brother of tag, he can deal with his brother's fame and gain his own identity in the media.

"Sooner or later we've got to stand on our own. They're not going to like me because I'm Harry's brother. They're not going to hate me because I'm Harry's brother. In the final analysis it doesn't make any difference because he's not standing out there. It doesn't matter. It doesn't even relate to what I'm doing," Chapin said.

What he's doing in entertaining audiences. Alone-doing mostly his own material. His songs expressed the feelings of lost love, found love, the anguish of love. He also sang forceful travelling songs and humorous travelling songs, as well as plainspoken songs like "My Name is Morgan (But It Ain't J.P.)." One song, possibly titled "Brought Me Kown" is dramatically like Paul Simon's "Sounds of Silence." Chapin also sang the title song from his album "Life is Like That," a song dedicated to brother Harry.

Tom's relative obscurity, however, has its advantages. Tom can play to smaller, more intimate groups than his brother. The Desert Playhouse seats about 500 people and about 600 people attended the two concerts according to an S.A.C. representative.

Chapin, a former All-American basketball player, was on stage for an hour and a half. His louty encore was "Circle" which he called the Chapin anthem and said was sung at his brother's wedding as a "liberation." He said the song was written during the time of the "Beatle and Grammy Award winning Chicago five series "Make a Wish" which he hosted.

The program was another obstacle on Tom Chapin's road to fame. "Make a Wish, a song for bringing Harry's brother and for bringing me on the road, now I'm getting to be known for concerts."

MORE ON THE CONCERT

Erie Isaac made her second appearance at the S.G.A. Desert Playhouse when she shared the bill with Tom Chapin Thursday night in the Student Center Room.

Because Chapin had to leave earl, he performed first for the second concert. So it was that dramatic change from Baltimore, Illinois found herself not as a warm-up performer, but as a performer with a warmed-up audience. She was superb.

Her solo voice rendered her songs beautifully. Her skillful guitar playing was as fine as any virtuoso guitarist and reminiscent of Gordon Lightfoot. She has every talent possessed by the well-known professional. She just hasn't got the following that the stars have.

In an interview after the concert Isaac said that her booking agency is attempting to build her following by scheduling her as an opening act for concerts that attract diverse audiences.

The small audience for the second show seemed to enjoy Erin as much as the featured artist. Tom Chapin Isaac enjoys the small audience, too. She said she liked the intimacy of the Desert Playhouse.

The Playhouse was begun last spring according to Barry Richman, chairman of the Student Council Programming Committee. He said the Playhouse is an "unconventional" and "alternative" event. The Playhouse's intimate atmosphere is fostered by the one-person vehicle for relatively unknown talents, Richman said.

"I doubt that we've got not for the playhouse, which seats about 500 people, will be the showcase for those talented people."

The event was sponsored by the Student Council and the Student Association, the latter of which is working to build a community center in the Student Center.

‘Outlaw Blues’ crashing bore

By Don Erichsen
Staff Writer

You've ever been driving north on U.S. 51 alongside the big field by the Arena, late for class, and felt an incredible urge to floor it, cut across the southbound lane, jump the ditch, and cut through the storm fields to campus, your wheels spinning bits of dirt and lime high into the air?

Well, save your ear and your academic career (can you imagine the horror if you got reeled all that?) and catch a vicarious purge of your urge at “Outlaw Blues.” If you can’t wait until “Vanishing Point,” “Sugarland Express,” or “The Getaway,” are re-run on TV, catch “Outlaw” another in a long line of chase films, complete with 10 million doughnut cops topping their cars over each other.

“Outlaw Blues” tries to be a rock film, borrowing the Waylon Jennings-Wille Nelson-David Alan Coc country outlaw posture, here in the role of Peter Fonda, and pitting it against the slick traditional “chiseler-and-wimp” element of Nashville’s aces who Henry Gibson embodied in Robert Altman’s “Nashville.”

Several devices of that film were borrowed, in fact, but put to use in such a clumsy manner as to be laughable. Shots of the streets of Austin, Texas are shown while a politician races on a direct squeeze from “Nashville.” In this film, the politician is running for mayor, and instead of being anonymously anonymous, he is all too obvious as the police chief chasing Fonda. The chief, Tannenbaum, played by John Crawford is a buffoon. His primping for the news cameras, a supposed “statement” on the role of politician-as-media-manipulator, is driven into the ground. (At one point ‘s says “Roll ’em” to signal his driver to get going.)

The actual idea for this film could have been interesting. The “Outlaw” mystique of Southern and Texas country-rock has captured the public’s imagination the past few years. But scriptwriter B.W. L. Horton gave us no insight into Fonda’s character, save a few flashbacks, which seem almost obligatory since he’s “Easy Rider” role. Susan Saint James, his lover/business manager, who strikes a few Rita Coolidge-singing-back-up poses at the beginning of the film, escalations from greed to love, but we can’t even guess why, because we don’t know her character.

Rock music embodies the fantasies of youth, and even superficial films on rock fantasy have worked sometimes. “Wild In The Streets,” done in the 60s, at least had a feeling of liberation passed over its fanciful undertones.

Two injured when auto overturns

Two SIU students received minor injuries when the auto in which they were riding overturned on Route 11, about two miles north of Illinois 13, University police said.

Police found the driver of the car, Gary L. Johnson, a freshman in general studies, was driving north when she swerved to avoid a dog in the road. Johnson lost control of the car which overturned and came to rest right-side-up in a soybean field next to the road, police said.

Johnson and a passenger in the car, Adrianne Buchelt, a sophomore in general studies, received minor injuries and were taken to the Health Service. They were treated and released.

Campan police estimated damage to the car at $1500. Police also recovered $30 property damage to the field owned by Kenneth Dietz of De Soto.

Sanitary napkin dispensers robbed

In the past four days, a total of 11 sanitary napkin dispensers in men's restrooms have been broken into and $1.50 removed from some of them, University police report.

On Tuesday police were told that six machines in the Student Union and two machines in Morris Library had been burglarized. A total of $16.75 was removed.

Student can get $3.25 back;

Bursar posts fee refund facts

Students unaware that their $25 Student-to-student Grant Program and 31 Student-to-Attorney Program fees can be refunded if the student can be reimbursed by 3 a 5 cards that were posted on the students Union bulletin board after 3 a.m. on Wednesday.

The cards, posted by Student Government, tell students how to request a refund for expenses the two fees within ten days after paying the fees.

As he posted the first notice, Dennis Adamczyk, student body president, he was one of the promises I made during my campaign.

The cards also inform the student he will lose his right to receive service from that program should be elect to receive a refund.

Admittedly, these cards are a little late in coming," Adamczyk said.

Government is not encouraging anyone to take the refund, but merely making the option for those who are interested and the option for those who are interested, Adamczyk said.

"I don't think they should all be needed for all of such programs, but this is simply an effort to leave that option open to students," Adamczyk said.

Both refunds may be applied for at the Office of Admission and Records, Woody Hall, Wing A Room 218.

Police apprehend robbery suspect

Keith A. Yates, 20, of Elaim, was arrested Thursday by Carbondale police and charged with armed robbery in connection with the Aug. 27 theft of $3.25 property damage to the Field owned by Kenneth Dietz of De Soto.

Attention Students registering for fall '77

Three new interdisciplinary courses will be offered in Fall '77. Each course will deal with value problems that arise in the practice of the professions and careers that base themselves upon 1) biological sciences, e.g., nursing; forestry; 2) communication arts, e.g., TV, journalism and 3) the social sciences, e.g., corrections, rehabilitation.

They are:

LAC 310 Values in the living world. Coordinator: Tangsten and Hatch.

LAC 311 Values in the communication arts. Coordinator: Lawson.

LAC 312 Applied values in society. Coordinator: Appleby.

The courses have been developed by teachers from the humanities, the relevant disciplines, practitioners of these disciplines. The courses will be study of actual cases chosen to illustrate the kinds of value decisions workers have to make, beginning with personal choices, and moving on to decisions that involve wider and wider circles of people, communities, the professions, or the nation.

Heavy use of cinema, slides, case-presentation by workers in the field, and the site-visits will help insure the relevance of the subjects treated to the real decisions students will confront in their futures. Term projects will be the chief work asked of students.

Each course will meet twice a week, Tues.-Thurs., and one evening a week for films, site-visits, etc.

The courses are intended for the non-humanities students, do not presuppose prior work in the humanities, and are not designed to lead to a major in the humanities.

Amtrak plans promotional discounts;
Chicago route is excluded from list

Amtrak is planning to offer a promotional discount on a number of its runs, but of two buses planned for a reduction on the Carbondale to Chicago run, that will be out of Luck.

Joe Vansch, An Amtrak employee, said the discounts will be a promotional effort by the company to boost sales after the Labor Day weekend.

Vansch said that the discount will not be offered on the Carbondale to Chicago route because one of Amtrak’s more profitable runs.

Paraplegic confesses to child molesting but set free by law

Pontiac (API)—After a judge rejected a motion for a change of venue, a sentence for the confessed molester of three little girls, the law voted him guilty.

There are times when public opinion is so strong that the law is a huge rock that they have to carry on their backs.

Leviington County State’s Attorney C. David Vogel said.

Gerald Wayne Beauchamp, 51, a paraplegic, had agreed with prosecutors to plea bargain; five years probation and a $2,000 fine in exchange for his guilty plea.

Circuit Judge Keith Campbell threw the arrangement out, saying it would “deprive the seriousness of the offense.

But when Des Voigne of Odeil, chairman of the plea to innocent and asked for a trial, it was made clear that he was immune from prosecution.

Auto races come to DuQuoin

By Bud Vonderheide

Du Quoin's auto racing fans will have a chance to see top-flight drivers as the defending Du Quoin State Fair winner will host a stock car race this weekend. The race will be run on the Du Quoin one-mile dirt track.

Both events are 100-mile races for USAC American (USAC) cars. Prize money remains the same at both events, $2,500 and $2,000. USAC's traditional practice is to pay off the leaders on the pace laps in order of who is leading on each lap. All drivers will have the opportunity to win prize money.

Jerry Maxton of the Du Quoin State Fair staff said both races will be popular with families on the racing circuit. Heading the list of drivers in Saturday's dirt car race are two-time Indy 500 champion Al Unser; Bill Vukovich, Gary Bettenhausen, Tom Bregenholt, Tom McElreath and defending champion Bob Jenkins.

Bigwheels will also enter Saturday's stock car race along with former USAC champions Don White and Rame Stoltz, current USAC point leader Paul Feldman and defending champion Don Durlin.

"Below just entered the stock car racing field," Maxton said. "The race Saturday will be our first effort to bring stock cars to Du Quoin State Fair."

The Du Quoin race is one of only two 100-mile dirt races remaining on the USAC circuit. The others are at Springfield, Indianapolis and Syracuse. N.Y. Rennfests in car stereo and the proliferation of asphalt tracks have caused the decrease in entries. Maxton said a $15,000 guarantee awaits the winner of the stock car race while the dirt car race winner will collect at least $30,000. Maxton said the purses could go higher depending on the summer's results.

Field hockey team hurt by injuries

By Bernie Conrow

The SIU women's field hockey team will have to overcome numerous injuries and inexperience to compete against national-caliber teams. According to coach Jillie Bille, "I think we have the potential to be just as strong as we were last season." Bille said, "The key will be whether we can stay healthy and get some wins." The team lost in its first six games. Right now the women have two players and coach Bille are working on a solution.

Last fall, Ann Strilling, captain of the women's basketball team, was injured during surgery over the summer. She was expected to return for the entire season right now but there is a chance she could return to the team by the time the tournaments start, Bille said.

Patty Jacques, also a backcourt returning from last year's squad, missed the first week of practice due to injuries. "I hope to help the team on all terms at SIU with care, treatment, prevention and rehabilitation of athletic injuries." Schults said. "The doctor makes the diagnosis and the nurse writes the prescription with administration of care."

Harry Schults, who was named assistant manager of the baseball team, will assist assistant coach Robert "Doc" Spence. Spence, who also managed the SIU baseball team for 15 years, is leaving to pursue a Ph.D. in exercise science and physical therapy and to assist his Doctor Robert "Doc."

New free agents await offers

It's shopping time.

Now let's see what your favorite baseball team is doing to plug a few holes which have surfaced during the long hard summer of 1977. You say your team is slugging underfoot? How about Pete Rose, who is hitting .369 with 26 home runs and 80 RBIs in 155 games? Or, maybe Lyman Bostock, carrying numbers like .326 with 80 runs scored and 100 hits next to his name? Or, perhaps you feel Oscar Gamble, with 26 home runs in 331 at bats? There's always Larry Hille, with 24 home runs and 39 RBIs batted in.

Pitching? You want a good strong right-hander? How about Mike Torrez, who has won 15 games and has pitched seven straight complete games and seven saves? Maybe the answer would be Rarey Egan, who had 15 saves in the last three seasons. Or, you might be interested in Rich Gossage, who won nine games, saved 17 others and has an earned run average of 2.00.

Unless they sign new contracts in the last month of the season, they will all be available in the free agent grab-bag. The only question is whether the owners will be quite so quick to grab them this time as they were a year ago in the free agent raid.

There has been a distinctly second-class flavor about the production of the first class of free agents. And the success of teams that did not loosen the straps on their wallets could convince owners that splashing millions into the free agent market isn't necessarily an automatic ticket to the top of the league division.

To confirm that, you might check the Los Angeles Dodgers and Philadelphia Phillies, comfortable leaders in the two National League races. The Dodger free-agent haul was zero and the Phillies lost one of the big names, Dave Cash, and signed one of the little ones, Rich Hinton.

In the American League, Baltimore, Minnesota and Chicago teams have been involved in the stockcar market with minimal help from expensive club assessed.

Then, there is the case of the California Angels, whose costly roster maneuvering allowed them to sign three big-money players instead of the standard two allowed under the rules of the Bowie Kuhn system.

You'll recall that the Angels were unable to sign three of their own promising payrolls last year.
