COBA receives new department heads

By Valerie Berry
Daily Egyptian Reporter

As one of his first moves as new Dean of the College of Business and Administration, Tom Keon has appointed four new department chairmen.

Keon said the former chairmen were replaced because two were temporarily heading their departments, and another stepped down at the end of last semester.

"One of the chairmen was replaced for personal issues," Keon said.

Hussein Elsaid takes over as the acting chairman of finance for one year. Before this appointment, Elsaid was a professor of finance and co-director of the Center for International Business and Culture.

As the head of a strong department, Elsaid said his job is to enhance and definitely maintain the finance department's quality.

"The first week is like a honeymoon," Elsaid said. "I'm looking forward to the job."

Zarrel Lambert heads the department of marketing. His last job was professor of marketing at Auburn University in Alabama.

Lambert said he looks forward to his new appointment as marketing chairman at SIUC and hopes to continue to develop its quality by achieving visibility both regionally and nationally.

Alan Karnes is the new director of accounting. Before his appointment, he taught taxation in the graduate program and was an assistant professor.

Karnes' goal is to continue to improve, deliver and evaluate the School of Accounting.

Saluki Currency Exchange closes due to lack of funds

By Lori D. Clark
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The Saluki Currency Exchange is temporarily closed, according to a financial authority, because of a lack of funds.

Mike Goldman, of the Department of Financial Institutions, said it was discovered last week that Exchange funds were insufficient when a money order from the service could not be cashed, and was returned to a currency exchange in Chicago.

The Exchange, 606 S. Illinois, offers services including, money orders, check cashing, Western Union, license plate renewal, travelers checks, telegrams, provides food stamps and checks from Public Aid.

Goldman said the return was not an unusual occurrence, but the department felt it best to close the institution.

"We (the department) decided it would be in everyone's best interest to close it (the currency exchange). The Department did this in cooperation with the store, First National Bank of Carbondale, the Community Currency Exchange of Illinois and the Department of Public Aid. We wanted to insure all money orders would be honored," said Goldman.

Goldman said the exchange should reopen sometime next week.

"We're trying to rectify the situation as soon as we can," Goldman said.

He said mail boxes at the Exchange are still accessible. Public aid checks and food stamps can be collected at the Public Aid Office in Murphysboro at 342 North St. The Exchange cannot cash checks or sell money orders.

Ann Ridge, of the Public Information Office said she wants no one to be at a disadvantage with the closing of the Exchange and stressed that money orders from the service are still usable.

"There may be a little inconvenience, but money orders will be honored," said Ridge.

Goldman said the Department of Financial Institutions sent two agents to the Exchange to determine the cause of fund shortage. He said the agents were expected to remain at the Exchange through Thursday but may have to remain through today.

Kathy Parks, manager of the Exchange, declined comment on the situation.

Salukis looking at Senate

By David R. Kazak and Wendy Ally
Daily Egyptian Reporters

Two SIUC employees are eyeing an Illinois Senate seat that has yet to be vacated by its current occupant.

James Osberg, director of international economic development at SIUC's Office of Economic and Regional Development, and SIUC Political Science Professor Barbara Brown both said they desire Sen. Ralph Dunn's, R-DuQuoin, seat in the Illinois Senate.

The seat will be up for elections next year, but Osberg could get appointed to the seat if Dunn, who was unavailable for comment, decides to retire early, as he has indicated in recent days.

Dunn recently was quoted in the Southern Illinoisian saying Osberg would be Dunn's choice for a GOP replacement. Osberg said

ZAIRE HALTS EXPULSION OF RWANDAN REFUGEES — GOMA, Zaire—Zairian soldiers halted their forced repatriation of Rwandan refugees Thursday, after a five-day campaign in which about 15,000 people were expelled from camps and more than 100,000 fled into the hills. U.N. officials in Goma said it was unclear whether Zaire's government has permanently stopped its effort to expel 1.5 million Rwandan refugees—including about 730,000 in this northeastern border region. But sources indicated that U.N. representatives and the Zairian government are close to an agreement in which the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees agency would resume a campaign of voluntary repatriation. The operation stopped in April after thousands of refugees were shot or killed in a stampede when the Rwandan army shut the Kibeho camp in Rwanda.

PALESTINIAN POLICE ACCUSED OF VIOLATIONS — JERUSALEM—Even before Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat has reached agreement with Israel on extending his authority throughout the West Bank, his security forces are terrorizing West Bank residents, Israeli and Palestinian human rights groups assert. B'tselem, an Israeli human rights organization that in the past has harshly criticized Israel's human rights record in the West Bank, issued a report Thursday accusing the Preventive Security Service, a branch of the Palestinian Authority's police force, of "gross violations of human rights" in the West Bank including illegal detentions and torture. Bassam Eid, a field worker who took the testimony of 15 Palestinians who alleged that they were harassed, arrested and sometimes tortured by Preventive Security, said that the security force is using tactics similar to those used by Shin Bet, the Israeli force responsible for West Bank security.

PACKWOOD JEOPARDIZES FINANCE COMMITTEE — WASHINGTON—Members of the Senate Finance Committee, who must grapple with some of the most explosive issues confronting Congress when lawmakers return to Washington next month, are worried about a new problem: the possible appointment of a new chairman at a moment when the fractious committee must needs strong direction. Finance Committee Chairman Bob Packwood, R-Ore., a savvy behind-the-scenes dealmaker who faces allegations of sexual and official misconduct, could be forced to cede his post to the more genial Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Del., just as a series of bitter conflicts involving the committee are coming to a head.

AFL-CIO RIVALS MEET; DEBATE DISAPPOINTING — LOS ANGELES—For the first time in more than 100 years, a serious challenger has taken on the incumbent leader of the American labor movement, and Thursday the two engaged in their first face-to-face campaign debate over the future of the AFL-CIO. What was billed as a heavyweight boxing contest proved to be little more than shadow boxing. When it was over, AFL-CIO President Thomas Donahue and challenger John Sweeney, president of the Service Employees International Union, appeared to have done little to differentiate themselves or their campaigns to an audience of more than 200 trade union activists, many of whom indicated by their reactions that their minds were made up. The last union leader to take on a sitting president of the American Labor Federation was a socialist mine worker named John McBride, and the year was 1884. His opponent was Samuel Gompers.

New law helps expedite State money transfers

By Donita Polly
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Gov. Jim Edgar signed a bill into law last week that will help expedite money to and from SIUC by electronically submitting payments, avoiding a daily paper shuffle.

Senate Bill 587 is designed to electronically submit transfers of money to the comptroller's office instead of using paper. SIUC will use the bill to expedite University cash flow by paying vendors and travelers more quickly.

SIUC Comptroller Jeff Holder said the new system creates good will between SIUC and other agencies and limits the paperwork

“This will have an effect on all of the state agencies.”

Ed Marshall
Illinois Comptroller press secretary

between SIUC and the comptroller's office in Springfield. “SIUC will receive money quicker and vendors and travelers will receive their money quicker, which means we don't have to worry about late charges,” Holder said.

Holder said before the bill, documents and transactions were sent to the comptroller on paper and then had to be re-entered into the comptroller's office computer.

“This bill stops the re-entering of the data at the comptroller office,” he said. “It will now be submitted in an electronic format.”

Ed Marshall, press secretary for Illinois Comptroller Loleta Didrickson, said the $18 million spent on the electronic commerce bill will save Illinois $120 million the first year it is in place and a minimum of $20 million every year after that.

“This will have an effect on all of the state agencies,” Marshall said. “The money saved could be used for other processes, like paying the Medicaid backlog, building prisons, and possibly education.”

According to Marshall, the bill will cut the waste and inefficiency present under the previous paper-dependent system.

“The state government is dependent on paper which costs money in postage, printing and labor. This bill will result in a better and smarter government,” Marshall said.

Patty Schuh, spokesperson for the Senate Republicans, said the bill was sponsored by Sen. Aldo DeAngelis, R—Olympia Fields, at the request of the comptroller's office.

“The bill is to help bring the office into the information age by allowing the technology to cut paperwork. It's to improve the efficiency of the comptroller office,” Schuh said.

Marshall said redundancies in the state's 85 different accounting systems were a huge cost to taxpayers because each system had to be upgraded every year.

“The state issued 14 million checks,” he said. “If you look at the cost in money for managing money, it equals $800 million, which is about $57 for each check.

Veterans club improves local image

By Rebecca Hutchings
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The SIUC Veterans Association has successfully changed its image from a partying club to one more oriented to the community and the University, members said.

“We changed from a drinking club to an overall social club,” Joe Gallagher, the organization's president, said. “We don't want our old reputation to scare away new members.”

Capt. Mitchell Malone said new leadership is the reason for the change.

“(The leaders) wanted to get more involved and be more University-oriented instead of self-oriented,” Malone, assistant professor of military science, said. “Now they're working within the system, instead of against it like they did a couple of years ago.”

There is a connection existing between people in the military that the Veterans Association wants to build on, Wade C. Weitlauf, treasurer, said.

“The club used to be an association of veterans that got together to drink and party,” Weitlauf, a senior in finance from Belleville, Mich., said. “I believe right now we're trying to pull the veterans together and restore the camaraderie that exists between the veterans in the club.”

The Veterans Association now participates in Veteran's Day,

Alumna to exhibit art at museum

By Mary Rose Roberts
Daily Egyptian Reporter

A Saluki alumna returned to her alma mater this week to display wrought iron functional art for the home and garden at the University Museum in Faner Hall.

Roberta Elliott, an SIUC graduate with a doctorate in physiology, became interested in blacksmithing through Brent Kington and Daryl Meier, members of the SIUC art department.

Elliott's first exhibit was at the Associates Artist Gallery, 213 S. Illinois Ave. Her first show at Faner Hall in 1988 highlighted pieces by local artists.

Lori Huffman, curator of collections at the University Museum, chose the FeEic exhibit because she has admired Elliott's work that she has seen in Southern Illinois.

“Blacksmithing is an interesting art form, something our audience would enjoy looking at,” she said. “We also like to feature regional artists to show the talent in this area.”

Elliott said the motivations behind her work are forms of nature and the challenging aspect of the iron medium. Through observation, she tried to achieve a communion of elements within her work. An example is a piece on exhibit titled “Wakremas.” It is an iron fence intertwined with construction bamboo, which contrasts

New restaurant brings metropolitan life to Carbondale

By Cynthia Sheets
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Modern, big-city ideas will combine with the history of a 100-year-old building, as a new restaurant/bar renovation is underway in downtown Carbondale.

“We wanted something that was totally different than what Carbondale has had before,” Darick Vinson-Trouman, co-owner of the new Metropolitan Restaurant and Bar, said. “We're planning to expose the old brick and restore the building to its original state as much as possible.”

Inspired by Atlanta night-life, Vinson-Trouman said he named the new restaurant, 100 S. Illinois Ave., with the idea of bringing attributes of the larger cities into Carbondale to give it metropolitan qualities.

The first floor will house the restaurant specializing in vegetarian cuisine, a bar and a boutique, which will be in the back part of the building. The boutique will sell club wear such as the Raymond Dragon line and Diesel jeans, he said.

Upstairs in the 500 square feet allocated for entertainment, there will be a game room, dance floor, an area for live bands and theater productions, and another bar area, all of which is targeted toward the professional crowd.

“We're planning to have occasional live bands, probably once a month,” Vinson-Trouman said. “But we will really be concentrating on the theater part of live entertainment—skits, dramas, etcetera.”

The co-owner said he has contacted the SIUC theater department to discuss student productions for later dates. He said he is planning to display student art work from the University in a gallery-type setting where patrons can view and purchase the exhibitions.

Vinson-Trouman and his mother, Joyce Vinson, have taken over the responsibility of restoring the 100-year-old building. The building previously has housed the Emperor's Palace and The Hub restaurants.

Vinson said she has a background in real-estate, and she and her son had been looking for a place to start a business.

“We had always liked the building and decided to inquire about it,” she said. “We were able to meet the owner through our interest, and were then able to acquire it.”

Vinson-Trouman said he has established a 21-year-old entry age after 9 p.m. or 9:30 p.m., and people who opt to stay after the dinner menu closes will need to fill out a membership form.

The form is a questionnaire for the patrons that will be used to curb underage drinking, he said.

The Carbondale City Council recently instated the restaurant's liquor license in a 4-1 vote.

“It will primarily be a restaurant,” Vinson-Trouman said. “I don't foresee any problems in the future with alcohol. I was surprised that the city was so skeptical of us in the first place.”

The restaurant and bar is set for a tentative opening in late October.

Sherman's summer spending wasteful

LAST SEMESTER, SOME SENATORS IN THE Undergraduate Student Government expressed concerns about USG President Duane Sherman's spending of student funds during the summer. Despite a 872-486 vote in a student referendum approving a fee increase for full membership in the United States Student Association, Sherman spent $676 of student money to travel to Washington, D.C., and examine the lobbying organization first-hand. By passing the referendum, the students of SIUC already had made the decision on the issue. Questioning a referendum should only be done by the full USG Senate. To second-guess this decision while the Senate was not in session was a slap in the face of the democratic process.

SHERMAN WAS ELECTED ON THE SAME DAY the referendum approving membership in USSA was passed. If the referendum is invalid, then so is Sherman's election to the office of president. While Sherman did not break any laws or USG rules by spending student money to go to Washington, he did violate the public trust. Sherman should have taken his concerns to the Senate before spending student money to unilaterally second-guess a ratified student referendum.

WHILE THE DAILY EGYPTIAN SUPPORTED THE trip earlier in the summer, other expenditures have since come to light that have prompted us to reconsider that stance. For instance, Sherman has spent more than $750 on computer memory and has paid Mark Collins, a temporary civil servant, hundreds of dollars to research a new $7,305 computer system. The system would enable USG to create a home page on the internet. This benefit of the system is redundant, however, because a home page could be created through the Student Center. The proposed system also would place a $2,700 computer in Sherman's office. Information supplied by Graduate and Professional Student Council Vice President Bill Karrow suggests that Sherman may have tried to push the project through while the senate was away during the summer.

SHERMAN AND COLLINS PRESENTED A proposal to the graduate council in July asking them to pay $3,351.50 for equal access to the proposed system. The council tabled the matter until the fall, when the entire council returned. But Karrow told the DE that Sherman asked him to sign off on the proposal, despite the action of the council. Sherman has said he did not ask Karrow to abuse his authority as vice president to override the council. However, that is exactly what he did if he asked Karrow to sign off on the proposal after the council tabled it. Again, this shows contempt and disregard for the democratic process.

SHERMAN ALREADY HAS SPENT OR COMMITTED $9,458.49 of USG's $55,000 fiscal year 1996 operational budget without any input from the USG Senate. The fact that Sherman did not break any rules by spending this money inappropriately merely points to the fact that the rules need to be changed. Perhaps USG could take an example from GPSC. They require all expenditures in excess of $200 to be approved by the council. In order for any government to protect its constituents from abuse, there must be any effective system of checks and balances. While Sherman is the one who spent the money inappropriately, the lack of checks and balances at USG allowed it to happen.

Mass transit: good system for most students and a bargain

I am writing in response to Tuesday's letter to the editor by Ms. Dutchess Campbell. She claims that the new Mass Transit System is ridiculous, because it charges students a fee for a program (transit) that she can't, or rather, won't use. Ms. Campbell, apparently you are ill informed on the Mass Transit System and student fees in general; please allow me to bring you up to speed.

First, mass transit was implemented with the intent of utilization for all SIUC students (yes, it does come with a very reasonable $25 fee). I am sorry that you feel that the benefits of this great system don't include you because you are the "minority", but to tell the truth there are several fees on this campus that the "majority" is not included in. Although I do not have any dependents I still must pay a four dollar fee for Rainbow's End. $1.25 of student fees pay for the Women's Night Transit Safety Van (males could not utilize it). Also, not everyone chooses to use the Rec Center and that is a $54 fee. So, Ms. Campbell, the fees will all work themselves out in the end.

Second, you aren't entirely correct to say that the Board of Trustees created this fee, because it was created by the students and alumni at SIUC. Since the '70s there has been discussion of implementing the Mass Transit System. For the past 10 years proposals, referenda, surveys and phone polls have flourished throughout the administration and student body to ensure this Mass Transit was needed. By the way, if you would like the phone number to Mr. Van Meter, Chairman of the SIUC Board of Trustees it is (217) 753-7070 or for Jason Ervin, Student Trustee (618) 453-6673.

Third, you state that "I (you) have to walk to a bus stop about two blocks to the nearest bus stop." Two blocks is not far to walk to a bus stop that will then carry you over ten square miles of area both in and out of the city limits of Carbondale. It is also a new system, Ms. Campbell, and over time the Transit Board will work out the problems of bus routes and stops.

You certainly don't know what you are talking about in reference to your child riding on the bus. Dependents of students can ride on the bus for $20.00 a semester, children under five ride free, and anyone can ride for fifty cents per destination. I believe that you are incorrect when you claim that the Transit Board did not have student mothers in mind.

If you do feel that student mothers are not fairly represented at SIUC then maybe it is time for you to get involved with what concerns you. Get active in Undergraduate Student Government, Non-Traditional Students and maybe even the Mass Transit Board itself. You can complain all you want, but first make sure you get your facts straight and then work towards providing a solution to the problem.

Senior, physiology

System does not serve all students who are charged

I am writing in support of Dutchess Campbell's letter on August 23, 1995 concerning the mass transit system. While the transit system is a good idea and I am glad to see it finally running, I agree with Ms. Campbell in that it does not meet the needs of the students.

I am a true commuter student. I do not live in Carbondale therefore I cannot utilize the transit service to my benefit. I must use my car to get to campus. My husband and I have spent $60 this year for parking stickers and also are forced to pay $50 for a bus service that we cannot use. The needs of all students are not being met by this service. I am not the only student frustrated by this. I have spoken to other students who feel the same way.

Why not set up a refund system like the one used for the Student Medical Benefit fee? I don't have a problem with paying for other services such as the Recreation Center or Student Center because those services I could use if I so desired, but I cannot use the transit system so why should I have to fund it? It appears that the "powers that be" who made these decisions regarding the transit service failed to take into consideration the total population of students attending the University. It would be interesting to know what percentage of students are actually being served by the transit system in comparison to the total population. As students do you think we will ever get to know this information? Probably not.

Fishy odor present in Baghdad defection

By Mamoun Fandy
Special to the Los Angeles Times

Whatever the Western media and hopeful diplomats may wish to read into the flight of Lt. Gen. Hussein Kamel Majid from Iraq, their reading of "defection" is only one of many equally plausible readings. Moreover, the excitement over Kamel has taken attention from the true opposition within Iraq: the Kurds and Shiites.

The rush to embrace the standard reading of Kamel's "defection" as an indicator that the regime is cracking under international pressure is more representative of wishful thinking than serious analysis.

It is possible that President Saddam Hussein's situation is dire, and that Kamel, until recently the trusted head of military industry programs, wanted a safe harbor from which to hasten the regime's collapse. This is the scenario favored by Western commentators. But there is an opposite scenario that close students of Iraq find persuasive: that Kamel's defection is a ruse, an elaborate plot by Hussein to get the devastating U.N. sanctions lifted and thus preserve his regime.

Consider the most prevalent reading of Kamel's defection: that he was driven out because of his differences with Hussein's son Uday, who is being groomed as his father's successor. One problem with this scenario is that Hussein sent Uday to Jordan to persuade Kamel to return, hardly a likely emissary if he were a prime reason for Kamel's defection.

Furthermore, this scenario fails to take into account the tribal nature of the Iraqi regime and the differing concept of family in Western and Arab cultures. First, it is misinformed to portray the Iraqi regime as the dictatorship of Saddam Hussein alone, rather than of his clan. Since coming to power, he has worked diligently to concentrate power in the hands of his family from the town of Tikrit. Kamel is very much a part of this ruling clan; all of his kin are from Tikrit and would be certain to suffer reprisals if the defection were genuine. The Western media reported that Kamel brought his family—that is, his wife and children—with him to Jordan; in Arab terms, he left his family—his parents, brothers and cousins—behind as potential hostages. It is extremely difficult to imagine that Kamel would sacrifice his blood relatives for an uncertain outcome such as the overthrow of Hussein from Jordan. In such an Arab context where blood relations are everything, it even more difficult to imagine Kamel's wife and her sister abandoning their father, Saddam Hussein.

"... it is a tactic designed to preserve the regime, not to overthrow it."

As for the role of King Hussein in this affair, he is most probably more than a bystander. Consider his statement to an Israeli newspaper, that Kamel discussed with him his plan for defection during a visit to Jordan last month. This gives rise to the theory that the king encouraged the defection to improve his own situation, for it wins him favor with Washington while improving his relations with the Gulf states, especially Saudi Arabia.

This brings us to the alternative, and perhaps most plausible interpretation of the defection of Kamel and his brother, who is also a son-in-law of Hussein and his former chief of security: that it is a tactic designed to preserve the regime, not to overthrow it. For one thing, it allows Hussein a face-saving opportunity to give the United Nations the information required for the lifting of sanctions. This would explain Deputy Prime Minister Tarik Aziz's prompt invitation to U.N. inspectors to come and collect the new information that Iraq is willing to give about its weapons program. Aziz could claim to domestic critics that he revealed the information not because Iraq knuckled under, but because of the treachery of Kamel, who gave the secrets away.

Thus Kamel's defection becomes a staged one, another attempt by a sly regime to survive by recasting its story. By fracturing within itself, it captures both those loyal to the state and those in the opposition. The insiders rally around Hussein and the outsiders around Kamel.

Is Kamel's defection another such ruse? Will he be forgiven if it works? This possibility might explain the shuttle diplomacy of family members—including Uday's mother—to Jordan. These visits could be seen as simply communications concerning the next stage of the game rather than as attempts at reconciliation.

Whatever scenario is correct, the American response is ill-conceived. For one thing, it would legitimize a war criminal, for it was Kamel who brutally put down the Shiite uprising of 1992. If Washington wants the ouster of the Baghdad regime, it should help the Kurds and the Shiites. Instead of permitting the Turkish invasion of Kurdish Iraq and the continued suppression of the Shiites, the United States should lift the embargo in these regions, leaving only the Baghdad area under sanctions. If the Shiites and the Kurds were free to organize their own opposition, they could undermine or at least check Saddam's power.

A fitting 'Epitaph' for the town

The Los Angeles Times

TOMBSTONE, Ariz.—Back in 1880, a former Apache Indian agent named John Clum had a vision for this wild and lawless town. In a tent just off Allen Street he set up shop and, on a used hand press, cranked out the first edition of his newspaper, the Tombstone Epitaph.

Clum's hopes for Tombstone were never fulfilled. His wife, Mary, died in childbirth and was buried in the boot hill cemetery—among unruly men who had met their fate by gunfire or at the end of a hangman's noose. And the town itself faded quickly after the mines ran out. By the Depression, it had become a semi-ghost town with less than 400 residents.

But Clum did leave Tombstone and Cochise County one legacy—the Epitaph, the oldest continuously published newspaper in Arizona. It hasn't missed a publishing deadline in 115 years, and its loyal group of 8,000 subscribers—87 percent of whom said in a survey that they read the paper cover to cover—come from all 50 states and 24 countries. Despite the absence of national advertising, the paper turns a modest profit.

The Epitaph's one-man editorial staff, 74-year-old publisher-editor Wallace Clayton, sat in his office recently, banging away with two fingers on an old Royal upright typewriter. He paused to light a cigarette and talk about the newspaper that until four years ago was set by Linotype.

"The Epitaph," said Clayton, a one-time East Coast newspaperman and advertising executive, "is part of our Western heritage."

Harvard professor leads Vatican delegation in Beijing

The Washington Post

VATICAN CITY—Pope John Paul II has named an American law professor to head the Vatican's delegation to next month's U.N. women's conference in Beijing, Vatican officials said Thursday.

Mary Ann Glendon of Harvard University will be the first woman to take the leadership role for the Roman Catholic Church at a major international gathering. Glendon, 56, who describes herself as an "economic liberal and social conservative," has written extensively on comparative law, including American legal attitudes toward abortion, as well as divorce and other issues of the family and society.

Vatican officials said she shares the general thrust of the pope's recent pronouncements on women—favorable to improving their economic condition, averse to abortion—and some positions she will be promoting are likely to put her in conflict with U.S. and other Western delegates at the Beijing meeting.

Glendon will be chairing a 20-member Vatican delegation that includes 12 women. At the previous U.N. women's conference, in Nairobi in 1985, the Vatican delegation was headed by an archbishop.

Glendon was chosen three months ago by the pope with an apparent eye to taking on the U.S. delegation, which will be headed by Madeleine Albright, Washington's ambassador to the United Nations. Hillary Rodham Clinton is weighing a decision whether to attend the conference, which begins Sept. 4.

After several weeks of private contacts in New York, differences over a draft U.N. document remain between the Vatican on one side and Americans and several West European countries on the other, Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro Valls said in an interview Thursday.

"We still see an effort to impose a certain ideology of a minority of women on women in the world at large," Navarro said.

Navarro depicted the dispute as a culture clash between the wealthy West and the impoverished developing world. The Vatican perceives a bias against the role of motherhood in the draft document to be discussed in Beijing; the word "mother" is missing entirely, he said. According to Navarro, the draft focuses on an "ideological" feminism concerned with social and professional progress of women in the developed world at the expense of impoverished mothers of the Third World.

Navarro said the document gives more attention to AIDS, which afflicts perhaps 4 million women worldwide, than to malaria, which affects tens of millions. The Vatican delegation is girding itself to oppose endorsement of access to abortion for minors without parental consent. The Vatican wants church-approved natural family planning methods treated equally in the document with artificial birth control methods.

The Vatican delegation will take stands in favor of mothers abandoned by their husbands and for working mothers who are paid less than men, Navarro said.

In recent weeks the pope has campaigned publicly for better pay for women and for employers to make allowances for working mothers. Last month, he apologized for the Catholic Church's past role in oppression of women but repeated opposition to ordaining women to the priesthood.

In a telephone interview,

Glendon played down the pre-conference attention to abortion.

"The Beijing conference is one of a series," she said. In the upcoming sessions, "we move from all the fine statements on rights and aspirations" made at last year's Cairo conference on population and development to

"concrete commitments: how to make what has been affirmed at previous conferences real around the world."

Glendon emphasized that as head of the Vatican delegation she will represent millions of poorer Catholics in underdeveloped countries.

"The church has always tried to be a voice for the relatively voiceless," she said. She added that the conference's agenda, "Action for Equality, Development, and Peace," embodies notions "essential to the social teaching of the church and particularly central to the writings of John Paul II."

Glendon is unmarried and has three daughters, Navarro said. She is a founder of Women Affirming Life, a Boston-based Catholic anti-abortion group. She belongs to the Vatican's Pontifical Academy of Social Sciences.

World bank investing in female equality

The Washington Post
 WASHINGTON—The World Bank Thursday urged governments to invest more in women and to eliminate discrimination against them in order to create greater economic growth.
 "Investing in women is good economics, as it leads to significant productivity gains," said Minh Chau Nguyen, the international organization's manager of gender analysis and policy, during a press conference where the bank released two reports it has prepared for the Fourth Conference on Women in Beijing next month.

Nguyen said the bank has been putting more emphasis on considering how women are treated when it lends money to developing countries, but she said the World Bank hasn't made sexual equality a condition for receiving loans.

According to the bank, more than a third of its lending portfolio now addresses concerns about sexual equality, compared with less than 10 percent a decade ago. Much of that lending is to improve women's education, nutrition and health.

Dr. ... came to him and asked him personally if he would consider taking the seat.

"Ralph came to me and said, 'Would you be willing to do this?'" Osberg said. "I've been trained to do the kinds of things the legislature does."

The decision to appoint Osberg would fall on a seven-member GOP committee, and they will not make a decision until Dunn officially announces his retirement. He faces Republican competition from Jerry Reppert from Anna and Charles Wayne Goforth from Tamaroa.

Brown, who announced her intentions to run on a Democratic ticket over the summer, will not have the luxury of being appointed and must wait for the primary elections next March.

Brown said the most significant reason for her entry into next year's race is she believes that Chicago-area Republicans control the Illinois legislature.

"The affluent, suburbanite Republicans are now in charge," she said. "Unless we fight for Southern Illinois we will lose out."

Losing out, Brown said, means losing a family-friendly government. This would be a government that focuses its efforts on issues such as helping working parents deal with the low wages prevalent in Southern Illinois, increasing economic development and improving working conditions, Brown said.

Osberg said issues facing students are high on his list of concerns, especially when it comes to the cost of higher education.

"Middle class families know what the crunch is," he said. "At the state level, you'll see continued efforts to make education affordable for everyone in Illinois."

Osberg said aside from education, his focus will be on rural health issues and economic state development.

Brown also said focus in the Illinois Senate needs to be geared toward education, which includes the needs of the students at SIUC.

"I think that is precisely what I want to do; help the students that is," she said. "Republicans at the national level are shirking their duty to students."

"This means the burden is going to fall on state government. I want to be there to be one of the defenders and advocates for students because they are going to need it."

Osberg's political career has spanned the last five years since his appointment as Gov. Jim Thompson's education assistant. Since then, he has been appointed to numerous committees, including Illinois' Export Promotion Coordinating Council and the Securities Advisory Committee.

Pirates latch on to Latino music

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Jose Canjura, a soft-spoken El Salvadoran street vendor who arrived in this country four years ago, may not seem like the sort of person who would make recording industry executives sputtering mad. But alongside a small rack of watches on his merchandise cart here, Canjura stocks an extensive, colorful variety of Spanish-language music cassettes—and nearly all of them are counterfeits.

For Canjura, getting a $50 citation a couple of times a month—or spending a day in jail, as he did last year—is part of the price of staying in business.

Canjura is just a small part of a growing problem that now costs the music industry about $300 million each year domestically and $2 billion worldwide. He is a local retailer in the semi-subterranean pirated music trade, a career choice that makes people like David Fitch, RCA's vice president of sales, fume.

"They're like leeches, in my opinion," Fitch said. "We record the music, market it, promote it, distribute it—and they reap the benefits without the artists getting any proceeds. It's a problem the whole industry is trying to grapple with."

Pirating is increasingly a problem that centers on Latino music, according to statistics released recently by the Recording Industry Association of America, the Washington-based anti-piracy arm of the music business. In the first six months of this year, the number of counterfeit cassettes seized across the country by law enforcement rose by 49 percent compared with the same period last year. And more than 60 percent of the nearly 800,000 cassettes were recorded by Latino artists.

Eisenstaedt; pioneering photographer dies

The Los Angeles Times

Alfred Eisenstaedt, a pioneer of modern photojournalism whose camera recorded many of the historic photographs of World War II including that of a sailor kissing a nurse in New York's Times Square to celebrate VJ-Day, has died. He was 96.

Eisenstaedt, who lived in New York City, died late Wednesday of cardiac arrest while vacationing in Massachusetts, his friend William Marks announced Thursday.

One of Life magazine's first four photographers, Eisenstaedt was working for the magazine when he took the exuberant Times Square photo. It became a Life cover, a symbol of the end of the war, and a defining moment in photojournalism.

"When people don't know me anymore, they will remember that picture," the photographer said years later.

Eisenstaedt pioneered the use of natural light and informal poses in the late 1920s and early 1930s, and continued as a working photographer almost to his death.

There were tens of thousands of "Eisic" pictures published around the world over the course of a career that spanned more than six decades. He may have been the most widely published photographer in history. He may also have been the best.

"He's probably the greatest genius in photojournalism we'll ever see," said former Life photographer and editor John Bryson a few years ago. "A lot of people think they can strap on a couple Nikons and call themselves photojournalists, but Eisic is head and shoulders above them all."

His best work lives on, of course, indelible images of the breath of human experience—the ugliness and beauty of the 20th century, all captured with a basic parity of technique and a simplicity of spirit that left no room for photographic trickery.

Armed Forces Day, MIA/POW Day and other activities involving the community, Weitlauf said.

Dana Welge, a sophomore in administration of justice from Hillsboro, said the club donated money from bake sales to the Garden Park fire victims, helped out at the Haven Veteran's Home and was involved in the Carbondale clean-up.

"The first meeting I went to, all everyone talked about was past activities centered around beer," Welge, a current member, said. "I think we got tired of hearing our reputation. We represent SIU and we are trying to cut down on the party image, especially because that's a big issue in Carbondale right now."

Malone said he started noticing a change in the club during the past year. "The Veterans Association weren't involved with (the Army ROTC) at all until just this past year," Malone said. "Now we're working together on a program to help the University with flag-raising."

Frank Carlisle, an honorary member, said when he first joined the organization there were only a dozen members.

"Our whole social agenda was the tailgates at football games," Carlisle, a 1988 SIUC graduate, said. "It's getting better and better now as far as participating. There's a lot more women vets in the club now, and the club is doing activities that vets can bring their kids to."

The Veterans Association is participating in more activities to include the interests of all members, Leana Dowers, vice president, said.

"We participate in all intramural sports so we include what all members like," Dowers, a graduate student in zoology from Georgetown, said. "Before, they had their own little group of people that wasn't trying to include more members. Now we want everyone to join."

At 7 p.m. tonight the club is holding a social at the American Legion, 205 N. Illinois Ave., inviting all old and new members to come, Gallagher said.

mediums of nature and man.

"Their mediums have a lot of contradictions," she said. "Iron is strong, yet can be made light. Bamboo, a grass, gives the impression of weakness, but is very strong."

Elliott explained a technique used on another piece, "Drop Leaf Table," as a barrel scroll, which looks like a crescent-shaped blade of iron.

"This medium gives me the ability to push the iron to the limits and still be able to give it a fluid, feminine look," she said.

Elliott collaborates with other artists, such as glass blowers, which add a dimension of stained glass to the shades of her lamps.

FeEtC, Elliott's exhibit, is currently on display at the University Museum through Oct. 4.

Orioles Ripken receives threat

The Baltimore Sun SEATTLE—A man identifying himself as Lou Gehrig Jr. called the Kingdome Wednesday afternoon and threatened to kill Baltimore Orioles shortstop Cal Ripken with a gun if he played in Wednesday night's game against the Seattle Mariners.

Gehrig, who had no children, played in 2,130 consecutive games.

Ripken, who played last night in No. 2,118, is scheduled to break Gehrig's record Sept. 6.

Bill Steika, the Orioles' assistant media relations director, acknowledged the threat.

"King County police are aware of the situation and we're confident they have a handle on the situation," said Steika, who acknowledged there had been death threats earlier in the season. "That's all we're going to say about it."

A half hour before Wednesday night's game, Ripken had not been told about the threat, and it was not yet known whether he played with any knowledge of the call.

Southwest Missouri State, and Cornell University.

"I recruited her pretty hard," he said. "I put more time and effort into her than any other runner."

French said her decision was made when she visited the campus.

"I liked the campus, it was better than any other I visited, and I thought the Respiratory Therapy program was good. I really liked Don (DeNoon) too," she said.

French said her long-term goal since she came to SIUC is to go to the nationals.

This season, coach DeNoon has high hopes for French, but a chase of bronchitis has slowed some of her training.

"She came back to us this year with bronchitis, but she's still trying to train. With effort like that, she's going to be one of our top runners," he said. "Once she gets back to 100 percent, she'll have that real aggressive attitude, and you can't buy that kind of leadership. It's also contagious to the rest of the team."

French said she is almost back to full health.

"I'm getting a lot of sleep, and I'm feeling better every day," she said. "I'm just kind of frustrated right now because my body gets tired easily during my training."

French said she proud of her 10th place finish in the MVC Cross Country Championship meet last year, but that isn't any surprise to DeNoon.

Illinois State (22) and Drake (20)—and eight schools will return at least four starters from last year. Locke said the competition in the valley this season is perhaps the toughest she has seen.

"This year's MVC is perhaps the toughest ever," she said. "A lot of teams are returning a lot of talented players and the competition is going to be very tough, but we are not going to run from any team."

Drake and Southwest Missouri St. Conference play for the women's squad opens up on Jan. 2 when the Salukis travel two Wichita St. followed by a date with Southwest Missouri State.

Scott said she expects the Lady Bears to be one of the favorites in the conference this year.

"Southwest Missouri is going to be extremely tough this season.

They get some players back that didn't play last year and will definitely be a contender."

However, Scott does not see any teams in the conference that will run away and hide.

"Drake is going to be good but they lost some people," she said. "I really expect every team in the conference to be competitive and it should be a great race.

"There are no breakers on our schedule."

Scott said she looks for the Salukis to be right in the mix down to the end.

"We lost Cari (Hassell) and Angenette Sumrall, but we added a few people and will hopefully be right there."

Scott said the balance of teams in the league will mean competitive play in every game.

"It is definitely be an exciting race that will be full of surprises," she said.

New Refund Policy

Revised Deadlines to Withdraw or Drop Courses

A new refund policy approved by the Board of Trustees authorizes a pro-rata refund for students officially withdrawing from the University through 60 percent of semester. The policy also changes the deadlines for withdrawing from all classes or dropping courses and receiving a refund.

Students 'Officially Withdrawing' from the University:

Duration of Course	Last Date to Withdraw to Receive a Full Refund
8-16 weeks	Last day of 2nd week
4-7 weeks	Last day of 1st week
less than 4 weeks	Day of First Class Meeting

Students who withdraw from the University after the full refund period stated above will receive a pro-rata refund through the 60 percent of the duration of their course enrollment period. An administrative fee will be assessed to all students who withdraw from the University and receive a pro-rata refund. The amount of the fee will be the lesser of 5 percent of all assessed charges, or $100.

Students Dropping Courses, but remaining enrolled at the University:

Students dropping courses must drop the course by the above deadlines for a full refund. Students who drop a course after the above deadline, but remain enrolled at the University, will not receive any refund and will receive a "W" or a final grade. October 16th remains the deadline for dropping a full semester length course without a final grade (A, B, C, etc.).

Saluki Volleyball

SIUC spiked by poll, Salukis picked sixth

By Michael DeFord
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Expectations are high this year for the SIUC volleyball squad—regardless of being ranked in the middle of the pack in the Missouri Valley Conference Coaches Poll.

The Northern Iowa Panthers, last years MVC champs, take the top spot in this year's preseason coaches poll, with SIUC taking the no. six position.

However, SIUC volleyball coach Sonya Locke does not take too much stock in preseason polls.

"Preseason polls do not mean a whole lot to me," Locke said. "If anything they (preseason polls) act to motivate a team to work hard."

Locke said one reason SIUC was no. six is because the team has not done anything considerable to deserve a higher rank—but her optimism and confidence toward this year's team greatly outweighs any negative aspects of the poll.

"We did not make the MVC tournament last year and that is another reason for being ranked no. 6," she said. "But I'm going to ignore the preseason rank—after all it will all come out at the end of the season."

SIUC lost a tie-breaker to Bradley for the fourth and final spot in last year's Valley tournament.

Despite losing starter Deborah Heyne to graduation, the netter's return five starters from last years 18-12 team—something that has Locke very optimistic toward the upcoming season.

"I look for all of our player's to improve this year," she said. "Right now they all look very good—they are all very optimistic, they all work real hard and push each other very hard."

Returning senior Kelly Parke will anchor the middle of the netter's attack this season. Last year Parke led the team in hitting with a .318 percentage along with 103 blocks. Heather Herdes, last year's honorable mention, returns as an outside hitter. Herdes led the league last year and placed 10th in the nation with 73 service aces.

Despite the teams hard hitting, Locke said blocking is one aspect that the netter's need to work on.

"Our blocking has not been very strong in the last couple of years," she said. "We really need to improve on our blocking this year."

As with any team, leadership is always a key factor in determining a team's success.

Locke said she is looking for more than just one player to step up as team leader this season.

"They will all have to be solid and strong this year," she said. "We need leadership but not in only one player, we need leadership as a team."

Team leadership will play a key role in the MVC this year if any team expects to go far. Last year the conference had three teams with over 20 wins—Northern Iowa (28),

SIUC sophomore harrier runs for Salukis, Canada

By Chad Anderson
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Canadians had their world championship baseball team with the Bluejays, but one resident of the country is running for her own in the Missouri Valley Conference.

French grew up in Barrie, Ontario chasing a dream since the age of 11. She wanted to run in the Olympics, but she has her mind made up on who to run for.

"Canada, but I don't know if I should say that," French said with a smile.

French's father started her out running when she was 11, but it took a little while before she could run with him.

"He used to jog and I'd ride my bike. Then I started jogging half his runs with him," she said.

From there, French started her competitive running in her first year of High School. She did well in high school placing in the top three in her region throughout high school, and won a bronze medal her senior year in the Ontario High School Track Championship.

French, now a sophomore in health care management and respiratory therapy, hopes to put her education to good use once she graduates.

"I'd like to travel across the ocean to Africa and help some of the third world countries over there, using what I've learned here," she said. "I'd also like to travel around the states and Canada, and run in races."

SIUC cross country head coach Don DeNoon said French was heavily recruited and he worked hard to get her into a Saluki uniform. He was in a contest with Indiana State, Eastern Kentucky, Maine,

Hoopster's face tough road

By Doug Durso
DE Sports Editor

After a roller coaster Missouri Valley Conference women's basketball season a year ago, the 1995-96 schedule proves to be just as hair-raising.

Following two exhibition games the Salukis open up on the road at Middle Tennessee State on Nov. 26.

Women's head coach Cindy Scott said she is happy with the talent level on the Salukis schedule.

"Our schedule is typically difficult and this year is no different," she said. "I am really excited about our non-conference schedule."

"We have three great opponents in Illinois, Vanderbilt and Memphis, which will be a great challenge for us."

Memphis is Scott's alma mater, but she said that doesn't have as much significance as it use to.

"That game is important because Memphis perennially has a strong team, but it doesn't matter that I went to school there.

"It would have been more significant for me had my coach had still been there, but they (Memphis) have a new one so it isn't a factor."
