Nativity Scene Will Open Monday

Crews of Carbondale craftsmen and SIU staff and students will begin erection of the Carbondale Nativity Scene on the Holden Hospital lawn Saturday.

Opening ceremonies are set for 5 p.m. Monday, according to committee chairman Dave Keene. The joint Carbondale-University project will be open to the public from 5 to 9 p.m. for 12 days through Christmas Eve. Live animals and choral groups will be featured. Keene said construction of the Nativity Scene this Saturday will be carried out by Little Egypt Ag Co-op members and students from the Vocational Technical Institute woodworking program under the supervision of Ernest Hagler, Jerry Hagler, Harold Osborn and Bob Marlow.

Vernon Wisn Meyer will be in charge of electrical hook-up, and Julian Emlen and Tom Gallegly will handle sound and recording equipment.

Costumes for mannequins representing the principal characters of the Nativity are being cared for by women of the Carbondale Garden Club Council under the direction of Mrs. Richard Dovin.

Charles Reinhardt is heading a Junior Chamber of Commerce committee which will man the lighting and sound booth during the hours the Nativity Scene is open to the public.

Keene, head of Keene Transfer and Storage Co., is general chairman of the project.

Cook County Predominates In Enrollment

Cook County has twice as many students as any other county enrolled on the Carbondale campus this fall.

A tabulation of fall quarter enrollment released through the Registrar's Office shows 3,649 Cook County students, compared to 1,610 from the next highest, Jackson. Others with more than 500 students are Williamson, 797, and DuPage, 513.

Fall term enrollment on the Carbondale campus totals 17,356 students, with 7,146 enrolled on the Edwardsville campus. The two-campus total is a 19.7 per cent increase over last year.

Among out-of-state residents, Missouri is represented by 301 students. There are 213 from New York, 103 from New Jersey and 100 from Indiana. All states except Utah and Nevada are represented, along with 60 foreign nations.

Communications Building to Open On Partial Basis

Part of the new Communications Building is expected to be completed and ready for use by the beginning of winter quarter, according to a progress report issued this week.

It is anticipated that the offices of the dean of the School of Communications, the Departments of Speech Correction, Theater, and Radio and Television will move into the new building.

A special feature of the new building is a 384-seat auditorium especially equipped for the Department of Theater.

'Casa Manana' Girls Hand In Gripe List; Rodents, Wiring, Fire Escapes Are Cited

Students living in an off-campus women's residence have appealed to University housing officials to force the owner to improve living conditions in the house.

A representative of the girls living at La Casa Manana at 304 W. Mill St. said their complaints include:

Cardboard ceilings and uncovered wiring in the basement, rodents, some rooms that are too small to meet approved off-campus housing regulations, lack of water pressure, a bedroom used as a passageway, which is also prohibited by off-campus housing regulations, and no fire escapes.

The girls met early last week with Vernon H. Broertjes, coordinator of housing for the Carbondale campus, and he referred them to Anita Kuo, coordinator of off-campus housing. They met with her on Saturday. An inspector visited the house Monday.

George Paluch, student body president, is tentatively scheduled to meet with Broertjes at 4 p.m. today to discuss the matter.

The girls said the house is owned by Mary Margaret Johnson of 712 S. University Ave. Twenty-four girls live in it.

The girls did not consult with Mrs. Johnson about the complete list although they had asked about some items in the past, according to a spokesman for the group. She said the girls did not go to Mrs. Johnson.

Doughnut Hour Starts at 8:30

SIU's Season of Holiday resumes today with the president's annual doughnut hour and the All-University Holiday Assembly.

President and Mrs. Delyte W. Morris will be hosts for the annual doughnut hour starting at 8:30 a.m. on the west concourse of the SIU Arena. The starting time originally was 8:45 a.m.

Students are requested to enter from the doors at the west side of the Arena.

The assembly program, replacing the regular convocations, will begin at 10 a.m. No 1 p.m. program is scheduled.

President Morris, who has participated at Christmas assemblies since he came to SIU in 1948, will read the Christian Christmas Story from the Gospel of Luke II: 1-21.

Other readings will include "The Pre-Christian Festival of Christmas," describing the various fetes held by the Romans and other civilizations before the birth of Christ, prepared by Carroll L. Ribley, professor of anthropology; and "The Jewish Festival of Chanukah," given by a student, Vance Fulkerson.

Christmas music, both religious and secular, will be provided by the University Symphony Orchestra conducted by Herbert L. Levinson, and the University Choir, the Chamber Choir and the Male Glee Club, all conducted by Robert W. Kingsbury, associate professor of music.

Instructors have been asked to cooperate, when possible, with those students who have classes and wish to attend the assembly. Convocation credit will be given to all freshmen.

9 Nation European Tour Offered

A nine-nation European university tour that will visit some of the most colorful cities on the continent will be sponsored next summer by the Daily Egyptian and KLM Royal Dutch Airlines.

The tour will leave from New York on July 7 and return on Sept. 5 after visiting England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Italy, Yugoslavia, Greece and France.

One of the unusual features of this tour will be that most accommodations will be in student dormitories at universities in the various countries.

"This not only reduces the cost of the tour but also gives the tour members an opportunity to meet and exchange ideas with students from other countries," an airlines spokesman said.

Eaton College, founded by Henry VI in England, the University of Cologne and the University of Heidelberg in Germany and the University of Athens are just a few of the world famous schools to be visited during the tour.

Among the cities members of the tour will visit are London, Amsterdam, Brussels, Cologne, Heidelberg, Munich, Innsbruck, Venice, Rijeka and Dubrovnik in Yugoslavia; Thessaloniki, Athens, Xylokastron and Corfu in Greece; Brindisi, Naples, Rome, Siena, Florence and Genoa in Italy; and Cap D'Ail, Montpellier, Toulouse, Bordeaux, Poitiers and Paris in France.

The tour, open to students, faculty members, members of their families and others associated full-time with the University, costs $932 a person from New York and return. This figure includes transportation by jet airliner, deluxe motorcoach and first class local steamer, student type accommodations and three meals a day.

Additional information is available at the Daily Egyptian business office.

Steagall's Poached Pine Proxy Is Garnished Grapefruit Tree

Ho, ho, ho and a Merry Christmas to you!

The girls at Steagall Hall are in the Christmas spirit, but according to them, Santa Claus should wear a lava-lava.

Steagall's Yule decorations started out to be traditional scotch pine trees, decorated with lights, tinsel, Christmas tree balls and icicles. The trees were even delivered to the hall.

But then, as the four trees, three six-footers for the separate floors and a seven-footer for the hall lounge, rested in the front lounge after delivery Monday afternoon, tragedy struck.

The largest tree was missing!

The inventive coeds of Steagall were not stymied long. They decorated a grapefruit tree in their lounge, and now are having a tropical Christmas in Southern Illinois.

"It's a real plant," said Marilyn Williams, dorm president, "and some day it may even have fruit on it."

Although the girls have gotten into the Christmas spirit, their feeling doesn't extend to the new possessor of their Christmas tree. "We think it was pretty rotten thing to do; stealing a Christmas tree," Miss Williams said.

Christmas Program Slated for Sunday

Singing groups from SIU's University School will present Christmas music in a concert at 4 p.m. Sunday in Shryock Auditorium.

The University School Chorus and Madrigals, composed of high school singers, will take part in the program directed by Charles C. Taylor, associate professor at University School.

Songs will be interspersed with selected readings from the Scriptures.

Fraternity Initiates 1, Reports 2 Pinnings

Alphaman Joseph Lewis has pinned Genise Rose, and Timothy Falls has pinned Lois Cass.

'FANTASTICKS' REOPENS - Al Erickson is shown here as El Gallo, one of the characters in the musical comedy, "The Fantasticks." The show reopens today and will run through Sunday with performances beginning at 8 p.m. in the Southern Playhouse.

Nursery School's Early Yule Is Animated by Menagerie

Christmas came early for preschoolers in the Child Development Laboratory nursery school operated by the School of Home Economics.

They found a whole menagerie of animals one morning—but they were the strangest animals the children had ever seen.

Every single one was made out of cardboard cartons and cardboard boxes, painted in improbable shades or covered with scraps of material and decorated with cereals, sequins, yarn or broomstraws.

There was a big burly 11-year-old with a wonderful mane of white starched oregandy; a cuddly orange Scotty with a mop of furry yarn; a blue giraffe; an imposing brown cow with white spots; a cartoon-like cat covered with popcorn and crackerjack, a graceful skunk with a hatbox head, a cracker box body and a white cottonball stripe down his back and tail; and a turtle whose shell was covered with peanut shells sprayed a brownish green; another turtle of yellow and purple, designed with a man's hat for a head, a yellow balloon for a face and a neatly painted-on vest and tie.

All the animals were designed and made by students in a class in applied design, taught by Norman E. Slack, instructor in clothing and textiles. Slack, a former professional designer, emphasizes the use of inexpensive, commonplace and often junk materials in creative design of both decorative and utilitarian objects.

Tryouts Scheduled For 'Tom Sawyer'

Tryouts for the Interpreters Theater production of "Tom Sawyer" will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. Thursday and Friday in Room 306A of Old Main.

The play will be presented during winter quarter.

Scripts are available at the Department of Speech. Students who desire a special tryout should call the director of the play, Raymond V. Fulkerson, at 549-4178.

Meet Phineas T. Lutz, Coach

The favorable voting on the recent activity fee increase shows that Southern's athletic teams have a small but loyal following.

This group would probably grow too, if officials in the athletic department would get off their hands and sell their program.

Perhaps Southern's athletic teams have to be upgraded, but a winning team doesn't always ensure a loyal following. The SIU baseball team is a classic example. The diamond boys, who won almost every game they played in the last two years, played mostly to empty bleachers.

In an effort to get more people out to the games new baseball Coach Joe Lutz is embarking employing a tested technique—showmanship.

His bat girls, combos, Hondas to bring in pitchers, and cherry bombs that go off after Saluki homeruns, will bring many curious people who would otherwise not have gone to the park.

His stunts will also stamp the words Southern Illinois University on the sports pages of every newspaper across the country.

His efforts to bring his team and school more publicity should be applauded. Maybe Southern needs stronger athletic teams. But maybe all it needs is just a little more showmanship?

Letters to Editor:

'Brainwashed' GIs: No Snap Decisions!

In the Dec. 3rd issue of the Daily Egyptian an editorial appeared concerning the two American G. I.'s who were supposedly brainwashed into campaigning against the United States' intervention in Viet Nam. The latest report is that the men are going to explain the Viet Nam situation. This article and other news reports on similar incidents are distressing and frightening to the American public. These men may or may not have been brainwashed; the truth concerning what these American soldiers were subjected to will probably remain a mystery for some time.

If these men were exposed to professional psychological treatment, then they were vic-timities of one of the cruel realities of war. But, what Americans fear more than psychological treatment is the possibility that these G.I.'s, after seeing both sides of the war, chose to support the Viet Cong cause. The two American soldiers now feel that ethically and morally the U.S. should not be in Viet Nam. They have not yet disclosed why they have reversed their allegiance to support the Viet Cong cause, but they plan to do so when they arrive home.

The United States is in Viet Nam because America and Americans believe that democracy and our democratic way of life is ethically and morally superior to what the communistic form of government can provide. We are in Viet Nam for reasons of prestige, as well as for other reasons. All of our reasons are good ones and most of them are directed basically toward promoting democracy and preventing communism.

This letter is not intended to list or elaborate upon these reasons, but rather to stimulate those Americans who become frightened or overly distressed when they read about American soldiers who have expressed disloyalty after spending time in the hands of the Viet Cong. We should look more deeply into the complex reasons for the war in Viet Nam, and we should try to determine why the war shows little sign of letting up.

Although it is our privilege as Americans to question our government's policies, we should not let incidents of this nature influence our judgement until more information is revealed to the public. Further, the "free" press in the United States sometimes has a tendency to over-emphasize newsworthy items for commercial purposes.

Let's Have Balanced Critiques

Although I missed the Thursday night performance of "The Fantasticks," which Mr. Gill so admirably butchered in his so-called critique, I was pleasantly entertained by the same cast in the same production Saturday night. While I do not deny that the cast had its weak vocal performers and possibly a weak moment or two, I found the acting believable and the atmosphere conducive to good entertainment.

I find Mr. Gill's unjust criticism of Bob Peivits quite crude and unfounded. Other remarks (Carlson's vocal talent????) made in his review lead one to question any statement set forth by the critic in question.

If Mr. Gill wants perfection in college productions, as he seems to, he has a long, trying wait ahead of him. I suggest that he enjoy the good points of such a production and not let the weaker ones cause him such great anguish so that he loses all purpose in writing critically about such a performance, for, in so doing, he fails to do justice to the title, critic.

No Wonder Books Are Stolen!

While standing at the circulation desk at Morris Library, I witnessed an act which should have drawn some response from those behind the desk. A person was going through the return book depository and finally selected two books with which he walked toward the exit. He was not library help (no button and wearing a coat).

While he may have just been trying to retrieve books acci-dently returned, the action in itself should have produced a response. I informed a student worker of what I had seen and received only a shrug as an answer.

If the library workers are unwilling to watch the return depository with any degree of caution, then I suggest that a new and safer method of returning books be devised.

Should U.S. Build Up Ho Chi Minh's Power So Vietnamese Can Hold Back Red Chinese?

By Robert M. Hutchins

What happened to U. Alexis Johnson?

He is a foreign service officer of many years standing, a specialist on the Far East.

He holds the title of deputy undersecretary of state for political affairs. As the official representative of the State Department, he was explaining foreign policy on the CBS television show, Face the Nation.

He said that North Vietnam was reacting more strongly than had been expected to American attacks. This would, of course, require us to step up our efforts.

He was asked what, in that event, the Chinese would do. He replied that the Chinese would probably not think it was in their interest to intervene.

Then he said, "Besides, the North Vietnamese don't seem to like the Chinese very well."

This is shocking news. We had been taught to believe that North Vietnam was a miserable, insignificant country. Its only importance resulted from its position as the front for or tool of the mainland Chinese.

We were never told that there were Chinese soldiers in Vietnam. But the tone of the official statements has been such that many Americans think we are already fighting Chinese "volunteers" as we did in Korea.

If North Vietnam is and wants to be independent of Communist China, and our real object is to thwart China, then clearly we are on the wrong track in Vietnam. Instead of trying to destroy Ho Chi Minh, we should be building him up into a power capable of restraining China.

This is what the Russians said to me last summer in Moscow. They have no desire to see China exercise a free hand in Southeast Asia. They assume that we feel the same way. They find a policy that must drive Ho into the arms of China incomprehensible.

I asked a friend of mine, "What happened to U. Alexis Johnson?"

My friend replied, "He forgot his lines."

AWAITING THE SIGNAL

Who'd Sic Nat'l Guard On Woman Governor?

By Arthur Hoppe
San Francisco Chronicle

Governor George Wallace of Alabama is in a terrible fix. The State Constitution says he can't run to succeed himself next year. And the Legislature won't change it. So now he's talking about running his wife, Lurleen, instead. In order to keep Alabama in the family.

I hope she wins. Mainly because I've already got the pilot script for a new television series called, "I Love Lurleen." It's sort of a family situation tragedy.

Lurleen: More coffee, George?

George: Yes, dear, I'll get it for you in a minute. Are you finished with the first half of the paper yet?

Lurleen: Don't rush me, George. You know I have to keep up with the news. Oh, listen to this picture caption: "The Governor, looking tres chic in a Mainbocher original, strikes a dramatic pose in a schoolhouse door. On the right are two Federal marshals." Isn't that nice? They took it from my good side.

George (irritably): Publicity, publicity. Is that all you ever think about? Frankly, Lurleen, I doubt if I can wait four years until you give me my State back.

Lurleen: Now, George, don't be testy. Simply because I photograph better...

George: Pictures in the paper. Politicking all day and night with the boys. Shaking the hands of every simpering voter...

Lurleen: Now, George, you know I do it simply to preserve our glorious State. I mean yours and mine.

George (grumpily): Our State? Don't you forget who brought it into our marriage.

Lurleen (placatingly): I know, dear. And you've done a wonderful job as First Gentleman. Everyone's been saying how gracious you looked when you presented that bouquet to those starving cotton pickers. And your highway beautification program is the talk of the country.

George: I damn near got killed yesterday trying to plant a magnolia in the middle of the Hogback Turnpike.

Lurleen: I told you not to hold the ceremony during the peak hour. (Rising.) Oh, did I tell you I was bringing 40 of the fellows home for dinner. Do try to plan a decent menu.

George (brightening): Well, it'll be good talking politics with the boys again.

Lurleen: I'm sorry, George. I'd love to invite you. But it's stag.

George (outraged): That does it, Lurleen, I'm packing my bag.

Lurleen (concerned): But you can't leave me now, George. I'm expecting.

George: Expecting? Good Lord!

Lurleen (demurely): Yes, I'm expecting to run for President. The time is ripe for a woman in the White House. And seeing I've won the Heart of Dixie...

George: Now just you wait a cotton-picking minute. I'm planning on being in the White House!

Lurleen (soothingly): We'll be in it together, dear. I'll run the country and you can restore the furniture. And I'll give you full credit, too, for my success. "Behind every great woman," I'll say, "stands the love of a good man." George! Put down that axe!

Can George and Lurleen Save Their Marriage? Can They Save Alabama? Who Else Wants Either? Tune in again, friends. And meantime, remember: Always love, honor and cherish your wife. But don't ever give her a chance to get even.

Effect of Long Flight Will Be Exhaustively Studied

Space's Greatest Adventure Is Unfolding

By Frank Macomber
Military-Aerospace Writer
Copley News Service

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex.—The greatest adventure in space since the Russians sent up Sputnik I more than eight years ago is now unfolding.

For the first time two manned spaceships will try to rendezvous, perhaps even move within a foot of each other at a speed of 17,500 miles an hour more than 150 miles above the earth.

This is high adventure never before attempted. Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell Jr., command pilot and pilot respectively of the Gemini 7 spacecraft are to orbit for nine days before Gemini 6, to be piloted by astronauts Walter M. Schirra and Thomas P. Stafford, is blasted off by a Titan II booster.

Borman and Lovell are to remain in orbit 14 days, if possible, to give space doctors a chance to conduct the most exhaustive and far-reaching medical study of astronauts to date.

Dr. Charles Berry, Gemini flight surgeon, said he and his aids must find out how much calcium is lost from the bones and, if possible, how the bones might be weakened by long exposure in the hostile environment of space.

"We want to find out also about the astronauts' mental condition after a record 14 days in space," Berry said.

Schirra and Stafford will attempt to rendezvous with the Borman-Lovell spacecraft after they have completed four orbits. They will try to keep the two spacecraft close together for a considerable time, but without actually docking or linking up the two vehicles.

Eventually, however, in later Gemini flights—12 are scheduled—astronauts must join two vehicles in orbit as a vital forerunner to the Apollo manned lunar exploration project scheduled for 1969 or 1970.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is wearing at least three hats these days. It is conducting the Gemini space flight series, working against the clock to make the first unmanned Apollo test flights next year and cocking one eye at manned journeys to Mars in the wake of the manned Apollo program.

The Gemini 7 and 6 flights were paired up after the Gemini 6 mission failed as the unmanned Agena target was lost and fell into the sea. Schirra and Stafford, bitterly disappointed, had hoped to blast off from Cape Kennedy, Fla., 101 minutes after the Agena target vehicle was boosted into orbit by an Atlas rocket. But when the Agena failed to orbit Oct. 25, they had to climb out of their spacecraft and return to earth 42 minutes after Agena was launched.

Mission plans for Gemini 6 are almost identical to those for the Oct. 25 flight, except Schirra and Stafford will attempt to rendezvous with a manned spacecraft instead of an empty Agena.

The Gemini 7 spacecraft has been modified to provide a "target" for Gemini 6, with boarding lights and flashing beacons to make it easier for Gemini 6 to pick up its trail.

Gemini 6 is not expected to remain aloft more than two days, according to Chris Kraft, Gemini mission director.

"The purpose of proceeding with the attempt to launch Gemini 6 after Gemini 7 is to demonstrate as early as possible a rendezvous of two vehicles in space," Kraft explained.

Despite the abortive Gemini 6 mission Oct. 25, Gemini flights have been remarkably successful and filled with "firsts" for U.S. astronauts.

For example, Gemini 4 Astronaut Edward White Jr. electrified the world by strolling in space outside his capsule for 20 minutes, tied to it only by a slim tether. James McDivitt was his command pilot during their four-day flight.

Then, on Gemini 5, astronauts L. Gordon Cooper and Charles (Pete) Conrad stayed aloft for eight days.

While neither astronaut team showed any major ill effects from their missions, Dr. Berry is concerned that McDivitt and White experienced bone calcium changes of 8 to 10 per cent in four days and Cooper and Conrad from 12 to 15 per cent during their eight-day flight.

"This is an indication that on prolonged flights there could be considerable bone damage due to a loss of calcium," Berry emphasizes. "That's why a check on Borman and Lovell, after a carefully selected diet, is so important after a 14-day flight."

Aside from the tremendous and complicated scientific and engineering problems involved in the Gemini and Apollo programs, NASA has another: how to maintain widespread public interest in the U.S. space programs without taking anything away from their scientific purposes with space "stunts" or "spectaculars."

Along this line, NASA officials now are considering plans to send a Gemini astronaut space-walking around the world for a full orbit. That would require that he remain in space for at least 90 minutes.

Another NASA scheme is to rendezvous a Gemini spacecraft with a Pegasus satellite, dismantle part of it and return the pieces to earth for examination. Pegasus is designed to measure, among other things, the amount of damage to its panels by hurtling meteorites and meteoroids.

NASA, however, rejected as premature a proposal that two Gemini astronauts fly to the moon, orbit around the earth's satellite, inspect it with cameras, then return to earth.

Then there is an upcoming Gemini experiment in which spacemen will bump another satellite and attempt, by measuring its resistance to their nudge, to determine whether it could be hauling a nuclear warhead.

While these experiments all carry a scientific implication, the NASA hierarchy, from Administrator James E. Webb on down, believes they would help to rekindle new public interest in space programs, at a time when Congress is growing more reluctant to hand out tremendous space appropriations.

Mission control for the Gemini program originates at Cape Kennedy, Fla., from where all Gemini flights originate. But once the spacecraft are safely in orbit, control shifts to Houston, headquarters of NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center.

6 New Tests Set for Gemini Flight

SPACE CENTER, Houston—Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell will attempt 20 experiments during their scheduled 14-day Gemini journey through space. Six are new. The other 14 have been conducted on earlier Mercury or Gemini flights.

One of the new experiments will measure the astronauts' reaction to stress during their flight by analysis of their body fluids. Also, pre-flight blood samples were taken from Borman and Lovell and post-flight samples will be taken for comparison.

Dr. Charles Berry, the astronauts' chief physician, says a blood and fluid analysis may help to measure whatever deterioration occurs in the human body during prolonged space flight.

In another experiment the rate and amount of calcium change in the body will be evaluated, along with other body elements such as nitrogen, phosphorus, sodium chloride and magnesium.

One experiment will assess the astronauts' alertness, levels of consciousness and depth of sleep during flight. An electroencephalograph (EEG) attached to the spacemen will help to determine their state of alertness and how deeply they sleep during rest periods, Berry explains.

Laser, acronym for light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation, is being used for the first time to demonstrate a new technique for communication between astronauts and ground stations.

Laser is a pencil-wide beam of "coherent" light created by atomic energy and directed in a constant, steady beam in one precise direction.

The experiment is designed to convert the laser light to a communications line between the Gemini spacecraft and the ground stations at White Sands, N.M., Missile Range, Ascension Island and Kauai, Hawaii.

In effect the astronauts are to "talk down" the light beam after sighting through a telescope at the ground-based laser beams. Voice communications are possible only one way—from the spacecraft to earth.

During this experiment the astronauts must wear safety goggles for protection against eye damage from stray or reflected light.

Borman and Lovell are to make landmark contrast measurements from space as part of the preparation for navigational techniques required for the Apollo manned lunar expeditions.

They are to attempt to measure such areas as the Florida Coast, the Chilean Coast, the African-Atlantic Coast and the Australian Coast with a photometric telescope.

Using what scientists call "star accultation navigation," the astronauts are to determine the orbit of their spacecraft by measuring the time it takes certain stars to dip down below the horizon.

Foreign, Traveled Students Sought

The International Services Division is seeking foreign and American students who have traveled in foreign countries and would be interested in speaking and entertaining area organizations, said Frank H. Sehnert, coordinator.

Sehnert said numerous organizations around Southern Illinois are looking for foreign students to give talks or sing, dance, play musical instruments, etc. He said he would like to have American students who have traveled in foreign countries accompany the foreign students.

Many times the students would have a chance to tour the town they visit and be dinner guests of residents.

Interested students should contact the International Student Center.

AT CONTROL PANEL — Gary Nelson, graduate assistant in Russian, operates the language laboratory's electronic sound system which lets him work individually with students in 100 booths, or as a group. Students follow printed copy of material which is recorded on tapes to which they listen. They also record and play back their own voices speaking the languages they are studying.

1,000 Student-Hours a Week Spent in Language Laboratory

One thousand hours. Is it the amount of time a student should spend studying in a year?

Is it the amount of time the average student worker spends on his job in four years at school?

No. It's the amount of time about 1300 SIU students spend in the foreign language laboratories each week.

According to Howard P. French, associate professor of German and laboratories director, use of the two language laboratories on the Carbondale campus is approaching 1,000 hours a week. "Basically," he explained, "the teaching still is done in the classroom. The lab doesn't teach, but drills and develops speaking habits."

The language labs were first used in 1960, when 25 were installed on the ground floor of Old Main, with 75 additional units installed in Wheeler Hall two years later.

In the laboratory a student can hear others use the language he is learning. He can also record and listen to his own voice.

Some of the materials used in the language laboratories is prepared commercially, French said, and some is made up by the department faculty using its own recording facilities.

French said there are tentative plans for adding a third laboratory or expanding the existing ones.

LISTENING INTENTLY—Jeanne Hickman, Kokomo, Ind., takes advantage of one of the 100 individual booths in the foreign language laboratory.

Foreign Students' English Exam Set

The English examination for foreign students entering winter quarter will be held from 8:30 to noon Dec. 17 in Morris Library Auditorium.

According to Nancy Pfaff, assistant supervisor of testing, only those students who have an admission slip from James M. Haas, of the Registrar's Office, will be tested.

A residual American College Testing Program (ACT) test will be given from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Dec. 31 in Furr Auditorium in University School. Tickets may be obtained from the Counseling and Testing Center.

City-SIU Relationships

University Obligation Extends Into Region

By Bill Marchese
Last of a Series

Frank A. Kirk, who serves both as a commissioner with the Carbondale City Council and coordinator in the SIU presidents' office, is well aware of the relationship between the region and the University.

The University, many SIU officials believe, has an obligation to the cultural and economic development of the region. This is carried out through its various academic units and departments.

Kirk believes the University and community should work together for the mutual benefits involved.

"The city and SIU have been sharing the costs of studies and physical improvements which are of mutual concern," he said.

He cited planning and zoning studies, the reconstruction and widening of Mill Street, the expansion of water and storage facilities and studies on relocating the Illinois Central Railroad tracks.

"SIU wants the railroad tracks out of the campus, and Carbondale wants them out of downtown. The city wants improved housing for its residents and SIU wants the same for its students," said Kirk.

In terms of money, SIU contributed $70,000 toward cost of the new water tower on West Chautauqua Road. It will serve the University and the southwest area of the city.

SIU will contribute $200,000 for the widening and repaving of Mill Street, which borders the campus and the city. For fire protection, the University has appropriated $80,000 for 1965-67.

While many city-campus projects are in the making, Kirk said he is hopeful that there will be many more in the future.

Contributing to the economic enhancement of Southern Illinois is the SIU Business Research Bureau, headed by Arthur E. Prell.

Last summer the bureau spearheaded a drive to provide industry with information about Southern Illinois resources.

"There have been many economic studies of the area," Prell said, "but the bureau has suggested a concrete program of looking for industries that can take advantage of the resources we possess."

Data compiled by the bureau, which is a function of the School of Business, includes information on site location, tax structure, water and sewer availability, traffic and warehousing.

Although the operation is in its early stages, the Business Research Bureau reported two encouraging experiences.

One enterprise, which could have an annual payroll of more than a million dollars, has made inquiries about the Jackson-Williamson counties area. Also, the bureau has provided Hospital. At Southern's Vocational Technical Institute, 143 persons are enrolled in nine different classes.

Most classes opening in the future will be conducted at the Manpower Training Center, located in remodeled industrial buildings of the Ordill area, Nagel said. Such courses as psychiatric and nurses aide training still will be held at hospitals where clinical facilities are available.

MDTA courses are provided by the SIU Division of Technical and Adult Education under a $1,044,000 federal contract to train 1,000 unemployed persons in Franklin and Williamson counties in more than 40 occupational categories.

FRANK A. KIRK

data to a firm interested in the Wood River area.

The bureau, together with the Clinical Services Center, the Community Development Service and other SIU agencies, reflects the University's effort to provide service to Southern Illinois.

The policy, declares E. Claude Coleman, director of Plan A and SIU English professor, allows the University "to meet its obligations to the area, which is to raise the cultural and economic level and open the doors to opportunity."

Two SIU Professors

Write Journal Articles

James N. BeMiller, associate professor of chemistry, and Aristotel J. Pappelis, assistant professor of botany, have coauthored two research papers which appeared in the November issue of Phytopathology, the international journal of the American Phytopathological Society.

The papers present data on the content of a glycoside fraction in corn.

Meet the Faculty

Home Economics Professor Has Taught at 5 Schools

The Department of Clothing and Textiles will add Thelma H. Berry to its staff as an associate professor at the beginning of winter quarter.

A native of Savannah, Ga., Mrs. Berry received her bachelor's degree from the University of Rhode Island and her master's degree from Syracuse University. She earned a doctoral degree from Columbia University in 1963.

Mrs. Berry has taught at Syracuse University; Nasson College, Springvale, Maine; the University of Maine at Orono; Oklahoma State University at Stillwater; and Our Lady of the Lake College, San Antonio, Tex.

She served as a hospital recreation worker for the American Red Cross in Seoul, Korea, in 1945-46.

A member of several home economics honorary societies, Mrs. Berry has worked on regional market research and was the recipient of a research fund grant from the University of Maine to investigate photographic methods of studying fit in ready-to-wear clothing.

Among her publications are "Simple Handloom Weaving," published in 1943, and a classification of historic costumes for libraries, published in 1945.

Regional Plan To Be Discussed

Frank H. Thomas, professor of geography, will discuss "A Proposal for the Confluent Region of Southern Illinois, Southeast Missouri and Northeast Arkansas" at noon Friday in the River Rooms of the University Center.

The seminar is sponsored by the SIU Faculty Club.

Eighteen area women will begin training as clerk-stenographers Monday at SIU's Manpower Training Center.

The 30-week course will be conducted under a federal Manpower Development and Training Center, located south of the Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge headquarters, according to Supervisor William E. Nagel.

These include a 24-week clerk-typist course with 18 students, two 12-week welding courses with 18 students each, and a 48-week radio-television class with 17 students.

Training classes also are in session at two other locations, Nagel said. A 16-week course for 23 psychiatric aides is being conducted at Anna State

Demonstrations Break Out in Russia

Kosygin Hardens Relations With the U.S.

MOSCOW (AP) — Demonstrations against the U.S. role in Viet Nam broke out Wednesday in Moscow as the Soviet posture toward Washington took on a look of granite hardness.

The demonstrations came against the background of Premier Alexei M. Kosygin's contention the U.S. policies forced the U.S.S.R. to increase its military budget "against our own wishes."

Since the news of Kosygin's interview saying this had yet to be published inside the Soviet Union, the demonstrations seemed part of an effort on every level to publicize the Soviet attitude.

Similar demonstrations, in fact, have taken place in many areas of the Soviet Union over the past week. There seemed a suggestion in this that if Soviet consumer spending in the newly announced 1966 budget should suffer because of increased military appropriations, the demonstrations would emphasize that blame should be directed toward the United States.

While the premier attacked U.S. prosecution of the Viet Nam conflict, he indicated his main concern was Europe and U.S. policy toward West Germany. In this context, he mentioned the decision to increase the Soviet military budget by 5 per cent.

Kosygin ranked Viet Nam with Germany as a primary source of aggravation in Soviet-U.S. relations. He maintained that a meeting of himself and President Johnson would "not be feasible" so long as the Viet Nam war continued.

He made the remarks in an interview with James Reston, an associate editor of the New York Times.

"It is the United States which is setting the military tone and whipping up military psychosis," Kosygin said. "It is of your doing, this generation of tensions of the world."

In Washington, a State Department press officer deplored what he called "the extreme distortion" represented in Kosygin's views, saying that much of the criticism of U.S. Viet Nam policy and U.S. efforts to create a North Atlantic Treaty Organization nuclear force was essentially a repetition of "critical statements about the United States which have been broadly spread by the Soviet press and radio for some time."

Wednesday, shortly after publication of the Monday interview, the U.S.S.R. issued a new statement condemning U.S. actions in the Viet Nam. The statement ignored British appeals for a new Geneva peace conference on the Viet Nam issue, and called on the 14-members of the 1954 Geneva conference, which partitioned Viet Nam, to condemn the Americans and demand an end to the "bandit war against the Vietnamese people."

Britain and the U.S.S.R. are cochairmen of that 1954 conference. The British have tried to persuade the Russians to arrange a new Geneva meeting.

House Reapportionment Map Filed With Powell

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Reapportionment of the Illinois House became final Wednesday with the filing of official papers in the secretary of state's office.

Statements signed by 8 of the 10 special commission members, who worked out the new 59 districts last week, were submitted to Secretary of State Paul Powell as required by the Illinois constitution.

The documents lacked only the signatures of Republican Charles G. Becker of Springfield, who left for California before the papers were prepared in final form, and Democrat Einar Dyhrkopp, of Shawneetown, who refused to accept the new map.

Becker will be given an opportunity to sign when he returns. The reapportionment plan needed approval of only seven of the commission members.

By reaching agreement, the commission averted the threat of repeating the 1964 at-large election of state representatives.

Candidates for the House, as well as the Senate, will begin filing their nominating petitions March 21. The primary will be held June 14.

The reapportioned House districts are identical to the 30 Senate districts in Cook County but differ downstate.

Senate reapportionment was accomplished in September by a panel of federal district and Illinois Supreme Court judges.

Viet Cong Destroys Government Battalion

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—The hunted turned on the hunter and the Viet Cong knocked out a Vietnamese ranger battalion Wednesday in a wasteland between U.S. Marine bases and Da Nang and Chu Lai.

A strong Communist force, screened in canefields, encircled and virtually destroyed the battalion — perhaps 500 elite fighters—in a three-hour battle.

A dispatch from the scene, in the Tam Ky area 360 miles northeast of Saigon, said only about a third of the rangers escaped to the lines of a reserve company and six of their U.S. advisers were reported lost, two killed and four missing.

In contrast, the Viet Cong broadcast an offer of a 12-hour Christmas truce. The Red guerrillas promised to halt operations from 7 p.m. Dec. 24 until 7 a.m. Dec. 25 "to allow people on the other side to celebrate Christmas in peace" if they laid down their arms and dropped intelligence activity in that period.

Once bitten by Viet Cong occupation of a strategic valley while government troops observed a comparable holiday cease-fire, U.S. and Vietnamese authorities weighed the offer warily.

A State Department spokesman in Washington, Robert J. McCloskey called on the Communists in Viet Nam to give a "real Christmas present to the world" by opening peace negotiations.

U.S. air fleets carried the war to the Communists with bombing strikes at targets ranging from Red-held sectors of the Mekong River delta to supply routes and bridges in the Dien Bien Phu area, 800 miles to the north. Jet planes of the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise alone flew 131 combat sorties over the delta, south of Saigon.

Pope Closes Ecumenical Council; Sessions Covered Many Problems

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI, a windblown figure in white against the dark gray stone of St. Peter's Basilica, brought Roman Catholicism's greatest general council to an end Wednesday, with three simple words: "Ite in pace" —go in peace.

The Roman Catholic pontiff spoke with upraised arms as he faced the 2,400 bishops, assembled for the last time in council.

With this the Vatican Ecumenical Council passed into history. But it left Roman Catholicism with a blueprint for modernization bound to occupy the Church for decades, even centuries, to come.

In his final speech at a ceremonial closing in St. Peter's Square, the Pope said he hoped the council's work would renew not only the Church but all the world.

He published a papal brief officially closing the 21st council in the 2,000 years of Roman Catholicism. In it, the Pope described the council as the greatest ever held, whether in size, in subjects treated or in the needs it met.

He declared the council's decisions binding on all Catholics and invalid anything undertaken by anyone against those decisions whether knowingly or in ignorance.

Progressive and conservative prelates alike—those who had argued for a truly up-to-date Catholicism and those who had urged sticking to the traditional ways—streamed across the sunlit square in white vestments as the service started.

When the three-hour ceremony ended, they broke up and scattered among the immense throng of more than 100,000 spectators.

The great bells of St. Peter's tolled the end of an arduous seven years in the life of the Church—four to prepare the vast assembly's work and three years of sessions. The council channeled attitudes and energies into inner renewal of ancient Catholicism and a new mentality of friendly respect for everything around it in the world.

Things Going Well for Both Craft Scheduled for Space Rendezvous

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The Gemini 6 spacecraft and its Titan 2 rocket sailed smoothly through an all-important flight rehearsal Wednesday, keeping alive hopes that it may carry its two astronauts into space one day earlier than planned.

The lengthy test, which will tell whether or not Gemini 6 is qualified to fly, began at noon and continued through the evening.

Information spewed out during the rehearsal will be compared with data gleaned during a similar October practice session, when Gemini 6 was on the launch pad before the launch was scrubbed.

This information—coupled with how far ahead they are in their schedule—was expected to give officials a good clue whether they should try to launch Gemini 6 astronauts Walter M. Schirra Jr., and Thomas P. Stafford on Sunday or Monday.

Flight Director Christopher Kraft indicated a decision would be made about noon Thursday.

Optimism was high throughout the simulated flight. Among the most optimistic were Navy Capt. Schirra and Air Force Maj. Stafford.

Once during the practice session, Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr., zipped overhead and tried to communicate with Schirra and Stafford, who were suited up inside Gemini 6.

The Gemini 6 crew had difficulty hearing the orbiting Gemini 7 pair, causing Schirra, who is looking forward to the rendezvous in space to comment:

"We'll get a little closer next time."

Schirra and Stafford ran through a successful rehearsal of escape procedures, and completed tests which showed the primary and backup guidance systems were working.

Since one of the Gemini program goals is to rendezvous two separately launched vehicles, mission control at Houston is equipped to handle two orbiting spacecraft at one time.

McNamara Discusses Bomber Force Slash

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced Wednesday a two-thirds cutback in the U.S. long-range bomber force over the next few years, but hinted that the controversial TFX will be adapted as an advanced bomber.

McNamara also told of plans to cut down the Continental Air Defense system and to eliminate the Navy's extension of the Early Warning system. And he said military airlift capability will be improved by 29 per cent.

This dramatic overhaul of the nation's air might was linked to a "reduced Soviet bomber threat" and to "basic force levels and weapons systems changes."

The actions will be other steps in the drastically changing pattern of America's armed forces. The most recent major shift was transformation of the 1st Cavalry Division into an airborne unit geared to rush into action in swarms of helicopters. Gradually the helicopter has made paratroop assaults almost obsolete.

But McNamara's plans, which in part were made known Tuesday night, continued to bring sharp protests from some senators who said undue reliance is being placed on missiles.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, said the phaseout of the heavy bomber "is to me an unnecessary and unwarranted gamble with our national security at a time we can ill afford it."

Stennis said the cutbacks are ill-timed because his committee "is in the process of making a thorough analysis of our airlift and sealift requirements and capabilities."

Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney, D-Okla., a member of the Senate Defense Appropriations subcommittee, called the cutback "utter folly" and false economy "with no replacement in view" for the bombers.

What's College for?

'We're Not All Draft Dodgers,' Students Echo National Opinion

By Ron Hustedde

"We aren't all draft dodgers," is the latest cry from college men across the nation and a recent informal poll of Southern's students seems to bear this out.

Knorvel Cherry Jr., a sophomore from Berkeley, Calif., emphasized that he didn't come to college to dodge the draft. He said that he furthered his education to get a better job and more money. He thought that with less supervisors over him he would have more freedom to use his abilities.

A junior, Edward J. McKinstry from Pinckneyville, said that his only reason for going to college was to make more money.

Others like Robert J. Vigers, a junior, disagreed. Vigers who comes from St. Thomas, Ont., said that he just enjoys learning. He added that he hopes to give what knowledge he has to others through teaching.

Another junior, Robert W. Dunn from Brighton, Ill., said that he came here to prepare himself for the future. He felt that with a sound education he could contribute more fully to society.

Stephen Riley, a junior from Kell, Ill., felt that college would help him become a better parent and a better individual. Riley who wants to be a psychologist said that to prepare for his vocation he must go to college.

A freshman majoring in accounting, Stanley E. Erb of St. Louis, confessed that he came to college to escape the draft. He added that his family and friends had always expected him to go to college.

Thomas W. Neer, a sophomore from Wood River, couldn't name the particular reason why he came to college. He said that he "guessed" he came to the University to get a white collar job later on.

A junior from Sparta, Richard L. McIntyre, said that he came to college for two reasons. He wanted to insure his possibility of getting a job and also to satisfy himself by developing his mind.

Bizzel Receives Research Grant

Jack E. Bizzel, instructor in electronic data processing at SIU's Vocational Technical Institute, has been appointed a research associate of the National Association of Counties Research Foundation.

The appointment provides financial assistance and participation by the association in a research project suggested by Bizzel concerning a study to determine criteria that would justify the use of modern record-keeping equipment in county government. The survey includes a study of personnel, equipment and record-keeping activities in the more than 3,000 counties in the nation.

Bizzel's appointment to the research post was announced in Washington, D.C., by Bernard F. Hillenbrand, executive director of the NAC.

Student Fined, 6 to Appear On Charges Involving Wine

Rita Patterson, a student living at Neely Hall, was fined in Jackson County Circuit Tuesday after pleading guilty to charges of underage acceptance of alcohol.

Six other University Park students also face liquor charges. SIU Security police heard persons in a wooded area near University Park. According to police reports, the students ran when the police entered the area. Four students were apprehended at that time and the others were arrested later. Four bottles of wine were found at the scene.

The six University Park students still facing charges were granted continuances

Tuesday by Magistrate Robert Schwartz. They have been ordered to appear at 9:30 a.m. Jan. 5.

University action in the incident has not yet been taken.

RALPH JOHNSON

Problem Almost Licked

Johnson Has Pride In Game and Team

By Charles Holey

Johnson looks much as one would imagine a basketball player should look after a hectic three-hour practice session. He was sprawled in a chair, slightly tilted backwards, his practice-worn legs lying across his bed. He's big, but deceptively so, for when you go to spreading 208 pounds over a 6-foot, 7-inch frame you don't have a whole lot left over for flab. A slight frown creased his serious face as he started talking about his basketball game. He's the first to admit that last year his performances on the court had more ups and downs than a yo-yo. One night he would be hot, the next game he couldn't seem to find his way around the court although it was lighted with 500,000 watts. Johnson readily admits his history as an erratic performer is long-standing. In fact, he recalled a favorite locker-room wisecrack from his high school days which went something like this: "Don't paint the lines on the gym floor too thick or Johnson will trip over them."

"I was a sophomore last year, just like Walt Frazier was and like him I had bad days," Johnson said, starting to analyze his performance last year. "Some nights I would be tense and couldn't make a move. Playing under pressure is simply something you have to learn to live with."

Johnson feels that he has the problem pretty well licked at last. He credits a great deal of it to Coach Jack Hartman. The coach obviously feels Johnson has overcome some of his problems, because he has started him as forward in all three games this year. And in case there's any doubt, Johnson has turned out to be the second highest scorer on the team. He has scored 35 points so far.

Johnson repeatedly insists that "pride" has played a great part, not only in helping him improve his game, but in making the entire squad want to win.

"Coach Hartman knows his job," Johnson said. "He instills pride in us. We all have a certain amount of pride, and as a team we feel that until you prove you're better than we are you are nobody special," Johnson said.

He added that whenever the team went into a game last year, whether it was with Oklahoma State, Wichita, or Evansville, it went in feeling it was better than the opponent.

He takes basketball seriously and because of it he feels he has ungrudgingly accepted a certain amount of hardship. He said he has not been home to Trenton, which is only 80 miles north of Carbondale, for more than two weeks all of last year.

"I haven't really been home in two years," he added, "because of a summer job in Chicago and the fact that most of our holidays are during the basketball season." "But I enjoyed every moment," he said.

Going into 15 years in athletics, he is not interested in coaching or any form of physical education for his post-graduate years.

"It does not appeal to me as a profession," he said. He is primarily interested in people.

"I really want to know the person for what he is." Majoring in business management, he hopes to work with younger people to see them develop and learn "what took me so long to learn."

SIU Takes On Chattanooga at Home Friday

Hartman's Crew Edges Visitors in Height, Experience

After a two-game swing through Iowa, Southern returns to action at home at 8 p.m. Friday when it meets the University of Chattanooga.

Southern won one of its games against Iowa teams and now posts a record of 2-1. The Moccasins have yet to win in their first three outings. They came in to Friday's game with losses to Tennessee Tech, East Tennessee State and Athens (Ala.) College behind them.

Two possible reasons for Chattanooga's poor showing are its lack of height and experience.

The Moccasins have only two men over 6-4 and both

The other returning starter is Bob Lung, a 6-4 forward. He averaged just over 10 points a game last year and was second to Barnett in rebounding with 193.

The other three lettermen were used as reserves last year, but could see action Friday. They are Billy Shaw, a 5-11 guard; Jim Coppinger, a 6-3 forward; and Wade Fowler, a 6-4 forward.

This leaves Wells, Coppinger and Fowler as the only men in the front wall with any experience, so the Moccasins will probably have to turn to the freshmen for a center.

From the frosh, Chattanooga can choose between its pulled down 17 rebounds in only 24 minutes against Northeast Missouri, and O'Neal grabbed 18 against State College of Iowa.

Southern also has the edge in experience with nine returning lettermen to Chattanooga's five. Coach Jack Hartman has been able to start five of them and turn to the others on the bench as reserves. That is one thing Chattanooga will not be able to do.

BOYD O'NEAL GETS THE REBOUND FOR SIU

are freshmen. By current collegiate basketball standards that's not too much height.

Chattanooga, moreover, is loaded with 13 freshmen on its 19-man roster. Of the upperclassmen only one is a senior; two are sophomores and three juniors.

Of the six upperclassmen only five saw any action last year when Chattanooga finished 16-10. Among those lost was center Larry Barnett, who averaged 22 points a game and set virtually every scoring and rebounding record on the books at Chattanooga.

Two of the starters from last year are back for the Moccasins and both were among the top scorers.

One of them, Bob Wells, was the team's second leading scorer with an average of 15.2 points a game. The 6-3 senior guard must be quite a rambler because he also was the third leading rebounder with 152.

Phasant Season To End Sunday

The season for cock pheasants and Hungarian partridge will end at sunset Sunday. The goose hunting season in Alexander, Jackson, Union, and Williamson counties will continue until 3 p.m. Dec. 23.

The goose season for the rest of Illinois and the seasons for ducks and coons closed Wednesday.

Table Tennis Proposed

Anyone interested in organizing a table tennis club should sign the notice on the University Center bulletin board.

If enough interest is shown, an organizational meeting will be held early next quarter.

and Dave Bryan, both 6-6, to start at the pivot.

This means the Moccasins should have trouble rebounding against Southern's height. With Ralph Johnson, Boyd O'Neal and Lloyd Stovall under the basket, the Salukis will have a definite advantage in controlling the boards. Stovall

All's Not So Well At 'Casa Manana'

The spokesman said eight or nine of the residents were moving from the house at the end of the term, some of them because of the living conditions.

Residents first met with John Strawn, Campus Senate student rights commissioner, who advised they consult with housing officials.

Mrs. Johnson has done some work on the house in the past few days to correct some of the deficiencies the girls complained about, the spokesman said.

According to Mrs. Johnson, the ceiling will be replaced during Christmas vacation.

She said that micetraps and poison are provided and that in her opinion every room in the house meets regulations on size.

The passageway room is used only for overflow students, she said, and they are moved out as soon as there is a vacancy. The Housing Office knows about the room, she continued.

Mrs. Johnson said windows at the front and back of the house are to be used for fire escapes.

Gymnasts to Compete In Iowa

If the SIU pilot does not become confused, the gymnastics team should arrive in Iowa City Saturday morning to compete in the Iowa Invitational.

Coach Bill Meade will be anxious to see how his gymnasts perform in the meet at State University of Iowa.

Meade feels that Iowa State will be Southern's chief threat in this year's competition.

In last Saturday's Midwest Open in Chicago, Southern had 10 men qualify for the finals, while Iowa State had 9.

Mike Boegler will compete in Saturday's meet on the long horse, Frank Schmitz on the trampoline, the long horse and in free exercise, and Hutch Dvorak and Dale Hardt on the trampoline.

Paul Mayer, Rick Tucker and Larry Lindauer will compete in the all-around category, together with Rusty Mitchell, who won the all-around event at the Chicago event.

Mitchell, who represented SIU at the Olympics in Japan, will be competing unattached.

Brent Williams did not qualify in the Chicago meet, but Meade may send him to Iowa anyway. Williams would compete in free exercise, trampoline and the long horse.

There will be no team scoring for the Iowa Invitational, but individual honors will be awarded.

3 SIU Winter Sports Slate 8 Meets at Home in Season

Three home swimming and wrestling meets and two home gymnastics meets headline this year's winter sports schedule.

The swimming team, which opens its dual-meet season Friday at Evansville College, will have home meets with the University of Oklahoma and Cincinnati and Indiana universities.

The wrestlers will open their dual-meet season Jan. 8 in the Arena when they meet Miami of Ohio. Other home meets will pit the matmen against Central Missouri State and the always tough Oklahoma State University.

The gymnasts will have only two home meets, one a double dual meet against the University of Arizona and the University of Illinois (Chicago branch) Feb. 7.

The other home meet will take place a week previously against Mankato (Minn.) State University.
