City faces $50,000 budget shortfall

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council Monday night discussed ways to make up an expected $50,000 shortfall in the city's general fund next year.

Council members examined ways to raise and save money, including a new liquor tax, elimination of the cable television commission, and higher fees for, or elimination of, some services.

The general fund is the city's general purpose account for paying bills and operating programs.

The expected shortfall in the fund stems from the federal government's decision to end its federal revenue program, according to Carbondale Finance Director Paul Sorgen.

The city this year has gotten more than $200,000 from the federal government, and in 1985 had received more than $600,000.

The city has put $192,664 into the general fund in revenue sharing funds this year, but Sorgen said he did not expect the fund to fall that short because of expected savings from trimming management positions in city departments. Earlier the council voted to eliminate five such positions by next year, including assistant city manager.

The information the council received about the budget was based on this year's budget. Dixon said it is difficult to make projections about next

City eyes boost for loan plan

The City Council appears more willing to grant landlords participating in a city program to rehabilitate low income rental property no-interest loans that require repayment than loans that would be forgiven under most circumstances.

At its meeting Monday night, the council discussed a proposal by Community Development Director Donald Monty to reshape the city's Rental Rehabilitation Loan Program to increase landlord participation. Monty recommended that loans made under the program be forgiven unless the recipient sells the rehabilitated property within a time period set by the city.

But several council members expressed their reluctance to go along with Monty's proposal, opting instead for the elimination of interest on loans made under the program.

Councilman John Yow said a forgivable loan program "would not be proper" in view of anticipated budget cuts in other city programs.

"We're talking about a relatively small amount of money," Monty rejoined. He estimated that the city would make loans for the rehabilitation of only 10 to 15 dwelling units under the program.

Yow also expressed concern over the loss of money to put back into the program. Waiving the pay-back requirement would effectively kill the Rental Rehabilitation Program, he said.

Councilman Neil Dillard said he also would be reluctant to support Monty's recom-

Arms deal architects still not talking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Oliver North and John Poindexter — the purported architects of a clandestine operation that cost them their White House jobs — refused to answer questions Tuesday at a public House hearing about the Iran arms-Contra aid scandal.

The two men, one relieved and the other dismissed from top foreign policy jobs by President Reagan last month when the operation was revealed, appeared before the House Foreign Affairs Committee with lawyers in tow.

Each said he wanted to tell all, but each refused, after taking an oath to tell the truth, to answer any questions on the grounds of possible self-incrimination.

North later appeared at the first day of hearings held by the House Intelligence Committee, again declining to testify. Poindexter is scheduled to appear Wednesday and is likely to follow suit.

Reagan has pledged to encourage all members of his administration to help investigators "get to the bottom" of how profits from the arms deals with Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Islamic Republic were siphoned into the coffers of the U.S.-backed Contras.

But the president, whose foreign policy and personal credibility were sent tumbling by exposure of the covert connection, also has noted the implicated aides have the same rights as other Americans.

Attorney General Edwin Meese said Nov. 25 that Lt. Col. North, a Marine and National Security Council aide to Vice Adm. Poindexter, who was Reagan's national security adviser, was the only person in the government with "specific" knowledge of the Contra cash flow.

Reading from a statement,

North said, "I am anxious ... to put this matter behind us. I want to be able to provide a full exposition of the facts as I know them."

"I don't think there is another person in America who wants to tell his story as much as I do," said the 43-year-old North, who at one point seemed near tears when Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., compared him to the hero of a poem by Rudyard Kipling.

If North appeared anguished and uncomfortable, Poindexter looked like he was spending just another day behind his desk. He replied quietly to questions from panel members, pausing occasionally to puff on his pipe.

Closing Tuesday's fruitless hearing, panel Chairman

Dante Fascell, D-Fla., said he didn't want to pass judgment on what the record eventually will show, but, "I just have real reservations in my own mind that an admiral and a lieutenant colonel could, on their own, conceivably carry out a major, worldwide, foreign policy operation."

Speaking with reporters afterward, Fascell answered "probably not" when asked if the committee could do its job without a full accounting from North and Poindexter.

The hearing was largely calm, although lawyers and lawmakers clashed a few times — notably when Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., suggested Poindexter if convicted probably would only get a suspended sentence.

The committee, which heard sworn testimony Monday from Secretary of State George Shultz and ex-national security adviser Robert McFarlane, planned a closed meeting Wednesday with CIA Director William Casey. Fascell said there are no current plans for the committee to call any other witnesses after Casey.

Unprecedented cease-fire negotiated in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Government and communist rebel negotiators Tuesday night resolved key disputes that had threatened to derail an unprecedented cease-fire scheduled to take effect at noon Wednesday. Military officials and negotiators for the rebels agreed to stop fighting at that hour, but one communist negotiator said any "provocations" by the government would make it a "completely different story."

Moslems in India protesting magazine story

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Moslems enraged by a magazine story they say profaned the prophet Mohammed clashed with police and set fire to vehicles in Karnataka state Tuesday — the third straight day of riots that have claimed at least 17 lives. About 3,000 Moslems marched through Tumkur, about 1,100 miles south of New Delhi, to protest a story in the Sunday edition of the Deccan Herald, called "Mohammed the Idiot." The allegorical tale relates how a village fool is advised by the Prophet Mohammed, founder of Islam.

Palestinians, Israelis in sixth day of protests

BIR ZEIT, Israeli-occupied West Bank (UPI) — About 1,000 Palestinians marched peacefully Tuesday to protest the killings of three Arabs by Israeli soldiers, but at least nine other Arabs were injured elsewhere in a sixth day of clashes with soldiers and police. The latest violence followed a U.N. Security Council vote in New York "strongly deploring" the Israeli shooting of "defenseless students" in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. The United States abstained in the 14-0 vote Monday night.

Soviets view three decades of haute couture

MOSCOW (UPI) — A retrospective of 28-years worth of Yves St. Laurent fashions has Soviet women standing in line for hours to see what, in some cases, was worn in Western countries long ago and already discarded. Among those touring, and putting her seal of approval on, the six-week exhibit was Kremlin first lady Raisa Gorbachev. The shimmering fashions elicited awed silence from some, squeals of delight from others, and uncensored disapproval from still others. At least one woman charged that St. Laurent had stolen his ideas from a turn-of-the-century Russian artist.

Leader denounced for proposing tax cut delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans accused House Democratic leader Jim Wright of "breach of promise" Tuesday by proposing a delay of scheduled reductions in the top federal income tax brackets. Wright, who was chosen by fellow Democrats Monday to be the new speaker of the House, said delaying the rate cut would help Congress reach the goals of the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction act passed last year.

Nixon says Iran-Contra affair no Watergate

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (UPI) — Richard Nixon told the nation's Republican governors Tuesday that President Reagan's Iran-Contra scandal cannot be compared to Watergate and that Americans should concentrate on U.S.-Soviet relations. Nixon, who resigned the presidency in disgrace 12 years ago during the Watergate scandal, called the current affair rocking the White House a "sideshow" and urged Reagan's critics to "get off his back."

Failed romance called motive for killing spree

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — The massacre of six people, including two children, was triggered by a "bizarre" love-hate relationship between an ex-convict, his teenage girlfriend and members of her family, police said Tuesday. David "Moochie" Welch, 28, and Rita Marie Lewis, 29, were charged with six counts of murder and two counts of attempted murder in the attacks Monday morning in a three-bedroom East Oakland house.

'Some tampering' revealed in AIDS program

ATLANTA (UPI) — There was evidence of "some tampering" in the national Centers for Disease Control's AIDS research program but it did not disrupt experiments, the Institute of Medicine reported Tuesday. The report, released simultaneously with a response from the CDC, said several incidents of possible tampering were reported at CDC and occurred not only in the AIDS Program Laboratory but also in the Herpesvirus Laboratory.

Look closely at those twenties...

$20,000 in fake money seized in state last year

By Dave Wrone
Staff Writer

What do the Rev. Jesse Jackson, Andrew Jackson and a bloated, scraggly bearded Uncle Sam have in common?

Each was featured on counterfeit $20 bills passed as legal tender in Illinois last year.

The phony currency was displayed in the Student Center Tuesday by J. Branch Walton, an agent from the Secret Service branch in Springfield.

WALTON'S TALK, about several types of U.S. currency fraud, targeted area merchants and bankers — those most likely to be affected by a forged check, stolen credit card, or counterfeit bill.

The state doesn't have enough government agents to investigate reports of currency fraud, Walton said. "We are stripped when it comes to manpower."

WALTON'S DEPARTMENT covers about four-fifths of the state and relies heavily on local police departments to help crack down on money fraud in Illinois. The Springfield bureau handled 3,500 cases last year, the agent said, adding that "about 85 percent of all counterfeit currency is seized before it's passed."

WALTON DISPLAYED several examples of counterfeit bills that had been passed as legal tender throughout the state. The collection included a nearly fluorescent green $20 bill which had been run off on a simple, color copying machine.

After an investigation, the counterfeiter was arrested and a search of his house netted nearly $17,000 in fake bills, which had been run off on a color copier, Walton said.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS has been affected by currency fraud only slightly in the last few years, he said, with a total of $20,000 being confiscated throughout Central and Southern Illinois last year. Many of these bills were "floaters" — counterfeit money held or passed by people who don't know they're phony.

A counterfeit $100 bill recently passed to a local bank is being investigated by Walton's office, and two suspects are under investigation and observation, Walton said.

J. Branch Walton, an agent from the Secret Service branch in Springfield, speaks Tuesday at the Student Center about the use of counterfeit money.

A GROWING TREND in foreign counterfeiting during the last decade has threatened to make all U.S. currency worthless when tourists attempt to spend it overseas.

Most overseas banks will no longer accept U.S. $100 bills because of an influx of counterfeit cash, made mainly by counterfeiters in Italy and Colombia, he said.

WHILE THE AVERAGE amount made out on a stolen check usually runs between $90 and $100, Walton said the use of stolen or forged credit cards is the "fastest growing white collar crime in existence."

Credit card fraud increases nearly 100 percent annually and about $2,500 in merchandise is charged with illegally obtained credit cards, he said.

A stolen credit card is most valuable to the thief in the first five days of its acquisition, Walton said, and most "smart" thieves discard or sell the card after the five-day period.

Flu shots are good, but caution's better

FEELING LIGHTHEADED? Are hacking coughs, a headache, runny nose and an upset stomach the order of your day? You've probably got influenza — the flu.

But don't panic and run off to your doctor for a flu shot. Medical experts say flu shots are best taken before the symptoms appear. If you've already got the bug, the drug Amantadine Hydrochloride is proven to be an effective flu treatment. But most doctors say your best bet is to just ride it out.

Besides, it's probably not the "dreaded" Taiwan flu — so named because medical researchers in Taiwan first identified the particular virus — that the media claims is sweeping the country.

DR. TOM TOROK OF THE CENTER for Disease Control in Atlanta says Taiwan flu has appeared sporadically in New York, Massachusetts, Texas and Oregon but isn't, and won't be, a threat to Illinois.

"The problem with Taiwan flu is the misinformation surrounding it," Torok said, in a telephone interview from Atlanta. "There's no reason to believe this strain is worse than any other kind."

Basically, flu is a highly contagious disease caused by a number of viruses. It usually begins abruptly with fever, muscular aches and inflammation of the respiratory mucous membranes. More severe forms are bacterial pneumonia and bronchitis.

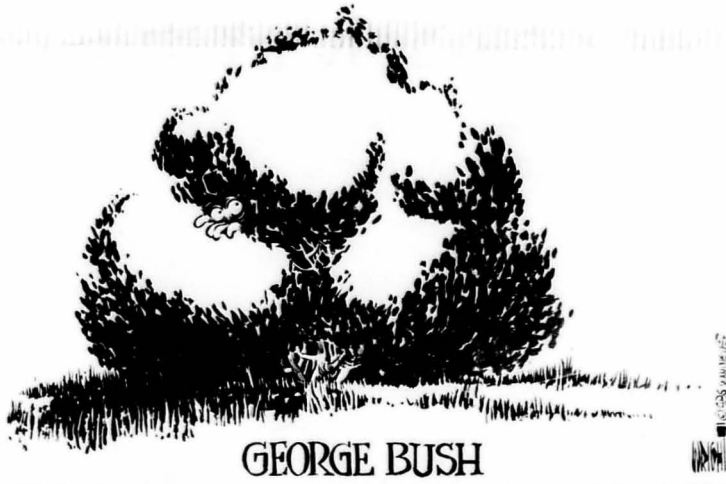

AT LEAST TWO KINDS OF SHOTS are available at the Carbondale Clinic. One is a "trivalent" shot, meaning at least three basic flu viruses are covered, at a cost of $10. The other is an $8 Taiwan flu shot. The Jackson County Health Department has only the trivalent shot, at a cost of $3.

Doctors advise people under 35 years of age to get the Taiwan inoculation, while older people with diabetes, cancer, heart disease, or immunological problems should get the trivalent shot. The shots, however, give only temporary immunity.

Despite the warnings now, Torok said the flu season doesn't peak until February, at the latest. Curtailing its spread will mean a little effort on everyone's part.

FOR STARTERS, EAT RIGHT and get plenty of rest because if you're weak you're more susceptible to illness. Also, wash your hands often. Even though flu viruses are transmitted mainly through the air they disperse somewhat and lose some potency. Any kind of direct contact facilitates transmission.

Cleanliness, courtesy and healthy living habits will help curtail flu's spread. Save the vaccines for the needy.

All democracies have armies to shield themselves, ideals

This is in response to Dan Bauer's sweeping generalizations concerning men and women in uniform. I am admittedly biased in my concern for the military. However, I find it hard to read such generic rhetoric calling for a "better way to ensure freedom" without giving any viable alternatives that are going to work in a real world sense.

In no way wish to quell any of Mr. Bauer's thoughts, or those of anyone else who wishes to voice diverse opinions. In fact I invite them. After all, debate is a cornerstone of democracy.

Please Mr. Bauer, name me one democracy that has not had a standing army or stood in the shadow of one to protect it and its ideals from enslavement from another state. No one I know affiliated with the military wants to go to fight, but simply put, there are things about this country that are worth fighting for, if the occasion arises like a somewhat free press, somewhat equality, freedom of speech, access to education and Monday Night Football.

Mr. Bauer states that "the risk inherent in obedience is easier to endure than the scorn reserved for conscientious objectors." It's true there is a required draft registration, but there is no mandatory service commitment. Today's military is entirely volunteer.

For whatever reasons men and women have decided to serve, there are more than enough volunteers to meet the demand. It appears that no one is twisting anyone's arm to join the service. Can it be that Mr. Bauer is twisting someone's arm to stay out?

Mr. Bauer paints a picture of the military as "power-hungry nationalists." This is a sad misconception he has. The military implements actions the government wishes to be taken. The government interprets what the voting public wishes.

I realize Mr. Bauer is only one vote but please don't attempt to lamely justify your innocence by asking someone else to do something that you are willing to reap the benefits from but not do yourself. — Damon Mathis, senior, Speech Communication.

Courses dropped from GS are very much worth taking

In the fall semester of 1985, two courses were dropped from the General Studies Program: GSB 109 — Intro to Black America and GSB 135 — The Third World: The African Model.

These courses are now offered on the Black American Studies Program. They can be used toward a 12 credit hour certificate in Black American Studies or as electives.

Even though BAS 109 and BAS 135 can no longer be used to fulfill general education requirements, they are very much worth taking. I urge all freshmen and sophomores to take at least one of these courses. Especially black students, as of how they relate more so to you.

BAS 135 offers some interesting and enlightening facts about the continent of Africa. Expand on what you already know and enroll in these courses.

For the record, this is not an outcry for students to hear the black experience or anything else I enjoyed both courses mentioned above and would just like to share the same opportunity with newer students who may not know of the BAS courses. — Terrance L. Craig, junior, Finance.

What would Simon think?

Did you know nearly all Russians study English in high school but only 5 percent of all Americans are exposed to the Russian language? One out of four books in print in the world are in Russian. The second largest university in the fifth largest state in this country employs just one and a half Russian teachers.

By now, most people in our community know the College of Liberal Arts wants to cut the Russian program here because they feel it is not right to continue a program with only one full-time faculty member. They are right. It's a shame that Dr. Orechwa has to teach up to 18 hours a semester. It's a shame that if Russian majors want to graduate in four years, they have to attend expensive out-of-state summer programs or go abroad. It's a shame, but we do it. But what's really a shame is the fact that SIU does not support the Russian program, or the whole Foreign Language Department for that matter.

We can't afford to hire another full-time Russian teacher. It's interesting to note, though, that the Board of Trustees can afford to hire another political science professor — and give him a $90,000 sabbatical.

It's true the humanities program doesn't bring in the big bucks and publicity like the technical programs do, but who are we anyway, Southern Illinois A & M? Let's not forget who participated with the Soviet students in the TV link-up that put SIU in the national newspapers last summer — the Russian (language) students.

It's distressing to think that SIU might not be turning out any more graduates who can speak Russian. America has a big problem — we are ignorant about the rest of the world, its languages and cultures. A university the size and stature of SIU has a duty to help solve this problem. We can no longer continue in our arrogance and expect the rest of the world to learn about us.

If you haven't already noticed, the world around us is growing increasingly hostile. We're also suffering from a massive trade imbalance. I think it's a crying shame. I wonder what Sen. Paul Simon, one of the university's most important friends in Congress, would think.

Well, I'm going to ask him, maybe you should too. — Todd Williams, senior, Russian and Japanese.

Basket craft: Brothers struggle to make family basket business thrive

At a time when technology and automation prevail, three brothers in Cobden struggle with old-fashioned know-how and antiquated machinery to keep a 95-year-old family business going.

Lawrence Box and Basket Co. was begun in 1891 when Randal Lawrence Sr. began making wood veneer slack barrels, which are loose slat barrels, for packing apples and sweet potatoes. By 1910 Lawrence was making 32,000 slack barrels a day.

SLACK BARRELS have been replaced with plastic or cardboard shipping crates but the family basket business continues.

The Lawrence brothers — Randy, 37, Robert, 33, and Steve, 26, — keep the business alive by making veneer baskets by hand as their grandfather did almost 100 years ago.

The brothers make 16 types of baskets for arts, crafts, fruits and vegetables and plant bands, which are simple four-sided boxes, that many nurseries use for starting seedlings.

ROBERT, A MACHINIST, cuts the wood on a rotary veneer machine his grandfather bought for $100 from Singer Co. in Cairo in 1930. The Singer Co. had used the machine to cut veneer for sewing machine cabinets until the stock market crash in 1929.

"I was a machinist in Vietnam, so what I do now fits right in," he said. "I love it."

They cut the veneer from yellow poplar and cottonwood trees harvested from the Cache Creek bottomland near Bald Knob Cross.

WHEN THE VENEER is first cut, it is wet with sap and can be tied into a knot without breaking or cracking, making it perfect for baskets.

After Robert cuts the veneer it is dyed and then woven into a web that is formed into a basket.

As Robert works, he is constantly tapping, tightening and oiling the mass of moving gears, belts and knives that turn the logs and cut the veneer. When the 75-year-old machine breaks or needs a new part and Robert can't find a replacement, he tries to rework the machine to a standard design, for example, drilling out a screw hole to the next standard size.

IF ROBERT CAN'T redesign the machine or do anything else, he will make a new part. The golden rule he follows is "keep it simple."

"Then it's a headache, but an enjoyable one," he said.

Steve forms and staples the baskets on a 60-year-old machine that was so advanced for its time it won a design competition at the 1904 World's Fair in St. Louis, Mo.

In 1983, Steve left his job as an electronics technician for Texas Instruments to help his brothers. "I was making a lot more money there, but I'm happier here because of the peace of mind," he said.

RANDY IS THE salesman of the family. He said his first selling job was convincing his brothers to join him in 1983.

"I said, 'Let's try and see if we can do it. The limit is in your minds, so stop thinking about it and let's do it,'" he said.

In 1983, their father, Randal Lawrence II, made plant bands only to fill orders. Randy wanted to revive the business by again making bushel, half bushel and decorative baskets. He made two dozen small fruit baskets and took them to Rose Lipe, who owns a vegetable market in Boskeydell.

RANDY SOLD Lipe the baskets on a Wednesday morning and said he would be back the next Monday. By the time Randy got back to Cobden at about 4 o'clock, Lipe was on the phone ordering 10 dozen more baskets. Within two weeks Lipe sold the 10 dozen baskets and ordered 100 dozen more.

"I knew then that we were on our way," Randy said.

Authenticity to be plentiful during Madrigal Dinner

By Mary Wisniewski
 Entertainment Editor

Attention all Carbondale anachronists! The 10th Annual Madrigal Dinner Concert, to be held Wednesday through Saturday in the Student Center Ballroom D, may be your chance to feast like Henry VIII.

Madrigal Dinner Concerts are based on the traditional celebration of the Christmas season dating back to 15th and 16th century England. Producing Director Michael P. Blank said more research has gone into keeping this year's Madrigal Dinner more authentic than in any other year.

"CERTAIN SPICES such as pepper were at a premium at the time," said Blank. "And there was mostly pork and fowl and native vegetables at the table."

"We're trying to keep it as close to authentic as possible," he said.

This year's Madrigal Dinner menu includes Canadian cheese soup, stuffed cornish game hens, broiled tomatoes, glazed carrots, sourdough bread, English trifle, mistletoe salad and wassail cup.

Some of these Renaissance-era delicacies may be unfamiliar to 20th century tastes. Sourdough bread, for instance, was popular in a time when yeast was sometimes difficult to obtain and "sourdough," or dough left to sour in a warm place for several days, was used to make the bread rise.

WASSAIL IS HOT spiced cider. The word "wassail" is based on the Anglo-Saxon greeting "waes hael" which means be whole and be well.

Food will not be the only item of historical interest at the Madrigal Dinner. The Concert also will feature musicians and an entire royal court to share the meal.

The concert will begin at 6:45 p.m. with an entry of peasants, madrigal musicians, a royal court and the yule log procession. This will be followed by a wassail toast, a procession of food, dancers and jugglers, and finally a madrigal concert recessional.

THE MUSICAL director of the Concert is SIU-C associate professor John V. Mochnick.

The concert will include a 16-voice chorus, Joyce Hesketh on harpsichord, a string trio, and a guitar trio.

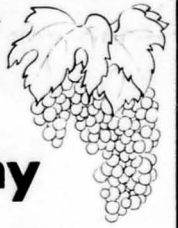

The musicians will perform three madrigals by Thomas Morley, an Elizabethan composer. A madrigal is a 15th and 16th century lyrical song for voices and strings.

Mochnick said the music scheduled for the concert is "mostly from Elizabethan times." Some of the other works to be performed are "Deo Gratias Anglia, an 14th century carol, "I begged the Maidens to Dance," by Guillaume Costeley (1531-1606) and "All the World This Night Rejoices" by Thomas Weelkes (1565-1623).

Costumes for the madrigal performers were designed and sewn by Carbondale natives Patricia Ott, Ann Roubos and Faye Sanders.

Tickets for the Concert are $16 for Thursday, Friday and Saturday and $14 for Wednesday.

Honduran troops seek stranded Sandinistas

TEGUCIGALPA. Honduran soldiers (UPI) — Honduran soldiers, ferried for the second time this year to the tense Nicaraguan border region by U.S. helicopters, searched Tuesday for Nicaraguan troops that crossed the frontier in pursuit of Contra rebels.

An undetermined number of Nicaraguan soldiers remained trapped in an isolated section of Honduras' El Paraiso province, some 60 miles east of Tegucigalpa, army officers said.

U.S. choppers Monday night ended the airlift of Honduran forces to the border to repel "the flagrant violation of our sovereignty" by Nicaraguan soldiers, the officials said.

American helicopter pilots made numerous runs, carrying Honduran troops to the region, but were prohibited from approaching combat areas, U.S. officials said.

The flare-up along the rugged 400-mile-long shared border began Thursday, when Sandinista soldiers crossed over, apparently in pursuit of U.S.-backed rebels fighting to overthrow the leftist government of Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega.

The Honduran government said the Nicaraguans wounded three Honduran soldiers and captured two in the cross-border raid.

Late Saturday, Honduran President Jose Azcona — one of Washington's closest allies in the troubled region — requested and received U.S. military support for its campaign to repel the Nicaraguan incursion. On Sunday, Honduran war jets strafed Nicaraguan positions in the rugged frontier hills. U.S. officials said.

But Nicaraguan ambassador to Tegucigalpa Danilo Abud Vivas denied Nicaraguan troops violated the boundary.

"At no time did the Sandinista Army enter Honduras and there has been no confrontation between the armies of the two nations," he said.

year's budget, but that, "It is safe to predict that revenue sharing won't be a factor. It's gone. There's no evidence it's going to return. We need to get ourselves in a mental framework for this."

Sorgen noted several services of the city as traditional or non-traditional. He said, however, that non-traditional does not mean non-essential. Service organizations like the Attucks Community Services Board and the Women's Center face city funding cuts this year, as they have in past years.

But Mayor Helen Westberg told the council "I have some empathy for the Attucks Community Service Board because they do not enjoy the number of other funding sources nor the amount of funding from other sources" that other city-funded organizations do.

She said the city may be close to causing the board to shut down if any more funding is eliminated.

Councilman Keith Tuxhorn suggested that the city determine an amount of funding to be provided to service organizations and continue to provide that amount of funding for three to five years.

"I think it would make it easier on the council and I think it would make it easier on the city if they knew what parameters they had to work with," Tuxhorn said.

Councilman Patrick Kelley, a mayoral candidate, said he is opposed to a tax increase, "regardless of what you call it."

Councilman John Yow said, "I would be very reluctant to vote for any tax increase except one, and that is a liquor tax." He said he hadn't "given much thought" to whether that tax should be limited to package liquor, but said he probably would lean in that direction.

Dixon said the idea of a liquor tax is being studied, but nothing has been decided.

Council members also suggested ways to decrease city expenditures.

Yow said the Cable T.V. commission, which costs the city about $200, "may be on the way out." The commission has no power over rates or services. Those decisions are up to the cable company, leaving the commission little authority.

Dillard suggested that the city stop subsidizing refuse collection.

Blood drive set

A blood drive will be held from 1:30 to 6:30 p.m. today at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church, corner of Poplar and Walnut streets. Domino's will provide free pizza to all donors. Other food also will also be available.

mentation, but would support a zero-interest loan program.

But city Housing Director Jane Hughes told council members that eliminating interest on the loans may not be enough to stimulate landlord interest in the program. The program currently provides loans at 3 percent interest.

"WE MAY BE faced with the same problems with zero interest as we have with 3 percent interest," she said, noting that cities with the most successful programs have structured their rental rehabilitation loans in the form of grants.

Keith Tuxhorn, the only council member to speak in favor of a forgivable loan program, said: "I think it's very sensible to make this money more accessible. We do have quite a few buildings and property that could use this type of work and if we can keep some of that money here and improve the city at the same time, it's something we should look at."

IN A MEMO to City Manager Bill Dixon dated Dec. 3, Monty outlined several factors besides the pay-back requirement that may be discouraging landlords from applying for loans. Program regulations require property owners applying for loans to submit their buildings to thorough code inspections and to submit a financial statement to the city, including copies of their income tax returns for the past two years.

ONLY ONE loan has been made under the program since its beginning two years ago. Unless participation in the program increases, the state Department of Commerce and Community Affairs may reclaim an $80,000 grant made to the city for the program.

Yow called local landlords' excuses for refusing to participate in the program unreasonable. "I think those reasons are way out of line," he said. "They want the money. But they want to spend it the way they want to spend it and where they want to spend it. In other words just give them a check — that's what they're asking for."

DILLARD PROPOSED that the city waive the financial reporting requirements for loan applicants and instead rely on the confidence of local lenders who would in all likelihood loan the applicants money to cover their portion of the property rehabilitation cost. Property owners receiving funds under the Rental Rehabilitation Program must provide a dollar for dollar match for the city funds.

Dixon directed Monty and his staff to study the council's suggestions and bring back further recommendations for council consideration in January.

Where the girls aren't: SIU-C fights image

By Barbara Brewer
Student Writer

It's become something of a given that the SIU-C campus has either too many men for the female population, or too few women for the male population.

But take heart, guys. Since the fall of 1983, when total SIU-C female enrollment was at its lowest in the last 10 years (36.02 percent), it has since increased to 37.42 percent (about 300 more women). Nationally, women represent 51 percent of the collegiate population.

Fran Michl, senior in finance, says he's noticed the change on campus.

"MY FRESHMAN year, the female population was very sparse," Michl said. "Now it's great — it's gone up considerably."

Not all SIU-C men, however, are as optimistic. According to Tom Tavolacci, also a senior in finance, the imbalance in the ratio of men to women "makes the campus kind of boring."

"The bars are always trying to attract women with Ladies' Night and free drinks, but most of the girls have boyfriends, so they don't go to the bars anyway," Tavolacci said.

NOT SURPRISINGLY, women take a different view of the situation.

The majority of my friends here are guys. They seem to be more friendly," said Mary Baldwin, junior in management.

"SIU is great for girls," said Dawn Mondus, senior in political science. "I don't know why more of them don't come down here."

Terry Mathias, director of New Student Admission Services, explained that in an effort to understand why women do or do not choose SIU-C, and to further increase female enrollment on this campus, SIU Academic Affairs has proposed the implementation of various research programs.

"WE DON'T know exactly why fewer women attend SIU; at this point, we can only make hypotheses," Mathias said.

A principle hypothesis Mathias offers is that of the considerable distance between the Chicago area and Carbondale.

"Conventional reasoning is that women tend to stay closer to home than men," he said.

MATHIAS SUGGESTS that SIU-C's "party" image still may be an obstacle for some women; however, he attributes in part the recent increase in female enrollment at SIU-C to a lack of any particularly disruptive incidents on campus within the last 18 months. According to Mathias, this may be an indication that the party is dying out.

Other possibilities Mathias considers include parental

—Tom Tavolacci, senior in finance pressures on new college women to stay closer to home for safety purposes, as well as the misconception that SIU has exceptional criminal problems. However, the 1984 Illinois Crime Statistics, a state police report, shows that of six Illinois collegiate municipalities, Carbondale had the lowest crime rate on nearly every major assault reported.

"SOME OF THE reasons women do not choose SIU may quite possibly be due to misconceptions," Mathias said.

Jerre Pfaff, director of Undergraduate Admissions, theorizes that some of the disproportion in the number of men and women at SIU-C may be a result of growing enrollments in the fields of business, engineering and the School of Technical Careers. In that technical fields traditionally do not attract large numbers of women (data for fall 1986 show 183 females enrolled in the engineering program against 2,361 males), this is quite possibly a contributing factor to the male — female imbalance at SIU.

PFaff's THEORY further is supported by the fact that unlike some peer institutions, which were for many years characterized as teacher education schools (and traditionally more attractive to female students), SIU is more on a par with the University of Illinois in terms of its engineering and agriculture programs, conventionally male-dominated.

AS FOR SIU-C's recent increase in female enrollment, Pfaff suggests that this may in part be due to an increase in scholarships for women. He explained that as men traditionally have performed better than women on standardized aptitude tests, financial aid awarded on the basis of test performance can work to the exclusion of women. However, as women generally have made better grades than their male counterparts, scholarships offered on the basis of academic performance consequently will attract more women, Pfaff said.

LISA JOHNSON, freshman in business, said, "I'm here on a Golf scholarship. I'm from Milwaukee — I'd never heard of SIU until they contacted me."

Apart from research efforts in SIU Academic Affairs, individual departments are targeting women as well. For the past six years, SIU-C's Minority Engineering Program has offered female high school students a week-long summer program in Carbondale during which they attend classes, lectures and acquire some knowledge about SIU's engineering program.

JAMES ORR, head of the Industrial Technology program, college of Engineering and Technology, has made a successful attempt to bring increased numbers of women into the industrial technology program.

Beginning with visits to other campuses with considerable female enrollment in industrial technology, Orr set his sights on the same goal for SIU. Eight percent of the IT program now is comprised of women, but Orr expects 20 percent of this population to be female within two years.

STRESSING THAT women in industrial technology hold management-oriented positions as opposed to "nuts and bolts" factory jobs, Orr maintains that "females fit into the program very nicely — they do as well or better than their male counterparts."

Administrators are not the only ones aware of an increase in women at SIU.

John Carver, senior in political science, said, "I still go to parties where there are no girls, but I've noticed that the girl — guy ratio is a little better than it was."

Single-parent households increase at dramatic pace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of children living with one parent has nearly doubled since 1970, the Census Bureau reported Tuesday.

It said the number increased in 1985 to 23 percent of the 62.5 million children under 18 living in the United States, compared with 12 percent 15 years earlier.

In a new report, "Marital Status and Living Arrangements: March 1985," the bureau also reported that overall in 1985 there were "about four unmarried men for every five unmarried women" although "at peak marrying ages, unmarried men outnumber unmarried women."

The report also noted that the age at which people marry for the first time continues to climb and the percentage of young singles continues to grow. But the number of unmarried couples living together leveled off between 1984 and 1985.

"As increases occur in the proportion of never-married adults at the prime child-bearing ages, and in the ratio of divorced persons to persons who are married, spouse present, a smaller proportion of children are living with two parents and an increasing proportion are living with one parent," the report said.

It said nine out of 10 children in a single-parent situation lived with their mothers.

In 1985, the number of children living with one parent climbed to 14.6 million, or 23 percent of the 62.5 million children under 18. In 1960, that percentage was 9 percent, rising to 12 percent in 1970.

More black children lived with one parent — 54 percent — while 18 percent of white children lived with one parent and 29 percent of Hispanic children lived with one parent, the report said.

In 1985, 52 percent of white children in one-parent situations lived with a divorced parent, 23 percent with a separated parent, 13 percent with a never-married parent and 8 percent with a widowed parent, the report said. It said the proportion living with a never-married parent had increased from 7 percent to 13 percent in the past five years.

Among black children, the percent in one-parent situations who lived with a never-married or divorced parent has risen since 1960 from 10 percent to 48 percent for never-marrieds and from 12 percent to 23 percent for divorced parents.

The report said the estimated median age at first marriage in 1985 was 23.3 years for women and 25.5 years for men, noting that during the 1980s the median marrying age for women "continued to be higher than any previously recorded level" and that men are nearing the level recorded in 1890 — 26.1.

It also said the proportion of men and women who have never married followed the same pattern as the rise in median marrying age.

Caught napping? Biology, not laziness, may be cause

NEW YORK (UPI) — Around 3 o'clock in the afternoon a subtle shift in behavior is observed all over the world.

Studies show accidents increase while work productivity decreases. In offices, people tend to gravitate toward water coolers and coffee machines. On college campuses, an estimated half of all students put their books aside and take naps.

ONLY RECENTLY have scientists and psychologists realized that the subtle phenomenon is based not on culture, food or behavioral conditioning — but on a shift in almost every human's biological time clock.

"We sleep and wake on a 24-hour cycle, but somewhere around eight hours after waking we experience a dip," said David F. Dinges, a biological psychologist affiliated with the Institute of Pennsylvania Hospital and the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine.

"THAT'S THE time people take naps, or feel like they want to take a nap."

Studies have shown that most people experience a measurable lull in their level of alertness between 1 and 4 p.m. that scientists believe is tied in with the brain's regulation of sleep and wake cycles.

"We measure it by how long it takes to get someone to sleep," Dinges said. "In the morning and evening it takes about 15 minutes to get the brain to fall asleep while at night it only takes a few minutes.

"BUT SOMEWHERE in the afternoon there is a dip and people can fall asleep within five minutes," he said.

The studies confirmed what some people felt all along: that they lag in the afternoon until they catch a "second wind" that makes them alert in the evening.

Some researchers had theorized the lag was caused by heavy lunches or the body's reaction to carbohydrates in food, but Dinges said most psychologists who study sleep believe the phenomenon is linked to the brain's sleep and wake cycle alone.

IN HIS OWN studies of college students, Dinges has discovered that about half nap for an average of 70 minutes a day.

"You look at college students because that's the one time in life a person can structure their day just about any way they want," he said. Retired people are also prone to napping, he said.

The 70-minute average indicates the period of sleepiness is relatively short, especially when compared to the six to 10 hours of sleep most people need at night.

PSYCHOLOGISTS, WHILE agreeing that there is a tendency to nap in mid-afternoon, debate whether an hour of actual sleep is beneficial to most people. Studies have indicated that work performance does not change whether people nap or not, but a recent study has shown personality may suffer.

Amy Bertelson, a researcher in clinical psychology at Washington University in St. Louis, had 94 people — half of whom described themselves as nappers — either nap for an hour, rest in bed reading or watch a television program they were told they would be quizzed on.

THE SUBJECTS were tested for mental alertness, performance and mood before and after the time period, she said. When it came to alertness and performance, there was little difference between the three groups.

But people who napped or rested while reading appeared to be in better moods than those who had to remain awake and alert, she said.

"It didn't matter if they fell asleep or rested, their mood was much better than those who watched the program," Bertelson said in a telephone interview. "It may be beneficial for people to nap or get the benefit of a little rest in the afternoon."

Santa shuns snowfall, opts for sun at Riviera museum

CANET, France (UPI) — Santa Claus has traded his reindeer for suntan lotion and moved to the French Riviera.

Since the Father Christmas museum opened in Canet, a small town on the shores of the Mediterranean, thousands of children of all ages have visited the "museum for childhood" and its collection of toys — some of which date back 4,000 years.

Founder Jean-Claude Baudot not only resembles St. Nick by his whitened hair, rosy cheeks and the twinkling eyes, but has even given Canet a bumper Christmas present: a collection of 3,500 toys, games and dolls gathered over 25 years from garbage cans and flea markets.

"It started in Paris when I found a puppet theater in the garbage," said Baudot, 52, who lives in Paris when he is not in Canet. "I've been collecting ever since."

His collection includes a 4,000-year-old Egyptian doll with moveable arms and legs and an 1870s paper airplane made 20 years before planes actually flew.

"I bought that at a flea market for 10 francs ($1.50)," he said. The old take their place beside futuristic toys and games.

Baudot, who grew up in the Canet area and owns a nearby vineyard, said he conceived of the museum as a way "to give the town an identity."

"I asked the town to build a museum dedicated to childhood," he said. Mayor Jacques Coupet liked the idea and the 20 million franc ($3 million) project was under way.

Canet was chosen because of its "many, many children" and the wide stretch of beach which the museum faces, Baudot said. A 150-foot statue of Santa Claus for the beach is in the works, "like the Statue of Liberty," Baudot said.

The museum took only a year to construct and furnish, and Baudot said 1,000 visitors a day last summer entered exhibits through the "Father Christmas Palace," a hall of mirrors and lights.

Marionettes, circuses and magic objects fill the "World of the Imagination" leading to life-size dolls inhabiting a mansion of games, pictures and puzzles.

Arts group to sponsor workshops

The Illinois Arts Council, coordinated by Southern Illinois Arts, will sponsor a series of free workshops to outline programs and services offered by the council for local artists and arts organizations.

The workshops will give details about the new Expansion Arts program, which extends arts programs and services to underserved areas.

Southern Illinois Arts is one of four organizations throughout the state selected to participate in the program.

The workshops will be held from 9 a.m. to noon Wednesday in the Student Conference Room at Shawnee College in Ullin; 9 a.m. to noon Thursday in Room B-106 at Southeastern Illinois College in Harrisburg; and 9 a.m. to noon Friday in Room 1513 at Belleville Area College in Belleville.

Individual appointments for consultation with Illinois Arts Council and Southern Illinois Arts personnel are available.

For information call David C. Thomas, 457-8264. All workshops are open to the public.

Women's Caucus discussion set

The Women's Networking Program will be the subject of the Women's Caucus meeting today from noon to 1:30 p.m. in the Student Center Thebes Room.

Speakers from Women's Services, Women's Studies, the Women's Caucus, the Women's Center and the American Association for University Women will discuss ideas to improve networking among women on campus and in the community.

The meeting is open to the public.

Correction

Terry Bowman, an assistant professor in aviation management and coordinator of the 1987 Intercollegiate Flying Association's Safety and Flight Evaluation Conference, said the conference is beneficial to aviation students because it stresses safety.

The statement was inadvertently attributed to someone else in an article that appeared in the Dec. 9 issue of the Daily Egyptian.

Retired prof a 'model' Peace Corps soldier

By Mary Wisniewski
Entertainment Editor

It's hard to believe that Poston, an SIU professor emeritus in community development, was a driving force in the birth of a large United States government organization. But this gentle, cordial person may be a model soldier for one of the most unusual and hopeful armies America has ever known: the Peace Corps.

POSTON WAS one of the original coordinators of the Corps, an American service group that celebrates its 25th anniversary this year. Poston, who was among the 30 Peace Corps staff and volunteers at the anniversary reception in the Student Center Sunday, sees the Corps as a way not only to establish friendly relations with other cultures, but to allow other cultures to enrich our own.

Poston, who retired from SIU in 1975, has a background in community development. Poston said he came to SIU in 1953 at the request of former SIU President Delyte W. Morris to head the Southern Illinois Department of Community Development.

IN 1960, POSTON was appointed research professor for cooperative community research. Responding to a request from CARE, the Cooperative for American Relief Everywhere, Inc., Poston traveled to the then politically troubled nation of Colombia to serve as CARE's World Programs Development coordinator.

Poston said that down in Colombia, CARE, the Ministry of Government and the Federation of Coffee Growers worked together to organize teams of rural Colombia into towns to reform their communities.

CITIZEN'S TEAMS, which provided employment and training for peasant or "campesino" community development workers, previewed Peace Corps goals, Poston said. "You can't help people from the bottom up," Poston said. "You can't help any country, any people or any individual who won't help themselves."

On March 1, 1961, President John F. Kennedy issued an executive order creating the Peace Corps. "People were calling it the 'Kiddie Corps,'" Poston said. "People thought it was some wild, do-gooder, pie-in-the-sky idea."

BECAUSE AN executive order expires after a given time period, "There was a sudden mad dash to find a country for the first group of Peace Corps volunteers to be planted," Poston said.

"People were calling it the 'Kiddie Corps.' People thought it was some wild, do-gooder, pie-in-the-sky idea."

— Richard Poston

Colombia, Poston explained, seemed the natural choice.

About the first group of Peace Corps volunteers, Poston said, "They were a bunch of gung-ho kind of guys. They still have a reunion every year. The difference between them and every other group is that the other groups were kind of sane."

A SECOND GROUP of volunteers was sent to Tanzania, and the Peace Corps quickly became very popular, Poston said.

Because of the area's large Spanish-speaking population, the first Peace Corps training center was established at the University of New Mexico. Poston said he took a leave of absence from SIU to set up a community development field laboratory at U.N.M.

"THEN DR. MORRIS wanted SIU to get in on the act," Poston said. In 1964, a Peace Corps training center was established at SIU. "All together I've trained over 3,000 volunteers," Poston said.

BUT WHILE building sewer systems and bridges are important, Poston says, volunteers should never let one of those projects become an end in itself. The most important project is the development of the community itself, he said.

"The basic thing is institutional development," Poston said. "In our country, we are organized as a people. We have a municipal government—a business system."

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S Marshall Plan, which helped rebuild Europe after World War II, cannot be compared to the Peace Corps because Europe already had developed communities. "You fed financial aid to people who already knew what to do with it."

Poston said that in the Third World, "you pour in foreign aid money and they don't know what to do with it. We're talking areas that don't know what a committee is. They have no experience at organizing themselves to accomplish anything. There's no relation between local communities and the government."

THE PEACE Corps, Poston said, can build a two-way channel between local communities and the government. "It's to help them help themselves. That's how this country of ours got built."

Kennedy saw the Peace Corps as a means to contribute a "fresh personal meaning to our diplomacy." Poston says he believes the Peace Corps has several different missions.

"IT'S THERE to form peaceful, friendly relationships between America and other countries," Poston said. "It's also to provide Americans with the experience of working overseas—to see other cultures, enrich their lives and bring it back to their home."

"Of course, its main mission is to improve living conditions in the so-called Third World: to build schools, build housing, provide sewer disposal," Poston said.

Spring social work seminars offered

The School of Social Work is offering campuswide electives spring semester that focus on contemporary issues.

Students may register for one or more of three five-week seminars. Each seminar is a one-credit elective. The seminars will meet Fridays from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The first seminar, SW 450a, focuses on special service delivery issues related to gay and lesbian clients. The second and third seminars, SW 450b and 540c, Contemporary Issues I and II, introduce students to major social issues through a variety of films. SW 450b issues include institutionalization and deinstitutionalization, homelessness, poverty and health care.

SW 450c highlights a variety of contemporary family problems and settings such as AIDS, Alzheimers disease and the single parent in the correctional facility.

For information call 453-2243.

Choices varied for non-traditional students

These stories are the third in a series about non-traditional students at SIU-C.

By Ellen Cook
Staff Writer

Non-traditional students who attend classes through the Division of Continuing Education's Evening and Weekend Program may be able to attend day classes under the program's guidelines if a proposal at the chancellor's level is approved, said Jim Osberg, director of the program.

Osberg said the proposal, which was written two years ago, enhances the current program by giving non-traditional students "easy access to the University and a wide range of courses to choose from."

The Evening and Weekend Program allows students who have not attended college in the past 12 months to enroll part time at SIU-C at a reduced rate.

Because non-traditional students in the program don't use on-campus health care services or attend athletics events, these fees are waived, Osberg said.

Under the program's guidelines, students can take up to eight credit hours per semester on weekdays after 4 p.m. or on Saturdays to a total of 26 hours. Then if the students want to pursue an undergraduate degree, they must declare a major and apply for admission to the University, Osberg said. If the students are enrolled for a reason other than degree completion, such as personal fulfillment, they may remain in the Evening and Weekend

Re-entry women get specialized support

By Ellen Cook
Staff Writer

This fall, 1,300 female non-traditional students are enrolled as undergraduates at SIU-C, according to statistics from Institutional Research and Studies. Many of these women find that meeting other female non-traditional students helps in their adjustment to college life.

Women's Services offers several support and educational programs for the growing number of women in the re-entry program.

"I AM SEEING more women coming in as re-entry students," said Pat Cochran, coordinator of the program. "It seems that there are more of them using our services at any rate."

Women's Services programs offered to re-entry women are similar to those offered to traditional students: access to the research file, lending library and financial aid information, short-term counseling, and workshops. But Women's Services also offers programs that are designed just for re-entry women.

COCHRAN SAID her primary goal as program coordinator is to help re-entry women meet one another and provide them with support they may not receive from friends or family members.

Each semester, Women's Services offers an orientation program to re-entry women. The program is similar to those offered to incoming freshmen, but offers information that fits the needs of re-entry students, Cochran said.

COCHRAN TEACHES a special section of Sociology 101, The New Student in the University, for re-entry women who want to learn more than the orientation program provides. The section is offered each fall, she said, and eight re-entry women are enrolled in the class this semester.

Most of the class time is spent discussing personal issues such as assertiveness and self-esteem, Cochran said, but she also helps her students become more familiar with University facilities and resources.

COCHRAN SAID that the special section is important because re-entry women have different needs and interests than traditional students.

"These women are in transition. It kind of helps them to re-evaluate their goals and priorities."

The brown bag lunch program, held each Monday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Woody Hall's second floor group room, helps re-entry women to meet and talk with their peers in a comfortable atmosphere, Cochran said.

SOME WOMEN use the program to meet other re-entry students, but others come to Women's Services for help in a crisis, she said.

One emergency service, The Shelter in a Storm program, can help re-entry women who must commute to campus. If weather makes it impossible for a student to drive home, volunteers will let her stay in their homes.

Parents with school-age children may use the Emergency Locator service. Re-entry students can give their class schedules to Women's Services and leave the Women's Services phone number as an emergency number at their child's school. If an emergency should arise, the schools can call Women's Services and a staff member can find students and inform them of the call.

Women's Services office is in Woody Hall, Room B-244, 453-3655.

program, he said.

Under the proposed Adult Part-Time Education Program, non-traditional students could take up to nine credit hours per semester and still receive the fee reductions, Osberg said. Students could also remain in the program whether or not they decide to pursue a degree, he said.

The program would give non-traditional students a wider range of courses from which to choose while providing the same administrative services the current program offers, Osberg said.

The Evening and Weekend Program offers one-step registration to students who cannot commute to campus during the day. Students can register for classes, receive a parking decal and pay their first tuition installments by mail or in person at the Division of Continuing Education. Telephone registration is available to returning students, he said.

The program also gives information about on-campus organizations that may be helpful in the student's return to school, Osberg said.

Osberg said 66 percent of the people enrolled in the program take three credit hours or fewer each semester. The average grade point average of all students in the program is close to a "B" average, he said.

"These are all people who are very serious about their work," he said.

The Division of Continuing Education also offers an individualized learning program.

SIU-C offers off-campus courses at more than 30 locations throughout the state. Most of the students who enroll in these courses are involved in business and industry or education, Osberg said.

Guide spells out options, rights of 'average' women

NEW YORK (UPI) — The legal rights of women at home, on the job and in the community are spelled out state-by-state in a new guide issued Tuesday by the National Organization for Women's Legal Defense and Education Fund.

It was written to help the average woman tune in to all she needs to know to fully understand her rights and options, according to the fund, a unit formed by NOW in 1970 as a litigation and education affiliate. NOW-LDEF subsequently became a separate organization, but maintains affiliation to NOW and its 800 chapters nationwide.

Leaders say the fund's main mission is to achieve full equality through institutional change, legal reform and educational campaigns.

The new book, the first major publication by NOW-LDEF, is called "The State-by-State Guide to Women's Legal Rights" (McGraw-Hill-$12.95). It was written by the NOW-LDEF and Renee Cherow-O-Leary, an associate professor of communications and public policy at City College of New York.

Marsha Levick, the organization's executive director, said the guide is expected to be extremely useful in coming months.

Network plans to cancel '1986' at end of year

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC News President Lawrence K. Grossman flew to NBC's Washington, D.C., office Tuesday and broke the news to the staff of the news magazine "1986" that their program would be canceled effective Dec. 30.

"1986" is a weekly prime-time show airing on Tuesday nights. The program, whose hosts are Connie Chung and Roger Mudd, was NBC's 14th attempt in 17 years to launch a successful news magazine-style program.

WITH TELEPHONE hookups to NBC's offices in Burbank, Calif., and New York, and with a special hookup to vacationing co-host Chung, Grossman delivered the verdict that newsmagazines were out at NBC.

Grossman said NBC News will replace the show with a series of 15 prime time documentaries, "White Papers" and specials on breaking news stories and major issues.

"This was a difficult decision, one made entirely by me on the basis of news division judgment alone," Grossman said in a statement issued by NBC.

"1986" IS A quality

program, well produced and doing excellent reportorial journalism, but local and network television is saturated by magazine style formats and we reluctantly came to the conclusion that NBC News's resources could be better used and its mission better served with single-subject prime-time news hours," Grossman said.

Just a few months ago, the staff of "1986" said they had been assured the network would stick with the program because NBC believed it was a quality show that deserved a space in the prime time slot.

WHEN GROSSMAN delivered the news in Washington, the staffers were "crushed," said one who attended the meeting. "We thought the network was going to give us a chance," the staffer said.

"1986" was NBC's most recent attempt to air a show similar in form to CBS's "60 Minutes," and ABC's "20-20." Like CBS's "West 57th," which is currently on hiatus, NBC's "1986" was a slicker version of the magazine format, with flashy graphics and topics designed to draw young, educated, upscale viewers.

THE REPORTERS, producers and writers, including correspondent Maria

Shriver, who recently moved to NBC from "CBS Morning News" after it was canceled, remain under contract with NBC and will not be dismissed, Grossman said.

"He told the staff that all those under contract, that their contracts would be honored," said one of the staffers.

Grossman said the announcement was not all bad news.

HE SAID documentaries and NBC News "White Papers" would be broadcast in various time periods throughout the prime time schedule.

'Star Trek' outpaces 'Heartbreak Ridge' as box office bonanza

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home" continued its journey at the top of the nation's box office last week, but faced a tough frontal assault from Carmel, Calif., Mayor Clint Eastwood's "Heartbreak Ridge."

Paramount's latest Star Trek feature, which takes the crew of the Starship Enterprise back to earth, earned $8.8 million at the box office last week. In two weeks of release, "Star Trek IV" has earned $38.9 million.

"Heartbreak Ridge," a Warner Bros. war movie featuring Eastwood as a gruff Marine Corps gunnery sergeant on his last tour of duty, debuted with $8.1 million to stand alone in the No. 2 position.

"An American Tail," an animated feature from Stephen Spielberg's Amblin Entertainment, earned $4 million for Universal last week. In three weeks of release, the tale has earned $20.2 million.

Paramount's down under hit, "Crocodyile Dundee," slipped a notch to the No. 4 position by drawing $3.8 million. In 10 weeks of release, the adventure comedy featuring Australian Paul Hogan has earned $99.4 million.

"Song of the South," a Walt Disney animation released by Buena Vista, dropped one spot to the No. 5 position, earning $2 million last week. In three weeks of release, the colorful classic has earned $14 million.

"The Color of Money" still brought in the green, although it dropped one position to the No. 6 spot with box-office receipts of $1.5 million. The Buena Vista release has earned $41.6 million in seven weeks of release.

Sitcoms propel NBC to top of TV heap for 11th week

NEW YORK (UPI) — With their highest ratings of the year, "The Cosby Show" and "Family Ties" propelled NBC to its eleventh straight weekly win in the ratings while two new ABC sitcoms debuted at the bottom of the list, figures showed Tuesday.

NBC's Thursday night lineup continues to carry the torch for the No. 1 network. The four sitcoms on that night finished in the top four slots, with "The Cosby Show" scoring a 38.6 rating, its best rating performance this year, and "Family Ties" landing a 36.4 rating and 54 share, its best ever in both categories.

NBC's schedule-swapping seems to be paying off. Both "L.A. Law" and "Crime Story" did better in their new time slots on Thursday and Friday respectively, while "Hill Street Blues" suffered, as expected, from a move from Thursday to Tuesday opposite ABC's "Moonlighting."

Two new ABC situation comedies, "Gung Ho" and "Dads," did poorly their first time out. "Gung Ho" finished No. 71 and "Dads" was No. 67. But the No. 3 network had the No. 8 show of the week with "The Barbara Walters Special," in which Richard Pryor talked about AIDS.

Minorities lack top jobs in television, study finds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Minority growth in television's top jobs has come to a virtual standstill over the past five years, said a study released Tuesday by the United Church of Christ's Office of Communication.

In 1985, minorities held 15.2 percent of the four highest-level jobs in television, up only 1.5 percent from the 13.7 percent in 1980, the study said.

Between 1975 and 1980, minority presence in the top four jobs increased by 3.7 percent, and between 1971 and 1975 their numbers grew by 3 percent. Minorities accounted for 19.9 percent of all people working or looking for work in 1985, compared with 17.8 percent in 1980. Their presence in high-level television positions fell from 77 percent to 76.4 percent of their presence in the total labor force over the five years.

Using the same yardstick, the study written by Edward Wachtel, professor of communications at Fordham University, said women, while increasing their representation in top TV jobs, are still far short of parity.

Arms deal information sought in files

Investigators might question Reagan 'in time'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House said Tuesday that President Reagan might consent to be questioned by investigators delving into his secret arms sales to Iran and acknowledged an internal review is under way to locate relevant files.

At the same time, White House spokesman Larry Speakes refused to reconcile contradictions about when Reagan first gave the go-ahead for the shipments and said all such questions will be left to the investigations now under way.

"RECOLLECTIONS OF meetings where no records were kept can differ," Speakes said in offering a possible explanation for the contradictions. "Certainly, the president is entitled to an opportunity to refresh his memory."

That point, he said, will come "in due course" if Reagan is approached by Congress, a yet-to-be named special prosecutor or a high-level presidential board reviewing operations of the National Security Council.

In lieu of such interrogation, the implication was that questions about what Reagan did and when could remain unanswered.

"THE PRESIDENT will respond as openly and as truthfully and as quickly as he can," Speakes said. "But he has to wait until the facts are determined and he has an opportunity to determine the facts for himself."

Speakes said White House legal counsel Peter Wallison is supervising a search of "some files" that might bear on the Iran arms-Contrat aid connection.

As ex-aides John Poindexter and Oliver North cited their Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination on Capitol Hill, Reagan sought to remain aloof of the furor over what he has portrayed as good intentions gone awry.

FACING REPORTERS before a meeting with President Mobutu Sese Seko of Zaire, he joked about watching televised hearings on the Iran arms deal "only when I can't find a ballgame" and deflected further questions by saying, "I would remind you that I am the one who told you all that we know."

However, the White House was mum on testimony Monday by former national security adviser Robert McFarlane that Reagan approved the first shipment of arms to Iran in August 1985 — not weeks or months later, as his aides have said — under a program justified as a bid to make inroads with moderate Iranians but motivated in large part by a desire to free American hostages in Lebanon.

Fourth Iran deal figure takes 5th

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Secord, a former Pentagon official identified as playing a central role in the administration's secret negotiations with Iran, refused to testify Tuesday before the Senate Intelligence Committee, the panel chairman said.

Committee Chairman David Durenberger, R-Minn., said that Secord, whom Secretary of State George Shultz linked to "back-channel" discussions with the U.S. ambassador to Lebanon, had become the fourth person to invoke the Fifth Amendment while appearing before the Senate panel. Secord, a former deputy assistant defense secretary for the Middle East, is the subject of a Justice Department criminal investigation related to two Swiss bank accounts said to have been used to channel profits from Iran arms sales to the Nicaraguan rebels.

Three others — former national security adviser John Poindexter; Lt. Col. Oliver North, a key National Security Council official; and former State Department consultant Robert Owen — refused in recent days to testify before the committee.

Administration officials have said North and Poindexter helped engineer the possibly illegal diversion of Iran arms sale profits to the Contras. Owen was cited by Contra sources as the rebels' link to North.

Durenberger said that, as a result of their refusals to testify, the committee faced information "gaps."

"No one has proven yet that the Contras ended up with any money," he said.

Attorney General Edwin Meese said Nov. 25 that North was fired for diverting Iran arms sales profits to the Contras.

Lawmakers ponder danger of 5th Amendment misuse

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The decision by two former National Security Council officials to invoke their Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination Tuesday during a House Foreign Affairs Committee hearing troubled some members.

Vice Adm. John Poindexter, who resigned as President Reagan's national security adviser the day the Iran-Contrat scheme was made public, and Lt. Col. Oliver North, the Poindexter assistant fired by Reagan the same day, both cited the constitutional guarantee against giving evidence against one's self in refusing to answer any questions.

The lawmakers tried to ask North and Poindexter about their roles in what has become the biggest scandal of the Reagan administration. Their refusal to answer mirrored the events of last week during closed-door appearances before the Senate Intelligence Committee, when they also took the Fifth.

Later Tuesday, North refused on the same grounds to answer questions during a closed meeting of the House Intelligence Committee, and retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord, also linked to the Iran arms-Contrat aid controversy, similarly refused to testify before the Senate Intelligence Committee.

Rep. Lee Hamilton of Indiana, second ranking Democrat on the Foreign Affairs Committee, told Poindexter he had done some research and found that "at no time has an active duty admiral taken the Fifth Amendment before a congressional committee."

"It does distress me to see an admiral take the Fifth Amendment," he said.

Testaverde is UPI player of the year

MIAMI (UPI) — Hard work and confidence during his years on the bench propelled Miami quarterback Vinny Testaverde from an unknown backup two seasons ago into the premier player in college football in 1986.

Testaverde Tuesday added to his collection of postseason awards when he was named College Player of the Year by United Press International.

Testaverde, a 23-year-old of Elmont, N.Y., led the Hurricanes to a No. 1 ranking and 11-0 record in the regular season. Playing in 10 games, Testaverde completed 175 of 276 passes for 2,557 yards with 26 touchdowns and nine interceptions. He had a completion percentage of 63.4, and completed less than half his passes only once.

He came to Miami in 1982 from Fork Union Military Prep in Virginia, and was red-shirted in 1983, when the Hurricanes won the national championship. In 1984, he sat behind Bernie Kosar.

In his time on the bench, which included a year behind Jim Kelly, Testaverde said he never lost confidence in his ability and worked hard to improve. His chance to play came when Kosar left after the 1984 season for a million-dollar NFL contract.

Testaverde finished fifth in the Heisman voting last year and won the 1986 award as college football's best player in a landslide.

"I think those are the reasons that I am so satisfied with what I've accomplished because nothing came easy and I had to work real hard for everything I got," Testaverde said. "You cherish it a lot more when you work hard for it instead of when it's just handed to you."

At 6-foot-5 and 218 pounds, Testaverde has all the physical attributes needed to play quarterback. He runs a 4.8 40-yard dash, has a vertical leap of 30 inches and can bench press more than 325 pounds.

Not surprisingly, Testaverde is expected to be the first player selected in the April 23 NFL draft.

'Too-small' Palmer is top college rusher

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Paul Palmer, who at 5-foot-10 and 180 pounds was considered too small by many college recruiters. Tuesday was named college football Back of the Year by UPI.

Palmer rushed for 1,866 yards and set an NCAA record with 2,633 all-purpose yards. His second-place finish to Vinny Testaverde in the Heisman Trophy voting attracted attention to the Temple football program.

"I was not considered very big, I was not considered very good but I overcame everything I had to face," said Palmer, who set four NCAA and 2 Temple records during his college career. "I'm an example of someone who the odds were against who overcame those odds."

Palmer broke Marcus Allen's all-purpose yardage record of 2,559. His all-purpose average of 239.4 yards per game fell short of the NCAA mark of 246.3, held by Colorado's Byron "Whizzer" White.

Palmer set NCAA records for yards rushing in two consecutive games with 588, three consecutive games with 775, and four consecutive games with 987. He tied an NCAA mark with 417 all-purpose yards against East Carolina and his 349 rushing yards in that game were eight short of another NCAA record.

Palmer's 1,866 rushing yards this season were ninth best in NCAA history and his 4,895 career rushing yards places him sixth on the all-time list.

"I thought he had a fantastic season, especially looking at the statistics he achieved with a new offensive line," Temple Coach Bruce Arians said. "His leadership, confidence and ability blended into those kids. They got better knowing that if they blocked a little bit, Paul would do the rest."

Arians recognized Palmer was special in his freshman year when, replacing injured tailback Jim Brown, Palmer gained 98 yards against Boston College. That game convinced Palmer he could compete at the Division I level.

"Coach Arians told me as a freshman that if you remember your plays, you can be an All-America," Palmer said. "I don't know if he meant it or not but I took it as if he meant it so I remembered my plays."

Palmer had more than All-America honors on his mind, however.

Marathon officials disqualify runners

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City Marathon officials, who recently announced the disqualification of this year's second-place finisher, Tuesday disqualified 24 other competitors for cheating in the November race.

Those disqualified, including three of the top 100 finishers in the men's division, did not pass certain video camera checkpoints, race director Fred Lebow said.

Runners were caught cheating by the New York Road Runners Club, the race's organizer. Manual and videotape checkpoints are placed along the New York course at undisclosed locations. The videotape checkpoints were installed as a result of the Rosie Ruiz incident in the 1979 New York Marathon women's race. Ruiz crossed the finish line first, but was later disqualified for riding the subway during the race. She was also caught cheating after crossing the finish line first at the 1980 Boston Marathon.

"In a course 26-miles long, it's impossible to have a 100 percent failsafe system," Lebow said. "There is electronic equipment available — radio signals that are not perfected yet — that would, in the near future, be failsafe."

Poland's Antoni Niemczak,

who placed second in the men's race, was disqualified earlier when he twice tested positive for banned substances. The total of 25 disqualified runners sets a NYC Marathon record. Fourteen runners were disqualified from the 1985 race.

The disqualifications of John Bell, who won the Men's Masters Division and finished 69th overall, France's Stephen King, who finished 32nd in 2:19:17, and Warren Stehling of Milwaukee, who placed 42nd in 2:21:02, marked the first time any men in the top 100 had been caught cheating.

"I'm disgusted," Lebow said. "Disgusted that somebody would accept somebody else's award, knowing that he didn't deserve it. I'm mostly dismayed with Bell, that someone else actually won the race. And, he's done it before."

Bell, 44, of Marion, Ind., was timed in 2:25:15. Bell won a trophy and was to receive $3,000 for winning the Masters Division, for runners over 40.

Houston offers other tower equal wage

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Rockets, treating their Twin Towers as equals, will offer forward Ralph Sampson a longterm contract similar to the one center Akeem Olajuwon recently signed, club officials said.

General manager Ray Patterson said the Rockets "made a commitment to Ralph to pay him what Akeem is making. And we're going to do that."

Full details of Olajuwon's contract have not been revealed, but the 7-foot center received an eight-year extension to his current contract, which has two more years to run after this season. Olajuwon's extension is believed to be worth slightly more than $2 million a year for the eight-year term.

Patterson said at the time he would like for the 7-4 Sampson to sign a similar extension. Sampson is in the final season of a four-year, $5 million contract.

Olajuwon, who was second team All-NBA last season, averaged 23.5 points per game last season and had 781 rebounds, 231 blocked shots, 137 assists and 134 steals. Sampson averaged 18.9 points with 879 rebounds, 129 blocked shots, 238 assists and 99 steals.

Both players have suffered ankle injuries this season, but Olajuwon has averaged 24.8 points in 12 games, compared to Sampson's 15.3 points in six games. But a contract similar to that signed by Olajuwon would not be out of line with Sampson's "marketability" in the NBA, Patterson said.

Men swimmers place sixth in competitive U.S. Open

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

Saluki men's swim coach Doug Ingram told his team that they had a legitimate chance to be in the top eight teams at last weekend's U.S. Open. The Saluki tankers' sixth-place finish did not disappoint him.

The Salukis scored 97 points to finish behind fifth-place Alabama, Florida, Southern Cal, UCLA and Arizona State placed first through fourth, respectively.

Although the team did not repeat its fifth-place finish of a year ago, Ingram said his team had a "good" meet.

"We were pleased to be in that kind of company," said Ingram. "We just wanted to be as good as we could be."

The coach noted that the Salukis went into the competition in various stages of training. Some tankers used the U.S. Open as further training because they had more important meets ahead, said Ingram. Others were ready to perform at their best.

"We were in various states of training and because of that we saw very spotty results," said Ingram. "We'd have an event where we were great and we'd have an event where we were terrible."

Two of the events that Ingram cited as below par were the medley relay and the finals of the 800 relay.

Ingram noted, however, that he was extremely proud of the performance of senior Gary Brinkman. The Durbin, South Africa native swam the 1,500-meter freestyle in 15:26.32 to take third place. The coach said Brinkman swam an "intelligent" race.

"When it's such a long distance, you have to really know yourself and know what pace you're doing and hold a certain pace, certain strategies," said Ingram. "We asked him to hold an even pace but get faster each third of the race. He held right to it."

The Salukis will travel to Lincoln, Neb., this weekend to take on the tough Cornhuskers. Ingram said the Salukis will have their work cut out for them.

"They're hard enough to beat at home even when they're not having a good year, but they're having a good year," said Ingram.

Gymnasts rate 'a four' at Nebraska meet

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

"On a scale of one to ten, we performed about like a four," said Saluki gymnastics coach Bill Meade of his team's third-place finish at last weekend's Big 8 Invitational.

The Salukis, who were the defending champions of the meet, scored 262.80 to finish behind host Nebraska (276.20) and Oklahoma (270.15). Iowa State placed fourth with a score of 258.20.

Preston Knauf's exceptional performance on the vault was cited by Meade as one of the high points of the meet. Knauf, of Monticello, scored 9.45 to win the event.

Meade also cited freshman Scott Belanger as another athlete whose performance pleased him. The Londonderry, N.H., native competed in four of the six events and scored a 9.0 on the vault.

Pommel horse, the event that slowed the Salukis last year, is still a problem, said Meade. SIU missed four of five sets, said the coach.

"We've got too many guys on motorcycles down here and not enough horsemen," said Meade.

A minor stumbling block that the Salukis have had to contend with is the lack of practice time, said Meade. The gymnasts have had to work practice around the Saluki basketball team's home game schedule.

Shoulder injuries are another problem hindering the Salukis. Gymnasts Ken Clark, Mark Taylor and Phil Armand all have sore shoulders but should be ready to compete in the next meet, said Meade. The Windy City Invitational, which will be held Jan. 9-10, is next on the agenda.

Whitey says it is time for a neutral World Series site

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — Whitey Herzog said Tuesday he believes it is time for baseball to consider a neutral site for the World Series.

The manager of the St. Louis Cardinals said a neutral site would be the perfect way to make the event the greatest of all sports spectacles and eliminate the problems of hotel space, travel arrangements and postponements that remain a perennial headache to baseball officials.

"You can make the World Series the biggest spectacle in the world if you take it to New Orleans and play it in the dome," Herzog said at the winter baseball meetings. "The World Series and the Super Bowl. You could get 80,000 people for every game."

"You would have one off-day on Saturday and then go seven straight days. You'd get more revenues for TV and you wouldn't have to ever play at 5:30 like they do when the games are in California. You shouldn't be playing at that time.

"You wait and see, one of these years they'll be playing baseball until Armistice Day

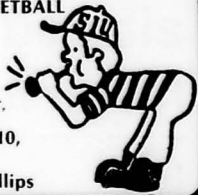

(Nov. 11). They're already playing almost to Halloween."

Herzog said the lack of hotel space and difficulties in airplane scheduling also would be solved.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS BASKETBALL OFFICIALS MEETING

Mandatory meeting for students interested in officiating basketball during spring semester.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10,

all right. Kohlenberger said the Wild Dogs had it in mind that he was in the net. "We controlled the game and they (the Chargers) only had 17 shots on goal," Kohlenberger said. Kohlenberger usually plays wing said he's more comfortable at wing, but he will be glad to play goalie if he's needed.

Steve Pelkowski said the Chargers goalie played well and the Wild Dogs could have scored more goals. "We hit the post three times," Pelkowski said. The Wild Dogs are in first place by eight points and they play the second place Evansville Horizons, Thursday night. Faceoff is at 9:15.

Clutch free throws down Purdue

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

Coach Cindy Scott had one word to describe the women's basketball Salukis 56-49 win over Purdue at Davies Gym Tuesday night.

"Stinky," Scott said, shaking her head. "Wasn't that a thing of beauty? I don't know if we left the team in California or in the air somewhere."

Case in point, junior forward Bridgett Bonds committed two atrocious fouls in the first 30 seconds. The Saluki scoring leader wound up playing just 15 minutes before fouling out late in the last half.

Nothing went right — even the pep band almost fouled out for performing during play.

But Saluki sophomore forward Dana Fitzpatrick saved the day, hitting four of five clutch free throws down the stretch to seal the win. She nailed 10 first half points to lead the struggling Salukis to a 25-18 halftime margin.

As much due to terrible aim as great defense, neither team surmounted 40 percent shooting in the gruesome opening period.

Boilermaker coach Marsha Reall said, "We had posed out players shooting 20-footers. Sometimes those things happen. You think you're open and can make them, although I've never even seen them shoot one in practice before."

It didn't get much better in the second half, either.

6-2 Saluki center Mary Berghuis blocked three shots — but she joined Bonds on the bench by also collecting four fouls by the 13:39 mark with the Salukis up 33-27.

Reall took that opportunity to order her club into pressuring for a comeback. But the Boilermakers didn't have as much success off the press as they hoped because they tired, Reall said.

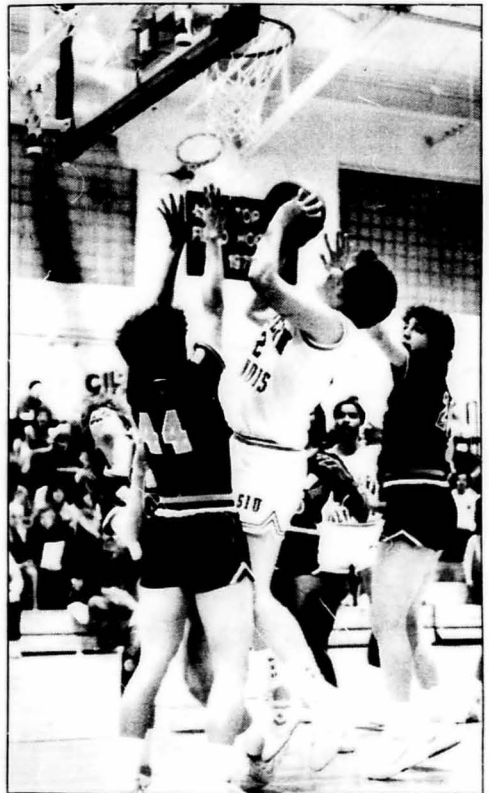

Senior forward Kay Sharp kept Purdue in the contest with long-range shots until Bonds returned with 9:16 left.

Then the Salukis switched from a potent player defense and dropped back to a zone to protect Bonds from foul trouble. That worked better for Purdue than the press.

"They killed us on the boards with offensive rebounding on our zone," Scott said. "We might as well have sat on the floor."

The Boilermakers pulled within two twice during the Salukis' zone stretch, on uncontested offensive rebound layups from 5-11 center-forward Cathey Tyree and 6-4 center Christa LaCroix.

The Salukis hung on with good defense and breaking the Boilermakers last-ditch efforts in the press.

Hockey club skates to 5th straight win

The Southern Illinois Wild Dogs ice hockey team charged to their ninth victory of the season as they defeated the Evansville Chargers 6-1 in Evansville Monday night. The Wild Dogs have a record of 9-1 and they are riding a five-game winning streak, their longest of the season.

Defenseman Tony Krause

continued his scoring rampage by scoring three goals. Krause has scored nine goals in his last three games. Even through Krause scores a lot of goals Captain Steve Pelkowski said Krause still plays good defense. "He hustles back and plays good defense if he's too far up the ice," Pelkowski said. Pelkowski also scored two goals and Scott Jeffrey's got the other Wild Dog goal.

Todd Trippany chipped in with two assists.

Darren Kohlenberger had to play goalie for the first time in ten years because the Wild Dogs regular goalie Dan Sokol wasn't at the game. "The last time I played goalie I was ten," Kohlenberger said. "It was pretty scary at first, but then I settled down and I was

Men hoopsters face altered Nebraska squad

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

Saluki coach Rich Herrin thinks his squad of hoopsters has something to prove to the Nebraska Cornhuskers Wednesday night in the Arena. Tipoff time is scheduled for 7:35 p.m.

The Huskers are 1-2 this season with a 76-60 win over Oregon sandwiched between losses to Cal-Irvine and Missouri Valley Conference foe Creighton.

Last season, the Salukis traveled to Nebraska for their third contest of the season and were victims of an 85-50 thrashing. Herrin called that mismatch SIU-C's "worst performance of the season."

"We really stunk the place up," Herrin said of the 35-point loss, the worst loss of his collegiate career. "We played terrible and they just tore us apart."

"I think we owe 'em one," Herrin concluded.

Size and talent-wise, Herrin said the Salukis will have a better chance against Nebraska than against either Virginia or New Orleans, two opponents who downed the Dogs this weekend via superior size and talent.

The Huskers have lost Dave Hoppen, who ripped the Dogs for 22 points on a 9-of-9 field goal performance. The Hoppen legacy includes 61.6 percent field goal shooting and 22.1 points and seven boards per

Revenge a factor for Salukis

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

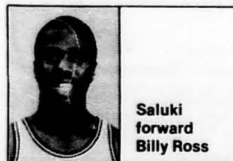

In what Rich Herrin called the Salukis' worst performance of the season, Nebraska shelled the cagers by 35 points last season in Herrin's, the Saluki's and SIU-C's worst defeat of the sports year.

Saluki forward Doug Novsek said the game was over 10 minutes into the contest.

"We played pretty bad," said Novsek. "We were tired from traveling and they just blew us out."

But Novsek and teammate Billy Ross — both of whom had pained facial expressions at the mention of 6-11 former Husker center Dave Hoppen — brightened considerably at the thought of a rematch.

"We definitely have something to prove," Ross

Saluki forward Billy Ross

said, "But I think we want and need to prove it to ourselves more than we need to prove it to Nebraska."

The tallest Saluki on the floor last year was reed-thin 6-8 Grant Martin, who played just 10 minutes due to his lack of experience. The next tallest Saluki was 6-7 Ken Dusharm, and the other six players who saw action averaged under 6-3.

The Salukis tried to contain Nebraska's All-America candidate with various sagging zone defenses, but when SIU-C went man-toman, the 6-4 Ross drew the unenviable task of guarding the big man.

Even though Ross, in just his third game in the collegiate ranks, gave up seven in his in height, he did play well, scoring over Hoppen and finishing with five rebounds and 10 points.

This year, with Hoppen gone, the size advantage is nullified. That has Ross and teammates feeling a lot more comfortable.

"They don't have the great size or talent like last year, Hoppen is gone and we've added a big man of our own," Ross said. "Plus, we'll be playing at home."

Novsek agreed the home court advantage could be a factor, saying the team felt they "could play with just about anyone at home in the Arena."

game averages, not to mention his role as team leader.

Also gone from last year's squad are starters Harvey Marshall (point guard) and John Matzke (forward), who graduated with Hoppen.

The Cornhuskers even lost their coach, Moe Iba, who quit in protest to strong booster pressure to win with the same frequency as the Husker gridders.

Ironically enough, Iba quit immediately after guiding Nebraska to a 19-11 record and a first-ever NCAA appearance. He officially resigned before exiting the floor where his Huskers were eliminated in first-round action by Western Kentucky.

First-year coach Danny Nee is covering for the loss of Hoppen with a three-forward starting lineup, part of his new system.

Despite their lack of overwhelming size and inside strength, the Huskers have managed to rebound their opponents this season. The matchup with the Salukis, themselves a strong team off the boards, promises to be a physical one.

Husker senior Bill Jackman, at 6-8, is the tallest stalk this season and leads the team with a 9.3 per game rebounding average. Not much of a threat on the inside offensively, Jackman likes to shoot from outside and ranks third on the team in three-pointers, hitting 3-of-5.

Bernard Day (6-4 senior forward) and Brian Carr (6-0 senior guard) have resumed starting roles from last season, along with returning letterman leader Anthony Bailous (6-2 senior guard) and Joel Sealer (6-0 junior guard).

Other Huskers who expect to see considerable action are juno transfers Derrick Vick, a 6-6 forward, and 6-0 guard Henry Buchanan. Both started last season for Hutchinson (Kan.) Community College.

Similar to the Salukis, Nebraska likes to play up-tempo basketball on offense. Scoring leader Bailous (17.3 ppg) is a superb athlete and is the biggest Husker threat with the ball.

SIU-C will have an advantage on three-point shooting. While the Huskers have hit 17 of 37 bonus shots, SIU-C has canned 32 of 51 three pointers.
