I have reached the end of my second semester as the photo editor at the DAILY EGYPTIAN. Over the course of the past year, I have learned many things in my position that will help me greatly down the road. Here are a few tidbits of wisdom that you may have heard before but will still find helpful.

My Two Cents

BY STEVE JAHNKE
sjahnke@dailyegyptian.com

do not have to be a jerk about it, but if you do not stand up for yourself, people will take advantage of you and your job will become that much more difficult.

All of this might sound like common knowledge, but you will definitely encounter these situations in any job you will work.

I myself am making the steps towards entering the "real world" when I graduate on Saturday. However, I have decided that I will stay for another semester in order to further my knowledge and increase my opportunities for getting a job. I will return in the spring as a staff photographer where I will go back to what I love doing the most: shooting. I know that all the long nights, headaches, arguments and stress that I incurred as photo editor will benefit me in whatever I do down the road, but I want to be a photographer first and an administrator second.

I enjoyed the opportunity to take on the role as editor for a second time while at the paper. It gave me the chance to correct the mistakes I made the first time around. I was glad I had a talented staff of people to work with and I think that as a group, we presented images of everyday life in the Southern Illinois region to the best of our abilities.

I hope that we offered both pleasing and informative images all semester that had an impact on you the reader. I hope that you enjoy seeing the images in this issue as much as we enjoyed taking them.

- 1) Do not bite off more than you can chew. You might think that you can handle a large load of work, and you want to help out as many people as you can, but in the end, you realize that you have taken on much more than you can handle. This creates numerous problems for everyone. Trust me, you can say "No!" every now and then and people will still respect you.
- 2) Always make some time for yourself. You can get fully immersed in what you are doing and still enjoy it, but if you do not get away from your job every now and then to get some rest and relaxation, you will go insane. Making time for yourself will make you a more pleasant person to work with, and you will accomplish more.
- 3) Do not be afraid to express your opinion and stand your ground on it. This is one that I am still learning, but it is essential to having people respect you at work. You

Chancellor Walter Wendler (center) was involved in a two-car collision outside the Communications Building Sept. 13. His '95 Oldsmobile, owned by the University, collided with a car driven by SIUC student Steve Mette (left). No one was injured in the accident. Wendler was cited for failure to yield on a left turn. "I turned into the parking lot and then, boom, the airbag came out," Wendler said after the accident.

SIU President James E. Walker observes Faculty Association members picket for higher faculty salary increases outside of the Board of Trustees meeting in the Student Center Ballroom on Oct. 10. Although the salary increases were not on the meeting's agenda, members of the Faculty Association wanted to express their frustrations with the slow negotiation process. The group of 10 to 15 faculty members created the signs, some of which read, "Contract by Halloween" and "Make a Real Offer."

Mason Tippy, 10, of Pomona protests against the threat of war against Iraq on the corner of South Illinois Avenue and Walnut Street. The Peace Coalition of Southern Illinois covered the Carbondale Town Square Pavilion with posters and papier-mâché doves supporting government peace. Tippy worked with his mother, Kay Rippelmeyer-Tippy, to create his sign. His mother has been keeping him informed about current events, including the possibility of war in Iraq.

"They say cutbacks, we say fight back!" was one of the chants shouted heard near the administration offices at Anthony Hall during a picket in November. The student organizers of the protest hoped to bring the mounting problems between the faculty and administration of the University to light.

SIU's Army ROTC program made use of Neckers Building for rappelling practice. "Rappelling is completely safe," according to Lt. Col. James S. Shutt. "It's just a way to get down a cliff, but we use it as a confidence builder. It has let our students know that they can do things that they haven't done before." SIU's ROTC program has 106 students enrolled, from freshman to graduate students, and it accepts both the experienced and inexperienced in military service. "There's a place for everyone who's inclined," said Shutt.

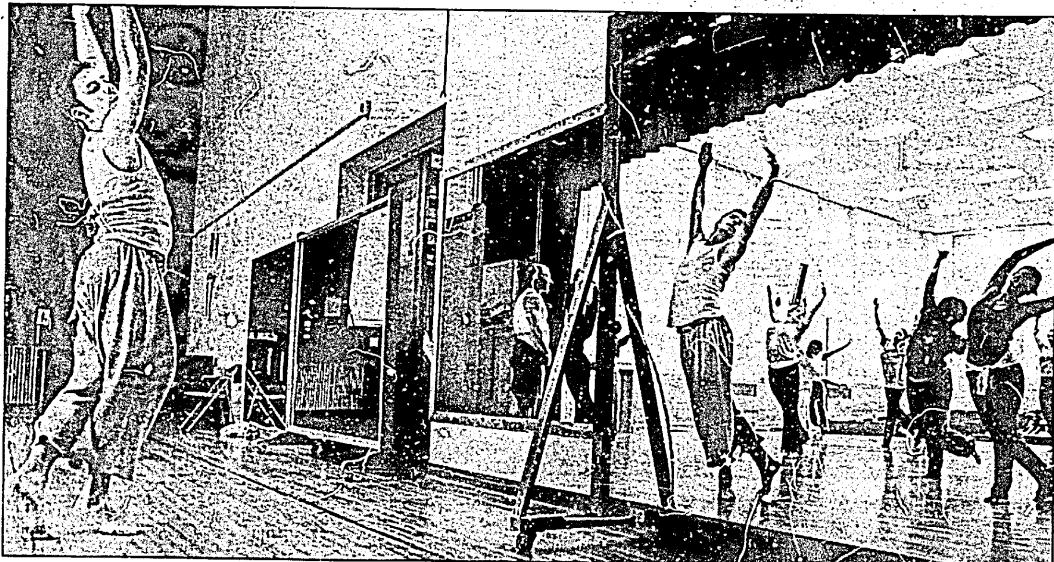

Larry Dietz (left), vice chancellor for Student Affairs and Enrollment Management, and T.J. Rutherford (right), director of the Student Center, race on tricycles in the hallway outside the Student Center's Old Main Restaurant during First Thursday festivities the first week of the semester. Despite Rutherford's two-tricycle lead at the finish line, Dietz stole first place and was rewarded the satisfaction of his win.

A New Yorker who calls himself Clifford sells flags on a street corner near ground zero in Manhattan on Sept. 11, 2002. New York City vendors sold patriotic emblems to the pensive crowds that gathered from all over the world to remember victims and to celebrate life. Eddie Adams, a photojournalist who documented the Vietnam War, offered a photography workshop from Sept. 9 to 15 in New York. DAILY EGYPTIAN staff photographer Ronda Yeager was among nearly 100 students and professionals from around the world that descended on the city to document the somber anniversary.

2002 CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY
 Please Be Sure To Check Your Classified Advertisement For Errors On The First Day Of Publication

The Daily Egyptian cannot be responsible for more than ONE day's incorrect insertion (no exceptions). Advertisers are responsible for checking their ads for errors on the FIRST day they appear. Advertisers stopping insertions are responsible for checking their ads on the FIRST day they are to cease appearing. The Daily Egyptian will not be responsible for more than one day's insertion for a classified ad that is to be stopped. Errors not the fault of the advertiser which lessen the value of the advertisement will be adjusted.

Classified advertising running with the Daily Egyptian will not be automatically renewed. A callback will be given on the day of expiration. If customer is not at the phone number listed on their account it is the responsibility of the customer to contact the Daily Egyptian for ad renewal.

All classified advertising must be processed before 2 p.m. to appear in the next day's publication. Anything processed after 2 p.m. will go in the following day's publication.

Classified advertising must be paid in advance except for those accounts with established credit. A service charge of $25.00 will be added to the advertiser's account for every check returned to the Daily Egyptian unpaid by the advertiser's bank. Early cancellations of classified advertisement will be charged a $2.50 service fee. Any refund under $2.50 will be forfeited due to the cost of processing.

All advertising submitted to the Daily Egyptian is subject to approval and may be revised, rejected, or cancelled at any time.

The Daily Egyptian assumes no liability if for any reason it becomes necessary to omit any advertisement.

Yasmine Farag finished the fall '02 season with a 2-3 singles mark and 1-0 doubles mark in the No. 6 position for the Saluki women's tennis team. After finishing the Spring '02 season early due to list of injuries that left the team with only three players, the Salukis' rebounded by signing five recruits, of which Farag was one, over the summer and returned three players from the spring season. The young team competed well for their age and is expected to do even better in this coming spring.

A large crowd of SIU students and fans packed in the Student Center ballroom on Oct. 7 to listen to underground film guru John Waters speak about his long career directing films such as "Pink Flamingos" and "Pecker." "Bad taste is what entertainment is all about," said Waters in response to a question from the audience.
