By Don Hecke
Southern's first "Fine Arts Festival," opening Sunday, will mark the beginning of the most concentrated program of cultural entertainment in the 82-year history of the school.

"Form in the Creative Arts" is the theme for the two weeks of lectures, recitals, concerts, dance and drama presentations and an exhibit of paintings.

The festival will begin with an exhibit of 19th and 20th century paintings in Allen Art Gallery from 3 to 5 p. m. Sunday.

Among the artists imported for the festival are the Canadian Players of Stratford, Ont., in their new production of George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan"; the Eton and Dance Company with Pauline Koner in a master dance lesson; harpichordist Fernando Valenti in two lecture-recitals; and the Walden String Quartet in a recital of contemporary music.

Comedy Of Errors

We're anxious to buy a student directory — if only for a souvenir.
When, or if, the books arrive on campus this year will be out of date. A great number of telephone numbers, addresses and student names will be inaccurate.
The directory information was compiled from lists collected last fall, according to Elbert Fulkerson, secretary of the faculty.
"The book was printed months ago. The delay apparently is with a St. Louis binding firm. That's the excuse anyway. Meanwhile thousands of students, faculty and staff members are growing weary of excuses.
Mr. Fulkerson, we think it's time to crack this whip."

French's Star Title Of Voigt, Swayne Article
"French's Shooting Star in Southern Illinois", an article written by Dr. John W. Voigt and Julius R. Swayne appeared in the December issue of Rhodora, a journal of the New England Botanical Club.
Dr. Voigt is an assistant professor of botany at SIU and Swayne is an alumna of SIU teaching biology at Hillsboro.
The article concerns the flowering French's Shooting Star, discovered by Southern's first biology teacher, G. H. French, Dr. Voigt said.
"The unusual thing about the little flower," Dr. Voigt stated, "is that it is found only in Southern Illinois. Its distribution covers an area about 10 miles wide across the southern part of the state and is found in 19 different states, including Giant City where it was first discovered."
Exploring the area to find the flower's stations, Dr. Voigt investigated its ecology for any light that it would throw on its taxonomic status.
"That is, some people regard it as a species and others regard it as a variety," Dr. Voigt said. "The information that I have gathered shows it to be a distinct species."

Vets Collide In Classroom Marriage To Local Girls Reunites Three Cadets

Three men who were stationed at Southern as Air Force cadets in 1943 and returned after the war to marry local girls are back in the same classrooms again.
Each of the three was unaware the others were living in the area until all signed up for an evening course in English at the Unit this term. One of the men is a native of Southern Illinois, one formerly lived in New Jersey and another in New York.

Invitations Sent For 'Operation Shanty'

"You are hereby designated as an honorary member of this crew without the rights and privileges of such an honorarium. Your selection was based on only the highest qualities possible for so select a group. In fact, you are one of ten people throughout the world to whom this honorary membership has been extended. YOU WILL accept."
This was a part of the "invitation" sent to the Wildlife Research staff last month, "asking" them to take part in "Operation Shanty."
"Operation Shanty," which took place on Jan. 14 and 15, was to build a shanty to be used as headquarters for research personnel and crew works at the strip-mining area between Finckeyville and Murphysboro.
The 12-foot by 14-foot shack has three windows and a door. Eventually, it will be furnished with a couple of bunks, a desk or table and a heating stove.
"The idea is to have a place to store materials, as well as a place to work crews to spend the night," said Dr. Willard D. Klimstra, director of Wildlife Research.
"The shanty is right in the middle of the strip mine area, adjacent to a small pond," he said. "Twelve staff members showed up to help with the construction. I was chief cook and bottle washer and Dr. Howard J. Stains was the general construction supervisor."
"We lived royally, if I was the cook. Sunday menu included stew of tomatoes, peas, and fried chicken, all cooked outside."

Dr. Lindegen's Article Questions Gene Theory

By Bob Scranton

In an article written for "Nature," an international scientific publication, Dr. Carl C. Lindegen, director of Biological Research, questions the old theory of the place of the gene in the living cell and has received worldwide requests for reprints of the article.

Requests have been received by Dr. Lindegen from scientists in such places as Ibadan, Nigeria in Africa; Budapest, Hungary, Copenhagen, Denmark, and several requests from England. Requests were also received from all sections of the United States and Canada.

The article, entitled "Is the Gene Prime Mover?", questions the theory of the place occupied by the gene in the development of the cell. The theory has been that the gene developed before the rest of the cell. The importance of the gene in the cell at present is not questioned.

In explaining his theory, Dr. Lindegen uses an analogy between the living organism and the city of Chicago. He states that if Chicago were deprived of electrical devices it would perish as a city and another city would take its place but that Chicago became an organized city before the development of electricity. In the same way the cell may have developed before development of the gene but that the gene is important to the survival of the cell to day.

"The secret of life is not to be found in the structure of any given chemical but in the organization and association which makes the whole cell capable of producing all the components necessary to the synthesis of all the cellular organelles when placed in an adequate milieu. This statement does not solve the secret but it denies that the solution lies in the gene alone," says the article.

"Life must have originated by the association of a synthesizing enzyme with a protein under some circumstances (depending upon structural inter-relationships) by which the protein and the enzyme were reconstituted together."

"The demonstration of the essential nature of the gene depends upon the fact that deletion of a gene produces a lethal result, according to the article.

"One ordinarily thinks of controlling, supervising and coordinating functions as relatively recent but rather primary activities of organizations whether they be cities or countries or cultures; genes may be recent agents in the origin of life carrying on functions similar to those of the electrical devices in a city such as Chicago," says Dr. Lindegen.

Alumni Clubs Plan Programs

Saluki Cagers Close Season's Play With Normal, Western

SIU cagers close out IAC and regular season play this weekend with three games in mind, a double win over Western and Illinois Normal, second place in the IAC and a possible bid to the NMAA playoffs.

The trip seems to be a rough one, however, as the Salukis lose the Illinois Normal Redbirds here tonight and face the league-leading Western Leathernecks tomorrow.

The Redbirds hold the services of the highest scoring player in league history, Fred Marlberry. Marlberry who is also the leading rebounder in the conference, boasts a 28.6 points per game average in league play for 314 points. This total has already eclipsed the record set by another Normal great, Bill Sarver with 298.

Normal is currently in fourth place in the league standings with a five win, six loss record, and could play the spoiler role by knocking Southern out of second.

Normal beat the Salukis 94-81 earlier this year.

Western's highly touted squad is riding the crest of a 21-game winning streak, ten in the IAC play. The overall record for the Leathernecks is 24-1, the only loss coming at the hands of Kirkville in the third game of the year.

Another accomplishment of the Westerners is the winning of the NMAA tipoff tournament in December.

SIU will be seeking revenge for the 73-87 defeat at the hands of Western earlier this season.

Leading the Leathernecks is center Chuck Schramm, who is second in league scoring so far this year. The 6-6 pivot comes into the contest averaging 19.5 points per game for the year.

Rounding out the Western lineup are 6-3 Marshall Semon and 6-2 Lupo Rios at forward.

Brothers Don and Gene Tietz, 6-3 and 6-4 respectively, at guards.

In reserve for the Westerners is 6-7 Ron Nikavech, who is the second leading scorer for the Leathernecks and is averaging 14.2 per game.

Last year, the Salukis fouled the Westerners their only loss in league play and are hoping to repeat the feat tomorrow night.

For the two games, SIU coach Lynn Holder will probably move 6-7 Larry Whitlock into center with Seymour Bryson and Warren Talley at forwards, and Joe Johnson and Dick Blythe at guards.

Also slated for duty are Robert Welch and Gus Doss.

Blythe and Johnson, the Saluki captains, are making their final home, and possibly last, in Southern territory, appearance Saturday night.

Western is being considered for a bid to go directly to the NMAA tournament in Kansas City. If they receive this bid and Southern retains possession of second in the IAC, the Salukis could be considered for a berth in the playoffs.

The final selections are being made Sunday.

Tennis Hopes To Go South Spring Vacation

A trip through the South will provide added incentive to those interested in trying out for the SIU varsity tennis team this year according to John Larkins, SIU tennis coach.

Those boys who wish to report for training are to attend a meeting of all hopefuls Monday in room 201W of the Women's Gym.

Expected to lead the hopefuls attending the meeting is team captain Bill Merriman along with three other returning lettermen from last year's squad which had a 4-6 and 6-0 win-loss record. The other returning letterman are Don McRaven, Dick Cole, and Bill Whitensberg. Considerable help will also come from two letterman Jack Norman and Omar Winner who have returned from hitchhiking in the winter.

Promising newcomers who will greet Larkins here are Green, Jim Shunklin, Jim Jaret, and Merrell Rosenthal.

Larkins will be making his first attempt at scholastic coaching this year succeeding last year's coach Bill Kruse. Larkins came to SIU after being the tennis pro at Lake Geneva Country Club, Lake Geneva, Wis.

Joe Johnson (left) and Dick Blythe make their final appearance barring a bid to the NMAA playoffs, in Saluki uniforms tomorrow night when SIU hosts Western. The two seniors have been the regular guards for the Salukis this season and both have contributed over 200 points to the scoring effort. Johnson was the year's captain.

First, Last Places In Cage Race Decided

First and last place in the IAC basketball race were established as the result of last week's action.

Western Illinois with ten wins and no defeats could drop its remaining games with Eastern Southern and still win the crown, while Michigan Normal, although greatly improved, could win its remaining encounter against Northern Illinois and not advance in IAC standings.

The Hoosiers have won one of 11 league games.

In facing to the league crown, Coach Lynn Holder's Western Leathernecks have averaged 105 points in ten games and compiled 23 wins and suffered only one defeat in overall play.

Sixth place Northern actually has the most to gain with victories in their coming trip into Michigan for 2 games. A brace of wins for the Huskies could move them into a possible tie for fourth place with Illinois Normal.

Northern meets Central Michigan tonight and travels to Michigan Normal tomorrow.

With no game at stake, Western Illinois travels to Eastern tonight and meets Indiana for a tilt with the Salukis tomorrow. Victories for

4 Men Average More Than 10 Points Talley Still Leads Scoring Parade

The above four with guard Dick Blythe, have scored 200 or more points over the season's play. Forward Warren Talley still leads the parade with 298 points for 21 games.

Talley seems like a sure bet to pass the 300 mark in the last two games of the season coming up tonight and tomorrow night, and has a chance to reach the 350 points scored mark for one season.

Intramurals

By Bill Rupp

A major upset in the intramural basketball program was perpetrated by the Fighting Foxes Monday night when they downed the Bootleggers in a tight game, 49-48. The Bootleggers, favored to win the all-school crown, were slow starting and almost as slow all the way through the game and the Foxes took advantage of their slowness to take the victory for the opportunity to meet the Fla. losers.

These will be no campus-recreational League championship since the Egyptian goes to press before the game was played, the 5 o'clock.

Jim Deen scored 19 points to lead the winners in the game while Mucklovick of the losers was tying him for high point honors with the same number.

In the other game played U. D. "A" team outlasted U. D. "B" 46 to 42. Chesnek led all the way through the game and the Foxes took advantage of their slowness to take the victory for the opportunity to meet the Fla. losers.
