What does the Makanda crime watch have to do with the rescue of U.S. Brig. Gen. James Dover, who was kidnapped in Italy by terrorists? Student protest urged for trustees' meeting.

When Dan Presley, the founder, said the "secret" plan behind the Makanda crime watch might have helped Italian police commandos locate General Dover. He wasn't kidding. The secret plan behind the Makanda crime watch has been very successful, he called the U.S. Embassy in Rome and told them about it. "We had the police looking for General Dover for a couple of days," Presley said. The plan has been used to apprehend nine criminals since the watch's inception on Aug. 1.

Presley said that a reward fund is set up by taking collections and having fundraisers. The rewards for certain criminals' convictions are set by four uninterested community citizens. A poster saying that the reward is given for evidence leading to the criminal's conviction is then placed, Presley said.

Presley leaned forward in his plush leather chair and lowered his voice. "I'm pretty sure they did. Gen. Dover was located in about 3 days," he said.

Here we go again; snowstorm socks city

A physical plant worker said a university snow plow would be used to clear campus roads and two parking lots, and that workers would clear and salt university roads for students.

The Southern Illinois Airport's weather forecast on Monday called for an accumulation of four to six inches of snow by Tuesday afternoon, when snowfall was expected to stop. A winter storm watch will be in effect Monday afternoon.

At press time, there was no information available on possible school closings or cancellations.

Eight SIU System capital projects have been halted as a result of Gov. James Thompson's 36 percent freeze on state building projects, according to David Fields, assistant press secretary and governor.

The ELIMINATION of graduate and professional students' eligibility from the GSL program, coupled with increased tuition and fees, will totally preclude some students from coming to law school," Land said. See PROTEST, Page 3

Gus says protecting the tuition increase will be about as effective as wishing away the snow.

Reagan wants the production of chemical weapons resumed

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan formally set the stage Monday for resuming the manufacture of new chemical weapons after a lapse of nearly 13 years.

The president, in a brief letter to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., told Congress that the production of new lethal nerve gas munitions "is essential to the national interest."

This formal certification is required by law before production can begin.

Reagan's decision was foreshadowed in his new defense budget for 1983, in which he requested $464 million for chemical warfare, a major increase over last year's $332 million.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, in his annual report, said the Pentagon plans to produce two new chemical binary agents - a 1,800 ton artillery shell containing the nerve agent GT and the epoxy bor-b, which would release a nerve agent called VX.

A binary weapon is one in which two packages are packaged separately in non-liquid form, but become killing nerve gases when they mix in the air or on people. Specialists say such weapons are safe for U.S. troops and civilians and dangerous only to enemy in the target area.

"The Soviets are clearly ready and able to deploy chemical weapons," Weinberger said in his report.

"Deficiencies in our current offensive and defensive capabilities could encourage the use of chemical weapons against us."

"Our objectives are to produce modern and safer chemical munitions suitable to deter first use by any nation and to improve the readiness and effectiveness of our defense equipment."

In his brief letter of certification to O'Neill, Reagan did not specifically mention the Soviet Union, but he said:

"Considering the current world situation, particularly the presence of a verifiable ban on producing and stockpiling chemical weapons, the United States must do all it can to deter chemical warfare.

"Such a deterrence requires modernization of our retaliatory capability, as well as improvement of our chemical warfare protective measures."

As he signed the first of two green-bonded copies of the fiscal book with a ceremonial pen, Reagan quipped, "That's the weekend reading for Tip O'Neill."

"I'll send the pen with it," Reagan added. "I'm sure they may want to make some further in it."

Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia countered a Democratic assassin charged after a short courtesy briefing at the White House that the budget shows the president has forgotten his roots and is associated with that country-club type of people.

"Well," Byrd said, "I've been counterattacking during a signing ceremony in the West Wing. I've only played golf once since I've been president, and he's in a vetetarian golfer, and I'm sure he must have to go to a country club to play golf."

Jet crashes with 174 aboard

TOKYO (AP) — A Japan Air Lines DC-8 with 174 people aboard crashed Tuesday morning into the slopes of a bay just short of a runway at Haneda Airport. Police said at least 13 people were killed and 35 were rescued. Police said all those rescued were injured and 13 were in serious condition.

The plane approached in clear weather, apparently hit approach-light stanchions extending into the bay and struck the water about 1,500 feet short of the runway. The nose broke off and the aircraft was resting on the bottom.

Japan fire blamed on inadequacies

TOKYO (AP) — Inadequate fire prevention and under staffing were blamed for the spread of a fire that raged through the upper two floors of a factory hotel Monday, killing 31 people and sending 15 injured to hospitals.

It was not immediately known what started the pre-dawn fire in the 600-room hotel in central Tokyo. One man from California was listed among the dead, and an American woman who jumped four floors to escape the flames was hospitalized with serious injuries.

Williams' parents cited for contempt

ATLANTA (AP) — Wayne B. Williams and an expert defense witness were cited for contempt of court Monday by the trial judge, who said they had violated his order by discussing the murder case with the news media.

Judge Clarence Cooper said Homer and Faye Williams had discussed the case on a radio talk show, thus violating the judge's order barring potential witnesses from talking with the media about the trial.

Cooper also cited N-W York pathologist Daniel Stowens for contempt after Stowens admitted granting two newspaper interviews about the case in December.
Tom Dosett, a law student, said at the hearing that "if the University continues to increase costs while at the same time student aid is being trimmed, students won't apply.

But while Shaw concedes that there "will be an access problem," he said "the key variable is not tuition, but the pulling away of the federal government."

"At least we can say in good conscience that tuition for the School of Law is a great bargain — in terms of the education students receive and the considerable benefits they receive after graduation," Shaw said. However, Lund disagreed that law students receive "considerable benefits" after graduation.

"ALTHOUGH I cannot guarantee the accuracy of these figures, I'm pretty sure that I'm correct in saying that 47 percent of attorneys under $5 make $25,000 or less a year. Weighing that against doing an undergraduate graduate who will make at least that, I think the administration's rationale for raising law student's tuition is invalid," Lund said.

The law students also protested the tuition increase because they view it as a differential increase, not applying to undergraduate and graduate students.

"As law students understand that tuition must go up a certain amount," Lund said, "but we're opposed to a differential tuition increase. We would have no qualms if tuition for undergraduate and graduate students were being raised at the same rate," Lund said.

David Waltirp, a law student, said at the hearing that he thought it a trend toward differential tuition continues, students eventually would base their choice of a major on financial considerations.

LUND AGREED, saying the law students fear that "in the future, students will select majors on the basis of cost.

Students also criticized the University's paid leave policy, citing the payment of $20,000 to George Mac, the former vice-president for university relations, at a time when dollars for higher education are scarce.

Janet Rivers, a member of the Graduate Student Council, asked the administrators present to "put a freeze on administrative salaries," saying that the "salaries of administrators should not outweigh the salaries of faculty the way they do." At SIU-C.

In response, Shaw said that a "serious attempt has been made to deal with the issue, but salaries are a condition of the market." He said that SIU-C is not in a competitive position to pay the same salaries as institutions in terms of administrative salaries.

But despite the law students' protests against the proposed 35.5 percent tuition increase at the hearing, the University administration seems to remain firm in its support for the proposed increase.

Lund said he thought the administration used the hearing "as a vehicle to lay out their rationale for the tuition increases and didn't answer the law students' questions directly."

"The points that the students raised are very important policy questions," Shaw said Monday, "but obviously, I didn't agree with them."

The final report of the Task Force on Academic Program Priorities will be presented to the Faculty Senate when it meets at 3:10 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center.

President Albert Somit has agreed to accept the report, which forms a committee on academic priorities comprised of members from all academic constituencies.

The task force will advise the university president and the vice president for academic affairs and research on possible reallocation of financial resources among the existing 200 academic programs. If the Faculty Senate approves the document, it's my guess the university president will implement it within the next 60 days," said Martin Kleinman, president of the Faculty Senate.

The primary purpose of the task force was to compare programs in order to maximize the university's financial resources. Somit added a clause to the report giving the president power to appoint additional members to the committee at his discretion.

The task force recommends that any changes proposed by the committee be approved by the president and that an annual re-evaluation of the process be undertaken.

Also included on the Faculty Senate's agenda is a report on the Task Force on Towards Including Merit Pay. merit pay is given to instructors in recognition of exceptional performance.

Herbert Donow, chairman of the Faculty Status and Welfare Committee, said the report is not ready to be presented to the Faculty Senate. However, he plans to explain some of the alternative ways of looking at merit.

"The task force report on rewards shows very little imagination," Donow said. "I'm pretty sure that I'm non-salary merit rewards, an alternative could conceivably be 'release time.'"

This would involve "leasing" an instructor for a few hours of course time as a reward for excellence.

Another concern of Donow's is whether merit rewards are effective. "They are supposed to reward excellence, but we have not been given enough research done to doubt that it works."

Donow suggested doing sample studies over the next 10 years to determine how well merit has worked.

Unemployment in Jackson County drops, could rise

The unemployment rate in Jackson County improved somewhat in December — dropping to 8.3 percent from December's 8.5 percent rate.

But expectations for the next few months are not so good.

According to David T. Koch, labor market economist for the Illinois Department of Labor's Bureau of Employment Security in Murphysboro, unemployment should rise again in March to about 9.4 percent.

In December, a total of 26,258 people were employed and 3,390 were unemployed in Jackson County. Koch said.

Koch attributed the lower unemployment rate in December to the openings of several new businesses. They included two new restaurants in Carbondale and two grocery stores in Murphysboro.

Also, a new radio station in Ava, which began operations in January, had employed workers before the December rate was figured.

Koch said the projected March unemployment rate of 9.4 percent means that there will be about 300 less people working than in December.

The projected rate in unemployment is due partly to the closings of two metal manufacturing plants, both located in rural Murphysboro. Also, a number of local government cutbacks in a number of areas will affect the employment situation.

A decline in the number of construction jobs due to lower gas prices will also be reflected in the projected March unemployment rate.
Cutting back Job Service is result of twisted logic

The reduction of funding for the federal Job Service Program was a case of twisted logic. The program went along with the Reagan administration in cutting back Job Service as a way to reduce the cost of government by eliminating unnecessary bureaucracy, but it failed to cut a single program. This was a classic example of government acting as it please. The result was an increase in the cost of government by putting more people on welfare and unemployment pay, instead of jobs.

Fortunately, some congressmen have raised a loud outcry against this example of Reaganomics. Sen. Allan Dixon and Charles Percy of Illinois both introduced the reduction. Two weeks ago, a bill to restore funding was introduced into the House of Representatives by U.S. Rep. Sidney Yates, D-Chicago. It was co-sponsored by a half-dozen other congressmen.

It's appropriate that Simon, representing Southern Illinois should be in the forefront of the fight against this financial mismanagement. For Southern Illinois, the reduction is bad news at a bad time. Job Service offices in Marion, Harrisburg and Herrin in Franklin all stand to be closed if funding is not restored. Offices in Carbondale and Murphysboro will be spared, with the help in Carbondale's case of the city's council of local businessmen.

Reducing the scope of the program will only aggravate already horrendous unemployment rate in Southern Illinois. In December, Perry and Pulaski Counties ranked from 11 to 15 percent for 1981, compared to a national average of 7.4 percent. In Alexander County, the rate was an astronomical 18.4 percent, much more than the national average. Even in relatively healthy areas like Jackson and Randolph Counties, the average was 14.9 percent.

Clearly, if any place needs federal assistance to help provide economic relief, it is Southern Illinois. Thanks to a depressed economy and a shrinking coal industry in particular, the two industries that fund the job finding help it can get to keep its economy afloat.

Eliminating the Job Service will only force Southern Illinois deeper into the economic morass. It will mean a useless government bureaucracy, but eliminating something many people use and need.

The effectiveness of the program is beyond question. Nearly 150,000 Illinois residents were placed in permanent jobs through Job Service. And in February, the Carbondale office was opened in 1972, more than 10,000 people found jobs through the program.

Shut down the Job Service at a time like this borders on insanity. It's a case of cutting the least meat of the fat. In its place, the government should be spending more to create jobs.

A LARGE boulder placed in the path of a rolling stone may be sure of reaching the bottom of the hill.

Similarly, a proposal by Health and Human Services Secretary Richard Schweiker is designed to place such a barrier in front of the growing number of sexually-active teenagers.

Schweiker has proposed that teens no longer be protected by confidentiality when seeking birth control assistance or information from the Family Planning Councils located throughout the country.

But just as a rolling stone with enough momentum can dislodge that boulder, sending it disastrously careening down the hill, this proposal, if implemented, will do more harm than good.

Family Planning Councils, funded by the government, provide categorical grant program, which is now received by law to maintain confidentiality throughout the country, including Illinois.

Schweiker's proposal is a direct contradiction to the existing law-a law designed to protect the complete dignity of the individual. As the law states, no one will be notified if a teen seeks birth control assistance. Faced with such a choice, an teen can be told if their child has received assistance even if they specifically seek such information.

SCHWEIKER'S proposal is apparently an attempt to join the new conservative, moral wave that has supposedly swept the country. It's designed to modify the outgoing about the "corrupt morals" of the younger generation and the high teenage pregnancy rate created by such a lack of morality.

And the number of teens that become "with child" each year is a great source of concern. An average of 45,000 teenaged women become pregnant each year in Illinois alone. Something must be done to bring these numbers down.

But Schweiker's proposal is not the solution. In fact, it will magnify the already existing problems if it is implemented.

Schweiker may be correct in one thing. Many teens will not seek birth control assistance if they know their parents will be informed of such actions. But the facts at Health and Human Services Department are away off base if they are assuming that kids will not start or even more inconsiderable, discontinuing sexual relations if contraceptive measures are not readily available to them.

The pregnancy rate is more likely to climb even as Schweiker wins his battle. Young teenagers will continue to have sexual relations, with one major difference: Fewer and fewer young couples will be able to afford the type of pregnancy that is pregnancy at all.

Ticket sales 'slap in face'

I am writing this letter in reference to Student Programming Council's decision to begin selling tickets for the afternoon of Feb. 1 for Todd Rundgren and King Crimson. Since I attend Shryock Auditorium, it was a slap in the face to many die-hard students who feel they have earned a ticket themselves.

I do not understand why students must endure first freezing cold night Jan. 30 and continue on through countless roll calls until tickets finally went on sale Feb. 8.

In my opinion, it would have been a lot more fair to students who were concerned if tickets for both shows were placed on sale the same day. But that hasn't been the case, twice as many of the tickets for the Rundgren show were sold out before the Rush tickets even went up for sale. It was obvious that few people, especially with the Rundgren concert, enjoyed a closer view of the performers they waited over three days for.

Instead, anyone could walk up to the Student Center ticket office on Feb. 1 and purchase the same highly-vaunted seats that were sold out to most students. Had that been the case, twice as many of the rush tickets would have been sold out.

Acknowledging that, I enjoyed a closer view of the performers they waited over three days for, but that other people did not. It was a slap in the face to everyone.

The fact that SPC could bring such fine performers as Rundgren and King Crimson to Carbondale proves that Carbondale is capable of great things. You would think that the SPC would have been able to set up a fair system of ticket distribution. - Albert Slater, Freshman, Theater

Reagan has just begun, but is he moving ahead?

I was inspired by the viewpoint of Gordon Wayman (Daily Egyptian, Feb. 14) to respond to his statements about Republicans, Democrats and the president. Wayman blamed the economic woes of today on the Democratic Congress of the past. I feel the blame is much more because President Reagan is trying hard to convince the American people of something. In fact, Jimmy Carter did it, too. It was much easier for him. And others before them tried but failed. The president has now brought that same approach.

Wayman went on to say how the economy, the debt, inflation and the question of immigration are all inherited by our hero. Reagan, who is trying very hard to make it all go away. Since Reagan has been in office, we've seen a decrease in the unemployment rate. We have the highest national debt in history; yet when Carter was in office, the unemployment rate was higher. Furthermore, the unemployment rate at the highest point since the Depression was 10.8%.

As for a questionable military, I must ask myself this: how many hungry people could be fed with the money spent on a war? When Carter or Wayman blame Reagan and Alexander Haig, was it because they were using the troops to control the war that couldn't be controlled by human race? Questionable military?

Wayman also said that Reagan has done what he promised he would do. What about his promise to get rid of the draft registration? What about his promise to balance the federal budget? I believe he just says he won't give up the budget.

There have been many occasions when I have wanted to write a letter regarding a recent movie. This time, it's the movie "Bloodmobile". It was directed by Joc Walker (Daily Egyptian, Feb. 20). Making Love" shows insight in dealing with touchy issue

By Joe Walter

For one thing, it is well made although it is a bit too preachy. For another, it deals with the cosmic overlay of sexual homogeneity.

The film stars Michael Ontkean and Kate Jackson (who co-starred in the television series "The Rookies") as a highly passionate couple, with Jackson as Claire, a man, and Ontkean as Zack, a woman. This is a film that shows the complexity of relationships, especially when it comes to love and identity.

The film is a refreshing, innocent look at love in the big city. It's a film that is bound to make people think and feel.

The film is also blessed with a talented supporting cast. Colonel Camp as a pushy singer and Patti Hansen as a sweet but rocky cab driver, fill out the subplots of the film nicely. They help make "They All Laughed" one of the best romantic comedies of the year.

Manhattan is also a star in this film. Bogdanovich shows the city in a beautiful and bouncing with love and music, featuring songs by Gershwin, Sinatra and even some country-western music. The city's big buildings, lakeside and brownstones is lovingly photographed, showing off the beauty of New York.

Woody Allen's "Manhattan" deal with a similar theme, showing life as it is. However, "They All Laughed" is lighter, more colorful and happier. It's also unrealistic, but so what? "They All Laughed" is not life as it is, but life as it should be.

The film moves alternately from a frenzied pace to the speed of a neat, leisurely stroll. A good balance between the two takes place in the film, which never bogs down.

The film is also blessed with a talented supporting cast. Colonel Camp as a pushy singer and Patti Hansen as a sweet but rocky cab driver, fill out the subplots of the film nicely. They help make "They All Laughed," like most romantic comedies, a great film, not in a sweet, sticky way.

Faculty piano trio concert to feature works of 3 artists

By Roger Trayler
Staff Writer

The SIU Faculty Piano Trio will perform in concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Shryock Auditorium. The concert is free and open to the public.

Consisting of pianist Kent Wetter, violinist Helen Poule and cellist David Belardo, the trio has been in existence for nearly 10 years, concentrating here and at other universities and schools.

The concert will feature works by Clara Schumann, Roy Harris and Anton Arensky. Clara Schumann’s piece is steeped in the lyrical German Romanticism of the last century, and the Shylock piece reveals the exigencies of 19th-century Russian composers. Harris, a 20th-century American, enriches the harmonic idiom, instead incorporating a modal idiom with a complex, percussive rhythmic style.

The piano trio as an ensemble was developed by 18th-century Viennese master Franz Joseph Haydn. The form has survived into our time as a viable container for composers’ musical ideas. Changes have occurred since Haydn’s time: the piano, unlike its companion string instruments, has evolved considerably in the last century, increasing in range and power. Each composer who utilized the form stamped its character with personal idiom and stylistics of the particular era.

Performers in this type of ensemble have the challenge of difficulties associated with larger forms, such as the concertos, combined with the challenge of intimate interaction because of the small “chamber” size.
Despite dancers' stiff muscles, $4,500 raised for MD fight

At 8 p.m., Friday, they walked into the Roman room of the Student Center on Main Street in Carbondale, Illinois, and eagerly awaited with anticipation. At 8 p.m. Saturday, some walked out, tired and sweaty, but relieved.

The participants, mostly from SIUC Greek organizations, survived the grueling 24-hour Dance-a-thon to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. They raised $4,500.

Sherry VanLooy, president of the Tau Kappa Epsilon sorority, said the show ran during the middle of the night and there was no free for all period at 4 a.m.

"We had analiners who alternated their movements sometimes demonstrating bursts of energy and sometimes showing their exhaustion. However, when we walked on stage, our music moved the dancers' feet and the DJ showed 'Here Comes the Sun.' "By about 3 a.m., most of the dancers were ready to sleep. The last hour dragged on, but when the DJ showed 'The Sound of Silence,' it was peaceful. It was peaceful because it was late and we were tired and eager with excitement.

Departments handling registration times

In an effort to reduce the lines at Woody Hall at registration time, students will now get registration appointments from their departments instead of the Registration Center with the advance registration for the 1982 summer and fall registration.

The departments have been given registration appointments in proportion to the number of incoming freshmen and sophomores, Jerre C. Pflaaf, director of admissions and records, said.

The Registration Center will begin advance registration for the summer and fall semesters on March 1, advisement begins on March 8.

Senior students who are graduating励志 seniors in their undergraduate and the University Center Will offer good through March 23.

In an effort to advance registration for the summer and fall semesters for the upcoming academic year, students will be offered appointments.

Joint Pain and Muscle Balance

By Dr. Roy S. White

Doctor of Chiropractic

If you've developed symptoms that make you think you have arthritis, it would be wise to have an examination to see if the muscles in the affected areas are out of balance. Muscles help keep the joints mobile and assist it through its normal range of motion. But if the muscles on either side of the joint are weak, they will pull a strain on the joint. It may also cause arthritic-like symptoms.

The doctor of chiropractic will test the muscles to determine their balance and strength. He will also evaluate nerve patterns and may take an x-ray to study the joint structure involved. Perhaps some laboratory procedures will also be needed. If the problem is in the muscles around the joint, treatment can be given to strengthen and return them to proper balance. Once this is achieved, the arthritic-like pain and discomfort may be greatly relieved or eliminated.

UNICEF chief nutrition officer warns about infant formulas

by Pam Petrow
Staff Writer

Infant formula products are a use in more than 30 developing countries where they have been promoted by advertising.

And that worries and anger Lester Teply, chief nutrition officer for UNICEF, the United Nations organization concerned with welfare of the world's children.

"In developing countries, practically all of the mothers can breast-feed if they get the proper support and encouragement to do so," he said. "Instead, these mothers see ads with healthy babies using infant formula. They feel they should give their babies formula, too, to ensure that the infant will be healthy. In reality, they shouldn't use these products if they can continue to breast-feed."

Changing people's views about infant formula is not a simple task, Teply said. The first step is to increase education about breast-feeding. The attitudes of health and medical professionals are also important, he said.

"I'm not saying that there is no place for infant formulas in today's society. There is a need and legitimate market for the formula—but only in certain situations," Teply said. The use of infant formulas often is encouraged by doctors, he noted, and one controversial issue is whether formula samples should be given to mothers of newborn babies.

Infant formulas cannot provide or simulate this gradual increase in milk as the child grows. Formulas have not been approved to provide as high an immunization level as the blood in a mother's milk, he said.

"In developing countries, practically all of the mothers can breast-feed if they get the proper support and encouragement to do so," he said. "Instead, these mothers see ads with healthy babies using infant formula. They feel they should give their babies formula, too, to ensure that the infant will be healthy. In reality, they shouldn't use these products if they can continue to breast-feed."

Lester Teply, chief nutrition officer for UNICEF, led a panel discussion on infant formulas Friday in Student Center Ballroom A to provide a forum for discussion about infant formula.

TEPLY has worked with UNICEF's nutritional programs for women and children in developing countries for 30 years.

He said, unlike in the United States where almost all births were in hospitals, most births in large developing countries occurred at home. The use of formula may be hazardous to infants in those countries, he said.

"Many who work in UNICEF programs have problems with the sanitation of water supplies," Teply said.

"Undiluted milk or dirty diluents can cause infections in infants. And infections can cause infant mortality," Tepl"y said.

Tepl"y said breast-feeding is a much safer option than using the infant formula.

Breast-fed infants are more likely to remain healthy and be less likely to get sick than those who receive formula. The benefits of breast-feeding are not just for the infant, but also for the mother, as it is thinner and easier to digest.

UNICEF and other organizations work to promote breast-feeding and discourage the use of infant formula in developing countries.

Valentine's Day is just a few days away, and that means a lot of flowers and chocolates. But what if you want to impress her with something a little more unique? How about a trip to the movies? That's exactly what one couple did.

"The person who calls in the information remains anonymous. He is given a secret code number. Upon conviction of the criminal, the person calls, gives his number, and tells where he wants his reward dropped off. The money is wrapped in plastic and dropped at the spot.

"The thing that makes the plotting of the robberies difficult is the high number of people on each other for the money since the ..." Presley said, "In the Dotten case, one of the guards' wives publicly told on her husband, revealed Dotten's location, and picked up her money back at the site."

Presley's talk about Dotten is farfetched, but after listening to him for awhile, nothing seems too farfetched. Wayman Presley's life story is far-fetched. Wayman Presley story is far-fetched. Presley is far-fetched.

"Don't think I'm a damned idiot," he said. "But I've lived ..." Presley said. "I've lived in a world that nobody talked about anything if you try. If you try to talk about it, you're dead."

In 1969, he began Presley Tours.

"Our first trip was a train trip to Miami that I paid for and it cost around $100," Presley said. "I borrowed money and nearly lost my home. From now on, we're going to do the same thing.

Now Presley Tours has 26 full-time employees and 72 tour guides. The firm operates tours to places like Hawaii, New York, Florida.

"This past week, we've had over $40,000 a day worth of business," Presley said. "We're a master-of-facility, scouring to dig out the figures to back his claim.

"That's not bad for something started by a sharecropper's son who couldn't even afford money for a picture show.

"When I was a kid, I lived in a shack, with a wood stove," he said, releasing several high-pitched bursts of laughter. "I learned that when the house caught on fire it didn't do much good to get on your knees and pray for the fire to go out. It worked better to run to the river with a couple of buckets of water to pray that your arms held out until you got back.

"That's the Wayman Presley spirit, the spirit that enabled him to gather millions to build the Bald Knob Cross and to help cure a girl who had a rare disease. Both stories are told in Presley's biography, "You Will Never Know What You Can Do Until You Try."

Much of the money for the crosses piled in after Presley appeared on "This Is Your Life" in 1966. The show's host, Ralph Edwards, asked for contributions at the end of the show.

Presley met the girl with the rare disease, Margaret Land, while delivering mail to his home in the Ozark foothills. Margaret had leprosy, and Presley talked her parents into letting him take Margaret to Barnes Hospital in St. Louis. Presley made the money to keep Margaret in treatment by arranging children's singing programs in local churches and asking for donations.

The treatment continued but St. Louis specialists were ready to give up. Presley found another in Texas who had a new treatment form arranged tours and Margaret ended up cured.

Presley has over-achieved has come from faith and from my sharpening of my mind," Presley said, pulling out a ruler-sized stick covered in grease of nails. "This is what I call my miniature picket fence. This is what sharpened my mind. This is where it all started."

"The picket fences have numbers beside each nail. By sliding a pencil down the row of the cross and trying to count the number of nails it hits, he said he's kept his mind sharp.

"Tell me when to stop," he said, sliding the pencil, and silently splitting numbers with his eyes as well as five numbers off, so Presley said the penciled number. It would take more than five numbers to discourage Wayman Presley.

City school merger to be discussed

A $25 million proposal to merge the three campuses of Carbondale Community School District 105 will be discussed by CCHS principal manager Don Yost Tuesday night.

The discussion, scheduled for 8 p.m. at the SIU Faculty Club, will be held in conjunction with a meeting of the Carbondale branch of the American Association of University Women.

A referendum has been scheduled for March 15 to decide if merging the schools board should issue $25 million in bonds to finance the consolidation.

The board voted last February to consolidate the three campuses and to begin selecting a site. From 1973 and February 1981 to discuss various consolidation proposals.

If the March 16 referendum passes and bonds are issued, completion of new campus construction is targeted for September, 1984.
Young people in certain events over the first few meets, in order to see who would be the best in the event." "We're still feeling out which events people will be competing in," Blackman said. "Blackman took a couple of meets to look at different people." "The way we've been trained in training will make an even more dramatic difference in the performances of the freshmen from the beginning of the season to the state meet at the end," Blackman said.

"The Salukis usual train outdoors, since SIU-LC lacks an indoor track facility. Blackman said the team needs to have time trials, which are impossible to hold in the snow. Overall, Blackman feels the team is in good condition. She doesn't think the bad weather has hurt the Salukis too much in their training, "except mentally.

Blackman called the Salukis' indoor schedule "horrendous." The Salukis have to meet early in the season which field only three or four teams, feeling the rings, "did well at NIU." Even with some strong performances by the Salukis, NIU dominated most events. All five track girls scored 9.5 or better, and on, the pole vault, Tim Goedken, scored a 9.9 for NIU.

The Salukis were the last and right events against Illinois State, but the scores in between contributed to the Redbirds victory. The vaulters have consistently reached high totals of 45, but that was not good enough against either team. Saturday the Salukis scored a strong 47.4 in that event.

Even with several gymnasts injured, UIUC still had enough strength to defeat the Salukis 206.40 to 200.06 in Chicago Sunday.

The predictions of both Meade and UIUC's C. J. Johnson for a "good, close meet" were not too far off the mark. SIU-C won the first event, the floor exercise, by 1.05 points, and the high bar by 1.25. UIUC won the parallel bars, 42.90 to 42.70, and rings by 8.60, 1.36 and 0.90 points. What kept the final scores from being closer was the total in the pommel horse, which UIUC won 40.30 to 40.20.

The pommel horse and parallel bars events continue to be the weakest events for Southern, but the Salukis have been consistent in floor exercise, rings, high bar, and vaulting.

"Leidy, Williamson, and especially Blackman have good opportunities to qualify for the nationals," said Coach Meade. He added that James Bluem has been "coming on" in high bar, floor, and parallel bars.

The Salukis will face another top-ranked team this weekend when they meet Iowa State, which is in the Top 25. The Dual will start at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Arena.

"We'll be training there in it, hopefully to gain some extra points," Meade said.

Another question mark involves team members returning from injuries. Blackman said. She noted as an example that Cindy Clasen, a senior distance runner, had surgery over Christmas break, but "should be able to run.

Blackman said the freshmen distance runners who competed in the meet, Rosa Miguel, Laura Falc, Odette James, and Theresa Kent - will probably be better prepared for the opening meets. Rosa Mitchell, a junior transfer student from Illinois College, is another freshman runner starting her first year with the Saluki track team. An even stronger event could be in the longer distances and in the 200 and 400 meter events, where the Salukis have people returning, Blackman said.

For the returnees, sprints: Debra Davis and distance runner Pimmire-Rosenworth, are the most likely Salukis to qualify for the nationals, according to Blackman.

Davis, a sophomore, finished second in the 400 meter dash at the state meet last season, running a school record time of 56.11. Pimmire-Rosenworth, a junior, among women runners and third overall at the Savannah Games, last month, setting a world record of 2:30.03 for the 4x400 meter course.

Freshman sprinter Monica Davis, a "legitimate" shot at the nationals, Blackman said. Blackman plans to use different people in certain events over the first few meets, in order to see who would be the best in the event. "We're still feeling out which events people will be competing in," Blackman said. "Blackman took a couple of meets to look at different people."

"The way we've been trained in training will make an even more dramatic difference in the performances of the freshmen from the beginning of the season to the state meet at the end," Blackman said.

Hartzog’s tracksters win 7th state crown

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

A funny thing happened to the men’s track and field team over the weekend. The Illinois Intercollegiates meet in Champaign.

“Detroit was just a super job all around,” said an elated Hartzog after his tracksters outdistanced host Illini, 21 points with 170 points.

It was a great team effort, with every team member contributing.

It was entirely a four-year job.

The Salukis won their seventh indoor state meet and their first in four years by capitalizing on eight first and five second place finishes to defeat favored Illinois, who scored with 146 points. Illinois State was third with 102, while Eastern was fourth with 74 and Northern Illinois fifth with 51.

“I hate to be the Illinois coach right about now,” said Illinois coach. A team meeting the Illini in indoor championships is rare.

Illinois trailed SIU-E, Eastern and Illinois State by 10 points after Friday’s opening round. The Illini had 11 qualifiers headed toward Saturday’s finals, but the Salukis topped that total with 16. Illinois had 10 and Illinois State 8.

In Friday’s competition, Mike Keane won the three-mile easily in 13:52.54 and the distance medley relay with Terry Taylor and David Greathouse. Tom Pryor contributed 20 points by placing fifth and sixth at 6:47 and 6:53, respectively.

Schulz placed third and fourth in the 800 and 1500, respectively.

Taylor and David Greathouse took second and third places in the long jump to put the Salukis ahead over one day’s work with 34 points.

The Salukis went to work again on Saturday by chalking up 24 points before the first race was run. John Smith of Rock Falls tallied 14 of those by placing fourth and third, respectively, in the 25-pound weight throw, and Steve Wray, leaped 6-11 to upset Gail Olson of Illinois, who previously jumped 7-1 this season. It was sweet revenge for Wray who was defeated by Olson last year.

And moments after the running started, the Salukis chalked up 25 more. John Syre, Randy Franks and Jan Franks contributed 20 points by placing first, fourth and respectively in the pole vault.

The other two points came from Kevin Byrd-Kennel, who took a fifth place spot in the triple jump, and John Collins who jumped through again in the shot put, placing second and fifth, respectively.

The Salukis kept rolling, as the Saluki men took the Sabiki victory by winning the final event of the day in 3:15.43.

Panthers edge ‘cold’ cagers

By Bob Mowaud
Staff Writer

The men’s basketball team, whose winning percentage is having a tough time thawing out this winter, dropped a non-conference game 47-43 to Eastern Illinois Monday night at Charleston.

The loss, the second in a row for the Panthers, dropped their overall record to 9-11. SIU-C had to play without the services of 6-10 center Bud Camp, who is suffering from a back injury.

“I think we beat him here and at Illinois State,” said Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle. “I think we’re going to have to shoot better this year, we’ve been shooting it the last few games, we’re going to beat anybody, especially on the road.”

The Salukis shot 35 percent from the field, compared to 30 percent for the Panthers.

Although the Salukis jumped out to an 8-1 lead in the game’s first three minutes, an aggressive man-to-man Panther defense kept SIU-C away from the inside and forced Eastern to take a slow, half-court lead.

The main reason for the unusually low score was a Saluki foul count of 12, SIU-C’s highest half that lasted for eight minutes.

At 6-4 forward Darnell Jones and 6-3 forward Ken Byrd combined for 13 points in the first eight minutes of the second half to tie the score at 17, SIU-C, who played defense for the first eight minutes with EUU, playing man-to-man.

The Salukis shook off some of the ice and made a last gasp effort to catch up in the last 24 seconds as Byrd hit a jump-shot to keep SIU-C within four points at 47-44.

On the Panther inside, who harassed the EUU players well enough to cause a turnover.

But Saluki shot to avoid the basket and the clock ran down to zero as EUU’s favor.

To have a good (NCAA) Division II team we need to shoot in the 46 percent range." Van Winkle was surprised that teams haven’t beaten us by over 10 points, attempting to win games like this.

The Salukis scored 18 points, while Jones added 11. Guard Vincent Smelldor and Kevin Jones paced the Panthers with 10 points apiece and forward contributed eight.

The Salukis next game will be 133 on the road in Peoria Thursday.

Gymnasts unable to nab high scores

The women’s gymnastics team failed to take advantage of the chance to receive high scores, according to Saluki Coach Dept. Vogle, partly as a cause of their double-dose loss at Louisville.

SIU-C scored 138.85 in the meet against Louisville and Eastern Illinois University’s 135.85 Sunday.

The last Cardinals captured first with 142.60, and EIU’s Tigers were second with 139.85.

If not for several key misses, Vogle said, the Salukis would have scored their goal of 139.

“We lost 10.5 points on misses alone,” said the longtime Saluki coach. “The scoring, as expected, was balanced and the judges were very professional and gave scores away.”

Vogle and the judges may have handed Louisville’s score because the women’s gymnastics program is due to be cut after this season, he added.

The Cardinals had some scores they didn’t deserve in the meet.

The Salukis’ big three — Val Painton, Pam Turner and Lori Erickson — didn’t face too well Sunday. Painton was fourth in all-around with a 24.7- and Turner followed at 34.1.

Erickson had what Vogle termed “her worst meet ever,” tallying just 32.75 points.

Louisville’s Sue Tingus won the all-around competition with 36.8 points. Tiger Sandra Smith was second at 36.35 and Cardinal Laurie Salado took third with a 34.9.

Painton and Turner both missed the mounts on their beam routines, a result of what Vogle called a “lack of concentration” on their part. He said if the two Salukis hadn’t erred in their mounts, they would have finished first and second in Friday’s meet.

“Val and Pam did well with their vaults,” he said. Turner scored a 9.1, a good for a third place.

After the first event, Vogle said, Painton and Turner “bucked out” on beam, barn and floor exercise.

The fact that Painton and Turner placed as well as they did despite poor performances, Vogle said, indicated the way the Louisville judges were scoring the meet.

Vogle was pleased with the bottom half of the SIU-C lineup, which performed “up to its ability,” according to Vogle. He noted the bar performances of Jeanne O’Dschmid and Debbie Chase, who scored 7.96 and 7.8, respectively.

Vogle hoped the team learned a lesson Sunday.

“We must go into a meet totally prepared,” he said. “We need to be prepared with every sport, in which one team tries to beat the other. We go into a meet not with the idea of winning, but of doing the job. We don’t have to beat anyone but ourselves.”
