City of Philadelphia, March 5 (UPI) -- All federal subsidies cllarges the race, which was marred by vote-buying , fearing that the election is not clear and the possibility of insurgency , according to the Gramm-Rudman cuts will have to be implemented.

If the Gramm-Rudman automatic provision must be used, it calls for across-the-board cuts in all budgets, with certain notable exceptions. See Cuts, Page 12

The keynote speaker for Black History Month was scheduled to protest President Reagan's restrictions on travel to Libya instead of canceling his trip.

Kwame Ture, a black revolutionary leader and activist of the 1960s who once wrote under the name Stokely Carmichael, was scheduled to give the keynote speech Tuesday for Black History Month.

However, "Kwame has accepted an invitation by Libyan President Muammar Khadafy to visit Libya," said Roy Walker, a Chicago organizer for the All African People's Revolutionary Party, the organization responsible for scheduling Ture's appearances in the United States.

Walker called the Office of Student Development early Wednesday to announce the change of plans.

"It's too late to try to secure a replacement at this late date," said Pat McNeil, chairman of the board's Finance Committee.

A witness for the student government, who asked to remain anonymous, said that Ture changed his plans at the last minute and refused to meet with a press conference held by representatives of 11 American revolutionary organizations.

"I don't think we are going to be able to cancel Ture's appearance," McNeil said.

We can never allow anyone to tell us we can not go home to Africa," Brown continued.

McNeil said that he "wished he could have made his speech and left right after he gave his presentation" at the University.

But he added that "Ture changed his plans at the last minute and refused to meet with a press conference held by representatives of 11 American revolutionary organizations."

Brown announced our intentions to challenge President Reagan to make this commitment against Libya," Brown explained.

Reagan imposed economic sanctions and travel restrictions against Libya after the Dec. 27 terrorist attacks at airports in Rome and in which 20 people died.

"We can never allow anyone to tell us we can not go home to Africa," Brown continued.

Two-party system lauded;
Reagan urges cooperation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, leaving aside evidence of vote fraud, hailed the Philippine elections as proof "of a strong two-party system" and urged the two sides to "come together to make sure the government works." With President Ferdinand Marcos and challenger Corazon Aquino neck-and-neck in unofficial tabulations, the administration called for accommodation by Marcos and restraint by Aquino once the results of the election are certified — a position that seemed to assume a Marcos victory.

Seven killed in latest South African violence

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police said they found five blacks burned to death Monday, apparently in "executions" or burned by a radical black group. And two others died in renewed race-related violence. Police Col. Gerrie van Rooyen said five fire victims were burned under piles of burned car tires in the Soweto shantytown outside Port Elizabeth.

Shuttle problems known, commission says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Challenger commission met in secret Monday with officials from NASA and its rocket maker to review documents that reportedly indicate some shuttle managers were aware of potentially catastrophic problems with booster seals. Among those representing the space agency before the 13-member presidential commission, named to find the cause of last month's shuttle disaster, were acting NASA administrator William Graham and Jesse Moore, associate administrator in charge of the shuttle program.

Haiti's president, Duvalier, decides to resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jean-Claude Duvalier decided to step down as Haiti's president for life three days before he fled the country when a Jamaican political leader told him his proposal for political compromise would not work. Neville Gilmore, minister for social security in the government of Jamaica, said Duvalier, in a desperate measure to try to save his 15-year rule, had come up with a compromise political solution.

Artificial heart recipient in critical condition

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Bernadette Chayrez was awake and alert Monday but in critical condition from her historic second artificial heart implant in less than a week, awaiting what would be her fifth heart. Copeland said Chayrez, 49 and a mother of three, would be dead except for the second implant, which was performed in an eight-hour operation after her donor heart stopped beating.

U.S. official confirms East-West prisoner swap

BERLIN (UPI) — The Soviet Union will release dissident Anatoly Shcharansky in a major East-West prisoner exchange Tuesday on the bridge where U.S. spy plane pilot Gary Powers was traded for a Soviet pilot spy in 1962, a U.S. official said Monday. The U.S. official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, gave the first official confirmation the swap involving Shcharansky and other prisoners would take place Tuesday on the Glienicker Bridge between West Berlin and East Germany.

2 banking firms up Conrail bid to $1.8 billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two New York investment banking firms said Monday they have raised their bid for Conrail by $150 million to $1.8 billion, the highest offer yet for the government-owned freight rail carrier. Allen & Co. Inc. and First Boston Corp. also announced they would match the "public interest" protections included in the $1.2 billion bid for Conrail made by Norfolk Southern Corp., a major eastern railroad.

Attorney advises judge
DUI law unconstitutional

SALEM (UPI) — A judge Monday took under advisement a motion to declare the state's new drunk driving law unconstitutional after hearing arguments on the motion in Marion County Circuit Court. Attorney Eric Teritzii alleged the law does not provide a "full and fair hearing" before a person's driver's license is suspended and makes no provision for a judge checking on the accuracy of blood-alcohol testing equipment used by police.

Youth pleads guilty to aiding Azevedo murder

By Jim McBride
Staff Writer

A 15-year-old Murphysboro youth pleaded guilty Monday in Jackson County Circuit Court to aiding and abetting a concealed murder.

The youth, accompanied by his parents and Murphysboro attorney Herbert McMeen, waived his right to an adjudicatory hearing and pleaded guilty to charges that he assisted Andrew Azevedo in the Nov. 27, 1981, shooting death of Andrew’s father, Allan B. Azevedo, on Sept. 27.

"Yes, sir, I did that," the tall, solemn, brown-haired youth responded.

The youth was arrested Tuesday at the Murphysboro High School on charges of involuntary manslaughter and concealment of a homicidal death.

Azevedo, a Murphysboro youth, was shot and killed in death in the back seat of a family car on Illinois 127, just south of Illinois 13. Jackson County State’s Attorney John Clemens said that another charge of concealment of a homicidal death was dropped as part of a negotiated guilty plea.

Clemens said that in the early morning hours of Sept. 27, the youth waited outside the Azevedo home while Andrew shot and killed his father in the living room with two handguns to the chest.

After the shooting, the youth alerted the attorney with a pre-arranged flashlight signal to help move the el der Azevedo’s body to a car, Clemens said.

According to Clemens, two youths moved the body to the back seat of a car which they had planned to drive to Illinois 13,400 miles to the east of Illinois, and found the body seven days later.

"Illinois has a choice or despair and timidity, or winging our hands in doubt and that . . ." Youth. accompanied by Herbert McMeen, and his parents and Murphysboro attorney Herbert McMeen, waived his right to an adjudicatory hearing and pleaded guilty to charges that he assisted Andrew Azevedo in the Nov. 27, 1981, shooting death of Andrew’s father, Allan B. Azevedo, on Sept. 27.

Thompson says ‘roll up sleeves’

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Gov. James R. Thompson, in his 10th “State of the State” message to lawmakers, said Monday that Illinois can have a future of prosperity, but to obtain it Illinoisans must “roll up our sleeves and get to work.”

The Republican governor, who is seeking an unprecedented fourth term, said the state has strengthened its business climate in the last nine years he has been in office, but has much left to do.

The state has an abundance of resources and an unlimited potential for economic development, he said.

Illinois has a choice of leadership this year, between wringing our hands in doubt and that, or “rolling up our sleeves and getting to work,” Thompson said. “Hands that work are too busy to wring.”

The reference to hand wringing was one of several subtle jabs Thompson made at his opponent, Democrat Adlai Stevenson III.

Thompson said the state should continue to upgrade itself with its $2.3 billion “Build Illinois” public works program, but that still is not enough.

He outlined several “corridors of opportunity” that could be developed across Illinois state highways for car manufacturing, tourism, agribusiness, industrial retooling, new energy and solid waste recycling, retail stores and offices, riverfront development and high technology.

To highlight the potential Illinois has, Thompson used a map of the country illustrating roadways without any municipalities.

Lectures good idea that needs work

THE DEBUT OF THE Honors Lecture Series last week may not have gone off as smoothly as its planners had wished, but despite the problems, the event was a success.

The main complaint about Wednesday's lecture by Sir David Attenborough was not about the choice of speaker or the content of the lecture, but the logistics of the event. Too small a hall was chosen, some of those complaining said, and some of the seating within the place was reserved, not for students, for whom the sponsors said the lecture was intended, but for members of the President's Council, people who were not really interested.

Several hundred sat in the lounge outside the Student Center Auditorium, watching the lecture on a closed-circuit television. Some complained that they were unable to see the screen clearly, and that they could not ask Sir Attenborough questions as the people in the auditorium were able to do.

ONE PROBLEM SHOULDN'T detract from the positive aspects of the lecture series - as long as they are corrected. The University Honors Program staff and the students that worked to present the Attenborough lecture should be commended for their efforts. If there was failure, it was only in that they were too successful in attracting an audience, and in raising student expectations for these lectures.

It could not be said that they underestimated what the crowd size would be - after all, they must have expected the overflow because they did have seats set up outside the auditorium.

But do not let the problems obscure the fact that the lecture series is a good idea - after all, they did have seats set up outside the auditorium.

Letters

Lecture arrangements poor

My friends tell me Sir David Attenborough gave a lecture here in the Student Center Auditorium. I'm not so sure. I was among the hundreds who arrived early to get seats and was unable to get a clear view of the screen. I'm also told he presented a slide program. The organization and seating arrangements for this Honors Lecture Series was a travesty. Additionally, students were denied access to this great man, Richard Peterson's opening remarks deserved to be ridiculed. He and the others responsible owe the students and Sir David Attenborough an apology. Instead of giving the students an opportunity to see and communicate with one of the great naturalists of our time, they held a private party in which only those who were invited were allowed to attend. It is not a good sign of what it is - malicious garbage.

I do not claim to be unusually knowledgeable about the Middle East and its numerous religious and ethnic problems. The current conflict in the Middle East evolved through centuries of wars and conflict and was not curtailed long before I was born. In his article Mr. Smith states, "They call Khadafy a terrorist simply because he supports the oppressed Palestinian people." No, Mr. Smith. They do not call him a terrorist simply because he supports Palestinian liberation but rather how he supports Palestinian liberation. His means are the violent and indiscriminate killing of men, women and children. Khadafy is a promoter of upheaval, strife, hatred and civil discord.

He is a seed of injustice and death. Such violent actions will never change the American view of me - only opposition and the peaceful expression of that opposition. - Thomas Jergensen, senior, Political Science.

Racism brought here

Incredible. This campus provides an incredibly diverse atmosphere. Citizens of numerous races, cultures, and ethnic backgrounds provide a true simulation of understanding other cultures, religions and styles. It is this valuable education outside of the classroom that makes SU the excellent place to live and learn.

Some people, however, refuse to take advantage of this cultural and racial melting pot. Some bring hatred and racism with them when they come to SU.

Don Smith, in his first article about Zionist domination, brings to light the type of one­ sided racism that is quite prevalent in our society today. Racism based on hatred can, when approached logically, be diametrically opposed by simply what it is - malicious garbage.

I do not claim to be unusually knowledgeable about the Middle East and its numerous religious and ethnic problems. The current conflict in the Middle East evolved through centuries of wars and conflict and was not curtailed long before I was born. In his article Mr. Smith states, "They call Khadafy a terrorist simply because he supports the oppressed Palestinian people." No, Mr. Smith. They do not call him a terrorist simply because he supports Palestinian liberation but rather how he supports Palestinian liberation. His means are the violent and indiscriminate killing of men, women and children. Khadafy is a promoter of upheaval, strife, hatred and civil discord.

He is a seed of injustice and death. Such violent actions will never change the American view of me - only opposition and the peaceful expression of that opposition. - Thomas Jergensen, senior, Political Science.

Don't tolerate intolerance

In answer to Maggie Childs' letter (Jan. 28), I would just like to add another anti­arrest issue. It is not in the business of student affairs to undertake interference in the morality of others.

Since Playboy magazine is available through many ordinary sources, and Maggie Childs herself acknowledges, banning it from sale on campus would be a highly hypocritical gesture. In a free and multi-cultural and racial society like ours, tolerance is the cornerstone of individual rights and liberties. Or, as a famous eighteenth century French philosopher once said, "The only thing that cannot be tolerated in a free society is intolerance, whatever form it may take." - Ronald Giguere, senior, Foreign Language Department.

Porn hurts men

There has been a glaring lack of acknowledgement that perhaps men too are victims of pornography. Are we unwilling to admit that we might be being victimized? Or is it that since most male pornography is gay-oriented, we feel that it is OK to continue to overlook the victimization of a segment of our society from which we are obviously excluded.

We here express no preference as to who is victimized. However, we suggest to those who cannot endure the beliefs of certain segments of society that they be present in the acknowledgement of their gripe.

Paul Astou, graduate student, Music and Mark Hill, senior, Music.

Registra tr not that difficult

Among the qualities a registration worker must possess, being extremely tolerant is of greatest importance. Over the past few semesters, this existing team of workers has been yeiled at, cursed, ridiculed, in extreme cases, stabbed, and repeatedly stabbed in the back by way of the insidious remarks printed in the letters to the editor portion of the D.C. We do not mean to single you out, Mr. Frank (writer of "Woody Shuffled Improved", Jan. 30) but your letter was the straw that broke the camel's back.

Registration begins several months before classes actually start, not two days before. Where were you during your semester of slumber, Mr. Frank? Due to a great number of people who procrastinate as badly as the above-men-mentioned, it becomes necessary to move registration to a larger facility during the week before and the first week of classes. Since the Woody Hall cafeteria has been converted into office space, the new available facility large enough to accommodate the great masses of people is the ballrooms in the Student Center. Mr. Frank would really complain if we tried to hold Central Registration in Woody Hall's small confines.

We hope this answers the question of why we moved, Mr. Frank.

We should be correct in assuming, since we are an institution of higher learning, that all students can read. The Registration Center goes to great lengths to prepare signs to inform students of any changes made in registration procedures. Does anyone ever bother to read these signs? Do you, Mr. Frank?

A lot of time and money goes into the printing of the schedule books which outline in great detail the procedures to follow for registration. These books are free and should be used in conjunction with the Student Bulletin as bibles for all students. These books should answer any question which arises during the registration process. Pick one up, Mr. Frank, read it, know it, live it. - Jay Bradshaw, sophomore, Radio-TV, and Brian Knight, senior, Management. This letter was signed by 13 other U.S. undergraduate Registration staff members.
Dear Sir or Madam,

I would like to respond to Steve Dukas’s question about Sir David Attenborough’s visit to SIU. As several hundred people should have the facts about what is being done and the problems being faced by the community, I would like to share some thoughts with everyone. I believe that it is crucial for those who are interested to be aware of the issues that are affecting their community.

Sir Attenborough’s talk at the Student Center was a fitting conclusion to the University Honors Program, which has been a source of pride for our institution. The event was not only a celebration of academic achievement, but also an opportunity to bring our diverse university community together to enjoy the perspectives and experiences of the distinguished speakers. Sir Attenborough was the inaugural speaker of the University Honors Program, and his visit was a testament to the university’s commitment to excellence in education.

Attenborough’s appearance was meant to fundraise for the University in the eyes of the public and to enhance the prestige of the SIU. In doing so, rather than helping the University, it may also hurt the University.

Dr. Peterson and the University Honors Program should have stopped organizing a new lecture series that will not only bring lead speakers and controversial to SIU, but will provide that extra funding for the university. Education is all about change. Steve Reilly, graduate student, Zoology

Get concerned, get informed, get involved!

On Friday, Feb. 2, I walked over to Woody Hall to pick up our team’s lunch. I was fortunate to see a crowd gathered and a man was speaking against the World Trade Center being further increased and the budget cuts in education. I felt I had to thank the man for his passionate and eloquent description of the finer details of the nature and the great beauty of our planet.

The mid-sixties, a new band of educators has been steadily growing and gaining experience. Attenborough’s talk was replete with the virtues which contributed to the continued popularity of his TV series, Life on Earth and The Living Planet - a god’s knowledge of the entire panorama of nature (though of course with a Darwinian persuasion), a detailed description of the finer details of any form or creature in nature, an eloquent exposition of his knowledge.

From the mid-sixties, a new band of educators has been steadily growing and gaining the attention and admiration of a global audience - the TV teachers. This TV teachers - most of us, I mean - and the students are very happy about it.

Feld Ballet to present four choreographies at Shryock

By Wm. Bryan DeVasher
Entertainment Editor

The Feld Ballet, which according to the Chicago Sun-Times presents some of the most exciting choreography in America, will perform at Shryock Auditorium Feb. 10.

The company, which was organized 12 years ago by dancer and choreographer Eliot Feld, has been receiving rave reviews since its public premiere at the New York Shakespeare Festival's Newman Theater in 1974.

Feld, who has choreographed 47 ballets since 1987, has created ballets for the American Ballet Theatre, the American Ballet Company, the Royal Danish Ballet, the Joffrey Ballet and the Royal Swedish Ballet, among others.

He has choreographed "dances to the music of George Prokofiev, Gustave Mahler, John Cage and Bela Bartok, but most recently has been using the music of modern composers Steve Reich as the basis of his ballets.

He began dancing as a child, and received his Broadway debut when he joined the cast of "West Side Story" at the age of 16. He later appeared as Baby-John in the film "West Side Story" and danced on the "Gary Moore Show" and the "Ed Sullivan Show" in the late 1960s. He has also appeared with the American Ballet Theatre and the American Ballet Company.

Besides devoting his time to the Feld Ballet, Feld is also the director of the Feld School, a professional ballet school. He received his education at the Feld School, which is located in the same building as the Feld Studio.

The Feld Ballet has auditioned over 22,000 children as part of the New Ballet School Program, but only 1,500 have been selected to receive training at the Feld Studios at 899 Broadway, a renovated dance factory that the school has called home since 1977.

The Feld Ballet has been an integral part of the New York City Ballet School since 1967, and has been providing financial support to the ballet and the New Ballet School, in obtaining funds for the renovation of the Joyce Theater, an old movie theater the group redesigned solely for dance.

Cheryl Jones and David Lukasco dance in Eliot Feld's "Intermezzi."

The organization that manages and operates the theater, the Joyce Theater, has created ballets for the Feld Ballet as well as an "Off Broadway" theater for national and international dance troupes.

The Feld Ballet is being brought to Carbondale via the Joyce Theater Auditorium. The Feb. 19 program will include four Feld ballets: "The Grand Canyon," "Medium Rare," "The Consort," "West Side Story" and "Straw Hearts." Tickets may be purchased at the Shryock Auditorium box office from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Visa and Mastercard are accepted.

Also available for Celebrity Series events are student "rush" seats. These can be purchased for $5.

"High-class’ Chippendales pose in S. Illinois

By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer

A University Mall security guard had to be called in to Cloud Nine gift shop Saturday to organize a crowd of women waiting to meet two male models from the Chippendales nightclub in Los Angeles.

The Chippendales were in Carbondale for a promotional photo-and-autograph session. Chippendales is "a very high-class off-Broadway show exclusively for women," said Gene Alshon, a host at the Los Angeles club. Similar clubs are in New York and Philadelphia.

The men who work at the three clubs have become well known, not only because of where they work but also from the Chippendales calendars, playing cards, posters and other items on which they display their modeling talents and good looks.

Both of the men who came to Carbondale work at the Los Angeles club. Nick Coddington, a waiter there, is "Mr. June" in the 1986 Chip-

Cynthia Children, an employee at the store, said it wasn’t just young women who were interested in meeting the men. At one point in the day a woman who Children said appeared to be a grandmother waited in the long line to have her picture taken while sitting on the models’ laps.

Sherrie Heise of Pinckneyville and her children, Stacey, age 3, and Heather, age 7, stood on the balcony of the store above the crowd to get a glimpse of the men. When asked how it felt to see the models, Stacey said, “It feels good.”

SIU Freshman Susan Klak said she had been in line for more than an hour and would remain there as long as it took to meet the Chippendales. She said that while her friends saved her place in line, she drove back to her dorm because she forgot her camera.

“This is the highlight of the school year,” she said. “Those men are very, very, nice-looking.”

Outside the store many of the boyfriends, husbands and fathers of those inside gathered in groups to wait for them.

After the photo and autograph session both models said they initially decided to become Chippendales after watching a show called “For Ladies Only.”

“It was the actual strip show, and a lot of it was filmed at Chippendales,” Ashon said. “Here are these women screaming and here are these guys walking around with black bow ties on and wearing the whole Chippendales outfit. I said, ‘I’d like to get a job there.’ I’d like that.’”

Ashon said that the part he likes best is touring the country, seeing all the places he hasn’t seen before and meeting a lot of people. Coddington, also an actor and model, says he likes being a celebrity.

Both men agreed that there is no “worst part” to being a Chippendale.

“Unless you’re one of the dancers,” Coddington added. “I suppose you might get tired of kissing women all night.”

Two strikers hurt in confrontation

DETROIT (UPI) — Striking meatpackers fought with police Monday at the gates of the Thorn Apple Veal Company plant and five picketers were arrested on misdemeanor charges.

Police called the confrontations “just a little pushing and shoving.” Union officials said two men suffered abrasions and were treated at a hospital.

such as Social Security and some low-income programs.

Funding levels for Amtrak, Marciniak said, is the uncertainty over the Gramm-
Rudman amendment, which had its key component ruled uncon-titutional by a special three-judge federal court.

The court ruled that the automatic deficit-reduction provision requires separated states of powers between the president and Congress by giving the job of making cuts to the president-appointed comptroller general if the president and Congress fail to agree on a budget.

The court's ruling, however, is deemed by Marciniak that can be considered by the Supreme Court. The process that legal experts predict will begin in May with a ruling in July. If the ruling is upheld, the mandated reduction levels will remain law, but the job of implementing them will fall on Congress and the president.

Regardless of how the Supreme Court rules, Congress will have to find it impossible to side-step the problem of the growing deficit, and therefore budget cuts will still be necessary. The separation of such a course centers on where the cuts will be made. Marciniak said that the cuts have to be made on some of the burden, but said that it would be unfair to eliminate Amtrak altogether, considering the small impact Amtrak has on the overall

"I believe a lot of people think, 'Let's eliminate Amtrak and then we can balance the budget,'" she said. "But I don't think anyone realizes that Amtrak accounts for less than 1 percent of the budget.

In addition to its relatively small subsidy, Marciniak said there are numerous other factors that support an argument in favor of maintaining Amtrak.

She said that from fiscal 1986 to fiscal 1987, Amtrak's revenues were up 8.8 percent to $1,657 million, its passenger miles were up 6 percent to 4.8 billion, and its number of passengers was up 4.3 percent to 20.8 million.

She also pointed out that Amtrak has consistently increased its reliance on subsidies, which are now at about 39 percent of operating revenue, down from about 60 percent five years ago.

"Many people think Amtrak is completely subsidized, but nothing could be further from the truth," she said.

Marciniak also noted that public transportation systems are forced to rely on subsidies for their existence, and she said it is unfair to Amtrak to be so singled out as a major cause of budgetary woes. We receive a very direct subsidy, so it's very easy to point the finger and say, 'Cut the Amtrak budget,'" Marciniak said. "But people forget about the air traffic control problem and how the airline industry is paid for with tax dollars."

Another major argument against eliminating Amtrak, Marciniak said, is a provision that would require labor protection payments to the approximately 25,000 employees who would lose their jobs. The payments would total some $2 billion over six years.

The provision, which was mandated when Amtrak was established, was designed as protection for employees, Marciniak said, and the $600 million that would be paid out in the first year would be more than is needed to run the system.

"You could have a situation where you didn't have a rail service but still paid for one," Marciniak said, although she did say that such payments would be reduced each year until they were phased out after six years.

Woman dies after taking Tylenol capsules

YONKERS, N.Y. (UPI) - A woman died from anticoagulant poisoning after taking two Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules on Monday night.

She was the first such poisoning since seven Chicago-area people died after taking the pills in 1982, authorities said.

Tests performed on three other capsules in the same bottle owned by the suburban Westchester County woman showed the presence of cyanide, authorities said.

Westchester County officials Monday immediately banned the sale of all Extra-

Student escapes serious injury after hit by train

A student escaped serious injury even though he was struck by a train at the College Station railroad crossing early Sunday morning, SIU-C police said.

According to police reports, Jerry D. Martin, 18, of Bosier City, Louisiana, was hit by a train when he tried to run across the tracks as the train approached. He was struck and fell between the rails, police said.

Martin was treated in the emergency room at Carbondale Memorial Hospital and later transferred to the intensive care unit at SIU-C Health Service.

Martin was told Monday that he didn't remember much of the event. "I don't know if I rolled over or if someone pulled me out," he said.

He was badly bruised on his right side, although his whole body was scraped. "I think my bones were broken,"

European Mole Show tour in 1982-83, the Residents had only performed live a few times, and one of those performances was in a supermarket.

In their first, and supposedly final, appearance in Chicago, the Residents scanned their past and presented many of the different facets of their music. After the capacity crowd was told that one of the Residents' famed eyeball masks was stolen in Los Angeles, the band proceeded to march out onto the stage — three of them adorning bloodshot eyeballs, wearing white tuxedos and top hats; the fourth member wore an enlarged black skull over his head with matching tails.

Joining the Residents was electric guitarist Snakefinger. Although Snakefinger has released a few of his own albums, he served as a needed musician since he has played with the Residents throughout their career. Snakefinger, sporting a suit reminiscent of the 1960s glitzy fashion, fit in perfectly with the gold-and-blue eloquence of the Residents.

Jumping into 'Lizard Lady,' one of their early numbers, the Residents assured their fans that they were in for a special treat. While part of the entourage stacked white inflatable dolls that looked like a cross between a giraffe and a horse on the stage, the others bellowed out 'Constantsingle,' backed apart Elvis 'Jailhouse Rock' and continued into some of their newer material.

Throughout the show, yellow lights waved on the residents, casting dream-like slurs of unearthly images on the black walls. As cryptic sounds filled every inch of the theater, could this be a demonstration of the primal mind let loose on American culture?

The Residents, originally from Louisiana and now based in San Francisco, took an intermission break allowing the crowd, which ranged in age from 16 to 60, a chance to hear some of their taped music.

The next part of the show dealt more with 'The Big Bubble' LP and had the singer-wearing costume consisting of black, white and red, a puff wig and oversized ears, a puff wig and black skull over his head with matching tails.

I said. and avoid all dietary obesity. The guidelines and recommendations of the Wellness Center, which is a part of the Wellness Committee, into a Wellness Nutrition Center. The Director of the Wellness Center, Jamie Mills, taught a workshop last week to help students make dorm food a matter of health and well-being. The workshop is called the "Freshman 15" because it is usual for freshmen to gain weight during their first year. A meal should be an enjoyable experience, Mills said. Even though you may not have time to sit down and eat, you should still try to eat a balanced meal. The general principle of nutrition is to choose a variety of foods, said Kate Zager, nutrition coordinator of the Wellness Center. In 1977, a Senate Select Committee drafted a set of dietary guidelines to offset health problems such as obesity and cancer, Zager said. The guidelines include avoiding too much fat, sugar and sodium and too much carbohydrates and saturated fats. Foods with enough fiber and starch should also be eaten. Eating should be an enjoyable experience, Mills said. Even though this can be hard in the dorms, she said, it can be done. "You should choose the main dish first because it is usually a good source of protein," she said. "A meal should feature a variety of colors and flavors." Seasons should also be considered when choosing food. Mills said that people tend to eat more apples in the fall because they're fresher and cheaper. "Not many tomatoes are eaten in the winter because they're out of season and too expensive," she added. Zager said people should look for deeper colored vegetables and fruits because they are fresher and more nutritious.

ZZ Top tickets $15

Tickets for the recently announced ZZ Top concert will cost $15. Arena Promotions Director Scott Moller said Monday, "The tickets, which go on sale at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, will be available at the Arena south lobby ticket box office. Line reservation cards will be distributed at 8 a.m. The cards are not needed to purchase tickets. However, those not having cards will be placed at the end of the ticket line until all those with cards have purchased tickets, Moller said."

ZZ Top, known for such songs as "La Grange," "Cheap Sunglasses," "Sharp Dressed Man" and "Sleeping Bag," will perform in Carbondale when their "Afterburner" tour makes a landing at the Arena March 2.

Workshop offers students tips for surviving dorm food

You don't have to gain the proverbial "freshman 15" because avoiding starchy foods "is a matter of choice," says Jamie Mills, nutrition counselor at the Wellness Center. During "Surviving on Campus Food," a workshop sponsored last week by the Wellness Center, participants were taught how to make dorm food into a well-balanced meal.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Gene Stallings, who earned a reputation as a disciplinarian during a 14-year tenure as an assistant coach in the SEC, is to coach Tom Landry, Monday was named head coach of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Stallings, 50, replaces Jim Hanifan, who was fired along with his entire staff Dec. 21 less than an hour after the Cardinals closed out the 1985 season with a 5-1 record.

"I think this is as good a person as coach Landry," Stallings said at the press conference to introduce him. "I'm a compassionate person.

"As long as anybody does their job and does it to the best of their ability, I think we'll get along fine.

Stallings joined Landry in 1972 after serving seven years as a head coach of his alma mater, Texas A&M.

Bill Bidwill, owner of the NFL club, was known to have been concerned that Hanifan lost control of his players during the season, when the Cardinals were picked to vie for the NFC East title but finished last in the conference.

Two days before the Cardinals’ last game — a 27-16 loss to Washington — Bidwill ordered his players to undergo drug testing. All but a handful refused and were fined $1,000 each.

"I don’t know anything about a drug problem," said Stallings. "I’m not in the business of thinking there’s a drug problem in St. Louis — at least, I don’t believe it.

"Texas Schramm, Cowboys general manager, said Stallings was respected by the Dallas players while still being "tough and demanding.

"If Bill Bidwill is looking for someone to straighten out some of the problems that have apparently cropped up with the Cardinals, I’d say that Gene is that kind of guy," said Schramm.

Although Bidwill had interviewed more than a half dozen candidates for the job, the final selection came down to Stallings and Jim Sweeney, coach of Fresno State.

Sweeney, coach of Fresno State in the NFC, was known to have fallen out of favor after demanding a five-year contract.

"It was a time-consuming search because I wanted to talk to as many people as possible who I thought were qualified," said Stallings.

two.

"I couldn’t stand to have the cast on and watch the games from the bench," he said.

Dushman has been paying for his early "recuperation" with constant pain on the court. His sore ankle requires hot whirlpool treatments every day.

"I injure it every day in practice," he said. "I want to get to full speed, but there’s no doubt I have to lay back.

"My ankle’s only been at 80 percent through the year, and trainer Ed Thompson said I shouldn’t be playing. I don’t say anything to Coach Herrin about it because he has no sympathy for foot injuries," Dushman said.

"I’m sure it affects him a little bit," Herrin said, "but there’s times you’ve got to forget those things.

Dushman says he has the ankle examined in the off-season to see if it requires corrective surgery.

Dushman, who played forward since high school, says his inexperience at center position has also contributed to his inconsistency.

"I was never a rebounding type of player," he said. "I just don’t have the jumping ability to do something like that. If Coach Herrin wants me to play center, I will, but it’s something I’m not comfortable with.

Dushman agrees that he and his coach have their differences.

"It’s been a matter of a difference of opinion," he said. "He makes a mistake, he pulls you. I think that’s wrong.

"He should give players three or four chances. Give him time to get into the game.

"He motivates people by yelling. Randy House is used to it after being with him at Benton for four years, and it motivates him. I’m not the type of player to be yelled at. Just tell me what my job is, and I’ll do it."

Dushman says that whatever is lost in compatibility with Herrin is made up with respect.

"I think he’s a daned good coach. The fans expect too much of him right now. He didn’t build the Benton program in a day. He’s getting some pressure, and he Ditka, Ryan never close friends; who gets credit for '85 success?

CHICAGO (UPI) — The image was so plain that it will remain forever etched into the memories of Chicago Bears Super Bowl XX victory over New England.

Hosted by Bear players was the imposing figure of Mike Ditka, wearing a Bears sweater and clearly enjoying the taste of a championship, chapmionship. A few yards away, another imposing if not hiffer figure, Buddy Ryan, was also being carried off by Bear defensive players. It was a scene generally considered as unprecedented where a defensive coordinator received such attention, loyalty and accolades as the one Ryan had received.

It begged the following question: Who actually coached the Chicago Bears to their championship win?

To bear the sparring going on since victory, the any of the above could fit in as the right answer.

Ditka and Ryan, now the head coaches of the Philadelphia Eagles and Arizona Cardinals, respectively, were hardly considered friends. But Ditka, who earned United Press International's coach of the year honors for leading Chicago to a 15-1 regular season, had enough good sense to know that Ryan was a defensive genius.

"Buddy pretty well did his thing in this game," said fullback Matt Suhey.

Defensive players insist it was more like Ryan ran the defense, Ditka ran the offense, Ditka said Monday it was a defensive scheme, Ditka and the Bears who claim Ryan's influence was minimal will have to put up or shut up.

“We had five defensive players in the Pro Bowl. Next year, we might have eight,” Ditka says. "The Bears have always been a strong defensive team. That didn't happen just when Buddy Ryan arrived." Ditka insisted the key to the Bears was teamwork and the working over of the offense, defense and special teams. He also prides himself on the improvement the offense — the unit he calls the plays for — made during 1985.

Observers, however, contended the offense was only as good as the defense made it look for the NFL champs. The defense was not only consistently awared the offense solid field position but gave it turnover after turnover. Additionally, the Bears seldomly had to rely on the offense during the 1985 season and not once did Ditka and the offense have to use a two-minute offense in the second half.

Ryan's defense put so much pressure on opponents that teams usually abandoned their game plans and went to the worst in the contest. While it was pressuring the offense, it was reducing the offensce's pressure on the Bears' defense to perform.

If Chicago wins today, the quarterback Jim Mcmahon at the helm, would stand on one end of the ball and four downs.

The truth is more likely that Ditka and Ryan coached the 1985 Chicago Bears Ditka stayed out of Ryan's way, Ryan stayed out of Ditka's. Credit Ditka for having the good sense to leave Ryan alone. Some coaches with more fragile egos would have demanded full say over everything.

If the Bears match or come close to matching the 1985 season record in 1986, Ditka will receive more credit than he has been getting for the success of the Super Bowl championship team.

If the Bears falter, especially on defense, then it will be Ryan who will have the last laugh on Ditka and the team that made him talk of the top 10 ranked teams.

A good answer could come when the Bears host the Eagles — and Ryan — during the regular season. Many will point to that as a good test, but the Eagles don't claim to have the talent level the Bears have and a better barometer should come when the wins and losses are added up in December.

"It's going to be an exciting challenge for the Bears," Ditka said. "What will really be saying is he looking forward to proving to the skeptics.

Aurora Courson captured fourth with a 45-4.5. Sue Anderson high-jumped 4-4 to place finish with a jump of 5-3.

The sprinters also took their share of top-five finishes. The Salukis took two of the top five places in the 300-yard dash, with Darci Stinson placing fifth behind teammate Appie Blackman, who ran to a second-place finish Dar.

DeNoon liked the way the Salukis looked in the meet. "I'm not discouraged at all."

I'm encouraged by where we are, but we do have room to grow. I'm really encouraged by what we've showed so far."

Next week the Salukis travel to Normal, Illinois to compete in the Illinois State Invitational.
Salukis down Billikens for 14th straight win

The SIU basketball women soundly beat the Billikens of St. Louis University Monday night, winning 78-46 to extend a school-record winning streak to 14 games.

With the conference win, the Salukis stand at 16-3 on the year and their 16-4 Gateway Conference start leads the league.

A crowd four times larger than usual came to West Pine Gym in St. Louis to watch a hoisted Salukis squad.

Said coach Todd Berghuis, "I'm still in shock.

"We took the team into town Monday night, but expanded that lead with a final score of 15.

The Salukis led by 36-24 going into the locker room, but expanded on that lead with a 14-8 scoring spurt fueled by eight points by Berghuis and four points from Bonds.

With the loss, the Billikens drop to 15-4 on the season.

Redbirds break SIU's 4-year swimming reign

The Saluki women swimmers were swept with a tide of Redbird-style upset at the Gateway Conference Championships over the weekend at Normal, as Illinois State became the first team in the conference's four-year-history to pry the title from SIU's grip with a final score of 626.50-613.40.

Considering SIU's .519 second-place finish from last year, the nearly 300 points better than SIU's .818, Redbird coach Steve Pasko tried to set a realistic goal for his team this year.

"Going into the meet, our goal was to come in not more than 150 points behind Southern," he said. "It was definable and attainable.

At first glance of the results, it would seem that the Salukis should have won the meet hands down, as they wiped out 15 of 16 events. But Paska pointed out the positive factor that depth played for his squad.

"I would have to say the depth we had in every single event was our strength," he said. "We placed three or more in every event except for two.

Conversely for SIU, depth proved to be a factor in their demise.

On Friday, the Salukis went down with a flu-ridden squad of 10, a few of whom were unable to compete once in Normal, including three-time All-American Claudia Zierold, Marianne Bentley and Amy Witherite.

Another factor which may have worked against SIU was the meet format, which didn't allow for any linear flexibility in entries and scratches. Most of the Saluki women were entered in their secondary events.

"I have to say that SIU is a class-act," Paska said. "As soon as we got the win, Bailey and the whole team came over and congratulated us.

Team meet results after second place showed Western Illinois third (340), Eastern Illinois fourth (382.50) and University of Northern Iowa fifth (180.50).

Inconsistency keeping Dusharm from being stand-out hoopster

Center Ken Dusharm is having a frustrating season.

The 67, 235-pound junior's averages of 7.1 points and 2.1 rebounds a game look like the mark of a steady, if unremarkable, player. But that is hardly the case.

To simplify describing his problem, it could be said that when Dusharm is good, he is very good. But when he's bad, well, he's the pits.

"He's been very instrumental in a couple of ball games. He gets a lot of mileage out of his physical talent. He's a good offensive player and a great asset to our basketball team," Saluki coach Rich Herrin said generously.

But he then added an understatement: "He just lacks some consistency."

In Dusharm's first game at SIU-C he performed spectacularly, scoring 22 points and grabbing 10 rebounds in a come-from-behind victory against Chicago State.

In the following 10 games, he fell into a new-familiar cold spell, collecting only 40 points and 26 rebounds. He finally broke out of his slump for a 16-point game in a victory over St. Louis.

He also played well in his next game at Drake, scoring 15, but scored only 10 points in his next two contests.

Duggan, he broke out of a cold spell again with a fine 18-point performance in a win over Indiana State, but quickly fell back into another slump. He has scored 22 points in his last three games.

Even Dusharm admits he doesn't know how well he'll play until he is on the court.

"If I feel good and strong, I know I'll have a good game. Sometimes I feel weak, and that breaks me down a lot," he said.

Dusharm, a transfer from Rogers State College in Claremore, Okla., says the weak feeling in his power games is caused by residual effects from an ankle injury in December 1984.

Late in a game against Coffeyville, he unknowingly suffered a hairline fracture to his right ankle. Though to pain, he played until the contest ended in overtime.

The ankle was wrapped in a walking cast and Dusharm was instructed to leave it on for six weeks. He removed it in late December.
