Harkin predicted to win Iowa caucus

By Todd Welvaert
Political Writer
and United Press International

Iowa Gov. Tom Harkin was expected to sweep his state's caucus Monday in voting for delegates to the Democratic national convention.

Harkin's campaign officials predicted he would garner at least 60 percent of the delegates, but the count was not official as the Daily Egyptian went to press.

On the Republican side, with an incumbent in the White House, party officials decided against holding the straw poll by which delegates are chosen and to concentrate instead on writing the party platform.

Harkin took no chances with his favorite-son standing and blitzed across the state in an attempt to make a strong showing for the New Hampshire primary next week. Harkin made stops on Sunday at Sioux City, Fort Dodge, Council Bluffs, Des Moines and stops in Iowa City and Davenport on Monday.

Other Democratic presidential candidates stayed away from Iowa, concentrating campaign funds for New Hampshire.

The caucus decides how many delegates a candidate will receive from the state. The delegates will travel to the Democratic national convention, where they will decide the candidate who receives the presidential nomination. A candidate must be supported by 15 percent of those in attendance to receive a nomination.

SIUC awarded $700,000

Funds to go for preparing child welfare workers

By Brandi Tipps
Administration Writer

SIUC was awarded about $700,000 in matching funds Monday from the Department of Health and Human Services for a $1.4 million project to prepare public child welfare workers in the Lower Mississippi Delta Region.

U.S. Rep. Glenn Poshard, D-Carterville, announced the award during a press conference Monday morning.

Poshard belongs to the Congressional Caucus of the Lower Mississippi Delta region.

"Probably the most vulnerable people in our whole society today are children of welfare parents," Poshard said. "I can't tell you how much this means to our area."

John H. Yopp, associate vice president and dean of the graduate school, said this region has a great need for child welfare workers.

"We see the need in terms of child welfare expressed in the fact that there is double digit unemployment in this region. We have 8 million people that represent some of the most neglected of population in the United States," Yopp said.

"Five colleges, 12 major professors and a commitment from the University of 51.9 percent of the total grant means that this investment represents one of the University's prime objectives," he said.

The SIUC School of Social Work will conduct the program in conjunction with the social work program at Mississippi Valley State University.

Mary E. Davidson, director of the SIUC School of Social Work, said the grant will make a difference for the children of the Delta region.

"It will make a difference because it's going to strengthen and increase the capacity of social work programs at SIUC," she said.

The grant will create an interdisciplinary base on child welfare programs and "will deliver practical know-how in a theoretical research based context of delivering services to families and children in an area of the country that's worse off than most third world nations," Davidson said.

The grant will help students as well as workers who already are working in the state agency, she said.

She is unsure of what the new curriculum will contain or what areas need work, Davidson said.

"I can tell you what they learn today. I cannot tell you what they will learn tomorrow because what this is about is a cutting edge grant to conceptualize new ways to prepare people for practice with poor families and vulnerable children," she said.

Poshard said he has a few ideas for the Study: Educational choices hinge on monetary awards

By Christine Leninger

More students are choosing a college or university based on the financial aid opportunities offered, according to a study by the Higher Education Institute at the University of California at Los Angeles.

The results of the UCLA study found a relation between financial aid opportunities and college choice based on responses from 210,000 students enrolled at 421 colleges and universities in the United States.

The proportion of students who said they chose a college based on offers of financial aid increased to 28 percent of students surveyed, up from 25 percent in 1990, according to the study, which was conducted last summer and fall.

Eighty-eight percent of SIUC students receive financial aid.

Dianna King, coordinator for Financial Aid, said a lot has been done to increase awareness of financial aid opportunities to incoming students.

"Financial Aid sends out pamphlets to all perspective students and many students call for information about opportunities for aid. King said.

"There has been a subsequent increase in early applications this year and for Monetary Award Program assistance which is part of the cause of the MAP being cut," she said.

Bob Clement, spokesman for the Illinois Student Assistance Commission, said a combination of state and ISAC legislation and an increase in requests for student assistance contributed to the financial aid cuts.

"There was an increase of 9 to 10 percent in applications for MAP awards and more students were eligible," Clement said. "More students were staying in school and not graduating which meant less money was

Author of 'Roots' dies in Seattle, leaves legend of African heritage

By William Ragan
Special Assignment Writer

Alex Haley, whose 1976 book "Roots" changed U.S. perception of black history and produced the most successful miniseries in television history, died Monday of a heart attack. He was 70. Haley died at Swedish Hospital in Seattle, Wash. He was in Seattle for several appearances related to Black History Month.

Jerry Lacey, acting director of SIUC Black American Studies, said Haley awakened the consciousness of the United States to African heritage.

"There are many of us African Americans who wish we could do the same thing in our individual families," Lacey said. "(Haley) aspired us to tie our present existence back to Africa."

Haley got the idea for "Roots," which chronicled three generations of a black family from slavery to freedom, from listening to his grandmother recite the family genealogy at gatherings of relatives.

Haley traveled half a million miles and

Skater strikes first U.S. gold Blair races to second medal

ALBERTVILLE, France (UPI) — Bonnie Blair, surrounded by kin and carrying the hopes of a nation started for success at the Winter Olympics, Monday retained her title as the fastest female skater in history.

The 27-year-old from Champaign won her second straight Olympic gold medal in 500-meter speedskating to give the United States its first medal of any kind at these Games.

Blair, skating before some 50 relatives and friends, dedicated her victory to her late father, who saw her win the gold in Calgary four years ago, but did not live to see his daughter's latest triumph.

"My dad always said I was going to win a gold medal," said Blair, whose father Chuck Blair died of pneumonia on Christmas Day 1989. "I always thought he was crazy. I was glad that he was with me in 1988 and that he was there to see that. This medal definitely goes to him."

Four years ago, Blair had to fight off the challenge of four East Germans to win the Olympic crown. This time her victory came over Ye Qiaobao, the first Chinese to win a medal at a Winter Olympics.

Ye finished 18-hundredths of a second behind Blair and then said she was interfered with by the woman with whom she was paired, Elena Tiouchnikova of the Unified Team.

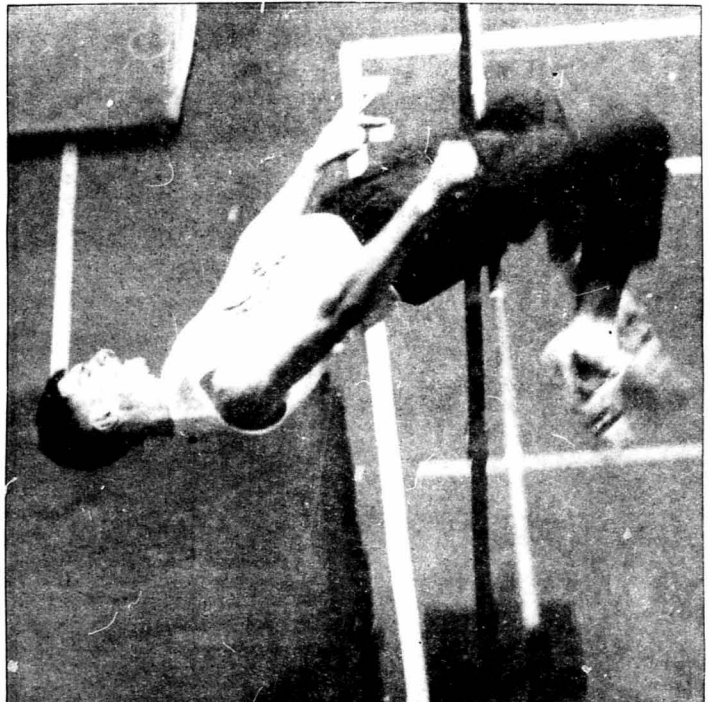

The brief, powerful sprint around the Olympic oval by Blair highlighted a day in which Norway swept the gold, silver and bronze in men's 30-kilometer cross-country skiing and the Austrians continued their surprising early success.

With a silver and bronze in the men's luge, Austria ran its medal total to seven — three more than any other country and only three short of Austria's entire total four years ago. Germany had four medals, including a gold won Monday by George Hackl in the luge.

Away from the venues, Harald Czudaj, the German four-man bobsled driver who used to work for East Germany's secret police, was cleared to compete. Willi Daume, president of the German National Olympic Committee, said the decision was largely based on a letter of support from Czudaj's teammates.

Jurors find Tyson guilty on 3 counts

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Former heavyweight champion Mike Tyson was found guilty on one count of rape and two counts of deviate sexual behavior Monday night by a jury after nine hours and 25 minutes of deliberation. Each count carries a maximum sentence of 20 years.

Tyson, 25, was convicted for an attack early last July 19 on an 18-year-old Miss Black America contestant in his hotel room.

The decision came after closing arguments in which the prosecution called the boxer a liar and the defense portraying his accuser as a gold digger.

Marion County Superior Court Judge Patricia Gifford sent the case to the jury just before noon.

Prosecutor Greg Garrison frequently mocked the defense's portrayal of the accuser as a gold digger out for revenge, pointing out that she is a devout Christian and volunteer in her Rhode Island community.

In an animated 45-minute argument, he pretended to instruct the accuser in plotting against Tyson for supposedly jilting her after consensual sex.

"The next time you frame someone for money, you've got to a better job," Garrison said while speaking in a condescending tone and pointing toward the accuser, who was seated with her mother at the front row of the courtroom gallery.

"Don't you see?" he said, giving his attention back to the jury.

"If you're going to make something up, you've got to make up a lot better story."

Dawgs, Redbirds in first-place duel

By James T. Rendulich
Sports Writer

SIUC's men's basketball team will try to tighten its loose grasp on first place in the Missouri Valley Conference as it battles Illinois State at home tonight.

Tipoff is at 7:35 in the Arena.

The Dawgs are in a first-place tie with the Redbirds and Tulsa. All three teams are 8-3. They are trailed by Indiana State, which is a half game out and SMSU, which is one game out.

The Salukis, 15-5 overall, are coming off a 60-54 win Saturday over the conference doormat Bradley Braves, who fell to 7-9 in the Valley and 6-16 overall.

The win ended the Dawgs' three-game skid which dropped the Salukis from first in the Valley to third.

The Redbirds are coming off a dramatic road win on Saturday. Sophomore Redbird guard Todd Webhoener drove to the hoop and banked in the winning shot in the waning seconds of the game against Indiana State to give the Redbirds a 64-62 win. The win thrust them into the tie with the Dawgs and Tulsa.

Saluki head coach Rich Herrin describes ISU a tough defensive team that is not afraid to get physical.

"Illinois State is an outstanding motion team that plays an aggressive man-to-man defense," Herrin said. "Over the last six weeks they have played as well as anybody in the conference and have built up a lot of confidence. It will be a high intensity game."

Of the 94 games the two teams have played, the Redbirds own a career 48-46 lead. But SIUC has won three in a row, including a 64-59 win at Normal on Jan. 25.

In the game, the Dawgs shot a minuscule 39.7 percent from the field, but the Redbirds shot an even worse 37.7 percent.

A key for the Redbirds may be their aptitude for beating teams who score under 60 points. This season the Redbirds are 4-0 in games in which the opposition scores less than 60.

LeFevre pleased with netters despite loss to powerhouse

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

The SIUC men's tennis team lost in its third match of the spring, but the match gave the Salukis encouragement for the season, coach Dick LeFevre said.

The Salukis lost 7-2 Sunday to Ohio State, which was the Big 10 champion in 1991. The netters are 1-2 in dual matches for the season.

LeFevre said, however, he was pleased with SIUC's endurance against OSU.

"We played a great deal better in the doubles," LeFevre said. "We lost all three to Miami (of Ohio), won one against Western and then won two against Ohio State. Five of the nine went three sets, and that looks very bright against a team as tough as Ohio State."

In doubles competition, SIUC won the No. 1 and No. 2 competition. Juniors Tim Derouin and Jay Merchant beat Jason Katzer and Vito Mazza 7-6, 4-6, 7-6.

Merchant said OSU was one of the tougher teams the team would play all season, and the close matches left the team optimistic for the season.

"Tim and I were combining a lot better at doubles," Merchant said. "I think we're a lot tougher in doubles. We just started the season, and it is good to play that close to a team as good as Ohio State."

"Four of the matches could have went either way. In the next two, three weeks we'll be even better."

At the No. 2 spot freshmen Uwe Classen and Altat Merchant beat Eric Faro and John Brumbaugh 6-2, 3-6, 7-6. Sophomore Kai Kramer and freshman Rodney Steven lost to John Leach and Dan Seikal 7-6, 7-6.

The netters dropped all five singles matches to OSU. In singles, No. 1 Jay Merchant lost to Gabor Kovacs, who is ranked 28th nationally, 6-0, 6-1.

Merchant said he has had a hard time making the transition from playing outdoors all winter, when he was home in India, to playing indoors again.

Altat Merchant and Classen both played very close singles matches that they could

With the conference championships less than three weeks away, SIUC's women's head track coach Don DeNoon said his team is steadily improving and picking up confidence.

DeNoon said the indoor season is structured in a way that if athletes don't get work in during Christmas break they can fall behind and not have time to get back in top form for the conference championships.

"We got off to a slow start early but now I think we are starting to pick up some confidence right now, which is encouraging," DeNoon said.

On Saturday, DeNoon's squad participated in the Indiana Invitational

JAPANESE RULING PARTY LOSES ELECTION — An opposition politician soundly defeated the ruling party's candidate Sunday in a special election widely regarded as a litmus test of public outrage at a series of corruption scandals that could affect the future of Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa. Top lawmakers of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party have been swept up in two scandals in the past weeks, including one in which a close ally of Miyazawa was indicted.

PAKISTAN TRIES TO STOP BORDER CROSSING — Pakistan security forces arrested hundreds of protesters to prevent them from crossing the line of control dividing Pakistan and India, Kashmir militants claimed Monday. Government officials denied making any arrests but said they had taken some protesters into protective custody. "We will take them back to their hometowns and release them," a police officer said.

CURFEW IMPOSED IN SOUTHERN RUSSIA — A curfew was imposed Monday on parts of southern Russia in an effort to end three days of gun-stealing attacks on former Soviet military outposts in the regions. The violent night-time raids on the garrisons were brought to a halt as riot police, national guardsmen and soldiers clamped down on the disorder in the area. The nightly attacks were occurring in an area claimed as a separate republic by the Chechen people.

ARMENIAN VIOLENCE RENEWED — Bloody battles Monday ended an unusually peaceful week in the disputed Azerbaijan enclave of Nagorno-Karabakh as Armenians and Azerbaijanis attacked each other's villages, killing about two dozen people. Dozens of rockets and missiles were flying back and forth between villages. Armed militants from both sides were attacking, and in some cases, capturing villages. The violence was the worst since the downing of an Azerbaijani helicopter.

AIRLIFT TO INDEPENDENT REPUBLICS BEGINS — The first of 54 plane loads of U.S. food and medicine arrived in former Soviet republics Monday in a military airlift of leftovers from the Persian Gulf war that some criticized as too little and too late. "Operation Provide Hope" began two months after food and medicine from the European Community and others began flowing into the economically struggling republics making up the Commonwealth of Independent States.

OFFICIALS DISMISS ALLEGED HAITI VIOLENCE — The administration Monday dismissed as unsubstantiated allegations that Haitian authorities roughed up and killed boat people who were forcibly returned to their homeland after U. S. officials rejected their requests for political asylum. "Yes, there were some reports. We have checked them out, and as in our checking out of previous reports we have no information to substantiate them," said a State Dept. spokesman.

AUDIT: STATE LOSES MONEY IN HEALTH CENTER — State government is losing $1.9 million per year in federal Medicaid reimbursements because a Chicago mental hospital is not in compliance with fire codes, a state audit revealed Monday. The auditor general's report said the widths of corridors and doors at the Geropsychiatric Unit at Chicago Read Mental Health Center are too small. State auditors recommended moving the patients so the state does not lose the money.

DIXON LEADS CHALLENGERS 2-1 — Only a "sustained, sharp attack" and high public visibility will allow two Democratic primary challengers to beat incumbent Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Belleville, a man who has never lost an election in 42 years of public life, a poll said Monday. The Chicago Tribune poll found Dixon leading two challengers—millionaire lawyer Al Hofeld and Cook County Recorder of Deeds Carol Mosely Braun—by a two to one margin.

Meningitis victim improving; five receive immunization

By Christy Gutowski
General Assignment Writer

SIUC student Shelley Browning contracted a bacterial disease when she was 10-years-old, at a time when physicians knew very little about meningitis.

Browning, now a 21-year-old SIUC student, was diagnosed with meningococcal meningitis, the most serious form of the disease.

"The last thing I remember was going to an ice rink on Saturday night," said Browning of Benton.

The following day she had a red rash covering her body, a 106 degree fever, a stiff neck, and she was unable to walk, she said.

Her parents took her to Franklin Hospital in Benton for treatment.

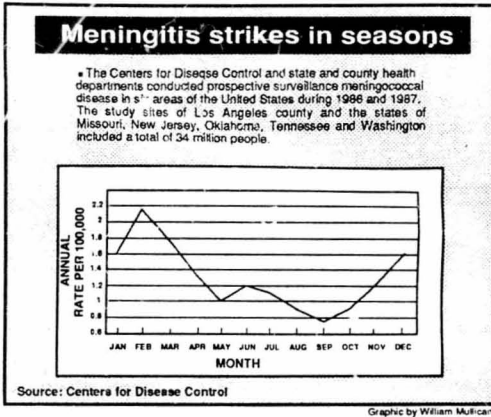

"They had no idea what I had," she said. "Doctors wrapped me in ice sheets to bring my temperature down and later that week I had a spinal tap."

Browning said that as the disease progressed, she lost a lot of hair, could not write and did not recognize any of her family.

"I eventually slipped into a coma," she said.

Now 11 years later, Browning still suffers from side effects including a weak immune system that causes her to suffer from walking pneumonia and joint problems such as athritis.

Last week a 56-year-old SIUC food worker in Grinnell Hall was diagnosed with the same type of illness Browning had bacterial meningitis.

The worker was taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale on Jan. 1 and still is listed in stable condition.

"The number of bacteria present in his body is being reduced and his mental status is improving," said Mary Pohlmann, interim chief of staff for the SIUC Student Health Program.

Pohlmann, who has been in contact with M.T. Potter, the patient's physician, said the SIUC employee received a spinal tap to sample his spinal fluid that determined he had meningitis.

The employee's family members were the most at risk of catching the illness because of direct contact with the infected individual.

But all household members were tested for the illness and are fine, Pohlmann said.

Less than one in 100 household contacts of a person with meningitis become sick with the illness.

International Festival 1992 to run through end of week

By Fatima Janvekar
General Assignment Writer

International Festival 1992 started Monday with music, dance and food at the Student Center.

A daily feast on international delicacies is being prepared by Student Center Dining Services in commemoration of International Week, which runs through Feb. 17.

Students and faculty will get a chance to savor foods from Europe, the Caribbean, France, the Middle East, Asia, Greece, Italy and Germany at the Old Main Room and Marketplace of the Student Center.

Each day of the week will feature dishes from a different country, including favorites such as bisque de crevette from France, apfelstrudel from Germany and spaghetti with marinara sauce from Italy.

Robert Bonfiglio, world-class solo artist, played the virtuoso harmonica with a trio of flute, violin and cello players at Shryock Auditorium Monday night to add a Western classical touch of elegance to the start of the festival.

"Mr. Bonfiglio has recorded the sound tracks for some films, such as Kramer vs. Kramer," said John Corker, director of the Student Center.

"We have been very supportive of the efforts of the International offices on campus, to promote the festival, and this year we have expanded the program to include the concert, international videos by the Student Programming Council and the coffee house on Feb. 13," Corker said.

"We feel the International Festival is one of the most outstanding annual programs at Southern," Corker said.

International Festival highlights include:

■ Tuesday—proclamation of International Week at 10 a.m. in the Gallery Lounge by Carbondale Mayor Neil L. Dillard and SIUC administrators.

■ Wednesday—national teleconferences on the Earth Summit from 7 to 9 p.m. in Ballrooms A and B in the Student Center.

■ Thursday—International Coffee House at 8 p.m. in the Bug Muddy Room at the Student Center.

■ Friday—exhibition of international arts and crafts from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the International Lounge.

AK-47s don't belong away from battlefield

THE PERSIAN GULF WAR SUCCESS has been greatly celebrated, but recent reminders of the victory have caused more chills than cheers.

On Jan. 23 police confiscated Iraqi AK-47s assault rifles near Crab Orchard Lake after complaints of automatic gunfire. The weapons were smuggled into the country by servicemen from Operation Desert Storm.

ENEMY WEAPONS HAVE LONG been considered souvenirs by soldiers and collectors. German Lugers and Japanese swords from World War II might be considered collector's items because of their craftsmanship and originality, but Iraqi AK-47s pose a more immediate threat. Police are worried about what could happen if these types of weapons end up in the hands of the wrong people.

ALONG WITH THE IRAQI FIREARMS, surely other weapons are being brought back into the private sector. If the thought of automatic weapons in local neighborhoods seems frightening, think of the mass numbers of mines, large scale explosives and other weapons that also were used during Operation Desert Storm. Where are these weapons going to show up? How much would inner-city gangs pay for weapons that would give them an even greater firepower advantage over police?

Obviously taking weapons from the battlefield to the homefront is illegal, but the souvenir business is full of reminders of past wars. For some reason, however, it is hard to picture replacing the Samurai swords hanging in World War II veterans' dens and living rooms with AK-47s.

LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS have a very legitimate concern in the weapons. The relics of past wars seem almost artful in comparison to today's cold and brutal weapons. The AK-47 serves only one purpose and that is to aid in the quantity and speed of killing.

With a total of 11 rifles having been seized in Illinois and Pennsylvania, the question must be asked: How many others are being circulated throughout the country by returning servicemen?

THE MILITARY BRANCHES do not allow soldiers to keep enemy weapons, but often times small souvenirs are overlooked. However, the smuggling of AK-47s through military helicopters and shipping containers and then sneaking them through customs must be looked down upon and punished. The Persian Gulf War should not become a smugglers' gold mine.

With new ways to kill mass numbers of people being developed every day, the regulation of servicemen returning with weapons must be tightened. As wars have escalated so has the potential danger of their souvenirs.

NO ONE CARES TO SEE MX MISSILES hanging over their neighbor's fireplace.

Quayle no heavyweight fighter, should stick with playing golf

Until recently, I couldn't think of anything that Dan Quayle and I might agree on.

Actually, there has been something. We both believe that playing golf beats working. But unlike that fortunate lad, I lack a government jet to whisk me to distant country clubs, millionaire hosts to toss $100 bills at our caddies, and Secret Service agents to clear away the sluggish four-some ahead.

But that's nitpicking. Everyone should have a hobby, and as long as Quayle doesn't have a real job, he's better off playing golf than hanging out in pool halls. Besides, those long strolls up the fairway give him time to prepare for the explosive verbal combat that he believes awaits him.

I'm talking about Mario Cuomo. Quayle recently caused a stir when he flatly predicted that Cuomo would wind up as the Democratic presidential candidate. He's more confident about that than I am. I make no such prediction but merely hope the Democrats will wise up in time to select Cuomo.

It's obvious that Quayle wants Cuomo to run. Quayle has been taunting him since last summer. He makes a pint of emphasizing Cuomo's name: "Mario, Mario, Mario."

The unspoken message is something like: "What kind of American has a name like Marrorio?"

Quayle may have a point. Besides his head, I mean. On the other hand, we've never had a president named J. Danforth. And when Lincoln ran, there were those who probably said: "Abe? Hey, is this guy Jewish?"

The question is, why does Quayle want Cuomo in the race?

Because it is Quayle's chance to prove that beneath his bland, shallow, programmed exterior is something more than a bland, shallow, programmed interior. He would have a chance to finally shed his reputation for being nothing more than a pleasant-looking dope.

Mike Royko

Tribune Media Services

It would be an opportunity for him to match wits with Cuomo, to duel him with words and political ideology, to pit his intellect against Cuomo's, to dazzle Jay Leno, "Saturday Night Live" and all the others who believe he is a ninny.

By thrashing Cuomo, Quayle will put to rest the perception that has haunted him since he became Vice President: that he is a mental lightweight. (Actually, it's a perception that's been around since he was a college freshman, but not as many people noticed.)

But why, you might ask, does it have to be Cuomo? Why can't Quayle do the same to the other Democratic aspirants? Because he wouldn't have to. Quayle's laserlike wit and profound thoughts wouldn't be needed because the others would be beaten so easily.

Clinton? Yes, he is currently leading the other Democrats in the polls. The Washington pundits say this means he has survived his embarrassing brush with the blond floozy. The nation has told the pollsters it doesn't care what Clinton did or didn't do between the sheets with his phone pal. (Actually, the nation hasn't said this; a few hundred people have. But why quibble over a petty 245 million?)

Unfortunately, the words of the late George Washington Plunkett are still true. The oldtime Tammany Hall politician said: "Politics ain't beanbag." Which meant it can be a dirty, bare-knuckle game.

So next fall, thousands of Republican county chairmen, precinct workers—anybody with a copying machine—will be unable to resist the temptation: They'll find the most embarrassing portions of Clinton's phone conversations with the bimbo, run off copies, and stuff them in mailboxes.

Is that nice? Is that fair? Of course not. But to Clinton's misfortune, the tapes are there. And he can't very well say an impostor was having those intimate conversations with the floozy—not after he apologizes to Cuomo for what he, not an impostor, said on them. No, those tapes will be draped around Clinton's neck like flowers on a tourist in Hawaii. The tapes and the floozy would abe Bush's new Willie Horton. Bush could even piously decry and renounce such scurrilous tactics. How is he to prevent people from putting nasty pamphlets in mailboxes, for gosh sakes?

So that's why Quayle wants Cuomo out there: so he can go up against the Democrats' strongest contender, their heavyweight. And by doing so, he will prove that he, too, is a heavyweight. And maybe he is. If he eats a truckload of bananas before the weigh-in.

curriculum, one of which deals with the trauma of divorce.

"I would like to see this curriculum also try to explore ways social service people can enter into this arena and try to work with the leader counselors, the court system, the children and the parents that go through these situations to lessen the emotional trauma of children, especially children of welfare families," Poshard said. Davidson said sometimes training child welfare workers is not effective because techniques lag behind what is needed in terms of the real world.

The Delta region, 219 counties near the Mississippi River in Southern Illinois, Mississippi, Arkansas, Kentucky, Missouri, Tennessee and Louisiana, has the highest poverty rate in the country, said Rhonda J. Vinson, director of the SIUC Office of Economic and Regional Development.

have been heavily attended, voter turnout was expected to be very low, with only 18,000 to 25,000 registered voters turning up, compared to 120,000 voting in 1988.

"Iowa will not make much of a difference this time," said SIUC political science Associate Professor: John Foster. "The only thing that may make a difference is if Harkin somehow loses."

Other Democratic presidential candidates avoided Iowa. Sen. Bob Kerry, D-Neb., former Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton and former California Gov. Jerry Brown stayed in New Hampshire.

"Iowa will be essentially irrelevant this year," Foster said. "The major candidates either stayed out or conceded. It's hard to beat some one in their own home town."

The Republicans did not bother with the early caucus, with President Bush's major opposition coming from syndicated columnist Pat Buchanan and former Ku Klux Klan leader David Duke. Both campaigned in Iowa.

The sweep was a big change from the last presidential race, when six Republicans and seven Democrats clashed in Iowa, all hoping the state would provide front-runner status for the parties before New Hampshire.

"Harkin won't increase significantly in the polls because of Iowa," Foster said. "If you look at the 1988 race, (Sen. Paul) Simon, (D-Makanda), won easily over (the Rev. Jesse) Jackson but Simon's campaign basically stopped there." Harkin said he wanted to win half the delegates, but experts say the win would not be significant unless he garners 60 to 80 percent of the delegates.

The Iowa Democrat's presence has discouraged other candidates from spending precious campaign dollars in a state that sends only a small number of delegates to the national conventions.

"Yes, we miss the limelight," said John Roehrick, state Democratic chairman. "But it's sort of nice. It gives us time to get ready for the rest of the year instead of being knee-deep in presidential politics."

Harkin, although expected to capture the most delegates of the Democratic contenders, is not totally without organized opposition. Pat Mahoney, a Presbyterian minister from Boca Raton, Fla., is running on an anti-abortion platform.

"I really think we're going to surprise everyone," said Peter Heers, 20, Mahoney's only full-time campaign worker. He said Mahoney has spent two weeks in Iowa.

Harkin's opposition is expected to come from "uncommitted." Many Iowans go to their caucuses to choose uncommitted convention delegates.

available for new eligible students."

The UCLA survey also showed many students are seeking spots at universities as a result of poor economic situations that make finding a job more difficult.

The total on-campus student enrollment in 1990 was 19,888. In 1991 it was 20,485.

Student enrollment figures at SIUC do not show any significant increase in enrollment, but many iversity officials say the study could be right in its claims.

Jerre Pfaff, associate director of admissions and records, said student enrollment is directly related to the current economic situation. "The current economic situation is pushing students toward getting an education rather than joining the workforce," Pfaff said.

Pfaff said cost, location and financial aid also push students in their college choice, as findings in the UCLA study suggest.

"Many students these days need to work their way through college, so the cost and location of SIUC are great for those students and may be the cause for a rise in enrollment," Pfaff said.

spent $80,000 of his savings and nine years of his life researching the book, finally tracing his lineage to Kuta Kinte, an African who was kidnapped into slavery in the late 1700s.

Haley wrote a "black saga" in which "any individual's past is the essence of the millions."

Dianne Pinderhughes, director of African-American Studies at the University of Illinois, said Haley contributed more than literature to U.S. society.

"We have to think about his contribution to the black community and American society, which has been influenced by the African concept of ancestors," Pinderhughes said.

"One should look to the past for the people who gave us life and a way of looking at the world," she said.

His book "Roots," published in 1976, was adapted as an eight-part serial for television, and broadcast on the ABC network beginning Jan. 23, 1977, where it was viewed by 130 million people.

Prior to "Roots," Haley conducted the first of his in-depth interviews for Playboy with jazz trumpeter Miles Davis in 1972.

Haley went on to write "The Autobiography of Malcolm X," which sold close to 7 million copies.

Haley was born Aug 11, 1921, in Ithica, N.Y.

He attended Elizabeth City Teachers College in North Carolina for two years before dropping out to join the Coast Guard in 1939.

While in the Coast Guard, Haley sold articles to magazines and upon retirement at the age of 39 started free-lancing articles for Reader's Digest and Playboy.

was diagnosed with meningitis on Jan. 31 and is being treated at St. Louis Children's Hospital.

But there was no connection between the two cases, said John Ottolini, a specialist at the Illinois Department of Public Health's regional office in Marion.

Viral meningitis is another form of the disease and generally is less severe than bacterial meningitis.

The illness is caused by a viral infection in the stomach and intestine, according to the Illinois Department of Health.

Before antibiotics were used at least 70 percent of persons with bacterial meningitis died of the infection.

The fatality rate is usually 15 percent or less with modern antibiotic treatment, said Ann Schuchat of the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

The Student Health Center received 34 phone calls from students who requested information about the prophylactic antibiotic.

otic, Rifampin, by last Friday.

But only five students received the oral antibiotic, Pohlmann said. "We interviewed the students before-hand to see if it was appropriate to give the oral antibiotic," she said.

The antibiotic kills the bacteria that live in the nose and throat for a short duration of time.

Rifampin differs from a vaccination because it is an oral antibiotic and is not administered intravenously, Pohlmann said.

Vaccinations, in general, are intended to immunize individuals against a disease for a long time.

Many healthy people may carry the bacteria in their throat and nose without becoming sick, Ottolini said.

"Studies have shown that one in four people carry the organism in their throat or mouth without ever becoming ill," he said.

Bursar says best part of job solving students' problems

By Teri Lynn Carlock
Special Assignment Writer

Charles Bernardoni is the man SIUC students love to hate—he is the bursar.

Even though it is sometimes difficult for students to like the man who sends bills to them in the mail every semester, Bernardoni said the students are the best part of his job.

"I like to be around students. Southern has a very good student population," he said. "Once in a while I get a student who comes in and gives us problems, but that's nothing."

The best times he has at his job are when he helps students with problems.

"When you work with a student who has financial difficulties and they owe the University money, and you sit down with that student and work it out—that's the best part," he said. "And now they are graduated and have a successful job and still call you—those are the good times," he said.

"There are very few days he does not want to come to work," Bernardoni said.

"If I did not want to get up in the morning to come to work, I would not have stuck it out this long," he said. "Someone has to run the railroad; someone has to be the engineer."

Bernardoni started as a student worker in the internal auditor's office 35 years ago, after graduating from SIUC in June of 1958 with a major in accounting.

By 1961 he was an accountant I in the internal auditor's office and then became accountant II and III. He was assistant treasurer, controller and director of general accounting before becoming bursar.

"If I did not want to get up in the morning to come to work, I would not have stuck it out this long. Someone has to run the railroad; someone has to be the engineer."

—Charles Bernardoni

for SIUC in 1984.

Bernardoni said he stayed with accounting for a lot of reasons.

"I like to deal with finances and the exactness of accounting and keeping records," he said. "And I enjoy the student and academic environment also."

Benjamin A. Shepherd, vice president of academic affairs and research, has known Bernardoni since his arrival at SIUC in 1969.

"He is a friend of all friends and an outstanding SIUC employee," he said. "He is one who never said 'no' when asked to do something beyond the call of duty."

Bernardoni said his major duty as bursar is to oversee the operations in the bursar office and to make sure the department runs smoothly.

"I am responsible for planning, managing, availability of resources and handling personnel matters," he said. "It is basically a service function."

He is not sure the notorious "Woody Hall Shuffle" even exists, Bernardoni said.

"There's only so many windows, and we can only do so much with our resources," he said. "During peak periods, sometimes we don't have the staff and facilities. I know students go through a lot, but I'm not sure it's the Woody Hall Shuffle," he said.

Bernardoni said there are a lot of external restraints such as federal and state regulations, so Woody Hall does not buy, control over some of the problems affecting students.

"There is so much for kids to do themselves before they come to us, and we send a lot of students away until they have their personal business finished—it's unavoidable," he said.

Bernardoni said he has a lot of external contact with parents because he has to make sure the department provides service to not only the students but also to their families.

When Bernardoni is away from his office, his family takes up much of his free time.

With a wife for 37 years, five children whose ages range from 18 to 26 and four grandchildren, Bernardoni said his life at home is "immensely happy."

Two of his children, Denise and Michael, are SIUC graduates and work at SIUC. Denise works in Financial Aid and Michael works for printing and duplicating services.

Bernardoni's other two sons live at home. One attends John A. Logan College and plans to transfer to SIUC.

At the age of 61, Bernardoni said he has no plans for retirement.

Female interns given opportunity to enhance administrative careers

By Sherri L. Wilcox
General Assignment Writer

Ann-Janine Morey and Lynn M. Conley are getting a chance to enhance their administrative careers and interests.

Morey, an English instructor, author and new mother and Conley, associate SIUC ombudsman and sorority adviser, have been selected as administrative interns by University Women's Professional Advancement.

The internships are half-time, split evenly with their regular positions. The program is open to women who have been in SIUC faculty, administrative-professional or civil service positions for at least five years.

Morey said her main administrative interest lies in the way money is allocated at the University.

"I want to know how they figure out who gets what," she said. "I want to learn more about how academic decisions are determined by financial ones. As a faculty member, I see the effects, but not the cause," she said.

Morey came to SIUC in 1979 as an assistant professor of religious studies with a doctorate in religion and ethics from the University of Southern California. Ten years later, she had her tenure switched to the English department.

"Religious Studies was a small department, and there had been talks of cutbacks for a long time," she said. "It became exhausting to keep defending my job when there were no options for moving up."

She has a lot of flexibility within the English department, Morey said. She uses her background in religious studies regularly in her course on religion in literature.

"I really like teaching the University honors course as well," she said. "It's about evil—a timeless topic. I guess I like 'big' questions," she said.

Morey is a member of the Faculty Senate and is co-chairing a committee that is reviewing ways to restructure the general education requirements at SIUC.

Morey said she is looking forward to the internship. It comes at a natural transition time in her life because she has just finished a major personal project: a new book.

"Religion and Sexuality in American Literature," which will be available in April, studies 19th and 20th century literature and the way male and female authors write about embodiment. The book covers a lot of issues regarding ministers and churches, she said.

"It's current with all the scandals—Jimmy Swaggart, the Bakkers—people are excited about this stuff," she said.

Conley has been the associate University ombudsman since 1974. She has a bachelor's degree in psychology and a master's degree in rehabilitation counseling, both from SIUC. Conley said her interests lie in long-term planning.

"I would like to find out how long-term planning affects human resources," she said. "I guess I'm trying to look into the future."

As an ombudsman, Conley advises students and faculty in situations regarding topics such as academic affairs, financial aid, housing and harassment. Conley said she hopes to one day be in a position where she can do more than just recommend courses of action to people.

"I want to be able to take some action and make some changes," she said. "Ultimately this internship will help me look at things from another point of view."

"I hope to bring back input that will allow the ombudsman office to make modifications to move more 'in sync' with the University," she said. "I want a broader understanding of how this campus works, at least administratively."

In addition to her position as associate ombudsman, Conley is a graduate-level member and adviser to the Delta Sigma Theta sorority, a speaker for the Sexual Harassment Speaker's Bureau and a representative to the Parking and Traffic Advisory Committee, which focuses on what she calls "the ridiculous pressures of parking" on this campus.

Although Conley is looking for diversification in an intern position, she said it will be difficult to find a truly different experience than with what she's already involved.

Free-lance artist finds much work even in tough recessionary times

By Ronn Byrd
 Entertainment Writer

Computer graphics expert George Tuggle Jr. was laid off from his job at the Washington Times last April because of cutbacks from the recession.

But despite the tough job market, Tuggle still is able to find plenty of free-lancing work.

"The ironic thing about free-lancing in a recession is that there's a lot of free-lance work," Tuggle said. "A lot of newspapers can't staff an entire art department, but they can hire a free-lance artist."

Tuggle gave a slide show presentation and lecture Monday night in the University Museum Auditorium.

The lecture was part of the SIUC School of Art's visiting artist program.

He was referred to the program by Ann Saunders, assistant professor in the School of Art. Saunders attended graduate school with Tuggle.

"It's been really wonderful watching his work develop," Saunders said. "And I think it also demonstrates to students that with hard work and some strong skills you can weather the recession."

Tuggle showed slides of his work experiences as a free-lance graphic artist, including his illustrations and computer graphics.

Tuggle met with faculty Monday and stopped in classrooms to show students graphics on computers.

Tuggle, who began working for the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corp. has been designing graphics for five years. While working for Neighborhood Reinvestment Corp., Tuggle created brochures, invitations and special congressional reports.

Tuggle started designing his graphics by hand. He now uses McDraw and Aldus Freehand software mostly to create newspaper charts, graphs, maps and even portraits.

Tuggle has worked as an illustrator for the marketing firm

Jam Corp., where he made advertising illustrations for Coors Beer and the Washington D.C. Lottery.

Tuggle also worked for "Insight" magazine. While at "Insight", he was responsible for the layout and design of charts graphs and maps.

"I did business charts, economy charts and some politics," Tuggle said. "Some really fun stuff."

Tuggle has also shown his work at places such as the The Community Folk Art Gallery in Syracuse and the Student Gallery in Chicago.

Tuggle currently freelances out of his home. His recent work includes graph and chart work for Knight Ridder/Tribune News in Washington D.C.

Tuggle said he would like to continue freelancing in the next few years.

"I've had some offers from the Washington Times and the Boston Globe," Tuggle said.

"But I'd like to keep free-lancing. Either that or I'd like to teach," he said.

Preventive measures limit teller machine fraud

By Scott Wuerz
Police Writer

As the United States streaks into the computer age, life may become easier for people to accomplish everyday tasks.

Pizza comes to the front door with a relatively small amount of manual labor and answering machines take the guesswork out of leaving the phone unattended.

But if possessors of Automatic Teller Machine cards are careless, thieves can drain their accounts with virtually no risk.

Carbondale banks provide a variety of services to protect customers from ATM fraud, but bank officials say the best defense of their accounts is a little common sense.

Debby Dibble, assistant secretary at Charter Bank at 500 W. Main, said Charter uses security cameras and personal identification numbers to protect its customers.

The security numbers are chosen by the cardholder and the bank has no record of the customer's selection to prevent the information from being obtained by potential criminals through bank records, Dibble said.

If thieves attempt to use a card, the machines are programmed to limit their opportunities for success.

"If a potential criminal enters an improper identification number the machine will give them one chance to correct the error," she said.

"If an incorrect number is entered on the second attempt the card will be retained by the machine and the owner has to come to the bank in person to retrieve the card," she said.

Darlene Long, who works in the new accounts department at Magna Bank's Carbondale Branch at 100

N. Illinois, said customers should avoid using identification numbers based on their birthday, social security number or other information that could be found in a lost wallet or purse.

"It's important to stay away from obvious numbers. The thief is limited by the fact that he only gets a couple of chances to find the number so it's up to the card-holder to do their best to keep the number private."

Carbondale Police Resource Officer Kent Burns said a few common sense measures can limit the risk of ATM card theft.

"First, only carry the card around with you only when you intend to use it," he said. "Don't keep more than one card, and keep the identification number private."

Bank machines in Carbondale are occasionally vandalized, but thieves have never been able to physically remove any cash, Burns said.

"If people aren't careful, they expose themselves to the possibility of being assaulted and robbed when they use the machines late at night," he said. "But the machines themselves are pretty secure."

COBA-sponsored work fair offers career opportunities

By Jeremy Finley
General Assignment Writer

LaTanya Lomax learned what it takes to have a career in marketing last year.

Lomax, a junior in marketing and vocational education, attended programs sponsored during the College of Business and Administration career week and plans to do the same at this year's 10th annual Career Enhancement Week.

The main objective of the week is to let students know about career opportunities, said Rebecca Fournier, assistant dean for COBA.

"Students also learn about networking within their fields and they get exposed to different career fields," Fournier said.

Career Opportunity week, which ends Friday, is geared toward business students but is open to students in all majors.

"We invite all students, the week is closed to no one," Fournier said.

Students are able to make professional contacts and meet with people involved in their career fields so they can make sure they're in the right field for them, said Brian Laehy, president of the COBA student council.

"Students find out exactly what they're getting into," Laehy said.

Nutritionist: Difference of yogurt, ice cream found in fat, not calories

By Kara Grover
General Assignment Writer

Ice cream and yogurt both drip—but what advertisers tout as a significant nutritional difference between the two is not always accurate, a local nutritionist says.

The essential difference between ice cream and yogurt is the amount of fat and not the calories as many people assume, said a nutritionist at the Wellness Center.

"The fat in the diet is what is usually accumulated in heart disease," said Kate Zager, nutrition and fitness coordinator at the Wellness Center. "If you're talking about regular ice cream, Breyers or Haagen Dazs, ice cream is usually higher in fat than yogurt." When searching for the lowest fat between one half cup of such taste treats as ice cream and yogurt, ice cream has the lowest fat content.

One half cup of Haagen Dazs vanilla ice cream tops the list with 270 calories and 17 grams of fat. Dairy Queen ice cream ranks in the middle with 140 calories and four grams of fat and the lowest fat content is found in a lowfat frozen cone at McDonalds, which has 105 calories and one gram of fat.

Zager said people should be aware of what they are eating.

"It's most important that you know what you're eating and how to balance the foods you like into a healthful eating pattern," she said. The fat content found in the goodies that are loaded into either ice cream or yogurt can sometimes make the difference, Zager said.

"If you go for frozen yogurt, then put cookie toppings on it, you're just adding more fat to it," Zager said. "The best topping is the fresh fruit."

Bruce Griffith, co-owner of TCBY at 830 E. Walnut, said the obstacle he encounters when attracting potential customers is the misconception that some people have about yogurt.

"I always dare people to see if they can tell the difference between regular soft-served ice cream and TCBY yogurt," he said.

driver Brian Shimer had a disappointing start. Their sled finished 18th fastest in one practice run and 17th in another.

As Olympic officials, athletes and fans settled in for two long weeks of competition, the first snowfall of the Games drifted down in the French Alps.

The snow, combined with fog, forced a delay in the start of the downhill portion of the men's combined alpine event. But in Albertville, which sits at the base of the Alps, the sun threatened to turn the speedskating oval to mush, forcing an hour postponement in the 500-meter race.

The delay did not bother Blair, who entered the Games as the most heavily favored athlete in any of the 57 medal events. She skated in the fifth pairing on the 400-meter oval alongside Germany's Angela Hauck, one of her chief rivals on the World Cup. By the end of the first straightaway, Blair was 16-hundredths of a second ahead of Hauck.

Moments before Blair took the ice, Ye skated the 500 meters in 40.51. Blair then knew if she could beat that time and also defeat Hauck, she would likely win her second Olympic gold.

As Blair came sailing around the final turn, she was well in front of Hauck, so it was only a question of whether she could top the Chinese skater's time.

have won, LeFevre said.

Derouin, No. 2, lost to Sam Sebastian 3-6, 6-2, 6-3; Altaf Merchant lost to Katzer 4-6, 7-6, 7-5; Classen lost to Dan Cibula 2-6, 6-4, 6-4; Kai Kramer lost to Mazza 6-1, 6-1; and Steven lost to Faro 6-1, 6-1.

Classen said he played a lot better than he did the opening weekend.

"I was very close in the second set," Classen said. "Cibula was a tough player. He played good when it was close. I played alright in doubles. Tim and Jay played a tough match. We're still switching around and trying to find out what works best."

The Salukis next play Feb. 22 in the Vanderbilt Invitational. SIUC is scheduled to play Vanderbilt, Middle Tennessee State, Mobile College and the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

The Salukis, who after 15 games were averaging about 80 points a game, have not scored more than 60 points in their last three games and have averaged 57.8 during the last five.

With the congestion at the top of the Valley, Herrin is glad to see his team in control of its own destiny despite the recent scoring drought.

"We have an opportunity to go out and take care of ourselves," Herrin said. "It's a case of if you want it, then go out and get it."

Three of the next four games will be against top Valley foes. After ISU the Dawgs face Tulsa twice.

The accuser says Tyson lured her to his suite at the Canterbury Hotel about 2 a.m. on the pretense of talking and finding his bodyguard, then attacked her.

Lead defense attorney Vincent Fuller often stood behind a lecturn during his 85-minute final argument, saying the accuser is sophisticated beyond her years and knew what she was getting into.

"I submit to you that she was treated rudely but was humiliated by her own conduct," Fuller said. "She says I had no business being in a room at 2 a.m. with a man I barely know," then proceeded to tell stories of varying details. "She voluntarily got into the limo, went to his hotel room, went to his bedroom and sat on his bed. To watch TV? I don't think so."

Fuller also emphatically explained that if the 220-pound Tyson forced himself on the petite 110-pound complainant, she would have suffered visible injuries. "That kind of massive weight on a frail young woman would hurt. There was not a bruise found on her body. Not one single bruise," Fuller said while pounding his open hand on the lecturn.

In the prosecution's summation, prosecutor Barbara Trathen said Tyson and soul singer Johnny Gill told "the lie" of the trial when they testified Tyson used explicit, vulgar language in inviting the accuser.

at Bloomington, Indiana. Despite not placing any athletes higher than fourth place the meet went well and added to his team's growth.

"Considering we only took 28 or 29 athletes compared to our usual 40 and the level of competition I think we came away looking pretty decent," DeNoon said.

The invitational drew more than 40 teams and 500 athletes.

Leading SIUC with fourth place finishes were juniors Annette Klett in the high jump and Dawn Barefoot in the 3,000-meter.

The Salukis' distance medley relay team, which came up less than two seconds shy of finishing third, got edged by Kentucky.

Still, their time of 12:34.44 seconds placed the squad second in the Saluki record book in the event.

Juniors Becky Coyne in the 55-meter hurdles and Nacolia Moore in the triple jump took sixth places.

SIUC assistant coach, Kathleen Raske, who is seeking a chance to compete in the 100-meter hurdles in the Olympics, placed first in the 55-meter hurdles. Raske's time of 7:86 seconds is good but still is shy of her capabilities, DeNoon said.

"After seeing her go through some injury problems earlier in the year it's nice to see her back on top and performing like she is capable," DeNoon said. "The track she ran was not particularly fast so she is coming on strong."

The squad's next meet will be this weekend at the Purdue Invationals in West Lafayette, Ind.

At the meet, SIUC will battle Southwest Missouri, Miami of Ohio and Notre Dame.

"I don't know if we are ready to be one of the top two schools in the conference but we will continue to hang onto third and work hard," DeNoon said. "The talent is there; it's just a matter of utilizing it."
