Faculty Senate votes for new pass-fail grade policy

By Debbie Thorburn Staff Writer

A revised version of the proposed undergraduate grading policy, which would allow students to receive grades of pass or fail, was passed Tuesday by the Faculty Senate.

The changes are to be approved by the Office of Academic Affairs and Research before they become final. Some of the changes proposed by the senate's Undergraduate Education Policies Committee (UEPC) and approved by the senate are:

- A student receiving a D in a course taken pass-fail will automatically be given the A. Academic Affairs and Research had proposed that there be no changes in the pass-fail grades.

Marvin Kleinau, chairperson of the UEPC subcommittee, said the change is in response to a student's desire to take a course pass-fail and not hurt the grade of another student. He believes the change would not hurt a student's average.

Mitchell 'in good shape' after surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — John N. Mitchell had surgery Tuesday for repair of a fractured skull and his decision is to enter a 75-year-old former Notary general came through the operation in good shape. Mitchell was reported as being 'relatively comfortably' in the surgical intensive care until George Washington University Hospital, where he was hospitalized about two weeks. Mitchell is on furlough from his current sentence from his convictions of obstructing justice and lying under oath during the Watergate trial. He becomes eligible for parole on June 21.

Hunting and fishing license fees may rise

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Legislation has been introduced in the Illinois House that would raise the state's hunting and fishing license fees for the first time in 20 years. The Department of Conservation is asking for money for a new fish hatchery, waterways improvements, more hunting- and fishing-related wildlife habitat and additional public hunting grounds. The new bill would raise fishing licenses to $15, hunting to $7 and dog permits to $10 and create a combination hunting-fishing license for $41. Children and persons over 65 years of age could still hunt, fish and deer. Legislation to raise the fees last June was defeated in the Senate by one vote

Police demand evidence from kidnappers

PARIS (AP) — Police demanded Tuesday that the kidnappers of Belgian industrialist Baron Edouard-Jean Empain deliver any of his personal possessions "to prove they are indeed holding him hostage." The ransom was said to remain at $3 million. The kidnappers have said they would help restore farmers' fortunes.

Committee calls for Bergland's ouster

CARMIL, Ill. (AP) — The chairman of President Carter's Midwest farm advisory committee has called for the resignation of Agriculture Secretary Robert Bergland. "It's imperative that he resign," said Rod Williams, who as Illinois' Democratic congressman, is a member of the committee.

Williams said Bergland's "dubious" would help restore farmers' fortunes. "There are too many people in top decision-making positions at USDA that have little or no knowledge to grow, process or sell grain," Williams said.

Thompson asks for endorsement

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. James Thompson wants Congress to extend the deadline for filing phone calls claiming two different federal subsidies for the next three years. Thompson said extension of the deadline is needed to "make some legislative reality that the issue of the ERA ratification will not vanish af-fter one or two more attempts." The amendment would have to be ratified by three more states before it becomes law, and Illinois is one of the states that has not ratified it.

Three years after the amendment was introduced in Congress, it would become in 1978. Thompson has said he supports ERA but will not lobby for the bill that did mud the votes last year to get out of the General Assembly.

Experts say Egyptians happy with Sadat

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Most Egyptians blame Israel rather than Anwar Sadat for the turmoil following the peace negotiations and analysts say the lymning economy, rather than the Mideast crisis, continues to be the president's most pressing problem.

Sadat's government has made notable progress in economic development since he came to power in 1970. The Egyptians are optimistic about the future, but they are concerned about the effects of the peace agreement on their standard of living.

Dakin's vacant seat not filled; council looks for replacement

The Carbondale City Council will not have a replacement for Joe Dakin when it meets Monday night. But Mayor Neal Eckert has urged the council to replace Dakin by the end of February.

At an informal meeting Monday night, Eckert asked council members to begin submitting names of candidates for the council. The council will then review the names and appoint a replacement. Joe Wernick, city attorney, told the council that there is no time limit for the appointment to be made. Eckert said the council would begin accepting an offer from Gov. James Thompson to serve on the state's Prisoner Review Board.

Dakin joined the council in 1973 and has been a Carbondale police officer and the Illinois Law Enforcement Commissioner. In addition to leaving the council, Dakin will also seek a leave of absence from the Illinois law enforcement department.

The Prisoner Review Board replaces the state's Pardon and Parole Board.

Baptist girl refuses to swim

ARGO (AP) — Cynthia Forrest refuses to take coed swimming classes because of her religious belief that it is immodest and high school of-officials say she may flunk gym and not graduate.

"Unless Cynthia can come up with a reason for her religious beliefs, she will have to participate in our physical education programs," said J. E. Connelly, Argo High School district superintendent.

"The state law requires that youngsters take PE, unless they have a substantial reason, and without four years of PE Cynthia won't be graduating," Karen, the mother of 15-year-old Cythia, said, "We simply believe that it is wrong to force your body. The Bible states that you must wear modest appearance. Myself and my church say that your body must be covered particularly in the presence of the opposite sex. We would not go to the beach. We don't wear bathing suits or short skirts. We dress modestly.

The family belongs to the Peoples Missionary Baptist Church in Justice, a suburb south of Chicago.

Mrs. Forrest said she forcing Cynthia to swim with boys violates their rights to freedom of religion and that the school superintendent has no right to judge whether religious beliefs are reasonable. "I have offered to let Cynthia wear any kind of bathing suit she wants to if she doesn't like our one-piece regular suit," said Connelly. "And I got a letter from her church outlining specifically the tenets involved, then I would consider excusing her from swimming classes.

Cynthia says the solution appears simple.

"I'm just going to stay home," she said. "My body is my personal property, not the school's."

Faculty Senate votes for new pass-fail grade policy

By Debbie Thornburgh

A revised version of the proposed undergraduate grading policy, which would change the way grades are reported, was passed Tuesday by the Faculty Senate. The changes must be approved by the Office of Academic Affairs and Research before they become final. The Senate was advised by a letter from the state's Undergraduate Education Policies Committee (UEPC) and approved by the senate area.

A student receiving a D in a course taken pass-fail will automatically be given a C. Academic Affairs and Research had proposed that there be no changes in the pass-fail grade system.

Marvin Kleinau, chairperson of the UEPC subcommittee, said that the change is a method of keeping a student's desire to take a course pass-fail and not hurt the grade point average.

A complete withdrawal from the University may be authorized at any time a student requests it. No Academic Affairs and Research proposal did not include this method.

Kleinau said he feels students should be able to withdraw from school and not be penalized for it.

An incomplete (INC) grade must be changed to a P if the student fails to complete the course within a time period designated by the instructor.

The changes, which include revisions of the University and Academic Affairs and Research Policy Committee (UEPC) and proposed that there be no changes in the pass-fail grade system.

A police search for kidnappers

PARIS (AP) - Police demanded Tuesday that the kidnappers of Belgian industrialist Baron Edouard-Jean Empain deliver any of his personal possessions "to prove they are indeed holding him hostage." Committee calls for Bergland's ouster

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of President Carter's Midwest farm advisory committee has called for the resignation of Agriculture Secretary Roger Bergland.

"It is imperative that he resign," said Pud Williams, a farmer from Illinois. "If he continues, there will be no progress in the Midwest." Williams said Bergland's disloyalty would help restore farmers' confidence in the farm sector.

SIU employees will be paid for snow days work

Although SIU was officially closed due to the heavy snowfall, Jan. 17-18 University employees will receive payment for those days excluding payment for other work. Warren Brandt announced Monday.

Students: Get civil service per and professional staff who were to work while University was closed will be rewarded by compensatory time off, said Brandt. When these employees take off, the workers and their superiors, he said, Brandt announced, civil service range non-exempt and civil service negotiated and prevailing rate employees who were to work will have the option of taking additional time instead of double pay for the hours they worked on those days.

Kennedy trial bars witnesses from courtroom

By Ron Kaehler

and Bruce Rodman

Staff Writers

Witnesses called to testify in the Feb. 1 trial of George Kennedy, former Carbondale police will be excluded from the courtroom during testimony by other witnesses.

A motion granted by Judge Richard Nuchtman during a pre-trial hearing Tuesday would require witnesses in the case to be absent from the courtroom during testimony by other witnesses.

Kennedy's attorneys Paul Schoen and Robert Harper, who declined to answer questions about the witnesses and did not act on other issues.

In addition to the motion granted, Schoen gave notice of a court order requiring Carbondale Police Chief Eld Hogan and other Carbondale police officers in the defense of Kennedy.

The remaining motions were requests for the restriction of certain evidence to be presented during the trial.

Kennedy is charged with the theft of over $150 and with obstruction of justice. May 12 sentencing on the charges could net Kennedy up to 14 years in prison and fines up to $20,000.

Kennedy on Tuesday had the request asking for the cooperation of Hogan and other Carbondale officials was "fairly unusual."

The charges were brought against Kennedy following a police investigation which indicated that Ken- nedy may have been involved in the theft of over $150 from a police evidence locker between Oct. 17, 1974 and Jan. 31, 1977.

The obstruction of justice charges stem from Kennedy's alleged replacement of the $150 in the evidence locker prior to the investigation and for giving false re- formation trial testimony.

Kennedy pleaded innocent to the charges, which were brought against him by a Carbondale police officer on March 31, 1977 under the direction of Assistant State's Attorney Richard Siders.

Soviet spy satellite drops from orbit

YELLOWKNUFE, Canada (AP) - A nuclear-powered Soviet spy satellite fell from orbit to the atmosphere above this remote region of northwest Canada Tuesday, stoking vividly and sounding like thunder, and raising some fears of radioactive contamination.

Canadian and U.S. officials said Tuesday there was probably no serious danger. But five American military airplanes, to be joined later by four Canadian planes, flew to the scene, 500 miles north of the U.S. border, to check for radioactivity and possible remnants of the fallen spacecraft.

When it came overhead and we could get a good look at it, I could see dozens and dozens of parts," said yellowknife resident Marie Ruman. "Each part had long, bright tail...as it was disappearing the main piece turned bright red. It was just fantastic."

Canadian officials said any pieces of the satellite would have slammed into the earth in a sparsely settled area 60 miles east of Yellowknife, a frontier town of 8,000 on Great Slave Lake.

Canadian Defense Minister Barney Damson said he was "95 percent or more" certain the satellite, carrying 100 pounds of highly radioactive enriched uranium 235, had burned up in the at- mosphere.

"I don't think there is any cause for hysteria," he said at an Ottawa news conference.

Within hours Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau was defending the government's handling of the incident in Parliament.

He said he had been informed about a week ago that the Cosmos 954 satellite was tumbling from orbit, but that the precise location of its fall was not known even an hour beforehand and that he therefore chose not to warn "every square inch" of Canada of the possible danger.

Damson told reporters that residents of Yellowknife, capital of the Northwest Territories, were not forewarned because it was decided it was not necessary to do so.

The chances that Yellowknife would be impacted were "somewhat less than being struck by lightning," he said.

Other Canadian and U.S. officials indicated the location could not be predicted until early Tuesday.

American officials said the satellite entered the atmosphere at 4:33 a.m. local time - 4:53 a.m. EST - and within a few minutes President Carter and Prime Minister Trudeau were discussing the situation by telephone.

Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, who made the first announcement of the spacecraft's fall to Earth, said .S. and Soviet officials had intensive consultations about the satellite for the past two weeks.

Brzezinski said U.S. satellite trackers detected problems in Cosmos 954 in late December and decided it might fall to Earth. In an exchange of messages through Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, Brzezinski said the United States - the U.S. side - learned there would be no danger of a nuclear explosion when the satellite plunged into the atmosphere.

U.S. government sources said the satellite, launched last Sept. 18, was designed to keep track of U.S. Navy ships and submarines through radar powered by a nuclear reactor. But they said Soviet radio commands were unable to get Cosmos 954 to operate properly or to pull out of its gradual slide toward Earth.

Heinz Kaminski of the Institute for Space Research in Bochum, West Germany, said the amount of uranium indicated the satellite was a "killer satellite." He said it is the only type of satellite that requires so much energy because it uses it to power laser beams. "For a two-kilo- two to four-kilo- satellite that would have had a direct hit, the amount of energy could be produced from sunlight," he said.

Its final fiery plunge was seen in several communities in the Great Slave Lake area.

"It wasn't very high and it didn't make a sound," said Mrs. Ruman. "The main part was like a bright fluorescent light."

Constable Phil Pitts, who saw it as it stepped out of his Royal Canadian Mounted Police station in nearby Hay River, described it as a huge fireball tracked by about 30 smaller fireballs.

"I thought at first it was just a meteorite until I heard about it on the radio at 8 a.m.," he said.

Brzezinski said there would have been "some concern - or hazards to health" if it had come down in a heavily populated area.

Ben Huberman, an aide to Brzezinski, said the Soviets have launched at least 10 nuclear reactor-powered satellites, but this was the first to have dropped from orbit. The United States launched only one uranium-powered satellite, in 1968, and it is still in orbit.

The Cosmos 954 was initially launched into an east-west orbit 130 miles above the earth. Its track changed on every circuit of the globe so that it passed over every landmass in the world.

Taxicabs cut service following 16 - inch snowfall

By Jean Ness

Sue Silverman

City taxicab service was interrupted for the first time in 20 years during past week when snow and ice made streets virtually impassable.

Ed James, manager of Yellow Cab Taxi, 215 S. Illinois Ave., said Tuesday the company was closed one day and three nights last week while cities were still partially buried under the 16-inch blanket of snow.

Neil Eckert, mayor of Carbondale, complained Monday night at the City Council meeting that the reduced taxi service worsens the problem of moving unconscious women around the city.

Eckert hinted that the service interruption "may raise a question when the next rate increase comes up."

James said Tuesday that although he wasn't seeking an immediate rate increase, the cutback in service should not have a bearing on his prices. Yellow Cab charges $1.88 to a point in town.

The recent heavy snowfall, the worst in 60 years, closed schools, snarled traffic and delayed deliveries throughout the city.

James said the cutback in service hours was only temporary, ruling that the company was back at its 24-hour schedule Monday.

"As long as the city streets are open and we can get around without tearing our heads off," James said.

Two taxicabs were damaged before James decided to suspend the cab service. Only one cab was an accident victim, the other was damaged while trying to get out of snow drifts.

James said earlier during the day he was concerned about the theft of a cab.

"I stated I was concerned," James said, because of increased dangers to the taxicab drivers. James said he feared thieves might target cabs while they were snow-covered taxicabs.

James said he had complaints from patrons about the shortened service hours, but added: "You always do, no matter what business you're in."

Carter is the plainest politician yet

By Arthur Hoppe

A fellow I know who manages an apartment building in Washington a couple of blocks from the White House had a funny experience the other day.

A big, black sedan pulls up and out steps a short, tootly, familiar-looking man, an attractive brunette woman, and a little girl with a dog.

"We'd like to see a one-bedroom apartment," says the man.

"Jimmy," says the woman. "We're just not going to all fit in one-bedroom apartment.

"Lasten, Rosalynn," says Jimmy, "first Jerry Brown out in California gives up the Governor's Mansion to sleep on the floor of a seedy $250-a-month apartment; then Mayor Koch in New York moves out of Gracie Mansion into his three-room walk-up in Greenwich Village. Well, the handwriting's on the wall.

"But, Jimmy, for us to move out of...""

"If we don't move out now, Rosalynn, Jerry will move in by 1980. We've told everyone we're just plain folks. Are we going to let ourselves be out-plained by these social descendants with their plainer-than-thou attitudes?

By now, my friend's showing them his finest one-bedroom apartment, which he admits isn't much to look at.

"See?" says Jimmy. "This will do fine. You can sleep in one bed, Rosalynn, and Amy can sleep in the other. I'll just curl up on a nice bed of nails in the corner."

"I want to sleep with Graits," says Amy, hugging the dog.

"Of course you can, dear," says Jimmy, "and there's no reason you couldn't set up a nice lemonade stand in the lobby."

"What about my tree house?" says Amy.

"We'll put it in the living room," says Jimmy.

"That'll give Chip and Carol and Little James Earl Jr. a little privacy and it's already all kind of PERFECT together,"

"What about Jeff and Annette?" asks Rosalynn.

"They can sleep over there in the breakfast nook," says Jimmy.

"They'll be awfully uncomfortable," says Rosalynn.

"I know," says Jimmy. "Maybe that will encourage Jeff to find honest work."

"It's sure a blessing that Jack and Judy and little Jason already have a place of their own, though."

"But, Jimmy," says Rosalynn, "it isn't fair, they're bachelors.

"Well," says Jimmy with a sigh. "I guess I can't have all the blessings."

"One more crack like that," says Rosalynn, "and you will."

I asked my friend if he rented this strange little family the apartment.

"No," he said. "We don't take dogs."

Marston firing: Just good ol' partisan politics

By James J. Kilpatrick

"We know no spectacle so ridiculous," said Lord Macaulay, "as the British public in one of its periods of quietness." The same sort of spectacle is being staged in Washington these days, in the matter of David W. Marston.

Brother Marston if you came late to this performance, is the United States attorney for Eastern Pennsylvania. He is about to be ousted—indeed, he may already have been ousted—by the Administration in order to appoint—for one reason only. He is a Republican.

It would be easy to find Marston wanting in quantity, if not with positive pleasure. For the Carter Administration to give my brother the boot suggests that, at least, there is no mistake about it. That has been the point of the story, and we may as well be getting back to playing the game.

This morning I spoke with Brother Marston ought to be fired, when there are dozens of deserving Democrats hanging like flies on the post, why should an undeserving Republican be retained?

But the horrid thought that politics should play a role in political life has created consternation here. At the press conference last week, Mr. Carter was asked if he had anything to say about the firing, and he in fact only nodded his head.

He scarcely could recall Marston's name. He himself knew nothing of the affair. Mr. Carter had the stuffed detachment of the dog owner whose pooch is finally going his business at the other end of the leash. What pooh!

It transpired, to the president's embarrassment, that Mr. Carter had indeed intervened in the affair. Marston: Mr. Carter had talked with Attorney General Griffin Bell and asked him to expedite Brother Marston's departure. Mr. Carter had been motivated by a telephone call from Congressman Joshua Eilberg of Philadelphia, who complained indignantly that Brother Marston was prosecuting a bunch of Pennsylvania Democrats in order to win publicity for a try at higher public office. It seems entirely likely.

Talk of this disgusting affair has dominated Washington social circles for several days. We have witnessed a vast parading of lites: a universal shaking of heads, a veritable chorus of talk-tak-taks. The Rev. Mr. Carter, our impossible Brother Marston is exposed as in idol with feet of clay. Ah, Jimmy!

Ah, fiddlsticks. The two-party system is dead or dying, that's one thing that never leaves the others. We have gotten altogether too moral. We have succumbed to the silly notion that politicians should be above politics.

The two-party system began to fail as a professional civil service began to rise. In the old days, a deserving Democrat looked to his precinct captain and to his ward boss for a job. A young man, having labored for the party, reasonably could expect to be rewarded with a post as clerk, or motorman, or sweeper of streets, and everyone understood the rules. The system provided a powerful incentive for the occupant, it kept our ad-.
Advice for the new graduate

by Pete Mueller

I nearly scared myself to death the other day. I didn't mean to do it. I didn't even think that I would be scared. After four years at SIU, I was sure that I'd seen everything that the institution had to throw at me and that nothing new could affect me at all. But then, I guess I should have known.

I've seen what it has done to other people. I've seen them suddenly become quiet, even outwardly scared. I've seen it totally change people who were much stronger than me. I guess I should have expected it. But I didn't know it would scare me so badly. You see, the other day I applied for graduation. I had been putting it off for a long time. Not out of fear mind you, but out of procrastination. I'm like that—wait 'til the last day always has been my motto. But maybe, just maybe I know what it would do to me. Maybe somewhere deep inside I realized that once I did it, my life would never be the same.

There wasn't any line at the records office when I went to apply. Maybe that absenteeism was a part of it. But I was line up, until then, I even managed a smile when I saw a fill-out-intricate form that the University used for graduates. Bureaucracy rules until the end. I filled out the form without incident, and then...

And then I looked at the diploma. There was a list of diploma styles on the wall. I was supposed to pick one and put my choice on the form.

"I was in line for the end of school—the last line that would matter to me at SIU." something else.

A lame duck.

It was true. I was a student who wasn't a student, a youth whose youthfulness had been signed away. I was in line for the end of school—the last line that would matter to me at SIU. It was almost over.

And it nearly scared me to death.

I wondered where the time had gone to, where the carefree days of freshmanhood had fled. I pictured myself as an 18-year-old again, sitting in my dorm room, frantically sipping a can of illegally obtained beer. That's why I was almost scared.

I thought back on the first time I had stood in the records office, clutching a record change form in my sweaty hands, unsure what to do next. I thought of things I had done for the first time—my first lecture class, my first overpriced textbook, my first unflattering description of Farmer Hall. All so long ago.

And I wondered what was left for me. Lame ducks can't walk the sidewalks of a campus for long, can't mingle with the oil—ducklings as they learn to fly between classes. Lame ducks have to do rotten things. Like senior theses. Like saving money for future plans. Like student teaching. Like reading long into the night. Like having to find a job. But I took some solace in the fact that the futures might yet be on my side. Maybe, just maybe they'd help me in these last months. After all, they helped Peter Pan never grow up. Why couldn't they do the same for me?

So maybe in the next three months or so I'll get lucky. Maybe I'll find something.

How to submit letter

Letters to the Editor are welcomed and writers may submit them by mail or in person to the Daily Egyptian, Room 1247, Communications Building.

In order to expedite printing of the letters, certain procedures and policies have been formulated:

1. Letters should be typewritten, double-spaced and should not exceed 250 words. Letters exceeding 250 words will be edited with care to maintain the gist of the article.

2. Letters which the editors consider libelous or in poor taste will not be published.

3. All letters must be signed by the authors. Students must identify themselves by classification and major. Faculty members by department and rank, nonacademic staff members by department and position.

4. Writers submitting letters by mail should include addresses and telephone numbers for verification of authorship. Letters for which verification can not be made will not be published.

Letters to the Editor should be delivered no later than 3:00 p.m. on the day prior to the publication day.
Travolta smolders in ‘Fever’

Mr. Mark Field
Student Writer

Kurtzmann has left the Sweathogs and learned how to dance and sing.

John Travolta, starring in Saturday Night Fever, has proven that his 5-foot-11-inch frame can surpass the antics of Katter's Auditorium. He is the next big thing in movies.

Saturday Night Fever is adapted from an article of Nick Land who focused on the nightlife of Brooklyn, especially that of the people who populate the discotheques.

Travolta portrays Tony Manero, a Brooklyn boy, on a quest of life and trying to find ways of dealing with it. Life is a component of the film that John wrote about.

The film is to show Tony gaining an understanding about life. Travolta's moods fit across his face throughout the film. He shows rage when a friend is beaten by a rival gang. He's incredulous when he finds out that this man is not a black sheep after all when his 'sanctified' brother leaves the priesthood. Sex, dance and disco are all thrown together in the scenes of the disco, which should stir rhythmic cords with people who enjoy discos.

Manero is a complex character (to weekdays) he works a tedious nine-to-five job, which enables him to support his family. He is constantly compared to his older brother, a priest. Then Friday arrives and the weekend starts for Tony. As compared by his friends he arrives at the local disco, "2001." Here Tony is the king of the women. He dances with him and must hope to bed him every time. Travolta.... is hot. Watching him dance is like the feeling you get from seeing your favorite team win a game or movie a second time. He arouses the audience in a manner that no other actor can when he stops dancing the audience unconsciously relaxes. Travolta is a phenomenon of which all audiences who expect to see "old Vinny" growing on the screen, also know that Travolta is at his best. Travolta's repertoire in the film is Stephanie, portrayed by Karen Lynn Gorney, who is known to many as the "Old Tara" of "All My Children." Gorney as a dancer is fine. She doesn't draw the emotion from the audience as does Travolta but thankfully this takes nothing away from Travolta's performance.

Casting Gorney as Stephanie could have been a wise choice if not John Badham. the director, could decide how he wanted her to be conceptualized. Stephanie is a Manhattan secretary, with a dream to get somewhere and make something of herself. But with Tony, no moods are constantly changing. She acts huffy and at other times she seems almost childlike in her inexperience. Whereas Travolta is fast and furious. Tony is disturbed as Gorney is disjourned enough for the audience to be as less as to how to feel about her and the film impact.

Donna Pescow as Annette, the girl who really wants Tony, but has no chance of ever getting him, provides a performance of praise. In most everyone's life there is an Annette, the person who could never anything because he or she would go about it in the way. One of the best roles Donna has ever played.

Two piano recitals will be presented this week in Shryock Auditorium.

Peggy Duszynski, scheduled to give a piano recital last Wednesday, got a reprieve when the door knob stopped everything on campus.

Duszynski's recital will take place however at 8 p.m. Thursday in Shryock Auditorium.

Also in this week, the students will present a graduation piano recital as 8 p.m. Saturday in Shryock Auditorium.

Duszynski will play Haydn's 'Sinfonia A Pat Major,' last's 'Two Concerti Etudes,' Schumann's '3 Etudes,' Op. 21, No. 8, and Debussy's 'Two Etudes,' of which will be included. 'Pour les arpuges compense,' and 'Pour les deux dvntexes des Maitres.'

Duszynski has been studying under Dr. Daniel Bark, professor of music, at SIU. Duszynski also a piano student of Barwick's, received his bachelor's degree in music education from Murray State University.

Both recitals are free and open to the public.

Chinatown, the new movie, has become the film to see. Tony Manero is the best. Donna Pescow is the best. And John Travolta is the best.
'Great story,' writer brags

By Marcus Heroux
Staff Writer

"This article is the best ever printed in the Daily Egyptian and was written by the most outstanding and most talented person on the staff," Dean Kartalas, director of "Comedy at the Braggart's Expense," would say that the above statement was made by a "comic braggart." (And so would my fellow staff members.)

Theater graduate students Kartalas and Gary Wilson have combined three plays which trace the history of the comic braggart through time.

The production, "Comedy at the Braggart's Expense," will be presented at 8 p.m. Feb. 10 and 11 in Ballroom D of the Student Center.

The show was taken from Gary Wilson's acting thesis in which Wilson researched the character of the braggart from Greek and Roman times up to the present. Of the three plays picked for the production, Kartalas said, "Some of its pretty funny. They're all quite funny."

"Ruritanian Returns from the War," by Angelo Broonzo, was written in 1916. Kartalas said the character of Rurianz is that of the "wardward" braggart. Rurianz runs away from the war, returns to find his wife, tells her a story, then brags that she better come back to him because he is now such a brave fighter. When out of his wife's house, he tells her a story that he was beaten by "hundred men." The second play, "Augustus Does His Bit," by George Bernard Shaw, was written in 1917. The play depicts the "idiot braggart," Kartalas said. "Augustus thinks he's the greatest statesman, yet he really doesn't understand a thing about politics," Kartalas said.

The last play, "Kipps and Elabor," written in 1937, is about another belligerent braggart-warrior, but this one is in the "army of the Lord," and he "fights with the Bible." Only, Kartalas said that this soldier is "not a big man, braggart and just as empty and hollow."

"These characters aren't bad," Kartalas said. "They're very silly. You'll find a lot of these comic bragarts in college. 'Oh, I just got this scholarship.'" Kartalas said, acting out the college-braggart. "There is a big distinction between the person you really are, the person you think you are, the person others think you are, and the person you want to be," Kartalas said.

Gary Wilson and Dean Kartalas do an introduction to the plays and Julie McQuain, Jim Blair, Jon Whelley, and John Carney are the actors for the production.

The tickets are $3 and are available at the Central Ticket Office in the Student Center or at the Theatre box office in the Communications building.

Sissy Spacek and Sally Kellerman star in Paul Gallico's "Verme: U.S.O. Girl," Wednesday's "Great Performance" drama at 8 p.m. on Channel 6. The program is part of a mini-series which examines the off-stage lives of actors.
In an affidavit filed with the complaint, Jane Doe said she is a ward of the state and now lives in a home approved by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, which cannot grant permission for an abortion under the law.

If she told her parents about her pregnancy and her decision to have an abortion, she would "destroy the possibility of rebuilding a healthy and mature relationship between us," she said.

The girl identified as Sally Roe is a senior in a high school and said if she notified her Roman Catholic parents of her decision to have an abortion, it would "only upset them and cause family strife," she said in an affidavit.

Both girls are 17.

The law requires minors to obtain a parent's consent or a court order before obtaining an abortion.

Louis Lipson, attorney for the ACLU, said a similar law is being challenged in Massachusetts. Enforcement of that law has been stayed while the four-year-old case is pending, she said. It already has been to the U.S. Supreme Court once.

The suit seeks a temporary restraining order and a permanent injunction preventing enforcement in Illinois.

A hearing is scheduled for Tuesday.

Senate panel sticks to advice on changing U.S. diet

By Jefferson Mils
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate panel that includes the health elements of the American Medical Association and major food industry groups is sticking to its advice that consumers can lessen their chances of getting killer diseases by eating right.

The Committee on Nutrition on Monday released the second edition of the staff study, "Diabetes: Goals for the United States," after making only minor changes from the earlier report issued a year ago.

There had been speculation among critics of the 1977 report that the committee would withdraw some of its dietary recommendations but the major elements of its report remain intact.

The new edition again recommends that Americans decrease consumption of processed sugar, eggs and salt. It suggests substituting skim milk for whole milk and increasing consumption of fruits, vegetables and whole grains.

The most important change came in a recommendation to decrease consumption of meat, a proposal that brought heavy criticism from cattle producers. The new edition changed that to "decrease consumption of animal fat." This would allow for consumption of lean meats, but not such foods as the thick, juicy steak.

The report said that cancer, heart disease, diabetes and hypertension are associated with the rich American diet. Committee Chairman George McGovern, a Democrat from the beef-producing state of South Dakota, endorsed the second edition despite some misgivings from some other committee members.

McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential candidate, said in a forward to the new edition that the recommendations are "based on current scientific evidence and provide guidance for making personal decisions about one's diet." He said the 124-page report offers "nutrition knowledge with which Americans can begin to take responsibility for maintaining their health and reducing their risk of illness."

In addition to cattle producers, the first report was criticized by egg producers, sugar interests and the canning and dairy industries.

However, the broadest attack came from the AMA, which said there is no proof that diet is related to disease. It also said that changing American eating habits might lead to economic dislocation.

However, many nutritionists and health professionals endorsed the dietary goals.

Study shows Illinoisans don't understand courts

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — "The average citizen reasons an Illinois courtroom not understanding what happened and too many court cases are continued without a reason," the League of Women Voters said in a report of a yearlong survey of state courts.

League volunteers sat in courts in 35 counties, including Cook, during the court watch projects, which were funded by a $1,200 grant from the Kankakee County Bar Association. The committee, said Barbara Feonlly, project director, "One of our chief findings was that people come out of court and simply don't know what happened to them," Feonlly said.

She said delays in trials are also granted too often without attorneys proving the need for them. The report said 52 percent of the cases were to 69 percent of that report was withdrawn.

Volunteers spent time in select court cases watching the proceedings and then filled out reports based on their impressions.

The battle of prisoners seated in the jury box, which led to a peremptory strike, was an example of how courts and attorneys do not understand each other's goals.

"The judge box smelled so bad we could hardly stand it," wrote one volunteer who monitored a courtroom in Kankakee County, who suggested that prisoners be allowed to change from their clothes into their own street clothing for court appearances. "Our prisoners' gas can slide strike against them already in place and it's a sad thing," Feonlly said.

The 17-page report, entitled "When Citizens Go To Court," criticized judges who appeared sarcastic, unjust or even cruel, and who mistreated people obviously confused about court proceedings.

"While presiding, one judge repeatedly rambles on against bureaucracy, psychiatry, immorality. His rambling, forgetfulness and general demeanor give the impression of a jealous man," wrote a monitor who watched a Cook County judge.

Another monitor had sharp criticism for a Kankakee County judge who said he was willing to continue the case of a woman who had a baby through a carwash operator."The monitor could not even at the courtroom," Feonlly said.

And the league is trying to persuade bailiffs to get onto the courtroom a few minutes before sessions begin to answer citizens' questions about what they are supposed to do.

But unwarranted continuances still plague court proceedings, and Mrs. Feonlly said the league is not as well as to why. It's going to take a lot of pressure from more than just the League of Women Voters.

Kankakee County judges granted continuances in 50 percent of the cases surveyed by the league; 2 percent of the cases, the report said, while Cook County judges granted continuances in 47 percent of the surveyed cases and demand continuances by attorneys for 3 percent of the cases.

Kankakee County judges granted continuances only 7 percent of the cases they heard.

New labeling proposed for meat-rating system

Washing on (AP) - The Agriculture Department moved to eliminate fraud in the federal meat rating system by proposing that consumers have more accurate information about the meat they buy.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said the proposed changes would make the grading service more informative to consumers by correcting the confusion now existing concerning the quality and price for sale.

Among the proposals is a requirement that different grades for sale to consumers be marked either with a traditional quality grade, Prime, Choice, Good, and so forth, or the labels freight

Under the current system, ungraded meat often is represented for sale as being of higher quality than it actually is, and the consumer pays too much for it, Foreman said.

The proposals came after corruption was discovered in the federal meat rating system in California and Arizona, where 17 meat packing firms and 16 individuals were indicted on charges of bribing meat graders. Seventeen Agriculture Department officials were convicted.

In addition, the department has taken administrative action against meat packers in South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas and Texas because of illegal removal of grade stamps.

State building code planned to save energy

TRIBANA (AP) - Illinois is expected to have a statewide building code to save energy sometime in 1980.

A comprehensive architecture at the University of Illinois, Robert Smith, is adapting a model building code for use in Illinois. The State Department of Business and Economic Development will be the energy, appointed Smith to head the project.

All states are to draw up their own codes by 1980.

The codes will apply to new homes, schools, offices, Smith said. He said builders will consult the codes for requirements for walls, ceilings, windows and lighting arrangements.

Then they will draw up plans and submit them for approval.

The codes probably will call for better insulation, lights, smaller glass areas and double-glass windows.

"A slight increase in design changes can be expected," said Smith. However, he said actual construction costs will not increase, especially compared with the "significant long-range reduction in energy costs.

Smith said that as a result of the codes, energy in homes could drop 15 percent, and costs in office buildings could decrease to 10 percent. Because people already are concerned about energy use, Smith said most of new Illinois homes already meet the model federal codes.

However, buildings constructed on speculation for housing mainly do not.

Some builders have no incentive to be energy conscious," he said. "Our intent is not to penalize the builder but to protect the buyer or renter from excessive energy costs.

He is conducting workshops all over the state to acquaint people in the construction business with the model federal code.

Thompson to appear on CBS to debate president's address

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Three Republican governors are scheduled to respond Friday night on national television to President Carter's State of the Union message last week, the Republican National Committee said today.

They are scheduled to tape the program Friday morning at WBBM-TV in Chicago, a CBS-owned affiliate, said Teeley in a telephone interview.

"These are young, articulate and have a positive attraction to the young, liberal and conserva­tives alike," Teeley said.

He said the three were chosen by House and Senate Republican leaders, national GOP Chairman Bill Brock and the national GOP committee.

Teeley said possible presidential candidates by any of the three governors were not considered in the selections.

The presidential election is so far away that those people who do watch the program on Friday night (are) unlikely to support a presidential candidate in 1980 based on what they hear Friday night," he said.

Illinois' first-term governor, Thompson, 41, has been mentioned by U.S. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and other leading Republicans as a possible Republican nominee for the 1980 presidential bid.

Under Federal Communications Commission rules, the opposition political party has a right to participate in a nationally tele­vised address by the President. Teeley said.

"In the past we have had a number of con­gressmen," he said. "We feel it's time to expand our participation through the use of governors.

"He said Republican Senator Howard H. Baker of Tennessee, House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona and Brock will respond to Carter's message on a nationally tele­vised program Thursday night at 9 p.m.

Last Thursday, Illinois Thompson appeared on a nationally tele­vised Public Broadcasting System program in which he said the President's proposed $25 billion tax cut "will ring rather hollow" when Americans realize how much increased social security taxes will eat into their paychecks.

Crisis intervention to be topic at women's training program

A three-day training program dealing with problems confronting today's women scheduled to begin with a 7-9 p.m. session Monday, Feb. 1 at the Student Center, 406 W. Freeman.

The program will run through Feb. 1 and will be conducted by women from the psychology department and Jackson County Mental Health.

Kathy Stathos, women's advocate at the Women's Center, said it is the first structured training program at the Center. She said the program will run one time at the beginning of each semester in an effort to recruit future volunteers for the Center.

Grant applications available

Student-to-Student (STS) grant applications for spring semester will be available Feb. 6 in the Illinois Room of the Student Center. The deadline is Feb. 7 in the Student Center.

A total of 800 applications will be distributed. 200 each morning and then until the limit is reached.

Students who applied for STS grants last fall will automatically be re-reviewed for spring semester.

Students who have changed their addresses over break should contact Millievent Wright, STS coordinator, in Woody Hall.

Students who were denied because of incomplete forms will be eligible for both fall and spring semesters, Wright said.

Smokers on birth control pill increase risk of heart attack

WASHINGTON - Food and drug officials warned world Avenue and the nation's 3 million to 4 million women who smoke cigarettes and take birth control pills about just smoking or taking another method of contraception.

The warning is simple. Kennedy said: "If you take the pill, don't smoke. If you do smoke while on the pill, you increase dramatically your chances of suffering a heart attack or stroke." He added: "If you plan to smoke, find another method of contraception."

Kennedy said women who both smoke and use the pill are 18 times more likely to die of a heart attack or stroke than women who neither smoke nor take the pill.

Kennedy, a biostatistician, gave the above warning. The agency will require new updated and more informative brochures for women who purchase the pill after April 3, the day the new regulation takes effect.

The brochure will contain updated and critical information about published clinical studies in the medical literature that says: "Cigarette smoking increases the risk of serious adverse effects on the heart and blood vessels from oral contraceptive use. This risk increases with age and with heavy-smoking (15 or more cigarettes a day) and is quite marked in women over 35 years of age. Women who use oral contraceptives should not smoke.

The warning will be the most prominent ever displayed on labellets that pharmacists have been required to distribute with oral contraceptives since 1970. The information the FDA currently requires manufacturers to distribute with pill packets says women have an increased risk of circulatory problems, including potentially fatal blood clotting or strokes. But it says men, side effects from the pill are not serious."

That information still will be in cluded, along with new advising women not to use oral contraceptives if they have had blood clotting disorders, cancer of the breast or sex organs, unexplained vaginal bleeding, a stroke, heart attack or angina in any of their parents or if they suspect they may be pregnant."

Women also are strongly advised not to take birth control pills if they have irregular menstrual periods.

LEGAL NOTICE

CITY OF CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS
609 EAST COLLEGE STREET
CARBONDALE, ILLINOIS 62901

All interested persons are hereby advised that approval of the location and design of the Carbondale Railroad Relocation Demonstration Project has been requested from the Federal Highway Administration.

The improvement consists of a 7.06 mile long railway depression of the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad through the central business district of Carbondale, Illinois, with highway overpasses across the depression at Grand Avenue, Mill Street, College Street, Walnut Street, Main Street, Jackson Street, Oak Street and Hickory Street. The project also includes: (1) a highway overpass at Pleasant Hill Road south of the railway depression, (2) realignment of the St. Louis spur tracks north of the depression and grade separation of U.S. Route 51 over these realigned tracks, and (3) relocation of the Amtrak passenger depots at a site on South Illinois Avenue between Walnut and College Streets in the downtown area.

The "Environmental Impact Statement" prepared to assess the project's environmental consequences found that implementation of the proposed action will not have a significant adverse impact upon the quality of the human environment. The public hearing on the project was held on August 11, 1976.

Maps, sketches, and other information pertinent to determination of the location and design of the improvement are available for public inspection at the City Clerk's Office, 609 East College Street, Carbondale, Illinois.

Carter signs order curbing covert acts

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter ordered a major reorganization of the U.S. intelligence community Tuesday, terming his action a "major step forward" in safeguarding the nation's interest and civil liberties.

Carter signed at a White House ceremony a highly complex order designed not only to streamline the intelligence setup but to reveal the world's gray areas. The new law created the National Intelligence Center, which drew fire from congressional investigators. The action included the oversight of political assassinations.

The president took the occasion to express his "courage and complete confidence" in Adm. Stansfield Turner, an Annapolis classmate he named as director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Turner emerges from the reorganization with enhanced authority, particularly over the preparations of budgets not only for CIA but also for the Pentagon's National Security Agency and the Defense Intelligence Agency. However, administration officials acknowledged Turner did not get all the expanded powers he sought.

Snow halts installation of Health Service elevator

By Vicky Locksmith

Staff writer

Installation of an elevator at the Health Service has been halted because of a 1-inch mound of snow and cold weather last week.

This week, once the size of the waiting room and the heating system, according to Dr. Don Kropf, chief physician at the Health Service. "It would have been more convenient for the elevator to have been installed, but the weather came but that isn't the way things go," said Chairwitz.

Grants available to train teachers

Fellowship awards are available to certify eligible persons to teach vocational-technical subjects in the nation's schools, according to James W. Legacy, assistant professor in the SIU agricultural industries department.

Grants are available to train teachers. Participants of the awards are eligible to certify persons who have had a long time teaching, who are those whose teaching skills have been developed.

The U.S. Office of Education is by-passing a shortage of teachers in the field by offering the fellowship to teachers and certify teachers who are already certified in vocational-technical areas that are not working as teachers. Also eligible are the fellowships for certification in teaching and vocational-technical areas. Students will be trained as a background in agriculture.

An additional certification under the fellowships may be taken up to two years. Fellowship winners will receive $1,000 annually plus $40 per day.

Senate to hear sports fee bill

A resolution calling for equal distribution of the student athletic fees between men's and women's sports is scheduled to be introduced at the Student Senate's meeting 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Mississippi Ross.

If the bill is passed, the senate will ask George Mace, vice president for University relations, to give women's sports an increased share of the athletic fees collected.

Currently, men's athletics receives about 80 percent of the fees, while women's athletics receives about 20 percent. In other action, the senate is scheduled to elect a president pro-tempore and members to the committee on committees.

Sam Dunning, student vice president, said the president pro-tempore will have more duties this semester than in the past.

Senators elected in November will also be seated. The senate will hold an official seating at last week's meeting, which was canceled.

Pardee new Redskin coach

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Washington Redskins owner Edward Bennett Williams announced Tuesday the Redskins have signed former Chicago Bears coach Jack Pardee to a multi-year contract. Terms of the contract were not revealed.

Pardee succeeds George Allen who was fired after two seasons with Washington, taking his team to the NFC championship in 1972. Pardee, in 11 seasons with the Bears, staged a team turnaround, winning the NFC East in 1971 and becoming the first coach in the NFL to win the Super Bowl.

"It's a great opportunity to return to the NFL," Pardee said. Pardee was named to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1974, and his 1971 team was voted the NFL's best team of all time. Pardee's 1971 squad had the NFL's best defense.

Pardee was also honored by being selected as the first defensive assistant coach to head a team. Pardee had been with the Redskins for 10 seasons as a defensive assistant coach.

Pardee's 1972 team won the NFC East title and appeared in the Super Bowl. Pardee was featured in the 1972 American Football League playoffs and the Super Bowl in 1972.

The 41-year-old Pardee resigned from the Bears the day after Allen was fired. He met with Williams twice this week.

Pardee and Williams talked with others, including several of the league's current head coaches. Pardee was seriously considered for the head coaching position at Washington.

Allen served as both coach and general manager of the team and would be considered as a candidate for the Redskins.

Pardee said he was pleased with his performance as a Redskins coach and that he would be happy to return to the team.

Pardee is the third Redskins' assistant coach to leave the team in recent years.

Pardee's assistants included Ken Williard, who left the Redskins to become the head coach at the University of Michigan. Williard was named the 1972 Coach of the Year by The Sporting News.

Netters recruit with rackets and trip

By Don Galman
Student Writer

The SIU tennis team's exhibition matches in Ecuador over Christmas break have added to the team's strength and opened up chances for recruiting top players from that country, SIU tennis coach Dave LeFevre said in an interview.

"The purpose of the trip was for promotional purposes as well as for team inspiration," said LeFevre, who traveled with a briefcase full of brochures and pamphlets relating to SIU. "Some of their top male and female tennis players have expressed interest in attending SIU."

In fact, Carlos Carmine, one of Ecuador's top junior players, has enrolled at SIU in the Center for English as a Second Language (CESL), and will be eligible for team play after completing English language requirements, LeFevre added.

LeFevre said he played semi-finals at Wimbledon last year and beat his former player there.

"You've got to be in good physical condition to play tennis," LeFevre said. "I feel our players played 10 miles from the equator at over 10,000 feet in the Andes Mountains. At that altitude the Air Force requires its pilots to wear oxygen masks. So you can imagine suffering it was."

The tennis team played a various group of players from Ecuador, including juniors, top amateurs and professionals for no stakes.

The exhibition matches were highlighted by a Lugner-Kennerly victory over doubles team which included Carlos Yeciza, a top player in Ecuador.

"Some of the best talent in the country's semi-finals," LeFevre said.

The young Salukis went on to an 81-52 victory over Wisconsin and 5-1 against Wisconsin, 1-2 against Creighton and 4-3 against Bradley.

The Salukis were down by five, 57-52, against Wisconsin and 66-52 against Creighton. In the latter, Saluki's were ranked No. 1 spot in the pole vault.

No. 1 spot in the pole vault.

"Our distance runners did really well," Hartzog said. "By this week they'll be running in the 800. I was also impressed with Andy Roberts. We showed a good deal of advancement."

Sawyer placed first in the pole vault with a leap of 22-11, and Bob Roggoy won the high jump as he leaped 6-6. Lonne Johnson of SEMO took first in the triple jump with a jump of 47-4. Jerry George of SIU finished second.

"Barber ran real good at the meet," Hartzog said. "I'm pleased with the way things went. Barber looked awful good. He's ready to go."

Steve Lively won the 440 in 52.6 and Mike Keet took the 400-yard dash in 4:4. Freshman Andy Roberts took first in the 60-yard dash with a 7.5 and Scott Dorsey ran a 1:15.8 800-yard dash—good in the 880-yard run.

"We did not compete Lorraye or Lee. Lorraye still has a tender leg, and Lee has a sore foot," Hartzog said. "This was our strongest part of the whole thing. Two super athletes who are useless to us now. Whether they lose against Wisconsin I don't know."

The only other injury was a blaster on George for a little sprain. He received when he ran the mile.

"He couldn't push as well in the 1000, but he'll be ready this weekend."

The road blues have seemingly been overcome. "Something must now be done about the doldrums which sometimes occur in the Arena. With the exception of the Indiana State game last Thursday, SIU has played much better on the road in the past two games," Hartzog said.

Salukis have to be added to list of Valley contenders

Translation: Death in the Valley.

For years the Missouri Valley Conference has been termed "The Valley of Death" for basketball teams playing on the road. Great players of the past such as Oscar Robertson and庙 Walker of Bradley could not always lead their teams to victory when they stepped on to an opponent's home court.

Things have not changed much in that respect.

When the Salukis embarked on their three-game death sentence last Thursday, they had a 2.5 conference mark and were considered by many to be little more than spoilers in the race. The spoils should always be so sweet.

The win over Indiana State was pure fair-trade time, but the team had to return from Never-Never-Land in time to travel to reality in the form of Creighton and Wichita State.

While fans listening on their radio probably thought the Salukis were flying over the Bluejays and Shockers, the roundball rowdies can rest assured that the Salukis had their feet securely planted in both games, with the exception of a few trips into the skies prepared by Gary Wilson on rebounds.

The defeat of the Sycamores might have been the catalyst, but the wins on the road were more important. The young Salukis went into "The Valley of Death" and came away in the best health possible. The only ones hurting were the Bluejays and Shockers, and the other contenders were probably in their own state of shock after seeing the Salukis.

The Salukis have moved into the contender category with their performances in the past few days. They are pretenders no longer, unless they go into a deep sleep as they have against Georgia Southern and some other clubs.

The SIU roundballers have to be a story for their fans, maybe too many probably thought they would have to spend the winter months planning their next move on "The Hill" at Martin Field. It was said that a team which could not compete for the top spot in the Valley.

I have to admit that I have not yet played the Shockers on Mondays, March around the NCAA tournament. But as an observer who has witnessed every game this season, I feel safely to say that the similarity between the Salukis of now and early December is their uniform numbers.

The team's growth was never more apparent than on recent road trip. In both instances Coach P-Sub Lam-
