Carter: Reinstate draft registration

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, citing a "grave threat" to Middle East oil supplies, vowed Wednesday night that any Soviet effort to seize control of the Persian Gulf region "will be repelled by use of any means necessary."

In a nationally broadcast State of the Union address to a joint session of Congress, Carter also announced that he wants to "begin registration" of draft-age youths, but expressed hope that "it will not be necessary to reimpose the draft."

In an overture to Islamic nations in the vital oil-producing Persian Gulf region, the president said he hoped "to shape a cooperative security framework that respects differing values and political beliefs, yet enhances the independence, security and prosperity of all."

Declaring that "the state of our union depends on the state of the world," Carter said the seizure of American hostages in Iran and Soviet intervention in Afghanistan confront the United States with a broad challenge that must be met in cooperation with other nations.

Although Carter warned Iran again that "if the American hostages are harmed, a severe price will be paid," he said he will try "to persuade the Iranian leaders that the real danger to their nation lies to the north from Soviet troops in Afghanistan, and that the unwarranted Iranian quarrel with us hampers their response to this greater danger."

Carter said, "The Soviet Union is now attempting to consolidate a strategic position that poses a grave threat to the free movement of Middle East oil."

Asserting that the situation "demands careful thought, steady nerves and resolute action," he called for "collective efforts to meet this new threat" by all nations "who rely on oil from the Middle East and are concerned with global peace and stability."

In a key declaration, the president said:

"Any attempt by any outside force to gain control of the Persian Gulf region will be regarded as an assault on the vital interests of the United States. It will be repelled by use of any means necessary, including military force."

In that regard, Carter renewed pledges to bolster U.S. military strength by announcing his intention to send Congress legislative and budget proposals that will be aimed at reviving the moribund Selective Service System, which once ran the draft.

Although he said he is certain that the current all-volunteer armed forces can handle the nation's defense needs, he said he would send legislation and budget proposals to Congress to revitalize the Selective Service System "so that we can begin registration and then meet future mobilization needs rapidly if they arise."

All branches of the U.S. military fell short of recruitment goals during the past year for the first time since the draft ended in 1973. But Pentagon officials say the Defense Department sent no recommendation for the renewal of registration.

Fine sought for late registration

By Jacqui Kosczuk
Staff Writer

Students may be fined $15 for registering after the first day that classes are in session for the spring semester 1981 if a plan to institute the charge is approved by constituency groups and the acting-president's staff.

The late charge would not be refunded nor waived for any student. It would not apply to students adding or dropping classes after the semester begins, Richard Millman, assistant to the acting-president, said.

A committee, set up by the Office of Academic Affairs and Research, proposed the penalty as a way to dissuade students from delaying their registration until cancellations for nonpayment of tuition and fees cause more desirable class sections to open during the first week of classes.

Formerly, registration was canceled on the first day of classes if payment was not made by the preceding Friday. This semester, however, the cancellation date was changed to the 10th day before classes began, a policy that will continue in the future, Millman said.

The new cancellation policy and the late registration fine are attempts to "cut the long lines at registration and the Bursar's office, and to get students in class on the first day," Millman said. "It's difficult for both the student and the teacher when a student in a math class, for instance, doesn't show up until the third day of class."

Although the late registration fine was originally proposed last spring, it was not sent to campus constituencies for consideration until this week. Vice President for Academic Affairs and Research Frank Horton said the delay was necessary so that the institution of the fine would coincide with the development of the installment payment plan for tuition and fees.

The original recommendation by the committee for a $25 late registration fine was changed to $15 as a compromise among members of the president's staff under Warren Brandt, some of whom felt the fine was too high, according to Vice President for Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne.

By next spring, "students should be able to either pay, defer, or put their tuition and fees on the installment plan," Millman said. "There should be little reason for a student to delay registration."

According to Roland Keim, associate director of admissions and records, an average of 10 percent of the total, or 2300 students, usually register after classes begin.

Since the cancellation date was changed, Millman said 538 more students registered the week before classes began than at the same time last spring.

Constituency groups must submit their response to the fine to the acting-president's staff by Feb. 13. Final action will be taken by the staff.

While most of the constituency group leaders contacted were supportive of the proposal, they cited the "non-refundable, non-waiverable" aspect of the fine as one that would penalize some students who are compelled to register late.

"The more students who register on time, the more accurate the enrollment figures will be on the 10th day of classes when they are tallied," Gilbert Kroening, head of the Council of Deans, said. "But I'm not sure that the fine should be applied to students, such as transfer or foreign students, who are late getting to town and can't help registering late."

If exceptions were to be made in some cases, Faculty Senate President Lawrence Dennis said care must be taken to ensure that an exceptions policy would be administered uniformly, whether the decision was left to the dean of the academic unit or to someone in the administration.

Undergraduate Student Organization President Pete Alexander suggested an exceptions policy "that would be administered by just one individual with a set of distinct guidelines so we can have a consistent policy."

Graduate Student Council President Gary Brown said the "no-exceptions" aspect of the fine would pose a special problem to graduate students with teaching assistantships since many of them do not receive their teaching assignments until the first day of classes.

"Anytime you establish a fee that is non-waiverable, it's going to impact unfairly on some individuals," Brown said.

Sam McVay, who represents the Administrative and Professional Staff, said that while he thought the fine was an "excellent idea for improving the registration process. The departments which fail to make teaching assignments before the first day of class, when they could make them earlier, will have to clean up their act."

Senate debate slated at SIU

The Daily Egyptian will sponsor a debate between Democratic candidates for the seat of retiring U.S. Sen. Aclai Stevenson, D-Ill. The debate will be held 7 to 9 p.m., March 4, at the Student Center Auditorium. The candidates who will debate are Illinois Secretary of State Alan J. Dixon, Alex Seith, Robert A. Wallace, Dakin Williams and Anthony R. Martin-Trigona.

The debate is one of three scheduled before the Illinois primary on March 18. The candidates will also debate at the University of Illinois at Champaign on Feb. 19 and at the Bismark Hotel in Chicago on Feb. 27.

NIU group to challenge drinking law

A Northern Illinois University student group is beginning a drive to challenge the 21-year-old drinking age limit in court.

The NIU Resident Hall Association is conducting a campaign to raise enough funds to hire Rockford attorney John Nelson, who would represent the students in challenging the constitutionality of the law.

Nelson said the case rests on a conflict between two provisions of the state constitution. One provision states that a three-fifths majority vote in both houses is needed to pass a bill limiting home rule powers while another states that those powers may be limited by "state-wide interest."

Nelson said it is "questionable" whether the needed majority vote was achieved by the legislature. Home rule powers are granted to cities with populations of more than 25,000. Carbondale's population is 27,000, according to a 1976 census.

A $400 retaining fee will give Nelson the go-ahead to take the case. Nelson would not say what the total cost might be, but a local attorney estimated such a case could cost about $1,000.

Illinois rape law bolstered by latest court decision

By Karen Gullo
Staff Writer

An Illinois law that protects rape victims was "greatly bolstered" by a recent appellate court decision in Mount Vernon, said Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie.

Jaffe, chairman of the legislature's Rape Study Committee, said in a recent telephone interview that the court's decision to bar testimony about a rape victim's prior sexual history or reputation marks the first time the law was upheld on appeal. The law does not bar testimony about the victim's past sexual relations with the defendant. In its ruling in the case of "People vs. Ernest Cornes," the appeals court upheld the conviction of a Carbondale man for the 1977 rape of a Williamson County woman.

Provisions of the law were drafted by the Rape Study Committee to prohibit harassment of rape victims on the witness stand. The victims are often made to feel like they are the defendants, Jaffe said.

"The reports of our committee came out around 1973 but they weren't noticed until we went nationwide to advocate change and reform in Illinois rape laws," Jaffe said. "Ironically, after our study first came out, quite a few other states picked up the laws we recommended, but not Illinois."

For example, he said, in 1974 the committee recommended legislation to prohibit admission of a rape victim's sexual history during the trial. While Illinois legislators debated for four years the merits and the constitutionality of the proposal, other states that had received the committee's report went ahead and adopted the law.

The rape shield law, affirmed in Mount Vernon by the state's Fifth District Court of Appeals, was adopted in 1977 and took effect on Jan. 1, 1978.

Jaffe said the Illinois Legislature has been slow in reforming rape laws because of the "mentality of the constituencies."

"The subject of rape was taboo for a long time and society was hooked on certain concepts about rape," Jaffe said.

The appellate court's opinion states that the exclusion of the victim's past sexual conduct does not violate the defendant's right to a fair trial, but "denies the defendant the opportunity to harass and humiliate the complainant at a trial and to divert the attention of the jury to issues not relevant to the controversy."

The court noted that the law encourages rape victims to report the crime "without fear of having the intimate details of other past sexual activity brought before the public."

One report of the Rape Study Committee recommended a rape victim "treatment act," which went into effect in 1976. Under the act, hospitals have to treat rape victims and private health insurance policies must cover rape related medical expenses.

Member of the '104' fights IRS to keep all of settlement from firing

By Andrew Zinner
Staff Writer

Former SIU-C English professor Fred Whitehead is now fighting the Internal Revenue Service for part of the 'hard won' settlement he received from SIU-C after being fired during the mass terminations of 104 University employees because of a budget cut in 1973.

Whitehead said he had fought hard to obtain cash settlements for those tenured and continuing faculty affected by the cut. But he then found that the income was taxable. He said he owes the IRS close to $4,000 in unpaid taxes for 1977 because he had received poor advice from both then SIU counsel John Huffman and Carl Runge, the attorney for the 104.

After a series of appeals with the IRS, Whitehead took his case to the federal tax court, which will hear it in March.

"I would never have signed the settlement if I knew the income ($11,600) was taxable. I accepted the attorneys' authority on the matter. I went along with the experts," Whitehead explained.

According to Huffman, though, such advice was never given by him. "I don't even recall talking with Whitehead," the former SIU counsel said. "I'm not in a position to tell someone if something is taxable."

He explained that as counsel to the University at the time, he was simply trying to get a full and complete release for the disputed claim, which would prevent those being fired from filing grievance against SIU.

The settlements were made available in April 1974, and qualified 28 tenured and 28 continuing faculty members for cash amounting to one year's pay. Upon agreeing to the settlement, those affected forfeited their right of grievance against SIU.

"I was going on the position that the University attorney should know if the income was taxable or not," Whitehead said.

Huffman explained that the University filed a 1099 form with the IRS, informing them of the settlements.

Whitehead hopes to win his case by raising the issue that the intent of the payments, defined as a compromising of disputed claims, was never properly defined.

'104' legacy left to the courts

By Andrew Zinner
Staff Writer

During one of the most turbulent times in SIU-C history, 104 faculty members, including 28 tenured professors, were fired Dec. 17, 1973.

University officials said the firings were necessary because of a $2.7 million cut in the University's budget for the next year imposed by the Illinois Board of Higher Education—causing what officials termed a state of "financial exigency."

On Dec. 17, SIU-C initiated a class action suit to obtain a single judicial ruling supporting the job cuts while denying those fired any further recourse.

Carl Runge, attorney for the fired faculty, commonly referred to as "the 104," filed a petition with the federal courts charging that the University was attempting to violate the fired faculty's 14th amendment rights if due process and equal protection.

Then-president David R. Derge said at the time that the suit was filed to eliminate the need for each individual to spend money on legal battles.

Meanwhile, a group of fired faculty called Save our School was formed to discuss the fate of those terminated and to consider legal action against the University.

The legal battle began on Feb. 28 in Jackson County Circuit Court. On March 6, Fred Whitehead, a fired English professor and spokesman for the SOS charged that SIU made questionable expenditures amounting to $6.5 million. He said the money might be used to rehire the fired faculty.

For the next month, SOS and other sympathetic groups continued to explore the University's budget. Among the items they called questionable were air travel expenses amounting to $113,000.

Derge resigned on March 15, amid a controversy surrounding the use of University funds, and Hiram Lesar became acting president for the first time. He took over a University riddled by budget cuts and facing a censure by the AAUP. The censure was to last four years.

House rejects Thompson tax plan

By Mary Harmon
Staff Writer

After 4 1/2 hours of testimony from local and state officials, the Illinois House of Representatives tabled Gov. Thompson's proposed tax ceiling plan Wednesday and substituted it with an amendment that would save taxpayers $100 million in property taxes this year, Rep. Bruce Richmond said from his Springfield office.

Carbondale City Manager Carroll Fry traveled to Springfield Tuesday, and, along with some 40 other municipal officials from around the state, opposed Thompson's plan in testimony before the House. Fry had been authorized by the City Council on Monday night to represent the city in opposing Thompson's plan.

Thompson's plan calls for local property tax increases to be limited to the amount of growth in personal income of Illinois residents.

The testimony was heard in a rare "committee of the whole" session. The local and state officials who testified "by and large" disagreed with Thompson's tax plan, said Richmond, a Democrat from Murphysboro.

The Illinois Senate also rejected on Wednesday Thompson's ceiling tax legislation and approved a homeowner tax relief amendment proposed by Democratic legislators.

Richmond, who had been "reluctant" to support Thompson's proposal, said the new legislation "would probably be more palatable" to legislators and municipal officials, if it stands as amended by the Senate.

The amended legislation would allow homeowners to exempt the first $3,000 of the assessed value of a home from property taxes instead of the current $1,500, Richmond said. The amendment would also allow local governments to abate current tax levies, a move the Carbondale City Council has already approved.

"It is a more direct form of tax relief and a more popular concept," Richmond said. The assumption made by the state that local governments have not attempted to reduce taxes, City Manager Fry said, was one reason that he opposed Thompson's plan.

"We are losing the ability to plan our own destiny in this state," Fry said in his testimony before the House.

Richmond said there would not have been enough votes to pass Thompson's plan and it was necessary to design some type of "alternative scheme."

Richmond, who plans to support the amended tax relief plan, said he is relieved that he does not have to vote on Thompson's tax proposal.

"It was an ill-advised and poorly drafted piece of legislation. It was a no-win situation for legislators and would have made people unhappy, which ever way I had voted.

The haste with which Thompson pushed the legislation had been a concern, Richmond said.

Ayatollah Khomeini admitted to hospital with heart trouble

By The Associated Press

French radio reported Wednesday night that Iran's 79-year-old revolutionary leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, had been admitted to the cardiology department of Reza hospital in Tehran with a heart problem.

The report quoted a Khomeini spokesman in the holy city of Qom, where the ayatollah lives, and gave no further details.

Khomeini's doctors said earlier Wednesday that his "condition is good and there is no cause for concern."

Khomeini's office in Qom said that he was recovering well from a minor ailment.

FAA study says

DC-10 pylon safe

WASHINGTON (AP) -- A six-month study shows that the engine pylon of the DC-10 jetliner is fundamentally sound and confirms earlier findings that American Airlines maintenance practices led to the crash of one of the big jets in Chicago last May, the Federal Aviation Administration reported Wednesday.

The agency said the extensive study cleared the engine-supporting structure, saying it could serve for 25 years without failure unless damaged during maintenance.

As a result of the review, the FAA said it is proposing mandatory minor modifications to prevent the kind of maintenance-induced damage that separated the left-wing pylon and engine from the Chicago plane on takeoff. A total of 273 persons were killed in the accident, the worst in U.S.

aviation history.

The study was directed specifically at the pylon, a 2,000-pound mount that connects the engine to the wing. It was conducted by McDonnell Douglas, the DC-10 manufacturer, following strict FAA criteria and under close agency supervision.

Reagan's strategy

unchanged by loss

CHICAGO (AP) -- Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan said Wednesday that his loss in the Iowa caucuses this week has not forced a change in his strategy to capture the 1980 Republican presidential nomination.

Reagan said the victory in Iowa by George Bush didn't come as a surprise to him and that Bush used the same strategy he himself used in Iowa in 1976.

Bush was successful in building a good campaign organization and spent most of his time campaigning in Iowa, rather than trying to travel to as many states as possible, Reagan said.

"We knew he had a great organization. It was who's organization did the job on a cold winter's night, getting people out," Reagan said during a news conference at O'Hare International Airport. Later, he was to appear at a fund-raiser in suburban St. Charles for Rep. Tim Corcoran, R-Ill.

Reagan said he sought to do the same in Iowa four years ago because he lacked name recognition.

Lewis Park burglars strike again

By Leanne Waxman
Staff Writer

Lewis Park Apartments was the scene Wednesday of another early morning burglary. About $1,000 in stereo equipment was taken from an apartment while residents slept upstairs.

The burglary was the second in two days at the Lewis Park complex located on East Grand Avenue. More than $1,000 in stereo equipment and cash belonging to Diane Eschner was stolen early Tuesday morning from her apartment. In both burglaries, television sets and other valuables were left untouched.

Wednesday's burglary occurred while three of the four residents were sleeping upstairs. In Tuesday's burglary, Eschner was awakened by noises in her room. Eschner screamed after she called out to the intruder and was answered by a man who was trying to speak in a feminine tone.

"We haven't really had time to beat the bushes yet but the method of entry doesn't seem to be the same for the two," Lt. Terry Murphy of the Carbondale Police said.

In Wednesday's burglary, the front door of the apartment was kicked open, Murphy said. One resident of the apartment said the sliding glass back door had been left open for him because he had no key for the front door. He said that he had attended a party in the apartment complex Tuesday evening and returned early Wednesday morning.

Tom Cronin, a freshman in construction technology, Robert Kettelkamp, a junior in physical education, and Greg Carr, a senior in chemistry, were asleep upstairs at the time of the burglary.

RE: Beverage Consumption

It has come to our attention that a certain privilege granted to you has recently been taken away.

Too bad. But surely you will find some alternative means to support your habit. (Unless you live in one of those big buildings called dormitories. But even there you still might be able to sneak in a small flask of hard liquor and mix it with a soft drink purchased from the machines in the dorm — unless dorm officials catch on and decide to eliminate soft-drink machines.)

YOU OUGHT TO AT LEAST thank your local bar owners — they fought the City Council for the right for you to spend your money to play pinball and to drink sodas in their establishments. (Of course, we don't know why the bar owners would do a thing like that, do we?) Maybe the bar owners aren't such bad guys after all, even if they did threaten to have members of the Student Advertising Association arrested a year ago when the association was planning to indirectly sell beer at a "beer bust" at Giant City.

(The "beer bust" was canceled.)

Maybe you can learn how to make your liquor via a still. Perhaps some magazine will publish an article on how to build your own still, much like the Progressive magazine described how to build an H-Bomb. (However, there would probably be some kind of a legal battle, and by the time the article came out you'd all be 21 anyway, but that's the way it goes.)

OH, BY THE WAY, in case you're wondering who your friends are, here's how Southern Illinois legislators voted on the issue:

In the 58th District, Rep. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, voted in favor of raising the drinking age. Rep. Vincent Richler, D-Chester, and Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, voted to keep it at 19 for beer and wine. Sen. Kereth Buzbee, D-Carbondale, also voted to keep it at 19.

In the 59th District, Rep. Bob Winchester, R-Rosiclare, voted for the drinking age to remain at 19, while Rep. Bill Harris, D-Marion, and Rep. Jim Rea, D-Christopher, both voted to raise the drinking age. Sen. Gene Johns, D-Marion, also voted to raise the drinking age.

Of course, if you didn't want to bother with the whole thing, you could transfer to a state where the minimum age is still 19.

Strong game of chess hard to find

I am a prisoner in Menard Prison and I love to play chess. There are just a handful of chess players here. Those who do play are not devoted to the game and I find it quite difficult to get a good game of chess. I am writing this letter in hopes that someone in the SIU Chess Club, or maybe someone who has a strong game will play chess with me through the mail or in person.

I am sure that whoever answers this letter will never regret it. He or she may answer directly by sending me the first move or by replying to the address below. — Johnny Hodges, P.O. Box 87, Menard, Ill.

Grade inflation has had serious effect

The official SIU-C grading system is a relative system. In using a relative system, teachers who have classes of students of heterogeneous academic ability should find that good, reliable tests, or other measures of achievement, will yield a range of scores. The teacher is supposed to assign the grade of C to the middle groups of scores, A to scores which are substantially above the middle groups, A to the few top scores, D to the "barely passing" group and F to the scores which are so low that their work must be considered to be failing.

One important advantage of the relative grading system is that when it is used properly it gives students, parents and others an accurate understanding of how the student's work compares with that of others. Grade inflation has of course had a serious deleterious effect on this system.

In spring semester, 1977, at the 300 level, one SIU-C department gave 84 percent A's. In the same semester and at the same level, the modal (most used) grade was A in 34 departments, B in 25 departments and C in only eight departments. Isn't this professional malpractice? It certainly seems to be contrary to the principles of the science of achievement measurement which teachers as professionals have an obligation to use.

Many teachers rely considerably on the other system of grading, absolute grading. They grade students not by comparing them with each other but by gauging their achievement in terms of certain objectives and standards which the teachers set up. This practice seems to lead to high grades.

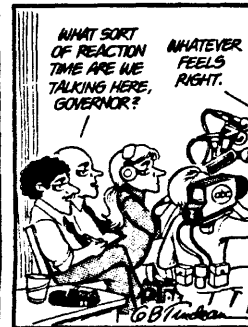

The typing competency test for journalism students, which is handled simply on a pass-fail basis, seems innocuous. But there was a teacher at one university who used criterion-referenced tests and let the students take tests whenever they felt that they were ready. Some students finished in a short time and others took longer. If they all passed the tests within the term, the teacher gave them all A's. This practice not only goes against the principles involved in the relative grade system, it also defies logic. The grade of A is supposed to mean that the achievement of the student who received it was superior to that of most of the other students. But in the course just mentioned, there were no students with lower grades for the A students to be superior to.

One procedure which would make grade inflation more apparent and thus perhaps help reduce it would be to use "relative" grade reports and transcripts, which some universities and colleges are trying out. Even if there were no grade inflation, "relative" reports would be much more meaningful than those now in use. — John Mercer, Professor, Cinema and Photography

Disney's 'The Black Hole' offers nifty effects but childish screenplay

By Bill Crowe
Entertainment Editor

Hailed as the most ambitious film in Walt Disney Productions' history, "The Black Hole" offers some nifty special effects but is accompanied by a childish screenplay and wooden acting from a cast that should have done much better.

Hans Reinhardt (Maximilian Schell) to commandeer a large space station through a "black hole" in space. A "black hole" is a mysterious mass of gasses (or something) that swirls around in much the same attempts to halt his planned trip through the hole. One problem: The people trying to stop Reinhardt are even less interesting than he is. We really don't care if they stop him as long as there's a flood of special effects in the finale.

motion as a tornado or the water in a toilet when it flushes.

Since screenwriters Jeb Rosebrook and Gerry Day do not include a real definition of what a "black hole" is, the swirling mass is left as a worthless prop for the first three-quarters of the film.

Reinhardt had long ago taken over the space station and populated it with a band of fascist robots for security and turned the rest of the original crew into emotionless humanoids. He has been trying to pass through the hole for 20 years. Pretty thrilling life, huh?

His peace is broken when an explorer craft containing five passengers enters his ship and Anthony Perkins, Robert Forster, Joseph Bottoms, Yvette Mimieux and Ernest Borgnine play the crew attempting to stop Reinhardt. Perkins, as a scientist who gradually becomes obsessed with Reinhardt's theory, simply does his unimpeachable variation on his Norman "Psycho" Bates character. Forster is pure evil and lifeless as the stolid commander of the explorer craft.

Only Schell adds some acting class to this film and much of his dialogue turns his character into a Ming the Merciless fiend rather than the intellectual fanatic he is supposed to be.

The finale of "The Black Hole" isn't bad, especially the meteor shower and the actual trip through the hole, but sitting through an hour of tedious filmmaking renders the ending passable but not worth it.

WSIU to air Gandhi show

WSIU Radio will broadcast a special program on the life of Mahatma Gandhi, spiritual leader of India during the country's fight for independence in the 1940s and '50s, at 7 p.m. Friday, the day before Republic Day in India.

The program will be centered around a discussion of the life of Gandhi. Discussion group members will include Robert Hallisey of SIU-C Research and Projects, Uma Sekaran of Administrative Sciences and Jagdish Singh, a graduate student in Computer Sciences. The program is moderated and produced by Patrick Drazen, music director of WSIU.

"You can't talk about India's independence without talking about Gandhi," Drazen said. "He was a pivotal figure in that country's history and his ideas have influenced other activists, including Martin Luther King in this country and Steve Biko in South Africa."

Drazen said the discussion inevitably compares the independence of India with the revolution in Iran.

"Gandhi, in his incredibly deep spiritualism, touched the same sort of chord in the people of India that Khomeini touched in Iran," Drazen said.

WSIU-FM offers morning news show

by Ken McGarrigle
Staff Writer

For those who are looking for a good dose of news with their morning coffee, an alternative to the entertainment-oriented network shows has made its debut.

"Morning Edition" premiered Jan. 1 on WSIU-FM radio and will continue to run six days a week (Monday through Saturday) from 5 to 9 a.m.

Jeff Wright, the show's producer and host, notes a similarity between "Morning Edition" and its television counterparts.

"You can watch the Today Show or Good Morning America on television, and that's basically the same sort of program we have on the radio,"

he said. "Yet our viewpoint is different from that of the television networks."

"It's not the same kind of programming, not the same kind of information—we're much more in-depth."

"Morning Edition" combines direct feeds from the National Public Radio Network in Washington, D.C. with news analysis, jazz music, local news and sports.

"You can listen to this and easily eat your breakfast, get ready to go to work and things like that without having to duck around the corner to see what the guy is saying because you hear what he is saying," Wright said.

"Morning Edition" is a new concept in the presentation of news in the Southern Illinois area, Wright added.

"To have something that's different, on a consistent basis day-to-day for four hours is pretty revolutionary, especially in this area."

"It's revolutionary in that it's almost all information. You listen to any other station and it's all music."

Wright said students who enjoy "All Things Considered" on WSIU-FM would enjoy "Morning Edition."

"We don't have anything that equates to Rona Barrett."

Wright gets up at 4 a.m. each day the show runs. He claims the hours do not bother him.

"It's not bad. I've done it before so it wasn't new," he said. "You just don't get to see Johnny Carson anymore, which is a real blessing, and there aren't that many late nights uptown anymore."

"Morning Edition" begins at 5 a.m. with an hour of straight network news. The actual WSIU-FM portion of "Morning Edition" is from 6 to 9 a.m. and runs with both national and local news segments, according to Ed Subkis, program director of WSIU radio and an enthusiastic backer of the program.

"We'll have more in-depth news and analysis than any other signal on the airwaves, radio and television (in the area)," Subkis says. The top stories of the day are regularly available on recurring cycles.

'Paper Chase' made available to PBS

By Ken MacGarrigle
Staff Writer

"The Paper Chase," a casualty of the 1978-79 network television ratings war, has been made available to the Public Broadcasting System. Whether the critically acclaimed dramatic series returns to TV depends on the response it gets from public TV stations around the country, including WSIU-TV.

Originally broadcast by CBS, the 22 reruns would cost PBS $1,962,216 to purchase and air.

"In order for it to be aired, the various (PBS) stations around the country are going to have to cough up their share of the rights for it," said Eugene Dybvig, acting chairman of the SIU Radio-TV Department. "If it's too expensive for the stations then it won't be done."

"We're talking about the 22 episodes that have already been aired by CBS. The production of additional shows is contracted for, the commitments have been made by the cast (including John Houseman as the stoic Professor Kingsfield), but so far PBS has not made a financial commitment to go ahead with any additional episodes," Dybvig said.

WSIU-TV was sent a list of possible new PBS programs to air, including "The Paper Chase." The first round of bidding by PBS stations will take place in February in what Dybvig called a "screening round."

The programs that are accepted by most stations will then go through another screening process. Dybvig said the stations first decide whether they would like to broadcast a particular series and later go through the actual "dollar and cents" bidding.

Chicago school system bailout criticized by local lawmakers

By Dean Athans
Staff Writer

Some local legislators are reacting negatively to the General Assembly's recent bailout of the Chicago school system.

State Sen. Gene Johns, D-Marion, was concerned that he and the entire General Assembly was "voting on a guess" when it approved funds and loan guarantees for Chicago's debt-ridden school system because the city "wouldn't tell us how much in debt they were."

Johns voted "present" on the matter because he didn't want to "vote against the good of the school kids" but didn't want to "endorse mismanagement."

Two weeks ago the General Assembly passed a plan that creates a five-member authority to control school finances for the next 31 years.

It also provides $225 million in short-term and $500 million in long-term loans to save the system from bankruptcy and restore its bond rating. The plan calls for Catherine Rohter, Chicago school board president, to cut $60 million from the annual budget. The legislation also called for the dismissal of all current board members on April 30. Rohter immediately eliminated about 1,200 active teaching positions and 98 administrative jobs.

Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro, explained the plan as a "change from short-term to long-term indebtedness" and said the board "contributed immensely" to the financial problem. He believes the cut of teaching jobs is "terrible when the board wastes $82,000 a year to pay its superintendent."

Johns, who said that he is equally upset with the cut, said he heard about schools where there were four or five guidance counselors who were "paid but never seen." He said the ratio of administrators to students was 1 to 10 and that many middle-level administrative jobs could be done without.

"I found out some interesting things after talking to people in Chicago," Johns said. "For instance, the enrollment of many schools goes up at lunch time. What this means is that students are coming to school to eat and not to learn. These students are not included in attendance figures that show how much a school is entitled to in state aid but are eating lunch on a government assistance program."

He said there are also reports of kids in upper income brackets eating for free, which he says can be a drain on the money supply of a school system with 480,000 students.

Johns said he is "disturbed" about the board's real estate holdings and how Rohter, while testifying before the General Assembly, did not know how much property the board owned, even though she's been on the board for 10 years.

Johns said the board owns Midway Airport and the city block occupied by Carson Pirie Scott. "I think the board should sell all its property and get back into education," he added.

"But what really disturbs me is that the board is heading for a $94 million shortfall, even without paying for the $850 million in bonds we set up," Johns said.

New knowledge about Saturn gained from Pioneer II flight

CHICAGO (AP) — A space scientist says the interior of Saturn is hotter than the surface of the sun.

Dr. Edward J. Smith of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said the discovery was made during the flight of Pioneer 11 past the planet with the rings, which is the second-largest in the solar system.

At the annual joint meeting of the American Physical Society and the American Association of Physics Teachers, Smith said the intense heat may have remained from when the planet was formed from dust clouds 4.5 billion years ago. The planet's interior has a temperature of 18,000 degrees, measurements from the satellite showed, while the sun's surface has a temperature of 10,000 degrees, Smith said.

The spacecraft, which traveled 1.5 billion miles in six years, also may have found a second new ring around the planet, said University of Iowa professor Dr. James A. Van Allen, who discovered a radiation belt around the earth that was named after him.

He said the new ring seems to be composed of dark objects of unknown size and makeup.

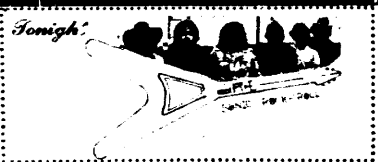

Dr. Tom Gehrels of the University of Utah said the inner rings around Saturn apparently consist mainly of ice balls a few inches in diameter.

Expert: Neutron therapy for cancer underused

CHICAGO (AP) — Too few doctors and patients are aware of an experimental therapy that appears to be effective against certain advanced tumors, causing it to be underused, a hospital official says.

Dr. Frank R. Hendrickson, associate director of the program at Rush-Presbyterian-

St. Luke's Medical Center, said the cancer therapy, which involves the world's largest atom smasher, now is operating at half its capacity of 50 patients a week.

The therapy destroys tumors with a beam of fast neutrons produced at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory near Batavia, 30 miles west of Chicago.

Hendrickson said, "In no situation is the neutron therapy worse than standard cancer treatment and in certain situations it seems to be better."

POWER DOUBLING CLASS G

The beauty of the SR-604 stereo receiver:

In normal operation, it delivers 35 watts per channel, both channels driven at 8 ohms, from 20-20,000 Hz, with no more than 0.05% total harmonic distortion. But when it's confronted with a demanding musical peak, it switches over to power doubling Class G amplification, becoming a super power auxiliary amplifier delivering a massive 70 watts per channel.

The result? Clean, unclipped musical peaks and outstanding dynamic range. You'll also like what it does to the tuner section, in critical areas like sensitivity, selectivity and signal-to-noise ratio performance.

The amazing SR-604—super-power, low distortion, all the good things you're looking for in stereo.

Libertyville's little red schoolhouse more than a memory in community

By Cindy Hix
News Editor
Lois Holst
Student Writer

The foursquare schoolhouse in Libertyville, Mo., is more than a hazy memory or a picture in a history book. It is the community's grade school.

Libertyville School C-2, the only school in the district, is a small, red brick building located next to an old church building, a cemetery and a small park.

Most of the 40 students who attend the school are from farm families and have lived in the Libertyville area all of their lives. Many of them live close enough to walk or ride their bikes to school in good weather.

The school day begins at 8:30 each morning. First, second, third and fourth graders are taught by Linda McDowell, 22, in the "little room," which is on the left as one enters the building.

Straight ahead is the "big room," where the older students have classes. Fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth graders are taught here by Nancy Eaves, 27, who is also the school's principal.

Eaves, who has been teaching at Libertyville for two years, writes an assignment for each of her four grades on the chalkboard. The students get out their books and work diligently at their desks. When someone has a question, he takes his problem to the teacher's desk, where he receives individual help from Eaves.

Across the hall in the "little room," the younger students are also busy with their schoolwork. McDowell, who graduated from Southeast Missouri State University with a degree in elementary education, said the six first graders have now learned to read enough so that she can write their assignments on the board just as she does for the rest of the pupils. At the beginning of the year, she used colors instead of words to show them which books to use.

Each grade sits facing the board on which their assignment is written. As each pupil facing the side board completes his assignment, he turns his desk back toward the front of the room, thereby letting McDowell know who is finished.

Morning recess finally arrives at 10:10. Both classes break from their studies and head for the playground. One group of youngsters plays four square on the blacktop while another group plays football in the yard.

The ringing of the hand bell soon beckons the children back to their classrooms, where they take up other subjects until lunchtime.

For pupils in the "big room" it's math time, the hardest part of the day for some of them and for their teacher. Eaves said it is "the worst time of all because they need so much individual attention." One class is converting fractions to decimals; another is working with positive and negative numbers.

Occasionally a student turns around and works a problem on the chalkboard behind his desk. Across the room a sixth grade girl who has finished her math is reading a Nancy Drew mystery until the bell rings for lunch.

There is no hot lunch program at Libertyville School. A few children go home to eat, but most of them eat sack lunches at their desks. In the supply room, across the entry hall from the "little room," is a cooler where they can buy soft drinks for a quarter.

As the children finish eating, they go outside to play for about 30 minutes. Eaves, a graduate of Southeast Missouri State University in physical education, watches from the steps of the schoolhouse. When the weather is unfavorable, the kids can still have recess in the basement.

A couple of students remain in the classroom doing make-up work because they were absent earlier in the week. One of them comes outside with his paper and taps Eaves' arm. He has a problem, and he knows his teacher will help him even though she is outside. Eaves, who is devoted to her pupils, gives him a helpful hint and watches a smile of understanding creep across his face.

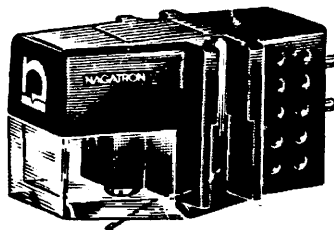

Having to be available to students during lunch and recess as well as during class contributes to a high teacher

Building for a solar future

By Mary Ann McNulty
Staff Writer

After more than 1 1/2 years of setbacks including design changes and construction delays, the $4.9 million, solar heated and cooled federal building should be ready to open its doors in about six weeks, General Service Administration officials say.

Ben Copenhaver, business affairs director for the GSA, said the building, located on University Avenue between Cherry and Elm streets, should be ready for occupancy "shortly after March 1."

The GSA is preparing to inspect the building around the middle of February and will approve it if it meets specifications, Copenhaver said.

The roof of the concrete structure contains a solar collector, formed of 5,064 glass tubes. Water is circulated through and heated in the three-foot tubes during periods of solar gain. At night, the heated water is stored in two large holding tanks located inside the building.

The solar system is expected to reduce by 52 to 62 percent the amount of energy required to heat and cool the building, Copenhaver said. The estimated energy savings are based on a computer analysis of the structure and its energy needs.

Eighty-one employees from various federal agencies will be housed in the building, said Rick Argiry, operating engineer for the GSA. Some of the agencies that will have offices in the building include the Social Security Administration and the Bureau of Hearing and Appeals under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

A closeup shows a few of the 5,064 glass tubes that form the solar collector for the building. The tubes are arranged in 211 modules of 24 tubes each.

The vestibule (left), with its garden, ramps and skylights, gives a futuristic look to the building. A worker (above) cleans up at the end of the day.

Meatless diet gets protein from eggs, dairy products

Editor's note: Starting today, "Your Health," a column with a question-answer format, will appear twice monthly in the Daily Egyptian. If you have questions you'd like to see answered here, send them to Your Health, Student Wellness Resource Center, Kesar Hall. Questions will be printed anonymously.

Q. I've decided to cut meat out of my diet and want to know what else I should be eating to get enough protein.

A. The easiest way to get protein if you don't eat meat is to eat eggs and dairy products. As long as you include them in your diet, you'll have no trouble getting enough protein. In fact, most of us eat too much protein, so cutting meat (or at least cutting down on it) is a good idea. The problem with relying on eggs and dairy products is their fat and cholesterol content. Both fats and cholesterol have been linked to heart disease and possibly other diseases as well. So it's important for you to check out other sources of protein. Try low fat dairy products like yogurt, cottage cheese, low-fat milk and soft cheeses (Ricotta and mozzarella) instead of high fat foods like cheddar cheese, whole milk and ice cream. Grains, nuts, seeds, and beans are also excellent sources of protein. To make the most of them, you need to know how to combine them properly. When certain plant proteins are eaten together, say red beans and rice, they contain more protein than when they're eaten separately. An excellent book on the subject is "Diet for a Small Planet" by Frances Moore Lappe. It's available at Waldenbooks and at Book World. She explains how and why plant proteins combine and has some tasty recipes, too!

Q. I recently moved from the dorms into my own apartment. Now that I'm shopping for myself, I'm finding that a lot of the food I buy contains additives and preservatives. Are these chemicals harmful?

A. Obviously, you are reading the food labels, which is a good way to improve your diet. There are about 2,800 different additives permitted in our food by the FDA, plus a host of unlabeled "unintentionally" added chemicals such as pesticides, antibiotics, hormones, industrial pollutants and packaging materials. Each of us swallows an average of 5 to 10 pounds of these additives a year. That's a lot of chemicals! Additives often serve a useful purpose, and many are considered safe. They prevent spoilage, keep water and oil mixed, and can add nutritional value (vitamins).

Some additives still in use, but of dubious safety, are sodium nitrite, a preservative found in hot dogs and bacon; artificial colorings, and BHT, a preservative found in baked goods. The list goes on and on. For a complete list of safe and unsafe additives, I suggest you write to the Center for Science in the Public Interest, 1775 "S" St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20009.

Balloonist faces FAA allegations

DES PLAINES (AP) — Federal Aviation Administration representatives will meet with a balloonist and her attorney to discuss alleged violations of regulations on an ill-fated attempt to cross the North American continent, an FAA spokesman said Wednesday.

Spokesman Neal Callahan said the matter will be "in a state of negotiations" but said no meeting has been scheduled.

The balloonist, Vera Simons, had until the close of business Wednesday to ask the FAA for a review of the alleged violations or lose her airman's certificate for 270 days.

She said Wednesday that she mailed a letter Monday night to the FAA asking for such a review.

"I do indeed wish to meet and discuss it," she said from her home in McLean, Va. "I might have responded to it (an FAA letter detailing the alleged violations) sooner except I wasn't here when it first came."

Mrs. Simons refused to comment on allegations in the letter, which Callahan said was dated Jan. 9.

She was the pilot of a balloon which left the airport at Tillamook, Ore., the morning of Sept. 26 and came down in a soybean field near Spencerville, Ohio, 133 hours later. She was one of four occupants of the gondola of the balloon and suffered a broken leg in the landing.

Teacher writes letters for others

By Timothy Harper
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Nancy Cartwright is the ghost that every recalcitrant, reluctant and procrastinating letter writer should keep in the same drawer with the stationery.

She ghost writes letters, everything from personal to business, from amorous to angry.

"Many people just can't seem to write letters, no matter what their education," she says. "They want someone else to do their writing for them. They don't have confidence in expressing themselves."

Ms. Cartwright, 29, is a sixth grade teacher who never has had anything of her own published, but who often gets her students' class writing assignments printed in children's magazines.

She got into the letter writing business last year to make some extra money in her spare time. At $5.75 for a 125-word letter and $11.50 for up to 250 words, she is not getting rich.

But she believes business will pick up as more people learn of her work and see her newspaper advertisements.

Clients, as she calls them, tell her what they want either over the telephone or in person, usually filling out a questionnaire listing the form, purpose, tone and style of letter they want.

"I have to understand what it is they're trying to get across," she says.

Irishman blends best of East, West

By Carol Forrest
Student Writer

The Irish mandarin takes a swig of beer and taps the gauged bowl of his unlit pipe lovingly on an incomprehensible page filled with Chinese characters.

Ten feet away, a rice cooker sends up a plume of steam and frying beef sputters in a wok. The only other utensils to be seen are a bewilderment assortment of stirring and chipping implements hanging like windchimes above the sink.

"I don't make everything in the wok," says the Irish mandarin. "For instance, corned beef and cabbage. You can't make them in the wok."

He leans back in his chair, crosses his arms in front of his stout body and pats the floor with the soles of his old shoes. "As far as corned beef and cabbage are concerned, I maintain strict, ethnic purity. "Ethnic—et-nic."

"I say 'eth-nic,' my mother says 'ethnic.' That's the real reason I changed from anthropology to history."

He shakes his head, smiling. "She always used to pronounce it 'ant-ro-pology.' But 'history'—'history'—she can't goof that up."

Lawrence D. Higgins, 38, doctoral candidate in history, has struck a balance between what he considers the best of the East and the best of the West.

"I was born and raised in an Irish enclave in the Western Hemisphere—better known as the South Side of Chicago. And being an Irishman, I looked around the world and the only people I could find who were also civilized were the Chinese." He runs his fingers through the thicket of dark curls adorning his brow.

"I also believe that any nation that has 3,000 to 4,000 years of recorded history... behind it deserves attention."

Higgins' interest in China and the Orient got a big boost back in 1966, courtesy of the U.S. Army. He spent 18 months learning Chinese at an Army language school in Monterey, Calif. before being shipped for a 22-month tour on Okinawa, an island off the southern tip of Japan.

"I was a radio traffic analyst," says Higgins. "I can't tell you anymore than that, 'cause it's top secret." He snickers and says to no one in particular, "which is another way of saying I sat on my ass for 22 months."

While preparing for his doctoral exams, his "prelims," last fall semester, Higgins started studying beginning Japanese. He would grumble occasionally when he got the two languages confused in class, replying to a Japanese question with a Chinese answer.

Despite his enthrallment with far away tongues, the English language receives plenty of scrutiny from Higgins, as well. He takes great delight in dictionaries of unusual words, thesauruses, grammar books and the works of the redoubtable and outrageous Irish wordsmith, J.P. Donleavy.

"It comes from being Irish," Higgins says of his love for words. "Irish Americans, in particular, take a great pleasure in using the English language—to manipulate it for all it's worth it."

"I think the average American looks upon the language as being merely a means for communicating a simple idea. 'I'm hungry. I want a Big Mac.'"

Higgins waves his still unlit pipe professorially. "It comes from that idea that a word should have just one meaning. Exact translation: a very bland view of the language as a mere tool. It robs the American language.

"Language may be a tool," he says as he leans forward with a creak of his chair, "but it's also an art form."

"The Irish love to talk." He laughs. "None of my immediate ancestors are fluent in Gaelic, which was our original language, original artform. Art form more than language. English is our art form now, translated from the Gaelic, and," he says cocking his eyebrow and pointing with his pipe, "we Irish Americans do a better job of speaking it than the English do."

"And the Americans—the other Americans, not the Irish Americans—don't even speak English. I don't know what some of them speak, but it sure ain't English."

As a graduate student—a professional student—Higgins' study of languages, exotic and familiar, is but the natural outgrowth of a life of scholarship.

"In many ways, scholarship is nothing more than a refined curiosity." He fiddles with his pipe, failing yet again to get it lighted. "A scholar is somebody who is dedicated to the pursuit of knowledge and understanding. Not just knowledge, lists, but somebody who tries to understand how things happen."

New Morris Library Circulation Policies,

Effective February 1, 1980

Grace Period for Overdue Library Materials

January 28-31, 1980

Following a period of extensive study and review, new circulation policies for Morris Library have been written. These policies, which incorporate compromises based upon recommendations from both faculty and student constituency groups on campus, were officially approved by Acting President Lesar on December 3, 1979.

The new policies will become effective on February 1, 1980. Preparatory to their implementation, there will be a GRACE PERIOD from Monday through Thursday, January 28-31, 1980. During this period overdue library materials may be returned without payment of fines. The no-fine grace period applies to all SIU-C students, faculty, civil service and administrative/professional staff, and courtesy card holders.

THE FOLLOWING LIBRARY MATERIALS ARE NOT INCLUDED IN THE GRACE PERIOD:

- Recalled Items
- Reserve Room Items
- Items charged out overnight only or by special permission
- Materials from the SIU-C Law Library or Learning Resource Service

All overdue materials not returned by 12 midnight, January 31, 1980, will remain subject to overdue charges in line with the new circulation policies. These policies appear in the January 24, 1980, issue of the Daily Egyptian, and printed copies are also available in Morris Library.

Thanks and appreciation are expressed to representatives from constituency groups, faculty members, students, the Library Affairs Advisory Committee, the ad hoc Morris Library Circulation Policies Committee, and members of the University administration who have contributed to these policy changes.

Tests confirm leak to be PCB

By Diana Penner
Staff Writer

PCB, a highly toxic substance used to cool sealed electrical components, has been confirmed to be present in a fluid that had been leaking from an electrical transformer at the Health Service for nearly two years, John Meister, director of SIU-C Pollution Control, said.

Dan Carney, a graduate student in chemistry who will be conducting tests to determine whether the chemical contaminated Lake-on-the-Campus, said the fluid is "at least 50 percent, probably more toward 100 percent PCB."

However, Meister said it has not yet been determined whether the coolant actually entered the lake.

Carney said it will probably be "a few months" before the tests are completed. In December, Pollution Control workers took samples from 29 points along a storm sewer and stream leading from the Health Service to the lake.

It was disclosed in the summer of 1979 that University officials had known of the leak since November 1976. Meister said he estimates the transformer began leaking just prior to the discovery of the leak, but said he cannot pinpoint the exact date.

The cracked gasket that caused the transformer to leak was repaired in November 1978. Meister said it was not repaired sooner because it was first thought the transformer could not be fixed and would have to be replaced.

However, a physical plant worker determined that the damaged part could be repaired, but because of technical problems and because the transformer must be completely shut down for repairs, the work was delayed until the 1978 Thanksgiving break.

Meister said previously that stains on the floor of the basement at the Health Service indicated that the fluid had traveled two to three feet to the building's sump pump.

The sump pump was cleaned out during the break between the 1979 summer and fall terms. Meister said the materials used to clean the pump and soak up the spilled material are being stored in plastic-lined metal drums until disposal can be arranged.

There are very few disposal sites in the United States for hazardous wastes like PCB.

Based on the amount of coolant that was replaced after the transformer was repaired, Meister said that at most, 15 gallons of the PCB-tainted fluid leaked from the transformer. He said the replacement fluid does not contain PCB.

Meister said it is unlikely that the fluid entered the lake because PCB is nearly twice as heavy as water and adheres to soil and sediment. He said the PCB may not have left the sump pump area because it may have sunk to a space 18 inches below the pump pickup.

Special glassware worth about $2,000 was ordered for the tests, Meister said. All of the tests will be done three times, and all of the equipment must be thoroughly scrubbed and sterilized after each test is completed, he said. Meister said the cleaning procedure alone takes a full day to complete.

Meister said he expects to find a PCB level of two to five parts per billion in Campus Lake because the substance has been in use in the United States for about 100 years. A level of about 500 parts per billion would have to be in the lake to present a danger, Meister said.

The device used to determine the presence of PCB, an electron capture detector, is accurate to the parts per trillion.

Meister said fish samples have also been taken from the lake and will be tested for PCB. The substance is leached up through the food chain and must be ingested to present a danger.

Larry Ziemba, director of the Environmental Protection Agency office in Marion, said the potential danger that PCB entered the lake is "minimal."

Ziemba said that if it is determined that PCB entered the stream leading to the lake, the substance could be removed by dredging the sediment.

Asked what will be done if it is determined that the lake contains a dangerous level of PCB, Meister said, "We haven't crossed that bridge yet."

China, Mexico potential markets for Soviet embargo surplus grain

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — The People's Republic of China could make up for the loss of the Soviet export market, and Mexico and Eastern Europe could buy substantially more U.S. grain, according to the president of the U.S. Feed Grains Council.

Darwin Stolte told a meeting of Illinois grain dealers that it would take time and a major market development program to increase farm sales to those countries.

"The growth is out there," said Stolte. "We really haven't tapped it yet. The quicker the agricultural industry can take over its own market development and get the government out of it, the better."

Stolte's organization receives contributions from farm organizations, as well as the government, and uses the money to find new markets for U.S. grain.

In the meantime, Stolte said farmers should consider a paid land diversion program to reduce the grain surplus caused by the Soviet grain embargo and record corn and soybean production in this country.

"I'm concerned about the short-term — the next 18 months," he said. "We've got to clear the pipeline and get rid of this grain."

However, University of Illinois agricultural economist Stephen Schmidt said Stolte was too optimistic about the potential in China and the Eastern European nations.

Schmidt said they were not interested in improving the diet of their own people, and would import grain only if they could feed and export livestock.

He also said Russia and China have a tremendous potential for improving yields of their own crops.

Stolte said some potential customers, particularly the Chinese, need U.S. credit in order to buy grain. He said China also wants favored-nation trade status and probably would get it soon.

He said the Chinese also would want high technology items from the U.S., and an end to restrictions on Chinese textile imports.

Stolte said the Eastern European nations and China might buy more U.S. farm products because of animosity toward Russia.

"The People's Republic of China would make a lot of political hay if they step in and buy four or five million metric tons of U.S. grain," he said. "In five years, they could partially or totally replace the Soviet Union" as a market.

Convicted spy breaks prison

LOMPOC, Calif. (AP) — Christopher Boyce, one of two young Californians convicted in 1977 of delivering copies of classified U.S. defense documents to Soviet agents, has escaped from the federal correctional institution here, a prison spokesman said Tuesday.

Milt Edman, executive assistant to the warden at Lompoc, said "escape paraphernalia" including tin cutters and a makeshift ladder were found at the rear fence of the minimum-security prison facility about 150 miles northwest of Los Angeles. The search of the grounds was conducted after Boyce was missing at the 10 p.m. prisoner count Monday.

Andrew Lee, convicted and sentenced to life in prison in the same case, remained in custody at Lompoc today. Boyce, the son of a former FBI agent, was serving 30 years for his part in the case.

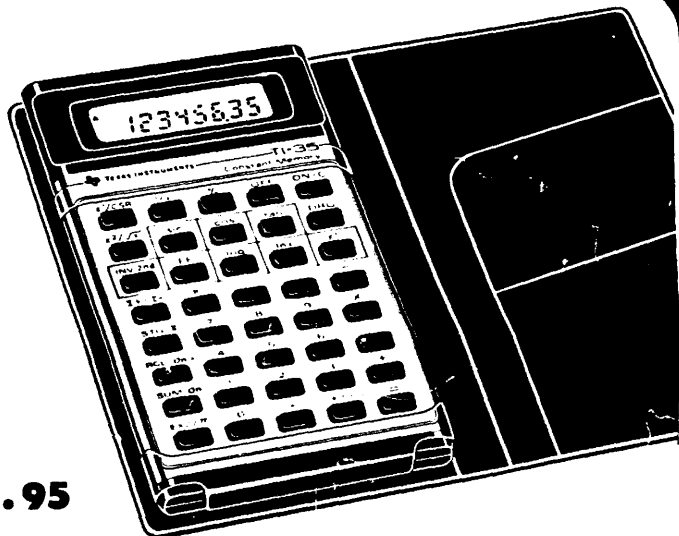

The story of how Boyce and Lee obtained and delivered U.S. rocket secrets to Russian agents was the subject of a 1979 book "The Falcon and the Snowman" by Howard Lindsay, a New York Times reporter.

Council predicts lower enrollment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education has predicted that enrollment in Illinois colleges will be less than average during the next 20 years.

The prediction was part of the council's forecast that the nation's college enrollment will fall 5 percent to 15 percent during the next two decades.

The council also predicted less than average enrollment for colleges in Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Radio veteran enjoys teaching

Craig DeVrieze
Staff Writer and Karen Clare
News Editor

Radio station WRTE, tucked away on the second floor of Cahokia High School, may be far away from the glory of the Grand Ol' Opry or network radio, but it's where Bill Bailey has found a home.

Bailey, 50, who manages WRTE and instructs high school students in radio station operations, spent 20 years working in big-time radio.

But, Bailey said, he always wanted to go into education, so when he was offered the position at WRTE four years ago, he accepted. Now, instead of the glamour and status he found in working in radio, his reward comes from "seeing kids accomplish something as they go on life."

Bailey started his career at a small radio station in the South after attending the University of Tennessee and Arizona State University. He quickly moved up from there, working two years in Boston, then Atlanta, New Orleans and Nashville. While in Nashville, he hosted radio shows from the Grand Ol' Opry, where he worked with such country greats as Hank Williams and Eddie Arnold.

From Nashville, Bailey went to Chattanooga where he worked as a regional announcer for the NBC Radio Network. He traveled as an announcer in the South and Midwest with such productions as "The Bob Hope Show," "Band of the Week," and "Dr. I.Q.," a '50s quiz show.

Wearing a red and navy blue suit, his eyes hidden behind dark glasses, Bailey talked about some of his experiences on the road.

"When you're in radio you move a lot," he said. "It was hectic but enjoyable."

Bailey recalled that traveling in those days was especially tiring because it was done mostly on trains and buses.

"Clickety-clack," Bailey laughed. "Sometimes you slept, sometimes you didn't."

Bailey speaks fondly of that period in his life. "I feel like those were the best days of radio," he said in his deep baritone. Back in the '40s and '50s there was a wider variety of programming and "you were forced to have a lot of creativity that you don't have to have today," he said.

But the golden age of radio is gone "and all those programs are gone too," he said sadly.

Bailey moved from the performing to the management area of radio in the early '60s when he tired of traveling. He held management positions at several stations before moving to station WJBV in Belleville, where he worked for 10 years, then he joined WRTE.

Bailey attributed his move to WRTE to coincidence. While visiting with members of the Cahokia High School administration, he was told that the radio station needed an experienced person to manage it.

"I always had kind of an idea that I would like to be in education," Bailey said. "When the opportunity presented itself, I said 'I'm interested!'"

WRTE has been in existence for five years and was started from funds supplied by the Centerville Men's Club. Bailey became manager of the student-operated station in 1976. He said he has taken the station a long way since then.

"Now I've got it where I want it," he said. "I put a lot of myself into this, a lot of hours and a lot of effort."

Bailey particularly enjoys working with the students and says he has established a very good rapport with them. He instructs about 60 students a year and most stay in the program for two or three years.

"The important thing is to find the kids who have at least the basic abilities," Bailey said as he glanced around the empty studio. "We take it from there and train them."

He said teaching the class can be very frustrating at times and he has a responsibility to the listeners and has to be cautious. Bailey wants to challenge the creativity of his students and he assigns projects that will "force them to utilize their minds."

Two such programs, "So You're Planning a Vacation," and "Fast Facts," encourages them to use their imaginations.

In "Fast Facts," students must put all relevant information on an assigned subject into a two minute radio format.

"So You're Planning a Vacation," is an exercise in which the students invent an exotic vacation and plan out all the details.

Bailey attempts to instill a sense of responsibility in his students. He teaches them to program for their audience instead of themselves.

"For the first time in their lives they start thinking outside themselves," he said.

Bailey is particularly proud of the success of his former students. In his four years, 150 students have earned their Class C Broadcasting License. He boasts of the many students who go on to pursue radio in college and is especially proud of one student who graduated from WRTE to a large station in Las Vegas.

"I think I'll stay in education indefinitely," Bailey said. "This job can be frustrating, but the rewards certainly outnumber the setbacks."

Construction on Alton lock and dam to proceed without any legal delays

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — No further legal delays are expected in the construction of a new lock and dam near Alton, a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers official said Tuesday.

Lt. Col. John Wilkes, deputy district engineer from St. Louis, told Illinois grain dealers meeting in Champaign that the new lock should be in operation on the Mississippi River in 1987. Wilkes said opponents of the new Lock and Dam 26 sued the corps and stopped the project in 1974. However, he said the corps won the case and that the appeal by the plaintiffs should not stop work again.

"But, that five-year court delay doubled the cost of the project," said Wilkes, noting that the latest cost estimate is $530 million.

Wilkes said that by the time the first lock is complete the volume of river traffic may require construction of a second lock at Alton.

He said the present lock and dam, built in the 1930s, no longer is structurally sound and cannot handle the present volume of river traffic.

It is built on wooden piles which are resting on sand, not bedrock, he said.

Wilkes said the structure has moved 2.5 inches downstream since it was constructed.

"The dam could move downstream at any moment," he said. "If we lost Lock and Dam 26, this nation would be hurting economically for a long time."

Much of the corn and soybeans produced in Illinois are shipped to New Orleans.

Morris Library Circulation Policies

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale

tions to the policy can be made. In making exceptions the division librarian will consider relevant conditions such as academic and research needs, level of demands on materials requested, peak use during the term, and special course requirements, however, conditions such as borrowers' travel plans, distance from the Carbondale area, and other circumstances primarily of a personal rather than an academic nature will not be considered relevant in making exceptions.

C. Other Borrowers: Civil Service Employees, Courtesy Card Holders, and Members of the Friends of Morris Library.

Overnight circulation during the regular library hours from 9:00 P.M. until one hour after the library next opens. For periods of shortened library hours periodicals may be charged out during the last hour the circulation desk is operating and are due back within one hour after the library next opens.

IV. Assessments for Overdue or Lost Library Materials

A. Assessments

All borrowers (except those defined for purposes of this policy as faculty and other professional staff members) are subject to daily assessments for abuse of library privileges and will be assessed charges for overdue materials. All borrowers (without exception) will be subject to daily assessments for failure to return recalled library material on or before its recall date. All borrowers (without exception) will be charged a replacement and processing fee for lost or mutilated materials. (See Appendix for additional information.)

B. Recalls

After fourteen days any library item is subject to recall if requested by another borrower. Seven days are allowed for return. Borrowers with items kept beyond their recall date regardless of the status of the borrower, will be subject to daily assessments after the seventh day and to replacement costs. The original borrower may make a recall request at the time of returning the recalled materials.

C. Overdue Notices and Daily Assessments

1. BOOKS

Within one week after an item becomes overdue a notice will be sent to the borrower indicating this fact in the case of non-faculty and other non-exempt borrowers a daily assessment will be charged for each item from the first day overdue until the item is returned. Two weeks after the due date a second notice will be sent reminding the borrower that the item is overdue and that, for non-faculty and other non-exempt borrowers, a daily assessment is being charged. Four weeks after the due date, if the item has still not been returned, a third notice will be sent in the form of a bill (including replacement cost and processing charge). The replacement cost will be cancelled if the book is returned before the replacement copy arrives. All borrowers (without exception) will still be responsible, however, for payment of the $5.00 per-item processing charge for searching and billing activities. In the case of non-faculty and other non-exempt borrowers, accumulated assessment charges will be waived upon payment of the processing charge. Unpaid charges due and owed to the University will be sent to the Bursar and General Accounting Office (after the fifth day of each month) for collection in accordance with University policy and the laws of the State of Illinois.

2. PERIODICALS

Within three days after an item becomes overdue a notice will be sent to the borrower indicating this fact. In the case of non-faculty and other non-exempt borrowers a daily assessment will be charged for each item from the first day overdue until the item is returned. Seven days after the due date a second notice will be sent reminding the borrower that the item is overdue and that, for non-faculty and other non-exempt borrowers, a daily assessment is being charged. Fourteen days after the due date, if the item has still not been returned, a third notice will be sent in the form of a bill (including replacement cost and processing charge). The replacement cost will be cancelled if the item is returned before the replacement copy arrives. All borrowers (without exception) will still be responsible, however, for payment of the $5.00 per-item processing charge for searching and billing activities. In the case of non-faculty and other non-exempt borrowers, accumulated assessment charges will be waived upon payment of the processing charge. Unpaid charges due and owed to the University will be sent to the Bursar and General Accounting Office (after the fifth day of each month) for collection in accordance with University policy and the laws of the State of Illinois.

3. SPECIAL CLASSES OF LIBRARY MATERIALS—BROWSING ROOM BOOKS, INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS CENTER BOOKS, FILMSTRIPS AND RECORDS, MICROFILM READERS AND MICROFORMS, PHOTOGRAPH RECORDS, AND UNDERGRADUATE BOOKS

Overdue notice and daily assessment procedures for these classes of library materials will be identical to those used for overdue books (see IV. C. 1). (See Appendix for additional information.)

4. SPECIAL CLASSES OF LIBRARY MATERIALS—AUDIO CASSETTES, MAPS AND AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHS, RESERVE ROOM BOOKS AND VERTICAL FILE MATERIALS

For these classes of materials which are charged out directly from the desk of the appropriate division or service, copies of overdue notice procedures are available for examination at the time the materials are checked out. These procedures are consistent with the tenor of this document. (See Appendix for additional information.)

5. SPECIAL CLASSES OF LIBRARY MATERIALS—FRAMED PRINTS

Within a week before a framed print becomes overdue a warning notice will be sent to the borrower indicating this fact. In the case of non-faculty and other non-exempt borrowers a daily assessment will be charged for each item from the first day overdue until the item is returned. One week after the due date a second notice will be sent reminding the borrower that the item is overdue and that, for non-faculty and other non-exempt borrowers, a daily assessment is being charged. Four weeks after the due date, if the item has still not been returned, a third notice will be sent in the form of a bill (including replacement cost and processing charge). The replacement cost will be cancelled if the item is returned before the replacement copy arrives. All borrowers (without exception) will still be responsible, however, for payment of the $5.00 per-item processing charge for searching and billing activities. In the case of non-faculty and other non-exempt borrowers, accumulated assessment charges will be waived upon payment of the processing charge. Unpaid charges due and owing to the University will be sent to the Bursar and General Accounting Office (after the fifth day of each month) for collection in accordance with University policy and the laws of the State of Illinois.

D. Replacement Cost

Replacement cost is the actual current cost of replacing material rather than the original list price of the item. The age or format of an item may dictate that the replacement copy be in a different format from the original.

E. Processing Charge

A processing charge of $5.00 is added to all replacement charges. This charge is based upon an estimate of (but does not fully cover) the cost of ordering, cataloging, marking, and preparing a replacement item for the shelf.

V. Suspension of Borrowing Privileges—All Library Users

Any person who abuses library borrowing or usage privileges may have those privileges suspended by the Dean of Library Affairs. Abuse leading to the suspension of library privileges is defined as failure to clear one's library record of all charges due for lost, mutilated, or overdue materials before the beginning of the next semester or summer session, whichever is sooner. Before suspension of privileges, efforts will be made to communicate with the borrower personally, by registered mail, or through appropriate channels, to inform the borrower of the reasons for possible suspension and to try to resolve problems related to the abuses of privileges. The suspension of library privileges will not extinguish any prior debts for charges related to overdue, lost, or mutilated library materials owed to the University.

VI. Circulation Identification and Correct Address

All borrowers charging out library material for use may be required to verify current status with the University, e.g., students, current fee statements, faculty, administrative, professional and civil service, current certificate of appointment following issuance. Borrowers are responsible for all library materials charged out on their borrowers' cards. Lost I.D. cards should be reported immediately to the Circulation Service and the SIUC Security Office. It is the responsibility of the borrower to report a change of address and to have a correct address on file with the Office of Admissions and Records or other appropriate University office.

VII. Appeals Within Library

Any billing of a daily assessment, processing charge, or other charge may be appealed to the Manager, Circulation Service. If the matter is not resolved, the line of progressive appeal is to the Director of Library Services and the Dean of Library Affairs. Appeals should be submitted in writing on forms available from the Circulation Service desk. An unresolved appeal may go to the Vice President for Academic Affairs and Research. An appeal from the suspension of library privileges will go directly to the Vice President for Academic Affairs and Research.

VIII. Applicability

These policies apply to circulation of materials from Morris Library and do not substitute for circulation policies in effect in either the Learning Resources Service or the SIUC School of Law Library. Approved December 3, 1979. Implemented February 1, 1980.

APPENDIX

I. Procedures for Doctoral Student Admitted to Candidacy

Eligible candidates should present a letter from their DEO or have the Graduate School certify that the individuals meet the criteria for this privilege. A courtesy card with an expiration date of the end of the semester covered by the letter will be issued to them. Extension of this privilege will require recertification in each semester.

II. Implementation Procedures

These policies reverse long standing prerogatives by making faculty and other classes of users subject in some instances to library assessments, replacement and processing charges for lost or mutilated materials, and possible suspension of privileges. Therefore, before implementation of the new regulations ample notice in the form of published announcements in the Daily Egyptian and signs posted in Morris Library will be given to all borrowers who currently have library materials overdue in order to permit the materials to be returned within a stated period of time before application of assessments.

III. Circulation Policy for Special Classes of Library Materials

Little red schoolhouse is more than a memory

turnover rate at the Libertyville School, Eaves said. She said she and McDowell, who is in her first year of teaching, don't have a free period for such things as planning lessons and grading papers as do teachers in bigger schools. Their lower salary also contributes to the teacher turnover, the principal said.

The turnover rate in the Libertyville community, on the other hand, is very low. The Crow family, for example, has occupied the same house since it was built almost 150 years ago. Betty Crow, who attended and later taught at Libertyville School, said her husband is of the family's fourth generation.

Mrs. Crow is presently principal of an elementary school in nearby Farmington. When asked what effect the smaller school has on the Libertyville students, she said, "That depends on your family and your student and the environment that your student comes from."

Overall, Crow said Libertyville compares favorably with the bigger Farmington schools. Some advantages of the small rural school, she said, are the small enrollment and the one-to-one attention students receive.

Disadvantages she mentioned are the lack of library resources, media, art and physical education skills.

Libertyville School owns a projector, a mimeograph machine and a microscope. The pupils have music class once a week in the school's fourth room, which doubles as a stage on special occasions. They also have art class once a week; physical education is scheduled twice a week.

The "big room" boys compete with other schools in football, and the girls compete in volleyball. In the spring both boys and girls compete in softball.

The whole school participates in several annual projects, including a Thanksgiving dinner, a skating party, an October carnival, a bowling party, a spring trip (usually to Six Flags) and a Christmas program; all of which requires cooperation from the parents.

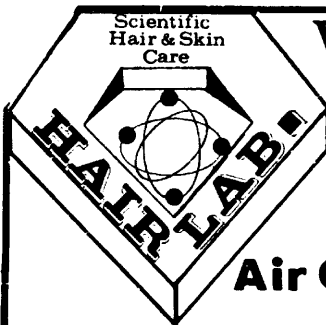

When asked if she would mind going to a larger school, one of the girls from the "big room" said it wouldn't be too bad "if we all could go together."

Libertyville School used to include grades nine and 10, but they were dropped from the curriculum in the late 1940s, Mrs. Crow said.

Today's Libertyville students will attend high school in either Farmington or another nearby town, Fredericktown. Crow said that the difficulty Libertyville students have adjusting to the larger high schools "depends on the student." Most of them, she said, have built-in initiative and do well.

Despite any problems the Libertyville students over the years have encountered in the larger high schools, they and their families have chosen to keep Libertyville School C-2 rather than be consolidated.

Thus, the tradition of the two-room school lives on.

Fuel costs rise as a new wave of crude oil increases spreads

By William Glasgow
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The winter's third wave of 1-to 5-cent-a-gallon gasoline price increases is spreading through the oil industry, with rising world crude oil prices again being cited as the cause.

Industry spokesmen widely credit the fuel-price increases, along with improvements in auto mileage, as probable reasons for a recent decline in gasoline consumption of 7 percent to 10 percent from last year's levels.

Before the most recent round of increases, the average U.S. retail price of a gallon of gasoline was $1.094, up from about $1.05 in December and up by about 60 percent over the past year, the industry publication Lundberg Letter estimates.

The president of Shell Oil Co., John F. Bookout, said last week that it was possible retail gasoline prices would hit $2 a gallon by late 1980 or early 1981.

But a spokesman for Standard Oil Company of Indiana said Tuesday that "we don't think that's likely, barring some major catastrophe."

The spokesman, Carl Meyerdirk, said Indiar Standard — the nation's second-largest gasoline marketer more commonly known by its Amoco brand name — raised gasoline prices by 4 cents a gallon late last week.

But he said the company believed gasoline "prices should begin to level off" as December and January crude-oil price increases by Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries members finish working their way through the industry.

Rather than a $1-a-gallon increase, Amoco sees closer to a 15-to 25-cent-a-gallon price increase for all of 1980, he said.

Among major oil companies announcing increases, Exxon Corp., the nation's largest gasoline marketer, said Monday it raised wholesale gasoline prices by 5 cents a gallon in its third boost since Dec. 18.

The move raised Exxon's average wholesale price for regular leaded gasoline to 81.6 cents a gallon, up 14 cents since mid-December.

Standard Oil Co. of California said Tuesday it is raising the price of all grades of gasoline by four cents a gallon.

The latest round of price increases was begun by third-ranked Shell Oil Co., which last week announced its second nickel-a-gallon boost of the month. Shell raised its price 3 cents on Dec. 21. Sixth-ranked Mobil Oil Corp. posted a 3-cent-a-gallon boost last week after raising prices by 3 cents 10 days earlier.

Mobil says its wholesale price for gasoline in the New York City area now is 83.9 cents a gallon for leaded regular fuel. Fifth-ranked Texaco Inc., which raised gasoline prices by 3 cents and gasohol prices by 2.7 cents a gallon last weekend, said regular gasoline is sold at wholesale here for 89.5 cents.

The price does not include a dealer's costs and profits or taxes.

Funds sought for Centralia plant

CENTRALIA (AP) — Centralia officials hope to get on the "fast track" for federal funds to help the city's second largest employer rebuild.

They'll go to Washington Thursday to meet with representatives of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to discuss Urban Development Action Grant money to help Hollywood Brands rebuild production facilities. The firm's three-story candy bar factory was destroyed Jan. 10 by a fire which left 500 persons jobless.

A former special projects assistant to Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., Harry Johns of Centralia, was asked to assist in the efforts by city officials. After meeting with representatives of the city administration, business community leaders and Hollywood executives, Johns traveled to Washington Monday.

He said Tuesday that UDAG spokesman Bill Hammer was "very receptive to our proposals" and asked for a further meeting with city and Hollywood representatives.

If federal money can be obtained on "a fast track basis," allowing actual construction to begin before the money is committed, Hollywood could break ground before the May 1 announcement of a UDAG grant.

Johns and City Manager John Orsok said the actual paperwork for applying for the funds would be filed before Feb. 28.

Du Quoin auto wire plant to close

DU QUOIN (AP) — Slumping auto sales will force the Essex International plant in DuQuoin to be closed very soon, a company spokesman said Tuesday.

Jim Kress said the firm, manufacturers of electrical wire assemblies for Chrysler Corporation, will close, forcing 217 employees out of work. The plant is one of 25 Essex owns, and four others have already closed, he added.

"The extremely depressed condition of the auto industry," is making the closing necessary, Kress said.

Poll shows support for Olympic boycott

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicago Tribune poll of Chicago-area residents shows large support for President Carter's position that the United States Olympic team should boycott the summer games in Moscow or seek a new site.

The survey showed that persons aged 35 and under were most vehement in insisting that the Olympics should be staged outside the Soviet Union. Nearly five of six persons surveyed said the games should be moved to another country.

But there was little support to cancel American participation in the next Olympics, and most also rejected an alternative proposal that Americans should compete only among themselves at a site in this country, the newspaper said Tuesday.

Some 60 percent expressed support for staging an alternative Olympic competition in another country at the same time that the Moscow Games are held and welcoming all nations that want to compete but do not want to go to Moscow.

And a majority, 53 percent to 39 percent, also said they favored delaying the Olympic competition to 1981 to allow for selecting a new location and making the necessary arrangements.

Of some 500 persons interviewed by telephone last weekend for the survey, those over age 35 generally were split on the issue of whether U.S. athletes should stay home but strongly backed the idea of delaying the games for a year or of staging a rival Olympics in another country. Young people were nearly evenly divided on the question of delaying the games.

Carter has requested formally that the U.S. Olympic Committee boycott the games in Moscow unless Soviet troops withdraw from Afghanistan within a month, or else that the committee seek a new site.

Blue Cross rate

boost delayed

CHICAGO (AP) — The local Blue Cross-Blue Shield company has been given 10 days to request a hearing to present more evidence to support its request for higher rates.

Philip R. O'Connor, Illinois' acting insurance director, said that Health Care Service Corp. presented "insufficient evidence" to support its request for higher rates.

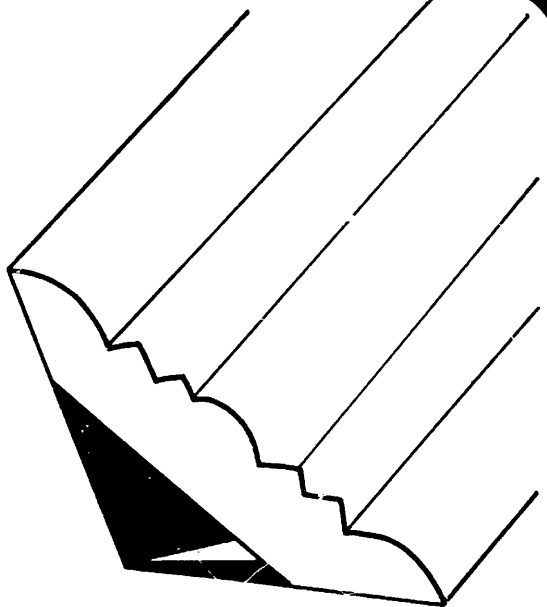

He said if there are hearings before the Illinois Department of Insurance, he expects consumer groups to intervene.

Health Care Service Corp., the local Blue Cross-Blue Shield company, filed two weeks ago for rate increases for Medicare Supplement policies and small group policies.

For the Medicare Supplement policies purchased by 260,000 persons to pay costs not covered by Medicare, the company asked for a premium raise from $9.60 per month to $11.70.

Inexperience hurts wrestlers

By Dave Kane
Staff Writer

Most coaches will agree that youth on a team has its merits — ambition, desire and the will to run through brick walls if asked to do so.

But, as Saluki wrestling Coach Linn Long will tell you, there's a place where youth's advantages end and the need for experience comes in.

Long's squad has youth coming out its ears with seven freshmen, one sophomore, one junior and one senior. It's not exactly what you'd call The Over-the-Hill Gang.

And the inexperience has shown in SIU's dual meet record of 1-5. However, Long realized that it would be a learning process when the season began for this year's team. "I think we're doing as well as we can under the circumstances," Long said. "We're freshman-led and lack that upperclassman leadership."

At 118 pounds, Mike Delligatti, the lone senior on the Salukis, has tried to pull his share of the leadership load with a 13-11-2 overall record, while junior Eric Jones and sophomore Jeff Walker hold 12-8 and 10-8-2 marks respectively.

But Long feels that the difficulties his freshmen are having can't completely be attributed to the lack of college mat experience. Being exposed to the college lifestyle is a drawback, he said.

"One of the problems is that most of the guys are lacking in the experience of what a college season is like," Long said. "They have the other freshman problems of living more or less on their own for the first time and being responsible for their acts."

One aspect of the college schedule is long road trips. The Salukis have just come off a western trip that took them to the University of Colorado, the Air Force Academy and Northern Colorado. Long feels that upcoming home stand will help the team.

"Since the kids are starting classes and everything, I think it will help with the home meets," Long said. "With all the travel and getting settled in, they can get sidetracked. I'm glad the trip was over semester break."

Heiden favored in Olympic skating

By The Associated Press

One way or another, the biggest news of the 1980 Winter Olympics will be the performance of speedskaters Eric and Beth Heiden.

For the past three years, Eric has won every major world speedskating title offered. One could go all the way back to Hans Brinker and not find a man who has dominated speedskating in the same manner as Heiden.

Eric, a 21-year-old from Madison, Wis., has won the world overall and world sprint titles three years in a row. He won the world junior title in his last year of eligibility three years ago to complete an unprecedented Grand Slam of all three major titles in a single year.

"It's unavoidable to see Eric as the favorite to claim every gold medal available in speedskating," says men's coach Peter Schotting.

And then there's little sister Beth, now 20 and already a two-time world champion. They almost undoubtedly will become the first brother-sister gold medal winners in the Winter Olympics.

There are nine medals awarded in speedskating, five for men and four for women at various distances. Between them, the Heidens should win nine medals, maybe not all gold since Beth is weaker in the short distances. But nonetheless, they will set an Olympic record that could stand to eternity.

There are nine Winter Olympic sports: speedskating, figure skating, Alpine skiing, ski jumping, cross-country skiing, biathlon, bobsled, luge and ice hockey. There are 38 events offering a total of 114 medals.

Several other Americans also are strong in speedskating. Peter Mueller of Milwaukee and his wife, Leah Poulos-Mueller, each have medal capabilities. Peter was a gold medalist in the 1,000 meters in Innsbruck in 1976, and Leah is the reigning women's world sprint champion.

Top Europeans include Christa Rothenburger of East Germany, Jan Storcholt of Norway and a bevy of Soviet women.

Aguirre leads DePaul

By The Associated Press

Mark Aguirre scored 22 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to lead top-ranked and unbeaten DePaul to a 57-54 victory over Alabama-Birmingham in college basketball Tuesday night.

Aguirre, hitting six of 11 at the free throw line, scored 12 second-half points to lead the Blue Demons. Terry Cummings added 12 points, six of those in the final half.

DePaul took a 23-22 halftime lead and stretched that margin to 15 points with 8:20 left in the game when guard Skip Dillard sank a 10-footer.

UAB chopped the lead back to 10 at 6:33 when Tony Mabrey came off the bench and hit two straight baskets.

Keith McCord, who had 15 for the Blazers, cut the score to 48-46 on a 10-footer from the left side with 4:34 remaining, but Aguirre went to the line and sank two free throws to make it 50-46.

The Blazers got back to within 54-52 with 35 seconds remaining on a 15-footer by McCord, but the Blue Demons stretched the lead to 57-52 on a free throw by Jim Mitchem and a pair of charity tosses by Aguirre.

beliefs with her sport. "I'm much stronger now than I was a few years ago. Back then, gymnastics took up so much of my time that it pushed the Lord out," she said.

Herb Vogel, now in his 17th season as coach of the women's gymnastics team, asked Didier to return to the team late in the summer.

"I think Denise is a more mature person now, be it through religion or just growing older," Vogel said. "I don't think she ever really wanted to leave."

Didier said she is determined not to let gymnastics control her life again.

"I'm definitely sure that I'm going to stick with it — for two reasons," she said.

"First, I've got Christ behind me, and the Bible says, 'We can do all things through Jesus Christ.'"

"Secondly, determination and perseverance got me where I was, and those both are still there," she continued. "My whole purpose for going back is to glorify Christ through what I'm doing."

Didier has returned to school as a junior. According to Vogel, she has two more years of eligibility left, including the remainder of the 1979-80 season.

Didier has decided to major in University Studies and not finish her degree in clothing and textiles. She said she will take classes that will help her in her "ministry." Such courses include music, philosophy and history. Since she quit, she has been very active in her church, Word of Life Fellowship in Carbondale, a non-denominational, fundamental church.

Didier was in the church choir and plays percussion instruments during the services. She has been largely responsible for organizing a prison outreach program through the church, which consumes so much of her time that she will have to give up most of it when she returns to school.

She plans to keep making Sunday visits to Menard Correctional Center, the Chester Mental Health Center and possibly Marion Federal Penitentiary. She said she will have to give up her regular letter writing, a task which for Didier means several single-spaced, typewritten pages based on in-depth Bible study, and her weekly personal visits to inmates in Menard.

Didier has been working at Wendy's restaurant in Carbondale for 2 1/2 years, which she said allowed her to have a flexible schedule and have constant contact with people, something she said she values very much.

"In living my life, I try to bring love to people, even if it's just through a smile."

Second season begins for gymnasts

By Rick Klatt
Staff Writer

A second season for the women's gymnastics team will begin Friday when the Salukis travel to Chicago for the Windy City Invitational.

After suffering through the first five weeks of the season with only one win in four meets, Coach Herb Vogel nevertheless is anticipating an exciting two days of competition.

"We're ready to go," the coach of 16 years said. "The girls have had two good weeks of practice and we have really improved our position over a month ago."

Before semester break, Vogel had an injury list which included virtually everyone on his "minisquad."

But Maureen Hennessey, Pam Harrington, Pam Conkin and Lisa Peden all are working out at full strength, and former All-American Denise Didier and Illinois state high school titlist Lori Erickson have been added to the squad.

SIU opened the season with a 129.95-114.90 victory over Murray State, but proceeded to lose its next three meets to Louisville, Minnesota and Iowa State, three schools which also will be competing at Chicago. But by no means is Vogel discouraged.

"In the Invitational, we'll be facing some pretty good teams, some that even are ranked nationally at this point in the season," Vogel said. "But we're ready to start hitting our routines, so I don't think anyone will be counting us out of anything."

Topping the list of teams attending the Windy City meet are Louisville, Nebraska, Minnesota, Pittsburgh and Illinois. Louisville's team score of 139.10 against the Salukis presently is the top score recorded in the nation, but Vogel doubts the score is indicative of the Cardinals' "true ability."

"By no means did Louisville do well enough to score that high in our meet," Vogel said. "I honestly think both teams were overscored. We scored a 126.80 and we missed our routines on 13 of 18 performances."

Louisville's Julie Bender presently is the top all-arounder in the country. Her composite score of 36.05 is 50 better than the No. 2 woman in all-around, Nebraska's Patty Gerard, and 1.46 better than the Salukis' Harrington. Harrington is tied for 12th in the nation with Robin Hueber of Minnesota.

"It was important to have a good two weeks of workouts over break and we got them," Vogel said. "If the girls can put everything together, we should be ready for this meet and the tough meets coming up in February."

The Salukis' next home meet is Feb. 2, when they host Illinois.

Weaver named to MSU post

By The Associated Press

Douglas Weaver, former SIU athletics director and Michigan State football player and current athletics director at Georgia Tech, has been named athletics director at his alma mater, Michigan State officials said Tuesday night.

Weaver has guided Georgia Tech's athletics department since leaving SIU in 1976. He succeeds Joseph Kearney, who quit last week to become athletics director at Arizona State and took MSU football Coach Darryl Rogers with him.

Weaver, 49, was athletics director at SIU from 1973 to 1976. Soon after arriving in Carbondale, he assumed the role of head football coach, succeeding Dick Towers.

After a 3-18-1 record in two seasons as coach, SIU administrators ordered Weaver to choose between being coach and athletics director. He resigned as coach, and, in one of his last duties before resigning as athletics director, hired Ray Dempsey to run the football program.

Weaver played center and linebacker on Michigan State teams that won 26 of 27 games from 1950 until 1952.

Weaver's appointment is subject to approval by Michigan State's board of trustees.

All-American gymnast rejoins team

Denise Didier, a former champion for the SIU women's gymnastics team, works out on the uneven bars. Didier, who is returning to competition for the first time since 1976, helped lead SIU to an AIAW championship in 1975.

Staff Writer

Denise Didier, a two-time All-American gymnast who left her sport for Christ more than three years ago, walked out of a church service last fall and confided to a friend:

"Boy, the Lord sure pulls some fast ones on me!"

At age 23, Didier is returning to a sport that was a major part of her life for 13 years. Didier, who is from Lombard, believes that the Lord is leading her back into gymnastics just as he called her out of it at the peak of her career at SIU in the fall of 1976.

As a freshman in the spring of 1975, Didier placed third in the national vaulting competition and placed fifth in the balance beam. She earned a sixth-place berth in the all-around. That year, she helped carry SIU to a national championship and was named to the All-American team.

In 1976, SIU managed to place just fourth in the nation, but in the individual competition, Didier was co-champion in the uneven bars and tied for third place in vaulting. She tied for fifth place in the all-around and was again named an All-American.

Didier concentrated on getting back into shape throughout the fall, and has regained the skills she used to attain her national status. This season, she plans to compete just on the uneven bars, her strongest event when she quit.

She also may compete in other events, but said that will depend on how she progresses over the next few months.

"It took a lot more faith to get back in than it took to get out," Didier said.

Didier left gymnastics because she felt that it interfered with her spiritual growth.

"The Lord showed me that I couldn't have him and have gymnastics be first with me," she said when she made the decision to quit the sport. "He has to be first. A lot of people can't understand that. Anyone who doesn't know the Lord won't understand."

She said that she feels she will now be able to balance her

Swimmers climbing national ladder

By Dave Kane

It always seems like the easiest way to win one of those barroom arguments is to hit your adversary with statistics.

Of course, you don't get in that many jawboning sessions haggling over swimming's best. But when you take a look at the nation's top times so far this season, plenty of names from the SIU men's team keep popping up.

In the latest rankings compiled by the College Swimming Coaches Association, five Salukis had the nation's best times in six events. Swimming is a sport of seconds and split-seconds, so these rankings could be considered the national poll of college's best swimmers.

Saluki sophomore Roger Von Jouanne has the No. 1 spot in both the 200-yard butterfly and the 400 individual medley. Von Jouanne's time of 1:48.68 in the 200 fly is followed by teammates Jorge Jaramillo (1:48.68) and Kees Vervoorn (1:49.22). Freestyle sprinter Bob Samples is tops in the 50 free at 20.39 seconds, which also is an SIU school record.

Other top times turned in by the Salukis include Anders Norling's school-record 56.2 in the 100 breast, freshman Pablo Restrepo's 2:02.28 in the 100 breast and Restrepo's 2:02.26 in the 200 breast — also a school mark.

Other SIU times that have stayed in the nation's elite are Von Jouanne's 1:51.60 in the 200 back, second nationally, and his 200 individual medley time of 1:51.40, also second best.

Southern Methodist University will be the Salukis' competition Saturday night in Dallas, Tex., and Mustangs look equally impressive. SMU's Greg Kraus is No. 3 in the 200 free, Chuck Bauman is No. 7 in the 1,000 free, and the Mustangs' 400 free relay team has turned in the second best time in the country so far this season.

It looks as though the national rankings may be changed a little Saturday night in Dallas if the numbers are any indication. After visiting SMU, the Salukis will travel to Norman, Okla. to take on the University of Oklahoma Sooners.

Gottfried: Stronger rebounding could topple Tulsa

By Mark Pabich
Staff Writer

Saluki basketball Head Coach Joe Gottfried has a definite list of do's and don'ts for Saturday night's Missouri Valley Conference contest with the Tulsa Golden Hurricane.

Topping the do's list is stronger rebounding, as Tulsa outrebounded the Salukis, 45-26, in its 87-75 win over SIU earlier this season. Heading a long list of don'ts is letting the Hurricane fast-break, and allowing 6-6 forward Bob Stevenson to shoot the ball.

"In our loss to Tulsa, we practically made Stevenson an All-American in one night," Gottfried said. "He scored 37 points. One of the big keys in the game will be stopping him."

Stevenson, who started just four games for Tulsa last season, is second in the MVC with a 13 rebound-per-game average. The junior is second in the Valley in scoring, also.

Gottfried said senior forward Lester Johnson, who is sixth in the Valley in scoring, gave the Salukis some problems in the two teams' last meeting.

"Johnson is a smart player who picks his shots well," Gottfried said. "His 6-8 size gives them strength under the boards."

"Players like Johnson and Stevenson give Tulsa an effective fast-break," Gottfried continued. "Something our team has been more effective at stopping recently."

Despite the recent losses to New Mexico State and West Texas State, Gottfried said, the Salukis were able to slow down the opponents' fast-break and almost eliminate it. He added that in the loss to the Golden Hurricane, SIU gave up 10 points on fast-breaks.

A stronger rebounding effort on the part of the Salukis could be the key to beating Tulsa, according to Gottfried.

"When you get beat on the boards by an almost two-to-one margin, something has to change," Gottfried said. "We'll use a lineup of quick people, but ones that can help control the boards."

Freshman Darnall Jones and junior Scott Russ will start for the Salukis, along with Wayne Abrams, Barry Smith and Edward Thomas. Gottfried said the addition of Jones and Russ would not only add strength, but shooting.

"Darnall is an aggressive player who can hold his own under the basket," Gottfried said. "With Scott in the lineup, we have an extra outside scoring threat."

"Overall, we have been playing better basketball," Gottfried added. "Everything from our transition game to our rebounding has improved."

The Tulsa game holds extra importance for both clubs. The Hurricanes, 6-9, 3-3 in MVC play are struggling along with the Salukis, 4-12, 0-6 in the Valley for a strong conference finish.

Gottfried said his club is not looking down the road at what could happen as a result of the final score, despite the importance of the game.

"Right now we're concerned with playing up to our potential and winning the game on Saturday," he said. "We'll take each game as it comes."

After the Tulsa game, the Salukis have three more games on their homestand. SIU will play Bradley, which currently is leading the Valley, Jan. 27. Indiana State Feb. 2 and Drake Feb. 7. All games will begin at 7:35 p.m.

Trackmen young, but Hartzog hopeful

By Rod Smith
Staff Writer

When a coach loses 12 athletes to graduation that were either All-Americans or NCAA qualifiers or both, and has just five seniors returning, it may be hard for him to be optimistic about the upcoming season.

Not so for Saluki track coach Lew Hartzog.

"We have a very, very young team," Hartzog said. "But I'm starting my 31st season of coaching and I'm as excited as I've ever been."

"This is a very uncertain year," Hartzog added. "The last five years, we knew we had good athletes returning and that we would have good teams. This year, we may be very good or very average, depending on how much last year's freshmen improved and how well this year's freshmen respond to competition."

The track team will begin its indoor season Saturday when it travels to the University of Nebraska for a dual meet. Hartzog feels the Salukis will have "their hands full with the Cornhuskers."

"Nebraska has what may be the finest indoor track facility in the nation," Hartzog said. "They have been practicing for the last three weeks and have a very strong team. Their coach feels they have a good shot at the Big Eight title."

In comparison, the Salukis have had formal practices only the last week since the track budget could not provide food and housing for the trackmen over break.

"We had to balance our budget so we could make it through the year," Hartzog said. "I think the kids took care of themselves pretty well over break."

Because SIU has no indoor running facilities, Hartzog does not know the capabilities of his many freshman athletes. He will take 34 trackmen to Nebraska, but will decide on a smaller traveling squad after the team has competed in meets the next three weeks.

Hartzog has 17 lettermen returning, led by junior sensation David Lee.

"There is no question that David is a superstar and truly a top Olympic prospect," Hartzog said. "He is the backbone of the team and probably one of the top 10 intermediate hurdlers in the nation."

Lee also is a long jumper and runs both relay events.

Hartzog feels the squad will be strong in the long jump with Lee, senior Tracy Meridith, freshmen Dan Jeffers, the Illinois Class A long jump champion, Jeroid Smith of Bloom and Kevin Baker from Palm Beach, Fla.

"We have no freshmen superstars, but they are the kind of freshmen I like, the type that are hard-nosed and like to get with it," Hartzog said. "We have four freshmen that have long-jumped 23 feet."

Meridith, an NCAA qualifier two years ago, and Smith also will triple jump.

Another strong event is the pole vault, where senior Mike DeMattei, an NCAA qualifier two years ago at 16-7, and Bob Schmidt, a junior letterman, return. Freshman John Sayre from Rolling Meadows High School was second in the Class AA state meet with a vault of 15-1-2.

Top cross-country runner Karsten Schulz returns in the middle distances, as does sophomore Bill Moran.

"Karsten had a good year as a freshman and should have a great year as a sophomore," Hartzog said.

Recruits Jeff Heath from Thornridge High School, Mike Choffin from Carl Sandburg High School, and Jim Perve-necki and Tom Ross, teammates at Fremd High School, will bolster the middle distance events.

"Ross became our third man in cross-country and was third in the state AA half-mile," Hartzog said.

The Salukis will be strong in the 35-pound weight event, where leading hammer thrower Dan Connerly returns.

Returning in the sprints is senior Clarence Robison. Robison, a halfback for the Saluki football team in the fall, was the No. 1 sprinter last year.

"Clarence could be awfully good this year," Hartzog said.
