Council may name firm for convention center

By Jim McBride
Staff Writer

The City Council may select a development firm for the downtown hotel-convention center during a special meeting Wednesday.

The council decided to delay selection of a development firm last week after the financing and hotel franchise proposal of one the development groups came into question.

The council gave the group in question, Crystal Development Corp., of Boulder, Colo. and Bis Hotels of Europe, one week to meet with officials of the Bis hotel chain in Atlanta, Ga., to prepare another proposal.

The council questioned the group's original proposal after City Manager Bill Dixon learned that the firm had no franchise or equity agreements with the Bis eastern U.S. headquarters in Atlanta, which has authority for granting Bis's U.S. franchises east of the Mississippi River.

An earlier development proposal submitted to the council by Crystal-Bis included a $2 million equity commitment and hotel franchise from the Bis chain that had never been approved by Bis officials authorized to make equity and franchise commitments on the company's behalf.

Robert Joblin, the other developer vying for the project, threatened to withdraw his development proposal after Crystal-Bis submitted another development proposal to the council which contained a financing technique submitted earlier by Joblin.

Joblin later decided not to withdraw his proposal and said he would "take his chance" with the council's pending decision.

The council is expected to hear another proposal from Crystal-Bis Wednesday at a meeting Friday with Bis officials in Atlanta.

Day care, pass-fail slated by USO

By Britt Yates
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization Senate will consider resolutions Wednesday supporting students' option to take classes on a pass-fail basis and the establishment of an on-campus day and evening child care center.

A resolution opposing the forced removal of Playboy and similar magazines from the University Bookstore will also be considered by the student government body.

The resolution calling for support of the pass-fail option centers in the wake of a resolution passed by the Faculty Senate Dec. 10 which calls for the abolishment of the pass-fail grading system.

A resolution supporting the building of an on-campus day care center, similar to the one that will be discussed Wednesday, was passed at a special meeting of the Senate on Nov. 29, but was vetoed by USO President Tony Appianen. The resolution was tabled Dec. 4 pending further research.

Also on the agenda is a resolution requesting postponement of a tuition reduction for dependents of SIU-C employees and a resolution supporting a change in the way funds are raised on the Student Center is run.

The Senate will also consider a bill to pass the "John Henry Cockroach Award" to the Carbondale City Council for "misguided efforts" in changing the way it enforces city regulations. The award is given to people or groups that the Senate believes work against students.

The Board of Trustees has requested that the Student Center consider using a guaranteed-payment fee contract, through which the company that operates food service would pay the Student Center a set percentage of its profits. The Student Center now pays the food service contractor a fee for its services and shares the contractor's profits.

A plan to allow students to vote on whether or not to request that the Board of Trustees add $1 to their fees to support a statewide student representation group will also be considered.

Bills to appoint Lucan Marchinsey to fill John Rutledge's vacant East Side seat, Cathy Harder in one of the vacated College of Business and Administration seats, Mark Case in a West Side seat and Jim Williams in the open General Education Academic seat are also slated for discussion.

The USO meeting will be at 7 p.m. on Balcom B of the Student Center.

Reagan plans budget with eye on Russians

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan, not wanting to appear "weak-kneed" to Moscow, laid out an ambitious 1986 legislative spending agenda Tuesday that includes arms for rebels in Nicaragua and Angola and protection of his military buildup.

Meeting with GOP congressional leaders as the 1985 legislative session opened, Reagan insisted future improvements in U.S.-Soviet relations and other foreign policy objectives are at stake in coming fights over budget priorities.

Confirming he will push for a slowed flow of arms - halted by Congress in 1984 - to the Nicaraguan Contras, in addition to a first-ever request on behalf of the UNITA rebels in Angola, Reagan said, "We can't walk away from this one."

In remarks relayed to reporters, Reagan warned that deep cuts in Pentagon spending beyond those necessitated by the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law could thwart progress at his summit this year with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbatchev.

The concern, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said, is that the "Russians are watching to see if the United States is weak-kneed."

"We already see indications that Gorbatchev is watching to see how our budget process plays out," Reagan said. "If we retain our commitments to SDI, to isolating radicals like the Lajan and Moammar Khadafy, to adequate security assistance to friends in vital parts of the world, we have a strong chance of making new gains."

During the hour-long meeting, Reagan reiterated his opposition to tax increases to reduce the deficit and pledged greater cooperation with Republicans in Congress.

Economic blockade to end, new Lesotho leader says

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) - The new leader of Lesotho moved Tuesday to improve relations with South Africa and end a 3-week-old economic blockade of his tiny mountain kingdom, which Pretoria has accused of backing black rebels.

Gen. Justin Lekhanya, the military leader who seized power in Lesotho in a "bloodless" coup Sunday, sent former Foreign Minister Evartus Sekhonyana to Cape Town for discussions with South African Foreign Minister Roelof Botha.

Israel to return $51.6 million in aid to U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Israeli government, doing its part for the Gramm-Rudman budget-cutting effort, has promised to return $51.6 million in foreign aid to the U.S. Treasury, an Israeli Embassy official said Tuesday. "We will contribute our share," said economics minister Dan Halperin. He said details still have to be worked out. But he said, "In principle, we told the U.S. government we will be responsive in this way.

Car bomb in Beirut kills 25, hurts 125 more

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - A powerful car bomb apparently planted to protest Israeli opposition to Lebanon peace talks blew up outside a Christian Phalange Party office Tuesday, killing at least 25 people and wounding more than 125 others. The driver of the Mercedes sedan jumped out of the car and fled just before the roughly 600 pounds of explosives packed inside the vehicle exploded at noon in the crowded Furn El Shebak neighborhood of Christian east Beirut.

Cut military and save $233 billion, study says

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A realignment of the U.S. military by cutting back nuclear and naval might and increasing Army and Air Force strength would improve performance and save $233 billion by 1990, a study released Tuesday said. But Congress would have to accede to the plan and interservice rivalry would have to end for the hypothetical U.S. military to function in a realistic world, acknowledged the author of the study, William Kaufman, a faculty member of the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University.

Helicopter crashes, kills two ABC employees

ELLENDALE, Minn. (UPI) - A helicopter carrying an ABC television correspondent and a producer to cover a meatpackers strike crushed Tuesday in thick fog, killing the two ABC employees and the pilot, authorities said. An ABC spokesman in New York identified the two employees as correspondent Joe Spencer and producer Mark McDonough, both 31 and based in Chicago. They were traveling about 100 miles from St. Paul to Austin in southeast Minnesota to cover a strike by union meatpackers against the Geo. A. Hormel & Co. authority.

Wales, charged with slander, will face trial

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) - Solidarity trade union founder Lech Walesa will be placed on trial for challenging the official voter turnout figures in Polish parliamentary elections last October, a government spokesman said Tuesday. "The investigation is ended," spokesman Jerzy Urban said in response to a question at his weekly news conference. "It is now being discussed which court should handle the trial. Then the date will be set." Walesa, 42, winner of the 1983 Nobel Peace Prize, is charged with slander. If convicted, he could be jailed for as long as two years.

Japanese-Americans may file suit, court says

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Thousands of Japanese-Americans forced from their homes and herded into detention camps during World War II can sue the government for compensation, a federal appeals court ruled Tuesday. In a 2-1 decision, a panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia removed a legal hurdle facing thousands of camp survivors trying to win $25 billion in legal claims against the federal government.

Osbourne says music not to blame for suicide

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - Heavy metal rock star Ozzy Osbourne rejected claims Tuesday that his music helped drive a troubled teenager to suicide. Sporting a glimmering blue suit and dark sunglasses during a news conference, Osborne answered questions - over the objections of Tuesday's attorney — actions of Tuesday's attorney — about a lawsuit filed against him, CBS Records and others last October by Jack McCollum, the father of the dead boy.
Consumers unlikely to get fuel cost break

By United Press International

The U.S. consumer should see some but not much — savings on gasoline and home-heating oil bills from the unraveling of crude oil prices on world markets within six to eight weeks, analysts said Tuesday.

Energy specialists cautioned Americans are not likely to reap the full benefit of the nearly $10-a-barrel drop in the key domestic crude over the past two months because Congress may impose new petroleum taxes.

In Washington, the White House said the impact of tumbling oil prices "on the U.S. economy and particularly on U.S. consumers is favorable" and ruled out an oil import fee.

In the past week alone crude prices have plunged by about $8 a barrel in trading on the spot and futures market because the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has been overproducing oil even though a mild winter in Europe and the United States has curbed heating oil demand.

In theory, each $1-a-barrel decline in crude prices means a 2.3-cent-a-gallon reduction on gasoline and home-heating oil if passed through to the consumer. A barrel contains 42 gallons.

Yet pump prices have decreased by only about a penny a gallon in the past two months and home-heating oil prices are 8.5 cents a gallon higher in some states than a year ago.

"To make a direct calculation from the drop in the imagined value of a barrel is simplistic," said Dan Lundberg, publisher of the Los Angeles-based Lundberg Survey that tracks gasoline prices. "Just how falling crude prices will work their way through to the pump lies beyond easy quantification."

In mid-January the average U.S. pump price slipped to $1.20 a gallon from $1.235 in December, Lundberg said.

He pointed out that increased costs of manufacturing gasoline under the government's lead phaseout program and escalating insurance premiums for service station operators will restrain price decreases at the pump.

"One will see a scattering of retail prices for self-service regular leaded as low as 99 cents a gallon in some areas, but the overall decline in pump prices will not be anywhere near what reports of panic in the oil markets would lead the consumer to expect," Lundberg said.

"Some savings from lower crude prices eventually will be passed through to the consumer, but a good part may be taken by the U.S. government in the form of higher petroleum taxes," he said.

Alvin Silver, analyst at Brian, Murray, Foster Securities in New York, said it normally takes six to eight weeks for suppliers to replace old inventories with new stocks that reflect changes in crude oil prices.

Arena ticket policy strikes wrong note

The ticket-purchasing policy put into effect for the John Lennon/McCann concert is unfair to SIU-C students for a variety of reasons. The first step in getting a ticket for any Arena concert is to stand in line, then present your student identification card to receive a spot in the actual ticket-purchasing line. The ticket-purchasing line spots are not determined by your spot in the line reservation, though. This is a confusing procedure that doesn't reward the devoted fan who has been willing to get up early and get there first, and it is unfair to all those who took a spot in the reservation line expecting to have the same spot in the purchase line.

The policy is unfair to those who have class while ticket reservation cards are being handed out. It seems as though this practice even encourages class-cutting, a strange policy for an institution of higher learning. Why don't we just eliminate the line reservation system altogether?

Different times should be worked out in the future to accommodate those students who cannot afford to wait in line in the early lines. The reservation cards fan out so slowly before the general public gets a crack at them. This may sound like discrimination against the general public, but the University is standing up for the students who have been fanned out for the concert. This is wrong, since it is a University-sponsored event.

One day should be set aside for SIU students to get their concert tickets, preferably before the general public gets a crack at them. This may sound like discrimination against the general public, but the University is standing up for the students who have been fanned out for the concert. This is wrong, since it is a University-sponsored event.

ALSO, THE CARDS ARE handed out on a first-come-first-served basis to anyone who walks up. Judging from the large number of these high school-age people in line for reservation cards, they seem as though this practice refers to these people's own definition can only be described as "pornographic." He refers to passages describing "promiscuity, adultery and extramarital affairs toward women and children, deviant sexual practices, and homosexuality." The only reason the Bible tells of these things is to let us know that they are wrong.

It is simply wrong, whatever the cause, to prohibit the sale of any publication. This action is a despicable form of censorship. The immense pressure of the Bible Society's publication on this subject, even though they are the American Civil Liberties Union, is not necessary. They are technically and morally correct, however obvious they are otherwise.

Censorship is damaging to society. I think all socially-concerned citizens should examine the motives and logic of the self-righteous, the fanatic and anyone else displaying knee-jerk reactions and shouting at the moon when pornography is at issue.

Biblical misinformation

It seems that Mr. Cummings is not much informed of the Bible and pornography. He states that certain passages of the Bible could be described as pornography. He refers to passages describing "promiscuity, adultery and extramarital affairs toward women and children, deviant sexual practices, and homosexuality." The only reason the Bible tells of these things is to let us know that they are wrong.

When do we draw the line?

The article considering censorship in the Daily Egyptian (Jan. 14) has prompted me to express my thoughts on the problem of censorship. The problem of censorship has beenranked since the dawn of recorded history and it will continue to do so as long as "all knowing" individuals and groups wish to apply their brand of morality to society in this case, the student body of SIU.

Support the SIU photographic services

I feel it is a slap in the face to the photography service, the School of Technical Careers, the Graphic Production Technology majors to see a photo processing service offering reduced price deals because of editorial coverage. Since we live in a democracy, we must choose to grips with the negative and positive aspects of our society and we must not allow our personal bias to influence us on the rights of others.

Scientists debate chance of cancer risk in tea, wine

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- Wine drinkers and tea lovers may be two of the most comforting elements of the American lifestyle when it comes to cancer. But scientists are debating whether they increase the risk of cancer of the esophagus.

One scientist believes the link is strong, saying, "If you're a wine drinker and a tea lover, you're taking in a substance that is known to cause cancer in animals. Other scientists who have studied the issue in various populations say factors such as alcohol and nutrition are more important.

Esophageal cancer is a relatively rare disease, accounting for only 2 percent of cancer deaths annually in the United States. But Dr. Julia Morton of the University of Minnesota says that figure will increase significantly.

"WE'VE NEVER been a wine-drinking country, we've never been a tea-drinking country," Morton said. "We don't drink enough red and hot beverages to be part of the problem."

However, the meeting failed to mask building pressures generated by the Gramm-Rudman budget cuts, which have already reduced the government in five-year periods.

his comments, Speakes said, reflected a belief "that 1986 can be a good year, but that it can be a competitive year, if the White House and the Republicans in Congress work together."

In the meeting, however, the failed to mask building pressures generated by the Gramm-Rudman budget cuts, which have already reduced the government in five-year periods.

Even as Reagan promised a fiscal 1987 budget that will mean $144 billion without raising taxes, hurting the needy or cutting into national security, Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., predicted eventual compromise on defense spending as well as taxes.

Noting "some voices on Capitol Hill" argue the deficit cannot be slashed "unless taxes go up and defense goes down," Speakes declared: "They're wrong. And the president says he's going to prove it."

In addition to urging early passage of the measure to boost the Senate, where he wants a House-passed bill recast more to his liking. Reagan signaled new clashes with Congress over aid to a noncommunist rebels and the sale of arms to Jordan.

Last year, Congress limited aid to the Contras to $25 million in humanitarian assistance and blocked a $1.5 billion Jordanian arms deal until March 1 unless direct negotiations begin between the two countries.

In both cases, he promised to consult with Congress before making the political risk of sending any formal requests to Capitol Hill.

sales on Sunday and Monday of the first week of classes totaled $2,200 and $3,380, respectively. Sigma Kappa received $500 for collecting books during finals week, he said.

Sales for books ended last week Wednesday is the last day students can go to the bookstore to pick up their unread books or money. After Wednesday, students should go to the AMA Office on the Student Center floor.

The problem, said the editor, is that people who consume high levels of tannins necessarily have high esophageal cancer levels. For instance, esophageal cancer rates in Italy are average, even though the diet is high in tannins for its red wines.

"In Iran, esophageal cancer has been studied exhaustively, and the major risk factor that has been identified clearly is poor nutrition," which causes deficiencies of important nutrients, Ziegler said.

Older theories blamed the heat of hot beverages and the consumption of spirits, but Ziegler said a study she conducted in black women in Washington, who have high esophageal cancer rates, did not support either of these. Heavy alcohol consumption and poor nutrition seemed to be the important factors.

"If tea is a factor, we should be able to pick it up in a study, and we have not," she said.

Ziegler has just finished data collection in a study of the southeast Atlantic coast, where the esophageal cancer rates are high. Tannin was one of the risk factors studied. Results are due in six months. So

Each scientist had advice for those who wish to minimize their risk of esophageal cancer. Ziegler advised: stop smoking, follow a balanced diet and don't drink a lot of alcohol.

Morton agreed people should limit their alcohol consumption, and said if they drink tea they should make it weak or use milk.

The center has "good relationships" with the Illinois State Police, the Illinois Department of Corrections, the States Attorney's Office and the Federal Bureau of Prisons, Ferdinand said. The department makes use of these contacts for teaching purposes and also for job referrals for graduates.

This year also marks the Crime Studies Center's 20th year. An anniversary celebration is planned for April during the Administration of Justice College Conference. Ferdinand came to SIU in September 1985 because of "a strong administration and an opportunity to develop worthy programs," he said. "He said he hopes to establish a Ph.D. program in criminal justice at SIU. If SIU adopts the proposal, it will be the only university in Illinois that has a criminal justice doctoral program independent of other academic studies. Between eight and 10 such programs exist nationwide, Ferdinand said.

He said that the more progressive law enforcement agencies will begin to incorporate people with advanced law and criminal justice degrees into administrative positions. The value of such degrees is increasing, he said.

Before coming to SIU, Ferdinand was a professor of criminal justice and director of the graduate program at Northeastern University in Boston, Mass. Before his job at Northeastern University, Ferdinand taught at Northern Illinois University at DeKalb for 10 years. Ferdinand holds a bachelor of science degree in chemistry from the University of Notre Dame, a master's in psychology from Purdue University and a doctorate in social psychology from the University of Michigan.

Theodore Ferdinand
professor in the center, is studying in England, and in December, center professor Elmer Johnson returned from traveling and consulting with criminal justice faculty and officials in the Far East, Ferdinand said.

Ferdinand said that soon a Japanese scholar will visit SIU to observe the criminal justice curriculum.

Canadian auto parts firm
eyeing Southern Illinois

CHICAGO (UP) — A Canadian auto parts company, considered one of the world's largest, is examining the possibility of building a $41 million plant in Southern Illinois, Gov. James R. Thompson said Tuesday.

"They are looking at several sites in Southern Illinois," the Republican governor said during a news conference before leaving on a 13-day trip to the Far East.

Thompson would not reveal the name of the company, saying only that it was one of the world's largest auto parts manufacturers, was based in Canada and was looking at sites in Southern Illinois to locate a $41 million plant to produce parts for 1988 model years.

Susie sources suggested that one company that could fit the bill is Magna International Inc., which is based in Markham, Ontario, just outside of Toronto. But they said they had "no official knowledge that Magna was the company.

Magna has eight plants in Canada, West Germany, Iowa and Michigan. The company had sales last year of $500 million in Canadian dollars, which roughly equals $383 million in U.S. currency. A Magna official said she had heard nothing about the proposed plant and the governor's office would not confirm or deny that Magna was the company.

Dave Powers, spokesman for the state Commerce and Community Affairs Department, said his office had direct orders from the governor's office not to comment on the identity of the company.

Illinois is in competition with three other states for the auto parts manufacturing plant, Thompson said.

Efforts of single parent end in state honor, degree

By Darci Allen

College is never easy, but for Karen Lewis, the struggle to make it through has been more of an effort than it is for most. In May, Lewis will graduate from SIU-C with a degree in forestry and a certificate from Gov. James Thompson that says she is one of the top college students in the state.

Thompson named Lewis to the Lincoln Academy, a statewide honor society that includes one student laureate from each of the state's four-year colleges and universities.

Lewis said she was "shocked and amazed" when Dean Kroening of the school of Agriculture told her she was SIU-C's recipient of the award.

Lewis had originally planned to go to Purdue University right out of high school, but her plans changed when she was married during her senior year. She got a divorce two years later while living in Virginia. She then worked for two years to earn money for college and enrolled at Southeastern Illinois University in Harrisburg when her daughter, Sandra, was three years old. She graduated with an associate's degree in applied science and then transferred to SIU-C.

"Sandra has taken all of this in stride," Lewis said.

"On days when she doesn't have school, she comes to class with me. She was exposed to college classrooms at a very early age and may even have benefited from it," Lewis said.

Lewis has had to make many difficult decisions during her college years. "The most difficult ones concerned Sandra," she said.

"When I moved from Illinois to Virginia, we were all alone," Lewis said. "All our family was there and she was used to having only grandparents babysit her.

"It took her awhile to adjust to a daycare center," Lewis said. But it has gotten easier.

"She's gotten older and she knows what to expect. Her dependence on me has decreased," Lewis said.

Lewis will be getting married in July and moving to Shelbyville.

Allergy doctor sniffing around for dirty noses

KANSAS: (UPI) — A doctor is sniffing around for a few good noses, supposedly those that drip year round.

Persistent sniffers may qualify for six weeks of free treatment from Dr. Salom P. Goldberg by helping test a new antihistamine.

Goldberg, an allergy specialist, is one of a handful of physicians nationwide testing the new drug, Climara, for a major pharmaceutical company.

More than 200 people, ages 12 and up, are needed to take part in the study. The new medicine is supposed to be better than other antihistamine drugs because it doesn't cause drowsiness. The tests will measure how well it stops nasal secretions and what its side effects may be.

While Goldberg has patients here and at two suburban Chicago offices, he must find several new subjects for the survey.

Some of his own patients can be used, but most of them are getting better. We need those who have a runny nose all year long," he said.

He's especially interested in people who are allergic to dust, cats, dogs or waking.

During the study, participants will receive the new antihistamine for four weeks, another drug for two weeks and a placebo for the same period. Neither the patients nor Goldberg will know which is which. The double-blind study keeps people from reacting differently to a drug just because they think they should.

Researchers working for the firm which set up the study will know which medication is being given, and will supervise Goldberg during the study.

Targeted in the study are those people who suffer from perennial allergy problems, an allergy which doesn't lessen during the winter, Goldberg said.

The drug has been laboratory tested and has been approved for further investigation, Goldberg said.

This study will help the antihistamine become licensed by the Food and Drug Administration for prescription sale.

Those who qualify for the study will be asked to return to Goldberg's office every two weeks to receive their medication. They'll be asked to take one of the drugs every day and write down allergy symptoms or any adverse effects of the drug each day.

Total new concept to help you see better

Only Horner Rausch has gotten it all together in one location: the largest selection of frames, complete contact lens center, in-store lab, trained opticians, free EYE CHECKS, and optical tests available to give comprehensive eye exams.

Walk in — walk out with your new glasses! Most prescriptions can be precision ground in one hour even bifocals and trifocals, with all this our cost is below other outlets. Service, selection and saving is what the new super store is all about.

Professional Eye Examination at your convenience

No waiting! Just walk right in! Independent doctors of optometry are on the premises. Have your eyes evaluated at no prescription immediate, pick out your frames or contacts and we'll take it from there. We understand that an eye problem relating to your vision is too important to be put off. Super Store has come to town to do it now!

Single Vision Glasses frame & lenses $39.95

Bifocals $59.95

There is no extra charge for plastic lenses in single, bifocal or trifocal glasses. Our Frame and Lens Department frames start as low as $14.95. Single vision glasses with frames and lenses are as low as $39.95. We have thousands of frames to choose from, so there is no problem in finding the right frames for your face.

VISION CHECKS are free to you

Our technicians will check your visual acuity to determine how well of free you are. An Auto Refractometor will give a printout telling your correction for glasses. A Lensesimeter will read the lenses of your glasses to see if we've checked the results with your printout from the Auto Refractometor. A glassosa test is administered by a member of our staff. There is no charge for these tests, however, they cannot be used as a prescription and are not intended to take the place of a complete eye examination with a doctor.

In-Store Lab means you'll have your glasses in one hour

Stay with us for the making of your glasses. We do it on the spot. Our new computerized lab has glass windows which permits you to watch your glasses being made. From Initial Computation (Step 1) through Final Inspection (Step 10) you can see how we do it.

FREE GUARANTEE. For a period of 1 year, if for any reason your lenses or frames are broken, we will repair or replace without charge!

Designer Frames

Our customers come first so we carry the finest, most fashionable looks. Our designer names include: Christian Dior (including the new diamond collection), Platro, Mental, Segal, Laren, Oscar, de la Renta, Logo, Pierre Cardin, Avant Garde, Porsche Carrera, Diane Von Furstenberg and the seasonal new Gucci line.

Contacts

We stock hundreds of contact lenses. If you've been wanting to try them, we have many different types fitted by an optometrist—one of which may be exactly what you need.

Children's Glasses

Many reading problems are traceable to vision difficulties. The doctor adjoining Super Store are especially skilled in testing vision in the very young. We can advise you on the best selection of frames and lenses for your child.

Sunglasses & Sport Frames

Whatever you want is in frame style or lens tint we have. Name your sport and we'll provide glasses to enhance your vision and protect your eyes.

Plan ahead to fight stress, Wellness counselor says

By Elizabeth Cochran

Many people live by the words, “if it feels good, do it.” But they might encounter less stress if they follow the motto, “if it doesn’t feel good, don’t do it,” says Marc Cohen, Wellness Center counselor.

“Training yourself to do something that doesn’t feel good in the short run, but will be positive in the long run” can reduce stress, Cohen said.

He says that planning the semester early, doing school work on time and focusing attention on problems as they occur are key family prevention. “People hear the word discipline and think ‘nasty,’ but discipline is really freedom,” he said.

The more people put things off, the more it comes back to them later,” he said.

He says that the best way to deal with everyday duties is with a good attitude. If people tell themselves they hate class and hate homework, their body reacts and these events automatically become unpleasant. “Words we use and thoughts we have create realities,” Cohen said.

He says that in this society, people tend to get down on themselves and “should” and “awful” themselves to death.” He suggests that people affirm the positive aspects of their lives while realistically looking at the negative.

“As we think, so we become,” he said.

He maintains that when the attitude changes, the rest of life does too.

Although attitude is the largest component in stress prevention, Cohen says that exercise, relaxation and diet all play a role.

The two components of stress are the stress trigger and the stress reaction. Triggers include daily experiences like being late for class, getting a flat tire, fighting with parents or friends and numerous others.

The reaction, also called the “fight or flight response,” is defined as the physiological, biochemical and psychological reaction to stress triggers. The body’s physiological make-up is designed to either fight off, or run from a life-threatening situation. The senses sharpen, and muscle tension increases so that the body is prepared to fight or run with full energy.

The “fight or flight response” dates back to prehistoric times when stress triggers consisted of life-threatening situations such as animal attacks.

Even though most of today’s stress triggers are not immediate threats to life, the body still reacts as if they were.

Cohen says that today’s society makes it impossible to fight or run from most stress triggers so the responses build up throughout the day.

The human body was not meant to be in a constant state of readiness, so encountering the stress response day after day can lead to a breakdown of the body if the reaction is not completed.

“Exercise helps bring built-up stress reactions of the day to their conclusions,” he said.

In addition to exercise, people need to take time to relax. “In our culture we associate stillness with laziness and time wasting, but it really creates more energy, he said. “It’s like taking a daily vacation.”

Learning techniques such as diaphragmatic breathing, meditation and yoga can give the body and mind the rest they need, Cohen said.

Another component of stress prevention is nutrition.

“Everything that you put in your mouth becomes a part of you,” Cohen said.

He says that caffeine and sugar intake can amplify stress. Caffeine can create physical and mental tension and irritability and “refined sugar has a drug effect that causes fast stimulation and fast drop off.” It can make people get overly excited and easily depressed, Cohen said.

He says that fatty foods take twice as long to digest as carbohydrates and proteins. “Energy is directed to digesting rather than other needs” when fatty foods are eaten, he said.

Super bucks to be scored by host city at Super Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — City officials, business executives and residents are straining their resources to accommodate the 100,000 football fans expected for the Super Bowl bash, but they arestraining with a smile.

Tourism officials predict Sunday’s Super Bowl XX face-off between the Chicago Bears and the New England Patriots will pump more than $100 million into the city’s economy. But the extra visitors also will cost the city more in operating expenses.

City officials estimate the Super Bowl will cost the city about $190,000 in extra service costs during a year in which the city’s budget has been trimmed by $8 million.

That projection includes $150,000 in police salaries, of which $60,000 is overtime. $20,000 for the mayor’s office to print informational brochures to distribute at airport and hotels; $7,500 for emergency medical services; $2,200 for the streets department to change signs and handle parking management. $1,106 for fire department overtime; and $760 in overtime for workers who must clean up after the fans.

Hotels also are feeling the strain. The city’s 25,000 hotel rooms are booked solid and vacancies from Biloxi, Miss., to Baton Rouge are disappearing fast, according to the city’s tourism director.

Residents are cashing in on the city’s proximity of sleeping quarters by renting their own apartments, houses and rooms and adding wakers, bartenders and other service people and are stocking up on food and beverages to cater to the large number of private parties. generated by the Super Bowl.

“Who cares if it’s a hard ship,” said Bill Langkopp, executive director of the Greater New Orleans Hotel and Motel Association. “Bring it on. Let’s do it every year. Our job is to sell.”

The Saluki men's tennis took a double shot in their meet last weekend with Northwestern, not only by losing the meet 7-2, but by coming home with a player on the injured list.

No. 4 singles player, Rolle Olignon, reinjured his knee in his singles match, resulting in forfits in his singles and doubles matches.

In singles competition the Salukis were 1-5. The Salukis' No. 1 seed, Per Wadmark, lost his singles match in straight sets 6-4, 7-6, while No. 2 seed Jairo Aldana did the same. 6-2, 6-1.

Scoring the only singles victory for the Salukis was No. 1 seed, Chris Visconti, who won his match 6-3, 6-4.

Lars Nilsson, No. 3 for the Salukis, lost his match 7-6, 6-0 to Fabiano Ramos filling the No. 3 spot, who defeated him in straight sets 6-3, 7-6.

The team didn't fare any better in doubles competition, going 1-2 for the meet.

The No. 1 doubles team of Wadmark and Olignon forfeited due to Olignon's injury.

DIOTKA OVERWORKS; BERRY DOESN'T

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Diana Ditka's husband woke her even a sound sleep the other night to announce what just about everybody else already knew.

"If finally sunk in," Bears coach Mike Ditka said Tuesday. "I jumped out of bed the other night and said to my wife, 'Can you believe it? We're going to the Super Bowl!"

The Bears, winning their division with a league-best 13-3 record and beating the New York Giants 21-0 and the Los Angeles Rams 24-1 in the playoffs to win the NFC championship, are 10-point favorites to beat the AFC champion New England Patriots Sunday.

"Being the favorite doesn't mean a thing," said Ditka. "When the game starts Sunday, we'll be 0-0."

Ditka took offense at a suggestion that the Bears, who beat the Patriots 20-7, the second week of the regular season, might be "over-confident."

"We don't have over-confidence," he snapped. "But we do have confidence. What's wrong with that? One of the problems we had to deal with last week was to make sure that we didn't turn over the ball like we had been doing all season. We had to get the ball away."

Ditka said Tuesday the only player with an injury problem was quarterback Jim McMahon, who has been taking acupuncture treatments for a bruised buttck.

"Some of us wanted the team to bring the acupuncturist (Hiroshi Shiraiash of Tokyo) down here, but they refused," said wide receiver Willie Gault. "He helped me and he's helped Jim and I felt we owed him something. I'm bringing him down myself."

"Jim still needs a couple more treatments before Sunday's game, so Hiroshi is very important to us."

Patriots coach Raymond Berry said Tuesday it was going to be "very difficult to get off the Bears."

"At this stage, the Bears' defense is the best in the league," he said. "They're not a very good team. They don't give up many points. It would be nice if we could shut them out, so we could win."

But coach Raymond Berry think that by having already faced the Bears once this season, his team needs less preparation for the upcoming Super Bowl.

"I'd rather be guilty of over-resting them than not being sure their legs were fresh," Berry said.

Another reason the Patriots coach is optimistic about the upcoming game with the Bears concerns injuries. While the Bears have no major injuries, have the cut on wide receiver Irving Fryar's hand, the Bears have McMahon with sore buttocks and defensive tackle Steve McMichael with a bad knee (which will require arthroscopic surgery after Sunday's game). A number of Bears have also had the flu during the last week, including Ditka and running back Matt Suhey.
Hawkins named as MVC's Player of Week once again

By Steve Merritt
Sports Editor

Hersy Hawkins, Bradley's 6-foot-3 guard out of Chicago Westinghouse, once again has been named the Missouri Valley Conference Player of the Week, this time for the week of Jan. 20.

In three games last week, Hawkins shot 62 percent from the field and 82 percent from the freethrow line en route to accumulating 70 total points. During the three-game span, Hawkins hit 26 of 42 field-goal attempts and 18 of 22 freethrow attempts while pulling down 24 rebounds and 11 steals.

No newcomer to the MVC weekly honor, this is the third consecutive week and the fourth time overall that Hawkins has been named Player of the Week.

Although Hawkins had an off night when the Salukis faced the Braves in Peoria, collecting just six points on three of 11 field-goal shots, Coach Rich Herrin praised the sophomore guard.

"His quickness is his biggest asset," Herrin said. "He's just all over the floor. He's a complete ballplayer and he's very exciting to watch."

"He could be one of the biggest reasons Bradley is ranked in the Top 20," Herrin added.

Bradley broke into the Top 20 polls during the week of Jan. 6, the No. 19 ranking in the UPI poll of that week marks the first time since 1965-66 that Bradley has been ranked. 5-0 in conference play and 18-1 overall, the Braves moved up to No. 17 in this week's AP poll.

made some tremendous strides in a very short time.

"We're not striving to be another University of Illinois," he continued. "I think that's a common mistake around here, and it just leads to frustration. It's just not very realistic."

Livengood said that instead of trying to copy and imitate the 1-1-1, people need to become more concerned with what's going to be best for SIU.

"Let's start thinking in terms of what can I do to make SIU athletes better," Livengood suggested.

"I've been on every campus in the PAC Ten conference, the Western-Athletic Conference, the Big-Sky and Big-Ten conferences, and I think we can compete with any of them." Livengood said. "It's a beautiful campus and an excellent college—all we have to do is get out and make ourselves known. This place will sell itself if we let people know we're here."

"I think we're sitting on the best-kept secret in the state," Livengood said.

Livengood is well-qualified to make an assessment of the SIU athletics departments. Livengood has served as the athletic director for smaller colleges as well as assistant athletics director at Washington State University.
Local Bears’ fans express Super Bowl hopes

By Steve Merritt
Sports Editor

Being heavily populated with students from Chicago, Carbondale is caught up in the midst of Bearmania. It is obvious who the majority of Carbondale-based football fans are rooting for in the upcoming Super Bowl against the New England Patriots.

Robbie Eddleman, junior in small business management: “I hope the Bears win, even though I’m not a die-hard fan like most Bear fans are. Anybody who hasn’t won in that many years deserves to win the Super Bowl. Besides, the Bears have a better video.”

John Bareski, graduate student in telecommunications: “The Bears are going to win because they deserve it and because Chicago is a great town that deserves a Super Bowl winner.”

Karen Bukaj, junior in elementary education: “The Bears are going to win because they have faced since Miami. They have more hype this year than anything else.”

Ted Moore, senior in administration of justice: “I’m as loyal of a Bear fan as you’ll ever meet. I’ve seen more Bears games at Wrigley Field where the Bears played from 1921 to 1960 than I’ve seen Cub games. But I’m not so sure the Bears will win, so enjoy the game. The Bears have been doing all year. I think it’ll come down to a big play and hopefully the Bears will be on the scoring end of that big play. I’m looking for turnovers to be a major factor, too. The Pats got off to a bad start, but they’re really played well the last few weeks. The Bears have more hype this year than anything else.”

Jim Lovin, head football coach at Carbondale Community High School: “I’d take the Bears but I sure wouldn’t give up any points. It’s going to be a real close game. Both offenses are a little suspect and I’m looking for turnovers that result in good field goals to help New England. New England has really proven themselves the last three games, which they played on the road to boot. I’m looking for the Bears to keep it close, maybe by just a field goal.”

It is possible to find a Patriots fan. Here’s one: Rich Heaton, senior in journalism: “I’m a die-hard New England fan. The Patriots are this year’s Bear. They are going to win this one. The Bears offense just isn’t good enough and I think the New England defense will be able to shut them down. The Patriots have faced some of the best teams in the league.”

Jeff Stephens, graduate assistant for the defensivesecondary of the SUU football team: “I always root for the underdogs, so I’m going with the Pats. It’s a match-up of two pretty balanced teams. The Bears are dominant and impressively but the Patriots may have the momentum advantage. I think field position will be a major factor, or look for a breakdown in the Bears’ kicking game.”

Looking back on the soon to be over season, about the only thing marring the fall for Bear fans was the early-season lack of local TV coverage and a loss to the Miami Dolphins. During the first few weeks of the season, the Bears were subject to CBS’s infamous “regional coverage,” which left Bear fans sitting in front of the tube with a chance of watching the stumbling St. Louis Cardinals on one of at least two local channels.

However, after much media hype and a surprising start, the Bears were then on the air every week, allowing the Bear fan to watch from the comfort of his own home instead of from the smoky confines of over-crowded, over-priced Carbondale bars.

All in all, everyone seems to agree that Super Bowl XX will be one of the best Super Bowls in a long time and that Walter Payton deserves a Super Bowl ring. Carbondale con succors seem to favor the Bears.

But everyone knows what kind of luck Chicago teams have in such important games. Let’s just hope the Bears are the team to break the long tradition of losing.

A real dogfight for GCAC

By Anita J. Stoker

On the surface, the race for the Gateway conference women’s basketball title could be settled when the Bears play the Pats at 8 p.m. Wednesday, but by game’s end, it may be the Pats who are leading scorer and rebounder, Wanda Ford. Ford has taken her game by game. The Salukis share reasonably good health, although junior starting forward Ann Kattrarsh limited action due to pain from tendonitis in her knee. Kattrarsh’s average suffered too, dropping from double figures in scoring to a season high of 9.5 points — mainly due to lack of playing time.

“I’m not worried about my shooting. My shot’s been off because of my knee,” Kattrarsh said. “The coaches have seen that, and they’re not putting me in unless it’s a necessary situation — they’re trying to save me.”

Saluki coaches worry that Marialice Jenkins, the Gateway’s No. 3 assister doesn’t shoot enough — but maybe the games just haven’t been close enough.

“I’d rather shoot when it’s tight — but I still wouldn’t be confident shooting a lot,” Jenkins said. “A lot of times I’ll be open, but I can see a couple of passes ahead we’re going to get higher percentage shot.”

The pass would most likely go to Saluki leaders Petra Jackson and Bridgett Bonds, although center Mary Bergbus recently popped out of a slump, hitting 10 points in each of the Salukis’ last two wins.

These last two games have done wonders for my confidence — I feel comfortable again,” Bergbus said.

Nightmares of the Sycamores' comeback haunt Coach Cindy Scott, who would like to repeat last year's season of beating every Gateway team the Salukis were supposed to beat — with the exceptions of Illinois State and Drake, of course.

"Indiana State plays an extremely physical defense, capable of taking a team out of their game plan — comparable to Wichita State — but they're young," Scott said. "If they get going, they can play with you and I think we'll have to play well to win."

This year's Sycamores return to Carbondale with a healthy squad which includes -three of last year's red-shirt freshmen. Of those, 5-11 forward Lori Castetter (97大学5.5ripps) has emerged to hold the Sycamores' second best stats for this season and 5-7 guard Angie Vandeventer (5大学0.1) has earned a probable starting job.

Although most of the young team may not personally recall last year, the Sycamores' standards — or lack thereof — is an ever present concern of their fine performers. 5-11 junior forward Amy Eille led the Sycamores in both games against the Salukis, notching 20 points at Davies and 21 points at the ISU Arena. 6-0 junior center Tammy Hammel pulled double figures rebounds in both contests, and Scott has to be prepared that position again this year.

A 1985 All-Gateway player, Hile (18.1, 7.5) continues working her way further into ISU records, but she sees her averages rank fourth in scoring and eighth in rebounding in the Gateway. Hile also ranks fifth in free throw and ninth in field goal percentages, and moved into a fifth place tie in blocked shots in the Gateway.

"Hile can hurt anybody — she's a fine player," Scott said.

The team's only senior, 5-10 guard Jodi Moan, has recovered from last year's injuries to also start the Sycamores.

ISU assistant coach Michael Lumpford said, "This is probably our oldest line-up. At one point this year, we started three freshmen."

Livengood sees great potential

By Steve Merritt
Sports Editor

After almost eight weeks into his new job, Jim Livengood thinks SIU women's basketball is in far better shape than most people think.

"My initial impression, after being here for about eight games plus the break period, is that the Saluki women's athletics departments are fairly healthy," Livengood said. "We're in far better shape than most people perceived.

"We have some strong programs and some that need help, but considered as a whole, things look pretty good."

Among the items Livengood said he plans to address immediately are recruitment processes and increased concentration on the academic well-being of student athletes.

"We plan to have some coaching seminars and some get-togethers, mainly just to get the coaches together and share ideas," Livengood said. "I've learned from past experience that sometimes your greatest resources are right on campus not being utilized. Since we have such excellent coaches, we can plan on fully using them and their ideas as resources.

Livengood said he plans on getting the coaches together in an attempt to prevent "everyone from going off in their own direction."

Another major concern of Livengood's centers around academics and the increased responsibility placed on member institutions of the NCAA.

"We've got to get involved with academics and not just provide basketball programs."

Livengood said: "We'll have to recruit our student-athletes a bit more carefully. Research narrows the chances of bringing a student to campus who cannot perform academically, but it's never a 100 percent thing."

As far as the students of SIU, Livengood said he plans on making himself and the entire coaching staff more visible and available. He said that some ideas were being "kicked around" that would involve the dorms and other places where students gather.

Livengood said he definitely plans on listening to and acting on feedback gleaned from such meetings with students, faculty and staff.

"We want to make our athletic events the place to be on campus," Livengood said. "We want to create excitement and assure the students that we're there. We simply cannot survive without student support, and thus we must be honest and willing to listen to the student body willing to provide.

"What we're doing now has nothing to do with the past," Livengood said. "I think we've..."
