Smith said graduate programs at SIUC always seem to receive the cutbacks, and therefore GPSC would like to be a part of the process during the search for a new chancellor.

City prepares for possible removal

Ron Hertter, Carbondale street maintenance manager, discusses snow routes Thursday afternoon with Louis Butcher, a sanitation engineer and snowplow driver, as snow began to fall in Southern Illinois. Butcher is a new snowplow driver for the city and was driving Carbondale's snow routes so he could be familiar with them in case of heavy snowfall. The city's six snowplows will be used to first clear the four major snow routes and then two minor ones. Once the six routes are cleared, municipal lots are plowed.

Young-adult drug use increasing

Officials ready new strategy

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON-The White House, alarmed that drug use among young people is on the rise again, is preparing a new drug strat-egy that will give greater emphasis to controlling drugs in schools. New strains of marijuana up to 10 times more potent than previous varieties are sweeping the country, according to Lee P. Brown, director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy. But despite the marijuana's power and its potential to cause grave health problems and seriously impair judgment, he said, it still does not offer enough jolt to satisfy many young people, who lace it with cocaine, LSD-or some other hard drug.

The marijuana itself is so powerful, he said, that "it causes problems in terms of judgment, learning, driving. We're seeing an increas-ingly large number of accidents that we can attribute to marijuana smoking as compared to alcohol."

Brown, a veteran law enforcement officer who has headed the New York and Houston police departments, is preparing President Clinton's 1995 National Drug Control Strategy for submission to Congress next month.

City and campus snow removal departments readied Thursday in anticipation of Old Man Winter's worst visit to the area this season. While 12 inches of snow covered Springfield, Mo., nine inches were expected in St. Louis, and 2-3 inches in Carbondale.

Wayne Wheeles, Carbondale street maintenance manager, said he was waiting to see what happened Thursday afternoon before he loaded the City's five snow removal trucks with chemicals to melt ice.

"What happens in the next cou-ple of hours will depend on if we load our trucks," he said. "If we had a more positive position, we'd be loading our trucks (now).

If snow does fall, Carbondale's six snow removal workers have a strategy for removing it and clearing shately for trooping to add cleaning the major roads first.

"We have designated snow routes and we try to hit those first."
Wheeles said. "Then we go on to the local streets."

The snow removal plan encompasses more than 75 miles of city streets, which are plowed and sprin kled with a combination of rock salt and cinders.

Vera Ellis, SIUC grounds foreman, said her department is always prepared for snow.

We are a member of a couple weather networks that give us very specific weather information of the Carbondale area," she said.

"We'll have a couple of trucks ready, loaded with salt to take care of slick spots on overpasses and intersections.

If more than two inches accumu-late, Ellis said all her snow removal personnel will be called out.

"If we get a substantial amount, we generally work from 2 a.s.a. until campus opens to make things safe for the campus community."

Although only 96 miles away from St. Louis, Carbondale residents of in experience different weather. This is common because of the relative geographical loca-tion, said Doc Horsley, American Meteorological Meteorologist and SIUC professor of geography.

MONDALE MISSION WILL CLAIM QUAKE VICTIM

LOS ANGELES—The parents of an American woman killed in the Kobe earthquake, fearful that their daughter's remains would be cremated rather than returned home, said Wednesday that they received assurances from U.S. Ambassador to Japan Walter F. Mondale that he will help recover the body. Voni Wong, 24, of Los Angeles died when the house she lived in collapsed. Since receiving word of her death Tuesday, her family, devoutly Baptist, has been trying to locate her body. "We didn't want her to be just a casualty," said her father, Henry Wong. "We feel she deserves a Christian burial."

NEW DELHI, India-Heavy snows brought avalanches and landslides restriction of the manufacture should be a highway in mountainous northern India, killing at least 133 people and stranding as many as 400 others in a tunnel, Indian officials and media said Thursday. A large-scale rescue operation was being mounted in Jammu and Kashmir, with the help of the Indian army and air force, to rescue people marooned on the main Jammu-Srinagar highway. Nearly 400 vehicles, including 37 buses, were trapped there because of three days of heavy snowfall,

RABIN NOW SAYS NO MORE NEW SETTLEMENTS —

JERUSALEM—Amid requiring controversy over Jewish settlements in the West Bank, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin on Thursday assured PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat that his government will not establish new settlements or expand the present ones beyond their current borders. Arafat, who has come under intense pressure from Palestinians angered by recent Israeli land seizures, seemed mollified by Rabin's pledges and backed away from a confrontation over the issue. Palestinian officials said Rabin gave Arafat a "package of substantial and specific assurances."

NUKES STRAIN EGYPT-ISRAEL DIPLOMATIC PEACE -

CAIRO—After years of diplomatic partnership between Egypt and Israel, relations between the two countries have soured noticeably in recent months over Israel's refusal to sign the nublear Non-Proliferation Treaty. Egypt and other Arab countries have said that if Israel does not sign the accord. they will refuse to extend their participation in the weapons-control regime when it comes up for renewal in April.

GOP WANTS TO CUT AID TO DISABLED YOUNG

WASHINGTON-In 1989 the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program for disabled children had only 290,000 beneficiaries and paid out $1.3 billion a year. For fiscal 1995, the pumber of beneficiaries will be 890,000 and expected outlays $5 billion, Secretary of Health and Human Services Donna E. Shalala said last week. Now House Ways and Means Committee Republicans are moving to block the explosive growth of the program that provides cash payments of up to $458 a month to low-income families with severely disabled children.

NAACP WANTS TO STRIP GIBSON OF CONTROL -

BALTIMORE—Seven top officials of the NAACP asked a federal court in Baltimore Wednesday to strip board Chairman William F. Gibson of his control over the organization's finances and to order an independent audit of the fiscally crippled civil rights group. The seven officials also asked the judge to dismiss Gibson if he hinders an accounting of his alleged mismanagement of NAACP funds. NAACP officials repeated many of the contentions made by newspaper columnist Carl Rowan, charging that Gibson squandered hundreds of thousands of dollars.

SECRETARY SAYS HUD COULD SAVE $64 BILLION -

WASHINGTON—Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros said Thursday the Clinton administration's plan to restructure the Department of Housing and Urban Development could save $64 billion by the turn of the century. Republican detractors have criticized the proposal as cosmetic, focusing on earlier Cisneros statements that it would save $800 million, principally by reducing the 11,900-member HUD staff to "something less" than 7,500. HUD officials have maintained, however, the plan would realize much larger savings through a three-pronged strategy rolling 60 programs into three gigantic block grants to communities, effectively ending subsidized housing and converting the Federal Housing Administration to a government-owned insurance corporation.

Matters of state

Legislative leaders discuss goals

By Shawnna Donovan Daily Egyptian Reporter

As Gov. Jim Edgar and the Republican majority lay out their agenda, local legislators hope SIUC and Southern Illinois are not overlooked.

Edgar called for welfare reform. downsizing state government, tort (court) reform and implementing property tax caps around the state when he addressed the 89th General Assembly last week.

"Two months ago, the voters of this state and this nation sent a clear and strong message that they want less government, not more," Edgar said, "They want less rhetoric and more results.

Although Edgar called for pushing legislation along on "the fast track," state Rep. Larry Woolard, D-Carterville, said Edgar needs to focus on the state's financial problems.

"The Governor can't ignore the fact that our state's finances are in shambles," Woolard said, "I'm hopeful that he'll address this situation when he presents his budget in March

Woolard expresses doubts

Woolard said he is worried that Southern Illinois might not get fair treatment because of the new Republican majority.
"My commitment is to both protect and, wherever, expand economic opportunities in our region.

he said, "I'm concerned the new suburban Republican majority in the House and Senate will attempt to divert scarce state resources from our region. Unity among downstate Republicans and Democrats is more crucial now than it ever was Woolard said protecting downstate school funding and expanding tourism business opportunities in Southern Illinois are the issues that should tackled.

Regional matters first

Mike Bost, R-Murphysboro said he will take regional concerns straight to the Republican leaders

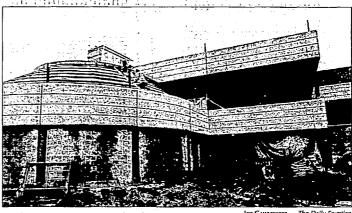

Bost suid one of his concerns was the idea of eliminating two major boards of the state university system and combining Sangamon State with the University of Illinois.

"I want to go in and discuss doing away with the two governing boards and combining Sangamon State with the University of Illinois," Bost said, "I think if anything. SSU should go under SIU because we both have political science programs.

"I have talked it over with SIU officials and will continue to do so. and then I would like to talk with Edgar about it," he said, "SSU could easily be placed with SIU."

Edgar's proposal would eliminate the Board of Regents and Board of Governors that together oversee eight public universities. The Tenants, management disagree over reason of leaky roofs.

By Rob Neff Daily Egyptian Reporter

Some residents who were living in Lewis Park Apartments which were damaged by water leaks over Christmas Break questioned the condition of their building during an

Property manager Chris Rank said the melting and freezing of ice expand and contract, resulting in cracks in the material

However, Jeff Stein, a junior in zoology from Rochelle, said his building should have been able to withstand the ice storm that hit Carbondale on Jan. 6.

These roofs should be able to handle that," he said, "Why did they build them this way? And if they built them wrong, why didn't they spend the money to fix them?"

Stein and his roommates, Jeff McCoy, a junior in management from Savoy, and Scott Croy, a junior in finance from Park Forest, said previous leaks in the building's

PBS worth saving from political ax

LIKE MANY OTHER INSTITUTIONS IN THE nation. Public Broadcasting Services may be on the verge of demise. Government funding of this service is in danger of being cut as a result of a political cry to trim excess expenditures. These broadcasting services are healthy for society, however, and should be duly considered on an individual basis before they are given the ax.

Proponents of cutting PBS funding argue that government aid to the broadcasting service is an unfair subsidy that other types of programming do not receive. The fact is that PBS provides a quality type of programming that large independent networks do not.

CHILDREN WHO WATCH "SESAME STREET" learn to live peacefully with people who are different from themselves, help others, appreciate the value of education and take an interest in the world around them. There are no bad guys—there are a few practical jokers, maybe, and a grouch or two, but no one who's trying to take over the free world with mutant superheroes or secret ninja gangs. Parents never have to worry about finding Big Bird in bed with Maria or Cookie Monster gunning Grover down in the street over a designer macaroon. Isn't this positive, value-inspiring material exactly what Newt and friends have been calling for all along?

Public broadcasting also provides cultural enrichment for people who do not have access to the specialized channels on cable television. WSIU viewers can find a wide range of programs, including concerts, news and drama, uninterrupted by commercials. WSIU also provides SIUC with a hands-on broadcasting program to prepare radio and television majors with on-the-job experience before they graduate.

THE JUSTIFICATION HAS ALSO BEEN GIVEN by leading Republicans and Democrats alike that cutting this sort of funding will help Washington deal with a looming deficit. However, according to a spokesman for U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, the $300 million annual public-television budget would pay for only 0.17 percent of the $176 billion deficit — a very small drop in a very large bucket.

Obviously, something must be done about the runaway deficit, and if the new Republicans in Congress plan to follow through with their promised middle-class tax cut, some fattimming will be necessary. But before PBS is given the ax, our representatives need to think about what they actually get for that $300 million a year.

AS PARENTS, SPECIAL-INTEREST GROUPS AND conservatives lament the demise of violence-free programming without explicit sexual content, it seems only legical that the Republicans, who have encouraged Americans to return to the practice of instilling moral values in their children, would be delighted to support stations that provide the kind of shows that reinforce those values.

AN AX IS A HARMFUL THING TO BE SWINGING when the tree to be cut is one of knowledge and cultural education. Perhaps the Republicans should trim a few of their political perks before they begin trimming useful social services.

Balkans' violent war: New stage set

The Washington Post

It is about as clear as these things get that there is now a real danger of another major war's erupting in the Balkans soon,

On one side is the Serb minority in the Krajina region of Croatia and perhaps also Serbia proper, on the other side Croatia. Serbs and Croats fought earlier when Yugoslavia broke up. The Krajina Serbs, unwilling to

The Krajina Serbs, unwilling to become a minority in the successor state of Croatia, seized nearly a third of it and expelled large numbers of Croats. U.N. peacekeepers intervened but left many Croats convinced that the blue helmets, far from prying out the rebel Serbs; were helping them consolidate their grip.

Hence Croatia's move now to let

Hence Croatia's move now to let the U.N. peacekeeping mandate in Croatia expire on March 31. The stage for new violence is set.

Čroatia, which has its own record of terrible nationalistic excesses in the '90s, enjoys a higher regard in the West than Serbia does. Still, it would be terrible if war came now between Serbia and Croatia, especially while the conflict between their cousins and proxies in Bosnia remains raw.

A major focus of Bosnia-related diplomacy has been to avert a wider war. Croatia is cutting off the United Nations precisely to fence out further fruitless international mediation. Both Serbs and Croats seem ready—they have had three years—for another go.

Such a dire possibility puts fit

Such a dire possibility puts deburden on their neighbors and other nations, and on the international institutions to try to head off conflict. But where there may be broad international support for a formula of restored Croatian sovereignty with generous Serb minority rights, there is a notable absence of interest in bringing force to bear to give effect to any international decisions along this line. Certainly the last thing anyone—especially the United Nations—needs is another toothless U.N. resolution,

To the political dilemma must be added the dilemma of relief. If war resumes, the combatants will invite others to defray the costs of refugee flows and of relief for civilians hurt and displaced.

There is an obvious humanitarian purpose to be served here, and the company of nations must serve it. But the very expectation of international relief can contribute to a decision to launch military operations. This is on top of the other copious abuses of well-intended international intervention that became evident in Bosnia.

To care for the victims of bullying but to hold the bully accountable—this must be the approach taken by the United States and the other involved countries if the Croats and Serbs fail to talk out their competing claims and go to war again.

North Korea's reactors become hot issue

Los Angeles Times

A Congress that hasn't hidden its doubts about what the Clinton administration hopes will be a durable nuclear non-proliferation deal with North Korea could soon have its skepticism deepened.

Under last year's agreement, North Korea would get two large light-water power reactors, which produce only small amounts of plutonium, and Pyongyang would give up its existing nuclear program, which is capable of creating much weapons-grade plutonium.

The reactors cost $4 billion, and most of the financing is to come from South Korea and Japan, the countries most directly threatened if Pyongyang gets nuclear arms.

South Korea, for good reasons, wants to provide the reactors, first because it is footing much of the bill but even more to the point because most South Koreans now believe that reunification of their divided peninsula is an inevitability and that it makes sense to have a standardized power system

But North Korea is balking, saying it prefers to buy Russian reactors because it's already familiar with the technology.

Left unstated is the secretive North Korean regime's discomfort over the prospect of having South Korean technicians working in the country for the next decade.

South Korea's experiences with the North over the last half-century have not left a basis for trust, and misgivings about the nuclear deal have been open and strong.

So strong that if North Korea refuses to take South Korean reactors, in all likelihood Seoul will simply withdraw from the project.

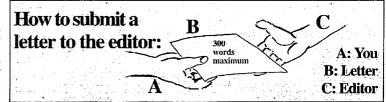

How would the financing gap then be filled? Certainly there's no prospect of U.S. funding.

There is, as we've said before, a lot about the details and oversight procedures in the nuclear deal that raises questions.

At a minimum, close congressional monitoring of how it is carried out is vital. It's notable, though, that just this week high intelligence officials told Congress that positive signs of change are emerging in North Korea, boosting hopes for stability in the area.

Most welcome as a sign of change would be for Pyongyang to agree to get its reactors from South Korea, rather than risk scuttling a deal that's so clearly in its interests.

Billy Goat and Grim Skunk bring traveling zoo to city

By James J. Fares DE Entertainment Editor

The original idea to start a band came while three musicians from Denton, Texas were planting a tree out in the middle of nowhere. They had been walking through a forest preserve just to check things out. What a great notion, because the idea worked.

Billy Goat, a hard-core funk band compiled of music students from the University of North Texas (UNT), who moved on to live in Kansas City, Mo. will be performing inday night at the Hangar 9.

Opening for Billy Goat will be the Montreal-based band Grim

The Goat has been on the road for more than 730 days performing 250 shows a year nationwide

This is the second time in two months the Miles Davis/Beastie Boys-influenced band will rock the house on the Carbondale scene.

SIUC students will have a chance to witness the energy as both bands will play Sunday at the Hangar 9, 511 S. Illinois Ave. The show starts at about 9:45 p.m. and cover is $4.

After a few changes with previ-ously solid band members and many others who have been in and out of the group, vocal singer and keyboardist Zac de la GOAT said he feels this is possibly a rebirth of the band and is possibly, the Goat with the most magic.

The naked truth

"We have been able to write exciting songs together," de la GOAT said. "We have been able to make them new with ourselves, as in naked.

Billy Goat released their first CD, "Bush Roaming Mammals," in 1992 with Third Rail Hollywood Records, one of their first record

In early 1994, they made available "Billy Goat Live at the Swingers Ball" on Flying Fetus

The band is now recording a new record and is in search of a major record deal.

We feel a lot of the stuff we did two and three years ago seems to be selling now," de la GOAT said.

"We want to get a record label and be seen as a band that is highly cre-ative and can still rock the house."

Most record labels seem to want Billy Goat to stick with rock and cheesy material that works, but the band really wants to be the alternative to alternative bands.

"I personally just want the band to survive doing what we are doing, doing it our way," de la GOAT said. "We want to be seen as a legit act - the fact that we are musicians capable of being in a rock

Ska-metal refuses the hype

Touring with Billy Goat for the next three weeks is Grim Skunk, a six-member ska-metal band that has been playing together for six years. In 1991 Grim Skunk released its first cassette demo "Autumn Flowers" and had a chance to play Belgium, France, Germany, Austria and other European countries. In 1992 the band released its first CD, a six-song EP called "Exotic Blend," and sold more than 7,000 copies.

Looking forward to the future,
Grim Skunk released its new selftitled album on San Diego's Cargo Headhunter Records in early November 1994.

Peter Edwards, lead guitarist for the band, said he isn't much for all of the hype and publicity they have

"It all has to do with touring instead of going with the commer-cial advertising." Edwards said.
"We like to travel, meeting people on a grassroots type of approach. We want to seek out the cultural experience."

Travel a way of life

Traveling is definitely part of the band's style and image touring most of the United States and

"We figure every area we play at is a chance to come back and play again," Edwards said. "We want to support curselves doing what we want to do without becoming cor-porate mongers."

The hand will then travel on to San Francisco, down to San Diego, and finish back up in the Midwest in late February.

Concentrating on Midwest

"We try to concentrate on playing the Midwest where we are close to our home," de la GOAT said. "We have toured in Canada and on the East Coast for two weeks at a time living out of a van and sleeping on people's floors."

With some of the new members getting more involved with the group, the band feels things are running very smooth.

"Unlike before when things weren't quite working, we are now able to have the energy to put it down on tape before we get to per-form it live," de la GOAT said.

"It gives us a chance to experiment with our sound in the studio, which is thick and fat."

Ideas to prepare for 'the big day' presented at Bridal Extravaganza

By Kellie Huttes Daily Egyptian Reporter

If you look on the hands of SIUC women you might see something shining as some are donning a new accessory — an engagement ring.

Along with the jewelry, plans for the big day are on the minds of many and SIUC's Third Annual Bridal Extravaganza intends to help with the occasion.

Dawn Grubaugh, a student worker in the scheduling department at the Student Center, said the event, this Sunday afternoon in the Student Center ballrooms, will give engaged couples information about weddings and receptions.

She said representatives from more than 30 hotels, travel agencies, department stores, floral shops, catering services, jewelers, photographers and bridal boutiques will be on hand to answer questions, make appointments and guide the perspective bride and groom in the right direction. Also included in the extravaganza is a fashion show from 3-4 p.m. The cost of the entire event is $3.

Joanne Lukowski, a senior in economics from Alton, has always wanted a church wedding and has even known who her maid of honor would be before she met her fiance, Scott Lammert. She will be looking for her wedding dress, bridesmaids dresses and decoration ideas at the extravaganza.

Lukowski got engaged in September and has been planning her June wedding with her mother. Because Lammert lives in Las Vegas, her father lives in Florida and her bridesmaids are scattered throughout the Midwest, she has kept a file folder full of wedding ideas.

Lezlie McEvers, SIUC's Delta Zeta house mom, also is planning a This is an excellent opportunity for those who are about to change their lives to get together with those who can help.

June wedding with the help of her mother.

Although McEvers' wedding party has its snowball outfits, they all are a champagne color accented with blush, she said she will be looking for new decorating ideas and different ways to do her hair.

David Coracy, owner of B & A Travel and chairperson for the event, said he and other organizers from local businesses have been planning the show since August.

"This will be the biggest show," he said. "This is an excellent opportunity for those who are about to change the course of their lives to get together with those who can help."

Coracy said he is expecting about 500 people to attend the show.

Angel Chapman, manager of Zwick's Bridal, Rt. 13 in Carterville, said models for her shop will be displaying eight wedding dresses, bridesmaids dresses, mother-of-the bride dresses and tuxedos.

Chapman said this year's wedding dress designs are simple with less beads and lace than in past years.

"Women are going back to more romantic styles with better fabrics and straighter lines." she said. "The dresses have a lot to do with the fact that people are getting older when they are getting married and are a little less flashy than the younger brides."

Since many couples plan spring and summer weddings, bridesmaids dresses will be shown in soft pastels and earth tones, Chapman said. Ivory and white also are colors for both the bride and her bridesmaids' dresses

For men, tuxedos with tails, plaid jackets and vests add a new dimension to the wedding party, she said. Cosmetologists, beauticians and

U.S.-Myanmar relations have been at an impasse since 1988 when the State Law and Order Restoration Committee assumed power amid international criticism that it had snuffed out the country's democracy movement and engaged in massive human rights violations. State Department officials have pressed the regime to restore democracy, but lately the United States, concerned about the heroin traffic, has softened its stance toward the Southeast Asia country.

Calling on Mexico to do a better job of curbing the drug traffic. Brown said part of any discussion with that country about the $40 billion package the United States is putting together to ease Mexico's financial crisis "should be predicated upon what they're doing on the narcotics issue.

Mexico is the source of about 70 percent of the cocaine that comes into the United States, he said. And while Mexico has worked to curb the smuggling, he added, "there's a lot more that needs to be done in Mexico than is being done right received his bachelor's degree in history and pre-law from St. Louis University improper repairs are difficult to detect until they actually start leak-ing, and her office has been repairing them as they occur.

According to Rank, the leaks improperly repaired with tar have nothing to do with the damage that occurred during the storm.

However, McCoy said maintenance men were aware of another leak that surfaced shortly before the major damage occurred but did not address the problem.

He said that two days before the storm hit, he told maintenance workers about water leaks in the seams located near outdoor light fixtures mounted in the building overhang.

It wasn't just our doorway. It was the whole building. At every seam you could see water dripping.

> Jeff McCoy Lewis Park resident

"It wasn't just our doorway, McCoy said. "It was the whole building. At every seam you could see water dripping."

He said workers he talked to told him there was no reason to worry about the leaks.

Rank said no one notified the management office about any leaks in the overhangs

She also said that although other roofs are not leaking yet, she will replace the roofs on three of the complex's 46 buildings this year and will probably continue to replace roofs at the rate of three per year until they are all

"Some of these roofs are bad," she said. "They're fifteen years

According to Rank, the bad condition of some of the roofs is due to their age and the mainte-nance practices of the previous owners. She stressed, however, that there is no reason to expect any other roofs in the complex

"I know three of the roofs this year will probably be replaced just because of the age. They're not leaking; there's no major damage with them. It's just the age, and I want to do preventative mainte-nance with them."

change could create seven new independent boards.

Bost was appointed to the House Higher Education committee by Speaker Lee Daniels, R-Elmhurst.

Bost said he agrees with Edgar on downsizing state government and continuing to make government more efficient.

Early into his second term. Edgar announced the Departments of Energy and Natural Resources, Mines and Minerals and Conservation will merge. The two state agencies will become the Department of Natural Resources.

State Sen. Jim Rea, D-Christopher, said he agreed with Edgar on the consolidation move.

"Voters sent us a clear message last fall that they want less govern-ment, but I believe we can go further," Rea said.

is not going to have the kind of pace we are used to having, Clark said.

"I've been at SIUC since 1981, and I've got a lot of equipment in ment in most library in losing that space," he said. "The whole thing is a bit of a mess." Laurie Hachenbach, a molecular biologist who also will be making the move, disagreed with Clark.

"I think everyone is a little concerned about space, but the personal lab space we may be losing is more than made up for in the shared lab space we are getting," she said. "Some people will have more than what they started with."

Hachenbach said she is excited about the move for two reasons.

"First, every scientist has different needs in terms of the kind of labs they need," she said

"We (the researchers mov-ing to the new building) were able to help in the design of the labs we are moving into, which is great because we got to determine our own needs and incorporate them into the building."

Hachenbach also said the ability to interact with scientists from other departments is a great

Molecular geneticist Neil Billington also said the move will improve communication between departments

Chairman of the Micro-biology Department John Martinko said increased cooperation among different departments in the College of Science is one of the most important aspects of the new building. "By putting all the scientists in one working environment, it allows for a greater potential interdisciplinary research," Martinko said.

Even with the thrill of the new building, labs and equipment, Hachenbach said the excitement might change once everyone has finally moved.

"Everything is pie-in-the-sky right now," she said. "It might be a good idea to see how we feel after we're all moved in to the new building.

"That's when reality will set in," she said.

Billington also expressed con-cern about the move's impact on his research.

"There's going to be some disruption, and we're a little in the dark about the move," Billington said. Hachenbach said she is confident her lab will not be down for more than a week or two, and any research she is conducting will not be affected due to the current lab space avail-

Art supporters launch hotline

Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES-Los Angeles County arts director Laura Zucker got her call-to-arms last week via fax machine.

She then called Kristen Madsen, president of the California Assembly of Local Arts Agencies, to tell her about it — only to find that Mad-sen already had the same fax.

Another phone call from Zucker got the news to Leni Boorstin, pub-lic affairs director for the Los Angeles Philharmonic, who added the information to a newsletter she was about to send to Philharmonic board members, volunteers, staff members and musicians. The Tundra Bowl

In pairing the two worst teams in the NFL, this could be an idea whose time has come

By Matthew Lubanko

With two California teams playing in Miami, the Super Bowl needs a real warm-up act. Call it The Tundra Bowl.

Here are the rules:

Take the NFL's two worst teams and force them to play the Saturday night before Super Bowl Sunday in Green Bay, Wis. The National Weather Service says the average low temperature in Green Bay in January is 9 degrees—an appropri-ate stage setting for the league's coldest teams.

Let's pile on a more hardships for good measure.

Neither team may fly to Green
Bay. In this, the NFL's 75th anniversary year, both must travel the way teams once did: by train, bus or car pool.

The Tundra Bowl must also forbid modern-day comforts today's players see as a birthright. No fiber-filled parkas, no space-age gloves for receivers and linemen and absolutely no portable heaters on the Coaches must also pay a price for leading a team to the basement. Take them to mid-field at the game's conclusion and douse them with coolers filled with Gatorade. Let them shiver a bit. Let them think abo it the many fans who shivered as they watched their poorly coached teams play sloppy, uninspired football.

Fans will love the Tundra Bowl for several reasons. No team wants to play in Green Bay at night in late January. So no team will, toward the end of the regular season, lie down on the job and hope to land the best pick in the college draft. Nor will teams play dead to secure the dismissal of an unpopular head coach. They will play their hardest to the last second at the season's end- anything to avoid that ... no fiber-filled parkas, no spaceage gloves for receivers and linemen... no portable heaters. . .

January game in Green Bay.

And, after seeing the two worst teams playing under the worst conditions 24 hours before the Super Bowl, fans will better appreciate the players on the two best teams.

In the two weeks leading up to the Jan. 29 Super Bowl game, fans are getting the usual earful of Horatio Alger stories. In the 1970s, we heard about Steelers running halfback Rocky Bleier. On his tour of duty in Vietnam, Bleier took a bullet to his left thigh and grenade shrapnel to his right foot. Doctors wondered if he'd ever walk again. let alone play football. But there 'ol Rocky, playing alongside Franco Harris, winning four Super Bowls.

America never tires of its rags-to riches tales. But America loves dirt as well. So it's only fair we also learn more about the players who will soon be drummed out of the league: the grossly overweight lineman who does not have the sense to stop eating four Big Macs before bedtime; the out-to-lunch running back who's never bothered to memorize his playbook and the dozens of players who never show up to practice on time.

But most of all, The Tundra Bowl will bring winter football back to its spiritual home: Green Bay.

Many fans remember The Ice Bowl, the December 1967 game featuring the Packers and Dallas Cowboys at Green Bay. More memorable than the final score (21-17), or the time of the winning touchdown (13 seconds), or the player who scored the winning touchdown (Bart Starr), was the game-time temperature; minus 13.

Now that the Detroit Lions and Minnesota Vikings play indoors, most fans have forgotten or have never seen a football game where survival itself is a victory.

The Super Bowl has eliminated this element of survival. They play indoors or in warm-weather cities The players seem almost relaxed, no longer so tough or insane. They do what many sensible people do and that's head south for the win-

Only The Tundra Bowl can reverse this ungallant flight to safe-ty on the gridiron. Football was never meant to be safe.

Holy Bull rested, prepared for Olympic at Gulfstream

Los Angeles Times

The United States' most popular Bull, now that Michael Jordan is playing baseball, will start his season Sunday afternoon at Gulfstream Park in Hallandale, Fla

Certain to be named 1994 horse of the year late next week and already chosen the top 3-year-old, Holy Bull will run his first race as a 1-year-old in the $100,000 Olympic Handicap at seven furlongs.

Twenty days later, the gray son of Great Above is scheduled to run in the Donn Handicap, then, if all goes well, will make his first trip west for the $1 million Santa Anita Handicap on March 11.

Given a vacation by owner-train-er Jimmy Croll for the rest of last year after a five-length victory against a top-notch field in Belmont ark's Woodward Stakes on Sept. 17, Holy Bull finished major preparations for his return Monday morn-

With regular exercise rider
Bobby Perna aboard, Holy Bull, who finished 1994 with five consecutive victories after his Kentucky Derby chances were eliminated at the start, went five fur-longs in 59 2/5 seconds.

"He's about 85-90 percent right now and that's exactly where I want him," Croll said, "He's not 100 percent. It's a long year and you don't want a horse to be ready for his best race first time out.

"But, he will run well and the race will do him good."

"As a center, I have to concentrate on grabbing rebounds and staying on the inside," Stewart said. "When I play forward, I focus on my defensive skills and ball handline."

The senior from LaPorte, Ind., learned these skills from his father and his sister, who is currently playing basketball at Purdue University.

Stewart modestly said he considers his sister to be the better athlete in the family and it helps him to stay focused on his game when they practice together.

they practice together.
"I learned how to play from my family," Stewart stated. "My dad told me I had to play hard when I play, because I'm not the kind of guy who can jump over backboards."

"Stew" as the Saluki fans corrmonly call him, played in the offseason with Athletes in Action, a Christian based team. During his season with AIA, he was the leading scorer (23.5) and rebounder (10.0), which undoubtedly helped his statistics this year.

The Saluki men are currently tied with Bradley for second place in the MVC. More than anything, Stewart would like to capture the MVC title and compete in the NCAA Tournament. He has been a part of Saluki squads that have done both, but not in the same season.

SIUC men's basketball coach Rich Herrin has nothing but good things to say about Stewart's performance this season

"He is a tremendous weapon and a creates a problem for other teams. His great desire to play has put him where he is today," Herrin said. "Without a doubt, he has more desire to play than anyone I have coached at SIU."

would have had him, we could have won last weekend's meet." Cornell did not want to harp on the sophomore's mistake but rather look forward to the difference he could make this weekend.

"Now that we have Marneros back we have a good chance," he said.

Marneros will compete in the 3,000-meter race this weekend. The athletes probably will not

The athletes probably will not need much motivation from their coaches this week since they are already driven by the prospect of beating the Illini.

"It's a big rivalry," Cornell said.
"They're the powerhouse of the state. What if our football or basketball team went up there and beat them? It would be a big deal. It's the same thing for us."

Illinois has been solid this year, qualifying four athletes for nationals and put up 171 points to second-place lowar's 78 for an easy win in their invitational last weekend.

The women's track team will head south this weekend for Sunday's Arkansas St. Invitational.

Saluki junior high-jumper Stephanie Smith said her team showed left-over excitement from last weekend's first place finish in the Saluki Booster Invite at Monday and Tuesday's practice, but has beared down the last couple practices to focus on Sunday. Smith said that since the Salukis

Smith said that since the Salukis are not sure of the level of competition they will see, the team is remaining focused.

"We usually don't know what to expect," Smith said. "I always expect the other teams to be good."

Salukis pick up pieces after loss to Tulsa

By Grant Deady DE Sports Editor

Regrouping after a loss is a chal-lenge the Saluki men's basketball team has not had to deal with in over a month, but that will all change Saturday night when Indiana State visits Carbondale

The Sycamores catch SIUC on the heels of a 67-65 defeat at Tulsa Monday, which snapped an eight game Saluki winning streak that dated back to Dec. 15.

It took some last second heroics from Tulsa center Rafael Maldonado to bring SIUC down to earth and Saluki skipper Rich Herrin said his troops will have to fine-tune parts of their game to get back on track.

"We've got to get better at play-ing without the ball and more consistent at the line," he said, "If we move better without the ball, we'll cut down on our turnover.

The main reason for SIUC's success this season is the depth Herrin has to work with on his bench. It is not uncommon for SIUC to throw nine or ten different players at opponents, which was not a luxury for Saluki teams of the past.

"It's (player rotation) a different look than before and it takes a lot of patience." Herrin said of his var-ious lineups, "We give guys a chance to play and we can go as deep as nine and still give people problems.

Another reason Herrin believes his team has an edge this year is the increased fan support both at home and on the road.

The most vocal group of Saluki diehards is embedded in section L of the Arena, which has been coined the Saluki "Dawg Pound." Herrin has typically gone into the Stewart wrapped up the honor after his third 15-point performance of the year Monday at Tulsa, despite the Dawgs falling, 67-65. Last Saturday, Stewart pulled down 10 rebounds against outh vest Missouri State in an SIUC victory.

These numbers provide

"Stew" with a new career high in points and rebounding. although he tries not to keep track of his stats.

"To keep on winning and to not make mistakes is more important to me than the stats at the end of the game," Stewart said. "It's more important than being the guy everyone wants to talk to at the end of the game."

Being versatile is also Stewart's game. He can come

"It's (fans) a key to the ball-ame," Herrin said, "I love the Dawg Pound. Heck, I love both ends. They help us a lot. The fans have been great this year.'

Indiana State comes to town for the first time under the guidance of new head coach Sherman Dillard, who has installed a pride back into the program.

Dillard was an assistant coach at Georgia Tech before taking over the ISU job and said fans can look forward to a run-and-gun game while he's in charge.

"I have plans of having an uptempo style where kids can be able to play and get up and down the court," he said.

Freshman guard Troy Hudson takes the ball to the rack against junior forward Scott Burzynski during practice. The Salukis are gearing up for Saturday night's contest against Indiana State.

The Sycamores have scored 80 or more points in four games this sea-son, including a 106-79 drubbing of Eckerd in its opener.

Herrin said he has braced his players for a shootout Saturday and for fans not to be deceived by ISU's losing record.

"I'm concerned about them," he said. "They've (ISU coaches) got

SIUC track looks to settle score in rivalry with Illini

By David Vingren Daily Egyptian Reporter

The return of SIUC distance runner Stelios Marneros could be the key weapon for a Saluki team that is seeking revenge over the Fighting Illini Saturday.

In last year's edition of the annual dual rivalry. Illinois won the final event, the 4x400 relay, to pull off a 75-69 win at the Recreation Center.

"Last year it came down to the final event," men's head coach Bill Cornell said. "If we would have won the mile relay, we would have won the meet

This year's meet may be no different. Cornell said he expects this Saturday's match-up in Champaign to be just as close as last year, which is why the return of Marneros is crucial.

Marneros was absent from last weekend's Saluki Booster Invite, in which SIUC placed third, due to an error he made when scheduling a flight back to the United States from his homeland of Cyprus.

Marneros scheduled a flight last summer that did not enable him to return to campus from the holiday break until late Saturday

Both Chicago and St. Louis have high hopes, new faces and new places that have waited a long time to debut.

The Blackhawks got a break when Commissioner Gary Bettman decided not to fine star defenseman Chris Chelios for comments suggesting somebody might do physical harm to Bettman when the lockout began.

You really can't blame Chelios. it was one those boneheaded things people say when a situation arises like the lockout and it was good that Bettman showed some common

The Blackhawks also kept up their bruiser image by signing NHL thug Bob Probert to help Chelios clean up around the net.

Again the Hawks goaltending should be solid with Eddie Belfour between the pipes.

The biggest questions surround-ing the Blackhawks are: will Roenick get the help scoring he has not received in years past, and will Chicago have enough depth to last through the shortened season?

The St. Louis Blues will finally get to play in the brand new Kiel Center and have the talent to win

Lord Stanley's Cup.

The Blues have the best coach in hockey. Mike Keenan, the best goalie, Curtis Joseph, one of the best scorers, Brett Hull, and the league's most complete player in Brendan Shanahan.

Even though the Blues have traditionally been one of the weaker teams in the league, this year they added defensive strength in the form of hard-shooting Al MacInnis and big Bill Holder (6-3, 218).
