Jury finds Ehrlichman guilty

WASHINGTON (AP)-Former White WASHINGTON (AP)—Former white House aide John D. Ehrlichman was convicted of conspiracy and perjury Priday in connection with the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

The jury in the trial of Ehrlichman and three employes of the White House Plumbers unit deliberated for less than six hours before returning the verdict.

Ehrlichman was acquitted of the final count of the five-count indictment charging that he lied to a grand jury about who had custody of the files of the plumbers unit.

Also convicted were G Gordon Liddy, Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio R.

Ehrlichman faces a possible maximum sentence of up to 25 years. The other three face a maximum of 10 years on the conspiracy count. Sentencing was set for July 31, and the defendants will remain free in the

The break-in at the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding in Beverly Hills, Calif., was inspired by a desire to obtain derogatory information about Ellsberg, who has admitted he leaked the Pen-

'Open classroom' arrives in city smallest increase in eight months. The June increase, reported Friday by the Labor Department, is equivalent to an annual inflation rate of 6 per cent.

Although far below the 1.3 per cent rise in May when prices climbed at a 15.6 per cent annual pace, last month's increase was still high by historical standards.

The figures gave further evidence that inflation has shifled from the

New graduate research policy approved

By Bill Layne Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A research program recommendation that will give a positive incentive for graduate level research has been approved by STU Interim President Hiram Lesar. Philip Davis, chairman of the Graduate Council, announced approval of the new policy at the council's monthly meeting Friday morning.

council's monthly meeting riruay morning.

Davis said the new policy will allow at least 20 per cent of research overhead money to be returned to the department where the research originated.

"This additional money to the departments will facilitate further research," Davis said.

He explained that the revenues obtained through the policy could be used to pay travel expenses for support outside the University. He added that the money could also be used to buy equipment for research programs and to explore new research ideas.

Davis commended the ad-

Davis commended the administration for approving the recommendation, which originated with the Graduate Council, and said the new policy will be implemented as soon as the Office of Academic Affairs, the University Accounting Department and the Graduate Council work out the deails of the Council work out the details of the

The law school was all ready to go. Judge Andrew D. Duff, prominent Southern Illinois barrister had been elected Professor of the new Normal and was ready to teach such students as might come his way. ready to teach such students as might come may, A special room had been set aside as a "law department" in the Normal building, and the date had been set: December 1, 1875 was to be the inauguration of the new law department in the new Normal.

All-in-all, at least by today's standards, it was a curious arrangement. The law department was to have no connection with the school other than the fact that it was to be housed there and that Judge Duff was, technically, a member of the faculty. Duff's salary however, was not to come from the operating budget of the school. It was, instead, to be contingent upon the fees paid by his students.

Came December 1, 1875, and the most important part of the law school program failed to materialize: No students appeared. Thus the school failed in its first step to expand into it's somewhat pretentions title of 'university."

The advent of S.I.N.U. brought a small boom to Carbondale. Several services which heretofore were Carbondale. Several services which heretofore were of minor significance bacame important. Rooms had to be made available to the influx of students. Since young ladies in particular had to be properly chaperoned, hotel accomodations were out of the question. Therefore, the answer lay with the townspeople themselves. Families began to develop facilities (such as an extra bedroom) where one or two students could be accomodated. Meals were generally taken with the family. In numerous instances the students worked outs portion of their "room generally taken with the rainly. In interious instances, the students worked out-a portion of their "room and board" by helping with the housecleaning, cooking, yardwork and furnace tending. This remained an important part of Carbondale's economy until during the late 1950's when the university are hated on a capititized desmitory, building sity embarked on an ambitious dormitory building program which, for a while, cut deeply into the "room & board" trade.

Watergate syndrome

It's effects include yawning, watery eyes and eventual sleep. It's accompanied by a shake of the head, a flick of the switch and a few choice four-letter words. It's known as the Watergate Syndrome and it strikes any American who knows what a television, radio or newspaper is. If everybody's not tired of it by now try subjecting them to another few years of tapes, subpoenas, courts, bugs and corrupt redittings.

It's time for the government to give the media (along with the American public) a big break and vice-versa. It's a scandal that continues but goes nowhere. It's one warning after another to a president who couldn't care less (or if he does, doesn't let on), it's a story about dishonest politicians who have been around since the year One.

Watergate is important only if something comes out of it which is beneficial to our government and public. But we're subjected to endless information which never seems to get anybody anywhere.

It seems as though the media plays up the old 'let's get em'' tactics when the only ones they're 'getting'' is the public.

Everyday the paper, radio and television is chock full of editorials and commentaries, features and reports that try to spill the beans on a new devestating development of such terrific importance that it may lead to so and so's indictment or impeachment and crack the whole case wide open. There have been so many of these so called developments which haven't produced anything except extra time to fill for the media and extra headaches for the American public. American public.

Is anyone really guilty of all this wrongdoing? If they are why not just try them for their misdemeanors and to hell with all this senseless bunk which seems to prove nothing.

It's time for some action. Either settle the mess soon or forget it. America has other important things to think about.

Kitty Loewy

Another effect the Normal had on Carbondale was to cause the town to physically expand. Out on the west side of town, in the area where Colonel Brush maintained "Brush's Grove" as a public gathering, speechmaking and barbecue center, new houses began to go up. Fine homes they were, and the West Walnut Street area soon became the ritzy neigh-borhood of Carbondale.

It is not difficult to understand why it was that West Walnut Street should be selected. The elevation of the terrain was somewhat higher there than down-town; it gave a good view over a good deal of the litthe city and budding college. It was on the right side of the tracks, i.e., the upwind side of town so that smoke, furnes, and noise generated from the railroad and manufacturing establishments in the central area would be carried away from the fine houses by the prevailing west-southwesterly winds. Also, the example had already been set. Colonel Brush had early settled in that general vicinity by first building a house just west of the west end of South (Monroe Street. He then had a fine house designed and built by Isaac Rapp near the corner of Main and Missouri (University) Avenue. Brush School now occupies a portion of what was formerly Colonel Brush's exten-

General John A. Logan — U.S. Representative, Civil War General, U.S. Senator, Grand Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, and Vice-Presidential candidate with James G. Blaine — had constructed a house just a couple of blocks north of Walnut at 400 West Oak Street in 1888. Logan maintained it as his legal residence until 1871. Although Logan was born and reared in Murphysboro, he regarded Carbondale as his home through the most productive vears of his life. productive years of his life.

So, it is not surprising that after Dr. Allyn had been in Carbondale for some while, he selected a house on West Walnut Street to be home for him and his family. For a time after assuming the Principalship of S.I.N.U., Allyn lived in a hotel, but after cipalship of S.I.N.U., Allyn lived in a hotel, but after a diligent and methodical search, he purchased a large, square, two-storied brick house at what is now 505 W. Walnut Street. This house, originally built by a man named Boyd in the late 1850's was thoroughly remodeled by Allyn soon after he acquired it. Allyn added another story to the house and capped it with a mansard roof. He opened a large bay window out of its cost side where it still overlooks a heautiful tree. its east side where it still overlooks a beautiful treeshaded lawn.

The interior of the house was done up in cypress and butternut woodwork. Fireplaces were added so that at one time, as many as eleven fires (including fireplaces and stoves) were required to heat the whole house in cold weather.

"... on the south side of the living room was a long glassed-in porch where Dr. Allyn kept his flowers. There were three wells on the property. One is under the kitchen for (a) pump. The kitchen (had) a latticed back porch and a shed was added. One well on the east overed with lattic work. Evines and sneu was added. One well on the east covered with lattis work & vines and one in the barn lot... There was a stone celler under the living room so Dr. Allyn had the water piped from the east well into the celler to keep milk and butter cool."

One of Dr. Allyn's daughters, Harriet (or Hattie) was of an artistic bent. Her studio was located on the third floor in a front room. Years after the house had passed from the Allyn family, the house was remodeled. The wall of Hattie's studio was being covered with beaver-board when the workmen discovered a sunflower painted on the wall. It was carefully preserved and is still quite visible. The present owners of the Allyn House are quite proud of the old place and are in the process of restoring it to its former glory.

Two heads are better than one

The staff of the Senate Watergate committee concluded that "the process by which we nominate and elect our President" needs remedy. Maybe we should go a step further and realign the executive position itself because the job of being President of the United States is becoming loo big for one man. The terms of Presidents Richard M. Nixon and Lyndon B. Johnson give evidence to this. In opinion polls the majority of Americans have agreed that Nixon has done a good job in foreign affairs but that he has failed with his domestic policy. The opposite is true for Johnson. Americans give him credit for having done a good job domestically but for having been weak in foreign affairs. Also, one of the reasons that Johnson declined running for a second term was for health reasons. It has been said that a term as president of the U.S. ages a person twenty years. Maybe a system where one person handles foreign affairs and another handles domestic duties would be more satisfactory. Because foreign countries would want to deal with the top person in the government, the president could handle foreign affairs and be a sort of foreign minister. The vice-president could be the domestic affairs minister and handle matters at home. Candidates for these two positions could run and be voted for independently of each other too.

Chamber of Commerce sets COVOCOO target of 75 new members

By Nancy Landis Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The immediate goal of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce Key Club is to raise the membership of the chamber from 375 to 450 members by the end of 1974, according to Dave Erthal, chairman of the key club steering committee.

A meeting of interested chamber members on Thursday will get the Key Club started, Erthal said. He said the club will hold its first formal meeting on Aug. 1.

Erthal said that an advisory board of the chamber personally in-vited some people to attend the meeting on Thursday. The chamber office has assisted in stimulating inornice has assisted in stimulating in-terest in the club by contacting utility companies and financial in-stitutions, he said, and the cham-ber's newletter announced that members may join the club.

Erthal said the primary function of the Key Club will be to get new members for the Chamber of Commerce. He said this will be done by contacting businesses which are not members and contacting new businesses which are not members businesses which are not members and contacting new businesses that come to town. The University Mall will have a lot of potential mem-berships when it opens, he noted. Erthal said the Key club will also Erthal said the Key club will also act as a liason between people and businesses to see what programs people want businesses to implement. He said the Key Club will act as a welcoming committee to new businesses and act with the Chamber of Commerce at ground-benching.

Chamber of Commerce at ground-breakings.

Erthal said that anyone interested in becoming a member of either the Key Club or the Chamber of Commerce may call him at home, at the IBM office or at the Chamber of Commerce Office.

Free program to offer weight control advice

Laura Brown, psychology graduate student, will begin a free weight control program from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Monday at the Women's Center, 404 W. Walnut.

Brown said the program will involve discussions of ways to control overeating, why overeating occurs, which types of diets are best for whom and behavioral measures to control overeating.

Anyone may attend the meeting, Brown said. She said those attending will be given a diet to follow and alternative diets will be available

The sessions will last until the end of summer quarter, she said, and will continue into fall if there is enough interest. She said she has received a couple calls expressing an interest in the group.

Southern Illinois mini-tour scheduled for Thursday

A mini-tour of Southern Illinois is planned for Thursday by the Ven-tures in Southern Illinois Tourism (VISIT) organization.

The one-day tour, costing $19.50 per person, will include a buffalo cookout, a trip through Shawnee Saltpetre Cave, and a ride on an old steam train. The cost includes two meals, the bus trip and refreshments.

The tour will begin in Belleville at 8 a.m. For further information contact the VISIT office in Marion,

A trip to Hogg Bluff in Johnson County, limited to males, will be held July 21, 22 and 23.

A $10 deposit for the tour should be sent to Annual Ozark Tour, Outdoor Illinois Magazine, Box A, Belleville,

Tax bills mailed: residents must pay assessments

Jackson County tax bills were mailed Friday by the office of county Treasurer Raymond J. Dillinger.

Mailings included 7,260 bills for almost $4.5 million to Carbondale residents and 6,286 bills to Mur-physboro citizens for about a $1.5 million.

The bills include current charges for 1974 bills on last year's real estate assessments, back taxes, railroad and utility bills, and personal property bills applicable to corporations, according to Dillinger.

First installments on the tax bills are due Aug. 15. The remaining balance is due Sept. 15.

Brown said she is doing volunteer work at the Women's Center and conducting the weight control program as part of her course work. She said she is also involved in pregnancy testing and pregnancy counseling.

Ill., 61812. The total cost of the tour is $35 for men 16 and older, and $17.50 for persons under 16.

All food will be furnished for this 44th annual Ozark Tour, and accomadations include shelter bluffs and barns. The tour will explore a prehistoric stone wall, Panther's
Den in Williamson County, and Draper's Bluff on the border of Union and Johnson County.

Board to sav if school can be financed

The Capital Development Board (CDB) will decide Tuesday night whether to accept bids for bonds to be sold to help finance a new high school in District 186 in Murphysboro.

The $1.5 million in bonds will be returned at 8 p.m. The board them makes the final decision whether to accept the bids.

Murphysboro voters voted to insure makes the final occision whether to accept the bids.

Murphysboro voters voted to issue the bonds June 1. The referendum passage will allow the district to take advantage of a $2.52.168 grant awarded by the CDB on April 12. The CDB money represents 70 per cent of the cost of a 117.000 square foot school building. Money raised from the sale of the bonds will account for the other 30 per cent. The new building will be constructed on 28 acres of a 73.09 acre site west of the Jackson County Nursing Home. The building will accomodate 900 students and cost an estimated $3,645,950.

Gale Williams to begin campaign for district seat

Incumbant Republican Gale Williams announced earlier this week he will begin campaigning for re-election to 58th District seat in the state legislature Tuesday.

Williams, a 10-year veteran of the house, will be the number one ranking Southern Illinois congressman if returned in the Nov.

The Murphysboro resident is advocating abolishing tuition for state college students whose parents earn less than $15,000 annually; abolishing real estate taxes on the homes of senior citizens who earn less than $10,000; and lower real estate taxes on all property by returning a larger share of the income tax back to the counties.

Members of the panel will include Herbert Kouts of the Atomic Energy Commission; Robert Williams of the Ford Foundation Energy Policy Project; James MacKenzie, a professor from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and Frank Von Hipple, a physicist from the National Academy of Science. During the Thursday night session, there will be a presentation of the Golden Quill Award. The award is presented for excellence in Editorial Writing.

According to Wendell Crow, secretary-treasurer of ISWNE, there are about 70 persons already registered for the week long conference.

Goals for SIU to be discussed

Public meetings to discuss how SIU can serve the Southern Illimois region are scheduled by a group currently studying future goals and objectives for SIU. The public is invited to give their opinions of SIU's mission in the area at the Tuesday and Wednesday meetings of the President's Advisory Committee on Goals and Objectives at SIU at Carbondale. The hearings are scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday and 7 p.m. Wednesday, both in the Mississippi Room on the second floor of the Student Center.

Carbondale youths earn summer cash working for city

By Charlotte Jones Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Thirty Carbondale youths are earning money for high school ex-penses, college, dates and other entertainment working for the city

The employes are working on the federal Neighborhood Youth Corps (NYC) project providing summer jobs for youths ages 14 to 22.

The NYC employes work 28 hours a week cleaning streets, city hall and University City, painting crosswalks, mowing cemeterey lawns, cutting weeds and performing other duties the full-time city staff doesn't have time for.

The workers not only have varied jobs but varied priorities in spending their earnings. Leo Kirksey, 17, who is assigned to mow the city cemetery lawns, said he spends some of his money to buy school clothes and some for partying.

Charles James, a high school sophomore, said he is saving his money for college. Several workers admitted the NYC jobs are their only source of spending money. Overall, the sentiment among the workers seems to be, "we don't mind the work, we take pride in our jobs and we sure need the money."

The NYC applicants are screened on the basis of income and size of family. A graduated scale is used to determine eligibility. For example, a family of six could earn no more than $5,500 per year or a family of seven no more than $6,200.

The nine girls and 21 young men are earning about $50 a week during the 9-week summer work schedule.

The 30 workers in Carbondale fill a third of the NYC jobs slots allotted for Jackson County.

About 250 Carbondale youths applied for NYC work for summer and there just aren't enough jobs to go around, Arthur Black, Carbondale Community High School principal and supervisor of the program said.

In addition to providing income, the work experience provides a valuable job reference for later employment, Black said.

But benefits of the NYC program are mutual, Scott Ratter, city personnel director says. The city keeps a record of what the workers accomplish.

Last summer 23 NYC workers in Last summer 23 NTC workers in Carbondale worked 2,726 hours for the city earning a total of $4,362 on the federally funded project. The city didn't have the money to hire the summer workers although it needed many odd jobs done. Ratter

This summer it would have cost the city about $15,000 to hire the youths for the work they will have accomplished in nine weeks.

accomplished in nine weeks.

Last year, the summer employment program, part of the federal Emergency Employment Act, provided an additional 40 jobs to Carbondale youths. The program expired last year, and hasn't been replaced, Ratter said. The summer employment, like NYC, was a real success in Carbondale and replacement for it is needed, he said.

Frazier recalls Carbondale days

By Mark Tupper Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Carbondale might not be the same caroondate might not be the same city that Walt Frazier left seven years ago to become one of the most familiar faces in American sports, but Walt says he's still the same guy. "It's a whole different scene from

"It's a whole different scene from when I was a student. Everything is free and easy here now-there's less rules, no code for dressing—the young people are still doing good things but in a different way," Frazier said as he reminisced sitting on the weight machine of the SIU Arena.
"I used to live real good here in Carbondale on $125 per month, supporting my wife, going to the movies, paying the rent, groceries and everything," Frazier said. "Now it's a little different."

Frazier is in town to help conduct the Saluki-Murdale basketball clinic, a two week camp for area youths. His return to Carbondale last winter when SIU retired his jersey was his first visit to his alma mater since he became a New York Knick in 1967.

"I know the reason I'm back," Frazier said in a serious tone. "Like I said when they retired my jersey, people have treated me great in Carbondale. No one blamed me for passing up my final year of eligibility to turn pro and I remember that.

"Maybe the parents of some of the kids here at the camp were here when I was playing for SIU and this is just a little way of repaying them," Frazier

"I know people read about all the things pro players do and all the money and fancy clothes, but I'm the same person I've always been. I try to be con-siderate, I like people and I want people to remember that," he said. "I guess I'm not as shy and quiet as I used to be

"Tve been having a great time in Carbondale," said Frazier who has been seen touring the Carbondale night spots in his New York tradition. "Just being in the Arena again I can remember all the weight lifting and running I put in here and I see how it all payed off for me.

"I try to tell the kids that too," he said. "You've got to work hard to be good at anything. I don't want them to think that you get to be a pro just on natural talent. It takes a lot of hard work, no matter what it is you're doing. Not just sports."

Not just sports.

Walt conducts his own basketball clinic in New York and believes that the teaching fundamentals is of extreme importance at a young age. "These importance at a young age. "These clinics are for a good cause and give a kid good experience. It's probably something most of them will never forget."

During the week Frazier has been in Carbondale, he has scrimaged with SIU players Mike Glenn, Corky Abrams, and Perry Hines. Walt, who com-plimented Glenn's play on his last visit w SIU said after having played with him, 'he's a real good player. I like his game and his shooting."

Frazier has had to sacrifice a bit of his flashy luxury for a slice of the Car-bondale life, namely his burgandy and white Rolls Royce and a penthouse apartment that provides him with a huge round bed.

Frazier did say that sleeping in Ed Zastrow's trailer, is "different" than his circular matress, but then recalled the days of his own trailer bed and his dorm life on Thompson Point. Zastrow is one of Frazier's better Carbondale friends, a former teammate from his 1967 NIT championship team.

"It's hard to believe that its been seven years," the former Saluki pon-dered. "It's like I never really left."

When Walt repainted his Rolls, it cost him a cool $2,000 and took two weeks to apply 15 coats of paint. "I think I'll keep that car forever." Frazier laughed. "It doesn't depreciate, in fact it goes up in value about $1,000 eat, it sead of the 1965 model often driven by his personal chauffeur. "I driven by his personal chauffeur. "I think the next time I come to Carbondale I'll bring it with me.

Pre-Clyde

The clothes are probably not in his closet today, but this is how Walt Frazier looked when he was a student at SIU in 1967. Frazier said Carbondale is a "whole different scene" today than it was seven years ago. "Free and easy," Walt calls Carbondale in 1974.

Ed Sneed captures lead in Quad Cities Open

Associated Press Sports Writer

BETTENDORF, lowa—Ed Sneed, a struggling tou also-ran until a week ago, carded a ix-under-par 65 Friday and vaulted into a one-stroke lead at the midway point of the $100,000 Quad Cities Open Golf Tournament.

last week, used a round that included five birdies, one bogey and an eagle three on No. 18 for a 67-65-132. Former U.S. Amateur champion Bruce Fleisher equalled the course record with a 63 and Mike Morley shot a 64 to move into a tie for second at 133. First prize in this four-year-old event is Among the casualties in the 91 degree heat and 60 per cent humidity Friday was firstround leader Bob Eastwood, a little-known third-year pro from Lodi, Calif. He shot an opening 66 for a one-stroke edge, but fell to a 71 Friday and stroke edge, but fell to a 71 Friday and was five back.

Sneed, a six-year pro who had been plagued by injuries until his victory at Milwaukee, opened with a 67 and is one shot ahead of the pace he set in capturing the $26,000 first prize a week ago.

Three of Sneed's birdies on the 6,501-yard Crow Valley Golf Club course came on par five holes and he climaxed his round by sinking a 30-foot putt for an eagle on the 18th.

Fleisher, the 1968 Amateur champion who has yet to win in three years on the pro tour, tied the course record held by John Schroeder by shooting seven birdies, an eagle two with a 150-yard eightiron on No. 15 and a lone bogey. Sam Snead, still a title threat at age 62, moved into contention with a 65 and was tied for fourth with Labron Harris Jr. at 134. Harris shot his second straight 67.

Harris. Babe Hiskey and Sneed

Harris, Babe Hiskey and Sneed trailed Eastwood by only one shot when the day began. Eastwood, however, took a double-bogey six on No. 12 and didn't recoyer, finishing with a 33-38-71.

Morely, a fifth-year pro from Minot,

N.D., also made a brief run at the course record. He was four under on his front nine, pitched in from 103 yards for an eagle two on his 10th hole and then birdied three of his final four holes.

Hiskey recorded a 69 and was tied with Dave Stockton at 136. Stockton shot his second consecutive 68. Tied with Eastwood at 137 were David Glenz, Steve Melnyk, rookie Mark Hayes and Bruce Ashworth.

The 36-hole cut was at 143 and among the notable casualties were Bob Zen-der, 144, who had tied for third in Milwaukee; Chuck Courtney, 149, and Schroeder, 153, including an 80 Friday.
