Pulliam gets $1.8 million for air conditioning

By David Sheets

A capital improvements bill approved by the Illinois Legislature may make changes in Pulliam Hall more comfortable.

Senate Bill 453, passed on July 5, directs state financial support to Illinois universities for structural renovations.

From that will come more than $1.8 million for air conditioning in Pulliam.

"The electrical system in Pulliam is not designed to handle air conditioning," said David Grobe, director of facilities planning at SIUC.

"A total revamping of the electrical system will be necessary in addition to installing the air conditioning units."

The Pulliam appropriation was categorized under capital improvements recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education for fiscal year 1986. He said the 34-year-old structure has been on the list for capital improvements for at least seven years, but "you wait and get what you can when you can."

Typically, capital programs are such that not enough dollars are available to execute the program as dropped," said Grobe.

Grobe said that University appropriations have the blessing of the IBHE are approved for the most part because the IBHE requires the appropriation requests to follow certain guidelines.

These guidelines spell out the specific amounts of work and dimensions of the project in comparison with the project's dollar figure.

Foundation to decide divestment policy

By Justus Weathersby Jr.

The SIU Foundation's nine-member executive committee will address the issue of investment in U.S. companies that do business with the South African government.

The foundation's decision to address this issue comes when the climate of anti-apartheid sentiment and divestment of U.S. monies from South Africa has gained momentum as an issue to be considered among legislators and many university administrations.

Douglas McAnally, president of the SIU Foundation, said the committee will draw a resolution regarding divestment tomorrow during a closed meeting of the Foundation's executive committee.

The Foundation's legal counsel said, "The foundation is not a public body subject to the open meetings law. It's a private, not-for-profit corporation," the attorney said.

McAnally said the committee's resolution will be sent to the board of directors and the Foundation's position on investment will be made public in August.

The foundation's portfolio is handled by Centere Trust Company in St. Louis and the Foundation is reported to handle about $4 million in endowments for the University.

McAnally said that the Sullivan Principles must also be discussed during the meeting because they are a significant concern within the divestment issue and that many companies have adopted them as a way of dealing with the South African government.

The principles comprise six guidelines developed by the Rev. Leon Sullivan in 1977 that are focused on equity, advancement and treatment of non-white South African employees.

"You can't talk about this issue without some discussion of the Sullivan Principles," McAnally said the divestment issue could be settled by requiring companies conducting business with SIU to follow the principles.

Tom Bush, assistant to President Somit, said the Foundation's board of directors has legal autonomy to make its decision concerning the investment issue. However, the SIU Board of Trustees can influence its decisions, he said. Bush said the Board of Trustees can act as an advisory board to the foundation.

Although President Albert Somit sits on both the Foundation's executive committee and on the Board of Trustees.

University officials say that the foundation is separate from the University.

"You can't begin to say that there's not going to be some cut in the investment issue," he said.

Soviet group to perform in 'Live Aid' concert

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A Soviet rock group will perform in the Live Aid benefit concerts for African famine victims via a satellite from Moscow, a television producer announced Wednesday.

The performance by Autograph, described as a hard rock group, will mark the first time Soviet rock musicians will be seen live by a worldwide television audience, said Brian Brol, a partner in Daimryne and Jenkins Management from New York, which will produce the concert in Moscow.

The Live Aid concerts Saturday in London's Wembley Stadium and Philadelphia's JFK Stadium will be beamed into the U.S. via satellite.

An estimated 1.5 billion television viewers worldwide.

The top names in rock and roll, including Mick Jagger, Bob Dylan, Tina Turner and Paul McCartney, will perform in the benefit.

The concerts, the brainchild of Irish musician Bob Geldof, are expected to raise up to $50 million for the starving people in Africa.

Autograph, virtually unknown in America but quite popular in the Soviet Union, will perform in a television studio in Moscow before an audience of about 1,000.

In Philadelphia, the performance is scheduled for 10:30 a.m., following a duet by Phil Collins and Sting of the Police that will be coming from London.

Technicians are trying to fashion a split-screen effect so one side of the video screen will show Autograph and the other side will show American and British audiences watching the group, Brol said.

"The Soviet involvement is symbolic of the very nature of this project, which is, in fact, world cooperation to solve problems — in this case, global hunger," said Mike Mike, president of Worldwide Sports and Entertainment, Inc.

A representative of Worldwide traveled to Moscow early in the Live Aid planning and began negotiating with the government-controlled radio and television station.

"We became aware of Autograph as we were negotiating to do the production," Brol said. "We felt they would be ideal for this concert."

The manufacturers' warning that cigarette smoking could cause cancer was approved for the first time in the state of Tamil Nadu, where smoking is widespread and where lung cancer is on the rise.

The manufacturers cited scientific reports as a means to pressure India into adopting the WHO guidelines. The reports said that smoking causes cancer, heart disease, and other health problems.

The manufacturers also warned that smoking is addictive and that it can cause death.

China, Soviets sign $14 billion trade pact

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union and China signed a $14 billion trade agreement Wednesday to double bilateral trade by 1990.

The agreement covers all areas of trade and cooperation, including energy, machinery, and technology.

The agreement is seen as a further step in the Sino-Soviet rapprochement, which has been strained by disputes over human rights and the Dalai Lama's visit to Beijing.

New stronger cigarette warnings approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration Wednesday approved stronger cigarette warnings on packages of cigarettes and in advertisements to alert smokers of the health risks associated with smoking.

The warnings are seen as a major step in the fight against smoking, which is the leading cause of preventable death in the United States.

The warnings are expected to appear on cigarette packages, in advertisements, and in public service announcements.

Court asked to overturn abortion decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seventy-seven members of Congress are asking the Supreme Court to overturn its 1973 decision legalizing abortion because it wrongly stripped the states of their "power and duty to protect prenatal human life."

The court, in its landmark Roe vs. Wade decision, said states have a constitutional right to an abortion, but that states also have the right to regulate abortions beyond the first three months of pregnancy to protect the health of the mother.

Scientists learn how AIDS attacks immune systems

BOSTON (UPI) — Government researchers reported Wednesday they have discovered how the AIDS virus prevents the human immune system from fighting infection and cancer.

Experiments at the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases conducted on eight people with acquired immune deficiency syndrome indicate the AIDS virus prevents specific cells, called helper T cells, from responding to evidence of infection and cancer in body fluids.

Possible replacements of Stockman named

Baldrige, a Bush administration official, and Lewis, who both carry substantial credentials from the business world, have indicated an interest in the post. Administration officials said.

Soviets deny any 'Star Wars' concessions

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — The Soviet Union Wednesday rejected as "incorrect" reports that it might be willing to accept research into a space-based defense program as part of a new arms control agreement with the United States.

The Soviet delegation to the 17-week-old superpower arms talks said in a rare public statement that the reports "do not reflect the actual state of affairs in the negotiations."

China, Soviets sign $14 billion trade pact

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union and China, in a sign of warming relations between the communist giants, Wednesday signed a $14 billion trade agreement calling for the doubling of bilateral trade by 1990.

Sri Lanka lifts 8-month curfew to end violence

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — The government lifted an eight-month curfew on northern Sri Lanka Wednesday and said it would free hundreds of members of the Tamil minority in moves to end separatist violence in the Indian Ocean nation.

The announcement by the state-run Sri Lanka Broadcasting Corp. of the end of the curfew in four northern districts was followed by a National Security Ministry statement that 643 Tamil suspects would be released from detention.

Rea says loans, technology may help economy

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

The availability of affordable loans coupled with an educational system that concentrates on new technologies are keys to economic development in Illinois, state Rep. Jim Rea said Wednesday.

Rea, D-Chicago, was the guest speaker at a luncheon which was part of a seminar at the SIU-C Student Center dealing with financing opportunities available to local governments and private businesses.

The seminar was sponsored by the Illinois Development and Finance Authority and Southern Illinois Inc., a nonprofit organization concerned with improving the economy of Southern Illinois.

Rea, who is chairman of the Illinois House Economic Development Committee, said that studies conducted by the state have shown that 449,000 jobs in Illinois were lost between 1969 and 1982.

He blamed the job loss on the inability of public and private groups to work together to try to keep business in Illinois and attract new economic development.

"Economic prosperity depends on many individuals and coalitions. There is a strong need for cooperation between the public sector and the educational community," he said. "To be creative requires proper education.

Rea said information of the IDFA has helped businesses expand in the state and increase the number of people employed. The IDFA was created in 1983 by combining the Illinois Industrial Development Authority and the Illinois Environmental Facilities Financing Authority.

According to information supplied by the IDFA, 3,700 jobs have been generated or saved since 1983 with help from the IDFA. About $727 million in bonds and loans have also been issued for renovating, and expanding Illinois' industry. More than $133 million has also been made available through bonds and loans for pollution-control measures.

IDFA Executive Director Ronald Bean stressed the advantages of the IDFA Direct Loan Program. The provisions of the program provide small to medium size businesses a fixed rate loan for up to 30 percent of the cost of projects with fixed assets.

The loan would have to be used for purchasing land, buildings, machinery and equipment. Construction or renovation costs would also be eligible for the loan program.

The maximum amount available for each loan is $200,000.

Sixty percent of the money needed for a project must be borrowed from a private lender. The fixed interest rate of the IDFA loan — combined with the private financing rate — would result in a lower interest rate overall, officials said. The remaining 10 percent financing would come from a business's equity.

Other IDFA programs are geared toward local governments, such as the Infrastructure Bond Bank Program. The bond bank is aimed at communities with populations of 25,000 or less.

The IDFA combines the efforts of local governments and the federal government and then sells a large bond issue on the national bond market. This allows the bonds to be sold at a lower interest rate than would be available to small communities selling bonds individually. The bonds are also exempt from federal and state taxes.

The "Build Illinois" plan has given the IDFA a $40 million Urban Development Action Grant to administer and $30 million for rehabilitating housing.

Witness says lockdown justified

By John Krukowski

The administration of the Federal Penitentiary at Marion was "absolutely correct" in locking down in 1983, says a witness for the federal government who testified Wednesday at a hearing dealing with a civil lawsuit against the prison.

U.S. Magistrate Kenneth Meyer, who is presiding over the hearings, announced Wednesday that he hopes to decide by Aug. 2 whether to issue a preliminary injunction against the prison to halt the alleged abuse of inmates.

George Camp, the government's witness, said that when the prison increased its security measures following the murder of two guards and an inmate in November 1983 it was merely adjusting its operation to the violent situation at the time.

Camp served as executive assistant to the Marion warden from 1967 to 1979, and presently directs a prison consulting firm in New York.

He has served as the assistant commissioner of corrections in New York and as the director of corrections in Missouri.

"The way the prison is run depends upon the inmates' behavior," Camp said, in an interview following his testimony.

Camp said the Marion inmates' behavior has changed dramatically since he worked there in the late 1960s. Prison officials, he said, did not exist at Marion at that time, have been responsible for the increase in gang activity from 1972 to 1979.

Marion could afford to pay a more relaxed manner 15 years ago, but an increase in gang activity from 1978 to 1983 with the help of the murders of 1983 has justified tighter security measures, he said.

Under the questioning of Nancy Horgan, the attorney for the inmates, Camp said the relationship between prisoners and staff has become "more relaxed" in the last two years that the prison has gradually begun to loosen restrictions.

SIU POLICY ON SEXUAL HARASSMENT

SIU is committed to creating and maintaining a University community free from all forms of sexual harassment.

Sexual Harassment is defined as unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature when

1. submission to, or tolerance of, such conduct on or off campus is made (either explicitly or implicitly) as a term or condition of instruction, employment, or participation in other University activities;

2. submission to, or rejection of, such conduct by an individual is used as a basis for evaluation in making employment or academic decisions affecting the individual;

3. such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's academic or employment performance or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive University environment.

In order to deal promptly and fairly with charges of sexual harassment and to protect the rights and dignity of individuals in the campus community, grievance procedures (informal and formal) for sexual harassment complaints have been established and available from the University Affirmative Action Office.

Problems should be reported promptly to the University Ombudsman, Woody Hall-C302 or the University Affirmative Action Office, Anthony Hall 104.

Defense merits cut not social security

The battle of the budget is raging in Washington, with the Republicans in the House and the Democrats in the Senate. Although the smoke in the fray is thick, the two parties have boldly defended their positions. The Republicans have defended Social Security cost of living adjustments (COLAS); the Democrats have held off attacks on the defense budget.

While the defense merit cut is getting an end to the budget dispute, and taking an active part in its resolution. The Democrats in the House have continued to fight to keep the COLAs and the Senate Republicans have finally admitted that the COLAs are untouchable.

However, the House has made one slight compromise. House Speaker Tip O'Neill says that an increase in the tax on Social Security benefits received by higher-income recipients -- from 5 percent to 8 percent for singles with an income over $25,000 a year and couples earning over $32,000 a year -- could be considered, but he is not willing to propose it. Members of the Republican-controlled Senate also have called this an increase in the Social Security tax, but only in 1986.

The problem with this "compromise" is that since 1981, the defense establishment has enjoyed tremendous increases. In 1981, the real growth of the defense budget in 1981 was 12.7 percent, or 6 percent, in 1983 real growth was 7.6 percent. As Americans become less enchanted with high defense spending and real growth, the real growth is continuing to decline. In 1984 there was a 4 percent growth rate and this year it increased to 5.9 percent. Now the proposed budget for 1986 is to be increased over $25 billion to real growth, which is only enough to cover inflation.

The real problem of the "compromise" is that since 1981, the defense establishment has received 42.8 percent in real growth while the Social Security system is only asking for enough to cover increases in the cost of living. The defense budget has had continuous increases and now Social Security recipients are getting a tax hike to keep the defense budget at its inflated level.

While the Defense Department continues to spend thousands of dollars on satellite and ash lungs, billions on bombers that the Pentagon admits will be obsolete shortly after completion, and more billions in the dream of a space based defense, defense over the United States, Social Security recipients are getting a tax increase.

Congress wants to make some true concessions in the budget, it will cut back on defense spending, not just its growth, and will leave Social Security alone.

Cleansing flag in public was not a violation of U.S. Code

The accusations of Mr. Sohn and others (Daily Egyptian, July 3) regarding the public whipping of the American flag are baseless. The act of washing the flag is not an act of contempt, in fact the flag may be mended, dry-cleaned, or washed. A cleaning is neither a punishment nor a penalty prior to the flag-washing event on June 14 confirmed that the action was taken not in violation of the U.S. Code.

Had Mr. Sohn and company actually read the U.S. Code? Mr. Sohn is correct that on June 14 they would have witnessed for themselves that their actions were not improper. The flag was washed with respect in no way defaced, injured, or cast contempt upon the flag.

Unfortunately, there are people throughout the world, particularly in Latin America, who do have contempt for our flag, and perceive it as a symbol of oppression and domination. It is a sad fact that our present foreign policies toward Central America are only reinforcing these perceptions.

The symbolic act on June 14 was a reminder that our flag belongs not only to the people of all countries that the United States of America stands for freedom and justice for all. -- William V. Davis and Sallie Schramm, Carbondale.

Protests over new Coke spur ‘old formula’ rebirth

ATLANTA (UPI) - Staggered by a grass-roots protest to its move to change the taste of Coke, Coca-Cola Co. announced Wednesday it will bring back the “old Coke” within the next few weeks — renamed “Coca-Cola Classic.”

The old flavor of Coke will complement the new-formula Coke introduced in April, said company spokesman Thomas Gray.

Company officials said Coca-Cola Classic will be available in some markets within several weeks.

A news conference was scheduled for Thursday in Atlanta to reveal further details. Gray said: “Everyone wins.” Gray said. “Thousands of dedicated Coca-Cola consumers have told us they still want the original taste as an option. We have listened and we are taking action to satisfy their requests.”

Company officials have said in recent weeks they have been inundated with compliments and complaints about the taste change.

“The reaction has been mixed,” said Ron Coleman, a company spokesman.

Although taste tests by the company indicated a majority of people prefer the new taste of Coke, a local legion of longtime Coke drinkers have created a national stir about the formula change, the first in the 99-year history of the soft drink.

In Seattle, one man filed suit to make Coca-Cola provide the old Coke to consumers. The case was thrown out of court.

In other parts of the nation, people have stockpiled the old Coke from various sources to prepare for when the supply runs dry.

Jesse Meyers, an industry expert and publisher of the Beverage Digest newsletter, said the decision to reintroduce “old Coke” was “absolutely” the result of the groundwork of negative reaction.

“I think it’s two things,” Meyers said. “One, the market is getting incredibly diversified. Coke sees this as an opportunity to add another segment.

“Secondly, the diehard, very vocal Coca-Cola drinker wants his old friend back. This became a cultural offense to some people and Coke is now saying, ‘Hey, we’re listening to you.’”

Coke continues to be the top soft drink in the United States but has seen its market share chipped away by its chief rival, Pepsi, in the $21-billion-a-year industry. According to latest figures in Beverage Digest, Coke holds a 21.7 market share to 18.8 for Pepsi.

Coca-Cola officials said the company researchers stumbled on the new taste of Coke while they worked on a formula for Diet Coke in 1980.

African student says SIUC is the place to study

By Scott Freeman
Start Wire

Akrima Kogoe could have gone anywhere in the United States on his Fulbright Scholarship, but he chose to complete his research on secondary education at SIUC.

Kogoe, the deputy director for secondary education in the West African nation of Togo, chose to do his research in Carbondale because he has many friends here from his doctorate in education studies from 1980 to 1982.

Kogoe refutes the image of SIUC as a party school, saying that "I you want to study, go to Carbondale."

HE BELIEVES that because Carbondale is a small town, a student isn’t faced with the distractions of a big city, such as Chicago or New York City, which Kogoe says are too "hectic and confusing."

Kogoe cites the facilities and the faculty as being "outstanding," but finds that the cost of education in the United States is prohibitive for many foreign students.

"I like the fact that the human element is stressed more here than it is elsewhere, especially in the treatment of the workers," he said. In some countries, such as France or other western European nations, the emphasis is placed more on the system of employment than on the employees, he said.

KOGOE HOPES to incorporate some of the elements of this country’s educational administrative system into Togo’s education system when he returns to West Africa in August.

While insisting that he came to the United States "to do a job," Kogoe has had time to enjoy a few facets of American life here in Carbondale.

"I enjoy meeting the many different kinds of people here. Carbondale has a good mixture of American and foreign students, giving it a nice feel as an international university," Kogoe said.

Kogoe also enjoys the wide spectrum of music offered by WSIU radio, especially the chamber music, but he listens to "American blues and country when I can."

"I LIKE the weather in this part of the country. It is not too hot or too cold." It should be noted that Kogoe has not spent a winter in Carbondale since 1982, and has not had to endure a few winters that he heard were "rather severe."

"I do find tornados disturbing. There are no tornados in Togo," he said.

He does have a few gripes about some aspects of American life.

"I find many of the meals in this country disturbing, like putting marmalade on steak. People in this country are always covering their meat with some kind of sauce."

Kogoe finds fault with American television, but in a way already familiar with this country’s viewers, preferring public television to the major networks.

"The TV networks play too much soap, shows such as DALLAS and DYNASTY," he said.

KOGOE SAID he would like to travel around the United States more than he has been able to, as his stay in this country is business-oriented and hasn’t allowed him a chance to see much of the country. Kogoe hopes to visit the United States again "in a couple of years, and do some traveling out West."

Togo, one of Africa’s smallest countries, is located on the continent’s western coast east of Ghana. Its approximately 2.5 million residents are largely engaged in farming, but the country does have a large phosphate industry, exporting the product mainly to Europe and Japan.
Farmer says store-bought tomatoes a gas

By Martin Folan
Entertainment Editor

Fresh vegetables, handmade crafts, flowers, honey and fresh bakery goods await those who visit the Farmer's Market at the West Town Mall every Saturday morning from May to November.

A group of farmers pick their finest produce just hours before it's placed at the market, maintaining the purity of taste and to assure that it's the freshest buy in town.

Tomatoes, squash, green beans and cabbage are among the wide variety of vegetables sold at the stands at the market.

"What we offer is better than what's at the stores. So if you pay the same price here as you do at the stores, you're getting a better deal," says Patrick Sweeney, Farmer's Market representative.

"We don't use sprays, chemicals or fertilizers on any of our produce," he says.

Ted Buia, president of the Farmer's Market, says the tomatoes sold at supermarkets lose their freshness during the shipping and handling process.

"We've strengthened the quality of our produce. I'm from California, and I wouldn't eat the tomatoes we sell out there," he said.

Farmer's Market customer Jeff Dale says of store-bought vegetables, "You just don't know what's been sprayed on those vegetables, what's touched 'em, or how they've been shipped.

"Here, at least you have a chance to talk to the farmers who grew 'em, what they did to 'em, and you can learn for yourself how to grow vegetables.

"Of the market's social atmosphere, Sweeney says, "People see friends here they don't get to see during the week," he said.

Bob Morrison, another market customer, says, "I came out here to buy and socialize. I live in town and I have hardly anything to grow, so I buy it all here."

The market will be hit by an onslaught of tomatoes Saturday when Farmer's Market holds its tomato festival.

"We try to do a few events every year," Sweeney said. "We held a tomato peach festival last year. But we don't have any peppers this year, they froze out."

Entertainment and festive events will help promote the sale of hundreds of tomatoes and ears of sweet corn.

Sweeney said. Highlights of the festival will include cake walks, tomato trivia and tomato recipes. The tomato festival will be held from 11 a.m. to noon.

SLOGAN: Baseball unfair

There are two or more hours before game time. Many families enjoy coming out to watch batting practice, and this would be an excellent incentive to encourage families to attend games.

Teams could also offer reduced parking rates to cars that arrive two or more hours before game time. Many families enjoy coming out to watch batting practice, and this would be an excellent incentive to encourage families to attend games.

IT is awfully difficult for the head of a family to pay $20 to sit in a wooden seat and watch a bunch of millionaires play ball, especially when that person has several months to feed baseball has to do something to stop this, or it will lose support from its most loyal fans.

Until then, they should scrap the "Baseball — A Family Tradition" slogan. It's an insult to the common fan.

GOLF: Benefit for abused

way to possibly prevent unwanted pregnancies.

"We're trying to make Southern Illinois aware of our services and we're asking for their help," Isberson said of the golf benefit which has drawn support from local businesses for prizes and refreshments.

For a $50 tax deductible donation to SNAPF, golfers may select their own six-person team or may register individually to complete teams of less than six. The donation includes a greens fee, two carts per team, food, beer and soda on the course. There will be awards for the top four teams, longest drive prizes for men and women, and closest-to-the-pin prizes for men and women. And there will be two chances to win a new car for any golfer who can perform the most highly desired but rarest shot in golf — a hole-in-one.

Isberson expects a large field Friday, and there are still openings for more people who are encouraged to call and pre-register so the tournament committee will have time to arrange enough food and beverages. Those interested may call the center at 329-2621.

Over 100 of the top professional motorcyclists will be competing in the Stroh Du Quoin Mile National on July 27 at the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds.

The race will be broadcast live by ABC's Wide World of Sports at 3:00 p.m. It is the first time ever that an American Motorcyclists Association Camel Pro Series race will be shown in its entirety. The main contenders competing for an event-record purse of over $100,000 are Bubba Shobert, who is undeterred in three-mile track events on the Camel Pro Series this year; four-time Du Quoin winner Hank Scott; Doug Chandler, the points leader in the Camel Pro Series; and Ricky Graham, last year's Grand National Champion.

Scott has won the last two Du Quoin races and four of the last seven dating back to 1978.

Tickets are $15 for reserved main grandstand seats and $12.50 for general admission. The main entrance is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Golf tournament to benefit abused children

By Steve Merritt

Former John A. Logan pitcher Larry Beattie of the Montreal Expos has signed a letter of intent to play baseball at SIU-C.

Beattie compiled a 7-4 record last season at Logan with a 2.29 earned run average, striking out 77 batters in 74 innings pitched.

"Larry is a true power hitter with great potential," said Saluki assistant and pitching coach Jerry Green. "He's a good breaking pitch and a pretty good split-finger fastball but needs to develop a change-up.

Green said that he hopes Beattie can be an immediate help to the Saluki pitching staff, which has been decimated by the graduation of hurlers Jay Bellissimo, Mike Wooden, Rich Koch, and Paul Gerlach.

"We lost a lot of pitching this year and we hope that Larry will be able to step into our starting rotation," Green said.

"I was very disappointed when he left and didn't get recruited by a four-year school, but I think it's all to his benefit now. The learning process at SIU-C will certainly help him progress," Gerlach said.

Sparta native to pitch for baseball team

Ticket prices at major league parks have risen consistently along with the sky-high salaries players now earn. For example, at Wrigley Field in Chicago, the cost for a reserved seat ticket is $5 for adults and $3.50 for children under 13 in 1985. The price has doubled in the past ten years and the cost at Wrigley Field is similar to those at all other major league parks.

OF COURSE, you must fork out at least $3 to park before you even enter the stadium. Once inside, the fan is confronted with outrageous prices on concession stands and souvenirs. A hot dog costs $1.50 and a soda costs $1.25. A 12-ounce beer costs $2. A pretzel costs a $5 price tag and a newsstand is present.

Because of this, the total cost for attending a game builds up to the point that it is simply unaffordable for some fans. So many fans do not leave to avoid spending this amount of money.

That will leave only the rich and the young with a party on their minds. The games are merely a casual outing for the wealthy and the ticket prices may be scary to them.

Sensible thing to do would be to adopt a policy similar to the 5-cent-loss deal offered by many drive-in restaurants.
