Dukakis' pick a gutsy move

News Analysis

BOSTON (SHNS) — Michael Dukakis' choice of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas as his running mate is a high-risk gamble that shows:

— Dukakis, the Massachusetts governor, is more daring politically than he is given credit for.

— The Democrats plan to battle the Republicans for the political center.

— Texas, Vice President Bush's home state, could now decide the outcome of the presidential election.

"It's the gutsiest move that Dukakis has pulled for the whole campaign. It's saying, 'I am going to fight George Bush in his base.' It's a big risk. Risk nothing, gain nothing," said Duane Garrett, who ran Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt's campaign this year for the nomination.

Sources say that Dukakis' own polls show that, even with Bentsen on the Democratic ticket, Bush would still carry Texas by a small margin. However, Bentsen, who defeated Bush in a 1970 Senate race, is credited with having the best organization in Texas politics.

In bypassing Ohio Sen. John Glenn — thought to have been the leading candidate for the second spot on the ticket — Dukakis is betting that he can sweep most of the industrial Midwest without Glenn's help.

"If he wins Texas, he'll win the country," said Bob Beckel, Walter Mondale's 1984 campaign manager. Mondale considered Bentsen as a running mate in 1984 for the same reason, but rejected him because he felt the chances of carrying Texas against Reagan were very small.

The risk for Dukakis is that, despite Bentsen, he loses Texas, and without Glenn, he loses Ohio, a key swing state, and fails to dominate the Midwest.

If that occurs, there is no reasonable scenario by which Dukakis can win the White House — even if he takes California, the biggest prize with 45 electoral votes.

It is unclear how Bentsen will play in California. Bentsen is popular with Hispanics in Texas and that should help in California, but he is unknown there generally. His age, 67, deal-maker image and lack of environmental credentials all are question marks there.

Texas — where Bush has lived for 40 years — is a conservative state that has in recent elections been hostile to liberal Democrats from the Northeast.

But Bentsen is the state's most popular Democrat and has shown especially strong drawing power among moderate, white males who have voted for Ronald Reagan in the past two elections.

The choice does give a small tactical advantage to Dukakis. It will force Bush to spend time and money shoring up his Texas base, taking resources away from key battlegrounds in California and the Midwest.

Telephone system offers efficiency; but at what cost?

By Christine Cedusky
Staff Writer

Although University officials say the new telephone service system being installed should be more efficient at the same cost as the present system, some departments believe it will increase phone costs.

Catherine Walsh, assistant to Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit, said new phone costs are expected to be comparable to the present, 1980 phone system's operation and repair costs. The new system offers a much higher level of service, Walsh said.

It is not supposed to cost the chancellor's office any more for the new services, Donald Wilson, vice chancellor for

Group seeks recall elections

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

A spokesman for Citizens for Constitutional Reform said a state constitutional convention should be held to institute recall elections for state and local officials, a move that he said legislators will not make in "one million years."

At a press conference at the Carbondale Holiday Inn Tuesday, Patrick Quinn said "CCR was organized this year to vote yes for the constitutional convention."

A referendum for a constitutional convention will be on the November 3 ballot. The group's proposal would require the signatures of 20 percent of registered voters to force a state or local official to a new election, Quinn said. The new election would be decided by a simple majority.

State Rep. Jim Rea, D-Christopher, said he doesn't think a constitutional convention is needed because the constitution ratified in 1970 is flexible.

"We do have provisions where we can amend the constitution without a convention," Rea said.

The legislature can amend the constitution and registered voters can petition for an amendment, he said.

John Latimer, the executive director of the Commission on Intergovernmental Cooperation, a legislative service agency specializing in policy analysis, said a constitutional convention would cost $31 million.

Rea said this would be a waste of money.

Quinn, who is a political activist from Chicago and the founder of the Coalition for Political Honesty, said the need for the recall is underlined by Justice Department statistics showing that Illinois had more public officials convicted of felonies than any other Midwestern state in the past decade.

Quinn said 28 states, including Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Missouri, have the right to recall elected officials.

Justice Department won't allow convicted spy to talk with lawyer

MARION, Ill. (UPI) — The U.S. Justice Department will not allow the lawyer for convicted Israeli spy Jonathan Pollard to communicate with his client until the attorney agrees to undergo a security check, the lawyer said Tuesday.

The lack of access to his lawyer is one of Pollard's reasons for going on a hunger strike, which began Friday night.

In a telephone interview from Martha's Vineyard,

Mass., attorney Alan Derzhowitz said the Department of Justice will not allow him to speak or write to his client.

"(They) will not allow me to meet with him unless I am prepared to become part of the confidentiality of the case," he said. "I would not disclose any of the confidences revealed to me, but to agree to it would be a major setback for civil liberties."

Pollard, 32, pleaded guilty to spying for Israel in 1986 and received a life term. He is being held in solitary confinement at the federal prison in Marion, Ill.

His wife, Anne Henderson-Pollard, was convicted of being an accessory after the fact and is serving a pair of concurrent 5-year prison terms at a federal prison in Rochester, Minn.

Pollard, a former South Bend resident, is the son of Dr. Morris Pollard, a professor at the University of Notre Dame.

Area congressmen to join Reagan during visit

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

Rep. Kenneth Gray and Sens. Paul Simon and Alan Dixon will accompany President Reagan on his Southern Illinois visit press aides said.

Jack O'Dell, Gray's press aide, said that Gray (D-West Frankfort) will be traveling with the president to examine the drought situation in the 22nd District, which includes Carbondale.

O'Dell said Gray has been working on drought relief with the agriculture committee on drought relief to get government funding to ease the financial strain of drought victims.

O'Dell said Gray is glad he can accompany the president back to this area to help drought stricken local farmers.

"Congressman Gray will be looking for possible legislative initiative that can be taken regarding the drought-stricken area," O'Dell said.

Simon will also be traveling with the president. At this time it was not clear as to the exact purpose of Simon's visit other than he will be surveying the drought area with Reagan and Gray.

Local legislators are hoping to tell Reagan how severe the situation is.

Rep. Bruce Richmond (D-Murphysboro) said the main question on the farmers' minds will be the drought.

"I'm sure the president will have a variety of questions thrown at him during the press sessions but the main importance of his visit is the drought," he said.

Commission accused of fraud in Mexican elections

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The Federal Electoral Commission postponed a full accounting of last week's election for the third time Tuesday, provoking a criminal suit by conservative presidential candidate Manuel Clouthier and increasing public skepticism about the voting results. Clouthier, presidential candidate of the conservative National Action Party, said he would file criminal charges against Jose Newman Valenzuela, who is head of the National Voters' Registration Office.

Khmer Rouge attempting to control Cambodia

PARIS (UPI) — The communist Khmer Rouge is trying to "liquidate" its resistance partners and regain control over Cambodia after Vietnamese troops withdraw, Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk said Tuesday. Speaking a day after he resigned as the head of the Cambodian resistance that includes the Khmer Rouge, Sihanouk reiterated that he would not participate in peace talks scheduled to open July 25 near Jakarta, Indonesia.

South Africa desegregates commuter trains

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Transportation officials removed "whites only" signs from commuter trains in the nation's largest city Tuesday, opening all cars to blacks for the first time but keeping inter-city trains segregated. Opening first-class commuter train coaches in the Witwatersrand area, encompassing Johannesburg and the nearby capital of Pretoria, followed similar desegregation of trains in southern Cape Town last month.

Attack on Greek ship a failed hijack attempt

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — Authorities said Tuesday they suspect a terrorist attack on a Greek cruise liner was a botched attempt to seize the ship and force the release of a Palestinian sought by the United States in the bombing of a U.S. jetliner. Police released photographs of five suspects in the grenade and machine-gun attack Monday that killed nine people and wounded at least 47.

Carlucci says procurement system has flaws

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci said Tuesday there are "fundamental flaws" in the Pentagon's weapons-buying system but opposed a proposal to establish an overall military procurement chief. Carlucci also said the Pentagon does not sufficiently control consultants, who have become a key focus of the two-year FBI and Naval Investigative Service investigation of fraud and bribery in defense procurement.

Senate approves elevation of Veterans Dept.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to join the House in supporting elevation of the Veterans Administration to Cabinet level, a move that would create the 14th federal government department. The bill would allow the president to fill 16 top-level veterans posts, give the head of the department authority to reorganize and expand the power of the inspector general's office.

Bush promises 'positive civil rights agenda'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President George Bush, distancing himself from the Reagan administration's controversial civil rights record, promised the NAACP convention Monday he will have "a positive civil rights agenda" if elected president. "I guarantee you I will be personally involved in protecting the civil rights of all Americans," Bush said.

Arson suspected in fatal apartment fire in Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Arson was suspected in a fire that quickly roared through two apartment buildings on the West Side early Tuesday killing at least seven people, including five members of one family, authorities said. "Our investigators believe the fire was set," said Tom Sheppard, a spokesman for the fire department. "They found a gas can at the scene which they are checking out. They also have one witness seeing an unknown person fleeing the scene where the fire started."

Paintings, functional sculptures to be displayed

By Richard Scheffer
Staff Writer

Oil paintings, wall sculptures and decorative functional objects are among the works two master of fine arts degree candidates will be exhibiting July 14 to 21 in the University Museum.

John Medwedeff, a metalsmith, created his sculptures by forging hot steel and bronze plate.

Medwedeff says the images are based on landscape, geologic time and structures, as well as humankind's relationship with the earth.

"Just being on this planet, we have a direct relationship with it," he said. "We do things to either enhance our environment or destroy it."

Medwedeff also has created a variety of objects that are traditionally associated with the art of metalsmith, such as gates, fire tools and shovels.

Showers douse area farms

MARION, (UPI) — Spotty thundershowers Monday and Tuesday doused some areas of drought-stricken Southern Illinois and left others almost bone-dry.

The 1,200-acre Herman Krone farm at Du Quoin, where President Reagan is scheduled to meet Thursday with farmers to discuss the drought conditions, received slightly more than 1 inch of rainfall Monday and Tuesday. A dozen miles to the north near Tamaroa, the gauge measured more than 4 inches at the home of Krone's nephew.

The overnight rain was the first on the Krone farm in about 12 days. "We are about 10 inches under normal for rainfall this time of the year," Krone said.

"I put up some fence last week and it was just powder 4 feet down," said Krone.

Krone said he thinks the president might qualify as a rainmaker. "I don't know what caused the rain, but if his trip did it, I'll pay him to come back next year," said Krone. "I'm going to tell him he came a month too late."

Other rainfall amounts ranged from two-tenths of an inch at Brownstown in Fayette County to 4.45 inches at Iuka in southeastern Marion County, where the county seat of Salem measured 93-hundredths of an inch.

Mount Vernon had 2.96 inches and the Marion area in Williamson County received amounts ranging from three-tenths of an inch to 2.5 inches. Some streets in Marion were flooded.

Guyon to discuss budget reductions with faculty

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

University President John C. Guyon said the University's money and staff are "spread too thin".

However, he wants to discuss with faculty representatives the possibility of a future budget reduction.

"Given the financial constraints that we operate under I am convinced that we are spread too thin as an institution... We're just trying to do too much as a University," Guyon said to the faculty senate Tuesday.

However, Guyon said even if Gov. James R. Thompson's 40 percent income tax increase proposal would have been approved by the General Assembly, he still would find it necessary to talk to the faculty about the limited possibilities of future growth of the University.

The tax increase was never called to a vote by Speaker of the House Michael Madigan. If passed, it would have raised $18 million for the University.

"It's bleak," he said of the budgetary situation.

Asked by a faculty senate member if budget reductions would include the nonacademic and administrative side of the University, Guyon responded, "by all means."

Donald D. Paige, president of faculty senate, said he was glad Guyon decided to consult the senate about future reductions.

Guyon said reallocation probably would be included in any plan.

Women's groups offer advice, funds

IN THE PAST year two groups concerned with the treatment of women at SIU-C have been formed. This says a lot for the SIU-C administration, which is doing nothing to improve the environment for women.

The Women's Rights Defense Fund was formed last week in response to Charlotte West not being appointed athletics director. The Friends Against Sexual Harassment was formed last fall as a result of discussions sponsored by the Feminist Action Coalition.

Both groups are trying to bring SIU-C out of its dark ages-like environment for women.

THE WOMEN'S RIGHTS Defense Fund will provide money to women who want to take their discrimination cases to court.

The Friends Against Sexual Harassment helps women who are sexually harassed to file a formal grievance and to take other action against their harassers.

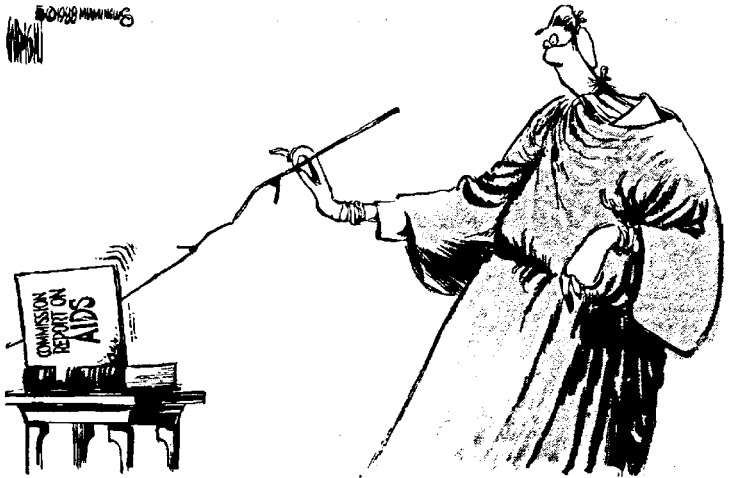

The administration says it tried to improve things, but it blames budget constraints for the lack of improvement. Equity increases in women University employees' salaries is another casualty in the death of the tax increase.

Increases of about $1,000 a year would've gone to women's salaries and helped even the score in the male-female salary game.

UNTIL SOME MONEY is channeled towards helping women, these two groups will help. When women have higher administrative positions, higher pay and respect for their abilities, maybe someday these groups will be extinct.

To help women in their legal battles against discrimination, send contributions to: Women's Rights Defense Fund, P.O. Box 424, Carbondale, Ill. 62903.

Women who need help fighting sexual harassment, call the Friends Against Sexual Harassment, 457-5400.

Fund raising does not make an AD

Why was a national search for an athletics director conducted when one of the most qualified candidates in the nation was right here?

For those who use logic in decision making, one of the most logical solutions for filling the AD position would have been to promote the highly qualified, honest, respected, hard-working and dedicated Charlotte West.

After all, isn't this how employees are rewarded for performing their jobs so well?

President John C. Guyon praised West for doing a good job as the interim AD while also performing the duties of the associate athletics director. But he did not have the intelligence to promote her to the position.

West's characteristics have been identified through research as characteristics of successful ADs. It is apparent that fund raising alone doesn't make an AD.

Research doesn't support the idea that being recognized as a famous athlete qualifies a person to be an AD. Robert Piel, a former University of Minnesota football star and a former AD at that university, is a prime example of what can happen when the president hires on the basis that a big name leads to a successful athletic program.

Piel was recently fired as a result of NCAA violations. Perhaps the U of M president believed Piel could learn the administrative duties, as Guyon feels Hart can.

However, it seems incomprehensible to pay a person $70,000 per year to learn how to do a job.

I am a female studying sports administration. If I choose to stay in this area of study and want to become an AD at a Division I school, it seems that I should first have a sex change operation and make a name for myself as a professional athlete.

My grandmother always tells me that for women to get positions traditionally held by men, women have to be twice as qualified as men. I think she greatly underestimated. — Corzette Wallace, graduate student, sports administration.

Opinions from elsewhere

Dallas Times Herald

U.S. Postal carriers are not doing themselves or anybody else any good when they perpetuate myths about AIDS. Some Dallas carriers have begun donning rubber gloves when delivering mail to a home for patients with the fatal disease.

Such an ill-informed, emotional reaction is inappropriate coming from the federal government which had those same postal carriers, just weeks earlier, deliver to every home in America a pamphlet that tried to offer straight talk about AIDS.

It was either Jim Hart or Jerry Lewis

Let's give poor Jim Hart a break. It's true that he can't administrate. Jim knows this so he's going to hire a friend to help him out while he's mulling over menu items and rooting for the Bears. The key word here is not administrate, it's money.

Jim Hart is a fund-raiser and fund-raisers know all about money. They know where to find it, and how to bring it home to the team. Jim is good at fund raising because he said so, and quarterbacks never lie.

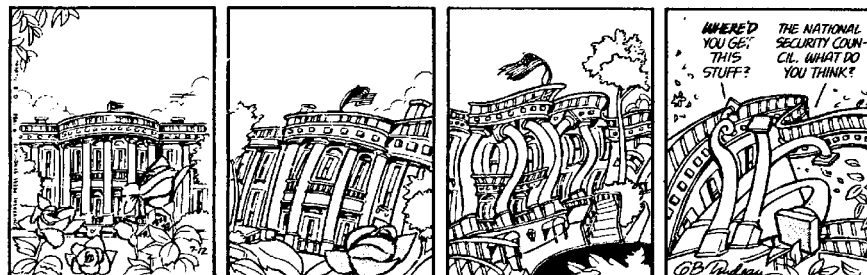

The really great thing that everyone seems to be forgetting is that once Jim has bankrolled the athletic teams, he could help raise money for such causes as faculty salaries and the library.

Nobody raises money like Jim says he can. In fact, the only person I'd rather have than Jim is Jerry Lewis.

AIDS letter wrong, misinformative

This is a response to the June 28 letter by Jerry Bellack. The letter questioned the "numerous" AIDS articles appearing in the Daily Egyptian. He suggested present media coverage was responsible for promoting "AIDS hysteria."

Unfortunately, Bellack has contributed to the publication of misinformation regarding transmission of AIDS. He stated, "penile penetration in a lubricated vagina does not cause lacerations, unlike rough anal intercourse."

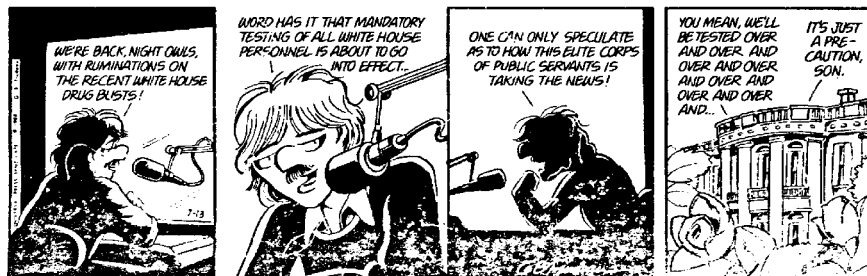

This is not an accurate statement. Penile penetration can and does cause minute tears in the vaginal walls during vaginal intercourse. This provides access for the virus to enter the bloodstream.

Sexual intercourse, anal, oral and vaginal, with an infected partner, male or female, is a known method of transmitting the AIDS virus.

The coverage of AIDS is more extensive than other sexually transmitted diseases because AIDS is more devastating and often fatal.

Education, specifically education aimed at prevention, is the best defense against AIDS and all other sexually transmitted diseases. — Sheila Fatterton and Nancy Williams, graduate students, health education.

Trial postponement for Reiman won't affect Jackson County trial

By John Walby
Staff Writer

Michael Wepsiec, assistant state's attorney for Jackson County, said the postponement of the Johnson County trial for Dale W. Reiman will not affect Reiman's trial in this county on Aug. 29.

Reiman, assistant director of the University's Physical Plant, faces charges in Jackson County for the December 1986 kidnapping and sexual assault of a male University student.

Reiman's trial in Johnson County on a solicitation-to-commit-murder charge ended in a mistrial in March. He was accused of trying to hire a prison inmate from the Shawnee Correctional Center to arrange the murder of the same student who Reiman is accused of kidnapping and sexually assaulting.

Judge James Williamson declared a mistrial in the Johnson County trial when jurors failed to reach a decision.

Defense attorney Richard E. White asked Williamson last week to dismiss the charge against Reiman because it placed Reiman in double jeopardy, which means Reiman would be tried twice for the same crime.

Williamson denied the motion. White then filed a notice to appeal the decision, said Johnson County assistant state's attorney Patrick Prendergast.

The appeal will be heard by the 5th District Appellate Court in Mount Vernon.

If the Circuit Court ruling is not overturned, Reiman will face a second trial in Johnson County, said Prendergast. A date has not been set for the hearing in Mount Vernon.

William Capie, personnel director for the University, said Reiman is on a leave of absence without pay.

Capie also said Reiman has applied to the state university retirement system for some type of disability pay.

Included in the exhibit are small precious objects, interior furnishings and architectural ironwork.

Through the plasticity of the medium, Medwedeff strives to combine the elegance of finely crafted metal with organic qualities observed in nature, while taking care not to compromise the functional aspect of each piece.

"For instance, a fire tool has to feel comfortable in your hand. It has to look the best it can be, and it has to be durable," he said.

"I put a 400-year guarantee on everything I make," Medwedeff said. "That's sort of a joke of mine, but I do try to make things that'll last."

David Trout will be exhibiting large oil paintings on canvas that reflect a strong commitment to color and gesture.

"Color and gesture are two of the main art elements that I use a lot," he said.

Trout's paintings are expressive, figurative and semi-autobiographical, making reference to his experience and background in South Africa.

Trout said the source of much of his work is the landscape forms found in the Cape Town region of South Africa, including its mountains, trees and vegetation.

"The drama takes place in the landscape," he said.

Trout said that all of his paintings have the theme of the traveler, such as the swimmer in the pool, a car or a walking figure.

"It's the idea of moving from one place to another, from the known to the unknown, unexpected," he said.

Trout's work has been exhibited in the United States and South Africa, including a two-by-three meter African landscape piece with half-human figures at the Johannesburg National Gallery in 1985.

An opening reception will be held for the two artists from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday at the University Museum. The public is invited.

He also has sold some of his work in Kassel, West Germany.

"I'm in the process of trying to get an exhibit together in New York," he said.

financial affairs, said. Spokesmen in other departments disagreed. But some said increased costs would be worthwhile if phone service improves.

Doris Brandon, speech communication secretary, said the department will have the same number of phones, but at a higher cost. Each faculty member will have a separate number, which will eliminate all calls coming in through one line, she said.

The system will be more complex and difficult to learn, but more time-efficient, Brandon said.

Shryock Auditorium's phone costs are projected to increase 30 percent, Robert Cerchio, director, said.

Doug Daggett, assistant director of the Student Center, said Service Enterprises was supposed to estimate new phone costs for the Student Center.

"I have yet to see anything come out of their office," Daggett said.

He assumes phone costs will increase for the Student Center because more private lines will be installed, eliminating the switchboard and the multi-extensions.

"It's supposed to cost the University less, but that remains to be seen in my opinion," Daggett said.

Walsh said installation began July 8 in the chancellor's office, and has caused more disruptions there than is expected in other departments.

"It's the guinea pig office," she said.

Walsh said financing for the new system is part of the state's capital budget and is independent of the University. The state's Central Management Systems approved the project and sold revenue bonds to finance the system. Walsh said the University is expected to repay CMS monthly for 10 years.

The Recreation Center is expected to pay no more than $10 or $15 a month for new services, Michael Dunn, director, said. The Recreation Center was budgeted more money for the system.

Robert Jensen, associate dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said he thinks the University is aware of the higher costs for some departments and hopes there will be a re-allocation of funds to prevent department reductions in support costs.

Some departments in the College of Liberal Arts will pay more and some will pay the same, Jensen said. He said it depends on the ratio between the number of phones and incoming lines.

For instance, the psychology department has five lines and 60 phones, so the cost will increase, he said. In departments with five lines and only 15 phones, costs will decrease.

The Daily Egyptian will experience a 35 percent increase for the new system, James Brodell, DE business manager, said. He added that the DE presently pays $440, but will pay $594 under the new proposal.

Brodell said each phone will cost $16.52 and each extension will cost $6.10.

Under the system, party lines will be converted to individual lines so that each phone has a separate number, Brodell said.

"The DE needs 10 outside lines and a switchboard, and I'm not sure that will be offered," he said.

mittee, said the drought has reached a crisis situation and at this point many farmers are facing an almost total wipe-out.

Rep. James F. Rea, (D-Christopher), said he probably won't get much of an opportunity to talk to the president but he believes many of the local farmers questions would address concern over the drought.

"The drought will be the main topic of concern," Rea said, "But I also feel there are other issues that should be addressed.

Rea said that other concerns should be the economy and unemployment of this area; coal legislation, since a large part of our economy is coal related; and opinions by farmers on the farm programs now being implemented by the government.

Lyle Salverson, acting chairman of the department of agribusiness economics, said that farmers will probably be wanting to know if Reagan is planning on securing emergency drought relief for Illinois.

Some of the questions, he said, might be directed toward government price supports and whether government intervention will be necessary to help farmers.

Fitness Center contracts to be voted on, construction costs estimated at $6 million

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

Contracts for construction of the Fitness Center addition to the Student Recreation Center will be voted on by the SIU Board of Trustees at its meeting Thursday.

The Fitness Center will cost almost $6 million to build. The University will sell bonds to generate revenue for the project. The bonds will be paid back with money from recreation fee increases and charges for use of the Recreation Center.

The students recreation fee of $32 was increased $5 per semester last summer and an additional $10 this summer.

It will take about 20 years to repay the bonds, Don Wilson, vice chancellor for financial affairs, said.

Construction of the Fitness Center should begin by the second week in August. Groundbreaking ceremonies will be held Aug. 29, Brian Lukes, coordinator of the Recreation Center, said.

The center should be completed in 12 to 14 months, Lukes said.

It will be opened during the fall semester of 1989, Bill McMinn, coordinator of intramural recreational sports, said.

The low bids for contracts were:

—Kiefner Brothers of Cape Girardeau, with $4,261,000 for general construction.

—Martin Electric of Johnson City, with $309,800 for electrical work.

—Quality Sheet Metal of Carbondale, with $254,400 for ventilation work.

—H & H Mechanical and Electrical Contractors, Inc. of Carbondale, with $151,800 for heating work and $141,275 for plumbing and fire protection.

The project was designed by Hastings and Chivetta, a St.

Louis architectural firm.

The floor plan includes: —A fitness forum with four courts that can be used for tennis, basketball, volleyball and badminton; a 200-meter, six-lane, NCAA regulation running track; pole vault, high jump and long jump areas.

—A jogging track suspended on the upper level.

—A multi-purpose complex which can be used for aerobics, lectures, meetings and receptions.

—A new weight-workout room, in addition to the existing facility, which will contain free weights and resistive training equipment.

—A large outdoor terrace to be used for special events or outdoor exercise.

—Six new handball courts, in addition to the existing courts.

—Two squash courts.

—A fitness room.

—A martial arts room.

—A sports medicine center.

Instructor to teach no-till farming

By Beth Clavin
Staff Writer

A University instructor will advise farmers on how to control soil erosion with no-till farming at the 23rd Farmer Field day in Belleville today. Edward Varsa, instructor in the School of Agriculture, will speak on "Making No-Till Work," at the field day, which begins at 9:30 a.m. The event also features speakers from the University of Illinois.

"No-tillage is a practice in which farmers plant their crop onto an unplanted area," Varsa said. "There is no plowing, discing, or tillage. The residue, or trash, from the previous crop is left and acts as a buffer between the soil surface and falling rain, slowing down the erosion process." The crop residue also blocks evaporation and conserves and helps prevent the soil from drying out, Varsa said. He said no-till also reduces the time it takes to plant the crop because there is no seed bed preparation and it uses less and smaller equipment. Two problems no-till farmers face are getting a "good population" of the crop and weeds. "Weeds tend to grow through the mulch," Varsa said. "Chemical weed control is essential."

Research made easy: Library gets computerized card catalog system

By Laurie Schenk
Student Writer

Morris Library is hooking into a statewide card catalog database system that, officials say, will greatly increase the resources available to library patrons this fall. The Illinois Library Information Network Online is a system made up of 29 Illinois academic libraries and 700 other libraries.

"ILLINET will open up collections to the public we've never had access to before," Jay Starratt, assistant director of library services, said.

It will be quite an improvement on the old method of researching information, one librarian said.

"This will be a statewide data base. It will have access to the Center for Research Libraries, which will be important to graduate students," Carole Palmer, assistant humanities librarian, said.

"It also has the potential to make researching fun," she said.

There will be more access points for sources with the system, allowing researchers to look up material by subject, author or partial title, she said.

"That's a real enhancement," Palmer said. "Right now, it's very difficult to locate a source with a partial title."

The system will be available for use this fall, once the entire catalog is loaded into the database, Starratt said.

"We are going through and weeding out old records before loading it," she said.

A Library Service Training Lab is currently under construction in the Humanities Library where instructional classes will be held to teach the system.

"Classes will be completely different from the existing Library Computer System format," Palmer said. "They will be much more formalized." But, the class is not a requirement, she added. "The new system will have a user-friendly interface so students won't have to learn the commands and fields," she said. "The student will be guided through their search." The system was purchased with funds from federal grants, the Higher Education Cooperative Act and LSCS members. "What we got out of this cop is far greater than what we expected," she said. Starratt said the library's three million volumes should be entered in the system by the end of the month.

Reagan has busy schedule for Southern Illinois visit

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

President Reagan will be stopping in Southern Illinois Thursday to view the drought situation and talk with local farmers.

Air Force One will land at Williamson County Airport at around 9:30 a.m.

Greeting the president will be Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng, Gov. James R. Thompson, and a sea of news media waiting to visit the president on his first visit to the area since he campaigned in Herrin in 1980.

After the president's plane lands, he will leave for the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds on Marine One, a helicopter, at around 9:40 a.m. for a 10:05 a.m. meeting with area farmers.

The president will have an open session with the press at around 10:30 a.m. and head back to Marion to board Air Force One at 11:40 a.m. for the Quad Cities.

David Rubin, press advance man for the White House, said preparations for the president's visit have been under way since last week.

Security personnel arrived last Thursday aboard an Air Force plane, one of many designated for travel by White House staff personnel.

Charles Stoker, manager of Williamson County Airport, said Air Force planes also have flown in this week.

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said the University will have no one at the airport for the President's visit because all the University officials will be in Edwardsville for a Board of Trustees meeting.

Pettit, however, did say that the University has done its share to accommodate White House news staff personnel who had called his office the last few days.

"News staff personnel have contacted the chancellor's office and we have arranged for them to use University buses," Pettit said.

Fast confirmation expected for Thornburgh

(UPI) — Vice President George Bush gave a thumbs up to the choice of former Pennsylvania Gov. Richard Thornburgh as attorney general and top Senate leaders predicted quick confirmation of President Reagan's choice to succeed Edwin Meese.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., member of the Judiciary Committee that will consider the nomination, said he expects "rapid confirmation by a very large majority of the Senate."

"I have the greatest respect for Dick Thornburgh," Kennedy said. "The state of justice in America would be very different today if Dick Thornburgh had been attorney general for the past three and a half years, instead of Ed Meese."

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole also commended the selection, saying, "We think he can be confirmed quickly."

"Dick Thornburgh showed the country what he was made of in 1979 when his state was thrown into near panic by the nuclear accident at Three Mile Island," Dole added. "But Dick never blinked. With cool resolve and strong leadership, Governor Thornburgh delivered when the chips were down and turned a nightmare into a solvable problem."

And Bush, leaving the White House grounds just before the announcement, smiled and gave a thumbs up gesture to shouted questions if Thornburgh was acceptable.

Reagan named the former two-term governor of Pennsylvania to the nation's top law enforcement post Tuesday, a week after Meese announced his resignation.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., GOP leader on the Senate Judiciary Committee, said Thornburgh might be confirmed by mid-August if there is a speedy FBI review and Democrats don't delay.

House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois said Thornburgh's choice was well-received among GOP leaders meeting with Reagan.

The only sour note was sounded by Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., who said, "The right to life movement is going to see this as the second disappointment of the week." He referred to the earlier selection of New Jersey Gov. Thomas Kean as keynote speaker at the Republican National Convention.

"Mr. Thornburgh, as governor of Pennsylvania, like Mr. Kean, opposed right to life legislation," Humphrey, a prominent voice for the anti-abortion movement, said.

Humphrey said he has no quarrel with Thornburgh's qualifications, although he said "thousands" of people are qualified to be attorney general.

Humphrey blamed Bush for both decisions, although Reagan made the selection of Thornburgh.

Career department employees, who have been demoralized by the departmental disarray, hailed the nomination.

U.S. Open champion Strange feels 'pressure' in Britain

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (UPI) — Curtis Strange, always one to put pressure on himself, enters the 117th British Open with the added burden of being the U.S. Open champion.

Coming to Royal Lytham and St. Annes as the 1968 U.S. Open winner means Strange is expected to do well here. Before last month's success at Brookline, Mass., he was just another good player looking for his first major title.

"I think being the best U.S. player puts more pressure on me," he said. "But then I always expect a lot of myself."

His U.S. Open victory boosted him on the computer rankings to the No. 3 in the world behind Greg Norman and Sandy Lyle. Norman missed the British Open, on a course that might have suited him, because of a wrist injury. Lyle is one of the greatest "local" hopes after his win at Sandwich in 1965.

"Anybody would like to be recognized as the best player in the world, but right now I don't think we have a 'Best Player in the World,' we have a handful of players who are very, very close to each other," Strange said. "I think that's healthy, this game of golf is growing so fast, it's so strong right now. People say we don't have one dominant player, we don't have two dominant players — gosh, we must be doing something right."

Strange, 33, seems to be doing most things right on the golf course at the moment. He overcame the pressure of a 18-hole playoff to win the U.S. Open over Nick Faldo, the defending champion here, and then went straight over to Europe for the French Open.

Imposter tries British Open

He said his name was Bo Brit, but actually he was Bo Jest

By Bob Gretz
Kansas City Star and Times

LYTHAM ST. ANNE'S, England — He said his name was Bo Brit. He said he was an American. He said he was a professional golfer.

Right now, the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews isn't sure quite what to believe. All its members know is that an American sullied the qualifying for their British Open championship last weekend.

That is just not done. The Scots have a sense of humor, most often seen in the pubs. When it comes to golf, there is no laughter. They play, talk, live the game with great intensity. Everyone else is expected to react the same way, whether just down the road here in England, or across the Big Pond in the United States.

Especially when it comes to the Open. Maybe only the royal family is placed on a higher pedestal than the Open and the commotion surrounding it. In Great Britain, it's like the World Series or Super Bowl. Even non-golfers and non-golf fans know about it, talk about it, try to pick a winner.

Bo Brit will not soon be forgotten because of what happened here several days ago at the Fairhaven Golf Club. He wanted to qualify for the Open and had sent in an application months ago. With it, he attached a letter confirming him as a member of the PGA of America, the governing body for golf club professionals in the United States.

Because of that letter, Brit was allowed to take part in the qualifying Sunday at Fairhaven, which is just down the road from the Royal Lytham and St. Anne's Golf Club, site of this year's Open.

He showed up wearing cowboy boots and black denim trousers, and he was smoking a skinny cigar. Such attire is seen here only on television. Or, when American tourists show up.

Brit had identified himself as a 46-year-old native of Canada, and the head golf professional at New Mexico State University. (Paul Brilliant, director of golf at New Mexico State, said Monday that Brit was not connected with the university. Brilliant added that he had been contacted by officials of the PGA of America and the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association.)

The Royal and Ancient had dealt with Brit before. Four years ago he took part in qualifying when he identified himself as a pro from Alaska. He quit during the first round after complaining of being ill. Since then, his application had been turned down each time.

Until this year, when it had the PGA of America stamp of approval. The Royal and Ancient approved his request because of the understanding it has with that organization, allowing any PGA of America member to bypass early qualifying rounds.

(Joe Steranka, director of communications of the PGA of America, said Brit had no connection with the organization. "We haven't any member by that name, nor have we ever had," Steranka said.)

Playing with Keith MacDonald of England and Tony Mahoney of Australia, Brit teed off Sunday morning. His opening drive went only 150 yards. His third shot landed in some water left on the course by a morning rain. Brit did not ask for a ruling. He simply plucked the ball out and dropped it, and was slapped with a 1-shot penalty by a trailing official for not handling the drop correctly.

Still, he had just a bogey-4 on the hole, and when he made a par-3 on No. 2, some concerns about him were quieted.

Until No. 3, when he became Bo Jest.

He dribbled his drive off the tee of the 511-yard hole. He dribbled his second shot. His third. Finally his fourth went airborne and reached a greenside bunker.

Not had for the average American duffer, playing the courses of this country for the very first time. But it was in that sand trap where Brit exposed himself as either an imposter or the worst professional golfer in the world.

He swung once. He hit nothing but sand.

He swung again. Sand. Again. Sand.

Again. Finally. The ball flew out of the trap, over the green and landed in a small bush.

It was an unplayable lie. To remove the ball and strike it again, Brit would have been playing his 11th shot on the hole.

He was persuaded to pick up the ball, however, by an official of the Royal and Ancient, if having a man standing next to you with a red face and a desire to choke you could be called persuasion.

"I've seen better swings in a condemned playground," said MacDonald, one of his playing partners. "After the first hole, I asked an official to keep an eye on our game and he said he was already doing so. He just looked a misfit."

"My mum has a better swing and she doesn't even play golf."

Brit had little to say. "Do you think they'd let me try again?" he was quoted as saying as he left the course with red-faced officials. "This has never happened to me before."

It leaves just one question. Who is "me"? Who is Bo Brit?

Promotors singing about Dance

By Jeff Grieser
Staff Writer

Bass fisherman Bill Dance will be featured at the 1989 Spring Sports and Recreation Show February at the Arena.

Dance, who holds 13 national bass titles and is the host of "Bill Dance Outdoors," a nationally syndicated fishing show on ESPN, will be at the three-day event Feb. 4, Jeff Duncan, assistant promotions director for the Arena, said.

"We tried to get him here last year and it didn't work out," Duncan said. "We contacted (Dance) right at the conclusion of last year's show to get him for this year."

A $2,500 retainer was paid to get Dance to Carbondale, and Duncan said that Dance would be paid "a little more than twice that amount."

Dance will give two seminars, walk around to booths and sign autographs, Duncan said.

"He's sponsored by many of these companies, so he'll be visiting the booths," Duncan said.

Dance's appearance should produce an increase in attendance for the 1989 show, the fifth at the Arena, Duncan said.

"The first year we had about 6,500 people," Duncan said. "The last couple of years it's leveled off to between 10,000 and 11,000. We try to make the show diversified, so there is more than just boats. A lot of shows are the same every year, but we try to keep this one new every year, and Bill Dance is a new attraction."

U of I AD resignation follows investigation

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — University of Illinois Athletics Director Neale R. Stoner resigned Tuesday after an investigation confirmed that university maintenance personnel performed work on his house and car, Chancellor Morton W. Weir announced.

Stoner's resignation is effective upon completion of legal agreements. He has also been accused of paying for vacations with athletics department funds.

"After intensive work by our auditors and police investigators, we have confirmed that over a five-year period, approximately $904 of work was performed by athletic personnel on Neale's home, yard and family automobiles," Weir said in a statement.

Weir also said Stoner received dry cleaning services credited as a gift to the athletics association.

"I have stated previously that I believe these are improper," Weir said. "Neale strongly disagrees they are improper. Whether this conduct in and of itself would have warranted his discharge will remain an open question."

Weir concluded Stoner could not be effective as athletics director because of the rampant reports of impropriety.

Weir said the university's investigation showed other rumors to be unsubstantiated, including charges Stoner received loans from the athletics association and received kickbacks on athletics department contracts.

"All of this has hurt Neale Stoner's reputation and the reputation of the university and its athletic programs."

—Morton W Weir

"What is true however is that all of this has hurt Neale Stoner's reputation and the reputation of the university and its athletic programs," Weir said. "It has raised questions about our integrity. It has cast a cloud over the university from which it will probably take years to recover."

The Champaign News-Gazette this weekend published information obtained through the Freedom of Information Act revealing the athletics department paid more than $12,000 in expenses for Stoner and others during a trip to Hawaii when the Illinois basketball team played in a tournament last November. The bill included more than $6,000 for condominium rental for nine people, including Stoner.

The group reportedly left Champaign Nov. 22, five days before the first of three Illinois games in the tournament.

The university was charged $5,000 for airfare for seven of the nine people on the trip as well as $75 each for two rounds of golf for Stoner and five others.

The allegations about the trip, however, was not part of the university's five-week-old investigation.

Stoner became athletic director Nov. 5, 1979 and helped turn Illinois' sports fortunes around. The men's basketball and football teams both claimed Big Ten titles in the 1983-84 academic year.

The football program was placed on probation in 1984 for recruiting violations and kept out of bowl games after that season, when the Illinois finished 7-4.

Field hockey player moves up in Olympic trials

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

Julie Mayor, field hockey defensive player, has made it to the B-level camp of the U.S. Field Hockey Development Camps in preparation for the U.S. National team.

Mayor was selected as a top player at the C-level camp on the basis of her playing ability. The camps go in order from C camp, the first level, to A camp where the members of the national team are selected.

Mayor is participating in B camp at Ohio State University. Sixty of 200 players will be selected to go to A camp in December, Juliee Illner, women's field hockey coach, said.

"This next step is a big one. The ones who make A camp will be on the squad to be trained for the next Olymppics," Illner said.

"I would say she's in the middle of the pack, but she will improve. Her age gives her a break," Illner said. Mayor is 20 years old.

Mayor said from Ohio State that she is feeling confident, but that she couldn't tell if she would make it to A camp because of all of the good competition.

"I won't be crushed if I don't make it this year. My goal was to make it to B camp this summer, and I will try again next year," she said.

Mayor was selected for C camp last year, but was injured during the camp. A knee sprain prevented her from playing the first third of last season, Illner said.

Mayor has played for the University for three years, and will return next season. She is a senior in physical education.

Unrestricted free agency key to NFL contract negotiations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — NFL Players Association chief Gene Upshaw said Tuesday he would reopen contract talks with league management only if the owners soften their stand against unrestricted free agency.

U.S. District Judge David Doty Monday turned down the union's motion for a preliminary injunction that would have made more than 250 players unrestricted free agents able to join any of the 28 NFL teams.

The judge, in paving the way for a protracted legal battle in the union's antitrust suit against the league, also said it is "probable that the players will prevail at trial" in their quest to declare the NFL's restrictive player reserve system illegal and collect millions of dollars in damages.

In his ruling, Doty urged the sides to resolve their differences at the bargaining table instead of the courtroom. The NFL Management Council

Executive Committee, the powerful policy-making body for the owners, then demanded that the union "resume bargaining at the earliest possible date."

But Upshaw, the executive director of the NFLPA, said in an interview Tuesday there was no reason to reopen talks unless owners are willing to expand the current restrictive free agency system and allow the eventual free movement of players.

The collective bargaining agreement expired last Aug. 31, three weeks before the players launched an ill-fated 24-day strike.

"I have never refused to meet with management," Upshaw said. "What I have asked continuously is, 'Has their position changed?' and, 'At what point will the players be free?' The last answer I got was they haven't changed their position."

"We would have to meet in the context of settling the lawsuit and whatever we would agree on would mirror a collective bargaining agreement," Upshaw said. "We don't get to a collective bargaining agreement first and then settle a lawsuit."

Upshaw revealed that the two sides had unsuccessfully discussed an out-of-court settlement for the suit on June 15, two days before Doty ruled the two sides had reached a bargaining "impasse." Upshaw was a witness Tuesday at a National Labor Relations Board hearing on the union's effort to gain $20 million in back pay lost during the weekend lockout after the strike.

The owners last proposal on free agency retained a team's right of first refusal — the ability of a team to match any offers to one of its unsigned veterans — and "liberalized" the compensation system by lowering the levels of draft choices due a team if one of its free agents changes teams.

Intramurals canceled after Tuesday's rain

Several Intramural Sports Recreation games were canceled because of Tuesday's rain.

The 18-hole golf tournament, which was to be held at the Crab Orchard Golf Club Tuesday, was postponed until Thursday. Participants in the tournament will tee off at their originally scheduled times.

Six softball games were canceled because of muddy playing fields. Monday's scheduled games continued despite threatening skies and damp, slick grass. In that series, the Motor Kings overcame the Demods 14-7, Frat Posse won over the Frat Rats 16-6 in the fifth inning, the Untouchables touched the Skydogs with a close score of 9-7, the Constrictors and Roadrunners tied 6-6 and the Registrars defaulted in their contest with the Happy Campers.

All teams were credited with having won a game, according to intramural rules.

Intramural volleyball and basketball league games, which were moved to the courts behind Lesar Law Building when floor repair on the Recreation Center's court began Monday, were canceled Monday and Tuesday because of slick playing surfaces. Intramural sports coordinator Sarah Simonson said.

All teams were recorded as having won, according to intramural rules, Simonson said.
