229 feared dead in plane crash

Newsday

MORICHES, N.Y.—A TWA jetliner bound for Paris with 229 people aboard exploded in flight Wednesday night just after taking off from Kennedy Airport and plunged into the Atlantic Ocean, killing everyone aboard.

Trans World Airlines Flight 800 had climbed to approximately 13,800 feet when federal aviation officials lost radar contact with the Boeing 747-100 about 8:45 p.m. EDT, just as witnesses on the south shore of Long Island reported seeing a bright fireball light up the darkening sky.

"I looked at the bay and saw a reflection on the water, then I looked up and I saw a big orange fire all falling into the ocean," said Robert Siriani, who was strolling outside his parents' home in Mastic Beach. "I'd say it was one hundred feet wide and a couple of hundred feet long, the whole thing was flames, the flames were so bright I didn't see anything else."

The flaming wreckage then plummeted into the dark waters about 9 miles south of Moriches Inlet, triggering a grim and massive search over five square miles of debris in the open ocean that continued even after the Coast Guard announced at 1:45 a.m. that there were no survivors.

"Bodies are being recovered. There are no signs of survivors at all," said Chief Petty Officer John Chindblom of the Coast Guard office in Moriches. Both professional and volunteer rescuers who had converged on the scene found mostly body parts strewn among the torn seat cushions and mangled metal.

The pessimistic news left frantic family members at Kennedy Airport scrambling for information and searching for solace.

Jose Fermin of Brooklyn was running around, trying to find out if there was any chance his brother, Alberto, might be alive. "My mother wanted to come with me," he said. "She's crying and crying."

Alberto Fermin of Manhattan had been working two jobs, saving money for his long-dreamed-of vacation to France. "I didn't see him very often because he was working almost seven days a week," said his sister, Maria, while waiting for news at her mother's Brooklyn home. "He had been saving money for this vacation. He just wanted to see France."

The cause of the crash was still not known last night, and officials cautioned against jumping to conclusions. Speculation focused on the possibility of a terrorist attack two days before the opening of the Olympic Games in Atlanta.

A top Clinton administration official said late Wednesday night that no warnings were received from any group, and there is absolutely

Van Rossum named new academic liaison

By Signe K. Skinion
DE Government/Politics Editor

University Housing is adding a new staff member to help students and faculty work together on increasing SIUC's educational experience, University officials say.

Charles Van Rossum, Student Development coordinator, said he will be the new academic liaison for University Housing beginning Aug. 1.

"There is still a great deal to be worked out on what my job specifications are and what my exact title is going to be, but my main focus is to enhance the learning experience for both students living on campus and the teachers trying to help them," he said.

Van Rossum said because of the consolidation of the University Programming Office and Student Development this semester, he will not continue as Student Development coordinator.

Ed Jones, University Housing director, said Van Rossum's new position is one of the changes his department is making to help students.

"When you involve students directly with the classroom outside of class time, the students persist and graduate at a higher rate," he said. "By creating a position that deals with only helping students and faculty work together on a personal, academic level, we're helping get that contact."

Van Rossum said he will be concentrating on creating more dialogue between Student Affairs and University Housing.

"We need to have open discussions on how we, as faculty, can help enhance the learning outside the classrooms in the residence halls," he said. "If we can start that dialogue and work with the students at the

Search underway for new associate grad school dean

By Jennifer Camden and Melissa Jakubowski
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Finding a new graduate school associate dean who will inform the school's constituency groups of graduate school policy is the goal of the graduate school associate dean search committee, members say.

M. Harry Daniels, graduate school associate dean, said he is leaving Aug. 2 to chair the counselor education department at the University of Florida at Gainesville.

John Yopp, graduate school dean, said he outlined what he wanted in an associate dean at the search committee's first meeting Thursday. He said the internal search for a new, permanent associate dean has been sped up because of Daniels' impending resignation.

"We're looking for someone sensitive to the needs of graduate students, experienced in advising graduate students, and sensitive to gender and ethnic issues," Yopp said. "He or she should know the University and its graduate programs, because they're going to have to step in here in very short order and start functioning as associate dean."

Yopp said the committee is

CIPS closing Carbondale office

By Julie Bury
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Despite other area Central Illinois Public Service walk-up payment counters closing earlier, the Carbondale office will remain open until Oct. 11 to serve SIUC students.

CIPS Spokeswoman Lynne Galia said Carbondale's "student rush" to sign up for CIPS energy service every fall was a big factor in the company's decision to continue walk-in service for customers until Oct. 11. Other area walk-in payment services at Benton and Marion will close on Aug. 2 and Sept. 6, respectively.

"Off-campus students certainly comprise a significant part of the business CIPS does in Carbondale," she said. "We knew we couldn't discontinue walk-in service yet, not with all of the students who would be coming back signing up for CIPS in the fall."

Some SIUC students have mixed feelings about the changes in walk-in payment service.

Summer Osborne, a sophomore in music education from Quincy, said her roommate mails her CIPS bill in for her.

"Thirty-two cents to mail a bill is not much of an inconvenience," she said. "I never thought about walking my bill in, but I suppose it could

INTERNAL RELIGIOUS POLITICS IN IRELAND POOR — BELFAST, Ireland — There are no back-room politics in Northern Ireland. Nor, for that matter, are there front-room politics, since there is no self-government in the British-ruled territory. As a result, deals do not get made between the Protestant majority and the Catholic minority, and their disputes do not get sealed. They do not even get papered over or face-savvily fudged. The last two weeks have made the consequences of that situation painfully clear, nearly two years into a peace process that had raised hopes that years of sectarian violence and hatred were approaching a final chapter. The leader of the largest Protestant political party refused to hold a conversation about a parade route through a Catholic neighborhood with a local residents association that might have prevented an orgy of violence. Instead, he led thousands of his brethren in a five-day confrontation with the police. At the same time, the leader of the largest Catholic party walked out of a peace forum to which he was elected, saying it was a waste of time. He stalked off to Dublin to voice his complaints to the prime minister of Ireland, who has no formal authority here.

ADVISORY PANEL TO CONSIDER ABORTION PILL — WASHINGTON — The nation's long-running battle over abortion moves to a new stage Friday. An advisory panel of the Food and Drug Administration will meet at a suburban Maryland hotel to consider an application to market mifepristone, the abortion pill also known as RU-486. The drug, which is strongly opposed by antiabortion groups, allows doctors to induce abortions without surgery. AHT was founded late last year for the purpose of marketing mifepristone and future reproductive technologies. It received the U.S. license to market the drug free of charge from the Population Council, a New York-based reproductive health research organization; which in turn got the license in May 1994 from the pharmaceutical company now known as Hoechst Marion Roussel in an agreement brokered by the FDA. Wanda Franz, president of the Nation Right to Life Committee, called mifepristone "an important, front-burner issue for us." In an interview, Franz said that the risks associated with the drug have been underplayed by abortion rights proponents.

DOLE PROPOSES SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM — MILWAUKEE — Bob Dole Thursday proposed an ambitious scholarship program that would allow poor and middle-class students to use federal grants to pay for tuition at public, private or religious schools. Speaking in a city that has pioneered the idea of using public dollars to send inner-city children to private schools, the presumptive Republican presidential nominee for the second time in as many days attacked an "education monopoly" of unions and bureaucrats that he said prohibits competition among schools and stifles excellence. Dole proposed cash scholarships of at least $1,000 dollars for elementary students and $1,500 for high school, with half of the money coming from Washington and half from the states. He said $2.5 billion of federal money would be taken from existing Department of Education funds. Together with state matching funds, Dole said his "opportunity scholarship" program will help more than 4 million students, about 10 percent of all children in elementary and secondary schools.

Dioxin risk unclear as area prepares for burn

By Colleen Heraty
Daily Egyptian Reporter

A preliminary risk assessment recently completed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency estimates that potential cancer risks from the inhalation of dioxins from a local incinerator will affect some persons more than others.

The Crab Orchard Superfund site houses an incinerator that was installed to burn P-βs (polychlorinated biphenyls), in turn producing a toxic chemical called dioxin.

The risk assessment evaluates risks from both direct and indirect exposures due to potential releases from the incinerator during and after the burn period, said Nan Gowda, EPA remedial project manager.

Direct exposure includes inhalation of airborne contaminants, whereas indirect exposure includes the incidental ingestion of soil, consumption of fruits and vegetables, beef, fish, drinking water, and breast milk, he said.

Three primary human populations were studied: a local resident, a subsistence farmer, and a recreational fisher. The exposure of nursing infants to dioxin in breast milk was also evaluated for each potentially exposed adult population.

The risk assessment estimates that the .002 ounces of dioxin expected to be released will increase a subsistence farmer and a recreational fisher's risk for cancer by one in one million, as compared to the every day risk.

The estimated cancer risks for area residents was found by the EPA's study to be less than one in ten million.

Dioxins can be very toxic, but the risks are minimal with exposure in very small amounts. Dwain Winters, a dioxin specialist for the EPA, said.

"We are all exposed to dioxin every day by breathing and through the food chain," Winters said.

He said close to 99 percent of dioxin comes to us in our food. Fatty meat and dairy products have more dioxin because dioxin sticks to fat, Winters said.

He said dioxin does not leave our systems very easily because the longer people live the more dioxin will accumulate in the body.

Chair inspires lives of many

By Christi C. Harber
Daily Egyptian Reporter

From political campaigns to owning broadcasting companies, one SIUC department chair has done so much yet continues to give through teaching.

Mike Starr, chair, professor and director of graduate studies in radio-television, began teaching at SIUC in 1988 after two open heart surgeries.

"My doctor told me I had to sell my business (Starr Broadcasting Company) and do something else," Starr said. "One day I got a phone call from Leo Gher (radio-television professor) and he asked me if I ever thought about teaching in Carbondale. I looked at the atlas to see where it was, and it was close to relatives so I came."

Joe Foote, dean of the College of Mass Communication and Media Arts, said he hired Starr because he had excellent credentials and teaching potential.

"Professor Starr quickly developed into one of the most outstanding teachers at this University," Foote said. "Although he had 30 years professional experience, he came in three months early to prepare for his classes. I use him as a model for people coming in to teach."

Tamaria Hattix, a senior in radio-television from Memphis, Tenn., said Starr was the first person who gave her a sincere chance in the department.

"He has been a true inspiration throughout my college career," Hattix said. "The relationship I have with him feels like we are friends and he respects me as an adult."

Starr said he has had several good opportunities at SIUC.

"Since coming to SIUC, I have been able to co-author a text book, do Mississippi America (national PBS documentary), help set up Federal Communications Commission licensing in South Africa, work with talented professors and students and a host of other things," Starr said.

Before Starr's teaching career bloomed he was involved in politics.

At age 11, Starr worked for Dwight Eisenhower's campaign in Minnesota. He was photographed in Life magazine hanging up posters prior to the 1952 presidential election.

Starr said he is most proud of the work he did the summer before he graduated from law school when he joined the Lawyers Guild in 1964 to work for Freedom Summer in Mississippi.

During the Freedom Summer, Starr worked on the mysterious murders of three lawyers, Surber, Goodman and Chaney, who were a part of the guild.

Sunset Concerts

To say the least, the International Reggae All-Stars were not prepared for what it encountered at Thursday's Sunset Concert at Shryock Auditorium, but made up for it in the long run.

The band was 30 minutes late in starting due to its car overheating, and was not prepared for the hot, humid conditions it performed in.

"It's hot, I wasn't ready for this," band leader Markiss said while wearing his blue jeans and heavy shirt. "It's great though, I didn't know Carbondale was this much fun. It kicks ass."

The late start and mellow introduction tunes may have turned a lot of concert-goers off early, but the band picked up the tempo and the party by its fifth tune. The first few songs seemed too instrumental and mellow for the crowd and John Tesh could have rocked harder, but in all fairness, the band had to warm up.

The music transformed from the slower tempos used to warm up to the slightly quicker, skaish sounds reminiscent of pop-group and MTV favorite No Doubt.

Luckily for the ears of the audience, IRAS quickly found its rhythm and began to fulfill its expectations of one of the best touring reggae bands.

"The second set is going to be great," Markiss said during the band's intermission. "We just had to loosen up. We got here late because of car troubles. It was the radiator, or something. Whatever it is you put water in."

By 8 p.m. the band had the entire crowd dancing and grooving to its music, and true to the band's promise, the party had started.

While reggae may not be known for its guitar playing, Markiss provided a steady reggae rhythm with some added funk-like fills to jazz the music up.

The group covered everything from Bob Marley to Al Green, always adding a reggae edge to it, and most importantly it did not play the most popular cover songs so many reggae bands are known for doing, keeping its set original and unpredictable.

While the crowd may not have been as large as last year's chaotic 5,000-person attendance, the estimated 2,500 people present all seemed to have a good time.

Interns get careers rolling at workshop

By Julie Rendleman
Daily Egyptian Reporter

She said the Center received 64 student applications.

"First we went by their majors to see what they were going to study then their grade point average," she said. "We looked at their applications and reference letters if there were still questions."

SIUC's Center for Advanced Friction Studies is hosting interns from four different colleges to teach them about hands-on experimental laboratory research in brake performances, an SIUC official says.

Karen Palmer, research product specialist with the Materials Technology Center, said the center opened April and is funded by the American Science Foundation.

"As part of our funding, our emphasis has to be on participation and learning opportunities for students," she said.

Palmer said fliers for the four internships were sent to all Engineering Co-op offices in the United States and all faculty advisors for numerous student sections of engineering societies.

Manohar Kulkarni, assistant professor in mechanical engineering and energy processes, said the interns have been at SIUC for six weeks and have studied under four professors, including him.

Kulkarni said the interns are from New York, South Carolina, Nebraska and Louisiana.

"They will be here until August 6," he said. "I was enrolled right from the start at the Center under Maurice Wright. I was one of the six faculty associates and I volunteered to teach

Shepherd's exit not a signal for other chancellors

PROVOST BENJAMIN SHEPHERD, FOLLOWING his own resignation this week, has suggested that the other vice chancellors do the same. If the vice chancellors are not willing to work with Don Beggs, who will be chancellor this fall, then they should resign. The inability to work with the chancellor can impede the progress of the University. However, the vice chancellors should do what is best for the University.

Shepherd said it was time for him to move on, to return to teaching. However, leaving may not be the best choice for the other vice chancellors. Shepherd said it would be a professional courtesy for them to step down for the new chancellor. Why? They should work along side Beggs and implement the policies as they would have with Guyon. Perhaps the vice chancellors who have worked under Guyon will not agree with the new chancellor on all matters. That is no reason to leave. Discourse should occur between the office of the vice chancellors and the chancellor. The vice chancellors who carry out policies are not to be the puppets of the chancellor. They should work with the chancellor's plans and offer communication along with the representative bodies in the SIUC community to reach decisions that are best for the future of the University.

OBVIOUSLY BEGGS WILL NOT HAVE THE SAME ideas or objectives as Guyon. Beggs and Chancellor John Guyon did not agree on all matters. In 1988, Beggs was one of the three candidates for the then vice president of academic affairs.

Beggs spoke out against a policy that Guyon adhered to concerning the summer budget. Beggs will not have the same ideas as Guyon, however that is no reason for the vice chancellors to resign. It is a chance for them to work on new ideas for the University.

PRESIDENT TED SANDERS HAS SAID BEGGS will want to choose a new administrative staff and that this is natural for a new chancellor. If that is the case, then in two years there will be another shift with a whole new staff. Searching for new vice chancellors each time there is a new chancellor is a waste of time and money on the University's behalf. If the theory is true, then why did Sanders not replace everyone underneath him? Change of personnel, if it is to occur, should be gradual. However, the positions should not be vacated in two years along with Beggs.

New vice chancellors do not come and go with the chancellor. Not every chancellor comes in and appoints a new administration staff. Guyon did not.

THE CHANCELLOR SHOULD COME IN AND work with the current staff to carry out policy and ideas that assist the University. The vice chancellors should be committed to the University. Their choices should address what is best for the institution. If Beggs has different ideas, then we should all be prepared to hear them. But the vice chancellors should consider the motive behind resigning and do what is

Welfare bill cuts out immigrants

Los Angeles Times

Tucked into the Republicans' welfare reform package in Congress is a wide-ranging proposal to cut benefits and social services to most immigrants who are legally in the United States but who have not yet become citizens. Under the proposal, Washington, which is seeking ways to finance federal welfare reform, would shift billions of dollars in costs to states and counties. The provision should be rejected.

Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla., plans to offer an amendment to the bill to strike out restrictions on public benefits to legal immigrants. A host of eligibility issues ranging from student aid to Medicaid for legal immigrants already is part of a separate immigration bill now in conference committee. The two issues should be handled separately.

help finance the costs of reform by cutting $23 billion over six years in benefits to legal immigrants, including children and the elderly. This would be an unfair and punitive move against legal immigrants who have played by the rules.

The bill would make most legal immigrants now in the country ineligible for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and food stamps. Future legal immigrants (except for refugees and asylum seekers) would be ineligible for most other federal means-tested benefits (including AFDC and nonemergency Medicaid services) during their first five years in the country.

The cutbacks would disproportionately hit California, Florida, New York and Texas, the states with the biggest immigrant populations. California alone could lose $10 billion, or about 40 percent of the proposed $23 billion in benefit reductions. Those ineligible for such benefits would have to turn elsewhere for aid.

The immigration bill now under consideration already includes $5.6 billion in savings from tightening eligibility requirements for legal immigrants on a variety of federal programs, including Medicaid. The attempt to use welfare reform to slip through further curbs on public assistance to legal immigrants should be called what it is — a deplorable money grab by Washington that can only hurt California.

California alone could lose $10 billion, or about 40 percent of the proposed $23 billion in benefit reductions. Those ineligible for such benefits would have to turn elsewhere for aid. In Los Angeles County, for example, if all affected SSI recipients sought general assistance relief instead it would cost the county $236 million annually. The cost shifting could have potentially disastrous results for the already fiscally strapped county.

Republicans turn Dole into whipping boy

Newsday

Panic is never a pretty sight, but the number of Republican leaders publicly and privately hyperventilating about the wretchedness of Bob Dole's performance as their presumptive nominee is particularly unseemly.

The rush of Republican fault-finding is led by Sen. Al D'Amato, R-N.Y., who whined that Dole's campaign — of which he is supposed to be co-chairman — is "unfocused." The usual Republican columnists and commentators are piling on with uncommon savagery. George Will accused Dole of having "trivialized" himself. The unkindest cut of all came from Mississippi Gov. Kirk Fordice, who complained that Dole — the man who wants to articulate the hopes of the party — "is not the most articulate person in the world." Rep. Peter King, R-N.Y., defended these critics, saying they were just trying to send a message to their guy, much, I guess, as you might shout into an old man's hearing aid.

Whatever is wrong, the theory seems to be that however much the public was turned off by D'Amato's performance as the party ethics czar during the Whitewater hearings, it can't be D'Amato's fault. And even if his negative ratings dwarf Dole's, it can't be House Speaker Newt Gingrich's fault. It can't be that the party has become too identified with extremist elements Dole has long held in great contempt. It can't be the sometimes feeble, sometimes scary record of the 104th Congress. It can't be the good fortune of President Clinton to be presiding over an economy that is strengthening in uncanny lock-step with the election cycle. It must be Bob Dole's fault.

His friends seem to think Dole has — through either: mishandling, incompetence, miscalculation, indolence or befuddlement — failed to get his "message" across. But Dole, for all his virtues, is not a message man. Dole, if he is presidential at all, is marketable as a man whose untrembling hand you want on the tiller, not somebody for yelling messages into the wind. Try to make him a message man and he will sound like an itinerant carnival barker.

The party wisdom is that Dole must change, must be something he isn't in the service of his party. Well, what there is to like about Bob Dole is Bob Dole — the dihering, tireless, laconic, mildly amused, mildly outraged, rarely histrionic person most of us would hope to be if forced into the foolishness of a presidential campaign and surrounded by media hyenas. Change him and you'd get some contrived mutation with the sincerity of a billie goat and the appeal of a fence post.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Board.

Letters to the editor must be submitted in person to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communication Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 350 words. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty members by rank and department, or non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

reviewing applications from SIUC graduate faculty members this week. He said the committee will meet Monday to compile a short list for him.

Yopp said he will then interview top candidates and hopes to have a decision by Aug. 1.

Sarah Blackstone, SIUC associate theater professor and the search committee chair, said the associate dean attends the Graduate Council's meetings and tells the council the school's debates, problems and issues, helping to set the group's agenda.

"We depend on the associate dean to keep everyone on the same page," said Blackstone, the search committee's Graduate Council representative.

H. Paul LeBlanc III, a graduate in speech communications from Baton Rouge, La. and the search committee's GPSC representative, said the new associate dean will also have a crucial role in forming his organization's agenda.

"What would be most helpful for us would be getting someone who would inform us about graduate school policy issues that may be looming on the horizon," he said. "For example, if the Illinois Board of Higher Education is considering something that would directly affect graduate students and we find out about it, we have more time to affect policy."

Yopp said the new associate dean will work with IBHE's officers in its Priorities, Quality and Productivity initiative, which recommended

SIUC's cuts in the graduate degrees it offers.

He said the new dean will also work to increase female and minority graduate enrollment.

Daniels said he is leaving SIUC because his job required him to work solely as an administrator. At the University of Florida, he said, he will teach one course each semester and have administrative duties similar to his as an SIUC associate dean.

Daniels said his duties at the graduate school included handling students' admissions and records, financial aid, fellowships and grievances, and analyzing data for the school. He said he is looking forward to doing less paperwork.

"Here at SIUC, approximately 3,500 students' papers pass through my desk," he said. "In my new position, I'll only be dealing with students in my department."

venience to the bill payers to have the drop-off location changed."

Galina said customers will be receiving notification of the changes in service in the mail and details of how they can sign up for service in the future once they have been decided by CIPS.

Harry McLeod, Carbondale CIPS Area Office superintendent, said because of cost-cutting objectives and a desire to streamline the company's operations the Carbondale area office will no longer be open for customers to pay their bill on a walk-in basis beginning Oct. 11.

Galina said there are no immediate staff layoffs because of the office's closing, but some staff members may be relocated to other positions.

Instead, customers will pay their bills using a return envelope provided with the monthly billing sent to their homes or go to local banks including the Bank of Carbondale, Charter Bank, First National Bank & Trust, Magna Bank, and First Bank.

Jennifer Fleming, a junior in court reporting from Plano, said she always pays her bill in person at the CIPS office.

"I always walk in to pay my bill, the responsible thing to do is to see that your money gets there," she said. "I think it's a bit of an inconsame time, we can help the University reach its educational mission."

Van Rossum said the dialogue will help, but helping students learn and be successful at SIUC is his primary goal this semester.

"I hope to make it possible for students to be better and graduate on time," he said. "I want to see students get more involved in campus life, particularly in realizing all the chances they have on campus, through class organizations and registered student organizations, and make some sense of all they can do and use in the classroom."

Beth Scally, University Housing coordinator of marketing and public information, said she is looking forward to Van Rossum joining the housing staff.

"I think his job is going to make housing a stronger learning environment, and more exciting for students and us," she said.

Van Rossum said although he will be focusing on education, he will not be forcing students to study.

"I don't want to see all the floors become study halls, but try to bridge what students are doing in class to how they are living in the residence halls," he said. "Really, I'm trying to create a balance in learning, whether it be living in the residence halls, being in a fraternity or learning in class."

no evidence at this point that the attack was from a terrorist bomb. But James Kallstrom of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's New York office announced at 1:25 a.m. Thursday that the bureau was taking over the investigation under the aegis of its joint terrorism task force with the New York Police Department. Sources familiar with the investigation said agents were already poring over the passenger manifest to see if there were any suspicious people or potential terrorist targets on the plane, and questioning pilots of planes in the air nearby at the time of the incident. In addition, agents were contacting informants—"everybody we know"—around the world to see if they have any information on threats against TWA or U.S. citizens.

In addition, U.S. Transportation Secretary Federico Pena and FAA Administrator David Hinson were expected to arrive Thursday to help with the investigation. And the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, which has expertise in explosives, was sending agents to help in the investigation, said John Pitta, the head of the ATF Long Island office.

Officials with the Federal Aviation Administration said the plane had arrived in New York from Athens as Flight 881 about three hours before it left for Paris. The plane was a 747-100, which has been flying since the 1970s and is the oldest series of the model flying, according to officials. TWA said the plane was bound for Charles de Gaulle Airport outside Paris with 212 passengers, 14 flight attendants and three pilots.

AVAILABILITY SESSIONS TO DISCUSS THE PCB CLEANUP AT THE CRAB ORCHARD WILDLIFE REFUGE

THE SESSIONS WILL BE HELD ON

Wednesday, July 24 and Thursday, July 25
2:00pm to 4:00pm and 7:00pm to 9:00pm (both days) at Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge visitors Center
Route 148, 2 miles south of Old Route 13

The PCB cleanup at the refuge will continue with the contractor starting the "mini-burn" on the mobile incinerator to insure that it will operate properly for the scheduled August trial burn. This mini-burn will be conducted in late July. U.S. EPA has also concluded a risk assessment on the risks associated with incinerating PCB's at the refuge. Representatives from U.S. EPA, the Fish and Wildlife Service and the contractor conducting the cleanup will be available to answer community questions in an informal manner at these sessions. There will not be any formal presentations at these sessions.

the interns." Kulkarni said they are doing a two week rotation with the students and five professors will get a chance to teach the students.

"I have been very pleased with their progress," he said. "They seem very eager to learn."

Kulkarni said he is teaching the students thermal analysis in braking.

"That means investigating different thermal issues like temperature rise, thermal stresses and different braking applications," he said.

Kulkarni said it is very important for students to get internships while still in college.

"I am strongly in favor of internships," he said. "They are not only a good professional experience but are more of an insight to what they are learning and how it is applicable." Rick Schmidt, a senior in mechanical engineering from the University of South Carolina, said he is staying in the dorms while he is here.

Schmidt said he applied for the internship to get job experience. "When it is time to get a job, you have to have experience," he said. "I am getting experience working with people not just on my own."

Mike Hulling, a senior in ceramic engineering science and physics at New York State College, said he has learned a lot about carbon deposit brakes.

"This has been a very intense and exciting experience," he said. "The professors have been really great and have helped us a lot."

Hulling said he saw a flicker about the internship and decided to apply.

"It looked like a good experience over the summer," he said. "I wanted to get some work experience besides working for professors."

Hulling said the interns have toured the area while at SIUC.

"We went and saw the Garden of the Gods, Little Grand Canyon and went horseback riding," he said.

Starr

Along with investigating the murders, Starr helped to get people out of jail, did field work and transported attorneys working with the Lawyers Guild from town to town in Mississippi.

After graduation from law school, Starr was drafted to the U.S. Air Force to fight in the Vietnam War, where he began to practice law.

In 1975, he was appointed by President Gerald Ford to serve as a member of the Federal Energy Administration, predecessor of the Department of Energy for the United States.

In 1974, Starr ran unsuccessfully for Senate in Louisiana and for Congress in Illinois 1992.

Starr said he ran for political offices because he is concerned with the national deficit. "By the time my children had a family the deficit would be so great they would not be able to have a life after taxes," he said.

In addition to his political pursuit, Starr owned two broadcasting companies with his brother Peter and friend William F. Buckley Jr.

"After I got out of the Air Force, we bought a broadcasting company, Starr Broadcasting, and sold it to the Disney Family in 1980," Starr said.

During his busy life he was able to make time for his family, Starr said.

"After 55 years of living, ultimately the largest achievement in my life is that I was blessed with a nice family," Starr said. "All the money in the world can't buy a good family."

James Starr, his eldest son, said he is proud to have Starr as his father.

"I hope that I will be able to make the same positive impression on my children that my father has made on me," James said. "In my quest for education and business, he has always been someone I can talk to and gain advice from."

Starr said he has lived a full life, met several people, such as Vice President Dan Quayle, President George Bush, President Richard Nixon, President Gerald Ford and hopes he has made a difference for someone along the way.

"Sometimes I feel like Forest Gump—I know a lot of people, but no one very well," Starr said.

officials said.

Davis said in the decades since the bombs were manufactured, the hazardous material has moved down into several drainage ditches and into Crab Orchard Lake.

The waste has spread three-quarters of a mile within the past 30 years, Davis said.

"There doesn't appear to be a very dramatic movement, but the PCBs are moving, and without taking action they will continue to move and spread into the lake," Davis said.

Winters said they have looked at incineration generically as a technology for burning these kinds of wastes.

"We have seen it not only as appropriate technology, but in most cases the most appropriate," Winters said.

Rose Rowell, of the Southern Coalition on Protecting the Environment, said she has done extensive research on dioxin.

"The risk factor the EPA has provided is inadequate to protect public health because it is not based on documented scientific facts, but theories and assumptions," Rowell said.

She said there are no scientific studies which say any level of exposure to dioxin is safe.

"There is more documented evidence out there that says there is more cancer and birth defects affecting people who live around incinerators," Rowell said.

Before a final assessment is made, the "shakedown process" is being used to test the incinerator, although no public notice of these trial burns of contaminated soil have been given,

Davis said.

"The shakedown process initially starts with using uncontaminated soil to test the mechanics and then we move into contaminated material at different grades for different periods of time," Davis said.

He said the shakedown is necessary since in the past few months, problems have already occurred.

A fire occurred in June when a fan, which draws air through the system, failed. It allowed the flame from the kiln burner to roll back on to the rubber conveyor belt that feeds material into a kiln, causing it to catch fire.

The system did not shut down automatically, but after the fire they have now programmed it to do so, Davis said. He said there have also been mechanical problems such as bearing failures.

After public availability sessions in late July, Davis said they will begin to feed some higher concentration PCBs (6,000 parts per million) through the incinerator.

"Now until the end of August we are looking at operating as few as eight and as many as 16 days, but not full-time 24-hours a day, every day," Davis said.

A trial burn, using a mixture of contaminated soils is scheduled for the end of August. After four public information sessions in late July, the EPA will conduct a minimum which will provide new data to recalculate risks, according to a statement released by the EPA.

The sessions will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. on July 24 and 25 at the refuge visitors center on Illinois 148, south of Illinois 13.

The risk assessment study is on file at the refuge visitors' center, Morris Library, the Carbondale Public Library, and the Marion Public Library.

Archery competition designed for crowds

By Bruce S. Lorenzana
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Organizers of a sanctioned three-day archery tournament in Southern Illinois expect to attract 2,500 competitors and spectators this weekend to what they hope to be an annual event, event officials said.

Amidst 200 acres of the normally tranquil Lake Mernmet Conservation Area, the Archery Shooter's Association (ASA), will oversee the sixth of seven tournaments scheduled this year before the championship rounds begin.

With more than 1,450 competitors taking part in 16 different men's, women's and youth divisions, including the ASA Hunter division, for the novice archer, tournament officials expect more than 64,000 special alloy arrows to be shot at foam-filled, three-dimensional, life-sized targets placed throughout the woods.

Each target has three small scoring areas drawn on the target's side. The ASA, with 38,000 members worldwide is becoming the fastest-growing competitive sport in the world, according to Dave Foster, the local ASA representative.

The Southernmost Illinois Tourism Bureau, working with the Illinois Department of Natural Resources, will be the host for the local area's first tournament.

Clyde Wills, chairman of the board for the Illinois Tourism Bureau, said it took a year between the time they submitted the area for sanctioning from the ASA, and final approval.

"What we hope to do this weekend is to have an excellent event so that they'll be coming back in future years and continuing to bring people to Southernmost Illinois for many types of events," Wills said.

"They (ASA) require several hundred acres of woods plus 20 acres for parking, he said. "There was a lot of site prep work such as setting up targets and roping off areas.

With an anticipated boon to the local economy of more than $1.5 million, officials are hoping their tournament site is chosen each year.

"With 2,600 acres and all of the local lodging and good access roads, the association found no fault with our site, said Carol Hoffman, Sales Manager for the Tourism Bureau.

Of several area sites nominated, ASA inspectors found Lake Mernmet, located 11 miles north of Metropolis and 11 miles south of Vienna, to be the only proposed Southern Illinois site fulfilling the organization's requirements, she said.

The tournament features a purse of $93,000, with first place in the men's pro division worth $10,000.

The tournament offers free admission and free parking. The best time for spectators will be Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.

National coverage of the event will be provided by espn2's World of Archery television series.

The latest in archery equipment and accessories will be demonstrated in the ASA sponsor tournament village, officials said.

The best time for spectators will be Saturday and Sunday, from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.

SIUC swim coach selected as pool-side official for Olympics

By Kevin DeFries
Daily Egyptian Reporter

SIUC's very own diving coach, Dave Ardrey, will serve at the Olympics on the pool side of the diving competition.

Ardrey's official title will be a Technical Official or National Delegate Official, but his official job is yet to be known. The first meeting for Ardrey and the five other delegates will take place on Wednesday, July 24.

"I might be a foreign dignitary, or just helping with the equipment around the pool," he said.

Ardrey said the selection committee picked those people involved in diving on the national level. He is presently serving as the president of the Professional Divers Association. He will be joined at pool side by the likes of Dr. Sammy Lee, former Olympic medalist and coach of gold medalist Greg Louganis, Ardrey said.

"I always try to pick something up from the competitors."

"I definitely think the fact that I am the president of the Professional Divers Association played a role in my being selected," Ardrey said.

Ardrey's experience at the national level took him to the Pan Am Games in Argentina last year, where he worked at pool side and caught as many sights as he could.

Outside of his Olympic duties, Ardrey said he will take advantage of the time he will spend at the games, especially because he will be joined by his wife, Vicki, and daughter, Angela, both of whom have traveled with him to other international competitions.

"My family has the opportunity to come down and walk around the Olympic village," Ardrey said. "We also have tickets to a baseball game and the men's springboard event."

Ardrey said he is excited about the men's springboard event because the field of divers has not been cut down yet.

The judges will decide who is the best from all of the divers and any one can have a good day, he said.

"I am looking forward to the men's springboard competition because all the best divers from around the world will be there," he said.

Ardrey said his family is most looking forward to the atmosphere of the Olympics because there is so much going on outside of the venues.

He said the family also looks forward to renewing ties from past international competitions. "My family and I have met a lot of new friends at international diving competitions," Ardrey said.

But diving is the main reason Ardrey is at the Olympics. He said he plans on learning from the international competition how to help the divers at SIUC.

"I always try to pick something up from the competitors," he said. "If I don't, I have missed an opportunity."

Ardrey said he will leave for Atlanta July 23 to prepare for the diving events, which take place from July 26-Aug. 2.

"This is an opportunity of a lifetime," Ardrey said.

SIUC, she helped the team win four outdoor Gateway Conference crowns and three indoor and has the ninth best scoring total in SIUC women's track history with 457 points.

Former Saluki Antonia Mahaira's claim to fame was in the pool, where she won more Gateway Conference Championships in individual events than any other women in SIUC history.

Antonia Mahaira

Mahaira's tenure as SIUC's best individual swimmer lasted from 1989-93. She won conference championships in the 100 and 200-meter freestyle events in '89, '90, and '91; 500-meter freestyle in '89 and '91; 200 Individual Medley in '92.

During her four years at SIUC, she captured nine individual championships—a record that still stands. Mahaira still holds the all-time SIUC record in the 100-meter freestyle with a time of 50.64 in '91; 200-meter freestyle with a time of 1:48.31 in 1990.

Mahaira ranks 3rd all-time at SIUC in the 50-meter freestyle with a time of 23.63 in '91.

Mahaira will compete in the 50, 100, and 200-meter freestyle events at the Olympics.

Kyriacou and Mahaira are preparing for the games were unavailable for comment.

national high jump record at 7-10 1/2. It is a mark Austin set at the 1991 World Championships.

Wright said that he enjoys playing the role of the underdog.

He also said he would not rule out the possibility of a gold medal, and that a bronze, which "could be likely be won on a jump of 7-7 1/2 or 7-7 1/4," is very reachable.

Regarding his "underdog" status, Wright recounted his experiences leading up to the Olympic Trials.

Wright said he considered giving up on jumping completely after a rocky start to his indoor season. He stuck with it, however, and things began looking up in mid-April, he said.

Wright attributed his success to three things: the strength of his personal goals, his ultimate desire to be remembered as a great high jumper, and strategy.

After missing on a jump of 7-5 1/4 at the trials, Wright chose to go on to the next height instead of retrying the jump.

It proved successful, as Wright cleared the next height, 7-6 1/2, to get on the Olympic squad and set a personal best at the same time.

"I was real scared to make that decision," he said. "It was probably the hardest decision I've ever made in a meet."

Salukis send five to Atlanta

Three-time Olympian searches for elusive gold medal

By Chris Clark
DE Sports Editor

The third time is supposed to be the charm, and for third-time Olympian Connie Price-Smith, she certainly hopes so. Price-Smith enters her third Olympic Games in Atlanta today, seeking her first gold medal. She is considered by many to be the United States' best hope of winning the gold medal in the shot put event. It is a title she said carries favorably. "It's a great label, and I like it," she said. "I think there will be a little more pressure, but if I stay focused and do what I should do, I'll do just fine."

Connie Price-Smith

Despite the pressure on her to come away from the Games a gold-medalist, Price-Smith said she is trying hard to stay focused, as she doesn't start competition until July 31. "I'm going out and training on the technical things right now," she said. "I'm going to go home for eight days after the Opening Ceremonies. That way, I can stay in the same routine I always do."

Olympic Trials, winning the shot put event with a throw of 62-7 3/4 and giving her a shot at winning her elusive prize.

She also said that being through two previous Olympic Games has allowed her to put some of the pressure out of her mind. "I'm less nervous this time, but I'm just as excited as the first time I competed in the Olympics," she said.

Although being an Olympian is nothing new to Price-Smith, she said competing in front of a home crowd in Atlanta can only help her.

"There will be some pressure, but when 20,000 fans are cheering me on, it's a good pressure because I can use that energy to my advantage," she said.

Energy was what lured Price-Smith to track in the first place. When she arrived at SIUC, Price-Smith was a member of the Saluki women's basketball program, but got bored just sitting around waiting for the next season to begin.

She said she decided to try track, which was a sport she enjoyed during her high school days.

Since graduating from SIUC in 1985, Price-Smith has been inducted into the Saluki Hall of Fame for her accomplishments at and away from SIUC.

Price-Smith finished 5th on the Saluki women's basketball all-time scoring list (1,271) and rebounding (744). Since leaving the University, Price-Smith has won 14 national outdoor championship titles, three national indoor championships and holds Olympic Festival records in the shot put (64-3 3/4) and discus (212-8).

Price-Smith will compete in the shot put preliminaries July 31 and the finals are Aug. 2. Both will be televised by NBC. The preliminaries will be televised between 9 a.m.-noon and the finals will be shown between 6:30-11 p.m.

High jumper set to leap way into Olympic glory

By Doug Downing
Special to the Daily Egyptian

Saluki high jumper Cameron Wright says he is optimistic about his chances for success at the 1996 Summer Olympic Games in Atlanta.

"I'm scared, but I jump better when I'm scared," the track star from Marion said.

Wright, who qualified for the U.S. Olympic squad in June with a jump of 7-6 1/2, recently returned from a week's training in California where he had been trying to refocus his energies for his two-week Olympic experience.

"I'm getting more and more hungry," he said. "The only thing that can stop me now is my mind."

Though his performance at the U.S. Track and Field Trials earned him a spot on the Olympic squad, Wright now faces his preliminary round in Atlanta, July 26 and high jump finals, July 28.

Wright said he and teammates Charles Austin (San Marcos, Texas) and Ed Broxterman (Manhattan, Kan.) will be among the 35-40 high jumpers competing for the 12-20 positions in the finals.

He also said his chances of making the finals look very good.

"A jump of 7-4 1/2 or 7-5 1/4 will usually get you in, and a jump of 7-6 will automatically get you in," Wright said.

If he makes it to the finals, Wright said he will face some tough competition, but not just from other countries. Austin is a veteran of the 1992 Olympics and holder of the Kyriacou will compete in the 400-meter run, and NBC will show the event. Qualifying will be shown July 27, 11 a.m.-4:30 p.m., while the finals can be July 29, 6:30 p.m.-11 p.m.

Former Saluki runner, swimmer to compete for first time at Olympic Games for homelands

By Kevin DeFries
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Two former SIUC female athletes will be competing in the Olympic competition for their native countries in Atlanta.

Dora Kyriacou will compete in the 400-meter run for Cyprus and Antonia Malvaira will compete in the 50, 100, and 200-meter freestyle events for the Greek national team.

Kyriacou was a standout track indoor and outdoor track athlete at

SIUC from '86-'89. She still ranks among the best women's track athletes all time at SIUC, holding records that place her no lower than 5th on the Salukis' career bests.

Her all-time indoor accolades include 4th all-time in the 400-meter dash (55.99 seconds) and the 200-meter dash (25.09). Her best performance in 1988 was in the 300-meter dash, which she recorded a time of 40.74.

In 1986, she ran the 500-meter dash in 1 minute 16.98 seconds, and in 1986, she ran a time of 1:25.96 in the 600-meter dash.

She ranks 5th all-time in the 200-meter dash with a time of 24.30 and 2nd all-time in the 400-meter dash with a time of 53.45.
