Students and Faculty Reminded To Meet Classes Until June 15

Future Final Exam Program Depends on Questionnaire

Students and faculty members were reminded Tuesday that classes are required to meet up to and including June 15.

A joint announcement by the deans of the various schools and colleges on the Carbondale campus issued Tuesday noted that the experimental program for finals week inaugurated during the fall quarter is continuing during the current spring quarter.

"An integral part of the program is the continuation of classes during the final week. These class periods are to be used for educational enrichment activities, which may be evaluating or teaching, as the instructor may desire.

"A decision on the future examination system will be made after an analysis of questionnaires from both faculty and students has been completed. This will be done during the summer quarter. From the analysis it is hoped that an examination system will be devised which can best meet the educational interests of both the faculty and students."

The statement was issued after a meeting of the Carbondale deans to discuss the handling of classes during the final week of the term.

The experimental system did away with a formal schedule for final examinations the last week of the term. In its place instructors were permitted to schedule finals during the last week of the term as they desired.

The deans' reminder followed widespread reports that a number of faculty members have been giving their final examinations early in the week and not holding classes the remainder of the week.

A number of students, as well as faculty members, have expressed dissatisfaction with the new system. However, all were given an opportunity to express their opinions in a survey, conducted by questionnaires. The results are still being tabulated.

The change in the finals system was one of the major complaints of students involved in the recent Rational Action Movement. Chief criticism of the system has been that the students weren't given an opportunity to consider it before the experiment was started by the administration.

Paluch Wins Campus Vote With Big Edge

George J. Paluch, with typical "Bulldog tenacity," collected 802 votes of 1,008 cast Tuesday to win the post of student body president for 1965-1966.

Paluch's running mate on the Action Party ticket, John Paul Davis, was also triumphant, receiving 830 votes.

Warren Steinborn, a write-in for president, collected 49, and Dorothy A. Hill, write-in for vice president received 46 votes. Various other write-ins accounted for 109 ballots cast for the presidential and vice presidential positions.

The number declared invalid accounted for 87 of ballots cast for the top two positions.

The position receiving the most votes in the election was that of Homecoming chairman, with 1,043 cast. Paul G. Schoen was elected to the post by collecting 453 of the votes.

Runner-up to Schoen was Richard J. O'Herron, with 299. Other write-ins accounted for 39 ballots, and 252 were marked invalid.

Results in the contest for Student Council seats went like this:

IRA SATTERFIELD RECEIVED THE STEEL HAMMER FROM ARTHUR J. SEJNOST

Works on 2 Degrees at Once

Student Hangs on to His Cap and Gown; He's Getting B.S. Now, Master's in August

Ira Satterfield has a good reason for not turning in his cap and gown after he receives his bachelor's degree next Wednesday night.

He'll need it again in August when he receives his master's degree.

The 25-year-old geology major has managed to shorten the time between degrees by a lot of hard work, like starting to write his master's thesis when he was a junior.

In recognition of his unusual academic accomplishment as well as his initiative, drive and enthusiasm, Satterfield was honored Monday night by the SIU Geology Club. He received the club's Steel Hammer Award at a ceremony in the Seminar Room in the Agriculture Building.

Satterfield became interested in geology while working for an oil company near his hometown, Flora, Ill.

He enrolled at SIU and then had to drop out for a year. When he came back it was with a vengeance. He plowed into his school work, determined to make up for lost time. Satterfield began working on his thesis almost two years ago so he could have it completed on time.

His thesis, "Bedrock Geology in the Cobden Quadrangle," is to be published later this year. Some of the more interesting aspects of his research will have to be left out because they do not belong in an academic paper.

Nevertheless, it will be some time before he forgets the hundreds of snakes he has encountered during his research or the time he was almost trapped in a cave south of Makanda.

"I was exploring the cave and the snow outside melted and flooded the entrance," he recalled. He managed to escape, a little wet, but all in one piece.

The thesis has provided the Illinois Geological Survey with some valuable information on oil and minerals in Southern Illinois. In addition he has, through his research and explorations, provided the state with various subsurface maps.

After graduation in August, Satterfield will go to work for the Pan-American Oil Company in Oklahoma City. He said the firm is one of the leading ones in the exploration of oil deposits.

U.S. Marines, Paratroopers Get Approval for Offensive Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Marines and Army paratroopers will fight alongside South Vietnamese government troops in the intensifying war against Communist guerrillas when such combat support is requested, the State Department said Tuesday.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey told a news conference the decision "is the

Defective Fuse Seen as Cause Of Bomb Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force investigators told Senate probers Tuesday that a faulty bomb fuse may have caused the explosions which took a heavy toll of U.S. lives and aircraft at Beinh Hoa Air Base in Viet Nam May 15-16.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the watchdog defense investigating subcommittee, said this testimony was given at a closed session by Lt. Gen. William K. Martin, Air Force inspector general.

"Gen. Martin gave us all the facts in the raw form," Stennis said. "The investigation is continuing to avoid any repetition and pinpoint responsibility."

result of the best military judgment as to what is required now and as far as we can see ahead."

"In my view it would put Americans shoulder to shoulder with the Vietnamese in combat operations," McCloskey said.

Although reports from Saigon said a U.S. paratroop unit of 150 men had been lifted by helicopter into action 30 miles northeast of Saigon, McCloskey said that this still was within the defective role of U.S. forces protecting the perimeters of American air bases and facilities.

No U.S. forces have yet gone into a combat support role, he said.

At the same time the State Department spokesman said that Communist North Viet Nam still remains unwilling to accept President Johnson's offer for unconditional discussions.

McCloskey said the Canadian government informed the United States of an approach made to North Viet Nam by a Canadian government representative urging that a peace conference be held.

North Viet Nam demanded the withdrawal of all U.S. forces before any talks could be held, he said.

The rebuff to the Canadian peace feeler conducted last week was regarded as significant by top American authorities.

U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor consulted with State and Defense Department officials including Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Taylor will see the President later this week.

The role of American forces in South Viet Nam was described by the State Department last weekend as that of protecting and patrolling key installations in an aggressive defense. This permitted search and seizure operations against Viet Cong guerrillas and did not require that the Americans be shot at first before engaging the guerrillas.

The new role for U.S. forces depends upon a request being made first for their services by Vietnamese commanders. The decision then whether to use American forces will be made by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of the U.S. Military Advisory Command after consultation with U.S. commanders.

McCloskey said that any American forces assigned to a combat support role would be under the Vietnamese unit commander.

Soviet Union Launches Unmanned Moon Shot

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union rocketed an unmanned satellite toward the moon Tuesday, apparently shooting for history's first soft landing of the kind never to put a man on the lunar surface.

The launch of the key experiment in the race for the moon came less than 24 hours after America's two latest space men returned safely to earth.

It also came less than a month after Luna 5, the first Soviet attempt at a soft landing on the moon, crashed May 12 into the Sea of Clouds area near the lunar South Pole.

If all goes well the Luna 6 "automatic station" will land on the moon late Friday night, Moscow time.

A successful soft landing would put the Russians possibly six months ahead of the United States, which has yet to try a soft landing on the moon.

Such a landing is expected to permit better photographs of the moon's surface than were possible in all earlier moon shots. They either missed the moon or crashed into it.

The photographs could help pick a landing site for a manned flight to the moon.

The successful testing of a soft landing system could show that a manned moon flight is possible with existing equipment. And it could permit analysis of the moon's surface by devices that would radio back their findings.

When Luna 5 crashed into the moon and the first attempted soft landing failed, the official Soviet news agency Tass said:

"During the flight and the approach of the station to the moon a great deal of information was obtained which is necessary for the further elaboration of a system for soft landing on the moon's surface."

Luna 6 is only slightly lighter than Luna 5, 3,174 pounds to 3,250 pounds.

Tass said all instruments were functioning normally aboard the new moon probe.

Kerner Sees Agreement On Legislative Districts

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Otto Kerner expressed confidence Tuesday that both houses of the Illinois General Assembly will be reapportioned before the legislature's normal June 30 adjournment date.

Kerner made the remark at a news conference only hours after he and other Democratic leaders announced they were willing to settle for only 21 House districts in Chicago instead of 22.

Republicans, throughout the reapportionment wrangle, have contended Chicago is not entitled to more than 21 districts.

Sen. W. Russell Arrington of Evanston, GOP leader, said Democratic demands on Senate districts could provide a major stumbling block.

Democrats seek to set up 21 Senate districts in Chicago, nine in the suburbs and 28 downstate. There now are 34 downstate Senate districts.

The Democratic plan to eliminate six downstate districts "is causing real concern" among Republican senators, Arrington said.

In Chicago Tuesday, a panel of three federal judges decided the Illinois legislature and the Illinois Supreme Court should provide a valid plan for reapportioning the Senate by Sept. 10.

If the legislature fails to reapportion Senate districts by June 30, a special session could be called by the governor to try to resolve the issue.

If House reapportionment fails, the Constitution calls for the creation of a commission appointed by the governor to work on the problem. If the commission failed to come up with a map, House candidates would run at-large as they did in 1964.

Bill Bans Bottles As Weapons

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois House passed Tuesday a bill making unlawful the use of a broken bottle or piece of glass a criminal offense.

The measure was forwarded to Gov. Otto Kerner on a 152-0 vote.

Sponsored by Sen. Robert Hatch, R-Chicago, the bill was an outgrowth of a highly publicized case in which Circuit Judge George N. Leighton of Chicago freed two men accused of slashing a policeman with a broken beer bottle.

Leighton said there was nothing in the law against carrying a broken beer bottle.

The House also sent to the governor a bill permitting the Public Aid Department to withhold payment of rent to landlords of aid recipients if there are violations of building codes.

Moving to the Senate with House passage was a measure to require not-for-profit corporations to file reports of their political contributions and to file statements of contributions they receive.

A $3.5 million appropriation to provide additional benefits to approximately 4,500 retired and disabled school teachers also moved to the Senate.

Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Chicago, won passage of a bill prohibiting the use of portable devices for local space heating fired by oil, gasoline or other liquid fuel.

Mikva said the heaters are fire hazards. The proposal, to take effect in October 1968, would apply only to Cook County.

The House rejected a bill which would have authorized Chicago to regulate parking rates charged by garages and parking lots.

Passed and forwarded to the Senate were numerous biennial appropriations for various state agencies and departments.

Among them were $35 million for the Department of Mental Health; $251,000 for the Fair Employment Practices Commission; $439,065 for the Illinois Harness Racing Commission and $986,430 for the Illinois Racing Board.

House Supports Excise Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration gave limited support Tuesday to a move to speed up the excise tax cuts it had recommended effective July 1. The action was suggested to avert a possible buyers' strike.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler told the Senate Finance Committee the administration would not object strongly to making the reductions effective as soon as the bill becomes law, without waiting until July 1.

Several committee members told Fowler buyers were delaying their purchases of television sets, appliances and other affected items pending removal of the tax. President Johnson had recommended that tax cuts be made retroactive only on automobiles and air conditioning units.

Astronauts Show Few Ill Effects of Voyage

ABOARD THE WASP (AP) — Astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II—their strong hearts showing little ill effects from four days in space—had one small health problem Tuesday: Command pilot McDivitt had a nose bleed—probably caused by the drying effects of breathing pure oxygen for the nearly 98 hours of the flight.

The astronauts underwent intensive medical questioning—and learned they face a growing list of heroes welcomes and honors when they return to Mayport, Fla., Thursday morning.

Both astronauts will likely visit the Texas ranch of President Johnson this weekend, after a Houston homecoming parade. Then on Monday, both will get a ticker tape parade in Chicago, honors at their alma mater, the University of Michigan on Tuesday, a homecoming celebration for McDivitt in his hometown, Jackson, Mich., on Wednesday.

The space agency was trying to decide which of the several invitations from some of White's many home towns would be accepted. He's a native of San Antonio, Tex., lived in some 50 cities with his father's many assignments as an Air Force general, and his parents now live in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Invitations for parades and receptions from New York City, Newark, N.J., and Miami, Fla., were regrettably turned down because of time limitations.

On the ship the astronauts lunched with enlisted men who were all in dress white uniforms. They signed autographs. The lunch menu was specially conceived;

Cape Kennedy cocktail, Gemini barley soup, G-T 4 steak with fried onions and peppers, Milky Way potatoes, NASA mushroom gravy, Maj. McDivitt corn, Maj. White "a beans, astronaut cake and Jimmy Boy ice cream.

A special Roman Catholic mass was offered earlier in thanksgiving for the astronaut's safe return. McDivitt, a Catholic, was unable to attend because of the testing.

McDivitt's nosebleed was apparently the only medical problem. He is not usually prone to nosebleeds. Asked what would have happened had a nosebleed occurred in space, a space doctor said it would either have to be stopped with pressure or the flight would be terminated.

On future flights, doctors may have to find a way to lubricate the inner nose to protect against the oxygen drying.

Tired after their mostly fitful and sporadic dozing in space, the astronauts slept late Tuesday—while a marveling world saluted their space deeds and Americans watched on television the film of White's stroll in space.

The astronauts tumbled into bed at 11 p.m. Monday night—and they didn't rise until 9:30 Tuesday morning. Then they put away a breakfast of apple juice, scrambled eggs, sausage and milk. McDivitt topped it off with coffee, White with tea.

Senate Approves OAS Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate unanimously approved Tuesday an historic new role for the Organization of American States in the channeling and use of U.S. military aid to Latin-American countries.

By a 91-0 vote the Senate amended the $3.35 billion foreign aid bill to:

—Authorize the OAS to use $25 million of the proposed $55 million for Latin-American military purposes to as—sist an inter-American military force. This would be a cost sharing basis.

—Require that the remainder be expended "to the maximum extent feasible" in accordance with joint plans of the OAS.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk told a newsmen the administration has taken no position on the change.

COMPARING NOTES—A true exchange of culture between the two schools, situated in contrasting cultural areas of the midwest and East, is expected from the program. Talking over prospects are Nathan Simms (center), of the Winston-Salem mathematics department, Robert W. Hunt of the SIU department of mathematics, and Rita Gramann, SIU graduate intern in Dean McKeefery's office.

RECEPTION—Teachers from Winston-Salem College arriving at Southern Illinois University in an exchange program between SIU and the North Carolina school were welcomed at a reception held at the home of William J. McKeefery, dean of students. Florence Butler (center), of Winston-Salem College and Mrs. Bessie-Warren (right) of Carbondale, chat with other guests. Miss Butler will serve as a supervisor of student teachers at Southern Illinois University this summer.

Winston-Salem Group Here for Exchange Planning

4 North Carolinians Help Map Two-Way Program

The first four teachers have arrived here from Winston-Salem State College in North Carolina to take part in a cooperative exchange program of students and teachers between that college and SIU.

They are helping to draw up a proposal for the project involving a group exchange of teachers and upperclass students.

Officials hope that the program will result in a fruitful exchange of cultures between these two institutions situated in contrasting cultural areas of the Midwest and East.

"We will gain by getting some of the Carolina institution's strength in such subjects as Negro history, music and art," said Elmer J. Clark, dean of the College of Education and chairman of a special task force committee named to further the relationship.

"Conversely, we hope their students will be able to gain from us. Some will do doctoral work at SIU under the program."

Winston-Salem State College has 1,300 students. It has developed through the vocational-normal school tradition to a point where it places primary emphasis on teacher education. It is now branching out toward liberal arts and pre-professional subjects.

For several months an all-University committee at SIU has been exploring means of cooperation between the two developing institutions of higher education.

Following an exchange of ideas among educators from both campuses, an agreement with Winston-Salem State College, which although integrated has but two white students enrolled, was thought advantageous.

Working with Clark on the committee are Wilber N. Moulton, assistant dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences; Sheldon Alexander of the Department of Psychology; Richard C. Franklin, director of the Community Development Institute; and C. Addison Hickman of the Department of Economics.

Kenneth R. Williams, president of Winston-Salem State College, has visited Southern's campus to discuss the cooperative effort. Clark, Moulton, and William J. McKeefery, dean of academic affairs, have visited Winston-Salem.

Clark said that administrators are hoping to obtain federal funds or foundation grants to carry on the work.

The first faculty exchange has been set for this summer. Orville Alexander, chairman of the Department of Government, will teach at Winston-

Salem, and Gerald Jones, dean of liberal arts at Winston-Salem and a holder of a Ph.D. degree from Harvard, will conduct a seminar in Negro history here.

The four teachers now on campus from Winston-Salem are Florence Butler, a supervisor of elementary teachers; Bessie White, a reading instructor; Mrs. Daisy Baley, an English teacher; and Nathan Simms of the mathematics department.

SIU Botanist One of Planners Of New Films for Classroom

New use of an old teaching aid, the motion picture, may revolutionize the teaching of plant sciences, according to an SIU botanist who is playing a significant role in developing a new concept in classroom films.

A. J. Pappelis, assistant professor of botany, is one of 14 scientists from 13 universities serving as planners and advisers in the project.

Pappelis said the short, "single concept" films, being produced at Iowa State University with support of the National Science Foundation, use time-lapse and high-speed photography and other techniques to capture the dynamics of plant processes.

He said the films, available in sound movies, silent film strips and other formats, bring to the classroom or laboratory demonstrations that are otherwise not possible because of equipment cost, seasonal availability of material, unreliability of performance or time limitations.

Herbert Crosby To Study in L.A.

Herbert A. Crosby, associate professor of technology, will attend a two-week course on "Hybrid Computation," beginning June 14 at the University of California in Los Angeles.

Sixteen films have been completed, with 26 more in various stages of production.

"In planning a film," Pappelis explained, "we feel that it must do something the instructor or the school does not have the capacity or capability to do. While those made so far were designed primarily for use in beginning courses, they show processes most graduate students and even a great many faculty members have not seen."

One of the most promising aspects of the new "single concept" films, the SIU botanist says, is its adaptation to use in the laboratory as a self-teaching device. With viewing equipment available, a student studying a particular plant process may make use of clearly defined film demonstrations.

Movies produced by Pappelis' group have attracted international attention, receiving high ratings in a number of science film festivals. The NBC television network has requested the series for use on its science program.

Former Head of SIU ROTC

Col. MacMillan to Direct Security Seminar at SIU

Col. Alexander R. MacMillan, who once headed the Air Force ROTC program at SIU, has been named general chairman of the National Security Seminar to be held March 21 through April 1, 1966, on the Carbondale campus.

Col. MacMillan, now director of the SIU Transportation Institute, was appointed by SIU President Delyre W. Morris to head the seminar, to be presented by the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in the ballroom of the University Center.

Major General W. S. Steele, deputy commandant of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, wrote President Morris declaring that the importance of selecting a good general chairman sufficiently in advance of the Seminar for adequate planning could not be overemphasized.

"Our most successful seminars have been those for which the general chairman was an active leader in community affairs," the general said. "It is also important that he select effective committee chairman from among local civic leaders at an early date so that they may begin their planning."

Seminars are designed to attract up to 1,000 people for the two weeks of lectures. They are staffed by high ranking officers qualified to speak on topics of concern to the American people.

Gen. Steele said that a large civilian attendance is desirable even though the seminars are primarily conducted for officers of the National Guard, reserve officers of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, and members of the regular armed forces. However, he said, the size of the civilian enrollment and the attendance actually realized, to a large degree, is a significant measure of the success of the seminar.

In September, 1964, the SIU campus was visited by Col. Richard W. Dempsey to study facilities and ascertain interest in such a project. Announcement was made in December of that year that Carbondale had been chosen one of 14 cities in which a seminar would be presented.

Col. MacMillan, who was commander of SIU's Air Force detachment for four years until his retirement from the U.S. Air Force in 1959, has been a distinguished airman, industrial executive, educator, and leader in civic affairs who holds the honorary doctor of laws degree from Southern.

During the early years of World War II he wrote a treatise on military conduct which was adopted as a standard text by the military services. He was named inspector general of the USAF Training Command after developing security training systems adopted throughout the Air Force.

Gold-Plated Housewife

Marry Now, Save $159.34 a Week

By Gary D. Sans Souci

The husband who says two cannot live as cheaply as one is probably right, but if he had to pay for just 12 of the services performed by his wife every week it would cost him $159.34.

This figure was obtained from a study done by the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York.

Here is a breakdown of the annual salaries for jobs performed by the average housewife, which were obtained from employment bureaus, government employment lists and Southern's School of Home Economics:

Dietitian	$7-9,000
Nurse maid	3,000
Secretary	4,000
Cook	3,000
Chauffeur	600
Seamstress	600
Child development counselor	6,000
total	26,200

(Variables not included: grounds keeper, teacher, baby sitter, bookkeeper, launderer and handy man.)

One local housewife, who is also employed full-time, said, "This figure is not too far fetched, because the frugal housewife tries to do all of the little jobs that could require a repairman and huge expenses."

The housewife-turned-worker, who wished to remain anonymous, added that the routine of taking care of a home is hard work both physically and mentally.

"If I were not married, $160 a week would not be enough," she said.

Even though she works and keeps her home both, she is happier because she associates with adults and feels that she is taking a part in the "world."

Another housewife, who also wished to remain anonymous, said, "At home you're never done—it's perpetual drudgery, because you are conscious of every dirty crack and dusty shelf, but if you work you don't notice these things."

Betty Jane Johnston, chairman of the Home and Family Department, said:

"Housewives, especially those who have preschool-age children, lack the adult companionship they had before their marriage and consequently return to work. There is also a feeling of accomplishment on their job and recognition if they do a good job."

She added that most husbands do not notice if the house is clean. They take it for granted, and this lack of recognition causes many wives to go to work.

Another anonymous housewife said that she loves staying at home and taking care of the house.

"Of course, I have exclusive rights to the pay check every week," she added.

Along with our other fine lines, we wish to announce the addition of the beautiful "Orange Blossom" diamonds. See them at...

Lack of Finances, Starting Family, Study, Cramped Quarters Strain College Marriages

(Editor's note: What chance does a college marriage have of success? Some experts say "slim," while others are not so pessimistic. In this three-part series on the problems and pleasures of college marriages all sides will have a chance to express their opinions.)

By Roland Gil

If the love is great enough, if the couple are strong enough and the bank-roll thick enough, the student marriage may be a good thing; but take away one of the prerequisites and the marriage becomes a divorce, most students agree.

Roxanne Christensen, a senior from Chicago, set three stipulations for the student marriage:

"I would marry while a student," she said, "if I were very much in love with my future husband, if I were nearly done with my schooling and if we had enough money to make a go of it without killing ourselves."

A good student marriage could come only between students who marry when seniors or graduate students, she said.

"The over-all conditions of the individuals are most important, though," she said. Connie Stufflebean, a senior from Arthur, thinks the student marriage is a good idea if the couple are not dependent on the parents.

"If the students can afford the marriage and if they can get by without having children, the student marriage is okay," she said.

"I don't like the idea of a student marriage," said Suzanne Shelton, a freshman from Paducah.

"I think they are impractical unless both sets of parents are willing to assist the couple financially. I don't see anything wrong with financial assistance from parents of the student couple if the parents are financially able," she said.

JoAnn Fischel, a freshman from Ferguson, Mo., disagreed with the idea that parents should assist.

"I don't think both husband and wife could go to school without help from the parents, and I don't think it's right for a married couple to live off their parents." Married students could live well enough together if they had the money, she added.

"Unless the student is on the graduate level, I believe that most couples would not have enough experience and ability to support themselves," said Stephen S. Ehlert, a freshman from Litchfield.

"If the couple stays engaged throughout school, then they will be sure that they can get along when they are married," he said.

Joan D. Antonucci, who is engaged and planning her marriage, feels that it is easier to wait until after graduation.

"The couple who waits don't have to scrimp and save, live in cramped quarters and don't have to worry about the problem of mixing studying with children," she said.

Pat Friesner, a secretary for William L. Lyons of the information service, is engaged and will be married in August.

"I wouldn't marry while a student," she said, "for when a wife has a home to take care of along with the studies, I don't think I could do it."

Kent Collins Is Best Hitter for 2nd Year; Vincent, Hotz Lead Saluki Pitching Staff

Kent Collins dominated the SIU batting statistics and John Hotz and Gene Vincent led the pitching staff, official SIU baseball statistics released Tuesday by the Sports Information Service showed.

Collins was the Saluki leading hitter for the second year in a row and also led the club in runs-batted-in, hits and home runs.

Hotz had the best earned-run-average of the six-man SIU pitching staff and worked the most innings while Vincent had the best record.

The short but powerfully built outfielder won the title last year in his first year as a Saluki as he hit .425 on 34 hits in 80 at bats after transferring to SIU from Eastern Illinois University.

Collins also led the Salukis in hits with 41, RBI's 24 and home runs 4. Centerfielder John Siebel topped the club in three departments - runs scored 23, triples 4, and stolen bases 11. Vincent led the club in doubles with 9 and Collins right behind with 8.

Veteran righthander John Hotz' 2.09 ERA was the team's best, although Vincent's 2.27 wasn't far behind. Vincent however won one more game than Hotz and led the club in that department with 9 wins against one loss.

SIU Dairy Cows Udderly on Top

Two registered Jersey cows in the SIU Dairy Center herd, Pinn's Elaine Kay and Secret Welcome Milady, have received special notice from the American Jersey Cattle Club of Columbus, Ohio, for high milk production during their last 305 day lactation period.

Both of the four-year old cows had milk and butterfat production considerably above the national average for dairy cows, according to the cattle organization's report.

Pinn's Elaine Kay is producing 12,770 pounds of milk and 622 pounds of milkfat and Secret Welcome Milady is producing 11,130 pounds of milk and 516 pounds of milk fat.

Martin Forming Summer SIU Baseball Team

Although the spring baseball season is over, SIU baseball coach Glenn (Abe) Martin is on a talent search this week which he hopes will provide the nucleus of SIU's first summer baseball team.

Southern will play a 36-game schedule in the newly formed 4-team Midwestern Collegiate League. The Salukis will join the Illini Club of the University of Illinois, Parsons College of Fairfield, Iowa, and St. Louis University.

The league will play all its contests on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays each week starting on June 18 and ending on August 15. The schedule calls for single games on Fridays and Sundays with doubleheaders on Saturday.

All students at the respective schools are eligible to participate in the league. That means even those freshmen who are not planning to start school until next fall may play. Thus Martin is anxious for anyone who thinks he can make the team to try out. "We'll be needing everything," Martin replied when asked at what positions he was especially in need of help. "Only one or two of the boys off this spring's team will be back, so things should be pretty wide open," he said. All men interested in trying

1.2-Inch Rain Soaks Campus

Severe thundershowers early Tuesday evening dumped 1.20 inches of rain on Carbondale in 30 minutes, William J. Daley, research aid in the Climatology Department, told the Daily Egyptian.

Overflow from storm drains was reported more than six inches above the curb along Illinois Avenue. Many other areas of the city were also reported flooded to varying degrees.

Power lines were downed on Mill Street, when a tree fell across wires.

Some areas of the campus were without power for more than two hours, after a circuit breaker opened at the Physical Plant.

and women from ages 20-40 who had never participated in gymnastics.

"I found them very eager to learn," said Meade, "and by the time I left both men and women were doing well in free exercise."

The men also picked up the long horse and parallel bars real fast," Meade continued.

A typical day for Meade was something like this. He would have breakfast with his interpreter from 8-9 a.m.

The interpreter also insisted on treating him to breakfasts consisting of half-cooked chicken and beef soup and other Vietnamese delicacies which Meade said were "too difficult to pronounce and too horrible to describe."

After breakfast he instructed the first group of Vietnamese from 9-11 a.m. From 11-11:30 coffee breaks were in order.

From 11:30 to 12:30 Meade caught up with paper work.

From 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. the Coach had lunch and afterward, a siesta.

Meade spent the rest of the day instructing the second group of Vietnamese.

BILL MEADE

He lost 15 pounds on the when he recruited Yukiya Usuki, a top gymnast from Japan. Usuki will be at SIU to extra exercise, he said.

"I did gymnastics tricks I never thought I could do again, said Meade. Working like that in 100-degree heat can make you lose weight easy."

His trip was made complete teaching duties here in summer quarter.
