Engineering firm hired by SIU-C to conduct study of stadium's safety

By William Jason Yong
Staff Writer

SIU-C is paying a Springfield engineering firm $23,000 to conduct a study of the structural safety of McAndrew Stadium. Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said Wednesday.

Swinburne, speaking at the Intercollegiate Athletic Advisory Committee meeting, said that Hanson Engineering will examine the structural safety on the east and west sides of the stadium.

Hanson Engineering was one of two firms being considered by the University for the assignment; the other firm, Collins and Rice Engineering, is also from Springfield.

On Nov. 3, 1979, following police reports that there was visible movement of support beams beneath the east stands of the stadium, an investigation was conducted during a football game against Indiana State.

Wiss, Janney, Elstner and Associates, Inc., a consulting and engineering firm from Northbrook, conducted the study, which cost $4,093. The firm reported that further studies were needed.

Last spring, SIU-C President Albert Somit told an SIU Board of Trustees committee meeting that the University had commissioned three reports on the structural safety of the stadium and all three reports concurred on the stadium's essential soundness.

However, William E. Brower, associate professor in engineering and mechanics, said in a report submitted to the University more than a year ago that he had witnessed a 6-inch peak-to-peak bounce in the main support beam of the stadium's east stands during a football game in 1981.

His report said that a 6-inch bounce puts more than twice the fatigue-encurance limit on the beam. He stated that the pressure caused by the unison foot-stomping of a capacity crowd could cause the stands to collapse.

Brower's report also said that arrays of bolts were missing from the support structure and structural maintenance appeared to be nonexistent.

When the report was released in April, Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services, said the University had done all of the repairs it felt were necessary, such as replacing missing bolts. However, bolts are still missing from the stadium's structure.

Dougherty said in April that the stadium would not be used this fall unless the University received some assurances that it is safe.

The president's office, the office for campus services and the IAAC will share the $23,000 cost of the safety study equally, Swinburne said.

"The issue of responsibility is not very clear," he said. "There is no clear division of who is

Court battle anticipated for bill tying aid to draft registration

Measure 'tacked on' to scholarship limit bill.

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — A bill tying Illinois scholarship money to draft registration will undoubtedly be challenged if Governor Thompson signs it, an American Civil Liberties Union spokeswoman said Wednesday.

The House voted 85-15 Tuesday to approve a bill requiring men 18 or older to provide proof of draft registration before they receive state scholarship aid.

The measure was tacked on to a bill that raises the maximum state scholarship limit from $2,050 to $2,250. Because the bill and amendment were both opposed by the Senate, the issue now goes to Governor Thompson's desk.

ACLU spokeswoman Susan Bandes said her organization, which successfully challenged a similar nationwide law in a Minnesota federal court, will first send Thompson a letter reminding him that the law has been declared unconstitutional. "If he (Thompson) does not veto it, it will undoubtedly be challenged," Ms. Bandes said.

During debate in the House, one opponent, Rep. Helen Satterthwaite, D-Champaign, reminded fellow lawmakers of the federal judge's ruling.

"using our own tax resources to be policemen for the federal government."

Larry Matejka, executive director of the Illinois State Scholarship Commission, said his agency is taking a wait-and-see position on the legislation.

"It's up to the courts to decide it. And if, in fact, it's constitutional, we'd enforce it," Matejka said.

But, he added, there are reservations. One is the complication of having students fill out additional forms.

Matejka also said the burden of proving draft registration would be primarily with the universities, which are "much closer to the student" than the state commission.

Orlo Austin, director of financial aid at the University of Illinois, said he believes the law could be "quite costly." He said he also objects to the bill, because it would only affect needy students seeking aid, rather than their affluent counterparts.

"It would be more fair to have it apply across the board," Austin said.

But Rep. Lawrence DiPrima, a Chicago Democrat, replied that "they should have charged him (the judge) with treason."

U.S. District Judge Donald Alsop, ruling last week on the federal requirement, declared that the federal law violates the Constitution's ban against self-incrimination by forcing young men to admit they've broken a law.

In debate, legislators said it was not their job to decide questions of constitutionality. "I don't think we should determine what is constitutional or not," said Rep. Sam Vinson, R-Clinton, in support of the measure.

"This simply uses state funding to accomplish what's good public policy," Vinson said.

But Rep. Woods Bowman, D-Chicago, said the bill would be

Students' lobbying effort a success, leaders say

By Paula J. Finlay

Although no state tax increase has yet been passed, Tuesday's lobbying effort by SIU-C students was deemed successful by leaders of the group.

Seven students from the Undergraduate Student Organization and six Graduate and Professionals' Student Council representatives traveled to Springfield Tuesday to lobby for a tax increase. Both GPSC President Ann Greeley and USO President Bruce Joseph said the group was able to do what it set out to do.

"Overall, it was very successful in that we were able to see the people we wanted to," Greeley said.

The group was briefed Monday by SIU Governmental Relations Officer Keith Sanders as to which senators and representatives were still opposed to or ambivalent about a tax increase. Those were the legislators the students talked to, Greeley said. The group was also briefed on how higher education has suffered in the

Pope holds meeting with Jaruzelski

KRAKOW, Poland (AP) — In a surprise climax to his tumultuous Polish homecoming, Pope John Paul II met Wednesday night with Communist Party chief Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski. Solidarity leader Lech Walesa visited in the wings.

Earlier, tens of thousands chanting "Long live the pope!" streamed through this ancient city's streets in a march supporting Walesa's banned Solidarity union.

That demonstration was brought to a peaceful halt by police. Thousands also marched in nearby Nowa Huta, where an army of riot police broke up the protest. At least two demonstrators were seized.

It was the final night of an eight-day papal visit that put John Paul at the center of the struggle between restive workers and communist authorities in his homeland.

The pontiff first met Jaruzelski last Friday, when he criticized the imposition of martial law on Poland. Government spokesman Jerzy Urban said Wednesday's unscheduled second meeting was arranged at the request of Polish church officials. Two government photographers briefly admitted to the meeting said it lasted 40 minutes.

There was no immediate word on what was discussed.

Walesa, meanwhile, flew in from his home in the northern seaport of Gdansk, reportedly aboard a military aircraft, and was staying at a church in a Krakow suburb, waiting for his audience with the pope, a source close to his family said.

At the Krakow archbishop's residence, a possible location for that meeting, about 100,000 people gathered late Wednesday.

The papal entourage decides the pope's speeches have been political in nature. But the government has reacted sharply, warning that the pro-Solidarity outbursts that have followed the pope could harm church-state relations and delay the final lifting of martial law imposed Dec. 13, 1981, to snuff out Solidarity.

Krakow, where the pope spent decades as priest, archbishop and cardinal, saw the greatest throng of his eight-day tour — 2 million.

At the Mass on Krakow's vast Blonie parade ground, John Paul beatified two Polish patriots who had joined an 1863 uprising against Russian rule over Poland: Rafal Kalinowski and Albert Chmielowski.

After the Mass, marchers heeled across town, with police helicopters hovering overhead and loudspeaker voices urging, "Please disperse and go home. Don't hear the papal visit."

Thompson budes on tax plan

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. James Thompson said Wednesday he would be willing to sign a temporary tax increase if that's what legislators send him, but insisted they would be "yo-yoing the people of Illinois."

Thompson made another pitch for a permanent tax increase in a news conference following a two-hour meeting with General Assembly leaders — the third installment of an ongoing summit on income taxes.

Progress was snagged by House Republican opposition to the amount of money sought by other negotiators, but there was a consensus among legislative participants that only a temporary increase was politically workable.

"I think it's safe to say that the permanent tax increase proposal is no longer on the table," said House Republican leader Lee Daniels of Elmhurst.

Thompson said raising taxes for only one or two years "makes neither fiscal nor political sense." He said such an approach would lift state spending to a level that could not be sustained unless the tax were continued.

Or, lawmakers would have to come back when the tax expired and cut spending by the amount raised by the higher levy — the tactic he described as "yo-yoing" taxpayers.

"If, understanding those consequences, the members of the General Assembly are still willing to vote for a temporary plan, then that of course is what we'll pass," Thompson said. "If that's what they send me, that's what they send me."

Despite Thompson's warnings, House leaders held fast to the surtax position.

"The Legislature should take every possible effort to provide for a temporary tax as opposed to a permanent tax," said Democratic House Speaker Michael Madigan of Chicago.

With agreement among legislative summit participants that a temporary tax increase is the way to go, the obstinance of House Republicans on the amount of a surtax appeared to be the major obstacle to an agreement.

"I'm the one that is holding out in terms of the amount of money that is necessary to be raised," Daniels said.

The House GOP has proposed the smallest of the plans under consideration — an 18-month, 20 percent boost in income tax rates that would generate $823 million before ending in mid-1984.

On the high side, Thompson seeks a permanent increase that would lift rates 60 percent in the first year and generate $1.8 billion.

In between were various two-year plans to generate more money than the House Republican proposal but less than Thompson's.

Daniels met late Wednesday afternoon with House GOP members to assess their support for a more generous temporary plan, and reported afterward that his colleagues refused to budge.

Madigan, meanwhile, insisted on a unified Republican position before committing Democratic votes to a tax increase. He termed the merging of Republican positions as critical to the negotiations.

News Roundup

Ex-convict sought in double murder

BELLEVILLE (AP) — Authorities concentrated a search Wednesday in nearby Missouri for a former convict, Charles Thomas Walker, 43, charged in the shooting deaths of Kevin Paule, 21, and his fiancée, Sharon Winker, 25, both of Mascoutah.

The bodies of the couple were found tied to trees early Sunday along Silver Creek west of Mascoutah, where they had gone fishing the night before, authorities said. Each had been shot in the head with a .25-caliber weapon, according to Renee Dahlmann of the St. Clair County state's attorney's office.

Coal mine explosion kills seven

By The Associated Press

The bodies of seven coal miners, including a woman and a foreman three days from retirement were pulled from a 460-foot-deep mine shaft Wednesday after an explosion that marked Virginia's worst mine accident in 25 years.

Three other miners were injured in the explosion at Clinchfield Coal Co.'s McClure No. 1 mine in Dickenson County. An additional 74 miners escaped without injury, a company spokeswoman said.

The cause of the explosion, at 10:15 p.m. Tuesday, was under investigation, said Clinchfield Coal spokeswoman Susan Copeland.

Illinois coal converted to gas

EAST ALTON (AP) — The first synthetic gas production at Allis-Chalmers's Kilgas Commercial Module Coal Gasification Plant here has begun, the company announced Wednesday.

The $155 million plant project is designed to demonstrate that high sulfur Illinois coal can be commercially converted to gas, company officials said.

When the 600-ton-per-day plant achieves full operation it will convert Illinois coal into gas, with an annual output equivalent to about 600,000 barrels of oil.

The gas will be used to replace oil or natural gas in Illinois Power Co.'s electrical generating plant, at which the Kilgas plant was built.

PLO rebel leader urges truce

By The Associated Press

Rebel leader Saed Mousa offered Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat a truce Wednesday, saying the mutiny could be resolved by "democratic dialogue."

Mousa, better known by his code name of Abu Mousa, told reporters at his headquarters in Hammara, "there is no need for more fighting" between the mutineers in the Fatah faction of the PLO and those still loyal to Arafat.

"We advocate continued warfare against Israel," he declared. "We advocate continued Palestinian presence in Lebanon. We will never leave Lebanon as long as there is a vein throbbing in us."

Chicago mayor's appeal refused

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The Illinois Supreme Court on Wednesday refused to hear Chicago Mayor Harold Washington's appeal of a lower court ruling favoring 29 rebel aldermen who seized control of the City Council last month.

Justices said a state appeals court decision in the case "adequately resolves the issues" involved in the political squabble.

The state's highest court also lifted an order temporarily barring Alderman Edward Vrdolyak and his colleagues on the Council from taking control of key committees and going ahead with other official business.

The justices said a lengthy appeals process would be "both unnecessary and repetitious" and further delay any political settlement between the warring factions.

Wednesday's ruling stemmed from the May 2 takeover of the Council by Vrdolyak and 28 other aldermen opposed to Washington, the city's newly elected and first black mayor.

Washington had announced that he would block the politically powerful Vrdolyak and his allies from garnering important positions in the Council.

But shortly after the first meeting of the newly elected Council convened, Washington, realizing he lacked sufficient support to achieve his aims, gavelled the session to a close.

After the mayor's departure, Vrdolyak and his faction reconvened the meeting.

The first time the students were there, the legislators might have feared that they were "a bunch of radical students from SIU," Joseph said.

It is more fashionable now for legislators to be in favor of a tax increase than it was in April, Joseph said. "There is more need for it now, and they realize that."

The legislators are "hustling for a compromise" tax increase bill, he said. "Our support for them is in trying to come up with a compromise."

past few years and how the cutbacks in federal aid to education have affected students.

"We tried to convince them that it is real important for money to come from the state," Greeley said.

"We let them know that students do care about a tax increase and are willing to do something about it," she said. "They are willing to go and talk to their legislators about it."

"I think we got our message across," Joseph said. "It was more productive than I thought it would be."

Several groups lobbying at the capitol Tuesday sent notes onto the Senate floor asking to talk to senators without success, Joseph said.

"They came off the floor to talk to us," Joseph said. "I think that's a good sign."

Joseph said that Tuesday's effort was more successful than the lobbying attempt by the Illinois Student Association in the spring. About 21 SIU-C students were among the nearly 200 students from 10 state universities that went to Springfield for the ISA-sponsored lobby in April.

Merit pay task force named

A Southern Illinois attorney, along with teachers and education officials from across the country, leaders of national teacher groups and lawmakers, make up the Task Force on Merit Pay that U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-22nd District, recently was appointed to chair.

Simon's office this week announced the names of the 21 force members who will study ways to reward good teaching and make recommendations to Congress. The bipartisan group is to begin hearings in Washington next month and is expected to report to Congress by Sept. 30.

The Southern Illinois member of the task force is James Sanders, a Marion attorney, who is president of the Illinois School Boards Association.

Other members and the interests they represent are:

Members of Congress — Rep. William Goodling, vice-chairman; Rep. E. Thomas Coleman; Rep. Ron Wyden.

Classroom teachers — LeRoy Hay, Manchester, Conn., high school English teacher and 1983 National Teacher of the Year; Jaime Escalante, Los Angeles, math teacher.

Private schools — Robert L. Smith, executive director, Council for American Private Education.

Parents — Elaine Stienkemeyer, president, National PTA.

Teacher organizations — Albert Shanker, president, American Federation of Teachers; Mary Hatwood Futrell, secretary-treasurer, National Education Association.

Administrators — Frank Tracy, Beltsville, Md., high school principal; Floretta McKenzie, superintendent, District of Columbia Public Schools; Paul Salmon, executive director, American Association of School Administrators; Ronald Barber, superintendent of public instruction, State of Kentucky; Leslie R. Fisher, superintendent of public instruction, State of Oklahoma; Wilson Riles, former superintendent of public instruction, State of California.

Public officials — Albert Quie, former governor of Minnesota; Bob Martin, Kentucky state senator.

Higher education — Anne Flowers, president, American Association of Colleges of Teacher Education; Ernest Boyer, president, Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching.

He said that this issue must be resolved and that he will bring the matter to the Undergraduate Student Organization, the Graduate Student and Professional Council and eventually to the Board of Trustees.

"A few things are currently not accounted for in the budget such as a stadium that needs to be inspected and locker rooms that need to be improved," he added.

Swinburne raised the possibility of a $2 athletic fee increase to be earmarked for the improvement, maintenance and modernization of athletic and recreational facilities.

House approves rail project funds

By John Schrag
Student Editor

The U.S. House of Representatives approved a $97 million appropriation for Carbondale's railroad relocation project Wednesday.

By a 250 to 156 vote, the House approved a $35 million federal highway bill, which included the funds for Carbondale in an amendment authored by Rep. Paul Simon, D-22nd District.

The bill includes several railroad relocation projects nationwide, of which Carbondale's is the largest.

The funding proposal, which now moves to the Senate for consideration, would fund three major components of the relocation project and bring the project up to the point of depressing the Illinois Gulf Central Railroad tracks through downtown Carbondale.

The federal money would be used for final engineering plans for the track depression and construction of a $2.3 million pedestrian overpass across the ICG tracks and U.S. Highway 51 near the SIU-C Physical Plant and the relocation of steam, water, sewer and electrical lines in that area.

Also funded would be a $3.4 million temporary railway that would route rail traffic through the city while work is done on the 72-foot wide ditch that would lower the tracks below ground level.

Work on the 2-mile long, 30-foot deep ditch is expected to cost an additional $3.3 million.

The projects preceding the rail depression are expected to take about two years to complete and generate about 340 jobs.

David Carle, an aide to Simon, said that "it is unclear at this point whether the Senate will pass our provision." He said he expects that Sens. Alan Dixon and Charles Percy will be supportive of the highway bill.

However, even if the bill clears Congress, it still faces a potential hurdle.

Carle said that President Reagan's response to such appropriations is a "question mark" at this time. He said there is "active speculation" in Washington that Reagan may adopt a policy of vetoing most appropriation bills when they reach the White House.

Reagan leading knuckle-rappers

WASHINGTON — As a shut-up-and-learn advocate, President Reagan could do no more than offer his customary anecdotal evidence to support his view that the schools are in a "sorry state." In a speech to educators in Tennessee, Reagan lamented "the abandonment of compulsory courses." He remembered a science class in his boyhood: "It didn't appeal to me at all, but I was forced to take it... I had to do it, if I wanted to play football and if I wanted to get a diploma some day."

With the national blackboard about to be filled by pet theories of politicians who haven't been students for decades and have never taught school themselves, Reagan is emerging as the leader of the knuckle-rappers. To prepare the kids for life — the school of hard knocks — put them in the school of hard hits. Hit them with the compulsory subjects. If the students don't like them, too bad. What do they think, that schools are for them?

LIKE THE kind of teacher who should be the first to be denied merit pay, Reagan hasn't prepared for class. The curriculum debate is not new. For a decade and more, teachers have been protesting the lowering of educational standards. Few listened. They argued through organizations like the National Educational Association that cutbacks in foreign languages, science and writing courses were inviting the declines that are now being detailed in the reports of commissions. The teachers were answered with the charge that they were merely trying to protect their jobs.

As these accusations of self-interest were leveled, the grammar and high-school teachers who believed in making demands on the students were assaulted from another front. Colleges decided to lower admission standards. They had overbuilt in the 1960s and then in the 1970s needed students to pay the debts of the building programs. To attract students, admission standards were lowered. Foreign languages were no longer required, nor were four years of math or science. If the colleges aren't requiring these subjects, the local school boards asked, why should we spend money to teach them?

COLLEGES that resisted these curriculum dilutions risked their own survival. In the 1970s, more than 100 private colleges closed. Thirty years ago, 50 percent of the nation's college students were in private schools. Today it is 20 percent.

Despite the attacks, teachers who valued excellence fought on. They had victories on the harshest of battlefields. Rep. Paul Simon (D-Ill.), a progressive whose first question when domestic policy is being shaped is how will it affect children, recently visited three core-city schools in Cincinnati. Each gives lessons in a foreign language: Spanish, German, or French.

Colman McCarthy

Simon reports that "it is an exciting thing to walk into an aged school building in a non-too-attractive section of that city, enter a fourth-grade classroom, and watch a multiracial student body get a biology lesson in German! Not surprisingly, there is a waiting list to get into this school, which people formerly fled."

REAGAN'S CALL for "forced" education mocks those many teachers who have been victimized by force themselves from the hands of politicians like Reagan. As president, he is better at subtraction than addition. Since taking office, he has cut $1 billion from Department of Education programs.

Even without the cuts and the undermining of curricula by colleges, complexities about compulsory courses won't be eased by the folksy reminiscences of the President. In the war against crime, the cry was that we must stop coddling criminals. In the new war against ignorance, it will be stop coddling the students. If they aren't suffering, they aren't learning.

Reagan's leaping to the lectern with this simplism makes him as unconvincing as his earlier calls for tuition tax credits. From Tennessee, he went to Albuquerque to tell a PTA convention that "education must never become a political football." He then tried the quarterback sneak of calling for reforms but telling the educators not to expect federal aid. Let's get back to basics — every one but money.

To the teachers' hard questions about the future of American education, Reagan keeps giving D-minus answers. As if they haven't troubles enough, now there is a slow-learning president in the front row.

Opinion & Commentary

U.S. must preserve Mother Nature's best

IF YOU COULD talk to the animals, they might tell you a frightening story about the future of the Shawnee National Forest — because the protection provided for some of them under federal ownership of forest lands is in danger.

Upon completion of the second phase of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's asset management program, almost 70,000 acres — 27 percent — of the Shawnee Forest has been targeted for study and possible sale.

Forest Supervisor Kenneth Henderson recently acknowledged the fears of concerned citizens about the future of targeted forest lands if the government chooses to sell. Returning the lands to private ownership could open the door to mining and commercial interests, he said, and the government would have no more authority over land use.

IT IS UNLIKELY that a private interest would buy a tract of forest land to enjoy the ecosystem within. Wild animals and plant-life don't pay the bills. There are certainly more profitable ways to use the land — mining, timbering, dumping — and profit is where private interest almost universally lies.

But the line must be drawn between the commercial interests of man and the preservation of nature's elements.

Mary Bresler, board member on the Illinois Environmental Council, points out that one area of targeted land — the Fountain Bluff area near the Mississippi River — supports nearly 900 kinds of ferns and flowering plants and is a habitat for the eastern wood rat, which is rare in Illinois.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN to this delicate system of wildlife under the ownership of, say, a coal mining company? Or a lumber firm? Or even farmers who are inexperienced in soil erosion control?

It is doubtful that any of these interests could or would wish to provide the protection afforded the forest ecosystem by the federal government.

Thus, to preserve the greater interest of nature, Shawnee forest land should not be made into new proving grounds for the lesser interest of private commerce. The natural order of things was established long before we figured out how to disturb it.

And even though we know how to alter nature for our needs, we still have no justification for doing it in a place where nature is at her finest.

Way to go, Itchy

ITCHY JONES has been a blessing to SIU-C men's athletics since the beginning of his career as Saluki baseball coach 14 years ago.

If you don't believe it, look at his record. Jones' diamond men recently hit the 500-victory mark in a win over top-ranked Wichita State. His teams have lost only 177 games — meaning Jones, 45, has coached the Salukis to victory almost three-fourths of the time for 14 years.

HE HAS TAKEN the Salukis to the top of the Missouri Valley Conference three times, to the NCAA post-season playoffs eight times and to the College World Series three times. In the process, Jones has been named twice as the national collegiate coach of the year.

Jones' teams have clearly given SIU-C a national reputation as a collegiate baseball power. But he views his accomplishments modestly.

"Getting 500 wins just means I've been here a long time," Jones says.

Well, Itchy, we hope you'll stick around a good while longer.

Support tax boost plan with letters

Recently there has been much commotion about a tax increase in Springfield.

"Increase!" shout many concerned taxpayers. But what they probably don't know is what will happen if there is no tax increase.

An area that is directly affected by this tax increase is higher education. Without the increase, tuition levels in Illinois would go up 60 percent; 27,000 eligible students would be denied stat. financial aid, and many more would find their aid substantially lowered compared to last year's totals. University faculty and staff would be reduced by 4 percent, and a well-deserved salary increase for faculty and staff would be non-existent.

All of this leads to a deterioration of higher education in Illinois at a time when quality education is most needed. Advancing technology and the declining economy are crying out for people with the skills to improve and manage these areas. Illinois needs to support higher education to support Illinois.

We, as students, are not asking for everything. We realize the shortages and budget cuts are essential to the survival of Illinois. Gov. Thompson's tax increase budget would require students to pay a 10-percent increase in tuition — a much more feasible amount than the 60-percent increase required by his first proposed budget.

The tax increase budget provides funds for higher education and other worthwhile services. Hospitals, public aid, and the Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities are other areas that would benefit from the proposed tax increases.

The Undergraduate Student Organization at SIU-C supports this proposed budget and urges every student to lend support to the tax increase. Help yourselves, fellow students, the University and the State of Illinois. Write to your state representatives and senators. Let them know how important passage of the tax increase budget is to you. You have the power — you have a vote. Use your voice; support the Tax Increase Budget.

Infant deaths bring extra grief

Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

Death is a sad but inextricable part of the human condition. There is perhaps no more painful an event to a family than the death of a family member.

But that pain increases many times over when that death is greeted with embarrassed silence by relatives, and well-intentioned friends who suggest that the family's grief would be quickly assuaged by getting someone to replace the deceased. While such an occurrence may sound unlikely, it happens to be common when the deceased is an infant.

"People make stupid comments like 'Oh well, it probably wasn't normal anyway' or they suggest you have another, as if one baby needs only to be replaced by another," said Jane Hamlin, a registered nurse clinician at the Special Care Nursery of Carbondale Memorial Hospital.

"When an older child dies, that's recognized by society as reason for grief," she said. "But if a baby dies no one has had any attachment to that baby, so the attitude of society is 'Oh gee, I'm really sorry you lost your baby—now let's get you back to work.'"

Hamlin is a consultant for I Lost A Child, a local support group for parents who have lost a child through miscarriage, stillbirth or infant death. A non-profit organization, ILAC does not charge fees or dues, and meets monthly at the Family Practice Center in Carbondale. The chief feature of the group, explained Hamlin, is to give the bereaved parents a chance to talk about their loss without fearing that people will think they are reacting abnormally. "People expect you to get over your grief in a couple of weeks or months," said Malinda Sawyer, the group coordinator of ILAC, who also has lost a child.

"But the normal grief period can run to maybe one or two years," she said. "And if there is no one to talk to during that time, it makes it worse. People just don't think it's a big deal."

There are certain characteristics of grief most commonly observed by doctors and others who deal with bereaved parents. The initial reaction is shock, then comes a period of emotional release followed by feelings of isolation, depression, guilt and an inability to return to normal activities combined with hostility and finally panic, when the bereaved person begins to feel something is wrong with him or her for experiencing such emotions.

"You feel like you're literally losing your mind," said Judy Glasco, who bore a stillborn baby boy. "I'd never felt jealousy or envy before, but when I went out and saw pregnant women I hated them, because I felt that I should be pregnant."

"It became a chore even to do grocery shopping, because I had to pass those rows of baby diapers and baby food," she said. "I didn't even want to be around friends of mine who were pregnant."

Glasco initially sought professional counseling after her baby's death, but as Glasco said ruefully, "it didn't seem to do a whole lot." She then contacted Hamlin, who put her in contact with ILAC.

"Every time I tried to talk about the baby to friends they would hold their breath, thinking, 'she's talking about it,'" said Glasco.

"Or you would start to cry and they would start to apologize," she said. "They don't understand that they don't make you cry, the feeling is always there, they just gave you permission to show it."

Sawyer explained that much of a mother's subsequent depression after her baby's death is natural; many pregnant women experience depression after their babies have been born, the only difference is that with mothers who have lost the child there is the double pain of depression and no baby.

Sawyer said that friends often do not understand that weeping is a relief to the bereaved parents. She said that relatives often try to prevent the bereaved from crying in the mistaken idea that they are protecting them from pain, when in fact the bereaved suffer more from holding in their grief.

Frankly, a lot of people shut me off when I tried to talk about my baby," said Rose Crosby, another participant in ILAC who bore twins, one of which was stillborn. "Mentioning my baby's name made people uncomfortable, especially since I had twins; they did not know why I still talked about her, since I still had one baby left.

"People say a lot of things to make you feel better, but come out with statements which are unsympathetic," she said. "Statements like 'get your life together' or 'put it all behind you', as if you can package your grief."

The most positive aspect of ILAC, according to Sawyer, is that it gives those mothers a chance to talk with those who understand the grief because they have felt the same emotions—something that they cannot share even with their best friends.

"There's a lot of caring and security among the people at ILAC," said Crosby. "You feel safe."

Both Crosby and Glasco still attend the ILAC sessions to offer their support to other bereaved parents. Glasco continued to go to the group when she first became pregnant again, because she was "scared to death" that something would go wrong again.

"When people saw I was pregnant again, they said 'now you'll be just fine,' as if I had another baby as a replacement," said Glasco.

After two years, Crosby still enjoys ILAC even though she has come to grips with her loss.

"It's still a joy to talk about my daughter and have people listen," she said.

Those who want more information about ILAC or who want to make a referral may call Jane Hamlin at 549-0791 or write to her at Memorial Hospital in Carbondale.

Preacher out to save Goofy Ridge souls

GOOFY RIDGE (AP) — Satan appears to have won a round or two, but the preacher says he'll keep wrestling for souls in this central Illinois community of 400.

The Rev. Gene Smith started preaching a revival Friday night in the town which has three bars, a coin laundry, a fire house and a public telephone booth — but no churches. He says he's been harassed ever since, but will stick it out through Thursday night.

"It has been my experience that when you step on Satan's feet, harassment comes," Smith said Tuesday night after his tent was torn down, threats were made, and two teen-agers were jailed.

"I'm aware of the adversary. Not a person or people — I'm talking about Satan, because anytime you come into a community like Goofy Ridge you're going to have a battle," Smith said.

The revival got under way in a tent at the fire house, even though the tent had been pulled down the day before.

One way to 'sink or swim'

He earns a degree with yogurt

By Paula J. Finlay
Staff Writer

Getting "hands-on" experience is often the best way to learn, and for a business student that means running a business.

Bob Jansen, an SIUC graduate student, is getting that experience. While he pursues a master's degree in business administration, he is the major owner and operator of Cultured Creams Yogurt in Carbondale.

"The most valuable learning experience I've had is to have my own business and either sink or swim in it," Jansen said.

He opened the shop, located just north of Arnold's Market, in April, and since then business has continually increased. As the summer weather gets warmer, things just keep getting better, Jansen said.

Jansen attributes the success of his business to several factors. First, his business administration training gives him knowledge about the legal aspects of running a business. And secondly, Jansen believes he has a unique product.

"I have the only product like it in Southern Illinois," he said.

Cultured Creams Yogurt sells frozen yogurt shakes, sundaes, cones and even yogurt banana splits.

But Jansen credits much of his success to having a good credit history.

"Developing a credit portfolio is an important step in getting started," Jansen said. "But as a student you don't tend to think of those things until you get out of school."

Bob Jansen, owner of Cultured Creams on U.S. Highway 51, presents one of his yogurt creations—Strawberry Supreme Sundae.

Jansen started to build his credit when he was an SIUC undergraduate. He started working at 710 Bookstore in Carbondale five years ago and that helped him obtain a financial base, he said. He expanded that base by getting department store credit cards, check cashing cards, SIU short-term loans, and a bank loan to purchase a mobile home.

"After the bank loan, I went for major credit cards—Visa and Mastercard," he said.

Jansen's good credit history helped him to obtain the credit he needed to purchase Cultured Creams.

"The key to success is being able to use other people's money at a low cost to get what you want," he said.

Cultured Creams Yogurt was established by other owners last summer, Jansen said, and when he visited the shop he was impressed by the unique product—frozen yogurt shakes.

"I really enjoyed the product so much that I thought this would be a neat business to open later at a different place," Jansen said.

So when the owners decided to sell the business Jansen was ready to buy it, he said. He developed a limited partnership and raised about $5,000 in capital from investors. With that money and credit of his own he was able to purchase Cultured Creams Yogurt, and re-open the business.

He and three to five part-time workers keep the shop going. He says he would like to eventually expand into an investment corporation. Meanwhile, he continues to work at 710 Bookstore as a buyer. And between the two jobs he keeps busy.

Jansen said Cultured Creams consumes about 40 hours of his time a week and the 710 job takes up about the same amount.

"I work about 15 hours a day on a slow day," he said.

Organ monkey on the lam

A Murphysboro woman received quite a surprise Monday when an 18-inch Capuchin monkey apparently decided to help her propel the swing she was on.

The monkey is an escapee from the as-yet-unopened World of Wildlife ranch southeast of Murphysboro. The ranch, which will be a five-acre walk-through zoo, is owned by Jim Nash.

Usually referred to as an "organ monkey," the Capuchin is a small monkey with brown fur, a black head and a long tail.

Nash said the monkey is not dangerous — as long as people don't try to pick it up or touch it. Nash got the monkey in Nebraska last weekend and only had it on the ranch about four hours when it escaped while being fed, he said.

According to the Murphysboro Police Department, the monkey was sighted twice Monday — at the woman's home and near the Central Illinois Public Service plant near Murphysboro. Since that time, the furry little escapee has not been seen.

Nash said the monkey will be hungry and looking for food. If it is spotted, no attempts should be made to pick it up, he said, although it should be possible to lure it into a garage or other enclosed place with bananas or grapes.

Anyone spotting the animal can contact Nash at 687-3324 or the Jackson County Sheriff's Department.

Fire department to flush hydrants

As part of a hydrant maintenance program, the Carbondale Fire Department will flush fire hydrants in the northeast and southeast sections of the city during the next two weeks.

"During that time, some discoloration of residents' water may occur, but the condition is nothing to worry about, said public information officer Steve Piltz.

The purpose of the hydrant flushing is to rid city water lines of corrosion and enable water in the lines to flow properly, Piltz said.

Once the flushing is complete in the southeast section of Carbondale, the maintenance program will conclude.

Memorial loan fund is started

A short-term student loan fund is being established by friends of Margaret Hill Bennett to benefit SIU-C students.

Bennett was a 34-year employee in the payroll office.

Contributions to the Bennett Memorial Student Loan Fund may be sent to Carroll Emme in the controller's office. Lill Watson in payroll or Donna Hartmann in disbursements.

The main goal is to perpetuate Mrs. Bennett's name on campus, said Emme. "This will be a help to students and a nice way to remember her," Emme said.

Fiddler Tommy Williams at home in front of some of the gold records and awards he's received.

Fiddler set for Turley Park

By T.E. Sparks
Entertainment Editor

Since he was 13 years old, Tommy Williams has been making a living with his fiddle. Since that time, Williams has become a stanchion of country music.

Carbondale will get a chance to hear this renowned Nashville musician Thursday evening when Williams, along with the Priebe Brothers take the stage at 8 p.m. in Turley Park.

Williams, a regular on the syndicated television show "Hee Haw" for the past six seasons, has played both on the road and on the record with many of the top artists in country music — performers such as Mel Tillis, Charley Pride, George Jones, Ronnie Milsap, and Johnny Cash.

Williams has performed on 39 gold and three platinum records and has also played on the soundtracks to such movies as "The Longest Yard," "Take This Job and Shove It," "Every Which Way But Loose" and "Coal Miner's Daughter."

He has also received 39 "Super Picker" awards from the Nashville chapter of the National Academy of the Recording Arts and Sciences for his performances on the studio sessions of number-one records.

Williams was "discovered" in Phoenix by then-newcomer Ferlin Husky who promptly took him on the road where he joined Husky's other band members. Buck Owens, Dallas Frazier and Tommy Collins.

The Priebe Brothers, local favorites of Southern Illinois, were recently named Tri-State Champions in the Wrangler Country Music Showdown.

The event, the second in the Sunset Concert Series, is sponsored by the Student Programming Council, the Student Center and the Carbondale Park District.

Turley Park is located on Route 13 in west Carbondale near Murdale Shopping Center. The rain location will be Shryock Auditorium. The concert is free.

Softball rally 'injures' state Senate

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — A funny thing happened to the Illinois Senate on its way to work Wednesday morning.

"The reason we are delayed is because we had many casualties last night," Sen. Adeline Geo-Karis, R-Zion, said when only eight senators were in the chamber at 9:20 a.m. — a half-hour after the body was to have convened.

A raucous party? Negotiations over tense political issues that got physical? No, none of that.

"We got clobbered by the House," Coach Geo-Karis explained of the Senate's 20-4 loss in the Legislature's annual softball rivalry.

An impatient Sen. Terry Bruce, D-Chey, temporarily presiding over the chamber, reminded colleagues they faced a full calendar before a midnight June 30 deadline for adjourning the spring session.

Geo-Karis asked Bruce for "mercy" in giving acting senators a few more minutes to hobble in to the chamber, saying one senator had pulled a leg muscle and another injured his hand.

But there was this consolation: The Senate has lost by worse scores in the past to the generally younger, thinner, faster, stronger, and some would say healthier, House lawmakers.

Playhouse alumnus wins Tony

As members of Summer Playhouse '83 were busy preparing for the new season on the night of June 5, one of its former performers was busy accepting a Tony Award.

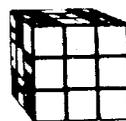

Judith Ivey, cast member from the Summer Playhouses of 1970 and 1971, won the award for Best Supporting Actress for her role in the Broadway production of "Steaming."

Ivey is a graduate of Marion High School and Illinois State University. While a member of Summer Playhouse, she played the roles of Agnes Gouch in "Mame," Fermina in "Man of La Mancha," and Laura in "Half A Sixpence."

Also appearing at the Tony Awards was Peter Michael Goetz, a 1968 member of Summer Playhouse, who directed and also appeared in "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." He is currently appearing on Broadway in the Neil Simon hit comedy, "Brighton Beach Memoirs."

Shuttle crew learns to 'catch' satellites

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The shuttle astronauts played a celestial game of tag with a satellite Wednesday, releasing and plucking it back from orbit in a rehearsal for future repair missions. On the ground, bad weather put a Florida landing in doubt and President Reagan canceled plans to attend.

NASA officials had made no decision on allowing Challenger to land as scheduled Friday morning and whether such a landing would be at Cape Canaveral or at Edwards Air Force Base in California, the backup site.

If clouds and thunderstorms persist in Florida, Challenger could remain aloft an extra day or two.

In a day-long aerial ballet at 17,400 mph, astronauts John Fabian, Sally Ride and Dr. Norman Thagard used the shuttle's 50-foot-long arm to release the satellite into space and grab it again five times, before restoring it for the flight home.

"We've been told some crews in the past have announced, 'We deliver,'" said Robert Crippen, commander of the seventh space shuttle mission. "Well, for Flight Seven, we pick up and deliver."

Never before has a satellite been retrieved by a spaceship. The ability to retrieve an object from orbit will be crucial when shuttles are sent aloft for satellite servicing and repair missions.

"We're delighted about what happened today," said lead flight director Tommy Holloway. "Today has been a significant milestone in the overall operation of the shuttle... Everything went exceptionally well."

Crippen and pilot Rick Huck took turns at the controls repeatedly approaching and retreating from the satellite, a 15-foot-long scientific package called Shuttle Pallet Satellite, or SPAS.

At times the Challenger was 1,000 feet from the free-flying satellite. It moved above it, below it and around it 180 miles above Earth.

Cameras aboard the West German-built SPAS photographed the shuttle against a brilliant backdrop of a blue, sunlit Earth. And, in turn, cameras aboard the shuttle produced spectacular views of SPAS, looking like a big box kite, framed against black space with the curving Earth below.

NASA officials were to decide Thursday whether to attempt the first-ever shuttle landing on the Kennedy Space Center runway. Scattered clouds and rain showers were forecast.

"I'm not optimistic for an opportunity to land at the Kennedy Space Center on Friday," Holloway said.

Officials could extend the flight a day or two — the shuttle carries sufficient supplies for the astronauts and their machine. An alternative would be landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., where five of the previous six flights have ended.

Reagan had planned to be on hand for the 6:53 a.m. EDT landing Friday, but the White House said Wednesday that trip had been canceled in view of the uncertain weather.

AMA disputes dioxin health dangers

CHICAGO (AP) — There is no scientific evidence that dioxin contamination poses an imminent danger to people, the American Medical Association contended Wednesday as it approved a publicity campaign to counter news reports about the chemical.

"The news media have made dioxin the focus of a witch hunt by disseminating rumors, hearsay and unconfirmed, unscientific reports," says the resolution approved on a voice vote by the AMA's 151-member House of Delegates.

It concludes that "the lives and well-being" of people living in areas contaminated by dioxin "have been unnecessarily and ignorantly damaged by this hysterical misreporting."

The campaign is intended "to get accurate information before the public to prevent irrational reactions and unjustified public fright," it said.

However, one of the resolution's sponsors, Dr. George Bohigian, conceded that dioxin's longterm effects on humans are not known.

Dr. Paul Wiesner, an assistant director of the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, said that while he couldn't comment on the AMA resolution because he hadn't seen it, "evidence is increasing that there is an association with a rare form of tumor called soft tissue sarcoma after occupational exposure (to dioxin)."

Wiesner also said studies clearly show that dioxin is poisonous to animals and that this suggests caution in human contact with it.

Dioxin, a contaminant in the defoliant Agent Orange used during the Vietnam War, is an unwanted and useless byproduct in the manufacture of herbicides and some other chemicals.

Dioxin has been found in waste oil sprayed to control dust on roads in Missouri and at factory sites in New Jersey and other states.

Residents of Times Beach, Mo., were evacuated at federal expense after CDC warnings about dioxin contamination.

Vietnam veterans who came in contact with Agent Orange are engaged in a bitter battle with the federal government over the effects of exposure, which they blame for skin and nerve disorders, birth defects and a host of other problems. A study is under way.

The AMA measure called for the association's Council on Scientific Affairs to update a 1981 report on dioxin, which notes that no deaths ever have been attributed to exposure to the chemical.

That report reviewed a 1976 accident near Seveso, Italy, in which more than 37,000 people were exposed to dioxin released into the air from a factory.

Two years later, health effects were found to be minimal and temporary, including a mild form of acne and slight nerve impairment in some of those exposed. By 1981, there had been no reports of physical impairment, birth defects or harm to growing children.

"The scientific evidence and facts are not yet conclusive" on dioxin, said Bohigian, a member of the Missouri delegation that offered the resolution. "In the chemical world, dioxin has been around a long time. It's not produced any (documented) deaths or anything of a serious medical nature."

He added: "Preliminary reports have not shown detrimental effects (from ex-posure), but we do not know about the long term."

Bohigian said the federal government "acted somewhat hastily" in Times Beach and should have asked residents to participate in a voluntary study on its effects before evacuating the town.

Missouri health agencies found no sickness when they examined Times Beach residents, he said.

Elaborating on his charge of "misreporting," Bohigian said television has little time to research the topics it covers and "tends to gloss over many of the issues and accentuates confusion about the unknown."

Networks to vary 'entertainment'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Moyers sits on a nuclear-bomb casing pondering the unthinkable. Charles Kuralt drives into another sleepy hamlet and swigs 10-megaton ginger ale.

Both men are doing what they do best — finding interesting stories and communicating them as purely as possible. And, happily, both will be doing this back-to-back in weekly, prime-time series this summer, beginning Sunday.

ABC and NBC also are forsaking all-repeat summer programming to meet the cable TV challenge. But all their new series are entertainment programs providing varying degrees of entertainment. CBS has taken the higher road with Kuralt and Moyers.

Kuralt's show, "On the Road," travels the backroads looking for stories Made in America. Essentially, he finds plain folk who possess more than their share of guts, nobility and flakiness. These reports will regale regulars at the corner bar, making them smile.

Moyers' show, "Our Times," travels different routes for issue stories dealing with life's dilemmas, demons and dreams. These reports will divide patrons at the corner bar, making them think.

After Sunday night's episodes, the 30-minute programs will be broadcast on Tuesday nights through Aug. 23.

Teachers plan Asian trip; professor to host delegation

By Jeanna Hunter
Staff Writer

Educators from all over the United States are planning a 21-day excursion, beginning July 10, to China and Russia in an effort to learn more about the education systems in those countries and to share information about American education.

Dormalee Lindberg, a professor in the SIU-C Department of Curriculum, Instruction and Media, will serve as host for the delegation of educators.

Lindberg, who is president of the Association of Childhood Education International, said that the delegates are ambassadors of good will.

The purpose of the trip is to meet educators from both Russia and China, see how the education systems work in other countries and possibly meet some children and tour facilities, Lindberg said. She said the group is excited and expects to receive a warm welcome.

In an effort to promote good relations with their hosts, Lindberg said that she is planning to take a variety of traditional American items with her as gifts. The bits of Americana that she plans to bring along range from peanut butter and American cosmetics to pop corn and bubble gum.

This is the first time a delegation of instructors from the ACEI is traveling to a foreign country to study education systems under the People-to-People program since it was initiated during the Eisenhower administration, Lindberg said.

The members of the delegation must pay their own expenses and the cost is about $4,000 each, she said.

Career center gets computer

CASIE to advise students

By Paula J. Finlay
Staff Writer

With a staff of six to serve 23,000 students, the SIU-C Career Counseling Center decided to get some more help. So the center developed a computer service called CASIE.

CASIE stands for computer-assisted self investigation and exploration, a program developed by Career Counseling for SIU-C students, according to Jim Scales, counseling psychologist at the center.

"It's not just a canned national program," Scales said. "It was put together specifically for SIU students." CASIE opened for student use in March, but the idea for such a program has been in the works since August of 1981, Scales said.

CASIE operates on two microcomputers in the Career Counseling Center. With the computers, students may get information that they don't necessarily need to see a career counselor for, Scales said. The program is used to aid students in three ways: self-assessment, career choices and alternatives and self management, he said.

The first portion, self-assessment, aids students in evaluating their interests, skills, values and work personalities, Scales said. It helps students to put all those factors together to see how they fit into the world of work, he said.

The second package is divided into two parts: career choice alternatives and career resources, he said. The career choice alternatives section lists and describes the 103 majors, minors, and special programs available at SIU-C. It also lists the kinds of employers that have hired SIU-C graduates from each program, he said. The career resources section lists 23,000 American occupations, Scales said, including everything from schoolteachers to "cat-skinners."

Self-management is the third of the options. It helps students develop study skills and time management, Scales said.

Scales said Career Counseling serves about 900 students during each nine-month school year.

"That's a large number when you consider we have a staff of six," he said. "But that's small when you look at a university of 23,000."

Scales said he thinks more students should take advantage of the services the center offers. Funding comes from University accounts and all students are eligible to use them free-of-charge.

"If the service is paid for, why not use it?" he said.

The Career Counseling Center has functioned as a separate unit since August 1980, Scales said. Before that, it was part of Career Planning and Placement, he said. The center has three main services, Scales said. It helps students who are undecided about a major to find one that is suitable for them; it helps students who are unhappy with their current program of study and want to change to find a more suitable major and it helps students who are satisfied with their majors to examine career opportunities. The center also offers programs in coping with test anxiety and stress, Scales said.

"running up the white flag on controlling domestic spending."

Reagan spoke to a convention of the National Federation of Independent Business on the eve of a House vote on a plan to clamp a $700 ceiling on income tax cuts Americans are due to receive this year.

As it now stands, the tax cut will be 10 percent for everyone. The ceiling would begin pinching a $50,000 income for a family of four.

Reagan to veto 'budget-busting bills'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, waging war against a congressional spending plan and a Democratic proposal for a $700 ceiling on income tax cuts, urged Americans today to tell Congress, "Get your hands out of our pockets, get control of your own budget."

Taking aim at the $85 billion budget approved by House and Senate negotiators, Reagan said the proposal amounts to

Connors wins opening match at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors, defending his Wimbledon tennis title, disposed of Australia's Wally Masur in a second-round match Wednesday and said his first jitters were over.

Connors wore down his opponent 6-4, 7-6, 6-0 after saving two set points in the second set.

"It was not a 10-out-of-10 performance, and anything less than that needs improving," Connors said. "To win Wimbledon you need a steady climb upwards while trying to avoid the valleys. You get no second chance."

"My first- and second-round jitters have gone. Once you turn the loose I'm on the way, playing the best tennis possible."

John McEnroe, the 1981 champion and Connors' main rival, is a round behind. He was scheduled to play Florin Segarceanu of Romania Thursday.

Chris Evert Lloyd, challenging defending champion Martina Navratilova for the women's title, beat Marcella Mesker of the Netherlands 6-4, 6-2 for a place in the third round.

Stock car race set for DuQuoin

by Joe Paschen
 Staff Writer

A versatile lineup of stock cars and drivers will be the feature event of this weekend's Southern Illinois Coal Festival. Heading a list of established drivers will be two-time defending USAC National Champion Dean Roper. The Fair Grove, Mo. native is coming off a recent USAC victory in the opening race of the season June 5th at Springfield, Ill. Roper will be attempting a repeat of his 1982 USAC Stock Car Series Championship by revisiting the winner's circle at the DuQuoin State Fairgrounds which he did two years ago.

What will make Saturday's 100-mile feature event so verified is the eleven car models entered, including the only Ford Thunderbird ever run under the USAC banner.

The feature race is set to receive the green flag at 2 p.m., with practice laps beginning at noon. Ticket information can be found by calling the DuQuoin Fairgrounds at 542-5495.

There is expected to be various other festivities going on throughout the day on the Fairgrounds with most the noise coming from the one mile dirt oval track.

Ex-Saluki gymnast Brian Babcock will prepare for the World University Games this month.

Ex-Saluki gymnast prepares for international competition

By Dan Devine
Staff Writer

Brian Babcock says he doesn't worry about injuries, slips in his routines, or performances of other gymnasts. Staying calm, he says, is the key to success, especially in the pressure-packed world of Olympic class gymnastics.

Babcock has been traveling in that world lately, since a high finish at the NCAA gymnastics meet in April capped a comeback from a knee injury and confirmed him a serious Olympic contender again.

Babcock has been traveling in that world lately, since a high finish at the NCAA gymnastics meet in April capped a comeback from a knee injury and confirmed him a serious Olympic contender again. The former SIU-C gymnast keeps company these days with stars like Mitch Gaylord and Peter Vidmar of UCLA, and Jim Hartung of Nebraska. Those four qualified, at the United States gymnastic championships last month, for a spot on the four-man United States team that will compete at the World University Games in Edmonton, Canada. Babcock leaves for those games, which begin July 1, next week; for now, he's working out at Nebraska.

"Everything is working out perfect," he said. "I'm still on Cloud Nine."

Babcock has been a hanger-on in such illustrious company for a long time, but injuries (not sloppy routines and not other gymnasts) have kept him at the edge of greatness for years. His history of bad luck has been well documented — torn knee ligaments, torn ankle tendons, an injured testicle — but if those setbacks still haunt him, he won't say. He tries not to let anything bother him he says, not even the fierce pressure he admits the top twelve U.S. gymnast all labor with.

"There are about twelve guys who are really close, so the pressure is really intense," he said. "You try not to worry about it. You're setting your own destiny."

That's probably the best frame of mind, but it seldom comes easy. Tell somebody to relax all the time, and they'll usually do the opposite. Babcock admits he wasn't always as relaxed.

"It's somethings I've actually learned this year," he said.

The other intangibles he acquired this season was consistency. According to SIU-C Coach Bill Meade, all but two of Babcock's 164 routines this season were scored at 9.0 or better.

"That's what the judges look for," said the gymnast. "You try and make a name for yourself and to do that you have to be consistent."

His success surprises neither Meade, who says Babcock was always capable of this, or Babcock himself, who wanted to be here all the time.

"I've always set high enough goals to get to this point," he said. "My major career goal is to make the Olympics. Basically the reason I didn't get to this point sooner was that I had a lot of obstacles."

Some of those obstacles are probably behind him. Others — Vidmar, Gaylord, Hartung, Bart Connor, etc. — are still ahead.

The best way to leap those formidable opponents, says Babcock, is with mental discipline.

"You have to control your anxieties."

Athletics budget situation worsens as deficit mounts

By Dan Devine
Sports Editor

Budget making, men's athletic Director Lew Hartzog says, is a gloomy process.

The outlook for the fiscal year 1984 SIU-C Intercollegiate Athletics budget darkened Wednesday, when Bruce Swinburne, vice-president for student affairs, released the third working draft of next year's budget at the Intercollegiate Athletic Advisory Committee meeting.

The latest draft shows an anticipated deficit of $81,437. The second working draft, released June 3, had an anticipated shortfall of $55,437.

The primary difference between the two is the $20,000 expense for next season's men's basketball tournament, the Busch Shoot-out, which had not been figured into the second draft, Swinburne said.

Swinburne emphasized that the figures released were just working figures, but he said this draft is close to what the final budget will be. The actual fiscal 1984 budget will be approved in August.

The report stated that in order to cover the estimated deficit, working cash, the surplus from previous budgets, would be used. In that sense, Swinburne said, the 1984 budget would be a balanced one.

Working cash of $39,417 is expected to be needed to balance the 1983 actual budget, but Swinburne said there should be enough left to cover fiscal 1984's shortfall also.

The working draft also includes $40,000 in endowment money from the Foundation balance as funds to be counted as revenue and used for expenses. Men's athletics used Foundation money last year, but this time women's athletic director Charlotte West expressed some concern.

"We're moving into next year without any savings," she said. "I'm extremely apprehensive about this. I would like to see money saved in security as savings.

"I don't feel secure at all about fiscal year 1984 and I don't think anybody does when we're moving into next year without any savings."

Hartzog said the men's athletic department was probably facing a deficit of $100,000. He said that while further across-the-board cuts may have to be made, no sports would be dropped.

Hartzog said the budget squeeze was unfortunate, coming as SIU-C enters what could be a great sports campaign.

"I think personally that we are looking forward to the greatest year in SIU history," he said. "We have a good year coming up and we're facing it with an upset stomach."

A big reason for the large deficit, he said, is that next season's football team does not have a Florida State on its schedule. Last year's football game with Florida State netted SIU-C $100,000.

Every men's sport will have its budget cut, except for basketball. Swinburne had earlier promised that he would guarantee that basketball Coach Allen Van Winkle would have a larger budget, but jacked off that slightly Wednesday, saying that was Hartzog's decision. Hartzog said the basketball budget would be increased.

Hartzog pointed to three factors that could help close the $100,000 budget gap. He said more money could be generated from student fees if enrollment does not fall as anticipated; that more money can be raised by fund raising, and that ticket sales can be improved. Most of that will have to come from increased ticket sales, which Swinburne said were "atrocious" last year. Hartzog said that last year's basketball team generated less income than any in the Missouri Valley Conference.

The IAAC will meet again next month to discuss business it didn't get to Wednesday.

Saluki women athletes get good grade reports

The good news more than outweighed the bad in Women's Athletics Director Charlotte West's report on the spring academic progress of SIU-C women athletes at the Intercollegiate Athletic Advisory Committee meeting Wednesday.

First she gave the bad news. Nine athletes fell behind during the semester, five were placed on academic probation, and three were suspended.

Then came the good news. Women athletes had an average grade point average of 2.78 in the spring, and have a 2.79 gpa for the year. There were three women's teams whose members averaged a 3.0 or better in the spring — volleyball, which led with 3.18, along with golf and tennis. 67 athletes had grade point averages of 3.0 or better.

The women's success further backs a study released by a subcommittee of the IAAC Wednesday. The study reported that SIU-C athletes, men and women, rank above the national average in ACT tests, and that SIU-C has a high rate of retention of its athletes.

The report examined all students whose names were on Missouri Valley Conference and Gateway Collegiate Athletic conference rosters from 1975 to 1977 and analyzed their ACT scores, transcripts, high school rank, semesters attended and status when leaving the university.

Of the 155 female athletes admitted to SIU-C, 110 (71 percent) were grad. atted, 107 of 228 male athletes (47 percent) eventually graduated. Those figures were higher than the retention rates for all SIU-C students, according to Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs.

In light of the report, Swinburne asked Harvey Welch, dean of Student Life, to establish a two-fold program that will entail monitoring the academic progress of all athletes, and, if needed, implementing additional services for student athletes.

"It behooves us never to adopt an attitude of being satisfied," Swinburne said. "We need to work diligently to maintain the quality of programs that will see the highest graduation rate possible from the institution."

Four teams added

NBA expands playoff format

NEW YORK (AP) — The best-of-three, mini-series that frightened good teams and gave upset hopes to mediocre ones is being scrapped by the National Basketball Association.

The NBA's Board of Governors voted Tuesday to expand the playoffs from 12 to 16 teams and make the opening round series best-of-five instead of best-of-three. Another effect of the vote is that the four division champions now will have to play in the first round rather than receive a bye.

A second change approved by the board is that no NBA team will be allowed to make transactions that would leave it with no first-round draft choice for two consecutive years. Another change limits cash transactions to $300,000 between Dec. 15 and the end of the season each year.

The main reason for the change in the playoff format, according to Phoenix Suns general manager Jerry Colangelo, was economics.

"Potentially, there could be 26 more playoff games and an extra $4 million to $5 million in league revenues," he said. Under the new collective bargaining agreement, players are guaranteed 53 percent of gross revenues.

Colangelo said the limit on trading top draft picks was approved in order to avoid situations like the Cleveland Cavaliers, who at one point had no first-round pick for five straight years.

The board also approved the transfer of ownership of the Kansas City Kings to a group led by Gregg and Frank Lukenbill and Joe Benvenuto and the sale of 50 percent of the ownership of the Utah Jazz to Gerald Bagley.

Bob Forsch, 5-6, lasted only 2 1-3 innings, giving up all six runs on five hits, striking out two and walking one. He was replaced by Jim Kaat, who worked 3 2-3 innings, after Strawberry's double drove in the final run of a three-run third inning. Jose Oquendo and Foster also had run-scoring singles in the inning.

Dave Green's two-run single to center highlighted a three-run uprising by St. Louis in the fourth. Rookie Andy VanSlyke, who was recalled from Louisville June 11, hit a solo homer in the sixth inning, his second in as many games.
