First-day donations bag 299 pints at blood drive

By Karen Wells
Staff Writer

A total of 299 pints of blood was collected at Wednesday's drive held in the Student Center Ballroom D, according to Vivian Ugent, area director for the Red Cross blood service. Today's blood drive will be from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., also in Ballroom D.

Ugent said she is "very pleased" with the people who donated blood. She said of the 299 people who donated, only 23 were first-time donors. Twenty potential donors were not eligible to donate.

Ugent said "it is necessary for people, especially students, to give blood because summer months are the neediest months of the year." She said people will need blood because most car accidents will probably occur during the upcoming Fourth of July weekend as well as throughout the summer. It also is needed for people who require blood on a routine-medical basis such as chronic leukemia patients, she added.

Kevin Jackson, a senior in accounting, said "I gave blood because someday someone, either in my family or no, will need blood. And I just want it to be there when needed."

Ugent said a person who wants to donate blood should be at least 105 pounds or more, 17 years old and in

Campus tree cutting creates controversy

Officials say tree chopping above board

By Deedra Lawhead
Staff Writer

University officials who ordered trees cleared from the shore of Campus Lake are at odds with opponents who question their right to do so.

Lynne Nolan says the land around the lake was given to the University with the stipulation that the area's natural state be maintained and that there was, at one time, documentation to prove it.

The stipulation was part of the donor's wishes and "their wishes should not be lost," Nolan contends.

But David Grobe, director of facilities planning, said he has carefully read the deed for the land, as has the University legal council. He said there are no restrictions governing the use of the University's land around Campus Lake or Thompson Woods.

Mirroring Grobe's view is Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services. He said Nolan's claim is "absolutely wrong, there are no conditions we must follow." John C. Guyon, acting president, said Dougherty told him there was "no such understanding that the land be left in a natural state."

During the time the land around Campus Lake was purchased, Charles Pulley was University Architect. He said there always was talk about a formal document being developed that outlined the Thompson's wishes, but he does not think it was ever "officially" done.

Cleo Caraway, who has worked for the U.S. Forest Service since 1946, wrote a book on the history of the forestry sciences laboratory entitled "A Forestry Science Laboratory and how it Grew."

An excerpt from that book reads: "Theodore W. Thompson, one of Carbondale's first settlers, owned an 85-acre tract of land that included Thompson Woods and Thompson Lake (now Campus Lake). The wooded area is preserved in a nearly natural state (only infirm and hazardous trees are being removed) as was agreed at the time the University acquired the land."

Careful research was conducted while Caraway wrote her book, she said. If the agreement was not documented "it was at least a widely known and quoted verbal agreement, a gentleman's agreement," she said.

Removal of the trees and underbrush was requested partly by the physical plant, Dougherty said, because the plant was encountering difficulty removing trash in the area.

Bill McMinn, associate director of facilities who is responsible for Campus Lake, the boat dock and the picnic areas, said underbrush is being thinned out to provide space for new picnic areas, afford better student access and reduce the mortality rate of hardwood trees, which the underbrush chokes off and kills.

Guyon said the work has been going on for a long time without any "specific authority" and is just a "routine clean-up."

A disagreement over the status of the Natural Areas Committee and whether or not it should have been informed of the clearing at Campus Lake also has arisen.

Committees come to terms: North to testify in public

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The congressional Iran-Contra committees reached an agreement Wednesday under which Lt. Col. Oliver North, the key figure in the probe, will testify in public on July 7, the committee leadership announced Wednesday.

Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, chairman of the Senate panel, announced an agreement for North to appear in executive session on July 1 to answer questions about President Reagan's "knowledge of or involvement in the diversion" of Iran-arms profits to the Nicaraguan Contras.

North, who has been granted limited immunity from prosecution, has so far refused to testify about any aspect of the scandal.

A multitude of witnesses who have testified during the seven weeks of hearings have said North claimed he was operating with Reagan's full knowledge and authority in carrying out the secret sale of U.S. arms to Iran and efforts to resupply the Nicaraguan Contras after Congress banned aid in 1984.

Inouye said lawmakers sent a letter to North's lawyer, Brendan Sullivan, making it clear that the Iran-Contra panel would make no commitment on limiting North's public testimony or promising not to recall him.

Sullivan had demanded that North's testimony be limited to 25 to 30 hours and that the committees promise not to recall him for a second round of questioning if necessary.

Inouye said the panels only agreed to send Sullivan a letter "reflecting the committees' intentions" to question North in public for no more than a week and stating they did not anticipate recalling him. Inouye stressed, however, that the panels retained the option to question North as needed.

Presidential hopeful to face community forum

By Jacke Hampton
Staff Writer

Peter E. Wagner, the second of three presidential finalists to be interviewed in an open meeting, visited the Medical School campus in Springfield Wednesday.

Wagner, 55, a native of Pennsylvania, will meet with the University community at an open meeting today at 3 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium.

The series of meetings with presidential candidates began last Tuesday with a forum for Acting President John C. Guyon and ends next Tuesday with a meeting for David R. Powers, 48, vice chancellor for academic affairs for the West Virginia Board of Regents.

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said he expects to recommend a new president to the Board of Trustees on July 9 to replace Albert Somit, who resigned last January.

Wagner, a professor of physics and electrical engineering, has been provost at Utah State University since 1984. Provost is the top academic officer and is second in command to the president of the school.

He was vice chancellor for academic affairs and professor of physics at the University of Mississippi from 1981-84 and director and professor of the Center for Environmental Studies at the University of Maryland from 1973-80. The vice chancellor answers to the president and is equivalent to a campus chief executive officer.

Wagner also taught at the University of Alabama in Huntsville from 1980-81 and Johns Hopkins University

Waldheim's visit to Rome met with Jewish protest

VATICAN CITY (UPI)— Austrian President Kurt Waldheim arrived in Rome Wednesday to meet with the pope, and four U.S. Jewish activists climbed the steps of St. Peter's Basilica in death camp uniforms singing a Hebrew prayer for the people of Israel to protest the visit to the Vatican. "We tell the Vatican, the pope, the world that this is intolerable," Rabbi Avraham Weiss said, reiterating charges by Jewish organizations that Waldheim was involved in Nazi war crimes.

Suspected terrorist to remain in W. Germany

BONN, West Germany (UPI)— West Germany refused Wednesday to extradite a suspected Lebanese terrorist to face U.S. charges of murder and air piracy but vowed to use the "full force of German law" in prosecuting the 17-day hijacking of a TWA jet in 1985. Although President Reagan had made a personal appeal to Chancellor Helmut Kohl for the extradition of Mohammed Ali Hamadei, he and Attorney General Edwin Meese said they were satisfied with the decision.

2 Lebanese freed; U.S. reporter still held

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)— The son of Lebanon's defense minister and his bodyguard, kidnapped by Moslem extremists a week ago in southern Beirut, were freed Wednesday but an American abducted with them remained in captivity. The releases came a day after Syrian occupation forces in Lebanon threatened to take unspecified steps against the suspected kidnappers unless the two men and the American, Charles Glass, were freed.

London paper claims Iran mining Gulf

By United Press International

Iran's paramilitary revolutionary guards are mining Persian Gulf shipping lanes into a Kuwaiti oil terminal, increasing the risk of confrontation with superpower convoys escorting Kuwaiti tankers, Jane's Defense weekly said Wednesday. The London publication on military matters said shipping and salvage experts believe the mining of lanes into Kuwait's Al-Ahmadi oil terminal is aimed at disrupting plans for the U.S. and Soviet navies to separately begin escorting vessels to protect them from Iranian surface and air attacks.

Gay rights group claims AIDS drugs delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI)— A homosexual legal rights organization Wednesday filed a class action suit against the government, charging that development of promising AIDS drugs has been delayed because of red tape and favoritism. The National Gay Rights Advocates, a Los Angeles law firm, filed the suit in U.S. District Court on behalf of AIDS victims and all those infected with the AIDS virus, naming as defendants the Department of Health and Human Services, Food and Drug Administration and National Institutes of Health.

CIA lawyer: hostages had precedence

WASHINGTON (UPI)— The CIA lawyer who gave the administration the legal foundation to sell arms to Iran said Wednesday the top priority was purchasing freedom for American hostages in Lebanon, and no mention was ever made of a diplomatic overture to Iranian "moderates." Stanley Sporkin, who resigned as chief CIA counsel last year to become a federal judge, also told the Iran-Contra committees that he cautioned the White House in early 1986 about bringing in.

Chrysler indicted for alleged odometer scam

WASHINGTON (UPI)— A federal grand jury indicted Chrysler Motors Corp. and two of its senior executives Wednesday for conspiracy in an alleged scheme involving odometer fraud, the Justice Department announced. The department said the charges stem from a program at Chrysler dating back to 1949 where executives were permitted to drive newly manufactured cars with the odometer disconnected for up to six weeks.

High Court rules employee illegally fired

WASHINGTON (UPI)— The Supreme Court ruled 5-4 Wednesday a clerk typist in a Texas constable's office was illegally fired for applauding John Hinckley's 1981 assassination attempt on President Reagan. The justices, rejecting arguments from Harris County, Texas, officials, affirmed a lower court ruling that the dismissal of deputy Ardith McPherson violated her First Amendment right of free speech.

WSIU-FM news director gets reporting honor

By Luana Graves
Student Writer

After 11 years as the news and public affairs director for WSIU-FM 92, a University-based public radio station, Jak Tichenor has been selected the "Stringer of the Year" by Illinois United Press International.

"Anytime you get recognition from your peers, it's important and it makes you feel humble," he said.

The stringer award recognizes the number of significant news story contributions by a journalist. Tichenor received the award at the Illinois News Broadcasters Association's spring convention May 3 in Peoria.

Tichenor works on the station's "Midday 92" and "Morning Edition" programs. By 4:30 a.m. each weekday, he is already preparing the day's first newscast.

"Southern Illinois is much more visible to the state," he said. "The award shows that a lot of the material that comes from Southern Illinois is generated around the state and to the National Public Radio Network," he said.

Jay Pearce, WSIU's assistant news director, said, "I admire Jak and consider him to be a professional in every sense, whether he's working with students, the administration, or on a story."

Chris Meyers, 21, a radio-television major and student staff news producer, said Tichenor "is a real professional. He has high standards and he always shows that he cares. And that rubs off on the students."

Tichenor said that "if not for the contributions of the students and staff, I wouldn't have the award. It's just as much their award as it is mine. They give me an environment where I am able to work to get the best coverage possible."

He began his broadcasting career at 15 as a disc jockey with WMOK in Metropolis, then moved on to commercial production and news at WPAD-WDDJ AM-FM in Paducah. A graduate student in public visual communication, he started with WSIU in 1976.

In 1981, he moved to WCIL, then returned to WSIU as news director.

"Students are the best reason for being here," Tichenor said. "They are a constant challenge and keep it from being a routine situation watching them progress."

The stringer award is not Tichenor's first from UPI. He shared Outstanding Achievement honors as a producer, with former student Deona Zigler, for a documentary on rape.

Mill intersections to get signals

Traffic signals at the most dangerous intersections in Carbondale are in the preliminary stages of installation.

The intersection of Mill Street and Illinois Avenue and the intersection of Mill and University Avenue will receive signals by the spring of 1988, Ed Reeder, director of Carbondale Public Works, said.

"The accident rate is dictating signals," Reeder said.

The traffic signals have been in the planning stages for many years, he said. Reeder, who has worked for the city for 14 years, said they have been planned since he began working for the city.

The preliminary design is being developed and money has been budgeted for the project. Part of the project will be financed by the city because Mill Street is city property. The Illinois Avenue signal will be financed by the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Clarification

Travelers leaving Carbondale can get to the Garden of the Gods recreation center, near Herod, by taking Illinois Route 13 through Harrisburg and turning south on Route 1. From Route 1, turn west on Karbers Ridge Road and follow the sign to Garden of the Gods.

Little Grassy Lake is 10 miles southeast of Carbondale on Little Grassy Road east of Giant City Road.

The directions were incorrect in Wednesday's D.E.

In addition, the name of Devil's Stand Table in Giant City State Park was incorrect.

Swinburne fulfills presidency quest

BRUCE SWINBURNE, vice president for student affairs, will leave our campus this summer to take the president's job at a private East Coast college. Although the colleges greatly differ, Swinburne should do well in his new position. He's been climbing the ladder to a presidential position for years.

Before coming to SIU-C in 1970, Swinburne served as student personnel director at Iowa Lakes Community College and as academic dean at Glen Oaks Community College in Centreville, Mich. He then served as an associate professor of higher education on this campus until 1973, when he was named dean of students.

AT THAT TIME, Swinburne said he would hold the post for no more than nine months because he planned to return to teaching. Instead, he chose to accept his appointment into the newly created vice president for student affairs position in 1974.

In the new position, Swinburne was given charge of student life, student services, student work and financial assistance and the intercollegiate athletic program.

THE PROGRAM BECAME a source of embarrassment to Swinburne in 1985, when he became a key player in the confusion that ripped through the athletics department.

George Iubelt, who was president of the Saluki Booster Club and consultant to the women's basketball team, was offered a coaching job by Lew Hartzog, head of the men's athletic program. Hartzog said that Swinburne gave him the go ahead to discuss the position with Iubelt but Swinburne denied ever having discussed the matter with Hartzog.

WHEN IT WAS ANNOUNCED that Allen Van Winkle would remain as men's basketball coach, Iubelt quit his positions in anger. Soon after, Lew Hartzog retired, although he said that the coaching controversy was not the reason for his decision, and Swinburne relinquished his position as head of intercollegiate athletics.

Although he no longer is directly associated with intercollegiate athletics, Swinburne has remained involved with the program in the role of the most outspoken Saluki fan on campus. At any given sporting event, Swinburne was on hand to root for the team, encourage school spirit and shake hands with students. And the hand shaking wasn't just an act; Swinburne is genuinely interested in the students he serves.

THAT INTEREST CAN be seen in Swinburne's record. A strong supporter of the proposed addition to the Recreation Center, he took his stance only after asking students what they thought about the addition and the subsequent fee increases that it would bring.

Swinburne has tried to halt such fee increases as often as possible. Time and time again, he has asked for state support for such student-oriented programs as the Recreation Center and the Health Service. Although the government hasn't been very eager to pick up the tab, at least Swinburne tried.

SWINBURNE IS an amiable man, and he always seemed happy here at SIU-C. But his quest for a stronger role in student affairs led him to run for higher positions at other colleges. In 1982, he was a candidate for the president's position at St. Cloud State University in Minnesota. His presidential hopes were fulfilled this year when he was selected as president at Mitchell College in New London, Ct.

With an enrollment of less than 2,000, the college will give Swinburne a chance to meet many if not all of its student population. He will go over well at a small school.

Republicans need to be convinced to accept campaign-spending limit

By Steve Gerstel
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The raising and spending of money purely for the purpose of winning election being undeniably a political endeavor, why is anyone surprised that reform of campaign financing laws is a partisan issue?

"Whenever you consider the issue of money in politics, the partisan juices begin to flow," Common Cause President Fred Wertheimer points out. "There has never been a fight involving campaign finance reform that hasn't had partisan overtones."

For three weeks, the Senate has been paralyzed in a classic split down party lines without even the hint of movement that would indicate a rendezvous on common ground.

IN FACT, the only point of agreement among Democrats and Republicans is that something is amiss and that it is time for Congress to remodel the law that was spawned by the excesses and failures of a lawless system.

Past that initial agreement, important in itself, Republicans and Democrats are on the road to different destinations, their routes dictated by the needs of and weaknesses in their own parties.

Citing the increase in the cost of a winning a Senate election from $600,000 in 1976 to $3 million last year and no end in sight, Democrats offer a bill that would set spending limits ranging from $950,000 in the smallest states to $5.5 million in the largest.

BY CONTRAST, Sen. Alan Cranston and his Republican opponent, Rep. Ed Szchau, R-Calif., spent more than $20 million last year in the California Senate race, and big state contests threaten to go beyond that in the future.

A Supreme Court ruling, however, prohibits imposing campaign spending ceilings that put Democrats in the position of providing candidates with some "carrot" to make voluntary participation attractive. The answer: taxpayer financing up to 40 percent of the limit.

The skyrocketing cost of winning a Senate seat is outlandish and forces incumbents to spend an inordinate time hustling money.

Although the skyrocketing cost of winning a Senate seat is outlandish and does force incumbents to spend an inordinate time hustling money, putting limits on spending would profit Democrats. The reason is simple: Republicans raise more money and, therefore, can spend more.

REPUBLICANS ARE not willing to cede this money edge, which they see balancing heavier Democratic registration in many states and countering registration and get-out-the-vote drives by such heavyweights as organized labor.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole says that limitations on spending would end any GOP hopes of the long-awaited "breakthrough" in the South and other parts of the country where the Democrats are heavily entrenched.

His counterpart, Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd, insists that the legislation "is not intended to destroy the Republican Party. That's pap."

In one area, the role of political action committees, both sides are willing to move, but, again, in different directions. The Democrats want to limit the amount a candidate can accept from PACs; the Republican suggest cutting the maximum a PAC can give to a candidate.

SEN. BOB PACKWOOD, R-Ore., who received nearly $1 million in PAC money last year, is even willing to put PACs out of business, prohibiting any money to flow to either candidates or the parties.

The fundamental difference, however, concerns fixed ceilings on spending by candidates, without which Byrd says there can be no campaign finance reform.

Byrd, who had made campaign finance reform a priority, is not about to give in, although the press of other legislation may force him to.

Until Byrd can convince enough Republicans that setting limits on the amount a candidate can spend is the cure for the ills of political financing, the Senate is unlikely to move on campaign finance reform.

Willard D. Klimstra, director of the Cooperative Wildlife Research Laboratory and member of the Natural Areas Committee, said the committee should have been notified of the "massive disruption of the area."

Dougherty said the committee formed under former President Albert Somit was an ad-hoc committee, formed to address one issue only: the spraying of herbicides in the Thompson Woods. "There is not a Natural Areas Committee," he said.

Klimstra said he and other committee members received a letter in April 18, 1984 from then President Somit that states the committee should be on a "stand by" basis.

An excerpt from a copy of that letter states: "As matters currently stand, I cannot identify any problems which I would like to assign to the committee, and I see little point in maintaining, on an active basis, a committee which has no current meaningful responsibilities. Nonetheless, the Thompson Woods episode illustrates the desirability of having such an entity available on a 'stand by' basis. For this reason, I would prefer to view the committee's present status as 'inactive' rather than 'terminated.' I hope you and your fellow committee members would be willing to accept this modification and to serve again, should an appropriate issue or problem present itself."

Klimstra feels the Committee should be a standing committee that deals with issues of land use and provide knowledgeable advice. "Some damage has been done now, and if they go any farther it will be disastrous," he said.

Nolan would like to see the committee consulted about the clearing. "They would be dealing with experts, not someone who sits behind a desk."

Nolan would like to see a 99-year moratorium on the cutting of trees around Campus Lake and Thompson Woods, except for hazardous limbs.

City Council supports tax increase

The City Council supports a statewide tax increase to continue full funding of state agencies in the city of Carbondale and the Southern Illinois Region.

The Council approved a resolution Monday supporting the increase if it is the only way the agencies may continue to receive state funding.

The resolution mentions Menard Correctional Center, Anna Mental Health Center and SIU-C as state agencies that depend upon the funding provided by the state to continue operations.

The resolution will be forwarded to the governor, Senators Ralph Dunn and Glen Poshard and Representatives Bruce Richmond, David Phelps and James Ray.

Council approves three hiring code amendments

By Catherine Simpson
Staff Writer

Three amendments to the current city code regarding the employment of family members by the city were passed by the City Council Monday.

The first amendment allows family members to work in the same department in the city unless a supervisor-subordinate relationship exists. Employees hired before August 6, 1968 are exempt.

The second amendment prohibits a person from being hired to any position in the city if that person has a family member in the position of mayor, councilperson, city manager, city attorney or personnel officer. Employees hired before May 1, 1987 are exempt.

"As the ordinance reads right now, they could be transferred, but not promoted," City Manager Bill Dixon said.

The third amendment prohibits the spouse of department heads or division heads from being appointed to any city position. Employees married before May 1, 1987 are exempt.

The previous city code did not allow members of the same family to be hired by the city, even if they had little or no contact in the workplace.

Reagan: Justice will be done in Germany

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan assured Wednesday the mother of Robert Stethem, slain in the hijacking of a TWA jetliner, that his accused killer "will get the justice he deserves" despite being tried in West Germany instead of the United States.

"I have the personal assurance of Chancellor (Helmut) Kohl that justice will be done," Reagan told Patricia Stethem by telephone. "The chancellor has assured us that there will be no deal and they will not grant him clemency."

The administration reacted with a show of public support—masking private disappointment—after the announcement in Bonn that Mohammed Ali Hamadei will be tried under German law and not extradited to the United States for the 1985 hijacking of TWA Flight 847.

In Hamburg, West Germany, where the International Association of Police Chiefs was meeting, Attorney General Edwin Meese said he was assured "that Hamadei can be charged on all counts on which he would have had to stand trial in the United States," including murder, hijacking and hostage-taking.

"I am fully convinced that that will happen," Meese said, "and therefore am completely satisfied with the decision."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said prosecution of Hamadei "with the full force of German law" would show determination "to resist terrorist blackmail" and a "growing level of international cooperation to combat terrorism."

Judge refuses to drop POW suit

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — A federal judge denied a Justice Department's request Wednesday to drop a lawsuit by Vietnam veterans claiming there are still POWs in Southeast Asia and the government should seek their release.

Federal attorneys sought to dismiss the suit on grounds the POW issue is political — not judicial.

U.S. District Judge Terrence Boyle disagreed in a 10-page ruling.

"At the heart of the declaratory judgment action is the question of whether living American servicemen who were declared missing in action or prisoners of war in Southeast Asia in the 1960s and 1970s continue to be held by unfriendly governments. The plaintiffs allege such a class exists and therefore falls within the scope of the Hostage Act," the ruling said.

'87 music camp directors: Teaching tuneful lessons

By Winnie Stones
Staff Writer

Nine years ago, David T. Henderson attended the SIU Summer Music Camp. Now an SIU-C graduate with a bachelor's degree in music theory and composition, Henderson is teaching this week at the junior high music camp, held in Altgeld Hall and nearby campus buildings.

The School of Music has been holding the Summer Music Camp for 27 years, said camp director Art Schmittler, adding that it was started in 1960 by the late Melvin Siener, who was then director of bands. He thought that Southern Illinois needed a summer music camp and that SIU-C was the perfect place for it.

The camps last one week, with the junior high camp taking place this week and senior high camp held in July. This week 113 area junior high school students, grades six through nine, are participating in band, chorus, and orchestra music, said Schmittler, who is band director at Nashville High School.

The students are working on music that will be performed in a concert at 1 p.m., Saturday, in Shryock Auditorium. The program will include selections by the band, concert choir, general chorus, which includes all 113 camp participants, and string orchestra.

Robert Weiss, band director for the camp and assistant director of the School of Music, said the camp gives students exposure to a level of music they wouldn't have in their regular junior high bands.

The young musicians spend their days on campus rehearsing with their band, chorus, or orchestra, taking technique classes for their instrument or voice, and attending basic music theory classes.

Clair Wallarab, also a graduate of SIU-C's School of Music, is teaching theory and clarinet. She said most of the students are very responsive, and seem interested in learning about the idiosyncracies of music.

Evening activities include recitals by camp faculty, seeing Summer Playhouse productions, and a recreation night in which the students have access to the Recreation Center and the Student Center, said Schmittler. He also said the big activity, when the students are at their dorm at Thompson Point, is ordering pizza.

to the success of our camp is the quality of the assistants we have," Hunter said. "We have an outstanding staff."

Hunter said benefits of the camp are multi-faceted for the attending campers. Specialized sessions included a college preparation camp for senior high campers, team camps, basic camps and a coaches camp.

"The public relations aspects of the camp are tremendous," Hunter said. "We try to conduct the camp according to how I feel about the game. We want to facilitate it's growth."

Hunter said the camp helps her establish a good rapport with high school coaches throughout the Midwest, especially in the Southern Illinois area.

Other benefits for SIU-C volleyball come in the form of recruits. Of the 550 campers, Hunter said about eight to 10 had the talent to become Division I players. Some of those players are being pursued as potential SIU-C recruits.

Hunter's camp also tries to place campers who are serious about volleyball in colleges and universities with volleyball programs.

"We try to let the kids know about all their opportunities," Hunter said. "We talk about Proposition 48, drug testing and what to expect in college. The college prep camp tells them how to market and promote themselves and what to expect when recruiters start coming around."

Three campers from last year's sessions were signed to scholarships, largely through Hunter's placement program. This program evaluates the campers and shares information with schools around the Midwest that offer volleyball scholarships.

same time, the plants start to die back and instead of manufacturing oxygen, they consume it," Russell said.

"What makes it unusual is that such kills usually happen during the dog days of August, but since we had a warm spring and low water levels, the excessive weed growth, and then its decay, was accelerated," he added. Russell said not all of the fish in the refuge would die and he said the status of the kill likely would be evaluated this fall to determine whatever restocking of fish might be required. He added that consumption of fish remaining in the refuge would not constitute any kind of health hazard.

Volleyball clinic serves up agenda of work and play

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

SIU-C volleyball coach Debbie Hunter loves volleyball.

She bubbles with enthusiasm when discussing the finer points of the game and her national involvement with the sport is ample proof of her love for volleyball.

And that's one reason why she enjoys serving as director for the 12th Annual Saluki Volleyball Camp, which, in its various sessions, has been running from early June.

"It really has been fun," said Hunter, who also serves as the head administrative officer for the Olympic Sports Festival's volleyball operations. "This has been one of our most successful camps, both in terms of quality and quantity."

About 550 campers enrolled for seven different sessions of the camp. Last year, just over 400 campers participated, and Hunter attributes increased enrollment to the steadily rising popularity of the sport.

Word about the camp is well established after 12 years, and Hunter says she's noticed a large number of return campers, which she interprets as a compliment.

"One of the greatest rewards is seeing the improvement in the kids from one year to the next," Hunter said. "It's really gratifying to see them develop a true appreciation for the game."

Hunter said while her initial responsibility was to let people know about the camp, "after that, I find the best people available to help conduct the clinics."

The success of Hunter's camp has made her assistants hot commodities in the world of clinical volleyball coaching. This year's group has been asked to conduct camps in New York, Louisiana and Texas. It also accepted an invitation to conduct a clinic at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, in mid-July.

Included in the group are Hunter's assistant coach and former SIU-C star Sonya Locke and former Blackburn College coach Paul Blair. Terry Noble and Linda Walker, two current Salukis, round out the highly-touted staff. Noble came to the SIU-C program after her talent was noticed in a past SIU-C camp.

Also assisting with the Saluki camps are current players Nina Brackins and Sue Sinclair, along with former SIU-C stars Linda Sanders, Fay Chea and former John A. Logan coach Mike Deterding.

"There's no doubt that a key

Men golfers build up squad

Harrisburg recruit joins brother in fall Saluki lineup

By Darren Richardson
Staff Writer

Men's golf coach Lew Hartzog announced the signing of four scholarship recruits who will try to crack the starting team this fall.

"I feel all four of these young men have the potential to be Division I golfers," said Hartzog, in his second season as pilot of the men linksters this fall. "One or two could even break into our top five as freshman."

Leading the pack of incoming frosh hopefuls is Mark Bellas of Addison, who snared regional and sectional honors in 1986 prior to placing 19th in the state meet.

Former Saluki golfer Leon McNair's son, Jamie, will attempt to work his way into the lineup. McNair clubbed his way through regional and sectional tournaments to the Class AA meet in 1986.

Returning senior Bobby Pavelonis will face competition from his younger brother Britt, a recruit from Harrisburg who grabbed second in the South Seven Conference meet and fifth in regional competition.

Jay Sala, last season's No. 1 golfer for the Dogs, said the younger Pavelonis has the golfing experience and background so vital to a successful collegiate career.

"You can be a good golfer but not have any tournament experience and not do well in college meets," Sala said. "Britt has the golfing background to know what to expect in competition."

Sala, whose eligibility ended this spring, will be returning to assist Hartzog as student-coach when the fall season tees off.

Sala played in a U.S. Open qualifying tournament in Springfield May 17, firing a 75-76, but missed a trip to the sectionals in Chicago, a three strokes.

skies last Saturday.

Additionally, warm water temperatures, the low river level and extensive decaying of aquatic growth combined to bring on a lack of dissolved oxygen in the water, which is essential for fish life, he said.

"When we get all of those conditions occurring at the Supreme Court's ruling may extradite Knight

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — A government official, encouraged by a new Supreme Court decision, said Wednesday efforts should be made to extradite Indiana basketball Coach Bob Knight, who faces six months in jail on a Puerto Rican conviction.

Knight was tried and convicted for assaulting a police officer during the 1979 Pan American Games. However, he left the island before the trial was conducted and remains a fugitive in the eyes of the Puerto Rican government.

The impetus for a new extradition effort is based on Tuesday's Supreme Court decision, ruling federal courts have the power to force governors to comply with extradition requests.

"I would recommend (Knight's) extradition and I would submit his case immediately," said acting Secretary of Justice Guillermo Mojica. A request to the governor of Indiana for Knight's extradition would have to come from Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon or Secretary of Justice Hector Rivera Cruz.

Knight was unavailable for comment.

Knight, coach of the victorious U.S. basketball team at the 1979 Games in San Juan, was charged with punching a Puerto Rican police officer who had intervened in an argument Knight was having with another man during a team practice.

A San Juan District Court judge convicted Knight of assault later that year and sentenced him to serve six months in jail.

The incident created a furor in Puerto Rico, but then-Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo never formally filed extradition papers to have Knight extradited from Indiana.

Mojica said he would recommend that Puerto Rico "submit a writ of mandamus to the federal District Court of Indiana to oblige" Gov. Robert Orr to send Knight to serve his sentence.

The Supreme Court's unanimous opinion helped Puerto Rico in its six-year battle to force the governor of Iowa to extradite a man wanted for murder and made it easier for states to bring criminals to justice.

In Indianapolis, Indiana Attorney General Linley Pearson said he was surprised Puerto Rican officials would try to extradite Knight eight years after his conviction.

Large fish kill reported at wildlife refuge

KEITHSBURG, Ill. (UPI) — A combination of hot weather and a low Mississippi River level has caused thousands of fish to die in a massive "summerkill" at the Mark Twain National Wildlife Refuge, state officials said Wednesday.

Ken Russell, a fish biologist for the Illinois Department of Conservation, said as many as 250,000 bluegill perished. Lesser, but substantial, numbers of northern pike, crappies, largemouth bass and gizzard shad also died, he added.

Russell said the kill was caused by the combination of conditions brought on by the extremely warm June weather. The kill was triggered, he said, by overcast
