Director fears decline of museum

By Richard Scheffer
Staff Writer

If the 2 percent budget cut proposals come to pass, the University Museum will be forced to break a 119-year tradition of history and science exhibits.

Under the proposal, museum exhibits like those on display now will be cut and the museum will be forced to limit their displays to the arts.

"It would mean we wouldn't be able to serve the entire student body," John Whitlock, museum director, said.

Whitlock said the museum would break a 119-year tradition because it began to collect pieces in 1869.

"We've had 119 years of the museum continually growing on this campus," he said.

Because the museum would only focus on one subject, it wouldn't serve the entire student body, Whitlock said.

"Art and cinema and photography would be the only units on campus displaying if the proposal comes about," he said.

The University has had a museum since the campus opened in 1874. At that time it displayed land and sea specimens, rocks and minerals.

Whitlock said, the museum began to combine history, science and the arts 13 years ago.

Beating the heat / Kinkaid spillway still a favorite with students

By Christine Cedusky
Staff Writer

Despite the steamy weather, students are still enjoying their favorite swimming and sunning areas in order to beat the heat.

One popular place is the Lake Kinkaid spillway west of Murphysboro.

In response to the increasingly large crowds at the spillway, an expansion project is underway near the spillway's basin. Bob Catt, site supervisor of Lake Murphysboro and Lake Kinkaid, said. Now under construction is expansion of the parking lot, installation of five picnic tables and a set of men's and women's toilets. Catt said the project should be completed by late August.

Students are still flocking to the spillway even though there is very little overspill from the lake, Catt said. People can't enjoy the lake runoff, but they are swimming in the water pool in front of the spillway, he said.

Catt said he hasn't noticed a decrease in the spillway crowd due to the dryness. On the contrary, he said, the area is being used as much if not more this year as in the past.

The student crowd remained constant even during the break between spring and summer semesters, Catt said, adding that there is a large attendance during the week as well as on weekends.

"During the hot weather, people are looking for anyplace to cool off," Catt said.

He said littering and vandalism is becoming a problem and warns visitors to clean up after themselves.

"A larger population generates more clean-up work for us," Catt said, adding that

Heat havens unused

By Christine Cedusky
Staff Writer

As of Wednesday, the two air-conditioned emergency shelters operated by the city Emergency Services and Disaster Agency remained unused despite 100-degree temperatures.

This is not surprising to Tom Harris, city ES&D coordinator, because there was not a large turnout at the shelters last year.

Harris said the shelters will continue to be open through June 28, provided there is no relief from the heat.

No cases of heat-related illnesses were reported by the Memorial Hospital of Carbondale's emergency room or the Carbondale Clinic's urgent care clinic.

The Carbondale shelters are located at the Community Service Center, 607 E. College

St., and at the Eurma Hayes Center, 441 E. Willow St. The shelters are open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Southern Illinois Airport weather station predicts continued hot and dry conditions for the next six to 10 days. A slight chance of thunderstorms is forecast for Wednesday, but temperatures near 100 should continue.

Only 4.64 inches of rain fell during the months of April, May and June, Karol Abrams, chief weather observer for the WSIU weather station, said.

The normal rainfall for this time of year is 13.67 inches, she said. May 24 was the last day rain fell at the airport.

"We have only seen 34 percent of the rain we normally get," Abrams said. "It looks like a bad situation."

Is injured man a N.Y. resident?

By Jacke Hampton
Staff Writer

A young man injured in a fall at a state park may be from upstate New York, according to authorities.

The young man, believed to be between 16 and 20 years old, hasn't regained full consciousness since he was found Saturday lying at the base of a 60-foot cliff at Ferne Clyffe State Park near Goreville. He's in the intensive care unit at Lourdes Hospital in Paducah, Ky.

Johnson County Sheriff Elroy Faulkner said two men said they met a man matching the young man's description in West Frankfort. Faulkner said the men told him the young man said he was from upstate New York and was headed to Little Rock, Ark.

Faulkner said that when upstate New York was mentioned to the young man he responded by lifting a leg slightly.

There also is speculation that the man could be a University student.

Capt. Carl Kirk, University Security, said the description of the young man has led him to believe the injured youth could be a University student.

USG challenges RSOs to donate blood

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

A registered student organization will earn $100 if it brings in the most donors for next week's blood drive. The drive will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday at the Student Center.

The drive, sponsored by the SIU Annuitants Association, has a goal of 500 pints of blood. RSOs can have its members or anyone who wants to donate for the group sign the organizational sheets at the donor table, Bill Hall, Undergraduate Student Government president, said.

The contest is sponsored by USG. The money will come from the USG fee allocation fund, which is used for the RSOs activities during the year, Hall said.

organizational sheet, even if they belong to more than one of the RSOs, Hall said. The winner will be determined from the number of signatures on the sheets, he said. There will be no prior registration for RSOs.

Appointment tables will be in the lower hall of the Student Center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Donors can schedule times and not have to wait in line to give blood, Hall said.

The drive also is open to non-students.

Canada accuses Soviets of "unacceptable" spying

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Soviet Union engaged in "unacceptable" espionage activities in Canada to obtain classified information with industrial and military applications, External Affairs Minister Joe Clark said Wednesday. Clark's statement to the House of Commons came a day after his government revealed Canada last week expelled eight Soviet diplomats and banned nine others from returning to Canada on charges of industrial espionage.

Iranians dismiss talks of possible U.S. visit

LONDON (UPI) — Amid reports that Western hostages are "bottled up" in a Beirut barracks, a British delegation back from Tehran said Wednesday that Iranian officials dismissed talk of permitting Americans to visit Iran in an attempt to win the release of U.S. hostages in Lebanon.

Iran captures border city as rebels withdraw

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iran said Wednesday its troops repulsed an Iraqi attack against an occupied border region, killing thousands of the attackers and destroying a large number of tanks and other vehicles. The assault came as Iranian rebels, sworn foes of Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, withdrew from the border town of Mehran, east of Baghdad, three days after capturing it in a surprise attack.

Vietnam National Assembly elects president

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Vietnam's National Assembly elected conservative Communist Party veteran Do Muoi Wednesday to serve as prime minister of the economically troubled nation. Although there had been hints Do Muoi would succeed the late Pham Hung, who died of a heart attack March 10, acting Prime Minister Vo Van Kiet had been seen as more in tune with the far-reaching reforms being pushed by Communist Party General Secretary Nguyen Van Linh.

Kennedy unveils proposal on minimum wage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Labor Committee Chairman Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., unveiled a new proposal Wednesday to raise the minimum wage by $1.20 an hour over three years to $4.55. Kennedy's proposal, generally considered a Democratic election-year plum, would raise the minimum wage to $3.75 in 1989, $4.15 in 1990 and $4.55 in 1991. It would also increase the exemption for small businesses from the current floor of $362,000 in annual gross sales to $500,000.

Judge rules Iran-Contra hearing to proceed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal judge in the Iran-Contra case refused Wednesday to strike down a portion of the law governing classified documents and said the prosecution of the key figures in the scandal should proceed. In a 16-page decision, U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell rejected defense claims the law posed an impossible obstacle to prosecuting the four defendants and suggested ways the case could proceed to trial.

Congressman questions Navy training deaths

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Information from the Navy, showing that seven sailors since 1986 have died from heart failure during training, raises some disturbing questions, Rep. Toby Roth, R-Wis., said. Roth, who learned earlier this month that the Navy has had 17 training deaths since January 1986, got a list showing the names and causes of death from the Judge Advocate General.

Belleville woman missing, police report no new leads

BELLEVILLE, (UPI) — Police reported no new leads Wednesday in the disappearance of Audrey Cardenas, 34, a newspaper intern from Texas who had been working at the Belleville News-Democrat for about 11 days. A neighbor at the apartment complex where she lives last saw Cardenas washing her truck about 1 p.m. Sunday, Ehrlich said Cardenas, an avid jogger who runs six miles a day, probably went running on Sunday afternoon.

Rockabilly band will reunite for Sunset Concert

By Carrie Ferguson
Entertainment Editor

A Belleville rockabilly band, Joe Camel and the Caucasians, will reunite with some of its original members for the Sunset Concert at 7 tonight at Turley Park.

Four original members of the Caucasians will join the newest members on stage.

The band plays '50s and '60s blues and rockabilly, Joe Camel, lead singer and saxophone player, said. "Rockabilly is a mix of blues, country western and bluegrass, but rocked-up," Camel said.

"The original band lasted about two years," Camel said. "After Larry Brenneman, who played guitar, left, we found Erin Collins. That's when we started doing almost all rockabilly.

"When we formed the new band we changed a little," he said. "They (the members) were younger, the music was more energetic and it had more punch to it. We started doing more Lou Reed and The Beat Farmers.

"We're still doing '50s music, but we're doing songs with more edge.

Camel, 30, said his interest in '50s music started during his college years.

"I've always listened to jazz and I've always played the sax. The sax is just more suited for that kind of music," he said.

"When the New Wave era of the late '70s and early '80s hit, I got interested in it. I also rediscovered Elvis, who when I was growing up, was kind of a joke," he said.

The band doesn't try to be an "original oldies" show.

"We don't do the typical standard '50s songs. We play songs that are obscure, but have a familiar beat," he said. "We play the B side of an album."

Camel and the Caucasians have performed for six years in bars and taverns in the Belleville and St. Louis area. They also performed at Sunset Concerts in 1984 and 1985.

"I still get a kick out of playing in a bar on a weekend and seeing people dance and having a good time. (The band's) reunion will be a lot of fun," Camel said.

Anna health center renamed after SIU-C administrator

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

The Anna Mental Health and Developmental Center was renamed recently after an active SIU-C lobbyist.

"It is a tremendous honor, and my family and I are very appreciative of the recognition," Clyde Choate, director of external affairs, said after the center was renamed Clyde Choate Mental Health and Developmental Center in his honor.

Governor James R. Thompson announced the renaming of the center Friday at the Student Center, where he was speaking to the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce on his proposed personal income tax increase for educational funding.

"By his contributions to the United States and to Illinois, Clyde has made life better for all of us here, now and for generations yet to come," Thompson said. "Dedicating a facility in his hometown is one small way to help all of us remember his hard work on behalf of this center and all of Southern Illinois."

Choate was a state representative from 1946 to 1977, and held a leadership post in the House during nine of his 18 terms. He retired in 1977 when he became the director for external affairs at the University.

The center was founded in 1969 as the Illinois Southern Hospital for the Insane. Its first patients were admitted in 1873.

The center includes 49 buildings, located on about 580 acres. About 460 mentally ill or developmentally disabled persons from 27 counties in the Southern Illinois area are residents of the facility. It also employs 687 people.

It is accredited by both the Accreditation Council on Services to People with Disabilities and the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Health-care Organizations. It also is certified by the Illinois Department of Public Health.

Also on Friday, Thompson appointed Choate to a vacancy on the Illinois Veterans Advisory Council. His term expires on October 1, 1989.

Responsible drinking can save trouble, lives

IT'S THAT TIME of year again. Time for catching rays, while lounging on a rock at the spillway and having a few brewskies to keep you cool.

But it's also the time of year that area parks and roadsides become polluted with trash and many drivers, polluted by alcohol, attempt to trek home.

Southern Illinois long has been known for its beautiful landscapes. People from all over come to Shawnee National Forest in attempt to "get back to nature." But some leave the area a far cry different from when they arrived. Bottles and cans, drained of their "rocky mountain brewed water," are left behind to become an unwelcome part of the scenery.

Also left behind is the common sense of many who don't know when they've reached their limits and don't know when not to drive home.

Since 1982, Illinois' drunk driving laws have become some of the most effective in the nation. Last year, 51,797 people were charged with driving under the influence. Of those, 89 percent had their licenses revoked or suspended.

IN 1987, 800 Illinois traffic fatalities were attributed to alcohol. Nationally, 23,000 died in alcohol-related accidents — 1 death every 23 minutes.

Although drivers of all ages are responsible, statistics have shown that 65 percent are under 35, and 25.4 of every 1000 licensed drivers arrested for DUI are males 21 to 24.

Maybe driving drunk is an act of machismo, or an attempt to get that extra little bit of excitement. Whatever the case, it's stupid to put yourself and others in danger. The facts are there, but still there are people without the common sense to give up their keys. "Stop and think, don't drive and drink" may sound corny but the message is loud and clear. Open your ears and listen. Listen to the statistics. Listen to people who have gone through it. Listen when your friends feel you shouldn't drive.

Being pulled over for driving under the influence isn't fun. You are placed under arrest, read your rights and taken to jail. You will wait in jail until your bond is met.

SOUNDS FUN, RIGHT? But wait, there's more. For your first conviction, you face a minimum one-year loss of driving privileges, possible imprisonment up to one year and a maximum fine of $1,000. And that's for a first timer. Second timers can expect a minimum of three years loss of driving privileges, a mandatory 48 hours in jail or 10 days of community service, possible imprisonment and a fine.

It's a high price to pay, and one that will have a deep effect on the way you live.

Loss of driving privileges can make simple, everyday tasks seem impossible. Trips to the store for a gallon of milk, going on a date, going to work and other things taken for granted become major achievements. This isn't the end of it.

Getting your license back isn't as easy as it was to lose them.

State law requires several criteria to be met before a license can be reinstated. They include:

- going through a drug and alcohol evaluation;
- successfully completing a drug and alcohol education program;
- an appearance before a Secretary of State hearing officer; and
- filing proof of high risk insurance, which may cost more than $2000 per year.

When, and only when, the criteria are met will your license be reinstated. It's a costly and timely process and a lot of trouble because you didn't think before driving.

Be responsible when you drink. Don't leave trash for the next person who visits. Keep the woods as beautiful as they were meant to be. Plan ahead. Have a designated driver who will get you home safely so you can use those woods for many days to come.

Thompson's plan needs closer look

Illinois taxpayers should be wary of Gov. James Thompson's recent proposition to increase state income tax by $1.3 billion.

In the absence of fundamental reforms in state and local government to protect taxpayers' rights, raising the income tax on Illinois families and businesses by 40 percent is bad public policy.

So far the debate over Thompson's income tax proposal has focused on the calls by various interest groups for more state money, but little attention has been paid to some basic shortcomings in Illinois government that have allowed politicians to run roughshod over taxpayers for years.

Before giving the governor $1.3 billion more in taxes, the General Assembly should enact an Illinois Taxpayer Bill of Rights which includes:

- establishing the power of recall to give voters the power to remove incompetent public officials from office before their terms are up;
- establishing the power of initiative to give voters the power to enact laws by citizen petition and binding referendum;

— abolish doubledipping, the unique Illinois practice permitting legislators to be on more than one public payroll (one third of Chicago's legislators are doubledippers who receive two tax-supported paychecks and double pension credits every year);

— give voters the direct referendum right to abolish inefficient and unneeded units of local government (Illinois has more local government units than any other state); and

— give Illinois taxpayers express legal standing to sue corrupt public officials for recovery of tax dollars lost due to corruption.

Right now, none of these reforms are part of the Illinois Constitution or statutes.

In 1978 Illinois voters, by an overwhelming margin, Illinois voters approved the "Thompson Proposition," an advisory referendum authored by the governor which promised fundamental reform in the Illinois tax system.

In the past decade, nothing has been done to implement the provisions of the "Thompson Proposition." As a result, the tax system has been voted one of the most regressive in the country by Citizens for Tax Justice, a nationally-respected tax analysis group.

The Illinois tax code will become even more unfair if the General Assembly enacts Thompson's 1988 tax proposition.

It's time for Illinois' long-suffering taxpayers to organize a movement to get more control over their government. If Thompson and legislators ignore the Taxpayer Bill of Rights this month, then voters should remember their neglect on Nov. 8 and vote in favor of the constitutional convention referendum.

Anyone interested in information about the Illinois constitutional convention referendum or the Taxpayer Bill of Rights should contact me at Box 428, Oak Park, Ill. 60303 or call (312)542-1979. — Patrick Quinn, spokesman, Citizens for Constitutional Reform.

Graduation memorable for wrong reasons

On the 15th of May we came to Carbondale to attend the our son's graduation exercise. We came expecting to participate in a ceremony where the audience, as well as the students, conducted themselves in an appropriate manner. We were sadly disappointed.

There was a group of eight to 10 students who constantly interrupted the speakers, disrupted the proceedings, lit up cigarettes in the Arena, and proceeded to march around the place like they owned it and woe betide anyone who would dare to express any displeasure to these young thugs. Unfortunately, no one did. Needless to say, we would not waste our money buying a video of the ceremony which was ruined for us.

Last year we attended our daughter's graduation from the University of Hawaii. What a difference. The pride of a job well done was certainly evident throughout the proceedings. That same week our son graduated from high school (also in Hawaii). His graduation ceremony was conducted on a football field, open to the public, and three hours long. That's a long time to sit on uncomfortable stadium seats. At no time was anyone disruptive. Perhaps the difference was the appreciation for education that was so clearly evident.

Perhaps a required course in manners should be considered as part of your school's curriculum. — Heary and Eunice Polz, Aurora.

shorts and his clean-cut appearance suggests he may be a college student," Kirk said. "If any student, faculty or staff knows of anyone who is missing and matches his description, I'm asking them to call my office.

"I don't care how many calls we get. If there is someone who was here last week and is gone this week, it could be this young man."

The young man is a white male with dark-brown hair and hazel eyes. He is 5 feet 9 inches tall, 150 to 160 pounds and has what appears to be surgical scars on his left wrist and right side. He had on a blue Sears workshirt, tan shorts and hiking boots.

Police also are circulating a composite drawing of the victim. Kirk said the drawing was made because the young man's face is bruised and swollen.

Kirk said witnesses believe they saw the young man walk through a campground at the park, with a blue backpack, and eat lunch at a Vienna restaurant the day he was found.

"Doctors at the hospital believe that if his family is with him, that might bring him around," Kirk said.

The composite drawing is being circulated to universities throughout the state and Chicago area, he said.

ago. Prior to that, the museum focused on archaeology, anthropology, history, science and folk art, he said.

Exhibits on display now, "Anasazi" and "Coal Mining," are examples of exhibits that would no longer be offered.

"Anasazi" is an archaeological exhibit of ceramic wares of the Anasazi tribe. Bowls, jars, vessels, pitchers, and cooking containers are among wares on display.

The Anasazis, southwest

American Indian farmers, lived in the Black Mesa area from 800 to 1150 A.D.

"Coal Mining," is a scale model of the coal mining process.

Miniature trucks are used show the transport of coal to the mine's preparation plant, where the coal is prepared for shipment to customers.

A toy train and dragline, a machine used for excavation, are included in the display.

The exhibit also shows the process of reclamation, the process by which mined lands are restored for productive use.

Pieces of coal are included in samples of the earth's layers used in the display.

In addition to the model, the exhibit has maps which depict the geology, coal mines and resources of the state.

The "Anasazi" exhibit will run through July 1. "Coal Mining" will run for an undetermined amount of time.

glass containers are not allowed on the spillway.

Bill McMinn, associate director of Intramural Recreation Facilities, said the number of students sunning at Campus Beach also has increased this year.

McMinn said the beach averages 100 to 150 visitors a day, and the number has remained constant during the heat wave.

"I personally have heard comments from students that the spillway is dried up," McMinn said.

Roy Tucker, graduate student in behavior analysis and therapy, and Melissa Guldemann, graduate student in rehabilitation administration and services, said they preferred the convenience and facilities of Campus Beach to the climb and rocks of the spillway.

"I am more likely to come here alone," Guldemann said. She added that Campus Beach would be her favorite swimming spot if it were bigger.

FBI finds contracts worth billions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the massive investigation of Pentagon corruption told Congress Wednesday the scandal involves 75 to 100 defense contracts worth "tens of billions of dollars" — and a key senator urged that any contract found to involve foul play be voided.

"One of the frailties of man — simple greed — appears to have triggered this scandal," Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said on the Senate floor in urging stiff penalties for contractors found to have engaged in wrongdoing.

As new details continued to spill out in the two-year-old investigation of industry consultants' alleged bribes for inside contract information, federal law enforcement sources said they expect a number of targets to begin cooperating soon in hopes of winning leniency.

Federal prosecutors are armed with nearly 4,800 tape recordings from bugged or wiretapped conversations.

Police to scan Turley for illegal drinkers

Carbondale Police will patrol the Sunset Concert at Turley Park Thursday to watch for underage drinking violations.

Detective Art Wright of the Carbondale Police Department said there probably will be no more than two officers on foot patrol.

"They will be looking and checking I.D.'s for any one drinking alcohol," Wright said.

Wright said any underage drinkers will be arrested.

At last week's Sunset Concert, held on the Old Main Mall, SIU-C Security officers arrested five SIU-C students for underage possession of alcohol.

If arrested, a minor must appear before a judge who determines a fine, which would be between $50 and $500, according to the Carbondale City Attorney's office.

Man charged after accident

By John Walblay Staff Writer

A Murphysboro man was arrested Tuesday night at about 11:45 after the car he was driving left the road and caught fire in a ditch, according to a Jackson County Sheriff's Office dispatcher.

Jeffrey Lee, 23, of Route 4, Murphysboro, was driving north on South 20th Street at an apparent high rate of speed when he attempted to turn east on to Fairview Christian Church Road and lost control of the car, the dispatcher said. It turned over and started to burn, the dispatcher said.

Lee was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and driving on a suspended license, the dispatcher said.

A passenger, who sustained burns on his hands, fled the scene and is still being sought, the dispatcher said.

James R. Kerley, of Rural Route 1, Murphysboro, put out the fire with a garden hose, the dispatcher said.

A witness said he did not see anyone when he arrived at the site of the accident.

"I don't see how anybody got out alive. It was just blazing," the witness said.

The car was destroyed, the dispatcher said.

Lee was taken to the Jackson County jail but later released, the dispatcher said.

National Weather Service forecasters said record highs were set in about 70 cities on Tuesday. Many more records were likely through Wednesday, United Press International reported. So far, the heat wave has covered the last two days of spring and the first two days of summer.

According to UPI, forecasters warned the public that the elderly, young children and those living without air conditioning faced "significant" dangers from heat stress.

"Not only have daytime temperature readings been oppressive in many areas, but nighttime low temperatures have been anything but cool," NWS spokesman Bill Sammler said. UPI reported many areas did not get below 80 degrees Wednesday morning.

Clarification

Scott Sylvester was inadvertently omitted in Wednesday's paper from a list of the owners of Rompers, a bar being built on South Illinois Avenue.

49er pleads innocent to charges

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (UPI) — San Francisco 49er defensive end Kevin Fagan pleaded innocent Wednesday to charges of resisting arrest in an alleged night of rowdiness that involved two other football players.

Fagan, 6-foot-3, 260 pounds, was arrested May 7 along with 49er offensive guard Jeff Bregel and free-agent guard Paul O'Connor after leaving P.J. Mulligan's bar in Cupertino.

Fagan's attorney entered the plea on his behalf during arraignment at Santa Clara County Municipal Court. A judge scheduled his next court date for Aug. 3.

The three were arrested in the parking lot of a convenience store just after leaving the bar and making a right turn from the left lane into the parking lot, Deputy District Attorney Al Weger said.

Weger said the three, who bought beer at the store, would not cooperate with officers and kept interrupting while police tried to give Bregel, who was driving, a field sobriety test.

"Fagan told the officers, 'Do you know who we are? We're Forty-niners,'" Weger said. "They had been in P.J. Mulligan's grabbing women's posteriors. They were seen (urinating) on an adjoining building on the way out."

Bregel, charged with resisting arrest as well as drunken driving, and O'Connor, charged with resisting arrest, were scheduled to be arraigned Friday.

Lakers looking at changes

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The walls of the Los Angeles locker room were still sticky from the splatter of California champagne, and already the Los Angeles Lakers were contemplating changes for next season.

There appears to be no need for major alterations following Los Angeles' 108-105 Game 7 victory over the Detroit Pistons Tuesday night that made the Lakers the first team since the 1969 Celtics to repeat as champions.

But if Los Angeles wants to become the first team since the 1966 Celtics to win three in a row (those were the last of eight straight Boston titles), then some subtle changes may be in order.

"We need to do a few things," General Manager Jerry West said after his team played its record 34th post-season game. "If we get lucky enough maybe we can do some things to keep us strong because we have a good young starting lineup, with the exception of Kareem (Abdul-Jabbar).

"If we can do something a little bit different we're going to be very good again next year."

Abdul-Jabbar, who will be the oldest player in NBA history during next year's playoffs when he turns 42, has indicated he will return for an unprecedented 20th season.

The Lakers, though, may need to phase out their captain next season even more than they did this year. In the final two games of the NBA Finals, Abdul-Jabbar hit just 5 of 21 shots.

During Game 7, he made just 2 of 7 attempts, although one basket came amid the decisive 23-7 run that opened the third quarter and gave the Lakers the cushion they needed to hold off the Pistons.

"My first reaction is that maybe I should talk him into two more years," Lakers owner Jerry Buss said.

Barkey wants athletics more stable

By Beth Clavin
Staff Writer

Ralph Barkey, the final candidate to be interviewed for athletics director, would like to make athletics more stable. "I sense a need to bring stability and continuity to the (athletics) program," Barkey said. "I see a lot of divided interests among the departments."

Barkey, who is athletics director at Sonoma (California) State University, is very confident of his ability to improve the athletics program. "I'm really good at what I do," he said.

"We will have a clean, solid program without cutting any corners to achieve this," he said.

Barkey said his experience is a plus in his qualifications for the position. "The breadth of experience that I've had and depth of things I can do internally and externally" are positive factors, he said.

Barkey describes himself as a "real people person." At my present job, I have a tremendous relationship with the faculty, students, alumni, and boosters, he said.

"I have a way of making people feel real good about their athletic department," he said.

If chosen for the position, Barkey plans to make some changes in the fund-raising aspect of the department because of the resignation of Paul Bubb, who had handled the fund raising.

"I'd like to hire a replacement there and have him report directly to me," he said. The fund raiser has been under the direction of the alumni association, which Barkey feels is a bad position.

If hired, Barkey sees this job as a permanent one. "I expect this will be the last professional move I make in my life," he said. "(SIU-C) has a good balance between athletics and academics."

Barkey said he considered removing his name from the list of interested candidates for the position earlier this year.

"I am very happy with my present position and felt this was a terrible time to be moving," he said. "It is a bad time for (Sonoma State University) to hire a replacement."

He said he read that Charlotte West and Jim Hart were the only two serious candidates, which persuaded him to remain in the race.

Barkey has been athletics director at Sonoma State University since 1981. He also has been assistant athletics director at California State University at Fullerton and the University of California at Irvine. He was head basketball coach at the University of California at Santa Barbara from 1966 to 1978.

Barkey joins Jim Hart, Charlotte West, and Jerry Hughes in competing for the position. Barkey will be at an open question-and-answer session at 9:30 a.m. today in the Student Center Auditorium.

Cash, Lendl take 2nd round; Graf wins in speedy matches

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Defending champion Pat Cash and Ivan Lendl, the world's top-ranked player, each struggled to second-round victories Wednesday at Wimbledon.

West German Boris Becker, the two-time champion eliminated in the second round last year, coasted to a 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 victory over Czechoslovak Karel Novacek. Becker defeated Novacek in the first round last year as defending champion before losing to Australian Peter Doohan.

Fourth-seeded Cash trailed two sets to one against Argentinean left-hander Javier Frana. The 23-year-old Australian managed to recover his touch and continue his defense of the title, winning 6-2, 4-6, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Top seed Lendl, loser in the last two finals at the All-England Club, made a faltering start in his Center Court match against Australian Darren Cahill before moving a step nearer to his first Wimbledon title with a 5-7, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4 victory.

Speedy Steffi Graf got her tennis chores out of the way in 34 minutes Wednesday, even though she conceded a game for the first time in three matches.

"What can I say," Graf said following a 6-2, 6-0 victory over Karine Quentrec of France in the second round at Wimbledon. "And yes, I'll be taking a shower afterwards, it wasn't t-h-a-t-easy."

The 19-year-old top seed from West Germany required only 17 minutes for each set, and at one point during the second set, a German in the crowd yelled out: "Hurry, Steffi, 30 minutes are almost up."

Cash demolished Frana 6-1, 6-1 at the Stella Artois tournament at Queen's club two weeks ago.

Hall in new league playing same game

Joe Hall has moved on to a different league and even a different country, but his role hasn't changed a bit.

Hall, who was a catcher, infielder and outfielder the past three years for the baseball Sahuks, already has played three positions for the St. Louis Cardinals' Class A Rookie League team in Hamilton, Ontario.

Hall was selected by the Cardinals in the 14th round of Major League Baseball's June draft. He has started all six of the team's games.

"I started the first game catching and then I moved to first base and the outfield," Hall said. "They're just moving me around, getting me to play all the positions."

Despite what he describes as "tougher pitching," Hall is hitting the ball well. His average after one week of play is .336.

"I'd say the pitching is pretty tough in this league," he said. "It's not really that much harder, but they are tougher. I think it compares a lot to the pitchers we faced in weekend conference games. We'd always face the toughest pitchers on those days."

Hall said moving to Canada has not been a major adjustment.

"It's different, sure. It's cooler here," he said. "The players are good, better than in college, but I think I'm still up to their caliber," he said.

Dale Kisten, who signed with the Cardinals over the weekend, got into his first game on Monday, Hall said.

"Dale came in a couple days ago and did pretty good job," Hall said. "He struck out four guys. I think they're going to be using him more as a reliever."

Kisten was unavailable for comment.

News of day is fight, say Tyson and Spinks

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — On the theory that good fights sell more tickets than soap operas, Mike Tyson and Michael Spinks talked only boxing Wednesday at the last news conference before their Monday night heavyweight title bout.

"The majority of this is bull," Tyson said about the turmoil surrounding his personal life. "I just want to fight as soon as possible. I'm not involved with what's scandalous or what's happened in my personal life, I just want to fight."

Stories about Tyson's marital and managerial problems have overshadowed the fight this week, but the undefeated heavyweight champions pronounced themselves physically and mentally fit Wednesday.

Tyson, 34-0 with 30 knockouts, holds the World Boxing Council, World Boxing Association and International Boxing Federation championships. The IBF may strip him, however, because he has agreed to schedule the bout for 12 rounds instead of 15.

Spinks, who was stripped by the IBF, was presented a title belt by Ring magazine at Wednesday's news conference. Spinks, 31-0 with 21 knockouts, has no official title but claims to be champion because he never lost his crown in the ring.

"I've been waiting for this for a long time," Spinks said, holding the belt over his head.

Tyson was the more intense fighter Wednesday, with Spinks relaxed in their last scheduled interviews before the fight.

"I don't believe I have to carry all that (intensity) in the ring with me," said Spinks, 31. "I don't have to bang my head against the wall, or smack myself in the face, whoop and holler, rant and rave. I know what I'm there for."

Tyson, 21, said he knows what he is there for, too — to entertain the crowd.
