Club owner disputes proposed law

By Rob Neff
DE Government/Politics Editor

The City Council has postponed voting on a proposed ordinance creating a new license for non-alcoholic entertainment establishments due to strong opposition from a local businessman.

Roland Davis, owner of Beach Bumz located at 611 S. Illinois Ave., told the council Tuesday the new ordinance would hamper his ability to do business as an alcohol-free dance club.

Davis did not apply to have his liquor license renewed this year and said he intends to re-open as a non-alcoholic dance club which would cater to teenagers during the afternoon and early evening hours and to the college crowd later in the night.

He questioned the need for an entertainment license, despite the fact that without the ordinance the city would have no right to periodically inspect the establishment.

"If they want the fire inspector to be able to make sure we do not exceed capacity, then they need to change that law, not create another," he said. "This should be the one place where people can feel comfortable and not be hassled by the police."

Davis had intended to keep the establishment open until 5 a.m. for the 18-and-over crowd, but if the ordinance is passed as it is written, he would be required to close his doors at 2 a.m.

Davis said closing the establishment that early would seriously hamper his ability to run a profitable business.

"I'm not going to give up one way or the other," he said. "But staying open later is a key component of my operation."

Davis said he would like to attract patrons of other bars to his establishment after 2 a.m., and believes providing that option to bar patrons may save lives by giving them an opportunity to sober up before driving home.

Councilman Michael Neill said

Inspection concerns cause bar closures

By Rob Neff
DE Government/Politics Editor

Two Carbondale bars will be without liquor licenses for at least 11 days next month as a result of concerns about inspections held at the establishments as part of the license renewal process.

The Local Liquor Control Commission sent the liquor license applications of Detours and the Sports Center back to the Liquor Advisory Board for consideration Tuesday, citing inspection problems as the reason.

The IAB makes recommendations to the commission, which makes the final decision on whether to issue a liquor license. The LAB's next meeting will be June 29.

Commissioner Richard Morris said employees of the Sports Center, 1215 E. Walnut, refused to allow city employees to enter the building to perform the inspection required before a license can be approved.

Management of the bar could not be reached for comment and no one was present at Tuesday's meeting to defend the establishment's actions, but an inspection has been conducted since the incident and the bar has no outstanding violations, City Clerk Janet Vaught told the commission Tuesday.

Morris said the issue he had with the renewal was not whether there were violations, but rather whether the business should be allowed to get away with interfering with the inspection.

"The city staff has the authority to inspect the premises whether or not the management wants them to," he said. "We sent it back to the LAB to determine whether denying the inspectors' access should affect their renewal."

SIUC students take jobs as Hollywood interns

By Rebecca Hutchings
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Some SIUC students are experiencing the glamour of Hollywood this summer, interning for various popular television shows including "Young and the Restless", "Dream On", "Sightings", "Rescue 911", "A Current Affair", and "Chicago Hope."

This is the first year the radio-television and cinema and photography departments have offered the Hollywood Studies program.

Students arrived in Los Angeles last Friday and started their eight week internships Monday. They work a minimum of 40 hours a week for professionals in the television industry without pay, according to Michael Starr, chairman of the radio-television department.

Starr, co-director of the program, said the internships give students valuable experience in their field.

"The program gives the students tremendous opportunities for

After three different terms as Chancellor, James Brown to again resign from SIUC

By Donita Polly
Daily Egyptian Reporter

The third time is the charm, or so Chancellor James Brown is hoping as he prepares to step down as SIUC chancellor again.

After serving three different terms as SIUC chancellor, Brown attended his retirement reception Wednesday to say good-bye to friends, staff and faculty.

Brown said his greatest accomplishment as chancellor was surviving until he could retire.

Brown also said if he could do things differently, "I would have quit earlier."

William S. Capie, associate vice president for administration, said one of the things he will miss about Brown is his incredible sense of humor.

"He has an uncanny ability of putting people at ease," Capie said.

Garrett Deakin, director of government relations, said Brown has a story for every occasion.

"He is a very enjoyable person to work for," Deakin said.

Before becoming chancellor, Brown was a professor of English at SIUC. He climbed to his current position by serving as assistant to the vice president of academic affairs, assistant to the chancellor, executive dean to academic affairs, HIJACKER DEMANDS RELEASE OF CULT LEADER — TOKYO—A Japanese domestic airliner was hijacked Wednesday by at least one man demanding the release of Shoko Asahara, the imprisoned leader of the Aum Supreme Truth cult accused of masterminding a deadly poison gas attack in the Tokyo subway system. The plane, an All Nippon Airways Boeing 747 with 350 passengers and 15 crew, landed safely on a scheduled flight from Tokyo to the northern city of Hakodate and was parked on a runway.

HAITIAN RIGHTS VIOLATORS AWAITING TRIAL — PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti—Eight months after the restoration of democracy, Haitians are still waiting for the justice system to try some of the most notorious alleged human rights violators. Perhaps at the top of the list of wanted suspects is Emmanuel Constant, who is being held in a prison in Maryland on immigration charges. But Constant, a former diplomat and son of an army general under the old Duvalier family dictatorship, is challenging attempts to deport him and the process could take six months or even several years, U.S. experts in immigration law say.

NORTH KOREAN LEADER RULES AFTER DEATH — SEOUL—They call it "government by ghost." As North Korea approaches the first anniversary of the death of long-time strongman Kim Il Sung, many observers of that unpredictable nation report an eerie sensation that, in some sense, the dead ruler is still in charge. "If you ask me who rules the roost in Pyongyang," said Kil Jeong Woo, a North Korea-watcher at South Korea's Research Institute for National Reunification, "I'd say that the regime is trying to make it look as if the ghost of the late Kim is still in control." The newspapers are full of pronouncements and decrees saying, "This is what Kim Il Sung wanted us to do." They still show Kim Il Sung speeches all the time.

NAACP DISMISSES ITS LONGTIME FUND-RAISER — BALTIMORE—Despite the need to pay off $3.8 million in debts, the NAACP has dismissed its longtime fund-raiser—who is now one of the group's major creditors. Gilbert Jonas, who had worked under contract with the NAACP since 1965, said Tuesday that the nation's oldest and largest civil rights group owes him more than $394,000. Jonas, who closed his New York office last week, said he would file suit to collect. Jonas charged that NAACP officials "spoon-fed" him token payments so that he would continue to raise funds—money that he says was mismanaged. NAACP officials said they ended the Gilbert Jonas Co.'s five-year contract to cut costs. "If you can't pay the man, there's no sense keeping him," said Fred H. Rasheed, the NAACP's economic development director. "We're already into him for quite a bit of money."

WORLD FOOD AID FACING CUTS BY CONGRESS — WASHINGTON—Providers of food aid to many of the world's 800 million chronically hungry people pleaded with Congress Wednesday to resist efforts to reduce or eliminate some U.S. foreign food-assistance programs. "Now is the wrong time for parochialism," J. Brian Atwood, administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development, told a House Agriculture subcommittee hearing. "The international community is entering a period of great uncertainty, and U.S. leadership remains critical to meet those challenges." Atwood, along with the head of the U.N. World Food Program and representatives from private food aid organizations, said humanitarian emergencies have multiplied since the end of the Cold War, forcing the diversion of food aid used for long-term development of poor communities.

NASA WORKS TO PROTECT ENDANGERED SPECIES — CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.—In the 1960s, before environmental laws were enacted, NASA's Space Center was largely responsible for the extinction of the dusky seaside sparrow by building dikes on marshes to control mosquitoes. The space center, however, takes "many noteworthy" steps to accommodate its wild neighbors and comply with environmental laws, said Don Paltner, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologist who has negotiated with NASA for 15 years whenever space projects affect endangered species.

Sunset Concert Series a summer staple in Carbondale

By Christi C. Harber
Daily Egyptian Reporter

In the summer of 1978, four people had a vision — to give the Carbondale community and SIUC students an annual live entertainment series.

John Corker, Wayne Anderson, Bonnie Briggs and Ken Salus followed through with their vision and 17 years later, the Sunset Concert Series continues.

Corker, former director of the Student Center, said he and the others wanted an annual event during the summer to offer the students and the community.

"The programs have become traditional," Corker said. "This is a series that has been viable and positive in the community over the years."

The series was originally called Concert Under The Stars, presenting 19 programs on different nights of the week during the summer, including dances, movies and bands.

The series' first year was funded by the Student Center, the Musicians Union (Local 697) and the Park District.

Big Twist and the Mellow

Fellows, a Southern Illinois band, played at the Sunset Concerts and went on to gain national attention. Donald Castle, assistant University programming coordinator, said a committee is formed with members representing each sponsor to select the music, prepare the budget, select the dates and make the advertisements.

"Everyone helps to promote the concerts," Castle said. "Student programming committees are responsible for the bands, the Student Center provides sound and uses its dinner services for concessions, and the Park District coordinates Port-o-Potties at Shryock and Turley Park."

During the series' first year, four concerts were at Shryock, two at Turley Park, one at Attucks Park and one at Evergreen Park. The crowds ranged from 50 to 1,000 people.

Fritz Krause, a senior in radio-television from Lake Bluff, said he attends the series because it is an

"Batman Forever" high on visuals but low on philosophical content

Val Kilmer is a gorgeous man - especially in black rubber. Nicole Kidman is a gorgeous woman - an important quality for a superhero's girlfriend. Chris O'Donnell is a gorgeous acrobat - even in a ridiculous leotard. United against the forces of evil, they certainly make a pretty picture. But do the three good guys from "Batman Forever" have enough dazzle to pull off the third adventure in Gotham? Sometimes.

Kilmer's Batman is not Batman-past. He is more sensitive, moodier (if possible), and occasionally bare-chested. He is no better than Michael Keaton was in the role, but comparing the two has its problems. They are both intense, both brooding. Comparing the two is like comparing potato chips and french fries - both have differences but essentially are coming from the same direction.

In "Batman Forever," Kilmer as the winged one and Kidman as Dr. Chase (convenient how the name lends itself to invading) Meridian meet through a mutual distaste for crime, this time in the form of the cartoon-like Tommy Lee Jones as

Movie Review

Two-Face. Kidman, unfortunately, never seems to equal Kilmer's intensity, and their relationship is not as plausible as it might be. But Jones, who always seems at his best playing lunatics, is perfectly cast as the indecisive villain.

When Bruce Wayne, the millionaire (it is important to have money to finance various Battransportation) who is Batman in his spare time, begins having nightmares while still awake, he decides to consult the good doctor for her professional, um... expertise.

In the meantime, one of Bruce's employees over at Wayne Enterprises gets a little bit wacky with a mind control machine. He becomes the Riddler, played by an extremely agitated Jim Carrey, and soon joins forces with Two-Face. Discovering Batman's true identity and trying to kill him becomes their mutual passion, because that is what bad guys in Gotham like to do. But the real success of the film is Carrey. Looking like very few men can — or want — to, in a green unitard, his character is so perversely entertaining he causes laughter just by prancing across the screen. And he certainly makes one wonder about the nerdy guy next door.

By the end, however, it seems the plot is really a vehicle for introducing Robin, who looks decidedly less geeky than most sidekicks are allowed to look. O'Donnell's bad boy portrayal saves Batman from being too serious and keeps the tone darkly humorous. Who knows? When Kilmer moves on to other projects, perhaps O'Donnell will trade Robin's mask for Batman's pointy ears.

One does not go to a Batman movie for its deep hidden meanings and to raise social consciousness. Batman is a fantasy, full of visual treats and absurdity. To expect more is to be disappointed.

Reviewers rant and rave on recently released records

By Dustin Coleman and

Daily Egyptian Reporters

Primus - Tales From the Punch Bowl / Interscope Records

The San Francisco Bay area-based trio Primus with its fifth and latest release "Tales from the Punch Bowl" has the band pulling off another funny album by practically ripping off every album they have ever done before. Though heavier than past albums, "Tales" still finds itself driven by the ever-so-funky six-string bass of Les Claypool. Video hit and first single, "Wynona's Big Brown Beaver," pays homage to a girl and her pet beaver. Needless to say, the song may just have a second level of meaning. Go figure: But Claypool insists that the song is in no way referring to any real person. Though the CD is so heavy that if it was an album you would not be able to pick it up off the turntable; by the fifth track, the songs blend into one big all-so-familiar bass line. C

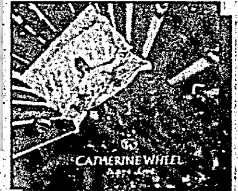

The Promised Land - Various

From Billie Holiday to Sly and the Family Stone, and from Howlin' Wolf to Terence Trent D'Arby, "The Promised Land," music from and inspired by the documentary series, gives a historical account of the most important African-American musicians from the early days of blues to the present. Unlike many compilation albums, this one not only entertains but also tells a story of the African-American experience through the 20th Century. Though styles have changed from Bessie Smith's "Backwater Blues" to Public Enemy's "Fight The Power," the message is still the same. A must for anyone who sings the blues. A

Catherine Wheel - Happy Days / Fontana Mercury Records

This band currently has a song getting air time on MTV. The band's music seemed to be a cross between Nine Inch Nails' harder music and Andrew Fletcher's vocal ability from Depeche Mode, and the band somehow makes it work. The CD's compilation of 14 songs shows a different approach to the music. The one song that stands out is "Eat My Dust..." The guitar is slow and flowing; with lead singer Rob Dickinson softly insulting everyone about his abilities. It is something different. The rest of the CD is punctuated with loud shrieking guitars; short spans of quiet dialogue, then yet another blast from a guitar. My recommendation is you can take 'em or leave 'em. C

Thurston Moore - Psychic Hearts / DGC Records

Thurston Moore (of Sonic Youth fame) has outdone his acclaimed band's past few albums on his new solo release "Psychic Hearts." From the first song, "Queen Bee and Her Pals" (imagine the Beatles turn punk), Moore exhibits a style of impressive songwriting that Sonic Youth lost after their album "Daydream Nation." But just when you think Moore has conformed, the album ends with 19 minutes of dreamy guitar smack (a la Neil Young Arc) called "Elegy for All the Dead Rock Stars." Even though it is pure Thurston and he does exhibit a new and improved guitar madness, some things never change. Sonically brilliant. B

Wanderlust - Prize / RCA Records

The first outing for this Pennsylvania band leaves a lot to be desired. With the two Rickenbacker guitars, the band's overall style is '60s pop rock a la the Birds and a bit of the Beatles, but they do not come close to developing this style of music to its fullest. The 11 songs

Council's proposal offers alternatives

SINCE THE CITY COUNCIL DECIDED TO RAISE the bar entry age to 20 there has been a demand for alternative forms of entertainment. That demand is on non-alcoholic establishments, which could be a good thing for Carbondale and SIUC students, provided that guidelines are set forth and respected.

City Council members have proposed an ordinance which will establish three types of entertainment establishments. Some students still upset over the Halloween decision may not agree with this plan, however, it is not a bad idea because it offers alternative forms of entertainment to different age groups.

IF THE ORDINANCE IS APPROVED IT WILL establish a teen club license which restricts admission to people between the ages of 13 and 18, an 18- and- over club and a 21- and- over club. The city of Carbondale needs these forms of entertainment in order to provide students under 21 a place to go for entertainment as well as an alternative for those who have grown tired of the bars currently on the Strip.

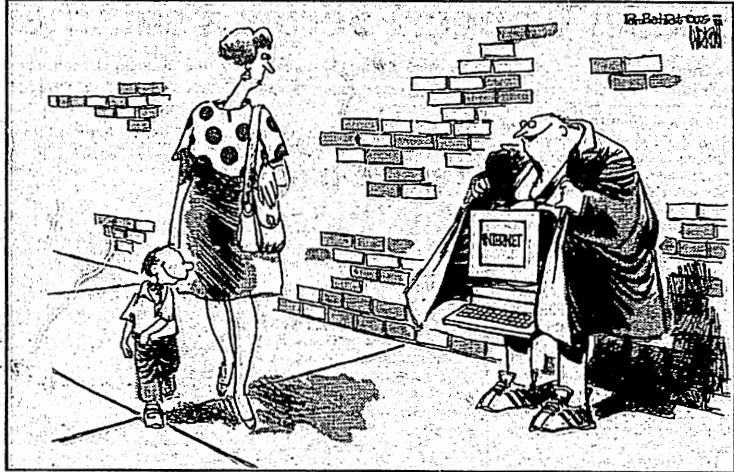

City clerk Janet Vaught said not only will the establishments provide a form of entertainment, they will provide a safe atmosphere for the students by not serving alcohol. She said the recent decisions on the bar entry age prompted city officials to seek alternatives.

Although the ordinance may have tremendous potential, there are several considerations which need to be addressed.

First of all, different age limits do not mix well at establishments that serve liquor, thus the reasoning behind catering to individual needs. The recent scene at Pinch Penny Pub last Wednesday provides a strong case for the ordinance. Some fights broke out during the night which resulted in for people being arrested, including two under the age of 21. Second, who can ensure the safety and welfare of the teen-agers who frequent the teen clubs? Granted the responsibility ultimately lies with the parents. However, can their safety be assured?

IF THESE QUESTIONS CAN BE OUTLINED AND answered, the new entertainment alternatives can greatly enhance the otherwise average day-to-day routine Carbondale has to offer. Students coming into SIUC with dreams of evenings spent on the Strip in a drunken stupor may at first be disappointed when those visions vanish, but at least they will have somewhere to go as an alternative for entertainment. Local teen-ager's will also be provided with an alternative to spending money at the arcade in University Mall.

ALTHOUGH THEY HAVE NOT BEEN POPULAR, council members deserve a pat on the back for their efforts to bring other forms of entertainment to Carbondale. Now both students and other residents have the opportunity to seek alternatives to the typical intoxicating weekends too often witnessed.

Commentary

Muslims need self rule in Bosnia

The Washington Post

A desperate, Muslim-led Bosnian government is having trouble sustaining what was earlier billed as a climactic offensive against the Bosnian Serbs at Sarajevo. It has light weapons and willing soldiers, but the Serbs have heavy weapons and the high ground.

So far the government has been unable to draw into the battle its uneasy federation partner, the Bosnian Croats.

The Muslims are the big losers and principal victims of the Bosnian war. If they, practically alone, believe a military surge promises them advantage, then no one will bar them, and many will cheer them on. But though the fate of the Muslims stirs the general conscience, their hope to persuade NATO to supply arms or airstrikes remains a long shot.

Americans have been debating for several years whether the national interest in the outcome is great enough, the desired result feasible enough and the likely costs bearable enough to compel and permit this sort of American intervention. In fact, you can make a pretty good case for answering in the affirmative, but the country's and the government's answers are evident—and they are no.

The case for intervention has been made neither by a Republican nor a Democratic administration, nor has it been promoted by the American public.

There would be deep satisfaction in punishing the Bosnian Serbs, but by now there is too little hope and assurance that such a course would produce either a desired result or come at a price Americans are willing to sustain. The hesitating allies, whose troops on the ground would suffer the first consequences, claim and deserve deference.

The humanitarian role of U.N. peacekeepers, who feed 2 million people, is still vital. But their presence is politically pointless now that, with their hostages returned, they have abandoned both protecting themselves by airstrikes and protecting Sarajevo from Serb artillery.

It would cost the United States something to help escort NATO out. Alliance solidarity obliges Americans to do it. Paying for a European "rapid-reaction force" that would merely expand and prolong a humiliated and ineffective U.N. peacekeeping mission, however, is something else.

The negotiating option is frail but essential. Would-be mediators have a couple of cards: Serbia can escape sanctions only by squeezing the Bosnian Serbs, and Serbs can escape isolation only by accommodating Bosnian Muslims and Croats in some measure.

The Contact Group offers its peace plan not as a take-it-or-leave-it, but as a "starting point"; it must go on to prepare explicitly for political and territorial bargaining.

For the option of uniting with Serbia, Bosnian Serbs could be expected to grant Bosnian Muslims their own state. This is what is left.

The Muslims are the big losers and principle victims of the Bosnian war.

Friendly fire responsibility shifts to Congress

The Los Angeles Times

Tuesday's verdict by an Air Force tribunal absolving Capt. Jim Wang in the tragic chain of errors that led to the downing of two U.S. Army helicopters does not absolve the Pentagon of responsibility to fully disclose the circumstances in this case of so-called friendly fire.

However, given the stubborn refusal of the military to reveal what it knows, it now appears to be up to Congress to address the issue. An independent inquiry should be conducted on Capitol Hill.

Air Force investigators reportedly amassed 21 volumes of evidence detailing mistakes at every level by those who took part in the 1994 operation, in which two Air Force F-15 pilots mistakenly fired on two Blackhawk helicopters in the no-fly zone in northern Iraq. Twenty-six people, including 15 Americans, were killed. In the months leading up to Wang's court-martial on charges of dereliction of duty, charges against five other participants were dropped. Curiously, only Wang, a supervisor on an AWACS radar surveillance plane that helped to guide the F-15s, was singled out for prosecution. Air Force officials say that at this time they have no plans to charge anyone else in the case.

Following the not-guilty verdict, a somber Wang put the incident in proper perspective. "There are still two helicopters shot down and 26 lives lost," he said. "This court-martial is one small piece in the puzzle."

For the grieving families of the victims and the American public, Congress must put the rest of the pieces in place.

"Have a good day." People tell us to do this every day.

And every day we turn around with an equally bright suggestion, "...and you also have a good day."

Well that's all fine and dandy. We all believe that each of us would benefit from having "a good day." Who would it? (Unless, of course, you are one of the exceptional few who would rather have a bad day. If that is you, stop reading.) But I believe the problem here involves the classic case of some things just being easier said than done. Everyone tells us to have one, but no one tells us HOW!

If you live in the world I live in, it's close to impossible to find the time or will to have a day that's actually good. The desire to do so is lost somewhere between the blinding sun through your windshield on the way to work, and the smell of a superior's body odor replacing your oxygen supply.

But don't lose hope just yet. To have a good day requires great skill and technique. Some may argue that we have no control over this. That our day is handed to us, be it good or bad. That may be true, but the way we deal with that day makes all the difference in the world: A bad day can be better, just as your good day can be great. So what I have to offer is a few suggestions on how to have a good day.

First, before you go to bed at night, turn your bed around. Better yet, turn yourself around 180 degrees, opposite to the way you usually sleep. Already, your day will begin with a different, fresh perspective on your usual surroundings.

Second, have a glass of water ready to drink down, immediately when you wake. Don't even step out of bed until you have at least 12 oz. down. If you have a problem with water, too bad. No pain, no gain. Water is essential to a good day. Whenever you think about it, and have time during the day, drink down a glass of water. Think of it as a magic potion or a synthetic formula that will make you better than everyone else: It can do no harm. If ya can't fool yourself who can ya fool?

Third, some type of bathing is required. The most effective for me is the shower. Start with a warm water pre-rinse, and lather completely (hair, body, privates, etc.). Now, here's the kicker: Rinse completely, with cold water. The water should be cold enough to be uncomfortable but not dangerous (obvious change in skin color, headaches, and blackouts are signs of physical harm). The key is not to think of yourself in a cold shower, but perhaps you are under a 30 foot waterfall deep in the Brazilian rain forest. Here you would not be cold and uncomfortable, but rather rejuvenated and refreshed by a clean mountain runoff. The chilling water temperature also causes a vigorous increase in heart rate, which is helpful in waking up.

So, already you've come to wake in a foreign place, showered in an exotic waterfall, and drank from the fountain of youth, and you haven't even left your house yet. And this is only the beginning. Your journey to a "good day" is an ongoing process that must continue throughout the entire day. I now leave it to you. Have a good day.

Crack dealer sentenced to twenty years

By Carey Jane Atherton
Daily Egyptian Reporter

A Carbondale man was sentenced to more than 20 years in prison Tuesday for his part in a distribution conspiracy involving 50 grams of crack cocaine.

Judge William L. Beatty of the US District Court in East St. Louis ordered Edward L. Mims to serve 248 months in jail, pay $4,500 in fines and serve five years supervised release after his release from prison.

Mims, 29, was indicted and convicted March 16 for being a street level seller of 50 grams of crack cocaine, and for the use of a firearm during a drug trafficking crime.

An investigation by the FBI and the Southern Illinois Enforcement Group led to the conviction of Mims and co-conspirator Cleveland J. McDade.

United States Attorney for the southern district of Illinois W. Charles Grace said in a press release that a Carbondale area known as "crack alley" was the center of the crack cocaine distribution plot.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ranley R. Killian said the drug trafficking post-college employment," Starr said. "It also allows them to really see if they like what they planned on doing."

Grecca Vanlue, a junior from Lemont, is currently interning for "A Current Affair." Christine Mansoor, associate producer of "A Current Affair," said interns like Vanlue could eventually be hired full-time.

"I started here ("A Current Affair") as an intern and received a job," Mansoor said. "Anything's possible."

Keith Schreier, a cinema-photography graduate student from Belleville, and Steven Abbot, a senior in radio-television from Mount Carmel, are interning for "Young and the Restless."

Schreier said he has met several employees on the set of "Young and the Restless" and has seen the different aspects of producing a show, from paperwork to taping.

"We've been on the actual studio floor and watched the director," Schreier said. "We've met several directors, the stage manager, and a couple of actors."

Deborah O'Sullivan, intern coordinator for "Young and the Restless," said Schreier and Abbot are experiencing the steps involved in producing a finished show.

"They will be doing a lot of paperwork with scripts and scheduling. They write the synopsis for shows, answer the phones, and look through the fan mail. Later, they have a chance to be on-stage and be in the studio," O'Sullivan said. "They watch the whole process, from the paperwork to the finished product."

To be eligible for the program students needed a 2.5 GPA, a faculty recommendation, and a junior standing at SIUC. Students are responsible for program costs, including rent at a Burbank apartment complex where the students stay.

Abbott said the students are excited about what they are experiencing.

"It's great so far," Abbott said. "It's really different than what you expect."

Series several years ago. The group has since played Carbondale 15 times, appearing at Hungar 9, Pinch Penny Pub and the Student Center.

Craig Florez, guitarist, said Carbondale is one of the band's favorite places to play.

"We always had a very responsive crowd," Florez said. "We really like the college crowd because they are enthusiastic people."

The band formed in 1988 and toured throughout the United States. Drummer Sunni Danayaa and Florez had their own idea of starting a band and met through a mutual friend.

"Reggae is marketable, but I love the music," Florez said. "It is hypnotic, and soothing. It has a positive message of peace, education and love. It is not a violent thing."

They have opened for hit reggae acts including Black Uhuru, Jimmy Cliff, Yellowman and Inner Circle.

The other members of the band are: Donavan Brissett, lead singer; Jody Carter, keyboardist; Alonzo Lee, keyboardist; and Kirk Wheeler, bassist.

The band is currently putting together a mini-CD of original tracks.

States free to set own helmet laws

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—The Senate voted Wednesday to repeal federal penalties aimed at forcing states to require motorcyclists to wear helmets, while retaining the penalties for states that refuse to enact seatbelt laws for automobiles.

The action, which followed a vote Tuesday to scamp the national speed limit for cars, continued the drive by the Senate's Republican majority to roll back the federal government's role in setting rules in areas ranging from highway safety to welfare, leaving more major decisions to state governments.

The federal government should not go so far as to tell people "how to dress for recreational pursuit," argued Sen. Ben Nighthorse Campbell, R-Colo., a co-sponsor of the proposal, who regularly roars around town on a Harley-Davidson.

on the CD do not try to develop any musical difference between them, but instead follow the same format and all end up sounding the same. The down point of the CD is singer Scot Sax and his lyrical ability. The song "Sundial," which is supposed to be a Dylan-esque-type ballad, is ruined by Sax's whining, hold-your-ears voice. The CD was very bland, boring and not recommended. D

Jill Sobule - self-titled / Lava Records

Who has not heard the new song from Sobule, "I Kissed A Girl" on every radio station or every half-hour on MTV? Sobule's CD debut follows the same format as her first release with music that is mellow in a perky way with jolly little beats. Sobule does have musical ability with a harsh-sounding Cyndi Lauper style. She also shows a wide range in the 12 compilations on the CD with "Theme From The Girl In The Affair." The song leaves the listener feeling they are in a smoked-filled bar lounge in France. "Karen by Night" is a song that shows some writing ability for Sobule. She fantasizes about leading a double life in leather and chains, hoping to be like her straight-laced boss, Karen, but only at night. Along with the ups, there are the downs. "Trains" is a piece that leaves Sobule's voice hanging in the wind without much support. The CD has a majority of good songs that show potential for Sobule, but there are songs you would not want to listen to every day. B-although he does not subscribe to that argument for allowing an entertainment establishment to remain open past 2 a.m., he has concerns about the fairness of requiring it to close then.

"I am worried about competition," he said. "We don't tell every business in Carbondale — other than those who serve alcohol — they have to close at 2 a.m."

"The Corner Diner, for instance, does not close at 2 a.m."

Neill said he would like to see non-drinkers separated from the those who are under the influence of alcohol in any non-alcoholic dance club.

Also connected to this issue is a regulation in the proposed ordinance that would require entertainment clubs to expel any patrons who are under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

"What I have in mind for a non-alcoholic place is somewhere I would send my kids," Neill said.

"If people who have been drinking are allowed in the establishment, that would change the atmosphere."

Councilman Richard Morris, who said he has no problem with a 2 a.m. closing time, pointed out that restaurants like the Corner Diner are different than entertainment clubs, which are more up-beat and involve a larger crowd.

However, Davis took issue with this argument, pointing out that the club only would be allowed to cater to one age group at a time under the ordinance.

"Is the intoxication going to transfer magically to the sober person?" he asked. "The 21-and-over crowd won't be coming in contact with the teenagers anyway."

The ordinance creates three age classifications and only one age group would be allowed in an establishment under the proposed law.

Under the proposed law, teen clubs are restricted to those between the ages of 13 and 18 and must close no later than 10 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and no later than midnight on Friday and Saturday.

Eighteen-and-over clubs would be required to close no later than 2 a.m., as would 21-and-over clubs.

An establishment would be allowed to cater to more than one of the age groups, but would be limited to operating one type of club at any given time.

The ordinance also would require all owners of an entertainment establishment to clean up all litter generated by their operation in a two-block radius within eight hours of their closing time.

Another aspect of the ordinance that Davis questioned is a regulation requiring the establishment to prevent loitering and public nuisances or disturbances of the peace by club patrons.

Alcoholic bars are not required to abide by either of these regulations under the current liquor laws, according to Morris, Neill and Davis.

Because of this, Neill said he has concerns about the fairness of these regulations as well.

"I don't think we should hold him (Davis) to higher standards than we hold the bars to," he said.

The council is expected to re-examine the ordinance, along with other issues, at a special council meeting next Tuesday.

opportunity to have live entertainment for free and consume alcohol in a public place.

"The bands so far this year are just as good as the bands in the past," Krause said.

LaShare Edwards, a graduate student from Chicago, said the series is definitely a change of pace for this area.

"It is good for students who are in the area attending summer school and want to get out and take in available entertainment," she said. "I found it to be a very mature crowd, where you did not have to worry about any major problems — very relaxing, with a lot of good acts."

Mary Rowe, superintendent of recreation for the Carbondale Park District, said it has always been a goal of the series to offer a variety of bands each summer.

"In the past there has been chamber music and for the first time, this year we will offer big band music," Rowe said.

special assistant to then SIUC President Delyte Morris and the Board of Trustees Chief of Staff.

Brown was named acting chancellor in February 1979 when the Board of Trustees created the position. He retired from this position September 1979 but returned as acting chancellor January 1986 and served until June 30, 1986.

In September 1991, acting chancellor Lawrence K. Petit resigned and the board of trustees asked Brown to take his place. Brown became the first permanent chancellor in December 1992.

Brown announced his plans to retire in July 1995, and helped the board of trustees find his replacement.

Brown's last day as chancellor will be June 30. Ted Sanders will take over chancellor duties July 1.

Capie said while Sanders will be able to offer an increased presence at the state level, Brown's experience will be sorely missed.

"He's been here a long time and is recognized as the leader of the system. He's difficult to replace," Capie said.

Deakin said, "It's hard to replace the years and knowledge of the operations of SIU that he (Brown) has."

Brown said he thinks Sanders will do a fantastic job as chancellor.

"You do what you need to do and do the best you can. This is a great university and it was a privilege to work with it," Brown said.

Renewal

it should. Commissioner John Yow said at the meeting he thinks the liquor license should at least be suspended.

"I think we ought to take a license away from people who won't let us inspect them," he said.

Detours, 760 E. Grand, will have to wait for their license due to numerous safety violations brought out at the meeting, including a leaky roof, "oiled carpeting and damp walls.

Dave Kuan, manager of Detours, told the commission that the roof, which has leaked in the past and has been patched, would be completely replaced to bring the building up to code.

"We have had a contractor down here, and he is here tonight," he said. "He started work on the roof yesterday. The roof project will be completed in two weeks."

Morris said he is very concerned with the violations, which pose what he called a serious threat to the public health.

"These are blatant violations that put the customers at serious risk," he said.

On the Island Pub, 717 1/2 S. University Ave., also faced strong criticism from the commission for not complying with liquor regulations.

According to Commissioner Michael Neill, the pub has a restaurant license requiring it to make at least 51 percent of its profits from the sale of food, but record keeping has made it impossible to determine the actual percentage of profits made from food sales.

Neill said he voted against renewing the license because this is the second year in a row the commission has had this problem with the restaurant.

"Their competitors have to play by these rules, and they have spent time and money doing so," he said. "It would be unfair to allow them to slide by."

Neill cast the only vote against renewal, however, and the commission renewed the license with the requirement that they demonstrate compliance with the law during an audit in three months.

Scott Vogensen, manager of the pub, blamed the record keeping problem on the owner and said he has installed a new cash register which will monitor the food and alcohol sold.

"We are working with the CPA right now," he said. "Everything is under control."

Frankie's, 204 W. College St.,

also will have to wait for renewal of their application because management there missed the application deadline.

All other licenses were approved by the commission Tuesday, with the exception of the licenses of the American Tap, 518 S. Illinois Ave., and Ezech Bumz, 611 S. Illinois Ave., neither of which reapplied.

Turkey hunts rebels inside Iran border

By Hugh Pope
Special to the Los Angeles Times

ISTANBUL, Turkey—Fighting in the mountains between Turkey and Iran killed at least 30 Turkish soldiers and Turkish Kurd rebels on Wednesday, adding to growing border tension between NATO-ally Turkey and the Islamic Republic.

Turkish officials claim that the separatist Kurdistan Workers Party (PKK) is again operating out of bases inside Iran. The Turks suggested a joint operation with the Iranians against the insurgents. Failing that, they want permission for the Turkish army to mount an operation similar to its 35,000-man, six-week anti-rebel raid into northern Iraq in March.

"Our northern Iraq operation should be a message to all our neighbors, and a very clear one. We will not tolerate that terrorists come into our country and kill innocent people and soldiers," said Prime Minister Tansu Ciller, according to the Hurriyet newspaper.

Hurriyet said earlier this month that Turkey sent F-16 warplanes toward Turkish Kurd camps in Iran, but called the planes back at the last moment. Western diplomats said this was unlikely but that the report was probably a warning to the Iranian government.

Iran has sent envoys to Turkey's capital, Ankara, and sought time. Iranian Deputy Foreign Minister Alaeddin Boroujerdi promised to help contain the rebels but played down the idea of any joint operation.

Russia, Chechnya reach settlement

Los Angeles Times

GROZNY, Russia, June 22—Spurred by the five-day siege by Chechen separatists of a Russian city, negotiators reached tentative agreement early Thursday on a plan to stop the war in Chechnya, disarm the separatists and withdraw most Russian troops from the Muslim republic.

The accord, signed by Russian and Chechen officials after three days of talks in the Chechen capital, covers only the military aspects of a peace settlement and would not take effect until political questions, including Chechnya's degree of independence from Moscow, are resolved.

With the intensity of the latest round, which lasted from 10 a.m. Wednesday until just after midnight, indicated that negotiations were moving with urgency on both sides. The talks were to resume Thursday.

People throughout Chechnya, especially in the mountains where fighting had raged until a temporary cease-fire took hold this week, said they had high hopes that this effort would succeed where previous negotiations during the 6-month-old conflict had failed.

Russia sent tens of thousands of troops to the tiny southern republic last December to crush a 3-year-old independence movement led by Chechen President Dzhokhar M. Dudayev. After putting up surprising resistance, the several thousand Chechen fighters retreated from their capital in January, the plains last spring and all but a few mountain strongholds this month. An estimated 20,000 people have been killed.

The talks and a temporary cease-fire were points won by Chechen guerrilla leader Shamil Basayev in exchange for the freedom of more than 1,000 hostages held by his commando in the bloody siege of Budennovsk, the Chechens' first strike into Russia proper. Basayev and 72 other guerrillas were also given safe conduct for a 200-mile bus journey back to Chechnya's southern mountains, where he vanished into the darkness Monday night.

Gen. Anatoly Kulikov, commander of Russian forces in Chechnya, stunned the Chechen side and the rest of his own government Wednesday by demanding the surrender of Basayev and his men to face criminal charges for the deaths of more than 100 people in the raid.

"We will not sit at the negotiating table with those who connive with terrorists," Kulikov told reporters in a midday break in the talks, threatening to call off the cease-fire if Basayev were not "extradited."

Faced with a breakdown of the talks, the Chechen side, led by Dudayev's chief prosecutor and military chief of staff, made a surprising concession. Denouncing "all acts of terrorism," it pledged "to assist the Russian side in the search and arrest" of the wanted men, although it stopped short of saying Basayev would be handed over.

Gen. Aslan Mashhadov, the Chechen chief of staff, refused to answer questions about that part of the agreement.

Asked how he planned to capture Basayev, the most popular and apparently most powerful Chechen commander, Chechen prosecutor Usman Imaev said: "Today we are talking about a peaceful settlement in Chechnya. This is a purely technical matter."

Vatican attacks U.N. policy on women

The Washington Post

VATICAN CITY—The Vatican took the offensive this week on controversial issues to be discussed at this fall's United Nations conference on women near Beijing, attacking positions promoted by the United States and other Western countries on abortion, contraception, gender and family.

Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro-Valls criticized a draft U.N. document as giving an unbalanced picture of women by belittling their role as mothers. He acidly described parts of the conference draft as impositions by wealthy liberal Western countries on the more traditional developing world.

"The Holy See observes in this document pressure of an ideological character that appears to aim at imposing on women of all the world a social philosophy particular to some sectors in Western countries," Navarro-Valls told reporters in Vatican City Tuesday.

With this pre-emptive strike, the top hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church appears to be preparing for an ideological battle at the women's conference in September similar to one it waged last year in Cairo at the United Nations' meeting on population and development. In Cairo, the Vatican successfully fought off an effort to include abortion as a human right in the final conference document.

Such high-profile efforts underscore a shift in the diplomatic focus of Pope John Paul II's 17-year papacy. Until the end of the Cold War, winning democracy for Eastern Europe seemed the highest priority. With that mission accomplished, the Pope has turned toward resisting the advance of Western social practices, some promoted by governments, that challenge church teachings.

In particular, the Vatican has come to regard the United States as having the global capacity to influence norms, including consumer habits, sexual preferences and family values. The Vatican seems committed to ensuring that liberal trends in American and Western culture do not receive a universal stamp of approval in a U.N. document.

Police Blotter

University Police

University police said David K. Smith, 41, of Carbondale was arrested at 7:55 p.m. June 20 on four Jackson County warrants. He was taken to Jackson County Jail, and was still in jail Wednesday.

University police said a resident of Evergreen Terrace reported an unknown substance was poured on his two vehicles that were parked in the area at 7 p.m. June 19 and again at 8 a.m. June 20. Items near the victims residence were also disturbed. Police said they have no suspects at the time.

Federal employees insurance costs escalate while pay remains constant

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - If Congress does its worst, pay remains relatively flat and health insurance premiums go up modestly next year, the typical federal employee could wind up with less take-home pay in 1996 than this year.

The Clinton administration will hold federal workers to a 1996 raise of 2.4 percent to 2.6 percent. That is less than promised by the 1990 law that guaranteed workers a series of national and locality adjustments designed to gradually close the gap between federal and private-sector pay. The Clinton administration has serious doubts that feds are underpaid an average of 30 percent, which is what government surveys indicate.

Congress is working on a proposal that would reduce retirement benefits of federal workers by basing pension benefits on an employee's highest five-year average salary, instead of the current high-three plan. The other part of that proposal (approved by the House but not in the Senate budget) would raise employee contributions to the retirement plan by 2.5 percent of salary. There would be a 1 percent increase next year, with the remainder phased in during 1997 and 1998. That would reduce take-home pay at a time when workers were getting smaller raises than promised.

BE LESS PRODUCTIVE AT THE OFFICE.

The office has always been a place to get ahead. Unfortunately, it's also a place where natural resources can fall behind. So here are some easy ways to reduce waste at the office. Turn off your lights when you leave. Drink out of a mug instead of throwaway cups. And to cut down on trash, use both sides of a memo. Doing these things today will help save resources for tomorrow.

Which is truly a job well done. 1-800-MY-SHARE.

SIUC Program to Prevent the Use of Illicit Drugs and the Abuse of Alcohol by Students and Employees

MEMORANDUM

To: The University Community
From: John C. Guyon
Re: Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act

To receive federal financial assistance of any kind, institutions of higher education must certify that they have adopted and implemented a program to prevent the unlawful possession, use, or distribution of illicit drugs and alcohol by students and employees. This certification is mandated by the Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act amendments of 1989. The materials which follow are being distributed as a means of our complying with this legislation, and perhaps more importantly, informing the entire University community of the standards of conduct required with regard to illicit drugs and alcohol and the possible consequences of inappropriate behavior.

The requirements of the law are separate and distinct from the requirements specified by the Drug-Free Workplace Act of 1988, which relate only to employees (including student workers) involved in work supported by or paid from federal grants and contracts. The Drug-Free Workplace Guidelines Drug-Free Awareness Program specified in my June 12, 1989, memorandum remain in effect. The rules under the Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act are much broader in scope, covering drugs and alcohol, students and employees, on University property or as part of University activities.

The following provides: (a) a statement of acceptable conduct; (b) a description of the health risks associated with use of illicit drugs and the abuse of alcohol; (c) a description of programs available to members of the University community for counseling, treatment, and rehabilitation; (d) a statement of possible disciplinary sanctions which are applicable to members of the University community who violate law or University policy with respect to the manufacture, possession, use, or distribution of illicit drugs or the abuse of alcohol; (e) a description of applicable legal sanctions under local, state, and federal law for the unlawful possession, use, and distribution of illicit drugs and alcohol.

Standards of Conduct

Faculty, staff, and students must adhere to a code of conduct that recognizes that the unlawful manufacture, sale, delivery, unauthorized possession, or use of any illicit drug is prohibited on property owned or controlled by the SIUC Board of Trustees or as part of any University activity.

The use, including the sale, delivery, possession, and consumption of alcoholic beverages in or on property owned or controlled by the University or as part of any University activity is strictly prohibited except as otherwise provided in the "Regulations Governing Alcoholic Beverages at SIUC." Where permitted under these regulations, the use of alcoholic beverages on University premises shall be considered a privilege and may be allowed only if consistent with State laws and University regulations, and only when it will not interfere with the decorum and academic atmosphere of the campus.

If an individual associated with the University is apprehended for violation of any drug or alcohol-related law while on University property or participating in a University activity, the University will cooperate fully with law enforcement and other agencies in administering a corrective or rehabilitative program for the individual. The University also reserves the right to initiate concurrent disciplinary action up to, and including where appropriate, the termination of the individual's association with the University.

Health Risks of Alcohol and Other Drugs

Alcohol is the most abused drug in society as well as on college campuses. Alcohol, which is used by 85% of SIUC students and approximately 70% of employees, is directly involved in many injuries, assaults, and the majority of deaths in people under age 25. Other commonly abused illegal drugs include marijuana, cocaine, stimulants, hallucinogens, depressants, narcotics, steroids, and inhalants. Legal drugs such as caffeine, nicotine, over-the-counter, and prescription drugs also have wide use and associated health risks.

Health risks of using alcohol or other drugs include both physical and psychological effects. The health consequences of drugs depend on the frequency, duration, and intensity of use. For all drugs, there is a risk of overdose. Overdose can result in coma, convulsions, psychosis, or death. Combinations of certain drugs, such as alcohol and barbiturates, can be lethal. The purity and strength of doses of illegal drugs are uncertain.

Continued use of substances can lead to tolerance (requiring more and more of a drug to get the same effect), dependence (physical or psychological need), or withdrawal (a painful, difficult and dangerous symptom when stopping use of a drug). Long-term chronic use of drugs can lead to malnutrition, organic damage to the body, and psychological problems. The risk of AIDS and other diseases increases if drugs are injected. The consumption of alcohol or drugs by pregnant women may cause abnormalities, such as Fetal Alcohol Syndrome (the third leading cause of birth defects), in babies.

Disciplinary Sanctions

Faculty, staff members, and students who engage in the unlawful manufacture, possession, use, or distribution of illicit drugs, or suffer from alcohol abuse, will be subject to disciplinary sanctions by the University as well as any criminal penalties that might be levied by the courts.

Civil Service Employees

Disciplinary sanctions that the University may take directly against a Civil Service employee are governed by the Guidelines for Progressive Disciplinary Actions—Civil Service Employees for the Carbondale campus and the Civil Service Employee Disciplinary Management Program—Policy on Employee Conduct and Discipline for the Springfield campus and, in part, by the Statute and Rules of the State Universities Civil Service System.

Under the Guidelines for the Carbondale campus, possession of an alcoholic beverage in violation of the University's Regulations Governing Alcoholic Beverages would constitute a Level I infraction, calling for a warning or reprimand on the first such offense and pursuance of discharge on the fifth. Drinking intoxicating beverages in violation of these regulations would constitute a Level III infraction, calling for a 1-10-work-day suspension without pay on the first such offense and pursuance of discharge on the third. Any criminal act that would qualify as a misdemeanor is a level IV infraction, calling for a 15-20-work-day suspension without pay on the first such offense and pursuance of discharge on the second. Any criminal act that would qualify as a felony is a Level V infraction, calling for pursuance of discharge on the first such offense. Unlawful possession, use, or distribution of illicit drugs or alcohol is by definition a misdemeanor or felony.

Under the Policy for the Springfield campus, possession of an alcoholic beverage in violation of the University's Regulations Governing Alcoholic Beverages or pertinent School of Medicine regulations and administrative guidelines would constitute a Level I infraction, calling for a warning or reprimand on the first such offense and pursuance of discharge on the sixth. Drinking intoxicating beverages in violation of those Regulations or School of Medicine regulations or administrative guidelines would constitute a Level III infraction, calling for a 5 work-day suspension without pay on the first such offense, a 20-work-day suspension on the second, and pursuance of discharge on the third. Any criminal act that would qualify as a misdemeanor is a Level IV infraction, calling for a 20-work-day suspension on the first such offense and pursuance of discharge on the second. Any criminal act that would qualify as a felony is a Level V infraction, calling for pursuance of discharge on the first such offense. Unlawful possession, use, or distribution of illicit drugs or alcohol is by definition a misdemeanor or felony. Under the Policy the School of Medicine Director of Personnel may take into account factors in mitigation and aggravation as well as other matters deemed relevant, such as the cumulative effect of an employee's overall disciplinary record in determining the disciplinary action to be taken.

In addition to direct sanctions imposed by the University, any evidence of a criminal act by an employee involving the unlawful possession, use, or distribution of illicit drugs or alcohol will be brought to the attention of the proper law enforcement authorities.

Even legal use of alcohol or undetected use of illicit drugs off the job which impairs an employee's ability to perform his/her job duties in a satisfactory manner exposes that employee to disciplinary sanctions up to and including discharge if the impairment is not corrected.

Faculty and AIP Staff

Disciplinary sanctions applicable to SIUC faculty and AIP staff for violation of Standards of Conduct required by the Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act Amendments of 1989 (Public Law 101-226):

A. Introduction

The Standards of Conduct of the Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act Policy of SIUC prohibit the unlawful manufacture, sale, delivery, unauthorized possession, or use of any illicit drug on property owned or controlled by the University or as a part of any University activity. The Standards also prohibit the use, including the sale, delivery, possession, and consumption, of alcoholic beverages in or on property owned or controlled by the University or as a part of any University activity, except as otherwise provided for in the Regulations Governing Alcoholic Beverages at SIUC (6 Policies, Procedures, and Regulations D).

SIUC requires that all faculty and staff members comply with the Standards of Conduct of the Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act Policy and, for any concerns related to the use or abuse of illicit drugs or alcohol, encourages individuals to voluntarily seek assistance through the alcohol and drug prevention and counseling services available through SIUC, including the Springfield campus of the School of Medicine, or the community.

B. University Procedures

Before any disciplinary sanction for violation of the Standards of Conduct of the Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act Policy may be imposed, a faculty or staff member suspected or alleged to have violated the Standards shall be afforded the benefit of due process procedure, including (1) notice in writing of the specific violation that is charged, (2) a meaningful opportunity to be heard and present any relevant information in response to the charge, (3) the right to assistance in such proceedings by an advisor of his or her choice, (4) a determination based on clear and convincing evidence that a violation of the Standards of Conduct occurred, and (5) an opportunity for appeal pursuant to the applicable grievance procedure.

C. University Sanctions

The disciplinary sanctions that may be imposed for violations of the Standards of Conduct of the Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act Policy include: a) a written reprimand and/or warning; b) disciplinary probation; c) temporary suspension without pay; and d) termination of employment. Assessment, counseling, or rehabilitative treatment in some situations may be required for continued employment. An individual charged with a violation of the Standards of Conduct may be temporarily relieved of assigned duties with pay, or an individual may be suspended with pay pending any necessary investigation of an alleged violation of the Standards of Conduct. In addition to sanctions for violations of the Standards of Conduct on University owned or controlled property or as part of any University activity, the University reserves the right to take appropriate disciplinary action for any possession or use of drugs or alcohol by employees which directly or indirectly affects performance of employment responsibilities.

When the illegal possession, use, or distribution of drugs or alcohol is involved, the administrative action will include referring any evidence of such criminal act by an employee to the attention of the proper law enforcement authorities. The University reserves the right to initiate concurrent disciplinary action and impose sanctions for violations of the Standards of Conduct of the Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act Policy.

Disciplinary sanctions for violations of the Standards of Conduct of the Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act Policy shall be consistently enforced in order to promote fair and equitable treatment of any individual determined to have violated those Standards. The following guidelines for particular violations of those Standards shall be used as a means of assuring the imposition of similar sanctions for similar offenses, but shall not be applied in a way that discourages an individual from seeking assistance for the abuse of alcohol and/or use and abuse of illicit drugs.

- 1. Any felony conviction for manufacturing (which includes growing), selling, or distributing drugs or alcohol on University owned or controlled property or as a part of any University activity shall result in termination of employment.
2. A felony conviction for possession or use of drugs or alcohol on University owned or controlled property or as a part of any University activity shall result in a range of penalties with a minimum of a six-month suspension with loss of pay to termination of employment, depending on the severity of the offense. Suspension must be accompanied by referral for assessment and/or treatment.
3. Illegal distribution or manufacture of drugs or alcohol on University owned or controlled property or as a part of any University activity, under any circumstances other than felony conviction, shall result in a minimum of a three-month suspension with loss of pay. A second incidence of such illegal distribution or manufacture of drugs or alcohol shall result in termination of employment.
4. The illegal possession or use of drugs on University owned or controlled property or as part of any University activity, other than a felony offense, shall result in a range of penalties with a minimum of written reprimand or warning to a maximum of a thirty-day suspension and a loss of pay depending on the severity of the offense. Whenever a suspension is imposed, referral for assessment and/or treatment is mandatory. A second incidence of such possession or use shall result in a six-month suspension and loss of pay with mandatory referral for treatment. A third incidence of such possession or use shall result in termination of employment. If a felony conviction for possession or use of drugs on University owned or controlled property or as a part of any University activity follows a lesser violation for which an action (referral, suspension, or warning) was taken, then it shall result in termination of employment.
5. Any possession or use of alcohol in violation of the Regulations Governing Alcoholic Beverages at SIUC shall result in a first sanction of either a written reprimand, warning, and/or suspension for up to ten days with loss of pay, depending on the severity of the offense, and may result in a referral for assessment. Subsequent violations shall result in more severe sanctions, and may result in referral for assessment and/or treatment.
6. When the use of alcohol or illicit drugs off the job affects job performance, the initial focus for control is the rehabilitation of the offender. If satisfactory performance, as a result of drug or alcohol abuse, is observed during this rehabilitation period, suspension with loss of pay or termination are alternatives. The conditions which warrant this type of administrative action should be determined on the basis of the circumstances specific to the case.

Students

The sanctions that may be imposed on students for drug and alcohol abuse violations are subject to the provisions of the Student Conduct Code and guidelines established by the Vice President for Student Affairs. These sanctions vary in severity, depending on the seriousness of the offense. Section 5 of the Code states:

5. Sanctions

The following are sanctions which may be imposed for a violation of this code. Also, a condition may accompany a sanction. Conditions include but are not limited to restitution of damages, work projects, required counseling or therapy, required academic performance, etc. A condition may include loss of certain University privileges. If a condition accompanies a sanction, the condition must be related to the violation.

5.3 Disciplinary Reprimand

In cases of minor violations and when the violation is acknowledged by the student, a written reprimand may be issued by the Coordinator of Student Judicial Affairs or that officer's designee on recommendation of a University Official.

5.4 Disciplinary Censure

Disciplinary Censure is a written warning to the student that the cited behavior is not acceptable in the University community and that further misconduct may result in more severe disciplinary action. The student may appeal the severity of the action.

5.5 Disciplinary Probation

Disciplinary Probation removes a student from good disciplinary standing. The probation shall last for a stated period of time and until specific conditions, if imposed, have been met. Any misconduct during the probationary period will bring further disciplinary action and may result in suspension. Probationary status prevents the student from representing the University in some extracurricular activities and may result in the loss of some types of financial assistance.

5.6 Disciplinary Suspension

Disciplinary Suspension is an involuntary separation of the student from the University for a stated period of time and until a stated condition, if imposed, is met, after which readmission will be permitted. Disciplinary Suspension is entered on the student's transcript for the duration of the suspension.

5.7 Indefinite Suspension

Indefinite Suspension is an involuntary separation of the student from the University for an unspecified period of time and until a stated condition, if imposed, is met. Consideration for readmission requires a written petition to the appropriate administrative official before readmission will be considered. The Indefinite Suspension is entered on the student's transcript for the duration of the suspension.

5.8 Interim Separation

If the President or that officer's designee has reasonable cause to believe that a serious and direct threat to the safety and well-being of the members and/or property of the University community will be present if an individual is permitted to remain an active member of the community, an Interim Separation may be imposed. A preliminary hearing or the opportunity of a preliminary hearing shall be afforded. If it is impossible or unreasonably difficult to conduct a preliminary hearing prior to the Interim Separation, the individual shall be afforded the opportunity for such a preliminary hearing at the earliest practical time. The purpose of the preliminary hearing is to determine if there is justification to invoke an Interim Separation. During the preliminary hearing, the student will be provided a statement of the reasons for Interim Separation and will be afforded an opportunity to rebut. Interim Separation is temporary and shall be enforced only until the completion of a full disciplinary hearing. A full disciplinary hearing shall be provided within a reasonable period of time.

Students at Southern Illinois University School of Medicine also are responsible for conforming to the standards of Academic Conduct established by the School of Medicine under its Student Progress System.

Students should be aware that their actions are also subject to all local, state, and federal laws relating to drugs and alcohol abuse. The University will bring unlawful acts to the attention of proper law enforcement authorities.

Legal Sanctions under Applicable State, Federal, and Local Laws for Unlawful Possession, Use, or Distribution of Illicit Drugs and Alcohol

Below is a compilation of various state, federal, City of Carbondale, and City of Springfield laws that criminally penalize the possession, use, or distribution of illicit drugs and alcohol. Community Reinvestment Act on the cutting board despite benefits to poor

By Susan Rees
Special to Newsday

If the Republicans believe that people ought to be able to make it on their own, why are they proposing to destroy a program that, at practically no cost to the government, gives everyone a fair chance to participate in the capitalist system?

The Community Reinvestment Act was adopted in 1977 to underscore what U.S. banking laws have traditionally held, that financial institutions granted unique privileges by the government have an obligation to serve their communities, including low- and moderate-income areas.

After all, these chartered institutions are entrusted with people's money.

The deposits they take (and make money on) are publicly insured for up to $100,000.

And fairly recently, hundreds of billions in public funds went to bail out the savings and loan industry from its investments in highly risky ventures, many of them far from their home communities.

Bank credit is an important key to success in our economy. Entrepreneurs don't normally build corporations with their own cash; they borrow from banks and investors.

Equally rare is the family that can purchase a home out of pocket.

As a result of the CRA's gentle persuasion, banks and thrifts have learned that people living in inner-city neighborhoods and poor rural areas can be good credit risks.

The CRA has enabled lower income people to buy homes and start businesses, the usual paths to asset accumulation, higher education and higher living standards for families.

Despite the CRA's success, Republicans in the House and Senate have introduced legislation that would effectively remove the CRA's fair lending incentives for all but a fraction of the nation's financial institutions.

The CRA encourages banks to accept and approve loan applications from credit-worthy people even if they live in less-than-prosperous neighborhoods.

It provides an incentive for banks to maintain branches in these areas and to market to people who have little experience with finance.

The CRA doesn't require banks to make certain types of loans or to apportion credit to particular groups.

It's more a carrot than a stick.

It merely puts financial institutions on notice that their community reinvestment efforts will be considered when they seek federal approval of mergers, acquisitions and other profitable business expansions.

In the 18 years the CRA has existed, financial institutions have channeled more than $60 billion into low- and moderate-income areas.

And the annual pace is picking up. Federal Reserve Governor Lawrence Lindsey has said, "CRA successfully delivers $4 billion to $6 billion a year to low-income areas without employing a large bureaucracy."

Judge's death tied to bankruptcy scandal

Los Angeles Times

MEXICO CITY—Abraham Polo Uscanga, an appeals court judge who had developed a reputation for independence, was murdered early Tuesday, police said.

Missing since Monday, when he failed to appear for lunch, he was found shot in the back of the neck in his son's office on a major avenue in the capital, according to City Attorney Jose Antonio Gonzalez Fernandez.

Forensic tests showed that Polo Uscanga, 60, was killed by the .38-caliber revolver found beside his body and that he had not fired the gun himself, Gonzalez Fernandez said.

The slaying of Polo Uscanga was the third violent death associated with the controversial April bankruptcy of the "Route 100" metropolitan bus service.

The judge had told a radio interviewer earlier this month that he had resisted pressure to rule in favor of prosecutors in high-profile cases, including Route 100.

His accusations were devastating because an independent judiciary is integral to President Ernesto Zedillo's promise to establish law and order in this nation of 85 million people.

In the interview two weeks ago, Polo Uscanga said, "The problem is the interference of the executive power in (the decisions of) the judiciary."

He and two other judges on the appeals panel had refused to hold two people for trial, even though Agüero allegedly told him that then-Finance Minister Pedro Aspe wanted them jailed.

SIUC women's track and field coach Don DeNoon feels the money is not really a discrepancy anymore.

"It has been hard to do as much with the women's program as compared to the men's, to keep the level of competition high, the purchase of shoes, enough money to adequately recruit," DeNoon said.

"But I can't tell you how much progress I've seen in our department over the years in gender equity. I think we're much more successful because of it."

Knight's tournament tantrum is punished

Los Angeles Times

Bob Knight is the perfect choice if you want to win a basketball game, graduate your players, recruit honestly, build a library, meet Pete Newell, learn motion offense, appreciate man-to-man defense, cast a fly, wear bad red sweaters, fling chairs, pop a cop, stun Connie Chung, throw a sideline fit, increase your four-letter vocabulary or berate a volunteer news conference moderator.

As a would-be NCAA legislator.

I'm not so sure.

Knight is steamed because the NCAA Tournament committee had the nerve to do what his own school should have done, which was reprimand him for his boorish behavior after a first-round loss at the West Regional in March.

And just to make sure Knight and Indiana noticed.

The tournament committee also fined the school $30,000, which will be deducted from the Hoosiers' share of NCAA basketball revenue.

expansion coin flip, the Grizz announced they would rather select sixth in the college draft than first in the expansion draft.

7. Toronto Raptors: What do you give a team that has nothing? If G.M. Isiah Thomas is as eager to speed up the expansion process as we think, he might trade down and get two for the price of one.

8. Detroit Pistons: Doug Collins believes his Pistons will have to get bigger to get better. Bigger doesn't mean wider, which is why Collins left hefty Oliver Miller unprotected in the expansion draft, he might stage a Duke reunion and add center Cherokee Parks to a front line featuring Grant Hill.

9. New Jersey Nets: They need production at the scoring positions—small forward and big guard. If O'Bannon and Respert are gone, the Nets probably will go for Arkansas forward Cortliss Williamson.

10. Miami Heat: If the Heat have their way, they will give Kevin Willis a one-way ticket out of Miami and replace him with Arizona State forward Mario Bennett. Or they might explore even bigger country with Oklahoma State's Bryant Reeves.

11. Milwaukee Bucks: Mike Dunleavy believes this could be his team's final early draft appearance for a while. He would like to complete his front line by shifting Vin Baker to power forward and taking a center, maybe Reeves or Parks.

12. Dallas Mavericks: This team doesn't want to get younger. Dick Motta would rather weave veteran help along the front line, but it's doubtful the 12th pick will entice another team to Fed-Ex a dependable power forward to Dallas.

13. Sacramento Kings: Sacramento's decision at No. 13 hinges on its assessment of point guard Bobby Hurley, who showed minimal development a year after his near-fatal car crash.

14. Boston Celtics: The Celtics need front-court depth and insurance for 35-year-old Dominique Wilkins, who was dumped into the expansion pool. They could take a chance on Ohio's Gary Trent, but No. 14 seems high for an under-sized (6-7) power player.

15. Denver Nuggets: With forward LaPhonso Ellis' future in doubt after a second knee operation, the Nuggets need a front-liner who can rebound.

16. Atlanta Hawks: They shot a dismal 44 percent and need scoring from the forward positions. With Stacey Augmon testing the free-agent market, the Hawks will take looks at 6-7 swingman Sherrill Ford (Illinois-Chicago) and guard Randolph Childress (Wake Forest).

17. Cleveland Cavaliers: Cleveland made a bigger personnel decision last week when it sent a second-round pick to Miami for Harold Miner.

18. and 19. Portland Trail Blazers: Ideally, the Blazers would package one of the picks with unhappy guard Rod Strickland to move high into the lottery. But the Bullets, who were interested, have cooled because of Strickland's request for a new contract.

20. Chicago Bulls: They drafted for need and took power forwards with their last two first-rounders, but they're still not sure what they get in Corie Blount and Dickey Simpkins.

21. Phoenix Suns: They were fortunate last year when guard Wesley Person drifted to them at No. 23. Person was considered a project until the Suns discovered he was the best shooter on their roster.

22. Charlotte Hornets: Chances are good that Muggsy Bogues will have a challenger for his starting position when camp begins, although that player might not come from the draft. Still, Virginia point guard Cory Alexander would be a suag fit at 22.

23. Indiana Pacers: Dale Davis is the only first-rounder remaining.

24. Dallas Mavericks: If Rashard Griffith is still around when the Mavericks make their second first-round pick, they will have nothing to lose by taking him.

25. Orlando Magic: Memphis forward David Vaughn comes highly recommended by former college teammate Penny Hardaway.

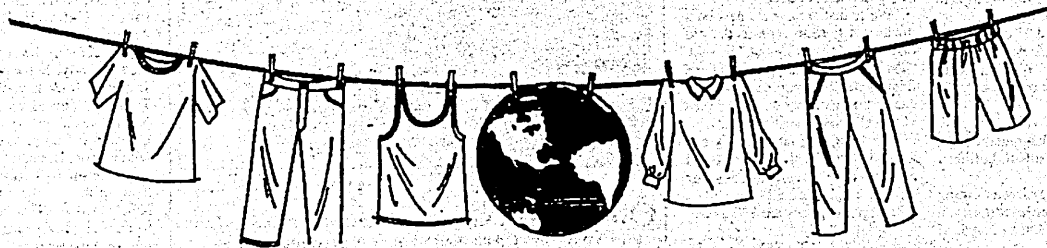

26. Seattle SuperSonics: Seattle could discover a sleeper in its backyard in local product Donny Marshall, a Connecticut forward who was impressive in the pre-draft camps.

27. Suns: See No. 21.

28. Utah Jazz: Once again, they're in the hunt for a center. At No. 28, only projects like Duke's Erik Meek or UCLA's George Zidek are still around.

29. San Antonio Spurs: Point-guard depth might be a concern if aging veteran Doc Rivers retires or is not re-signed.

Gender equity to help, West said

By Cynthia Sheets
DE Sports Editor

This is the second story in a continuing series examining the Title IX issue at SIUC.

With the pending legislation of Senate Bill 269, whose purpose is to balance the gender inequalities in intercollegiate sports, SIUC is in better shape than a lot of other in-state universities, according to associate Athletic Director Charlotte West.

"There are a couple of areas that are in blatant need," said West. "But overall, the University is in very, very good shape."

"We are in A+ shape with our scholarships, which are based on proportions of the participants."

Some differences between the men's and women's athletic department are:

- the distribution of courtesy cars
- there are nine cars in the men's athletic department compared to one car for the women's athletic department.

- the IAW softball field does not have bathrooms or a clubhouse like its counterpart, Abe Martin.

- the women's track and field budget is $2,500 behind its men's track and field counterpart.

The SIUC Gender Equity Committee submitted recommendations two years ago concerning both the car and bathroom/clubhouse issues.

West said the committee has started another study to do a reassessment now that a couple of years have passed.

"It's a poor situation concerning the courtesy car," she said. "I am the only senior woman administrator in all 11 Missouri Valley Conference schools that do not have a courtesy car, and I've been here years."

According to West, some of the local and area car dealers provide vehicles predominantly for the male coaches.

"People like to affiliate with men's sports," she said. "They are just learning how to affiliate with women's."

Architectural drawings are already underway for the new clubhouse and rest rooms for the softball field, West said.

One other inconsistency in budgetary expenses comes in the women's track and field area.

There is a $2,500 discrepancy between the men's and women's track and field budgets, which encompasses such aspects as travel, meals, lodging and recruitment.

According to West, the University first started re-allocating funds to the women's track and field department in '80s, when the sport was $15,000 behind the men's sports.

"We increase the budget for them

Scholarship Dollars in the Sports Department at SIUC

There are two categories for scholarships in the athletic department: tuition waivers and need dollar amounts. The total need dollar amount for men's athletics is $401,750, while the women's is $268,250.

Grassy Lake camps offers extra variety

By Jason E. Coyne
Daily Egyptian Reporter

Nearly eight miles from the SIUC campus in the heart of the Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge is a 1200-acre lake with 36 miles of shoreline offering camping, boating, fishing and swimming.

Little Grassy Lake features a campground and boat dock operated by concessionaire John Rosenberg and manager John Williams.

Williams said there are 105 campsites on the grounds with 14 of the sites being fully outfitted with electricity, sewer and water.

"We've got about 35 tenting sites and 56 sites available with just electricity and water," Williams said. "We also welcome pop-ups, motor homes and trailers."

The lake has a variety of fish including bluegill, largemouth bass, crappie, sunfish, catfish, bullhead and carp.

Dan Cook, of Anna, was fishing for catfish Wednesday afternoon with nightcrawlers and a heavy lead sinker.

"I caught a two-pounder [catfish] earlier this morning but then all I was getting were turtles after that," Cook said. "I probably should be fishing at night or over by the dam. I know there are some big cats over there."

Cook said he has been to the lake before to fish and was looking for some time away.

"My girlfriend and her friend planned this out and it's alright by me," Cook said. "It's nice to just get out of the house for a while."

Williams said the boat dock is undergoing some renovations to improve boater access.

"We're installing some new boat docks out here to replace the old ones that were rotting out," he said. "These new ones are going to have floating devices underneath so they can be out in deeper water and provide additional access for boats."

The former boat docks were located along the shoreline and did not provide ample access for boaters' needs, he said.

Boat rental prices are $40 a day

Daly, Nelson lead Knicks' coaches race

Newsday

NEW YORK—Barring the unexpected, the next New York Knicks coach will be Chuck Daly or Don Nelson.

The club has concentrated its initial efforts toward those two veteran coaches. Both have been contacted by Knicks general manager Ernie Grunfeld, who is heading the search for Pat Riley's replacement. They are attractive to the Knicks for all the obvious reasons. Both are experienced, both have no contractual ties to teams and both have had success in the National Basketball Association.

The Knicks haven't interviewed Daly, but word is they spoke at length with Nelson Tuesday. The discussion with Nelson was necessary because he is headed to Europe to spend time with his son, Donn, who is assisting a team in Lithuania. He delayed the overseas trip at the Knicks' request. Grunfeld refuses to publicly disclose specifics of the coaching search.

Devils' Lemaire shows critics he is in charge

The Sporting News

It happened 30 years ago, a day Jacques Lemaire and Scotty Bowman will never forget.

A star center in junior hockey, Lemaire had aspirations to play for the Montreal Canadiens. But his coach took him aside one day in 1965 and told him he had no chance to make it to the National Hockey League. His checking wasn't good enough.

Whoa! Wait just a minute. Didn't Lemaire win eight Stanley Cup titles playing for the Canadiens? And didn't he make the Hall of Fame?

The answer is yes. And what makes this story even more interesting is that Lemaire helped

NBA clubs look to select future stars in draft

The Sporting News

There are no franchise players like Shaquille O'Neal available in next Wednesday's draft, but barring interference from a new labor contract, teams still will pay franchise money to the premium selections.

That's about the only certainty of a draft that has parity in the top positions. There doesn't appear to be much of a gap between the first two picks and the next two. North Carolina swingman Jerry Stackhouse may have the biggest box-office appeal and Tar Heels teammate Rasheed Wallace the greatest potential impact, but neither figures to go first overall.

Here's how the 29 teams (including the two expansion entries) might approach the annual rebuilding process:

1. Golden State Warriors: Joe Smith, Maryland's 6-foot-10 center, worked out for the Washington Bullets recently and reportedly was unimpressive. But he does fit the Warriors' need almost as well as Chris Webber two years ago. Unless the Warriors believe that Stackhouse's star potential is too great to pass up, Smith will be westward bound.

2. Los Angeles Clippers: Needs? Problem areas? Check 'em all. Remember, the Clippers won 17 games and started 14 different players last season. The Clippers' battle cry was, "Help!" One high first-round pick will not renovate the franchise, but this is the Clippers' earliest position since their unwise decision to choose Danny Ferry second in 1989. The good news is that Stackhouse has better potential than Ferry. The bad news is that he has threatened to return to North Carolina if chosen by the Clippers. Didn't Ferry bolt to Italy rather than play for Donald T. Sterling? Uh-oh. Bad omen, Clips.

3. Philadelphia 76ers: There are strange goings-on in Philly these days. John Lucas, who firmly believes in his rehabilitation powers, is considering a trade for Isaiah Rider, the Minnesota Timberwolves' problem child. They've discussed swapping forward Sharonne Wright, their first-round 1994 pick. But whether they keep Wright or trade for Rider, the Sixers' draft plans probably will remain unaffected. They like Stackhouse, followed by Alabama forward Antonio McDyess.

4. Washington Bullets: Barring the unforeseen—like Stackhouse falling to No. 4—the Bullets are the "Team Most Likely To Deal." They need a point guard more than they need Wallace. But if all else fails, they will take Wallace and hope he matures quickly. Some scouts are afraid of this guy.

5. Minnesota Timberwolves: New General Manager Kevin McHale is holding a red-tag sale. You want Rider? How about Christian Laettner? No reasonable offers will be refused. Not only does McHale want to upgrade the Wolves after years of bad trades and draft decisions, he wants to do a make-over in chemistry. They can't afford to be choosy in the draft. They'll take the best available at No. 5, and it would help if he could score. Maybe someone like UCLA's Ed O'Bannon.

6. Vancouver Grizzlies: After winning the
