High winds impede efforts to douse fires

By Pete Retsbach
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

High winds and thick brush hampered Carbondale Fire Department efforts to extinguish four brush fires around the city Tuesday.

One fire reported to the fire department at about 10:30 a.m. endangered the Cedar Lane Trailer Court south of Carbondale U.S. 51.

Another fire was reported at about noon. The fire, located in a deserted, overgrown area on East Grand Avenue across from Brookside Manor apartments, took about two hours to extinguish.

Two other fires were reported to the fire department in the afternoon. Heavy smoke was seen from a fire on Reed Station Road east of Carbondale. Later, another fire was reported on Giant City Blacktop.

No injuries have been reported in any of the fires.

Residents of Cedar Lane Trailer Court on U.S. 51 helped firemen contain the fire. Men and women used shovels, garden hoses and wet rags while firemen left to refill the 500-gallon water tank contained within the fire truck. No water hydrants were available.

At one point, the fire endangered some trailers on the south side of the court. Residents were warned of the possibility of propane tanks exploding because of the fire, but no explosions occurred.

The fire on East Grand Avenue burned for about two hours before it was contained by firemen. About 14 firemen and one truck were used to contain that blaze, which burned about 110 acres of brush. Fire Chief Charles McCaughan said efforts were hampered by both the southerly winds and thick underbrush. "It's hard to control in this kind of wind," he said. "It burns fast—in front, behind and all around."

McCaughan said that although the cause of the fire on East Grand Avenue had not been determined, he thought it was started by someone burning trash. "The worst thing you can do at this time of year is burn trash," McCaughan said. It takes just one spark to start a brush fire, especially when the brush is dry, he said. Meanwhile, the U.S. Forest Service has canceled all outside burning permits. Forest service officials said the risk of fire will be high for the rest of the week.

F-Senate poll: Colleges differ in bargaining support

By Steve Lambert
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Nearly 75 per cent of all respondents from the College of Communications and Fine Arts support collective bargaining, while only 11 per cent from the College of Business support unionization, according to the final analysis of a Faculty Senate referendum.

In its Tuesday meeting, the senate also announced that a list of eligible candidates for the upcoming senate election could not be released yet, because one or two of those candidates have not yet been reached and notified of their eligibility.

Results of the bargaining poll, taken three weeks ago, showed that about 64 per cent of some 1,400 faculty members surveyed responded. Of those, more than half supported bargaining—34 per cent opposed it and 15 per cent were uncertain.

In announcing the results of the analysis, Faculty Senate Vice President David Bateman said it would be useless to "try and decide what the results mean." He said the results should "speak for themselves."

The senate voted overwhelmingly to give the results to University President Warren Brandt, who, in turn, will report campus sentiment about bargaining to the Board of Trustees in April.

The analysis shows that in the Colleges of Liberal Arts, Education, Communications and Fine Arts, Science, Human Resources and the School of Technical Careers (STC), respondents who support bargaining outnumbered opponents by more than 10 per cent.

In the School of Medicine and the Colleges of Business and Engineering, respondents who opposed bargaining outnumbered supporters by more than 10 per cent.

In Library Affairs, the College of Human Resources and the School of Law, the difference was less than 10 per cent.

The highest response rates came from the Colleges of Agriculture, Engineering and Business, where 80 per cent or more of all faculty members in each college responded.

That compares to the School of Medicine where only 36 per cent of all ballots sent out were returned.

The poll also showed that about 54 per cent of all assistant and associate professors who responded support bargaining, while about 31 per cent of respondents in those ranks opposed unionization. About 15 per cent were uncertain.

Of full professors who responded, 44 per cent supported bargaining, 46 per cent opposed it and 10 per cent were unsure.

In other action, the senate passed a resolution opposing an administration proposal to provide six-month sabbatical leaves at full pay to faculty on 12 month contracts while providing only four and one-half month sabbatical leaves at full pay for faculty members on nine month contracts.

Student Senate prepares for April elections

Election commissioner to be named

By Elisabeth Boscia
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Student Government hopes to have an election commissioner named by Wednesday evening's Student Senate meeting, Doug Harre, a student senator from Thompson Point, said Tuesday.

Harre said one person has been recommended from a number of applicants to fill that position. Harre declined to mention his name, because the commissioner has not been officially designated by the executive board.

No specific election date has been set, Harre said. The new commissioner will have to select a tentative date. The election will be held sometime in April.

The commissioner's responsibilities also will include setting election guidelines, circulating and processing petitions for various offices and tallying the final votes.

The positions of Student Government president, vice president and student trustee and an undetermined number of Student Senate seats will be up for election in April.

Harre said the number of Student Senate positions fluctuates, because one senator for every 700 students is necessary.

Senators are elected according to population from University Park, Brush Towers, Thompson Point, the East Side District (east of the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad tracks) and the West Side District (west of the tracks).

The newly appointed commissioner will announce the number of senatorial seats available prior to April's elections, Harre said.

Harre said that although a candidate can run for the Senate in a district other than the one he lives in, he must be living in that district by the time he officially takes office.

Prospective candidates must submit a petition for office, which will be issued to the candidate three weeks before the election and must be submitted two weeks before election day.

Severe weather drill scheduled for Wednesday

A statewide severe weather communications drill is scheduled for 10:15 a.m. Wednesday, according to Oliver Halderson, SIU Emergency Services and Disaster Agency (ESADA) Safety Officer.

A test message, which will be aired on most radio stations and television channels, will start the drill. This will be followed by the sounding of the ESADA sirens. ESADA was previously known as Civil Defense.

The drill will test the communication between the various agencies which would be involved in a real severe weather alert.

F-Senate says retirement funding ignored

By Mark Edgar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Criticizing Gov. James Thompson's budget for the State Universities Retirement System (SURS), the Faculty Senate Tuesday passed unanimously a resolution charging that Thompson "wholly ignores" the state's obligation to fully fund the SURS.

Under Thompson's proposed fiscal year 1978 budget, the retirement system would receive a $7.3 million increase, providing only enough money to meet immediate pension costs.

The retirement system currently is $65.6 million behind in funding its future obligations because the state has not put away enough money each year to cover future pension costs. The Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) wanted a $20.2 million increase to reduce the deficit.

The Faculty Senate had sent Thompson a resolution, passed Dec. 14, demanding the retirement system be funded at the "actuarially safe level of 66 per cent."

An aide to Thompson sent the Faculty Senate a letter Feb. 23, saying that funds for longrange programs such as the retirement system "always lose out to those which are to be expended."

James D. Nowlan, special assistant to Thompson for education, said if the Faculty Senate "believes that the retirement investment has a greater priority than other existing programs," it should ask the SIU Board of Trustees to designate part of next year's budget for the retirement system.

In its resolution, the Faculty Senate said it would notify Thompson that his response to the original resolution was "unacceptable."

In Thompson's budget message, he said "alternative methods for increased funding of the state's share of the retirement pension costs will be analyzed," although he spelled out no specifics.

James Furman, IBHE executive director, called Thompson's budget for the retirement system "particularly troublesome" because it does not lessen the system's unfunded liabilities.

During the current fiscal year, pension costs being covered by the state for university employees total $33.4 million. If the system was fully funded, the cost would be more than $100 million.

Studies presented to the IBHE at its December meeting showed that with so many more state employees by the year 2000, total pension costs will be more than $400 million.

While employees give eight per cent of their annual salaries to the pension fund, the state is supposed to contribute about 11 per cent in matching funds to be invested to meet future costs.

Furman said, "It has not been possible, in this year's allocation, to generate additional resources to meet the retirement obligations of higher education while providing sufficient funds to maintain the quality of educational programs."

In a letter to faculty members, Arthur Aikman, SIU-C's representative to the SURS, said the state may run out of pension money unless it begins building its reserves.

"This may not have dire consequences for those of us who are already retired but should be of great concern to those of us who look forward to reaping the benefits of the retirement system," Aikman said.

He added that the retirement system budget is usually reduced because "it is future oriented."

"It is easy to chop funds because no one is immediately hurt, but it may mean a lot of trouble for the state in the future," Aikman said.

Tuition increase recommendations may be considered at board meeting

By Ann Schotman and Mark Edgar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writers

Tuition increases for both undergraduates and graduate students may be recommended to the SIU Board of Trustees at its meeting at 10 a.m. Thursday in the Student Center.

President Warren Brandt said Tuesday he has not made final his proposal, but he is scheduled to meet with his staff and has already received a recommendation from his budget advisory committee.

The committee has recommended a tuition increase of about $90 a year for all in-state SIU students.

Students currently pay $428 in tuition, which has gone up since 1972.

James Brown, general secretary for the board, said Monday that he anticipated that tuition would be discussed.

Brown also said that the University System Council — composed of Brown, Brandt and SIU-Edwardsville President Kenneth Shaw — may "get together beforehand and discuss a unified tuition recommendation."

Three university systems already have approved increases in tuition similar to the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) recommendations. The IBHE has called for increases of $90 a year for undergraduates and $120 for graduate students.

Student government leaders will present arguments opposing the proposed tuition hikes, but Tom Jones, Student Government president, said Tuesday "it might not do any good."

"We were put in a bad situation when the other systems passed a tuition increase," Jones said.

Student Trustee Rob Seely agreed that a tuition increase is "inevitable," saying, "SIU has an excuse (to make the increase) since everyone else has approved one."

Seely said he will request that the board endorse full funding for the Illinois State Scholarship Commission and begin efforts to ensure the University receives all of the money generated by raising tuition.

Although the board must approve any tuition increase, the legislature and the governor authorize the expenditure of money collected through the higher tuition.

The board is also scheduled to consider the appeal of Thomas Hunter, a building service worker who claims that several Civil Service System statutes and rules were violated in a promotion process.

Hunter has charged that a female with less seniority and experience was given a job for which he was eligible. SIU replied that since all candidates for the job were of the same "relative excellence," the decision was left to the discretion of the supervisor.

Tuesday Hunter refused comment on the appeal until after the board meeting.

In other action, the board is scheduled to consider a merger of units within the College of Human Resources and a merger of men's and women's physical education at SIU-C. A proposed amendment to the policy on academic and administrative salaries is also scheduled to go before the board.

Swinburne hopes student work head chosen soon

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said Tuesday he hopes a new director for the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance will be chosen in six to eight weeks.

"We have interviewed two very excellent candidates, but we have not made a decision on whether to invite additional candidates," Swinburne said.

The two candidates who have been interviewed are from outside the University, but some local persons are on the list of the top ten candidates, Swinburne said. If additional candidates are interviewed, they will be drawn from that list.

When the new director is appointed, an announcement will be made on whether the administration has decided to coordinate the Student Work Office with the Student Life Office, Swinburne said.

30-day appeal given to faculty affected by recommendations

All faculty members affected by the promotion and tenure recommendations have 30 days to file an appeal, Frank Horton, vice president for academic affairs and research, said Tuesday. Thirteen appealed last year.

One hundred fifteen faculty members were under consideration for promotion. Forty-three of those received recommendations. Of the 57 who were under consideration for tenure, 51 received recommendations. Faculty members must apply for both promotion and tenure. They are the only ones allowed to withdraw their names from consideration.

Although Horton turned the recommendations in to the academic deans and President Warren Brandt Friday, he did not release the figures until Monday.

Horton said he did not release the figures until everyone affected by the recommendations knew their personal status. Horton said a person who has applied for promotion or tenure might be concerned if he saw the statistics before he knew if he had been recommended.

Army admits germ warfare attacks on 19 U.S. targets

By Lawrence L. Knutson
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army secretly conducted simulated germ warfare attacks using live bacteria against 19 American civilian targets including the Pennsylvania Turnpike, the city of San Francisco and National Airport in Washington, investigating senators were told today.

The tests, including some using a bacterial agent later suspected of causing real and serious infections, were conducted over a 20-year period ending in 1969, the Army said.

Over-all, the Army staged 230 open air tests in the germ warfare program during the period. In 79 of the cases, disease-causing agents were used. The other 160 tests involved simulants such as sulfur dioxide, fluorescent particles and soap bubbles.

Some of the simulants also were biological, which the Army claimed were considered safe by scientists. However, some critics have questioned whether some of these theoretically non-toxic bacteria may have caused pneumonia or other respiratory diseases.

Twenty-seven simulated covert attacks on civilian targets were conducted with inert agents, a panel of Army witnesses told the Senate's subcommittee on health and scientific research.

The Army witnesses said all bacterial agents used in the tests to gauge the vulnerability of the civilian population were thought safe at the time they were used.

Carter may talk to gunman holding hostage

WARRENSVILLE HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP) — President Carter agreed Tuesday night to speak with a black gunman threatening a "curse from hell" against whites, but only if he releases the policeman he has held hostage for two days.

Police Chief Craig Merchant added, however, that Cory Moore, 25, of Warrensville Heights, also demanded that Carter appear on a local television station to apologize for "all the misdeeds done to blacks from the year 1619 to 1977."

The hostage, Capt. Leo Keglovic, a diabetic who had been receiving periodic insulin supplies since he was taken captive Monday afternoon, was "still in good health" and hadn't been abused, Merchant said.

Califano orders HEW reorganization

WASHINGTON (AP) — HEW Secretary Joseph Califano ordered a "fundamental restructuring" of his department today designed to streamline operations, reduce errors, fraud and abuse in payments to citizens and save taxpayers $1 billion in the next two years. Califano told a news conference that the reorganization of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare puts all cash welfare and retirement programs under the Social Security Administration and establishes a new agency to run both Medicare and Medicaid.

Califano said President Carter had approved the plan. The changes announced today effect a variety of programs costing $52 billion and shifting thousands of HEW employees.

Women gymnasts shoot for the top again

Cindy Moran performs her routine on the uneven bars. Two badly sprained ankles restricted her to this one event, because it required her to land only once.

SIU's women's gymnastics teams have won 10 national championship team titles in the last 13 years. This year's version of the Salukis are trying to uphold the tradition of "Southern Style" women's gymnastics.

The Saluki women have had problems this year, first with the loss of All-America star Denise Didier who quit the team, and then with sprained ankles and inconsistent freshmen.

But those same inconsistent freshmen have suddenly started to come on strong, and in the past two weeks, the team has won the state and regional championships.

"We're not out of it," SIU Coach Herb Vogel said after last weekend's regional victory. "We're back in contention."

Linda Nelson (above) scored 9.5 on the balance beam, then received congratulations from Cindy Moran and a hug from Laura Hemberger (right).

Senior Dianne Grayson performed in her last home meet at the regional in the Arena. Grayson is going for her fourth straight year as an All-America gymnast.

Editorial on 'Lifeline' was close to dead wrong

In regard to your editorial "Lifeline Bill Buys Babblers," I was disappointed to see that the writer was so vulnerable to the utility company's scare tactics.

The Lifeline bill is a proposal to restructure the utility rate system in Illinois. Some six states currently use some version of Lifeline. Business has not fled those states nor has the economy collapsed where Lifeline was adopted. Under the present rate structure, there is no built-in incentive to conserve energy—the more you use the cheaper it becomes. It has become apparent that the seemingly endless resources that prompted the present rate system in the 1950's and 1960's is no longer the case. The people have a right to try to change the rate system when circumstances have made the old rate structure obsolete.

It was particularly distressing to see the Daily Egyptian give credence to the utilities' arguments. For instance, the assertion that "the poor and those on fixed incomes will be hurt by the bill" is total nonsense. Many groups that represent the economically disadvantaged and senior citizens in this state have endorsed the Lifeline bill. Are they saying that these groups are too stupid to know what is in their own interest? The statement that "Lifeline is a social welfare program" is more poppycock. That in essence is saying that people don't have a right to exercise some control over their economic interest. I would remind the Daily Egyptian that the Illinois Commerce Commission did not even open its doors to the public until forced to by public action groups. The utilities are used to having their way in this state, and are likely to see citizens demanding reform. Some might say that the present rate structuring system is itself a welfare system, one which subsidizes large consumers at the expense of small consumers.

In regard to the editorial's conclusion that "its time to stop babbling" I couldn't agree more.

Remove cans, return bottles

Thirty cents, dropped into the machine, button pushed, can drops, pop top is ripped off, drink guzzled, can tossed, curtain falls. The life of a one-way container is short, so short that Tom Cavanaugh, of the Division of Land and Noise Pollution Control of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency has decided to do something about it. Cavanaugh has introduced House Bill 1838.

House Bill 1838 would change Illinois by eliminating and modifying all unnecessary packaging. Its main aim is to wipe out "use-it-once-throw-it-away" containers, something Illinois' highways, streets, lakes and recreation areas could greatly use.

By eliminating and modifying packaging with House Bill 1838, Cavanaugh believes Illinois could help save scarce materials (aluminum ore) by substituting abundant materials (glass).

Saving scarce material like aluminum ore has only a small impact, but consider this: refillable bottles used 10 times consumes less than one third the energy than "use-it-once-throw-it-away" containers.

If Illinoisians take the conservation step and help other states follow their example on a national basis, the change from one-way containers to a system of all refillables by 1990, could amount to an annual savings of about 200,000 barrels of oil a day.

This savings would help not only Illinois, but every state. Conserving energy and endorsing source reduction for reusable containers would also reduce the pressure to import oil.

Reduction of air, land and water pollution would result from House Bill 1838. Air and water pollution would be controlled by doing away with mining, processing and fabrication of throw away containers and landfill areas would be conserved, since solid wastes would be reduced.

House Bill 1838 is multi-faceted. Its aim to conserve energy by depending on us to take the responsibility, is long overdue. Legislation that raises our standard of living is rare.

Writer thinks ERA changes could be major

It is extremely important, especially in this day and age, to be informed about the ERA amendment which reads "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

In Ellen Switzer's book "The Law for a Woman," Yale University Law School's top expert on constitutional law, Professor Thomas Emerson, writes about the implications of ERA. Opponents and proponents alike claim this article as the best authority on the subject. Some of the major points are:

a. Women will be drafted for military service on the same basis as men (if the draft is reinstated).

b. Height and weight standards (in the military and in other occupations) will have to be revised.

c. If the armed forces draft women, all facilities, including athletic ones, will have to be made available to them.

d. Women will not necessarily be excluded from combat duty because of their sex. (However, in countries where women are already drafted, e.g. Israel, few actually go into combat, although some have been trained as fighter pilots.)

e. A court would do away with the rule that refusal to accompany or follow a husband to his chosen place of residence amounts to desertion or abandonment.

f. Under ERA courts are not likely to find any justification for the continuance of laws that exclude women from certain occupations. Laws that restrict or regulate working conditions for women probably would be invalidated.

g. Liability for prostitution would be held to the woman and her client alike.

Thank you More at a later date.

Environmental guerrillas wanted; SIU pollution control needs them

Recycling is alive!

It was good to see the letter on Friday, March 4 by Mr. Oehman about recycling of Daily Egyptians and other solid waste materials at SIU. This provides an excellent opportunity to outline SIU-C's efforts in the area of solid waste pollution.

SIU-C's Department of Pollution Control is presently working with the Student Environmental Center and a community recycling center on four major projects dealing with the problem of solid waste.

Cost analysis of the waste collection and disposal system is underway. This is being paralleled by a detailed analysis of the quantity and types of waste being generated. Additionally, volunteers from the Student Environmental Center are working with a program to recycle computer print outs, tab cards, and yes, the Daily Egyptian in cooperation with the local community recycling center.

Studies are also being conducted to determine methods for motivating large numbers of people to participate in a voluntary recycling program. A seminar and volunteer meeting is held every Tuesday evening at 6:30 p.m. on the third floor of the Student Center.

Projects being planned are: Earth Week Guerrilla Theater and a conference on solid waste problems and solutions.

The recycling and solid waste projects being carried out at SIU-C are providing valuable and realistic approaches to solve the solid waste problem. The projects are staffed entirely by students who presently number 26. Anyone who wants to become involved with these programs by making a three hour commitment per week is encouraged to do so.

Our programs are not haphazard or emotional and require systematic applications of scientific and creative methods to provide cost effective recycling at SIU-C.

Gays face probable discrimination, must challenge society's attitudes

To be openly gay in our society is to face probable job discrimination, persecution, harassment, exploitation, and rejection. Last Tuesday evening, the first openly gay legislator, Rep. Elaine Noble of Massachusetts, discussed the role of gays in establishing politics.

To label Rep. Noble as belligerent is to disregard the actualities of her daily life. Concerned with the rights of minorities and oppressed peoples, Noble is not a bitter individual, but a realist and a competent dissident in a socially restrictive culture.

In our homophobic-sexual society, a society which at worst persecutes and at best tolerates minorities, Noble's honesty and courage challenges prevailing attitudes, hopefully creating a positive growth in the acceptance of human diversity.

Congressional pay raises unearned, unethical

By Peter Princeas

Editor's note: Peter Princeas is a registered engineer in Carbondale. In 1976, he was the Republican party's candidate for the seat in the U.S. House of Representatives presently held by Paul Simon.

Why does Congress need a raise?

Perhaps Congress feels that they need a raise because of their high ethical standards. Congress has done a remarkable job of showing how ethical they were by refusing to vote on this increase in pay. The reason they did not was that they knew that the people do not want to see them get a 29 per cent raise at this time. Instead of voting on this raise, they let it sneak through. This is not the kind of ethics that deserves a raise.

Why does Congress need a raise?

Perhaps Congress feels that they have earned this raise because of their great work in economics. Excessive spending by Congress caused the inflation, which in turn caused the unemployment. Congress felt that the way to put people to work is with more spending, so they voted for a $70 billion deficit. It didn't work. If excessive spending caused unemployment, how can more spending solve it? Congress does not deserve a raise for their work in economics.

Why does Congress need a raise?

Perhaps Congress feels that they deserve a raise because of their fine work in the field of energy. Since 1966, Congress has done a wonderful job changing a country that has enormous energy potential to the point that we are having shortages of oil and natural gas and in about five years, shortages of electricity. Congress does not deserve an increase in pay weekend off, they started at their usual late hour, but left early, in the usual manner, to make up for it. Congress didn't put themselves out one iota to help the people of the Northeast, and for that reason, they do not deserve a raise in pay.

Why does Congress deserve a raise?

Needless to say, Congress does not deserve an increase in pay for doing a good job. The above are only a few of the many instances that show how Congress failed to act properly or quickly. Furthermore, Congress does not need this raise in pay for increased expenses because Congress increased their expense budget by approximately $100,000 per Congressman during the last session. Congress has the power to grant themselves a raise without even having to make their stand known by a voting record.

Why does Congress deserve a raise?

Perhaps Congress has gone to great efforts to get this raise in order to make up for lost income. Now that the money that they received from foreign countries has been stopped, is this why they need more income? Also, now that they can no longer put non-typing secretaries on the Federal payroll or expense account, is this why they may need more income?

Viewpoint

because they have done little in the past 10 years to help solve the problem.

Why does Congress need a raise?

Perhaps Congress deserves a raise because they have worked so hard on our behalf. During the recent cold weather, when many of our citizens in the Northeast were freezing because of the lack of natural gas, Congress responded to their misfortune by delaying emergency action for almost one week. They took their usual

Churches fight South African racism

By Garry Wills

In recent months, Catholic schools in South Africa have been integrated; and government officials have threatened to cancel their accreditation and subsidies. Apartheid, you see, is not really restricted to direct government action, as some of South Africa's kept Catholic journalists would like to suggest. Separation is forced on private groups and people, just as Jim Crow laws were imposed in our Southern states. Those who opposed "forced integration" did not reflect that forced separation was a greater state intrusion into freedom than integration would ever be.

The Catholic teachers in South Africa have refused to be intimidated. Their church now declares its intention to do things even less acceptable to the racist government: whites will worship with blacks, and even be served by black priests. I can remember when such moves would have been fought by my Catholic grandmother in Atlanta. We should, admittedly, recall how recent our own moves away from racism have been. But that reflection cuts two ways. The speed and thoroughness of our own civil rights revolution was part of a worldwide change in moral attitudes; and South Africa's holdout position is rapidly being eroded. As Ambassador Andrew Young realizes, we have only a short time left to put ourselves on the winning as well as the right side in this conflict.

There are certain shifts in moral mood that are as much a part of the landscape as the migration of ice floes or the shift of volcanic pressures. Slavery was unchallengeable for centuries and then became indefensible. Winston Churchill rallied England with imperial rhetoric in World War II; yet in a few years the very concept of empire was discredited. Racism, like slavery and colonialism, can no longer make a plausible case for itself. Now practical considerations, the very basis on which rear-guard defenses have been built, dictate a change.

The argument for racial separation was never high-minded, as if that should be the ideal. How can human beings, whose whole equipment is so clearly intended for mutual communication, make it a matter of principle to be severed from their fellows, have other minds, other heirs of Adam, sons of God, companions in the heritage of creation?

But there have been practical arguments with great force in the past for accepting objectionable practices. It would invite chaos, we were told, to abolish slavery, free colonies, cancel Jim Crow laws. Sometimes these arguments made sense. But once the psychic atmosphere changes sharply, then "practical" arguments become as impractical as they are immoral. Racism's demise will cause problems. Yet the doomed attempt to delay that demise will not ameliorate the evil; it will only aggravate it. The longer one holds off the inevitable, the angrier men must become at this perverse use of a fading power.

The Catholic opposition to South African racism is its death knell. The Christian churches have often been timorous on social matters; but when at last they begin to face reality, this is the signal of that mood-shift that makes the immoral become, at last, impractical as well. We saw this in our own country. The moral authority of churches put the seal of finality on the civil rights movement of the sixties. The churches too rarely enunciate the first word in our moral universe. But they often get the last word. White racism will die slowly in South Africa; but its death sentence has already been pronounced, by priests and nuns and bishops.

New program provides assistance for women throughout pregnancy

By Lori Amund
Student Writer

Birthright, a program which provides women with an alternative to abortion, is one of the proposed projects of the Southern Illinois Citizens for Life, according to Sherry Yassin, president elect of the anti-abortion group.

The group, which meets at the Women's Center in Carbondale, was organized in May, 1975. It has a membership of 25.

Yassin, who succeeds Nancy Stout, said Birthright is a concept which originated in Canada in 1968.

Through Birthright, a woman is provided with economic and emotional assistance throughout her pregnancy. After her baby is born, Yassin said, the woman can decide to either keep the child or give it up for adoption.

Birthright will expand the scope of Southern Illinois Citizens for Life, which has been strictly educational in the past.

However, Yassin plans to retain education as the group's primary function.

"I think the whole crux of the issue is, is it or is it not human?" Yassin said, referring to some pro-abortion groups which argue that life does not begin at conception.

Some pro-abortion groups contend, Yassin said, that a fetus is not human, since it could not survive outside the mother's womb.

Southern Illinois Citizens for Life emphasizes that life begins at conception. "Even after birth, a baby cannot survive without the help of other people," Yassin said.

Yassin said the group must also contend with the semantics of pro-abortion supporters. She said they attempt to dehumanize the issue by referring to the unborn child as a fetus or protoplasm.

"They don't kill the baby, they abort the fetus or terminate the pregnancy," Yassin said. "It's like (American soldiers) calling a Viet Cong a gook."

The anti-abortion group also tries to inform people of the possible implications that could result from a society which condones terminating an unwanted pregnancy.

"Women are aborting babies because they would interfere with a sid trip, or they're not the right sex," Yassin said.

Yassin said this could eventually lead to mercy killings of the handicapped, elderly and retarded.

The group is attempting to eliminate the idea that abortion is a Catholic concern. Yassin said it is not a private issue but a question of public morality.

"I believe a pro-life amendment is needed, which would protect life from conception to death," Yassin said.

Yassin said she believes such an amendment will become reality when politicians believe it is what the people want. At present, the issue is equally divided.

A recent survey of Southern Illinois voters by the Illinois Federation for Life showed that 50 per cent of those questioned were against abortion, 40 per cent were for it, and 10 per cent had no comment.

Because of this, many politicians are reluctant to take a firm position of the abortion issue, said Yassin.

Robert Bergt conducts a rehearsal of the SIU Symphony Orchestra in preparation for the upcoming concert. (Staff photo by James Ensign)

SIU Symphony to play original piece

By Marcia Heroux
Student Writer

Robert Bergt will conduct the SIU Symphony Orchestra in "Chirasourous," a composition by Will Gay Bottje, director of graduate studies in music at SIU, in a concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Shryock Auditorium.

Bergt said Bottje's composition "provides special movements for improvisation to occur. Solo instruments and whole sections of the orchestra improvise to give varying degrees of light and shadow."

Also featured in the concert are Stephen Barwick, pianist, and Nancy Darigo, violist.

Barwick in Beethoven's "Third Piano Concerto."

Nancy Darigo, principal violist of the orchestra, will solo in "Harold in Italy," a work by Berlioz.

Bergt called Darigo "one of the most gifted students" and said she "plays with a very mature rich tone."

"Harold in Italy," Bergt said, has a "tender reminiscence" of the youth of Berlioz and "reflects on his time in Italy."

The third piece on the program, "Chirasourous," was written by Bottje with the SIU Orchestra in mind but was first performed by the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra.

"Chirasourous" is a Greek word meaning "contrasting colors and improvisation that result between shadowy impressions," said Bergt, or more simply, "light and shadow."

"There really isn't melody in the piece," said Bergt. "It has interruptions in time. It's quite dissonant."

Returning to a more traditional form, the orchestra will perform the fourth movement of Brahms' "Fourth Symphony in E minor." This movement, described as a "giant work by a giant romanticist," will conclude the concert.

The concert, sponsored by the School of Music, is open to the public and free of charge.

Director Bergman subject of special

Scandinavian filmmaker Jorn Donner provides a revealing and candid cinematic portrait of Ingmar Bergman in his 1976 film, "The World of Ingmar Bergman."

Sixty minutes in length, it will be shown in six 10-minute segments immediately following each episode of Ingmar Bergman's "Scenes From A Marriage," which will have its first American telecast over the Public Broadcasting Service, (PBS), Channel 8, WSU-TV, Wednesday at 8 p.m., as a presentation of WNET-13, New York, made possible by member stations of PBS.

In documentary portions of "The World of Ingmar Bergman," the filmmaker is seen directing a scene between Erland Josephson and Liv

Ullmann on location in Stockholm in June, 1975 during the filming of "Face to Face."

In conversation with Donner, Bergman talks about his feelings, his early career, his craft and art.

On humiliation: "You had to ask forgiveness for every possible thing. Upbringing in those days was based a great deal on making you feel humiliated. That was true about the whole society."

About his early career, Bergman tells of his work as a scriptwriter at Filmstaden (Film City) at Rasunda outside Stockholm, where, at one time, many of the great Swedish silent movies were made and where he worked on and off for a quarter-century.

On his craft: "I think it was Antonioni who said that every camera set up is a moral matter. I am of the same opinion. In principle a scene can only be shot in one way and what is important is to find what way that is."

On Art: "I think as long as a person lives he must go on with what he likes to do. He does it ultimately and finally for his own sake. One does it to get contact with other people—the point is to reach out to other people. Say to them, 'listen to this now, come here and you will learn something. Have a glance at that, see how pretty it is.' Then perhaps people receive an emotional experience, an emotional shock or what have you, or suddenly think that something is wonderful or funny. My pretensions don't extend further than that."

Dancers portray 'poetic unity'

The simplicity of classical ballet and the intensity of modern dance combined to convey a fantasy of lyrical motion in a performance by the Pennsylvania Ballet Company Monday night at Shryock Auditorium.

The dancers, constantly separating and rejoining, danced with an air of poetic unity. From the soft arch of an arabesque to the difficult execution of more intricate steps, the dancers performed each dance with technical precision.

The capacity crowd gave the two-hour performance a standing ovation after the final curtain.

The 28-member troupe was founded by Barbara Weisberger whose dedication, hard work and enthusiasm gave the company a unique style in the world of performing arts. With the encouragement and support of George Balanchine and Ford Foundation grants, the company was created in 1964.

The company, a member of the Academy of Music, became "a major force in the world of dance" after a performance at New York's

City Center. "stunning the nation's press and one of the world's most sophisticated and hard-to-please audiences," a UPI critic confirmed.

The performance here opened with "Allegro Brillante," a work by George Balanchine which was accompanied by Tchaikovsky's Concerto No. 3. The dancers, costumed in subtle hues of blue, created an ethereal illusion on stage.

tistic director of the company, was dedicated to the memory of Madame Anderson Ivantsova, a former teacher of the director.

Harkarvy has been the artistic director of the company since 1972. His distinct choreographic style is evident in the company's repertoire. "Harkarvy possesses a rare quality of perceptiveness that makes him one of the world's greatest ballet masters," said Clive Barnes of the New York Times.

The musical accompaniment was from the work of Antonin Dvorak.

A Review

The second performance, an adaptation of Othello, was a masterpiece of tragic drama, told entirely in dance form. Interludes of silence along with the musical accompaniment of Henry Purcell emphasized the heavy sorrow of the tragic performance.

Contrasting classical ballet with a Spanish-Russian flavor, the third performance, Grand Pas Espanol was accompanied by the music of Moritz Moszowski. The ballet, a work of Benjamin Harkarvy, ar-

The jazz styles of Chick Corea and Frank Zappa will be programmed alongside traditional serious baroque music in an 8 p.m. concert Thursday at the Old Baptist Foundation Chapel.

Music major juniors Karla Martin, on flute, and John Zurek, percussionist, will join other SIU musicians for the recital.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Two SIU students injured in scuffle

SIU police are investigating an early Tuesday morning fight in which two students were injured near Schneider Hall, police said. Joseph Frantoni and Andy Fontana were attacked at 1:04 a.m. Tuesday. Fontana, a freshman in business administration, was cut in the head and abdomen by a metal object and Frantoni, a sophomore in engineering and technology, was struck across the head with a belt buckle or chain, police said. The two were treated at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale and released.

Police said the two students were at Merlin's bar, 315 S. Illinois Ave., when they were approached by a man who claimed the students had fought with a friend, police said. A scuffle ensued and three persons were thrown out, police said.

Frantoni and Fontana were on their way home when they were attacked by at least two men, police said. They were the same men who caused the trouble in the bar, police said.

Pillar 1, police 0

Major damage was done to an SIU police car Tuesday morning when the driver turned too sharply and hit a concrete pillar at the SIU Foundation building on West Chataqua Road, police said.

Officer David Spruell, 25, turned out of the driveway too sharply to the right. The car struck a concrete pillar, damaging both doors on the right side of the car.

Spruell was not injured. No estimated value was given but damage was described as "major," police said.

Textbooks taken

Three textbooks, worth $21, were taken from the Southern Quick Shop, 321 S. Illinois Ave., this weekend, SIU police said Tuesday.

Clarice Keegan, 31, a graduate student in philosophy, said she left the books at the store while she was shopping at 4 p.m. Saturday, police said. She left the store and returned a short time later to find the books gone, police said.

Police are investigating the incident.

Beg your pardon

A story and headline in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian incorrectly stated that John A. Vukovich had admitted to tipping over an automobile at Small Group Housing Sunday. The error resulted from a misinterpretation of a police report. Actually, Vukovich helped push the car back upright.

The Student Tenant Union is conducting a housing survey and membership drive from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Student Center Solicitation Area. The survey is an informational guide to the conditions of local rental property, and students are requested to stop by and fill out a short questionnaire.

The SIU Weightlifting Club will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center Saline Room to select judges, spotters, loaders and members of the bench press team. Bench press meet entry fees can be paid at this time. A trophy display will also be presented.

A Kite Contest will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Arena South Parking Lot. There is a 50 cent entry fee and prizes will be awarded in three categories—best looking, most creative and largest flyable kite. In case of inclement weather the contest will be held April 2 at the same time and place.

The SIU Racquetball Club will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Arena Room 119. Application forms for the Memphis Tournament will be distributed. All students are invited.

Professor Alfred Lit of Psychology Department attended a meeting in Washington, D.C. on Jan. 24 as arranged by the American Academy of Sciences, National Research Council, Committee on Vision. The meeting was called to discuss progress made by an ad hoc working group of the committee on aircraft problems dealing with visibility in the rain. Dr. Lit had been appointed a member of the working group in 1975.

The Motorcycle Training Program staff is conducting a motorcycle rider course at the SIU Safety Center. For course dates and times call the Office of Continuing Education at 538-5571 or visit the office in Washington Square Building C.

The Department of Speech Pathology and Audiology collected $138.56 for the recent United Cerebral Palsy telethon.

HUD may provide funds for building 16 homes

By Scott Singleton
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale will probably receive an additional $465,372 in federal funds in the coming fiscal year for the relocation of low-income families living in substandard housing.

The money will come through the Community Development Block Grant Program (CDBG). The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), which administers the program, invited the city on Monday to submit a full application for the funds. The city had previously submitted a pre-application for the CDBG money.

Don Monty, assistant director of the city's Community Development Division, said at Monday's City Council meeting, "What this basically means is that if we put the application together, fill in the blanks right, the money is ours."

Monty told the council, "We have the possibility here to help 16 families who are in houses that do not deserve to be lived in."

In order to be eligible for a relocation grant, each family must have a low income and own a house which is beyond rehabilitation. Monty said he will not be able to define what constitutes low income until he receives the figures from HUD.

Monty said HUD decides each year what qualifies as low income in Carbondale. Last year HUD was eight months late in providing the figure, he said.

Each family accepted for the program would have the option of buying an existing house, building a new house or renting an apartment. Monty said that under the renting option, each family would receive a lump sum payment for rent.

The city's Code Enforcement Division and the Renewal and Housing Division will determine whether applicants' houses are beyond rehabilitation. Monty said grants would be awarded to eligible applicants, "I suspect on a first come, first served basis."

The city's application for the additional CDBG money will be submitted to HUD sometime between April 15 and June 6. Monty said the $465,372 grant is about one-eighth of the total amount of discretionary money available in the state.

Social work, law subjects for workshop

Social work and the law will be the topic of the annual National Association of Social Workers (NASW) spring workshop Thursday and Friday. Peggy Walker, workshop chairman said.

Donald Brieland and John Lemmon, professors in the Jane Addams School of Social Work at the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana, will speak to the conference sponsored by the Southern Illinois Chapter. Brieland and Lemmon have written the first complete reference book covering family law, legal procedures and legal issues in social work. "Social Work and the Law" is scheduled for publication in May by West Publishing Co.

Most social workers deal with people who are before the courts, so understanding the law is important, Walker said.

The workshop will cover criminal procedures, the juvenile court, children's rights and education on Thursday.

The lecture sessions of the workshop cost $5 each day for NASW members, $3.50 Thursday and $2.50 Friday for students and $9 Thursday and $7 Friday for others.

Netters lose to No. 20 Wisconsin, but raise record with win at Iowa

By Jim Meehan
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Wisconsin's 20th-ranked tennis team defeated SIU last weekend, but the Saluki came back to edge Iowa for a split of the road matches played in Iowa City.

Wisconsin, rated the nation's 20th best team by the latest Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches poll, swept five single wins in six matches to defeat SIU, 6-3. Southern won four singles and a doubles match over Iowa for a 5-4 win to raise its record to 4-1 for the year.

The Saluki netters are idle until March 18 when their ten day, nine match southern road trip starts. Nationally ranked powers Miami, Florida, Louisiana State and Alabama will be played during the trip.

Neville Kennerley won a singles match and the teams of Neville Conlin-Sam Dean and Mel Ampon-Boaz Nikritin won doubles matches in SIU's loss to Wisconsin. Dean and Jeff Lubner both lost three set singles matches in the meet.

"We weren't ready for Wisconsin yet," said SIU Coach Dick LeFevre. "They have 12 courts that they play on all year and they're a little ahead of us right now."

"Wisconsin is a very good team," LeFevre said. "Their coach seems to think they can win the Big 10 conference race this year. We'll have a chance for a rematch against them later in the year."

Ruggers roll to second straight win

The SIU Rugby Club won its second straight game of the season Saturday afternoon by defeating St. Louis University 29-10 in an atmosphere filled with all the pomp and ceremony of a traditional British rugby match.

At the start of the contest, the SIU ruggers paraded onto the pitch to the sound of bagpipe music and then proceeded to march all over the Dilkins once the game got underway.

SIU's wing forward Scott McClain scored the first try (touch-down) of the game with an assist from fly-half Mike Wade. Jim Elderton converted on the kick to give SIU an early 6-0 lead.

The Bilkins quickly closed the gap to 6-4 but that was as close as they came in a game dominated by SIU.

SIU then scored 12 unanswered points as McClain and Mike Dailey each ran for try's giving the ruggers a commanding 18-10 just before the end of the first half.

The second half was all SIU, however, as they tallied 10 points while shutting out the Bilkins. Winger Roger Tebbe dove in for a try and Dailey scored for the second time in the match to give SIU its winning margin.

The Rugby club has two matches scheduled for this weekend. It will play at Illinois State Saturday and then travel to Decatur for a Sunday contest against the Decatur Town Club.

Johnson, Green and Benson head AP All-American teams

NEW YORK (AP)—Marques Johnson and Kent Benson, two of the most dependable and dynamic frontcourt players in the country, were among those named to the 1977 Associated Press All-America team on Tuesday.

Johnson, the UCLA forward who was selected The AP's Player of the Year earlier in the week, and Benson, the topflight Indiana center, were joined in the blue ribbon group by guard Richey Green of Michigan, guard Phil Ford of North Carolina and forward Bernard King of Tennessee.

Johnson scored the highest point total among the top five in the nationwide voting by sports writers and broadcasters Johnson pulled down 694 points on the basis of five for the first team and three for second.

Green was the second leading point-getter with 521. Ford collected 468, Benson 433 and King 389.

Benson was the only repeter from last year's first team. Ford was a second-team All-America in 1976 and King was on the third team. King barely nosed out teammate Ernie Grunfeld for first-team honors.

On the second team along with Grunfeld, a forward who drew 381 points, were San Francisco center Bill Cartwright, Houston guard Otis Birdsong, Minnesota center Mike Thompson and Marquette guard Bulch Lee.

The third team included Rod Griffin of Wake Forest, Wayne "Tree" Rollins of Clemson, Phil Hubbard of Michigan, Bo Ellis of Marquette and Freeman Williams of Portland State.

Johnson, at 6-foot-7 and 218 pounds, is the master of the slam-dunk shot and has provided some of the most spectacular moves around the basket seen in college basketball this season.

"If there's a more dominant player than Marques in the college game, I can't imagine it," says UCLA Coach Gene Bartow.

Johnson, among UCLA's career leaders in points and rebounds, had his best season this year with the Bruins, averaging about 21.5 points and 11 rebounds a game. He has made close to 60 per cent of his field goal attempts this season.

The 6-11 Benson, long a tower of strength for Bobby Knight's Indiana teams, led the Hoosiers in scoring with 20 points a game but missed the last part of the season with a back injury.

Green, who averaged about 21 points and four assists, without a doubt was the best player for Michigan, one of the country's Top 10 teams all year.

Ohly takes Texas marathon

Members of the women's track team were involved in two pre-season meets last weekend. Saturday in Galveston, Tex., Jean Ohly won the women's division of the American National Marathon, running the 26-mile, 385-yard course in 2 hours, 59 minutes, 43 seconds, breaking the women's record for the meet by 36 minutes.

Ohly averaged 4.51 per mile despite facing a 40 m.p.h. wind for 13 miles of the race. She finished 38th in a field of more than 400 men and women. Her nearest female competitor finished nearly an hour behind.

In another meet, held in Cham-paign by the Illinois Striders Track Club, 12 members of the women's track team participated. Mary Lasser won the 66-high hurdles, and Patty Jacques won the long jump.

Jacques and Ronnie Vaccaro each entered five events in preparation for the pentathlon, an event they each will participate in during the regular track season.

Glenn receives AP mention

Saluki guard Mike Glenn received honorable mention in the AP's final All-America voting Tuesday. Glenn received honorable mention from UPI's All-America poll earlier in the week.

Glenn also made UPI's All-Valley squad while teammate Gary Wilson received honorable mention All-Valley from UPI.

Arizona could be tough as cactus for SIU

By Dave Hearn
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

When the Saluki cagers take the court at Omaha's Civic Auditorium Saturday afternoon they will be facing one of the nation's top teams, the Arizona Wildcats.

As a matter of fact, the Wildcats (ranked No. 15 in UPI polls were ranked as high as sixth in the nation in one preseason poll, and they were the unanimous choice to win the Western Athletic Conference in nearly every poll and sports magazine on the newsstands.

The Wildcats failed to win the conference as Utah came on to surprise everyone and take the title. The Wildcats did, however, win 21 games against five losses and notched up some impressive victories.

The Wildcats most notable achievements were back-to-back road wins against Purdue and Stanford. They shot down Purdue, 85-76, and then stopped Stanford, 90-82.

Sports Illustrated tabbed the Wildcats as the preseason No. 6 team, while Sporting News had them rated as No. 9 and an easy pick to repeat as WAC champs. So much for preseason guesses.

There are two reasons why the Wildcats received so much praise in the preseason polls and stories. The first is the Wildcat coach, Fred (the Fox) Snowden, the first black coach at a major university in a major conference, and the second is the 16 let-termin returning from last year's team that battled to the finals of the West regional.

Snowden, in his fifth season at Arizona, inherited a team in 1972 which had been 6-20 the season before. He then turned the team around by posting a respectable 16-10 mark his first year. In the following two seasons Snowden's Wildcats posted 19-7 and 22-7 marks.

Last season the Wildcats went 24-9, defeated a tough Nevada-Las Vegas team in the NCAA tournament and finally bowed out in the finals of the West regionals to, you know who, UCLA.

Snowden, who has been criticized by some because of his "lackluster" style on the sidelines, has won about 70 per cent of his games with a five-year mark of 102-38.

The Wildcats were on national television Saturday against the Russian National team (Moscow Army). The Russians beat Arizona, 96-80, but SIU

Coach Paul Lambert pointed out that it is unfair to make any judgements about Arizona by its performance against the Russians. "They (Arizona) played for their conference championship the night before on the road, and lost," said Lambert. "Then they had to come back and play the Russians in a Saturday afternoon game.

"They kept trying to get the ball inside against the Russians, but that's tough to do against a bunch of seven-footers," he added.

Lambert added that the Russian team is much better than most college teams and it would be "easy to underestimate Arizona," by making judgements after watching the Russians beat them.

Thursday—A look at the Wildcat players and the matchups for Saturday's game.

Eldorado wins 75-68, advances to state meet

By Jim Misunas
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Eldorado, led by the one-two punch of center Mike Duff and forward Eddie Lane, defeated Marissa 75-68 Tuesday night at the Arena in the Carbondale Supersectional before 5,500 fans.

Duff fired in 36 points for the game while Lane scored 22. Marissa was led by guard Brad Schoenbeck's 23 points and center D. J. Smith's 16 points.

Eldorado (20-11) plays Pleasant Plains (28-2), a 71-60 winner over Hamilton in the Macomb supersectional, at 7 p.m. Friday in Champaign.

Eldorado built leads to 11 points several times in the second half before Marissa charged back into the game. Marissa's second half press troubled Eldorado into turnovers that made the game close.

Duff's stuff with 4:32 left in the game brought Eldorado's fans to their feet as Eldorado led 64-55.

Marissa called timeout and immediately outscored Eldorado 9-2 over the next three minutes. Schoenbeck's driving layup cut Eldorado's lead to 66-64 with 1:14 left.

But Lane and Duff then went to work. Lane hit two free throws and two field goals and Duff added two free throws as Eldorado scored eight consecutive points to put the game out of reach at 74-64 with 30 seconds left.

The game started fast as both teams hit well from the field. Eldorado led throughout the half.

Eldorado's points came inside from Duff and outside from Lane. Marissa tried to play a sagging zone defense inside to neutralize Duff, but it was ineffective as Duff worked loose for layups and the rest of the Eagles hit well from outside.

Marissa stayed in the game by playing well offensively. Schoenbeck hit six field goals for 12 points backed up by Casey Laumbattus' eight points at halftime.

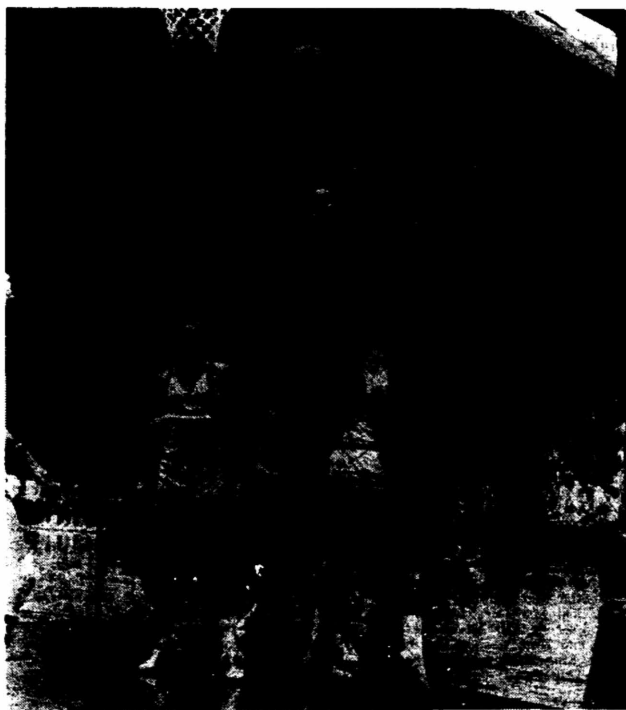

Two errors by Eldorado late in the half permitted Marissa to close the gap right before halftime. First, Duff stepped in the lane while Marissa's Smith was shooting a free throw. Smith connected on the extra free toss. Then, Lane tried to enter the game before an official time out and Eldorado was assessed with a technical for having six men on the court.

Laumbattus missed the foul shot, but Smith hit the ensuing field goal to close the gap to 39-36.

Terriers advance in AA tourney

Carbondale Community High School's basketball team won 106-94 over Centralia in Tuesday's Olney Sectional to advance to Friday's finals.

CCHS plays Wednesday's winner between Olney (21-5) and Benton (16-9). The Olney Sectional winner plays Tuesday at the Arena against the East St. Louis Sectional winner, where Collinsville (27-0) is rated the favorite.

Post-season tournaments are for the birds

Thirty-two teams were recently extended invitations to the NCAA national basketball tournament. But they were not the 32 best teams in the country, because post-season tournaments have seen to it that the best teams do not always win the conference.

A few years ago, the Atlantic Coast Conference started a post season tournament, and since then other conferences have followed suit. Currently, eight of the 18 majok conferences in the country hold post-season tournaments. And in three of those eight conferences, it was not the first place team that won the conference.

In the Metro Seven Louisville won the conference regular season and even beat Cincinnati, but it is the Bearcats who are going to the first round of the NCAA tournament. Louisville had to accept an at-large bid because Cincinnati won the post-season tournament.

The same thing also happened in the Ohio Valley conference. Middle Tennessee finished in a second place tie, but won the conference tourney. In the East Coast Conference Duquesne had the sixth best record but won the tourney. The Ducks have a 12-13 record and don't even deserve to be in the NIT.

In the ACC last year, Virginia surprised the country by winning its post-season tournament even though the Cavaliers were a second division team during the regular season.

This year, Virginia tried the same thing, except this time the Cavs were six points shy of North

Korch on Sports

By Rick Korch

Carolina (the regular season winner) in the championship game.

The five conferences in which the first place team won the post season tournament were the ACC, Big Eight (Kansas State), Southwest (Arkansas), Eastern Collegiate (Hofstra) and the Valley (SIU).

The only reason that conferences hold these tourneys is because they are good money makers.

Each school in the Big Eight Conference will realize between $16,000 and $18,000 from their tournament. That includes even the teams that lost in the first round.

The Valley Conference has not figured out how much each of the seven schools will receive from its tournament yet, but SIU Athletic Director Gale Sayers admitted that it won't be a very large amount.

That can be attributed to Commissioner Mickey Holmes and the athletic directors from the Valley schools who voted last year to hold the tournament at Wichita. If it had been at the home of the regular season winner, SIU, it surely would have made a little more money.

As it looks now, there is talk around the Valley bigwigs to hold next year's tournament at the sight of the regular season winner, and maybe even hold the semifinals at the home of the second place team.

A post-season tournament almost negates the regular conference season and makes it just a warm-up for the tournament.

Some conferences like the Valley are reasonably smart and give the first place team a bye into the post-season championship game.

Other conferences like the ACC and Big Eight have single elimination tournaments whereby the first place team has to play two or three games before taking the crown. That's two or three more games that it could possibly lose when the team should have won the conference in the first place.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) is supposed to be the governing body of its almost 700 members. It doesn't make any sense that some conferences determine its NCAA tournament representative one way, and other conferences determine it another way.

The system should be the same. The NCAA should step in and straighten things out.

Either post-season tournaments for every conference, or post-season tournaments for none of them.

How 'bout none?
