Public projects will not solve economic woes, Buzbee says

By Bruce Kirkham
Staff Writer

There is no question in Ken Buzbee's mind about what Southern Illinois needs — and it's not more public projects.

"I think that long-term economic development, which translates into jobs, is one overriding issue for Southern Illinois," Buzbee said.

And that's some firm ideas about how to go about bringing economic development and jobs to Southern Illinois. The answer, he says, is to provide an atmosphere of economic stability in which small businesses can thrive and do business.

Buzbee, a 22-year veteran of the Illinois Senate, is running for the Democratic nomination for the 22nd District Congressional seat against Ken Gray, who held the position from 1955 through 1975. Buzbee said that if he is elected, he will hire an economic development specialist to work full time in Illinois to provide assistance to local police departments, agencies, governments and businesses in planning and management.

"What we need to do is create a real economic development environment for our cities and our enterprises, organized labor, the financial community, and educational institutions," he said.

SIU-C and community colleges would play an important role in the system by providing training in skilled labor, management and research, he said.

Gray, who takes pride in his "prince of pork" moniker from his days in Congress, has said the solution to Southern Illinois' economic woes is the increase in federal funds into Southern Illinois in the form of federal projects.

But those days are over, according to Buzbee.

"It's a different day now. We have $200 million annual deficits. In these days, nobody worries about deficits and jobs," he said.

Jobs, public works top Gray's list of priorities

By Dave Selenski

The No. 1 burning issue in Southern Illinois is jobs, according to incumbent U.S. Rep. Ken Gray, who has come out of retirement to seek the post he held for 20 years.

"When I left office, unemployment in Illinois was at 5 percent and now it's at 21 percent," Gray said. "I think we have to get people out of retirement to try to help get the economy rolling again.

"We are at the point nine years ago for health issues," Gray said. "We're at the point where we said let's have a campaign in March on 20.

"Now the time is right for Gray to run for Congress, the time is right for the people of Illinois to have a campaign in March to elect Ken Gray to Congress."

Gray said that although he has not lived in Southern Illinois for many years, he has "never left" touch with the concerns of the people.

"During the last nine years, I've been over to more than 100 towns and I've spoken to many, many people on the various issues and I have told them that I'm going to work for them."

Gray said that he is the only candidate who has "the experience to bring to bear on the issues facing the people of Southern Illinois."
Tuck, union silent on talk’ progress

Negotiations between union representatives of striking Tuck Industries workers in Carbondale and company officials continued Thursday, with no agreement reached by late afternoon.

Union President Ron Mitchell again declined to comment on the proceedings, and said only, “We’re really tight right now. I wish I could say something more, but I can’t comment at all.”

According to a union official who asked not to be identified, both sides agreed after Wednesday’s negotiations to withhold comments to the media until after an agreement had been reached.

“We all say is both sides want to do this. They are lining and we are uncertain,” the official said.

The union officials made a preliminary proposal Wednesday, but Mitchell would not comment Thursday on the details of the proposal or the company’s response. Plant Manager Matt Maier could not be reached for comment.

The official said the union negotiating committee would meet with the union at 10 a.m. Friday to discuss negotiation developments and determine more precisely what the union wants.

Several strikers at the plant said they had not heard any news from the union negotiating committee about the State action on Bracy situation awaited.

Vice Chancellor James Brown dubbed the library management a "Mistress of SIC," "Mount St. Bracy," but said some of the tension had emerged from the state about what will happen next in the process of acquiring a storage building.

"The key right now seems to be release of funding," Brown told the Architecture and Design Committee of the Board of Trustees Thursday.

The University is waiting for the state budget bureau to release funds appropriated for library storage so it can go ahead with plans to purchase the Bracy Building in Marion.

"There have been some communications indicating that something may be happening anytime soon," Brown said. Board members seemed to think they hoped to hear a final report on the situation at their April meeting.

money was easy," he said. "We all worked very hard, and that's good for long-term Gray, and we are losing," the statement read. "All I can say is both sides want to do this. They are lining and we are uncertain," the official said.

Hart campaign gains more support

By the Associated Press

Gary Hart’s presidential campaign demonstrated new strength Thursday — a poll showing him gaining sharply on Walter F. Mondale in Alabama, a convert from John Glenn’s campaign and endorsements from three of Alan Cranston’s former supporters in Congress.

Hart, Mondale, Glenn and the Rev. Jesse Jackson all campaigned in the South, where Georgia, Alabama and Florida are three of nine states holding “Super Tuesday” Democratic presidential primaries and caucuses March 13.

Vote delayed on Meese nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate committee agreed Thursday to delay for a week a vote on Edwin Meese III’s nomination as attorney general after new questions arose about his role in the 1980 Reagan campaign’s use of documents from the Jimmy Carter re-election campaign.

"There is... evidence he was very, very much involved in that," Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, told the Judiciary Committee. Meese said he had no knowledge of any effort by the Reagan campaign to obtain Carter documents.

Meizenbaum on Wednesday released a document from the re-election campaign of former President Carter that was marked to the attention of Meese, then a top Reagan campaign official.

O’Neill says he’ll fight military aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O’Neill Jr. vowed Thursday that Democratic leaders in Congress will fight a Reagan administration "backdoor approach" for funneling $93 million in new military aid to the beleaguered Salvadoran army.

The administration plan calls for attaching the military aid to a bill providing emergency food supplies to Africa. In a separate move, the administration wants to use the $21 million in new aid for CIA-backed Nicaraguan rebels to a low-income energy assistance bill.

The four Democratic candidates for the 58th District state Senate race said that jobs and additional funding for education will determine the state's economic future, but agreed that a workfare program would not resolve the problem in Southern Illinois.

At a forum Wednesday in the Student Center, the Democrats said they would support legislation to ban the Illinois Work Experience Program, or workfare, about 70 people attended the forum, sponsored by the League of Women Voters. P.L. Parr, a Union County farmer, represented the only applause of the night when he said he supported members of the Job Loss Project who have demanded that IWEP be stopped until public hearings are held by state officials.

“This is not a slave state,” said Parr. “To take these people and force them into areas and not pay them is a big step backwards in our state and country. Parr said he would have considered working for the group which rallied for an hour in front of the state building in Marion.

Randolph County Coroner Gary McClure, Murphysboro Mayor Sydney Appleton and Marion City Clerk William Wheelley said they supported the efforts of the protesters. McClure and Appleton proposed retraining the unemployed as an alternative. But State Rep. Ralph Dunn, of Danville, who was endorsed for the Republican nomination for state Senate, said he couldn’t understand why the four candidates opposed a program sponsored by the Democrats. The state-funded program was overwhelmingly approved by the General Assembly in 1981.

“It just makes good sense to be required to do a public duty for state aid,” he said.

Morris Library has drastically declined compared to other university libraries nationwide, the Library Affairs Advisory Committee reported Wednesday. According to the Association of Research Libraries, Morris Library has slipped from 48th in 1981-82 to 60th in 1982-83 among 194 ARL member libraries. The library’s rank declined in 12 of the 14 categories which are rated, and SIU-C was below the national average in 10. Les Polgar, a member of the LAAC, told the Graduate and Professional Student Council Wednesday that the library’s greatest decline was in the volumes added category, where SIU-C rank slipped from 46th to 91st. The library added 44,452 volumes in 1982-83, compared to the national average of 46,660.

Polgar said that SIU-C ranks strongest in total microform units, but much of those microforms are duplicate copies of journals and books. SIU-C’s rank in microforms fell from 8th to 23rd. He also reported that professional and non-professional staff had declined drastically, while student worker staff numbers remained constant.

The library’s professional staff declined from 64 to 60 positions, while non-professional staff positions declined from 134 to 104.
McGovern's message still valid

George McGovern

A vote for Buzbee an investment in future

Ken Buzbee has been at the cutting edge of educational reform. In his heyday, he has won numerous awards from environmental groups, has been named one of the most influential leaders in the area, and has been cited for his outstanding work in the field. Buzbee's message is still valid:

- He has been a leader in the struggle for affordable housing and has been awarded the title of "social entrepreneur." His message is as relevant today as it was then.

- His message of "work hard, play hard" resonates with young people.

- He has been a strong advocate for the arts and culture, and his message of "support the arts" is still relevant today.

- His message of "build a better world" is still valid today, as we continue to face challenges such as climate change and social inequality.

Buzbee's message is still valid, and his vision of a better world is still relevant today. We must continue to work towards building a better world, and Buzbee's message is a guide for us to do so.

Journalism faculty lacks blacks

Black leader: Press racist

By Dave Skeens
Staff Writer

In nine cases out of 10, SIUC journalism students are not exposed to a black perspective because there are no black instructors or professors in the Journalism School, according to Richard Hayes, coordinator of the Student Life Office. Hayes, who is past president of the Carbondale chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told a public affairs reporting class Thursday that there is "built-in racism" in the field of journalism, and news media are bombarded with the "whites and whys" from a white perspective.

"If you don't think that exists," he said, "then why are there no black reporters following Jesse Jackson who report to the national news?" Hayes claimed that the Journalism School has no black faculty members because there are none available, none apply, none qualify, no effort is made to recruit them, "or none of the above."

"And that's not a multiple choice question," he said, "it's a statement of fact."

Hayes said another reason there are no blacks in the Journalism School is because the school has no black students, which fill posts in journalism careers.

Vernon Stone, director of the Journalism School, said it is very unfortunate that there are no blacks on the journalism faculty. Stone said SIUC was one of the first 10 predominantly white universities in the country to participate in the Minority Journalists and Residents Program. He said the department promoted the Black History month speaker this year and does everything it can to support the Black Observer.

However, he said, much more needs to be done.

Referring to allegations of harassment of local blacks by Carbondale police, Hayes said that police officers have been known to use excessive force in dealing with blacks, but he doesn't believe some of the incidents in the NAACP's case constitute harassment.

"If I were still the president of the Carbondale NAACP chapter, I would not have accepted a majority of the charges in the case."

Awareness is goal of Synergy Week

By Joyce Vanderheide
Staff Writer

Originally a drug crisis center, Synergy now is more than a drug information center. The nonprofit service agency provides a 24-hour crisis intervention hotline, ongoing counseling, and referral for people who need someone to talk to.

The group also provides persons passing through the area with aid and emergency food in cooperation with the Carbondale Interchurch Council and has a speakers' bureau which will send a volunteer to give talks on topics, such as drug and alcohol abuse.

To create public awareness of the group's variety of services, Synergy Week is planned for March 18 to 25.

A secondary purpose of Synergy Week is to raise funds, but the week "will be successful if more people know about us," said Cynthia Vaughan, Synergy Week coordinator.

On March 18, inserts in church bulletins will describe some of Synergy's services and Synergy Week activities. Times for some of the events were not available.

The speakers' bureau will be on campus at various locations on March 19 to publicize the benefit concert at evening at the Hangar 9, Vaughan said.

Schedules performers are Rick and Tom Naas, The Blues and Hangar 9, Vaughan said. An open house with a huge booth is scheduled from 1 to 4 p.m. on March 21 at the Synergy office at 906 S. Illinois Ave.

From 7 to 9 p.m. March 1, Synergy will co-sponsor a spring celebration with Women's Services at the Quigley Hall patio. Vaughan said the event will feature poetry, music and dancing.

Rain location is the Quigley lounge.

A coffee house with acoustical musicians is planned for the evening of March 23 in the American Heritage Foundation. Also during Synergy Week, the American Chemical Society will sell coupon books for $2 for discounts at area businesses.

A banquet and Synergy alumni reunion at Giant City Lodge will conclude the week's activities at 6:30 p.m. March 25.

The event is open to the public, Vaughan said. Keynote speaker will be Sharon Murphy, associate professor of journalism. Reservations can be made at the Synergy office.

Synergy is almost completely staffed by volunteers. Vaughan said most volunteers are SIU-C students. Many are major in human service fields, but others are from fields such as mathematics and design.

About 70 people currently volunteer, Vaughan said. About 40 of them are shift-covering volunteers, who have been through several training sessions and are capable of handling any situation.

One doesn't automatically become a volunteer after completing the sessions, said Vaughan, a volunteer for one and a half years. Some abilities which can't be taught in the sessions, such as quick thinking and compassion, are needed before someone can be placed in charge of a shift, she said.

Vaughan said Synergy's volunteers benefit because they learn better communication skills and can receive advanced training in areas such as drug or alcohol abuse counseling.

Volunteer Vince Kelly, senior in mathematics, said Synergy is a good opportunity for professional experience and personal growth.

Vaughan said everyone has a crisis at some time. The attitude at Synergy is not to treat people as though something is wrong with them, she said.

In 1983, more than 80 people called on the hotline or walked into the agency's doors for crisis intervention, Vaughan said.

About 90 percent were SIU-C students.

Relational account for about a quarter of the problems from callers, according to Synergy's 1983 Annual Report. And the problem seems to be growing, Vaughan said. Drug and alcohol problems and decision making both account for about one-fifth of the problems.

Individuals who don't feel safe at home or who are having relationship problems may be given emergency shelters if "we feel it will help them rather than continue the problem," Vaughan said.

"We're not Dear Abby," she said. The staff volunteers try to give callers choices, but do not make decisions for them.

When people call the hotline, they are usually desperate and don't know what to do, Vaughan said. Many call only once, but some call several times about one issue or about different issues because they have found someone who will listen.
was upset about the position of faculty salaries in relation to those at other institutions. In a news conference after the meeting, SIUC President Albert Somit said the salary level of SIUC faculty is "very close to the bottom."

According to the July, 1980, issue of Academia, a higher education journal, faculty salaries on the Carbondale campus ranked 198th among 193 peer institutions.

Somit responded to charges made Tuesday by members of the Faculty Senate that the administration is not concerned with faculty morale. "I think the documentation disproves that," he said. Shaw said the administration tries to be "realistic" in requesting salary increase funds from the ISBE.

The board next month is scheduled to decide whether to continue tuition privileges granted to some students from Missouri and Kentucky. In a three-year trial, SIUC and SIU-E have allowed resident Illinois tuition rates for students from Missouri and 14 counties in western Kentucky. SIU's out-of-state students generally pay three times the tuition rate of Illinois residents. If approved at the meeting in April, the policy would add two other provisions previously authorized by the trustees. SIU presidents would be allowed to contract with other Illinois or out-of-state schools to let their non-resident students take SIU courses at in-state tuition rates.

Rend Lake pipe break leaves local towns short on water

MOUNT VERNON (AP) — As many as 100,000 people in 56 towns were without a permanent water supply today after a 6-inch pipe broke near a man-made lake, and authorities said it would be Friday at the earliest before service was restored.

"The temporary patch did not work. They are now proceeding with a permanent repair," Chuck Albright, head of the Emergency Services and Disaster Agency in Springfield.

The slate disaster agency said parts of six counties — Jefferson, Perry, Franklin, Hamilton, Jackson and Williamson — were affected by the break at Rend Lake, which occurred Wednesday afternoon.

Dowell and Cambria were the only cities affected in Jackson County. In Williamson County, Freedom, South Fork, Carpenterville, Crainville, Energy, Colp, Blairsville, Herrin, Johnston City, Pittsburg and Stonewolf were affected by the pipe break.

The break prompted closings of schools, factories and at least one coal mine in Southern Illinois. Officials asked residents to use as little water as possible and made arrangements to bring in bottled water.

Authorities estimated there was about a 20-hour water "gap" in the Rend Lake Water Conservancy District backup tanks, but some communities were running low.

Benton fire chief Paul Rogers, noting sufficient water is available for firefighting, said the break occurred in a 90-degree elbow encased in concrete.

"Water superintendent Ivry Cameron said the trouble developed when softened soil surrounding the huge pipe slipped and caused the main to crack. Some communities in the affected area, which has a population of up to 100,000, were down to an 18-hour supply of fresh water," Cameron said.

Jones said he could not comment further on how long back-up supplies would last.

"It's really anybody's guess," he said. "Conservation could stretch it; panic could shorten it."

He said his agency had arranged with Prairie Farms dairies in Carlinville and O'neil and a Pepsi Cola plant in Marion to begin bottling water Thursday and transporting it to communities running short.

Efforts were being made to t i ng in heavy equipment to make the repairs, he said, but the soft soil in the area was hampering efforts.

Among factories which shut down were a Norge Refrigeration plant in Herrin and an Allen Industries factory in Herrin. An Inland Steel Co. coal mine near Seeser also was closed by the water emergency.

How Southern Illinois Can Bounce Back

Former Congressman Ken Gray, who brought over 1,000 programs and projects to the area, costing $4 billion and bringing far more benefits, is the candidate offering the best hope for new economic recovery.

20 Years Experience

During his 20 years in Congress before retiring nine years ago, Ken Gray, working in partnership with the people, helped create thousands of new permanent jobs with $4 billion in public works projects — interstate highways, lakes, locks and dams, airports, a federal prison, post offices, housing, nursing homes, electrification projects, industrial parks, and more. And because Ken Gray is only 25 when he went to Congress, he can serve many more years. That experience will place him in seniority above all Congressmen elected to their first term in 1984. And he has been assured he can be reelected to the Public Works Committee.

Need For Balance

The Illinois comptroller reports that Illinois receives less federal spending than any other state for every dollar Illinois residents send to Washington. And the cost of a single, obsolete B-1 bomber would feed every man, woman and child in the 22nd District for four years. A shifting of priorities can help rebuild this area, help the farmers, labor, business, veterans, education and retirees.

Coal's Unique Role

This Congressional District has more mineable coal reserves than any other in the nation — enough power to provide thousands of jobs for years to come. Yet coal has a public relations problem being blamed for acid rain. Ken Gray believes the cost of making coal acceptable to all parts of the nation should be paid by all parts of the nation. Ken Gray has a proven record on coal. He helped write the block housing bill, helped miners and their families get these benefits, worked for coal mine safety legislation and is helping finance a national coal museum in Southern Illinois.

The Road To Recovery

Ken Gray will put unprecedented Congressional staff emphasis on economic development. We will open several district offices and have only a small staff in Washington. This local emphasis will bring the government back to the people.

Each district staff will work with volunteers on economic development boards. Representatives of these boards will meet periodically with congressman Gray as an economic development commissioner. This will result in a coordinated, united effort. Congressman Gray also will use his personal contacts, his experience, and legislation to bring about economic recovery.

Railroad project staff seeks replacement for parking space

By Paula J. Finlay
Staff Writer

The city's Railroad Relocation Project staff is examining ways to alleviate the loss of downtown parking space caused by the project's temporary trainway.

Eldon Gossell, project director, said Thursday that locating available space downtown to be subleased for parking space lost to the temporary trainway is being investigated. The small committee consisting of Gossell, Code Enforcement Director John Yow, and Economic Development Director Henry Westphal toured the downtown property that will be affected by the trainway, he said.

Construction of the temporary trainway, to be used in two to three years while the "big ditch" for the railroad depression is being constructed, will not begin until early next year, Gossell said. In the meantime, the committee will look for temporary space to ease the parking problem.

As the City Council accepted a report on the trainway Monday, Councilman Neil Dillard moved that the council re-affirm the city government's commitment to the agreed-upon plan and schedule for the project. In a 4-1 vote, the council approved Dillard's motion and directed City Manager Don月 to prepare a message to the officials and organizations involved in the project.

Councilman Keith Tushorn, an opponent of the project, voted "absolutely no." Many downtown businesses said they would be affected as a result of the project. There was no indication of where Sen. John Hart will draw his parking space, according to Tushorn. Many downtown businesses and residents will be affected by the project, according to Tushorn.

The job created by the project will be psychological as well as practical benefits for the community. "There will be no longer that barrier between sections of the community so that everyone has a cross," Dillard said.

Councilman Patrick Keiley said that "the project is worth what the city has to pay.

Hart slated to visit Southern Illinois

By John Racine
Staff Writer

Democratic presidential candidate Gary Hart is scheduled to visit Southern Illinois next week, before the March 17 election.

Lloyd Haims, campaign director in the 22nd Congressional District, said that a definite date has yet to be set for the visit, but sometime between March 17 and 20.

A visit by the Colorado senator is being monitored closely in Carbondale. Although momentum in recent polls and primaries, will be preceded by a high visibility campaign in the district. In Carbondale, some of the 200 members of Students With Hart are planning to blitz the campus area during Hart's first week. Campaign workers will canvas at places like University Mall and the Murdale Shopping Center.

Setting a definite date for the visit is difficult because of the campaign dynamics, he said. "The success of the campaign is such that it changes everyday," Haims told some 20 members of the student group Thursday.

Decisions on all levels of the campaign are being held up, he said, while officials await some indication of how Senator Glenn's campaign is headed. "We are in the middle of the campaign on the move," he said, while volunteers took piles of campaign literature from nearly stocks. "When everyone is grabbing for something you know something is happening." Haims said.

"We must not be afraid," a spokesmen for Students With Hart, said that supporters from southern Illinois and Missouri will rally local backers next weekend in getting our Hart's name out.

Both feel that Hart will draw heavily on student voters, possibly because of his youth and new generation.

But Haims said that students will not be the only Hart supporters in Southern Illinois. The 46-year-old Hart, who is in his second term, will also draw upon union votes and those cast by independents and some Republicans, he said.

Although former Vice President Mondale Warren has been endorsed by several unions, Haims believes that the support is coming from the executive level and not reflect the desire of the rank and file union members.

"Hart does not care about special interests," Haims said, "he's a guy who's a politician.

USO opposes increase in tuition

By Sheila Rogers
Staff Writer

Resolutions opposing a 6.5 percent tuition increase and an increased student activity fee were passed by the Student Senate on Wednesday.

The senate also passed resolutions to support a state-wide progress policy, and SIU's foreign language program. The resolutions were passed by the Student Senate on Wednesday.

Although the senate supports higher salaries for faculty and administration, students shouldn't have to pay more with a larger tuition increase, said Senate President Stephanie Jackson. The senate opposes the 6.5 percent tuition increase, Jackson said.

The satisfactory progress policy passed requires first and second year undergraduate students to pass eight credit hours in order to maintain eligibility to receive financial aid. Third and fourth year students would have to pass 16 hours per semester, and fifth and sixth year students must pass 12 hours per semester to remain eligible. Students would also have to maintain at least a 2.0 grade point average. Similar federal guidelines took effect Jan. 1.

Utility tax proposal won't be on ballot

By John Racine

ARSOS (AP) - A proposal calling for a 50 percent cut in the state utility tax will not be on the March 20 primary ballot in Illinois.

David McDowell, the alderman who drafted the proposal to the Murphysboro City Council in January, said that after checking several options he has decided that the referendum cannot go on the primary ballot.

"It's not easy. But you will be backed by the primary Coalition for Political Honesty, would cut the state's utilities from 2 to 2.5 percent. Coalition spokesman Patrick Quinn said that the proposal would save $25 million at the state and local levels.

McDowell said that discussion with Jackson County Clerk Bob Harrell indicates that it is too late to put the proposal on the ballot.

The decision was made after Harrell reviewed a recent decision by the 3rd District Appellate Court in Ottawa concerning the issue in Will County, Harrell said.

That ruling states that the measure could not be on the ballot if it had been passed as a resolution by a government board.

Kevin Hudson, associate director of the state Board of Elections, said that if the measure is put on the ballot by petition it will be affected by the decision.

More than 100 municipalities around the state will vote on the issue, 49 of which are downstate communities, Quinn said. The issue will probably be introduced to the General Assembly later this spring, he added.

The measure proposes closing three loopholes in the state income tax code which allow mainly multinational corporations and real estate speculators, he said.

Jackson calls rules change a test

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) - The Rev. Jesse Jackson warned fellow Democratic presidential candidates Thursday that their stance on changing the election rules in the South would be a "major litmus test" in determining whether they get black support in the fall.

The black presidential candidate said he was not threatening anyone, only challenging them to back their words with actions.

Jackson outlined his views to reporters as his supporters filed into the litmus test in this Southern state.

"I've talked to Mondale, Glenn, Hare and McGovern about second primaries and nuclear freeze discussion with Jackson County, said Tuesday at the Wesley Foundation, 815 S. Illinois Ave.

Any who have been arguing about who has the greater commitment to civil rights, particularly should join the suit.

"This is not the time to threaten anybody. It is the time to challenge everybody."

Jackson said he would take his fight to the floor of the Democratic convention in San Francisco to the party and the nominee on record opposing the laws.

The Illinois Freeze Voters Coalition spokesman, 816-259-2236, said that the proposal won't be on the ballot if it hadn't been passed as a resolution by a government board.

BRUCE JOSEPH, president of the Undergraduate Student Organization, said the SUIU Senate would limit $2,700 to $1,500 a program it can afford. The increase was motivated by increasing costs of athletics programs; the budget limited the increase by increases in student support,” Joseph said.

But SHU-C President Albert Somit defended the fee increase as “good in the long run.”

“I agree that the University should not mount an intercollegiate athletics program for which there is not student support, ’” Somit said.

“We are currently subsidizing the program. The fee increase will bring the program to a point that will cushion or pull up a minimal acceptable level. If we don’t have more money for the intercollegiate athletics program, we’ll simply have to cut the program,” he added.

But trustee Norwood told the board that students’ opinions on the fee should be taken seriously.

“So we said in 1986 that we would listen to students on the next fee increase,” he said. “I think we’re ready to say that they don’t want the increase, that they would rather cut the program. I think we have to be guided by what they are saying. I think we need a survey to find out.

“People should not say this should be the same sort of school without quality athletics programs,” he said.

Somit said that “a number of physical problems in facilities has created the need for the reserve fund. He cited a growing awareness that the artificial turf at McGraw Stadium would be the school’s sports facilities in the long run.

When Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said the fees are justifiable for the fee increases, bringing the fee to $2,490 per semester for full-time students.

The proposal states that the fee increases were to be used for student services, recreation and athletics.

“As a $10 increase in the revenue bond fee, this is the final installment in a series of increases, bringing the fee to $2,494 per semester for full-time students,” the proposal states.

The fee increases fund raises the Student Center and University Housing operations that had come from reductions in tuition. The proposal states that the fee increase for increased University usage of those facilities.”

A $5 increase in fall and spring semesters and a $3 cut in summer semesters.

$9.50 per semester for full-time students. The fee increase would bring the fee to $17 in fall and spring and $45 in summer. The boost, effective in the fall, will come off deficits in the Student Health Program.

A split in the student activity fee, creating a Students’ Attorney Program fee of $2 and a Student Services fee of $8.50 per semester for full-time students. The fee increase would bring the fee to $17 in fall and spring and $45 in summer. The boost, effective in the fall, will come off deficits in the Student Health Program.

Women netters undertake spring trip

By Jim Leva
Sports Editor

While Florida will be the vacation outlet next week for many college students, South Carolina will look just like the Saluki Coach Judy Auld and her women’s tennis team.

At Hilton Head Island, S.C., Auld’s Saluki, 11-6, will engage in five matches against the Carolinas and Kentucky — two teams that beat SIU-C in the fall — and also a three-flight tournament. It will be the most action that the squad has seen this season.

SIU-C will be in the spring after a 9-6 drubbing by SIU-Edwardsville. Auld, though, hopes this trip will be a success.

“I would be pleased with three wins,” Auld said. However, Indiana and Kentucky figures to be Auld’s top competition. Auld said. In order to come up with three wins then, SIU-C will need to beat Maryland, Boston and Tennessee-Chattanooga. UT-C should be tough to beat. Last year, UT-C won the Division II championship.

Indiana was ranked in the NCAA top 10 at the end of the fall season, and was ranked No. 15 in the preseason.

Last year, Indiana lost its top two singles players to graduation, but it still has top-30 mark this year.

Freshman walkie Jance Stucky has moved up from being the No. 8 player on the Hoosiers to No. 3. She owns a 13-2 mark.

“She was really helpful,” Indiana Coach Len Lorist said. “She’s the type of player that makes me look like a good coach.”

Auld, though, said she would still be happy even if her squad does not win three matches — winninglets at No. 1, men’s doubles and No. 2 in the fall. Singles-wise, Auld is pleased with her squad’s progress, but in doubles action “it’s hit or miss,” she said.

In singles play at EKU, SIU-C went 1-1-4, with Mary Pat Kramer defeating teammate Maureen Hartney in the consolation finals. The doubles teams were 1-1 at EKU. The three doubles teams combined to win just five sets out of 16, with only the tandem of Alexandras Molinari and Heidi Eastman gaining a victory.

“We had no consistencies in (doubles) at Eastern Kentucky,” Auld said. “It always seems to be the last thing to come around.”

It’s better inside,” Auld said. “There’s no sun, no wind and you have a better background.”

Men netters headed for Florida

By George Pappas
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men’s tennis team will take their worst-ever indoor record to Florida for the first time in 97 years and have not won more than three individual matches in any one season this year.

Saluki Coach Dick LeFevre said this trip will be very good for the players. LeFevre said, “They will be tough to concentrate on school, only tennis.”

Some of the Salukis look as if they could use concentration on their tennis game after losing their first seven matches. The only successful Saluki tennis player this season has been Gabriel Coch, who has posted a 4-2 record. Coch has lost three of his last four matches. Last week, he was moved up to play No. 2 singles, after going 5-3 at No. 3, and beat Illinois’ John Loris. Loris beat Saluki Per Wadmark at No. 1 singles Feb. 13.

“[I don’t know how to explain it],” said Coch, a junior from Colombia. “I’ve been hitting my balls where I want them and everything has gone right me.”

Coch was the only Saluki to advance to the finals of the NITC tournament last year. According to LeFevre, Coch is playing well.

“[Babe] is playing some tough tennis,” LeFevre said. “I hope he can continue his winning ways and pass them along to the other players.”

That would be nice because at doubles, Wadmark is 87, at No. 3 singles, Larry Nilsson is 9-0, and Quanor is 10-14. At No. 4 singles and Paul Rasch is 1-4 at No. 5. Steve Quanor hasn’t won in six matches and Boeckel deKort hasn’t won in three.

In doubles, Wadmark and Nilsson are 87 at No. 1. Coch and Vinsoni have done fairly well together at No. 2, posting a 6-7, 9-7 record. At No. 3, Basch and Roach and at No. 4, Quanor and deKort are 1-1 and Quanor and derO are 0-2. The Salukis have played 21 mat ches ‘n doubles.

Auld said it would be even more difficult if they were to play Florida, South Florida, Mississippi, Missouri, Farming and Georgia in that order. Florida beat the Salukis 7-2 last spring, and Georgia is ranked No. 6 in the nation.

“Hopefully, we’ll be able to get in and win down there,” LeFevre said. “I’ll be surprised if we can’t do a good job. I want them and they’re good.”

Men ruggers win to start season

By George Pappas
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men’s rugby team started its season this past weekend when they played the Western Illinois 16-0 on the SIU-C rugby pitch.

The SIU-C ‘B’ team lost to the ‘A’ team which only scored two tries out of their six points with three minutes left.

In the ‘A’ game, Saluki Davey Nolan forced a Western Illinois fumble in the try zone early in the first half. The ball was picked up by Saluki Dan O’Neill and he scored the try. The conversion kick by Dan Berta was good and the ruggers were up 7-0.

SIU-C extended its first-half lead to 12-0 when Mike Auld took a feed pass and scored a try from 40 yards out. The point, but Dan Berta made the conversion kick.

In the second half, Chris Burger took a feed pass and scored a try from 10 yards out, but the try by Berta was no good and the Salukis led 16-0.

O’Neill, a hooker-back for the Salukis, said that the team looked like one of the best since he joined them three years ago. The ruggers have been practicing on three inches of snow for one week and three inches of mud the past week, O’Neill said, but he is still optimistic.

Gateways meet could be stormy
By Jim Lea
Sports Editor

Controversy and competition will highlight Saturday's Gateway Conference women's gymnastics meet at Normal, and Saluki Coach Herb Vogel has been expecting both for a long time.

Controversy - because Vogel has been critical of GCAC member Indiana State for a long time. Indiana State, Vogel has said in the past, controls the judges and the scores at Terre Haute, Ind.

Competition - because SIUC and Illinois State have each won a meet against the other, while Indiana State has beaten both of them at Terre Haute.

It's easy for Vogel to be critical, and it's another thing for him to prove his charges. It sounds like sour grapes when Vogel complains, but this year his team has a point on the line.

Indiana State has scored 184.20 to 176.85. Vogel said that the two top teams are an equivalent because his team has scored higher than once (178.15) in four tries.

At home, Indiana State has scored 184.20 to 184.85 at home. When not in the friendly confines of the Terre Haute city limits, the Sycamores have been unable to score higher than 174.50 in four tries.

Interestingly enough, two judges have scored Salukis 184.20 to 178.15, and they have also scored the Redbirds 184.30 to 178.60.

At home, besides the two 180- plus scores, Indiana State scored 177.50 and 169.05. Indiana State, oddly enough, has beaten SIUC and Illinois State with its 180-plus scores.

The Sycamores have scored higher than once (178.15) in four tries, but told to hold strong to win, "I think Nigel could have placed on the three-meter boards."

Eventually, things like this happen. There's no such thing as a perfect team, and the Saluki men will be glad to see their next meet.

Coach Armstrong's departure from SIUC, Steele has said, has moved his team into Armstrong's spot on the relays, and he turned in a 47.8 split during the National Independent Championships.

Without Stanton and Armstrong, Gary Brinkman, Giovanni Frigo, Barry Hahn and Erwin Khattab will have to swim lighter on his other NCAA meet.

Heading into the NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships March 15-17 at Indianapolis, Ind., the SIUC men's swimming team is ranked No. 12 in the nation.

But the Saluki men will be competing without the help of two standout performers. Nigel Stanton and Keith Armstrong.

Stanton, a sophomore diver from Ware, England, and a top prospect for making the Great Britain Olympic Team, has been withheld from competition because of questions raised by the NCAA in regard to his high school records and college eligibility.

Stanton had qualified for the NCAA men's swimming team, but two standout performers, Nigel Stanton and Keith Armstrong.

Coach Armstrong, a senior sprint specialist from Ballatville, South Africa, and a five-time All-American last season, has been absent from the Saluki

Men gymnasts put win streak on the line against Penn State

By George Pappas
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's gymnastics team faces several challenges over spring break with its biggest test coming against Penn State at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Arena.

The Salukis, who won the Missouri Valley Conference meet against the fifth-ranked Salukis, 188-182, will travel to Baton Rouge, La., to compete against LSU in the SEC Meet on Monday and to Houston to meet Hermann's Houston Baptist on Wednesday.

But Saluki Coach Bill Meade is excited about the chance to compete against the third-ranked team Friday night with the 9-2 Nit­tanly Lions.

"We have another good meet, like the one against Nebraska," Meade said. "Since they're ranked higher than we are, this would be a nice win for us."

The Nittany Lions are ranked third in NCAA. The Salukis beat second-ranked Nebraska on Feb. 26. Penn State lost to Nebraska earlier in the year. Meade said the Salukis and Penn State are similar teams and the meet against Penn State will be similar to the meet against Nebraska.

"They (the Nittany Lions) have a very hard season and so do we," Meade said. "Both of us rely on specialists to do the rest of the scoring. We're going to put the pressure on Penn State just like we did on Nebraska. Whichever team cracks first will probably lose." Nebraska cracked on the high bar and that led the way for the Salukis victory last weekend. The Illini cracked on the parallel bars, paving the way for the Saluki victory last weekend.

Senior Herb Voss will have his hands full on the pommel horse against Penn State's Bill Neale and will likely crack first.

"I'm going to attack it like a freshman," he said. "I'm going to do my best and not think about the score."

Meade said the reason he selected Neale is because he has a 9.75 average on the horse this year and has recorded a 9.95. Voss is averaging a 9.76 this year and has a 9.8 in Neale's best mark a 9.8, which he set last year. Meade said he has three times.

Saluki record in 9.6 by Brian Babcock, now a Saluki assistant coach.

Konn Viscardi works three events and is the best man on the bars and floor exercise. He will do a routine and floor routine this weekend and fired his hand full on the pommel horse.

All-American Terry Bartlett is Penn State's cream of the crop. He has a 9.86 all-around score this year with his best marks a 9.86 on the floor exercise, a 9.66 parallel bars, a 9.69 high bar and a 9.85 floor exercise. Bartlett also does not always score well in every event in every meet.

Basically, he will be tested by Saluki's Justin Williamson, a 9.6 to 9.7 score on the floor exercise, and by Saluki's Brenton Price on the parallel bars. Brenton Price has the best vault. Any one of three Salukis could come with a good score to win the parallel bars. David Lutterman, John Levy and Viscardi can score more than 9.6 on the parallel bars.

Penn State will bring three freshmen — Tony Griffiths, John Shelley and Mike Maxwell — to the meet, and they can be compared to the Salukis' three freshmen that will be in the lineup.

The Nittany Lions' freshman, Miltenburg, Shales and The Nittany Lions' four-year veteran, has a 9.75 average on the horse this year and has recorded a 9.5. Voss is averaging a 9.76 this year and has a 9.8 in Neale's best mark a 9.8, which he set last year. Meade said he has three times.

Saluki record in 9.6 by Brian Babcock, now a Saluki assistant coach.

Konn Viscardi works three events and is the best man on the bars and floor exercise. He will do a routine and floor routine this weekend and fired his hand full on the pommel horse.

All-American Terry Bartlett is Penn State's cream of the crop. He has a 9.86 all-around score this year with his best marks a 9.86 on the floor exercise, a 9.66 parallel bars, a 9.69 high bar and a 9.85 floor exercise. Bartlett also does not always score well in every event in every meet.

Despite late collapse, cagers deserve kudos

Despite a late-season swoon of seven losses in its last nine games, caused by a stunning 30-point 30-pointer by Scott Shaw at Wichita State in the Missouri Valley Conference tourney, the Saluki basketball team etched its first winning record, 15-12, in stone for the first time in five years.

All things considered, the 1983-84 season should be called a success.

Kudos, handshakes and slaps on the back went to Van Winkle and his staff as they took over in 1981 after the Salukis went 1-29 and 10-21 the two years before. With a 165-98 win over MVC co-champs Illinois State, the Salukis moved in the final poll for the first time in nine years.

Van Winkle reshaped the squad. In fact, the Salukis experienced jumbo transfers. In total, seven players returned. Van Winkle, who manned the floor with five junior transfers. And, it was a season of firsts, developments, junior Kenny Perry and junior Tony Adams, who both had double overtime jobs in which their shooting guards in the Valley.

The Salukis were terrible on the road, wonderful at home. They gave Arena fans 12 wins in 14 tries, including hair-raising wins at Arizona and Stanford, and a double overtime job in which bench players, Harry Hunter, Van Winkle and Steve Hubbard finished off Xavier McDaniels, Aubrey Forde, and Smith. Forde qualified for the NCAA Tourney.

The Salukis' pre-season goal was a Gateway championship. For some, that seemed a very, very faint hope. At Miami, Fla., things were not smooth at point guard. A team has to have poise and should be a definite favorite in its own conference, said some points. But the big boys need help inside from someone who can hold his own with MVC horses such as Lou Pappas and McDaniels.

Perhaps Van Winkle just as large is at point guard. Birch, a small forward in junior college turned guard this year, played well for most of the year. He played in ISU's last four games.

He said, "I think we have a better than average team. But Birch has had some problems handling the ball, reading most observers to say he is their best point guard." Van Winkle said, "But all around, he's done a better than average job of it." Michael McKinney of Illinois State said, "Waymon Birch will be recognized, but he couldn't handle Roy defensively when we played them."

Bufford, one of the best shooting guards in the Valley, played some point guard when Roy went down with an injury. But he still played some solid key minutes. He played with a lot of heart.

As the Salukis boarded their plane, they were not looking for any improvement next year because of experience and talent. They will play on the road, and for most parts, they will play against teams that were their first year of major college basketball.
