Scherschel cancels tuition march

By Chuck Hutchcraft
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Student body president Tom Scherschel said Monday he has canceled the march on Springfield scheduled for Friday to protest tuition increases after receiving a letter from Lt. Gov. Paul Simon who "strongly" recommended that Scherschel reconsider having the march.

In his letter which Scherschel received Monday, Simon said he has "serious questions whether a march on Springfield would not do more harm than good."

Scherschel announced plans a little over two weeks ago for a march on the Capitol steps on May 14. The purpose, he said, would be to get a public commitment from Simon and Democratic legislators opposing tuition increases at state-supported universities.

Plans were being made to include other state universities, Scherschel had said earlier. However, surveys at other universities by a representative of the Illinois Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction showed that student governments at the schools had little knowledge of or support for the march. "I strongly recommend that you reconsider your march on Springfield, in light of the Senate Education Subcommittee's unanimous vote to oppose the tuition hike," Simon said in his letter.

Simon said, "Things appear to be going favorably and I have serious questions whether a march on Springfield would not do more harm than good."

"As I told you earlier—and as I testified before the Senate Education Subcommittee—I am strongly opposed to a hike in tuition."

Scherschel said he decided to call off the march because of the subcommittee's unanimous opposition and Simon's "strong and final commitment to oppose" the hike in tuitions which Scherschel said are the primary goals of the march.

Scherschel agreed with Simon saying the march could very well "alienate those people we have already won to our side."

"We have accomplished the same goals before the march was scheduled to take place."

"It appears that there is a likelihood that the type of tuition increase now before the state legislature won't be passed for several years."

J-Board denies complaint hearing

By Chuck Hutchcraft
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Campus Judicial Board decided Monday that grievances submitted to it were not sufficient for the Board to consider charges that three Action Party members used a student government funded project for campaigning purposes.

Cheryl Weber, Westside dorm senator, submitted complaints last week to the student government elections, charging that the distribution of Venereal Disease Kits a day or two before the campus elections was a political ploy by certain Action Party members to win votes.

Miss Weber said that Dennis Kosinski, Eastside nondorm Action Party senator; Dave Maguire, University Park Action Party senator; and Mic Kawula, Action Party chairman, were responsible for distribution of the VD kit for political purposes.

In her complaint, Miss Weber recommended that George Camille, student body president-elect, and Jim Peters, vice president-elect, both Action Party candidates, be barred from taking office.

Miss Weber further recommended that Action Party be removed from the elections ballot until fall quarter 1972.

The elections commission last week dismissed Miss Weber's complaints due to insufficient grounds. The commission further recommended that the Judicial Board do the same.

Tom Anderson, a member of the Judicial Board, following a closed meeting held to decide whether to hold a case, said "After reviewing the election commission hearing report of May 5, 1971, and the letter of grievance submitted by Cheryl Weber, the majority of this body concurs with the decision of the elections commission that the grievances submitted are insufficient."

Workers to wear distinctive T-shirts

By Cathy Speegle
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Workers for Alternative '71 will be distinctively clad in special T-shirts during the 17 days of the celebration of University and community.

Dotti Davis, chairman of the Alternative '71 steering committee, said Monday that volunteer workers are needed as student marshalls during opening day ceremonies and to answer questions celebrants may have.

"Whenever they're wearing the T-shirt, they're representing Alternative '71," Miss Davis said. "Some definite

One of the special T-shirts designed for Alternative '71 volunteer workers is displayed by Mike Rottman, who has been the only worker on the silkscreening job. commitments to time may have to be made by the volunteer."

A meeting to enlist volunteers and distribute the shirts will be held at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in Activities Rooms C and D on the second floor of the University Center.

Miss Davis said the workers will act as guides on campus and help people who want to know more about the cultural events.

The T-shirts are silkscreened in black and white with the Alternative '71 design emblem, which also appears on posters publicizing the event.

Mike Rottman, a senior in art, did all the silkscreening of shirts.

Buzz Spector, another member of the steering committee, said the Alternative '71 design was created by Dave Hencke in University Graphics. Spector said the design, which looks like stems and a sun, is a conceptual design representing disorder and chaos on one side, learning and order on the other, and community caught in the balance.

Miss Davis said there are no plans to sell the T-shirts during Alternative '71. "If there are any left over when Alternative '71 is finished, we'll sell them then," she said.

Horsley bill killed by Illinois Senate

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois State Senate Monday defeated another in a series of bills sponsored by Springfield Sen. G. William Horsley, Republican, to curb unrest on Illinois campuses.

Voting 23 to 12, the Senate killed a bill which would have permitted college administrators to get injunctions against possible trouble makers without first giving the defendant notice or hearing.

The injunctions, which would be used allegedly only when a "clear and present danger to life and property existed" on a campus, could also have been used to arrest persons not named in the order.

The special injunctive relief would have been given to college administrators only.

The defeat marks the second time in a week Horsley has suffered a setback to his list of bills dealing with the matter of campus dissent.

"Senate Democrats have today denied university officials a vitally needed administrative tool for dealing with campus disorders. At the same time, they have indicated their lack of confidence in university administrations," Horsley said.

Last week, the Senate Judiciary Committee blocked several of Horsley's bills. The only bill of the series approved was the one killed Monday on the floor.

The vote, largely on partisan lines with Democrats against, came after extensive debate which called on the senator's sense of Americanism to both oppose and support Horsley's bill.

"Anyone who considers himself American in the simplest sense, ought to support this," said Hudson Sours, R-Peoria.

Sen. Robert Cherry, D-Chicago, said it was the same type of legislation that brought Hitler and Mussolini to power.

Sen. Cecil Partee, Democratic president pro tempore of the Senate, from Chicago, said the Horsley proposal is a violation of constitutional right of due process.

Addressing himself to the question of constitutionality, Sen. Jack Walker, R-Lansing, said "this wouldn't be the first good bill to be held unconstitutional, if ever it were." Horsley promised an attempt on the floor to override the judiciary committee and discharge it of his bills.

Raid defendants seek information limitations

Two motions challenging a limitation on the type of information that can be released by court and law enforcement officials about the April 22 raids conducted by the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, have been filed by an attorney for about 20 of the defendants.

Michael Deutsch of the People's Law Office, filed a motion to vacate the information limitation order, issued May 3 by Jackson County Circuit Court Judge Peyton Kunce.

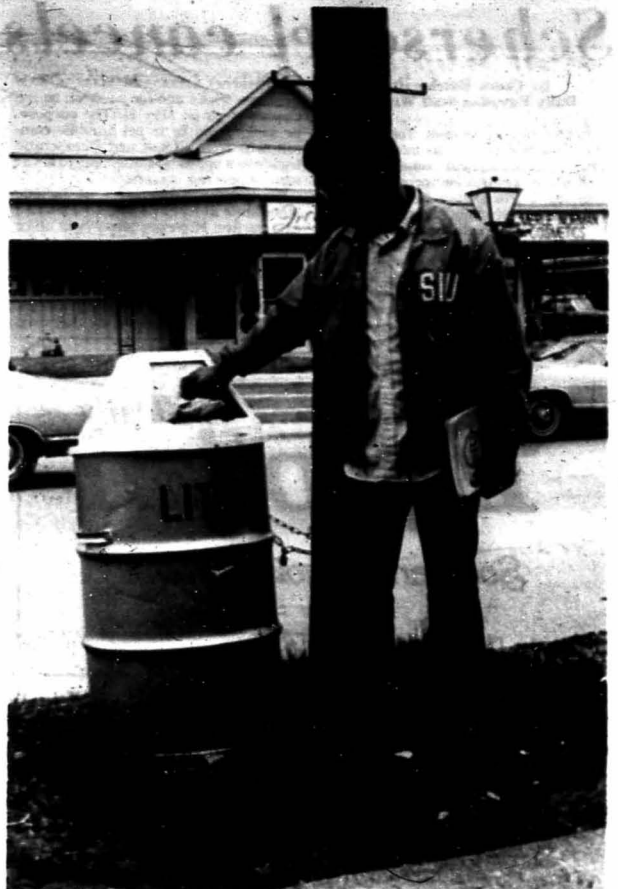

He also filed a motion to grant a temporary restraining order against the enforcement of the initial order pending an appeal to a higher court.

The May 3 order prohibits all court personnel and officers of the court from releasing any information or opinion, besides basic facts, involving the cases of the persons arrested.

It also states that motions to close all or parts of any pre-trial proceedings to the public and press may be made by the defense or the state.

Kunce is scheduled to hear the motions at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in Jackson County Circuit Court in Murphysboro.

Leads gospel singers

Music instructor conducts church choir

Courland T. Milby Jr.
Daily Egyptian Special Writer

With a smooth "Midwest-Southern" accent, Alabama native Kay Pace calls to attention her 35-member Inspirational Choir. Miss Pace receives a signal from the sound engineer to begin.

Suddenly a rushing crescendo of new gospel sound fills the Crusade Enterprise Studio. A truly soulful and vibrantly inspirational album is being born.

The album, "Walk with Me, Lord," is a first for the Olivet Free Will Baptist Church Inspirational Choir, directed by Kay Pace, instructor in fundamentals of music and a staff assistant in SIU's School of Music.

On the market in Southern Illinois for only one month album sales already exceed 500 copies.

"It all began about three years ago," says Miss Pace. "Olivet Baptist Church needed a pianist." Miss Pace began working with the choir when she took the job as church pianist. "The 16-member choir was all but organized," she said. "We went through many singing stages and soon we were able to sing in many different styles."

Miss Pace said the choir had been greatly influenced by the Edwin Hawkins singers and their version of "Oh Happy Day." All gospel music, she says, has in one way or another been influenced by Edwin Hawkins' "modernized" gospels.

"Before the Hawkins' gospels began," she said, "it was difficult to utilize instruments like bongos, violins, tambourines and the bass in gospel music. Now, even our choir uses the electric bass, bongos and several percussion instruments."

The Inspirational Choir continued to grow so fast that its membership had to be limited to 35.

Since 1969 the choir has performed and traveled extensively. Their concert tours have taken them to Alabama, Florida, Kentucky and throughout Southern and Central Illinois. They were one of two Illinois choirs selected to participate in the annual James Cleveland Gospel Workshop in St. Louis last year.

The choir has appeared at the Marion prison, nursing homes, benefit programs and on a SIU network telecast.

"We have done a lot of singing in Carbondale," says Miss Pace, especially in the large, predominately white churches.

"Gospel music itself, like it can be done in the black church, is a separate entity as far as music is concerned. It stands apart from all others: jazz, blues, classical and secular.

"The gospel can only be performed in its truly sensitive style," she said, "by black people. I think that all of the music that has evolved out of the black church is unique in this sense."

"The spiritual itself is uniquely black. It takes a real sensitivity to do it that other people just don't have," she said. "I think that as black people we should try to develop the gospel song and become more aware of it as being a distinct part of our heritage."

"The gospels need to be explored and people need the opportunity to hear it more if these needs are met, it is evident that the gospels will become more appreciated."

The dual role of instructor and choir director almost perfectly complement each other, says Miss Pace.

"Because of the musical training that I have," she said, "it is much easier to teach effectively. I can understand and appreciate gospel music because I can understand where music in general has come from and how it has evolved. The more you know about music, the better you are able to handle the music which you are concerned with," she said.

"The better the musician, the better the music. The gospel music will be smoother and more polished. This is what I always strive for."

Miss Pace attributes much of the choir's success to the church's progressive pastor, the Rev. Mr. L. C. Sumner. "His work, patience, diligence and faith in all of us has aided immensely in our accomplishments."

According to Tony Luckenbach, owner of the Varsity Theater and supporter of the choir, "Kay Pace's talent and charisma account for the development, capability and sophistication of, not only the choir, but an exceptionally good album."

20th Kappa fest deemed big success

By John D. Towns
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The 20th annual Kappa Karnival held at SIU last weekend attracted 5,000 to 6,000 persons, according to Marvin Evans, publicity chairman.

The event was sponsored by the SIU chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc.

Sheila Jackson, a sophomore from Chicago, was crowned 1971 Karnival Queen. Trophies were also awarded to Jackie Davis as first runner-up and Lois Robinson, second runner-up.

Evans said Kappas came from as far away as Berkeley and San Jose, Calif.; New York, Massachusetts and Washington.

Evans said the 1971 Karnival was the largest ever and he was very pleased at the success of the event.

"Everything went relatively well. The people were dedicated, especially the younger people," Evans added.

He said some of the proceeds from the Karnival will go to charity organizations.

Evans expressed appreciation to all the people who were patrons and to others "who helped make the Karnival a success."

NY director at premiere of 'Debate'

The premiere performance of a play based on the student riots of 1970 will bring the producer-director of the off-Broadway Cubiculo Theater to the campus Friday.

He is Maurice Edwards, who will attend the opening performance of "The Debate," which is to be presented in the Laboratory Theater for three performances and later will be staged by the SIU cast at the Cubiculo Theater in New York. It is an Alternative '71 event.

"The Debate" was written and is being directed by Maria Piscator, New York, who was an adjunct professor at SIU last year when the play was conceived in a graduate seminar and who has returned this spring to direct it.

The play resulted from the seminar group's interest in the historical parallel between the unrest on American campuses last year and the student debates during the period of political unrest in France a century ago.

It has been described as "an inquiry into the lives and thinking of the youth of our time, with a backward glance at 1870."

A cast of 11 will present the play at 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Laboratory Theater and then will take it to New York for performances at the New York Shakespeare Festival Public Theater, May 24, at the Cubiculo Theater, May 25-29, with a special performance scheduled May 28 for the New York Actors Studio.

The Cubiculo is a "show case" theater where producers and directors seeking new talent regularly attend. Edwards, a musician, dancer and actor as well as the Cubiculo's producer-director, has most recently appeared in the musical, "Fiddler on the Roof."

Tickets for the Carbondale performances may be purchased at the door. Admission is $1.25. Information about tickets for the New York performances is available at the University Theater box office.

Protection of rights termed inadequate

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second time in seven months, the Civil Rights Commission accused the federal bureaucracy Monday of substituting empty promises for effective enforcement of antidiscrimination laws—at a point when "time is running out."

The commission reserved its harshest criticism for the Department of Housing and Urban Development, but it said the blame for what it called ineffective and unaggressive civil rights action must be shared "by everybody from the President on down."

The Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University and chairman of the bipartisan six-member commission, called for a moral reawakening of the American people to prevent racial polarization of society, with its attendant threat of violence.

City to consider liquor ordinance

An ordinance that would strengthen the city's law against consuming alcoholic beverages in public places will be considered for passage Tuesday night by the Carbondale City Council.

The current ordinance forbids anyone to drink alcoholic beverages on any public street, sidewalk, alley or on any publicly owned or controlled spaces. The new ordinance would add that possession or transportation of alcoholic beverages, except in the original container with the seal unbroken, in those same places is an offense.

The Council meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Council chambers of Carbondale City Hall.

He said the cliché that "you get the government you deserve" holds firmly for civil rights.

"Unless you have bombings and burnings and violence, people have a tendency to forget and fall back to sleep again," Hesburgh said at a news conference.

If the commission's warnings continue to go unheeded, he said, "I see happening the hypocrisy of saying one thing and doing another. I see happening an enormous frustration on the part of our minority citizens."

The commission's report follows by seven months the issuance of a 1,115-page document in which the commission asserted that hostility towards civil rights, plus bureaucratic inertia, threatened to nullify civil rights laws of the past two decades.

The basis of Monday's report was a response from 27 of 40 agencies covered in the earlier study to questions on how they were carrying out the commission's recommendations of last October.

The report found little progress and, in the housing area, regression. It praised the efforts of White House counsel Leonard Garment and George M. Shultz, head of the Office of Management and Budget, to promote civil rights considerations in federal decision-making.

But leadership from the top, the commission said, "must be made an institutional function of the White House staff and not the ad hoc expression of interest on the part of individual White House aides."

The report said the Department of Housing and Urban Development has retreated from a policy of economically open communities that it had espoused last summer.

Sweden will take no action on POWs

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Sweden will take no action on receiving American prisoners of war held in North Vietnam until the United States and North Vietnam agree on their future, a Swedish Foreign Office official said Monday.

He said Sweden had informed the U.S. Embassy here of its position following a statement by America's chief negotiator at the Paris peace talks, David K. E. Bruce. Bruce said April 29 he welcomed reports that Sweden was prepared to arrange for transfer of POWs from North Vietnam to Sweden.

A North Vietnamese delegate to the peace talks said later on Swedish radio he was disappointed that Sweden had stepped into the "trap laid by the Nixon administration for the transfer of the prisoners and their internment in Sweden."

The Foreign Office spokesman here said Monday that Sweden had not received any official request from the United States concerning American prisoners, nor had Sweden conferred on the matter with the North Vietnamese.

But the Swedish-American Shipping Line's managing director, Leif Jansson, acknowledged that the line has had several contacts with the U.S. government about the transportation of POWs, although he stressed that agreement by the United States and the North Vietnamese was essential before any action was taken.

'Ulysses' director makes comeback

'Tropic' shows what women can do to men

By Dennis Kozzaja
Special Writer

If a movie had to be made out of Henry Miller's "Tropic of Cancer," writer-director Joseph Strick seems to have found the best way to do it. Strick, who earned a reputation for being able to adapt "difficult" books to the screen ("Ulysses") before he was thrown off the filming of Lawrence Durrell's "Justine," has made what Hollywood calls a strong comeback with "Tropic," now at the Fox East Gate Theatre. Strick has taken Miller's rambling, episodic and marvelously obscene fictionalized biography of Miller as a bum in Paris during the Depression and placed it in the present. In so doing he has gambled that the timelessness of Miller's observations on the treachery of and necessity for women, and the stupidity, corruption and eternal optimism of man will work in an updated version. And for the most part, he succeeds. There may be just too much talk about the dangers of getting the clap, clearly more of a 20's disaster than it is now. As we follow Miller (Rip Torn) through one poverty-and-sex inspired misadventure after another, Strick treats us to readings from a few of the best passages in the book, some just satisfyingly filthy and gross, others more thoughtful, even profound. And, of course, Strick gives us Paris, dirty and beautiful at the same time, just like the whole Miller has labeled her. The escapades and passages used are, in my opinion, the best in the book. In fact, Strick's script has done away with much that is offensive or worthless about "Tropic." Miller's antisemitism, the pointless dwelling on unimportant characters, the overwritten passages that attempt to convey some genuinely perceptive observations on human condition only to get lost in tons of verbiage. As Miller, actor Rip Torn clearly seems to be enjoying himself. Torn is a method actor and one can assume that he spent some time with Miller before shooting began. How else can you explain a character who sounds like a combination of Humphrey Bogart and Bugs Bunny? No matter, Torn's characterization is a perfect combination of good-natured cynicism and leering outness that plays perfectly against the insanity going on around him. Torn adds considerably to the playing of some of the book's best scenes, including Miller helping Carl woo a rich woman via letters, and that great bit of treachery when he convinces Fillmore to leave his whore and then keep the two thousand francs he was supposed to give her. And, oh yes, there is nudity and foul language. But, I think, the parceling out of these elements has been more than equitable. Only the women are nude and only the men use the foul language, mostly when denouncing the women; a very sensible arrangement. In fact, what Miller has to say about women—"what they do to us with what God gave them, and what we'll do to get it"—amounts to some of the most biting and realistic dialogue ever filmed on the subject.

New hospital furnishings concept to be displayed at SIU Saturday

A "premier" presentation of a new concept in hospital furnishings will be staged at SIU Saturday. Dezo Sekely, associate professor of interior design, has announced. Furnishings designed and produced by Herman Miller, Inc. under the trade name "Co-Struc" for coherent structure—will be displayed with slides illustrating the various uses and the transportation system devised for convenience in nursing service, maintenance and sterilization. Standardized "boxes" are suspended from a wall rail, may be disassembled for a multiplicity of uses, and are easily moved. George Smeenge of the manufacturing concern will explain the new system, which required seven years of research in human factors engineering, including anthropometrics and task analysis, Sekely said. The interior design department of the School of Home Economics, the design department and Doctors' Memorial Hospital will sponsor the presentation. The program will begin at 2 p.m. in the Home Economics Building Room 140B. Doctors, hospital administrators and personnel using medical equipment, as well as design and interior design students are invited.

Environmental group head backs Ray Page

CHICAGO (AP) — William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), defended Monday the appointment of Ray Page to a post with the EPA.

Page, a downstate Illinois campaign manager for President Nixon in 1968, met opposition from conservationists when he was first recommended as assistant regional administrator for state affairs for the EPA.

Critics charged that Page, who lost his bid for re-election as Illinois superintendent of public instruction in November, was not qualified for the job because he has no experience in environmental affairs. Ruckelshaus told a news conference that the job Page took over May 1 is a liaison post which requires "Somebody with an expertise in state government." He said "there is no necessity for a background in environmental affairs" and that he concluded after reviewing Page's file that Page "did possess the necessary background to act as our liaison."

Fair employment plan to protect minorities

An Affirmative Action Program designed to assure equal employment opportunities has been staffed at SIU.

Jerome Lacey, as assistant to Chancellor Robert G. Leyer and director of the program, is assisted by Richard Hayes, internal compliance coordinator, and Burton Bond, Jr., external compliance coordinator. Their jobs are to make certain that all facets of the University, including outside contractors, are aware of federal, state, and University regulations concerning employment, training and promotion of individuals from minority groups.

A 12-page booklet issued by the University Administrative Council spells out the policy that Lacey and his assistants are to enforce.

"It is the policy of SIU to provide equal employment opportunities for all individuals regardless of race, color, ethnic and national origin, religion or sex. All personnel action involving University employees, students, and other personnel contacts will, therefore, be governed by an affirmative action program in compliance with the Statutes and Rules of the University Civil Service System of Illinois and applicable federal executive orders," the booklet reads.

"Actually, it is the responsibility of every individual employed by the University who is responsible for hiring—from the Board of Trustees down to the supervisor in the lowest paid job on campus—in essence, this program demands that the total University be involved in its operation," Hayes said.

Letters to the editor

Traffic rules require fluency in 'Parkinges'

To the Daily Egyptian.

Recent items in this paper suggest that some members of our community still do not understand the traffic parking regulations. Unfortunate misunderstandings arise because those responsible for regulation enforcement use words in special ways. Some tentative translations from Parkinges:

1. To regulate traffic—this means "to raise money." Correct translation is critical to thorough understanding of policy.
2. Illegal parking—does not intend direct reference to your behavior in relation to law. "Illegal" means uncharitable lack of enthusiasm for the "Parking Fund." Alternatively, "illegal," as applied to your behavior, means that as a result of your behavior some office of this University intends to deprive you of your most elemental constitutional rights. Without such behavior on your part, there would be no violation of law. Thus, your behavior is illegal.
3. Notice of traffic violation—does not imply any proven misbehavior on your part. That is not the issue—courts decide such things. This is merely a morale-building device to forewarn you that some of your property will soon be confiscated, or you will be denied the use of state (your) property.
4. Traffic fine—no reference to a court sentence intended. Fine means good, good means money (yours on its way to the Parking Fund).
5. "Set-off"—term applied to the processing of your money by the bursar's office whereby they help themselves to whatever they want.

Poem might influence people to reject drugs

To the Daily Egyptian:

This article was taken from "St. Louis Safety Topics," a short newsletter published by the Safety Council of Greater St. Louis. It could be meaningful to people who are thinking about taking drugs.

An unknown addict, lost in the dream of heroin, wrote the following:

"PSALM" OF HEROIN ADDICT TELLS STORY

King Heroin is my shepherd. I shall always want
He maketh me to lie down in the gutters
He leadeth me beside the troubled waters
He destroyeth my soul. He leadeth me in the paths of wickedness for the effort's sake.
Yea, I shall walk through the valley of poverty and will fear all evil for thou, Heroin, art with me.
Thy needle and capsule try to comfort me.
Thou strippest the table of groceries in the presence of my family
Thou robbest my head of reason
My cup of sorrow runneth over
Surely Heroin addiction shall stalk me all the days of my life,
And I will dwell in the house of the damned forever.

This psalm was found by a Long Beach, Calif., police officer in a telephone booth. On the back of the card in handwriting was a postscript:

"Truly this is my psalm. I am a young woman 29 years of age and for the past year and one half I have been wandering down the nightmare alley of the junkies. I want to quit taking dope and I try, but I can't.

Perpetual motion

"Jail didn't cure me. Nor did hospitalization help me for long.

"The doctor told my family it would have been better and indeed kinder if the person who first got me hooked on dope to have taken a gun and blown by brains out; and I wish to God she had. My God, how I do wish it."

Professor makes case for irrational numbers

To the Daily Egyptian:

In his recent letter Allen Landerman says, in effect, that when Prof. Fuller wants to measure the area of a square he will use little squares as fundamental units but for the area of a triangle little triangles are the appropriate units. One thereby need have no recourse to irrational numbers.

I shall try to make the case for irrational numbers using the ideas presented in Mr. Landerman's letter. Take a square and bisect it by a diagonal into two congruent isosceles right triangles. Four such triangles can be placed together to form a larger square with the triangles' hypotenuses as sides. The area of the larger square is twice that of the original. One might hope that by dividing each side of the larger into the same number, m , say, of equal parts and each side of the original into some number, n , say, of equal parts, one could generate subdivisions of both squares into little squares all of which are congruent. With such a little square as unit, the larger is composed of m^2 units and the original of n^2 units so the integers m and n must be such that m^2 equals $2n^2$. But there are no whole numbers m and n which satisfy this condition.

The invention of irrational numbers such as the square root of two enabled mathematicians to overcome such dilemmas as that just described. Over the centuries scientists have often found the constructs of mathematics effective for describing real world phenomena. I dare say from the point of view of ingenuity some mathematical inventions rival even that of the geodesic dome.

Critics put less thought in letters than did May

To the Daily Egyptian:

This letter is in response to Mr. May's letter of April 29 in which he expressed his deep appreciation and gratitude concerning the tuition increases. In reading his letter, it becomes quite obvious to me that he is actually satirizing the situation. I doubt Mr. May to be the Spiro Agnew of the SIU campus with his protesting protesters and demagogical demonstrators, but rather to be a person opposed to the increases who expresses himself through the use of sarcasm.

In this light, the letters sent to the Daily Egyptian appear to have been written by those who have emotionally reacted without actually comprehending the real intention of the letter. It would appear then that these people put less thought into their letters than did Mr. May in his. In this sentence, I say "write on," Mr. May, "write on."

May was using satire to put down tuition hike

To the Daily Egyptian:

Let me first admit that when I read the first paragraph of Jim May's letter (April 29), I was somewhat taken aback. However, as I read further, it became quite obvious that the entire thing was satire and all the stock epithets against freaks and blacks were blatant sarcasm. Since satire is an old and accepted form, I seriously doubt that Mr. May expected to be taken so seriously. I am writing this letter so that those of you who thought he was serious will know that Jim May favors a tuition hike about as much as Jonathan Swift favored eating children so let's cut the man some slack.

We're all just one big minority

Editor's Note: This roundup of news and comments on actions and issues in the Student Senate is presented each week by Daily Egyptian staff writer Chuck Hutchcraft as an extra look at what's going on in student government.

By Chuck Hutchcraft
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Last March student body president Tom Scherschel filed a case with the Campus Judicial Board. He charged that the six undergraduate representatives selected by the Student Senate to be members of the Provisional University Senate were not representative of all minority groups on this campus. So there was the case, Scherschel vs. the Student Senate.

Judicial Board Chairman Elvie Rowland presided. The Judicial Board, in a 6-3 decision ruled in favor of Scherschel.

The decision of the board read: "It is our considered opinion that the Student Senate failed to select a representative body of students for the six non-Senate representatives to the University Senate."

The board further ruled that the senate's selection did not comply with the student government constitution, which the Board said, "requires that the representation be representative of the entire student body."

The Student Senate, the board said, "failed substantially to provide representation which reflects various constituencies present in this student body."

The Judicial Board then directed the Student Senate to "once again study the problem and initiate such action as will provide a greater opportunity for a result compatible with this decision than utilized in their original action."

As of two weeks ago, the senate had taken no action.

Chancellor Robert G. Layer issued an ultimatum to the Student Senate and the Campus Judicial Board giving them 10 days to solve the problem of seating the six at-large undergraduate students. The chancellor issued the ultimatum to Rowland and to John McCaffrey, student body vice president.

If no solution was reached within the 10-day deadline, Layer said, the Student Conduct Review Board would decide the method of selecting the six representatives.

So Rowland and McCaffrey set out to find a selection process which would insure minority group representation.

Last Wednesday they announced their plans. They called for the creation of an ad hoc nominating committee. It would consist of representatives from living areas and organizations which consisted of and dealt with minority groups.

Their plan, thought McCaffrey and Rowland, would surely comply with the Judicial's Board decision last March and provide for minority representation.

At last Wednesday's Student Senate meeting McCaffrey voiced this feeling. But Rowland disagreed with McCaffrey's phrasing. He wanted the word "minority" stricken from the minutes of the meeting.

Students as a whole, Rowland said, are a minority. Therefore, he contended, there are no minority groups within the student body.

The case, Scherschel vs. the Student Senate, in which the Judicial Board ruled that substantial representation of the student body should reflect various constituencies contained in the student body, was thus nullified because there are no minority groups within the student body.

It's funny how far people get from walking in circles.

Graduate School policy downgrades research

To the Daily Egyptian:

We are in the middle of a change in the outlook toward research in the universities, and this is especially true at SIU, Carbondale campus. People who do not understand or do not have the ability or the inclination to do research have created an atmosphere in which research is condemned as irrelevant.

I would care less about this opinion if the administration would not be affected by the voicing of such a belief. From the not-too-far-away image of the university as the sanctuary of research, we are now in the position of rejecting research as one of the fundamental functions of the university. The pendulum has gone far enough, and it is time that research is considered in its proper context. This is why I am sensitive about the actions of the administration.

The recent resolution of the Graduate School establishing summer research awards, even though this in itself is an indication of the importance that the University attaches to the research effort of their faculty, implies a rationale that is in my understanding wrong. Research, in the view of the Graduate School, is considered a seasonal activity. How can anybody think that a normal and fundamental activity of the University has to be performed just in summer or that it is a reward.

This policy is detrimental to the development of an environment in which research has so much to contribute. The attitude and lack of appreciation for research is also found in the unbelievable formula of releasing time for research. If research is one of the normal functions of the faculty, then release time is not only unnecessary, but detrimental. Has any administrator given release time for teaching? Let us be sincere, with ourselves and operate in a logical way.

Taking satire literally hinders understanding

To the Daily Egyptian:

It is with some kind of admiration that we wish to reply to Betty Brooks' profound and illuminating critique (May 4) of Jim May's letter to the Egyptian (April 29).

We share in her sorrow for Mr. May in his article entitled "Higher tuition will end many college ailments." It is with blessed reassurance that we find great minds like that of Miss Brooks still thriving in major intellectual communities such as SIU. We thought that the word "Negro" was a derivative of the term "Negroid," but Miss Brooks traced its origin to Jim May.

Mr. May seems to feel that the cure for college ailments is achieved through tuition hikes and prejudice. Nothing could be further from the truth. Tuition hikes are not helping the situation at all. We believe that there should be liberty and justice for all—not just for those who deserve it.

In all sincerity, it is our intention not to offend anybody with these attempts at humor. We are primarily concerned with the people who take literally socratic irony such as Jim May's. This is certainly not the first time, even in recent letters to the Egyptian, that people have made serious rebuttal to satirical articles. Perhaps if we take a little more time to realize the point that is being made, rather than getting angry, we could better understand each other.

World is doing bad job giving equal opportunity

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is an open letter to Jim May. The letter you wrote in regard to the tuition hike was quite commendable. You not only showed your disfavor for higher tuition, but you stressed what a poor job this world is doing in giving everyone an equal opportunity. The last line makes it perfectly clear (even if the rest of your letter doesn't) that you are condemning those who would raise the tuition.

Some TKEs and their "monument"

Fraternity inherits fire engine

By Mard Hask
Student Writer

Every school has its monument. SIU already has its cannon. But it may find a rival in a 1941 French Diamond T fire engine owned by members of Tau Kappa Epsilon.

The fraternity inherited the fire engine from a former member, Fred Ormiston.

Ormiston purchased the fire engine last year at an Anna junkyard for $40. Before graduating and leaving for Texas, he took the fire truck to Eason Motors for repairs.

When fraternity members returned this fall, they found themselves stuck with not only a fire engine but also a bill for $1,000. The fraternity paid the bill and had the still immobile fire truck towed to the fraternity house.

Joe Trybulec, a TKE member, has done most of the maintenance work on the fire engine.

"We got the fire engine three weeks before Homecoming and decided to enter it in the parade even though it didn't qualify as a float," he said.

"It took more money to sandblast, wet-sand and paint the fire truck red in time for the parade.

"The truck runs at 45 miles an hour at top speed but not for long because it's easily overheated."

Trybulec said "Actually, there's no reason why it should run since we can't find parts for a 1941 fire engine, but it has.

"We have a beer keg attached to the side of the fire engine which holds 18 gallons of gasoline, and we pour that in when we take it somewhere. It takes eight quarts of oil."

The fraternity has not managed to take the seven-ton, 25-foot long fire truck far from the backyard of the fraternity house where it is parked.

"The school has given us permission to park it at the back of the house and drive it on campus, but without license plates that's as far as we can go. We can't park it on the street," Trybulec said.

The back half of the fire engine is currently being used as a platform for sunbathing. The TKE's plan to use it as a taxi for future rush functions if the fire engine ever runs properly.

"The funniest part of it is that we couldn't sell it if we wanted to because Ormiston has the title," Trybulec said. "We hope to get permission from the University eventually to park it on the front lawn of our house as a monument."

With over $1,400 invested in the fire engine and no legal right to sell it, the vehicle may be on the TKE's hands a long time—long enough to actually qualify as a monument.

Higher prices seen for German exports

NEW YORK (AP)—The floating German mark means a higher price for Volkswagens in the United States, more exports of American grain and less threat to steelworker jobs.

For Washington, it means fewer worries about the balance of payments. And for the tourist, it may mean higher prices for that trip down the Rhine.

The Detroit auto worker, the Pittsburgh steel mill hand and the Midwestern grain farmer have reason to welcome the German action. Even the Boston and West Coast electronics factories should find it easier to sell overseas.

The West German government, in effect, changed the value of the mark upward by letting it float. This means that instead of a fixed price of 26.7 U.S. cents, the cost of the mark will be set by the law of supply and demand. The demand has been greater than the supply, putting upward pressure on the German currency.

The new price is almost certain to be higher than the old fixed one. In the first frenzied dealings Monday, the price was up to 28.23 U.S. cents.

The higher price for imported goods will apply only to German products and those from other countries which revalued or let their money float.

A Volkswagen which cost $1,854 before will go up to $1,890 if the increase settles at about three per cent.

The other side of the coin is that the prices of U.S. goods sold in Germany will be down by as much—unless Germany restricts imports of such U.S. farm products as corn and broiler chickens. Cheaper U.S. goods should increase the volume of dollar sales in Germany.

To the combined effects of cheaper exports and dearer imports will be added a possible decrease in tourist expenditures abroad. That trip down the Rhine will cost a tourist $12.50 instead of the old price of $12.30.

The change in money values comes at a psychological time for steel labor. With contract negotiations coming up, the U.S. steel mills face less of a threat from imports from Germany. Such imports as steel will cost more.

House may act

SST might be revived

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sponsors and foes alike say a concerted leadership-backed drive to resurrect the dismantled U.S. supersonic transport program has a chance of winning in the House.

Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma and Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, both put their weight Monday behind the effort to turn $85 million for SST termination penalties into money to keep it alive. The contracts called for payment of indemnities to some contractors if the project were canceled.

Ford denied the Nixon administration had anything to do with the revival effort.

Kid shows to undergo innovations

NEW YORK (AP)—Saturday morning, prime-time television for children, is changing.

New shows, more attuned to the needs of children, are being added to all three networks in the fall.

Despite the interest of a few individuals at the networks, this concern seems to be a large measure to have resulted from constant nudging by the Federal Communications Commission, the press, parents and educators, and such groups as Action for Children's Television.

If felt, lead to public television to take the initiative with "Sesame Street" and show what can be done when enough time, talent and money are applied.

It has been little more than a year since the networks appointed the first executives exclusively in charge of children's shows.

At that time they pleaded for time to develop and test new concepts and for existing program contracts to expire.

Each network has now come up with its showcase programs and here is a look at them:

—ABC's "Curiosity Shop," the brainchild of Chuck Jones, combines live-action, animation and puppetry to stimulate curiosity. Each show starts with a familiar object or theme, then goes to a connected idea or area or to a flight of fancy.

—CBS' "You Are There" is a revival of the classic eyewitness reenactments of historic events and is likely to evoke nostalgia in young parents as is the return of NBC's "Mr. Wizard." The CBS show seeks to involve young people through a style combining documentary and drama. Walter Cronkite will be anchorman.

—NBC's "Take a Giant Step" was conceived by the network's vice president for children's programs, George A. Heinemann, whose credits stretch to the creation of "Ding Dong School" in 1952. This is a talk show for children by children. Heinemann said, "This show is a step beyond the home-to-and-the-curiosity show and helps the child to formulate his own value judgments. And to change his mind, which is so important these days."

The "CBS Children's Film Festival" will offer the best feature films from other nations, including Russia, Japan, England, Czechoslovakia, Italy, France and Tahiti. Some of them will be new, while others will be repeats from the Sunday broadcasts of the Film Festival.

In addition, every half hour CBS will present "It's the News," 24-minute newscasts designed to interest children.

Math group will hear J. Olmsted

John M. H. Olmsted, dean of graduate studies and research, will present an address entitled "On Success of Periodic Functions" at the 96th annual meeting of the Illinois Section of the Mathematical Association of America.

The meeting will be held Friday and Saturday at Eastern Illinois University.

"This was something that got started up here in Congress," Ford said.

But no one was saying definitely Monday who would be the one to make the extraordinary move on the House floor Tuesday—including Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., who other backers said was going to make it.

Boland, Ford and other SST backers all said they have a chance of winning although they have taken no vote counts.

Rep. Sidney R. Yates, D-IL, the leading House SST opponent, said he does not know whether the move could pass the House. But he said he is confident it would not pass the Senate.

Congress halted all further federal SST funding effective March 30 and contractors across the country have laid off an estimated 15,000 SST workers and begun dismantling and packing nearly that many SST parts and tools.

The motion backers say the amendment they will introduce Tuesday to a $6.8-billion supplemental appropriation bill would leave $6.3 million SST contract termination costs in the bill but turn the money into funds for continued development of two SST prototypes.

The $6.3 million would keep the SST alive for the remaining two months of fiscal 1971 ending June 30—and then Congress would face another fight over whether to fund the plane for fiscal 1972.

Backers are counting on progress of the French-British Concorde and the proposed $250-million guaranteed loan for Lockheed. And they feel some House members have had second thoughts on killing the American SST.

The SST was rejected by the House by only 12 votes in March—215 to 204—and by the Senate 51 to 46.

Chairman fears end of draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee said Monday it would be "a calamity for our nation's security" if Congress undoes the draft in an effort to end the war in Southeast Asia.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., said the war is the underlying issue in what looms as a marathon debate over a two-year extension of the Selective Service System.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said the debate will be finished before June 30 when the current draft law expires.

The draft bill is expected to attract a series of amendments certain to produce lengthy debate. Chief among them is the legislation proposed by Sens. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., and George McGovern, D-S.D., to compel U.S. withdrawal from South Vietnam by the end of the year.

"I think its chances have increased considerably since last year," Mansfield said.

The Democratic leader also said he believes the Senate will approve the amendment to limit the draft extension to a single year, a move Stennis said would cripple the military manpower system.

"I fear the results, the chaos, that will be created if we go into a one-year period, or if we cut it off completely," said Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, senior Republican member of the Armed Services Committee.

The House has approved a two-year draft extension.

The bill also includes pay raises designed to help recruit volunteers. "I personally don't believe that with the present antimilitary feeling in this country we can have a volunteer army," said Sen. William Saxton, R-Ohio.

"Nor do I think that in a democracy we should have a mercenary army," he said.

Parolee to receive diploma; at one time had IQ of 69

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Harold Howard, whose IQ was 69 when he started a life term in prison 10 years ago, graduates from college next month.

Pardoned last fall, he works now with poverty area and delinquent children and last December was a delegate to the White House Conference on Children and Youth.

Howard remembers the day in 1961 when he stood before a judge in Louisville, Ky., and pleaded guilty to armed robbery.

"Another guy and I robbed a liquor store of $50," he recalled. "I shot the owner in the shoulder when he pulled a knife."

Why had he committed the crime? "There was nothing interesting on television and there was nothing to do," he answered in an interview.

Howard, who was 16 at the time, became involved in fights in prison and spent time in solitary confinement on bread and water.

Officials gave him a series of mental aptitude tests that revealed an IQ of 69, indicating that he was seriously retarded.

"You can be thrust into a situation like that, that is very up tight, and fail tests, no matter how smart you are," he said.

He was placed in the third grade, completed grades three through eight in a matter of weeks and went on to get his high school diploma.

"I made the change," he said, "because one day I realized I had no skills, no education, nothing but my calculated arrogance."

He also found friends in Bill Howard, the LaGrange Reformatory School principal and John Pike, the athletic director.

"Coach Pike taught me to die trying to do something," said Howard. "He taught me you don't ever give up trying."

"Coach Pike was the first white man to ever give a damn about me," Howard, a Negro, added.

Pardoned in 1967, Howard was accepted by Kentucky State College in Frankfort, with scholarships from the State Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation paying his way through college.

Howard, who received his full pardon from Gov. Leslie B. Nunn, is going to graduate school and then return to work with the underprivileged.

He sees the need for more and better trained probation-parole officers, more counselors to help youngsters.

Buddhists expel monk guilty of fiery suicide

SAIGON (AP) — The Buddhist hierarchy excommunicated Monday a monk who burned himself to death in a protest against the Vietnam War. Hue University students charged that monks of the Bao Quang pagoda were striving to keep his gravestone a secret.

The students said Thich-Venue-Chien The, 37, was secretly buried in an effort to deny him martyrdom in the antiwar cause.

The dispute between the Hue students—traditionally South Vietnam's most militant—and their natural allies in the usually anti-Saigon government An Quang Buddhist sect resulted in disruption of Chon The's funeral procession, after his self-immolation was disavowed by other monks. Thich Chon-Kim, a spokesman for the Bao Quang pagoda, which is allied with the An Quang declared, "Self-immolation is not the policy of the Buddhist community."

He said Chon The's suicide by fire in Hue Sunday—2515th anniversary of Buddha's birth—was "the decision of one monk."

"This man disobeyed the church. We tried to stop him, but he escaped and his supporters helped him. Because he disobeyed, he is no longer part of the Buddhist community."

"His funeral will be a family funeral only, not the funeral of a monk. In the name of Buddhism, we refuse to accept this act, but for the sake of humanity we must have a funeral. This year we must all concentrate on praying for peace."

Associated Press photographer Koichiro Morita reported from Hue that many students from Hue University attended the funeral at Bao Quang pagoda.

Tourists find Rome 'striking,' uncivilized

ROME (AP) — Determined tourists by the thousands resigned themselves Monday to a chaotic Rome without hotel service or sufficient water, and with undirected traffic and uncollected garbage. Only a few departed in disgust.

"I don't call Rome very civilized," said Dorothy Ruhl. "But I'm not going anywhere. I came all the way from East Greenwich, Conn., and I'm going to see everything in Rome, regardless."

But a South American visitor, after a one-day look at Rome, snapped: "This is chaos and anarchy. I'm going home."

The Eternal City that Mrs. Ruhl and thousands of others found on arrival was plagued by strikes touching many a city service and activity.

At most hotels, the management greeted them with the news of a nationwide two-day walkout of Italy's 200,000 hotel workers.

The visitors were left to make their own beds and do their own laundry, if there was any water. Room service was not available. Hotel bars and restaurants were closed. Switchboard service was erratic. The bellhop wasn't there.

The city is filled to capacity with visitors.

Garbage collectors and traffic policemen—along with all other city employees—were on a day-to-day indefinite strike for faster promotions and more pay.

The strike also affected the issuing of marriage licenses.

Some hotels and many Romans went without water for the third straight day. The city is rerouting its water supply.

Hotel workers seek more money, and shorter working hours.

Study of Barbados slaves earns grant

Jerome S. Handler, associate professor of anthropology, has been awarded a grant-in-aid for the preliminary phase of a research project of an archaeological investigation of the domestic life of plantation slaves in Barbados, West Indies.

The grant was made by the Wenner-Gren Foundation for Anthropological Research.

Handler said the purpose of the project, which will be begun in the West Indies next winter, will be to determine the effect of plantation systems based on slavery on the cultural traditions of African immigrants.

In addition to adding new information, Handler said the project will provide a check on the biases of European historical sources.

Blacks will fish, avoid Agnew talk

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Black members of the Illinois General Assembly said Monday they will "go fishing" Tuesday when Vice President Spiro T. Agnew comes to talk about federal revenue sharing.

Asked if he planned to attend the vice president's speech before a joint session of the House and Senate Sen. Charles Chew, D-Chicago, said he plans to be "fishing, going for a walk, for a drive or something" other than sitting in the House chamber, listening to Agnew.

Sen. Richard Newhouse, D-Chicago, a reported leader of the boycott, was not available for comment but an aide said he would probably have too busy a schedule to attend Agnew's talk.

The vice president's plane is scheduled to touch down at the capital airport just before noon. Following a welcoming ceremony with Springfield Mayor William Telford, at which he will receive a gift of Abraham Lincoln bookends, Agnew will be whisked to the statehouse for the speech.

Black legislators are not unanimous on the planned boycott. Sen. Cecil A. Partee, D-Chicago, said no one had contacted him about the plan but added, "I would hope there will be no boycott."

Partee said he will attend both the speech, one of a dozen Agnew has delivered to legislatures in two months of barnstorming for revenue sharing, and a luncheon afterward in the Capitol office of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

"I can't very well comment on or criticize his philosophy and ideas unless he comes to me and talks to me about them," Partee, first black president pro tempore in Illinois history, told newsmen.

"But this doesn't in any way imply agreement with his philosophy notions and ideas," Partee added.

City's annexation

State intervention may be averted

If Carbondale and SIU can work out an agreement locally on the annexation of the campus into the city, intervention by the Illinois General Assembly will not be needed, Carbondale City Manager William Schmidt said Monday.

Schmidt and Frank Kirk, Carbondale's federal-state programs coordinator, will be in Springfield Wednesday to testify before the House of Representatives City and Township Committee on a bill that would require the SIU Board of Trustees to allow the campus to be annexed by the city. C. Richard Grunz, Board legal counsel, will also testify on the bill, introduced April 22 by Rep. Gale Williams, R-Murphysboro.

Schmidt said the city definitely wants annexation, and will continue on such a course in Springfield if a local agreement is not reached. Chancellor Robert G. Lyster said Friday that negotiations on an annexation are over.

Grunz said Monday that SIU's position on annexation is that it is a local matter to be handled by the Board, not by the General Assembly. He said the General Assembly set up the Board to make decisions in matters affecting the University, and it should be left up to the Board to do so.

Schmidt said that the city's presentation before the House committee will be essentially the same as the presentation it plans to present to the Board May 21 in Edwardsville.

On a related matter, Schmidt said that the city is planning to testify soon before a state senate task force on appropriations concerning financial aid to cities impacted by state universities. He said no definite time has been set for the hearing.

Defector says Frenchmen are helping N. Vietnamese

SAIGON (AP) — Soviet, Chinese, Cuban, North Korean and French "military strategists" are advising Communist-led forces fighting in South Vietnam, a high-ranking defector from Hanoi claimed Tuesday.

He said the Frenchmen were former prisoners of war from the French Indochina conflict who were not repatriated under the 1954 Geneva accords.

The defector is Dr. Dang Tan, a former official in North Vietnam's Defense Ministry sent to South Vietnam as "minister of public health" in a proposed revolutionary government.

In the next two years, while he was establishing a guerrilla hospital in South Vietnam's Pleiku Province, Tan said, he saw "four or five groups of foreign military strategists, each numbering three to five men."

Tan, 42, spoke to the Associated Press through an interpreter in his first interview since his defection Sept. 26, 1969. He later appeared at a news conference, but it was not explained why he had been kept under wraps by Saigon's Chieu Hoi—open arms—ministry for more than 1½ years.

Tan's revelations could help explain recurring reports of Caucasians seen fighting with Viet Cong and North Vietnamese units. These never have been proved conclusively because U.S. and South Vietnamese forces have never found any Caucasian bodies among enemy dead.

Cease-fire ends; U.S. raids begin

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52s resumed bombing raids in South Vietnam Monday following a weekend cease-fire period during which they concentrated solely on targets in Laos and Cambodia.

Two formations of the bombers returned to the battered northwest corner of South Vietnam to hit at North Vietnamese infiltration routes along the border of Laos.

The U.S. Command said the B52s struck 15 and 17 miles northwest of Khe Sanh, a jungle-covered sector which has been under intensive aerial bombardment since April 21.

The bombing raids provided most of the war action in the wake of the cease-fires called by the allies and the Viet Cong over the weekend to mark the 25th anniversary of Buddha's birth.

After the cease-fire ended, only minor ground fighting was reported but the allied commands charged the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong violated the cease-fires 66 times with small-scale attacks ranging from sniper fire to shellings and ground assaults.

The Viet Cong's two-day cease-fire ended at 7 a.m. Saigon time Monday. The allied cease-fire, running 24 hours, ended at noon Sunday.

By allied count, the human cost during the cease-fire periods was two Americans killed and six wounded and 56 South Vietnamese killed and 36 wounded. For the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, the toll reported was 34 killed.

The U.S. Command announced a major step in the continuing withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam—the start of the phasing out of the last remaining U.S. combat division.

The Command said an infantry battalion of the Americal Division was taken out of combat status in preparation for deactivation.

Layer to discuss spring plans

An open forum discussion with Chancellor Robert G. Layer will be held from 8 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Pyramids Dormitory basement.

Layer will discuss, among other things, the University's plans to keep things cool on campus spring quarter, according to Stephen Robinson, a Pyramid resident.

The dormitory is located at 516 S. Rawlings St. The discussion is open to all students.

Air pollution talk set for Thursday

Purdue University economist Robert Anderson will speak at 8 p.m. Thursday in Lawson 231 on how to control air pollution without government regulation.

His talk will conclude a series of lectures on "Man and His Environment" sponsored during the year by various SIU departments.

Anderson formerly was a staff economist for the National Air Pollution Control Administration.

Jazz at SIU

The St. Louis Jazz Quartet, composed of musicians who have found a fulfilling blend of talents in the jazz idiom, will give two free performances Thursday at SIU. At 1 p.m. they will play at the regular Convocation in the SIU Arena. That evening, at eight o'clock, they will give an open air concert in front of Shryock Auditorium as a feature of Alternative 71. This group played a successful concert with the St. Louis Symphony at the Mississippi River Festival last summer. While specializing in stimulating jazz works, the four retain ties to all forms of classical and modern music, adopting them to jazz.

Field representative to talk at Phytos awards dinner

Benjamin H. Kirk, Decatur, a field representative of Stauffer Chemical Co. and a 1969 graduate of SIU, will be guest speaker for the spring awards dinner of the SIU Phytos Friday, according to Donald Kestel, Phytos president.

Phytos are students majoring in soils and field or horticultural crops.

The dinner will begin at 7 p.m. at Giant City State Park Lodge. In addition to Kirk's address, the program will include award presentations to winners in a club-sponsored weed identification contest scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, to the outstanding junior and senior students in plant industries and to the organization's staff advisers.

Kirk, from Norris City, was a plant industries major while attending SIU. He was a former president of Phytos and active in other SIU agriculture student organizations. He has been a representative of the chemical firm since graduating from SIU.

Students collect funds for Harrison family

A total of $300 was collected last week by friends of Huey W. Harrison, the SIU student who apparently drowned in the University School swimming pool May 3.

Thomas Finan, spokesman for the students, said Monday.

Finan said friends of Harrison's collected the money to help with the cost of funeral arrangements. He said the money was contributed by persons from University Park, Brush Towers, the University Center and along Illinois Ave.

Finan said the money was given to Harrison's father after the funeral services Friday night.

Students who collected the funds, Finan said, wish to express gratitude to those who contributed.

Reward offered for identity of hit-and-run driver

A $100 reward is being offered by an SIU student for the license number or name of a hit-and-run driver.

According to Jim Barnes, junior majoring in photography, his parked car was struck by another car at about 9:15 p.m. Friday night at 305 E. Walnut Street.

Barnes said the car in question, which he believes was a brownish gold or green 1969 Chevrolet, probably has a broken front grill.

Barnes said persons with information may contact him at 549-7924 or call the SIU or Carbondale police departments.

Rolls-Royce, Lockheed near agreement on TriStar plan

LONDON (AP) — Defense Minister Lord Carrington said Monday the state-owned Rolls-Royce company and American Lockheed are on the point of agreement to go ahead with the TriStar airliner project.

The two firms are negotiating a new contract, Carrington told the House of Lords, which must rest on both United States and British government support.

He said "Effective financing of TriStar can only come with the help of the U.S. government. Effective development of the RB211 engine, which had been designed specifically for TriStar, can only be given by the British government.

Carrington disclosed that Lockheed has agreed in prolonged negotiations to pay more for the 550 engines they have ordered. This was to meet soaring development and production costs. The firm has agreed to waive claims on the British for late-delivery penalties.

Rolls-Royce collapsed Feb. 4 mainly because it could not carry the RB211 engine program through.

Red ambassador may effect relations

By Arthur C. Miller
Copley News Service

HONG KONG — Communist China's appointment of one of its most experienced and trusted diplomats as its first ambassador to Canada could have a far-reaching impact on the recent moves toward improvement of Sino-American relations.

The ambassador, 58-year-old veteran diplomat Huang Hua, has a long history of experience in dealing with international affairs and has worked closely and frequently with Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, who is now running China on a day-to-day basis.

Huang has the considerable distinction of being the only Chinese ambassador—at the time he was ambassador to the United Arab Republic—not to have been recalled to Peking during the cultural revolution.

This is seen as evidence of the trust the Chinese leadership, and Chou En-lai in particular, place in him.

From his post in Ottawa, Huang is expected to keep close tabs on developments in the United Nations regarding the China-seating question.

There also is some speculation that he will be allowed considerable leeway in establishing unofficial or official contacts with Americans, though any developments on this front are expected to be gradual.

Much depends on the continued wind-down of the U.S. military presence in Indochina and developments with respect to American relations with the Nationalist Chinese regime on Taiwan.

But the prospect of Ottawa becoming another meeting ground for representatives of the Chinese and U.S. governments is certainly bolstered by Huang's appointment.

The new ambassador to Canada first became involved in diplomatic work when he served as the head of the Communists' Information Department during the Military Mediation talks between the Communists and Nationalists in 1946-47. He became deputy director of the Department of Foreign Affairs, Nanking Military Control Commission, in 1949.

Huang joined the Communist movement in the early 1930s. He was born in January, 1913, in Kiangsu province.

In the post-Communist period, Huang Hua rose rapidly and was involved in a number of important developments. From being in charge of the foreign residents in Shanghai in 1952, he joined the Chinese Ministry of Foreign Affairs in 1953 as a counselor.

In October, 1953, Huang Hua was appointed a member of the Chinese side at the truce talks in Panmunjon in Korea, the talks that ended the Korean War.

In April, 1954, Huang became the adviser and spokesman for the Chinese delegation to the Geneva Conference. The following year he accompanied Chou En-lai to the Afro-Asian Conference in Bandung, Indonesia.

Huang's first ambassadorial appointment was to Ghana in August, 1960, where he remained until December, 1965. He was named ambassador to the United Arab Republic in January, 1966, and left that post on July 14, 1969.

Other diplomats who have had dealings with Huang consider him an able, experienced diplomat who not only has a good grasp of international affairs but a personally clean slate with the Chinese leadership.

Huang's close relationship with Chou En-lai dates back to the Korean truce talks. They have had frequent contact since then.

For all of these reasons, analysts have concluded that the appointment of Huang Hua as China's first ambassador to Canada is an extremely important move. Huang is expected to arrive at his post in late May.

The Canadian government also has made a careful selection of its first ambassador to China. He is Ralph Edgar Collins, 58, who was born and raised in China and served his first foreign posting there from 1943 to 1945.

Collins' job in Peking is being made considerably easier by the fine reputation the Canadian diplomatic team now in the Chinese capital is making.

Under Charge d'Affaires John Frasier, the Canadians have established considerable rapport with the Chinese and are among the most popular diplomats in Peking.

They also have brought a couple of changes to diplomatic life, as well. For the first time since the Communists came to power in China, Coca-Cola is again available in Peking, thanks to the Canadians. For some unknown reason, Coke was not previously available from other diplomatic commissaries.

Also on the beverage front, the Canadians have begun teaching waters in a few Peking restaurants how to make whisky sour.

But that's the only thing sour, in Sino-Canadian relations so far. And the appointment of such a high-ranking official as Huang Hua as China's first ambassador to Ottawa seems to assure continued warm relations.

Chemist predicts disasters from rising temperatures

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP) — Unless there is worldwide effort over the next 100 years to control fuel consumption and energy production, a University of Illinois research chemist says a temperature rise may melt the Arctic ice cap.

Dr. Theodore L. Brown also told a spring symposium of the Upper Peninsula chapter of the American Chemical Society that "even conservative projection indicates" that the earth's temperature could rise four degrees or higher within 100 years.

He added in his address at Michigan Tech that in addition to melting the Arctic ice cap, such a four-degree-plus rise would cause partial melting of the Antarctic ice cap, raise ocean levels and in general change the world's climate.

Major factors in raising the earth's temperature, Brown said, are the amount of carbon dioxide deposited in the atmosphere from the burning of fossil fuels, such as coal and oil, and the heat produced by generation of energy.

Research has shown, he added, there will be a limit to how much the atmosphere can stand, and he called for the United Nations or some other international organization to begin monitoring and controlling heat generation.

DECATUR (CNS) — The sponsors of an annual pancake-eating contest couldn't find an opponent for Hank Haynes, a 210-pound radio announcer from Decatur, who has won the contest seven successive times.

They finally chose Brandy, a St. Bernard, as a contender—but Hank won again. He ate 16 large pancakes, 14 sausages and drank several pints of orange juice. Brandy ate only 10 pancakes and a dozen sausages.

Rocky Mountain fever on 'dramatic increase'

CHICAGO (AP) — Rocky Mountain spotted fever, transmitted by ticks, is more prominent in the East than the West and its incidence is increasing.

This was reported by Dr. Allen P. Peters of the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., in the May 10 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Peters said 496 cases were reported in 1969, compared with 208 in 1968. Virginia had the most cases, 91. Four resulted in death.

Peters said, "This dramatic increase caps a 10-year trend of an ever-increasing number of cases of a disease thought to be diminished in importance by the advent of the antibiotic era."

For 30 years, Peters said, the tick-borne disease has occurred most often in the South Atlantic and South-Central states and is now relatively rare in the Mountain states.

The tick is a parasite of such animals as dogs, mice, moles and rabbits.

The disease is marked by high fever, pains in the bones and muscles, headache, mental confusion and a red, spotted eruption which may become dark.

Peters offered this advice for avoidance of the disease:

—Avoid known tick-infested areas during tick season.

—Wear protective clothing, such as high boots with pants tucked in, when it is necessary to be in tick areas.

—Examine clothing and bodies thoroughly after being out of doors, with special attention to children's scalps.

—Inspect pets, particularly dogs, daily.

"FLEA COLLARS"

Freed from bishops, now they have one

By George W. Carnell

NEW YORK (AP) — The spiritual heirs of the early pilgrims, who came to America to gain freedom from what they considered the oppression of bishops, now have a "bishop" in their own midst.

The unusual situation cropped up in the 2-million-member United Church of Christ, and had its officials a bit bewildered.

"It's embarrassing but not serious," said the Rev. Dr. Robert Moss, the denomination's president. "You might say it's an interesting diversion."

The denomination, a merged body including former Congregationalists who stemmed from the pilgrim Puritans, has no constitutional provision for bishops. And some members still bristle at the term. Nevertheless, it was learned recently that a unit of the denomination called the Calvin Synod has elected a bishop as its chief official, conferring on him the customary episcopal title of "Right Reverend."

He is Bishop Arpad A. Beretz, of Hammond, Ind., elected at the Synod's annual meeting in Buffalo, N.Y. The Synod is a special ethnic group of congregations, mainly of Hungarian background.

"They're free to take any action they wish, but the church doesn't have episcopal officers," a spokesman said. "The Synod apparently now has a bishop, but the United Church doesn't have bishops."

"I suppose you could say he is a bishop 'in' but not 'of' the church."

The denomination is a 1957 merger of Congregational Christians, descendants of the pilgrims from England, with their emphasis on congregational autonomy and the Evangelical and Reformed Church, of European Protestant background and a tradition of connectional-style church government.

The Calvin Synod, derived from the tighter-knit part of the merger, is made up of 44 congregations across the country with a total of about 6,000 members.

County Health Department to interview 400 in area

By University News Services

One hundred SIU students will be interviewed as part of a Jackson County Health Department Survey. Interviewing started Friday.

Robert Sorenson, health department director, said the research termed "Survey 400," would establish a profile for the health status of the county's residents and point out how the department could better serve the public.

Four groups of 100 residents will be interviewed by trained personnel, Sorenson said. One hundred will be Carbondale residents, 100 will be Murphysboro residents, 100 will be rural area residents and 100 SIU students. While the study survey now is underway, the canvass of the other three groups started Monday and will continue through May. Questions asked will concern histories of accidents, disease, immunizations, physical checkups and nutrition.

Sorenson said questions concerning the research can be directed to his office at 342A North St., Murphysboro, telephone 694-3143.

Presidential primary

South may influence nomination

By Michael O'Connor
Capley News Service.

WASHINGTON—Southern states, always influential in electing a president but sometimes left short in picking a nominee, may be coming in for more of their share in the political action of 1972.

By this time next year, 16 states and the District of Columbia will be well into the planning for presidential primary elections. Victory by a presidential aspirant in a half-dozen of these elections normally sends the candidate into a nominating convention as a heavy favorite to win.

The South in past years has been a forgotten cousin in these pre-convention popularity contests. West Virginia's primary has heretofore been considered the only election where a degree of the southern temperament can be tested.

The North Carolina Legislature, however, served to change that last week by voting to establish the state's first presidential primary on May 2 next year. It will be the first such primary for a Deep South state in history.

North Carolina's decision to abandon a traditional southern practice of state convention-selected delegates came as somewhat of a surprising departure to Democratic and Republican professionals here. The election could be a befuddling issue for many Democrats now seeking their party's nomination to oppose President Nixon.

Much of this uncertainty is based on the political unpredictability of the South, which has, in the last decade, become something far less than solid for the Democrats. Mr. Nixon ran well in southern and border states in 1968 and has made quiet overtures since entering the White House to develop a Republican Party posture in the area.

Republican gains in the South also must be kept in balance with the ever-present political shadow of Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, who, running as an independent, almost threw a monkey wrench in the 1968 presidential contest between Mr. Nixon and Hubert Humphrey.

If a certain sequence of events occurs, North Carolina could become a pivotal primary next spring.

It will occur after two of the most closely watched elections—in New Hampshire and Wisconsin—stand a week prior to a crucial vote in West Virginia. On the same day North Carolina voters will be choosing their favorite for the nomination, citizens in the District of Columbia, Indiana and Ohio will be doing the same.

Since the other states have not drawn a great amount of candidate attention, North Carolina could emerge as the state which stands as a barometer of southern thinking on the presidency.

Democrats wary of southern voting whims, could back out with grace by agreeing to support a favorite son candidate from the state and hope to swing the delegation support at the convention. It is quite probable that a favorite son candidate, perhaps Sen. Sam Ervin, could solve problems for the Democrats.

However, Wallace might choose to use the state as a second springboard for his presidential ambitions. If he chose to file as a Democrat, it could mean problems for the party.

Wallace would certainly pull a significant vote in the state and might possibly embarrass any other established national party candidate who chose to enter.

On the other side is the gamble any of the frequently mentioned Democratic hopefuls might take to run in the politically volatile South to prove there still was credibility for a northern or eastern candidate.

Although ignored in importance by many politicians and ridiculed by others as only a meaningless popularity exercise, the early spring primaries have had a strong bearing on the outcome of nominating conventions.

Math now required

'General Studies cutback should aid student'

By William Barth
Student Writer

Students should benefit from the cutback of required hours in General Studies since it will allow them to enter their major field earlier than would have been possible under the former program, said Andrew T. Vaughan, assistant dean of General Studies.

Requirements for undergraduate students in General Studies were lowered to 67 hours. Distribution of credit required for students will be 16 hours of GSA, 16 hours of GSB, 16 hours of GSC, 14 hours of GSD and five hours of GSE.

Among concerns expressed by students is whether the new program requires that they complete a course sequence if they reach the required number of General Studies hours while in the sequence.

Delta Upsilon gets national charter

Delta Upsilon social fraternity received its national charter in ceremonies in Carbondale this weekend.

Delta Upsilon, a nonsecter fraternity founded in 1834, is the sixth oldest and includes 96 chapters at colleges and universities in the U.S. and Canada.

The SIU chapter of Delta Upsilon was approved by the SIU Inter-Greek Council last year. Since then,

Vaughan said that a student must complete any sequence of courses he has begun. He said that some students have misinterpreted the new requirements and dropped their last quarter of a sequence and that those cases are "the department's and the student's responsibility."

Another question has been about the requirement of three fields of study in the areas of GSA, GSB and GSC.

Vaughan said this meant each student will be expected to fulfill his 16 hours by enrolling in courses that cover at least three separate fields. He cited as an example that GSA 110a and b covered both geology and geography and that when taken with GSA 290a and b or GSA 210a and b at least four different fields of study are considered covered.

"Theoretically, a student could foul himself up," Vaughan said, but added that it would be a rare occurrence.

Mrs. Beverly Walker, academic adviser in General Studies, said that most students coming through her office seem happy with the reduction. She said more flexibility in choosing courses is now open to students.

Mrs. Walker said that although waivers and challenges have been abolished and advanced standing may soon be dropped, it will not affect students who have already gained them.

"Anything a student has already been granted will not be affected," Mrs. Walker said.

She said the biggest problem her office has had so far has been in the area of GSD. An option of foreign language instead of math was available to students before the change. Mrs. Walker said students already enrolled in a foreign language may use it to complete work in GSD, but all others will be required to take five hours of mathematics after this quarter.

Academic Affairs Circular No. 71-10 states that no specific courses are required to be taken except six hours of English composition, three hours of speech, and five hours of mathematics in area D.

Any student who has met all the requirements will be considered to have completed his General Studies obligation.

Ten hours of tape into 47 minutes—TV at gym meet

By Fred Weisberg
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia.—If you, like many other viewers, enjoyed CBS-TV's split screen work on SIU's Charles Ropiequet's final 5.6 still rings routine at the AAU gymnastics meet here last weekend, your thanks ought to go to a crew of 12 men who lived with this event for three days.

"We came in and started setting up two days ago," director Lou Tyrrell said just prior to videotaping the Saturday afternoon final session.

"So far, we've used about 5,000 feet of camera cable, five cameras and at least a couple of thousand feet of mike cable."

CBS taped everything that happened during the two Saturday final sessions and then Tyrrell was faced with editing over 10 hours of video-taped performances into a 47-minute (minus commercials) show for Sunday afternoon.

"We have seven hours to do it," the director said Saturday afternoon. "I really don't know how long it will take us but if we go over seven hours, the show won't get on the air."

That would have been too bad for SIU performers Ropiequet, Tom Linder and Mark Davis who made up the largest contingent from any group to make appearances on the show.

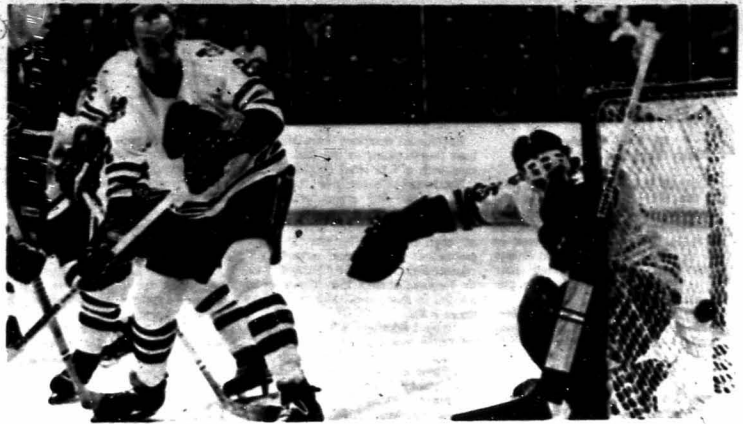

The crew who did the show will do all of the AAU series, some 19 shows which CBS is putting on, but Tyrrell said that they had never done a gymnastics meet.

"This is the first time I've worked with gymnastics since high school," Tyrrell said. "But I've done thousands of sports shows and once you learn to run the cameras at one sports event, you can run them at any event."

"Our main problem here is the fact that we get so close to the action, one camera can't cover the whole thing so we have to switch cameras more often and this requires a lot of planning."

"With most sports," Tyrrell continued, "You're so far away from the action that we have to use fantastically long lenses (telephoto lenses). Here a performer in floor exercises might get as close to four feet from the camera and our zoom lenses can't get that wide so we have to switch."

Tyrrell said that the approximate cost of putting the show on was $25,000.

Netters lose to Indiana as record drops to 8-7

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — The SIU tennis team, minus the services of No. 5 man Mike Clayton, absorbed a 5-2 defeat at the hands of Indiana University Monday at Ann Arbor for its fifth straight setback.

The loss dropped the Salukis record to 8-7 and improved the Hoosiers mark to 18-9-2.

SIU's loss streak began May 1 at the Tennessee Classic in Knoxville when they dropped matches to North Carolina, Tennessee and Georgia with a loss the following Monday to Big Ten champion Michigan, 6-3.

It was a difficult afternoon for the Salukis all the way down the line in singles competition as they could not manage a single point over the Hoosiers. Playing at No. 1 for the Hoosiers was former Illinois State champion Mark Bishop who defeated Jorge Ramirez, 6-3, 6-2.

The same situation continued at No. 2 singles where Graham Snook replaced Chris Greendale who after he was moved up from No. 3 failed to win a match at No. 2. Snook was defeated by Geoff Hudson, 6-2, 6-2.

Also going down to defeat were Greendale, Ray Briscoe and Clay Tudor.

SIU fared better in the doubles competition with Ramirez and Snook defeating Bishop and Hudson, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3 and Briscoe and Greendale beating Tom Dunker and Walk Herrick, 6-5, 6-3.

The win in the doubles play for Greendale and Briscoe was their eleventh of the season against four setbacks. Ramirez and Snook's doubles record is 12-4.

The Saluki netters will return home to face the rest of the conference in the Midwestern Conference tennis championships at the SIU courts Friday.

Coed golfers place 7th

The women's golf team finished seventh in a 16-team field last weekend in the Illinois State Invitational at Normal.

The Salukis had won the event for the past four years but the loss of some important seniors via graduation spelled the difference this season. Stevens College of Columbia, Mo., finished first.

There were some individual bright spots for the golfers as sophomore Terri Mirickle finished with an 83 to take the top individual honors. Kathy Rowlett, also a sophomore, placed in the championship flight.

The lady golfers will see action again Thursday in Minneapolis Min., in the Midwest Invitational.

Cubs beat Phils

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Fergie Jenkins hurled a four-hitter, struck out 12 and became the National League's first six-game winner Monday night as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 3-0.

Jim Hickman's third homer of the season with the Cubs leading 1-0 followed a Glenn Beckert single in the eighth inning and broke open a pitching duel between Jenkins and loser Chris Short, 2-4.

Golfers beat Murray State for 7th in row

The SIU golf team, winners of its last seven matches and 26 of the last 29, chalked up another victory Saturday by beating Murray State University, 374-379, in Kentucky.

The victory, which lifted the golfers record to 8-1, was their second triumph of the year over the Racers. Their first win was by a single stroke at the Crab Orchard Country Club, April 24.

Leading the Salukis were medalists Vito Saputo and Richard Tock who fired 72's in beating Mike Ritz and Paul Selano, respectively. Also victorious for the Salukis was Geoff Young who fired a 77 to beat Vernon Marcoulier by a single stroke.

Murray State managed to beat the Salukis in three spots with Chris Pigott taking Harvey Ott by a pair of strokes, David Perkin losing to Bob Filberth and Jay Wilkinson losing to John M. Querttermoe.

The golfers will travel to St. Louis Friday for a match with the University of Missouri before engaging in the Midwestern Conference meet at Silver Lake, Ill., on Saturday.

Lindner third all-around

SIU gymnasts place in four events

By Fred Weinberg
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa—All four of the SIU men entered in the Amateur Athletic Union's National Gymnastics meet here last weekend at Kennedy High School placed in the top six of their individual events with Tom Lindner placing four times and taking third in the all-around competition.

Lindner, just back from international competition in the Soviet Union, had only a very short time to work on the compulsory exercises but his optionals pulled him through.

The SIU junior took second in the high bar with a 9.6 final routine in addition to his 9.65 Friday routine and a 9.25 Thursday compulsory. Mark Davis of SIU was fourth in that event, throwing his triple-flip dismount Saturday evening.

The dismount had one flaw—he landed on his knees—but the routine was good enough for a 9.2 anyway. Lindner also placed fourth in still rings, fifth in floor exercise and sixth in the sidehorse.

Smith ends career with AAU tourney

Christmas came early for event winner Miss Metheny who grabbed and held the bottom of the beam but was awarded a 9.4 anyway.

Miss Spencer almost qualified in floor exercise, also. She scored a 8.95 in the preliminary routine, a score which was officially protested by Vogel. No action was taken on the protest.

Team captain Karen Smith, whose career as a gymnast came to an end in this meet, was seventh in the uneven parallel bars competition, one spot away from qualifying for the individual finals. Miss Smith, the only senior on the team, ended her career as a college gymnast with an 8.65 vault late Friday night.

She was a walk-on four years ago and has been a collegiate All-American for the last three years, team captain for the last two and was the uneven bars champion of the National Collegiate meet in 1970, SIU's last year of competition in that event.

AAU NOTES—Judge Mike Jacki of Lombard, one of the more respected judges in the meet revealed that the AAU didn't even bother to pay its judges slave wages for the six long sessions they worked. "Altogether, for room, board and judging, I got $25 for the three days," he said. "That's why they can't get good judges... there are about four good judges and the rest are a big bunch of hot dogs."

Jacki said he got $250 for judging the NCAA meet in Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Funniest incident of the meet came when Dick Mulvihill, Championship Urbana women's coach, and a superior judge who shall remain unnamed started a heated debate over the height of the vaulting horse. The debate became so heated that SIU coach Herb Vogel, still on crutches after a serious auto accident several weeks ago, offered one crutch to each. "If they wanted to beat on each other," he said, "I was just going to help them out."

Vogel had a number of complaints about the way the meet was run—particularly about the nearly 100 women entrants which necessitated two long preliminary sessions. "Gymnastics can't afford to have people like that. All they're doing is (bleeping) the spectator who will probably never come back. They should have had some way of limiting the number of entries."

SIU assistant Dale Hardt came up with the method: a series of two qualifying meets which would hold the number down to a reasonable level.

Freshman standout Gary Moriya took fourth place in the floor exercise with a 9.15 final routine.

National Collegiate Athletic Association still rings champion Charles Ropiequet of SIU, after standing in tenth place in that event at the end of Thursday's compulsory, came back with a 9.5 routine Friday and a 9.6 Saturday to the Indiana State's Tim Morgan for second in that event. Morgan threw three 9.35s.

Georgia Southern's Yoshu Takei—who also took the all-around championship—won the rings, high bar and floor exercise. Takei, Japan's 12th ranked gymnast, is doing graduate work at Georgia Southern, hence he was ineligible for the NCAA meet.

Perhaps the best performance in the meet came in the sidehorse competition from Tim Marcy of Hinsdale Central High School.

Marcy swept past a much older and much more experienced field to claim second place in that event. Included in that field was NCAA champ Mike Hoffman of Iowa State who took third.

Iowa's Ken Liehr won the sidehorse and teammate Barry Skolten won the vaulting competition.

Iowa State's Brent Simmons, also just back from the same trip to Russia Lindner made, took the parallel bars.

NCAA team champion Iowa State was bested by a veteran New York Athletic Club group for the men's team title while Georgia Southern's entry—made up largely of graduate students—took third. SIU did not enter as a team.

"I really think," said judge Mike Jacki of Lombard, Ill., "that if Lindner and Simmons had more than a day to work on their compulsories, they would have been able to wipe these Japanese kids off the mat."

SIU head men's coach Bill Meade, who popped in from his golf tour of the midwest for the meet, was generally pleased with his charges' work.

"I think Tom did a real good job," he said of Lindner. "I'm pretty happy with what they did."

Pancoat, Maroons stop Whites, 30-12

BENTON—Dick Towers said it was the best Brad Pancoat had performed all spring. Pancoat would probably agree.

Led by the senior quarterback who passed for 181 yards on eight completions in 13 attempts, the Maroons defeated the Whites, 30-12, in Southern's first spring football game.

Pancoat has been running second string for two weeks, behind Billy Richmond, but may have jumped back onto the first unit following his strong performance.

The Maroons got on the board for the first time when Pancoat hit tailback Mike Ebstein with a 73-yard touchdown pass. Ebstein took a short pass after breaking through the line.

Pancoat also scored the Maroons' second touchdown, a one-yard dive.

Other scores by the Maroons were Gregg Goodman's 46-yard field goal with one second remaining in the first half, George Loukas' three-yard run and Joe Tyson's 43-yard pass reception from Jim Bolton.

Goodman also kicked three extra points for the Maroons.

Richmond, despite only 73 yards passing, completed just as many passes as Pancoat on one fewer attempt. He hit on eight of 12 attempts.

The Whites' scoring came on Thomas Thompson's five-yard run and a 71-yard pass from quarterback Billy Perlans to flanker Rich Kohler.

Thompson led the Whites with 75 yards rushing while Loukas had 67 yards to pace the Maroons.

Ebstein's two receptions for 101 yards paced the Maroons while Kohler caught four for 97 yards to lead the Whites.

Lionel Antoine, playing for the Whites, caught one pass for 14 yards in a brief stint on offense. Most of his work was at defensive end.

Other receivers for the Maroons were Tyson with two receptions for 63 yards and Dean Stumelzer with two catches for 30 yards.

The game's only casualty was line-backer Terry Anderson, a first-stringer, who sustained a knee injury on Monday, the coaching staff still did not know the extent of Anderson's injury.

The Sahaks will stage another spring game at 8 p.m. Saturday in Carbondale Community High School's Bleyer Field.

The game will be played as a benefit for George Mendenhall Lewis School principal who needs a kidney machine.

IM track meet set

Any student interested in competing as an individual or as part of a team in the intramural track-field meet to be held on May 15 should come to the Intramural office, room 128, SIU Arena, no later than 5 p.m. Thursday.

A team may enter three contestants in each event except the relays. One of the team members must be scratched before 12:30 p.m. on the day of the meet or the first and second entries will represent the squad.

Each contestant may enter up to four events of either a combination of three running and one field event, two running and two field events or one running and three field events.

Any student entering the 440 or 880-yard runs or the mile run must have permits from the SIU Health Service to be eligible for the event.

Practice sessions can be arranged at any time during the day, except between 3 and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and at a time of the varsity track meets.

Terrell beats Pires

CHICAGO (AP)—Ernie Terrell, 6-6 former World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, used his long left jab to stave off aggressive Luis Faustino Pires, Brazilian champion, for a unanimous 10-round decision in the opener of an unprecedented closed-circuit TV boxing telethon.

On the beam

SIU's Terry Spencer mounts the balance beam for her final routine in Saturday's Amateur Athletic Union national championships at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Miss Spencer scored an 8.9 for the routine and ended up in sixth place out of almost 100 entrants. (Photo by Fred Weinberg)

Redbirds defeated three times

SIU baseball team takes league lead

By Mike Klein
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

A Midwestern Conference baseball championship for SIU became a distinct possibility over the weekend after Southern defeated Illinois State three times. The trio of victories moved Southern's conference record to a league-leading 5-1. SIU holds a 20-6 overall mark.

While Southern was disposing of the Redbirds, 13-6, 7-1 and 12-2, Indiana State swept a tripleheader from Northern Illinois to move into second place with a 6-3 league record.

A Friday game between ISU and NIU was rained out, necessitating Saturday's tripleheader. The Scyammers whitewashed NIU 10-0 in the first game before winning 7-3 and 5-3 decisions.

The triple losses dropped Northern from first to third with a 3-3 record in the conference's first baseball race. Ball State, 2-4, and Illinois State, 2-7, bring up the rear.

The Salukis must lose at least three of the remaining six games to erase hopes for a league crown. This weekend, SIU will play three games at Northern. The conference schedule will be completed May 21-22 against Ball State on the Saluki diamond.

Southern's weekend annihilation of Illinois State began Friday afternoon when Dick Langdon hurled the Salukis to a 13-6 victory.

Despite six runs and nine hits, the Redbirds did not demonstrate any clutch hitting. In the top of the ninth they scored four times without a hit. Langdon was removed after six innings and the relief staff issued seven walks in the ninth.

Steve Randall and Jim Fischer held the Redbirds to three runs in Saturday's doubleheader while the Salukis were pounding out 19 runs on 29 hits.

Randall pitched the first game, earning his eighth win against one loss in the 7-1 contest.

Although he had only one strikeout,

Randall faced the minimum number of batters in five of the game's seven innings. He faced only 12 men through four innings and then only three again in the sixth.

Randall was reached for a single in the fourth, however, but a Mike Eden-Duane Kuiper-Danny Thomas double play put the Redbirds down in order.

SIU put the game out of reach in the first inning, scoring three runs on two hits.

Bob Blakley's fielders' choice scored Eden with the game's first run. Eden had led off with a double for the Salukis and advanced to third on Jim Dwyer's infield out.

Thomas then hit a double which scored Blakley from first for a 2-0 lead. After catcher Mitch Nowicki's error sent Thomas to third, Kuiper lofted a fly ball to center, scoring Thomas for a 3-0 SIU lead.

Southern upped the margin to 6-0 in the third on Dwyer's single, Blakley's double, a single by Dan Radison and Bob Sedik's double.

A golden opportunity was wasted in the fourth when SIU loaded the bases to open the inning but salvaged only one run.

After singles by Randall, Eden and Dwyer, Blakley lofted a fly to right, scoring Randall and advancing the other runners. Thomas then lined to the pitcher who doubled Eden off third, ending the inning.

In the second game, Fischer went seven of the nine innings for his fifth win against one loss. Dave Martin finished the last two innings.

The Salukis struck quickly again, holding a 6-0 lead after three innings. The highlight was a second inning homer by Radison, his third of the year.

To an extent, Illinois State owed Radison a circuit blow Friday afternoon. He drove a ball deep to the left but it was caught over the fence and pulled back into the park.

The Salukis had eight hits after three innings of the second game, led by Eden and Radison with two apiece.

Eden, Saluki third baseman, extended his consecutive game hitting streak to 16 in the first inning. Four stolen bases over the weekend brought his total to 21. Jerry Bond holds Southern's school record with 25 thefts in a season.

The score remained 6-0 until Illinois State scored a pair of runs in the fifth.

With two outs, the Redbirds loaded the bases on three singles. They scored twice when Fischer issued two walks, forcing in the runners.

Any thoughts the Redbirds had of salvaging one game were quickly erased. In their half of the fifth, the Salukis scored the game's final six runs.

Southern sent 10 men to the plate, starting and finishing with Kuiper who opened the inning with a double.

Sedik followed Radison's fly ball out with a run-scoring single, upping the margin to 7-2 when Kuiper crossed the plate. After advancing to second on a wild pitch, Sedik made the score 8-2 when he came in on Joe Wallis' single.

The big blow that iced the game came three batters later.

With Wallis on third, Fischer on second and Eden on first, Dwyer knocked in all three with a long triple that bounced off the fence in left center. Fischer and Eden had singled to load the bases.

Dwyer's three-run-batted-in made the score 11-2. He came across with the game's final run when Thomas bounced out, second to first, after Blakley walked.

The Salukis face St. Louis University Wednesday on the SIU diamond.

Rosca makes Pan Am trial at AAU meet

By Fred Weinberg
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa—Champaign-Urbana, with excellent all-around performances from 23 year-old Olympian Linda Metheny and 15 year-old Theresa Felicia, took the women's team title of the Amateur Athletic Union's National Gymnastics championships here last weekend.

SIU, the United States Gymnastics Federation champion, finished fourth in the team standings due to a decision by head coach Herb Vogel not to worry about the team title and let his team throw some new routines it has been working on.

"I don't think the AAU title makes a lot of difference," said Vogel. "so I wasn't too worried about winning it. I'm pretty sure we could have won it if we had stuck to our 'safe' routines."

The lady Salukis disposed of Champaign-Urbana twice during the regular season and won the USGF title two weeks ago in Washington D.C. from the same teams which competed here in the AAU meet.

What Vogel was worried about was qualifying several more members of the team for the Pan-American Games trials. And one more gymnast; Marion high schooler Sarah Rosca, made the cut giving the Salukis a total of five gymnasts who have qualified.

The others, who qualified at the USGF meet, are Terry Spencer, Carolyn Riddel, Carol Donnelly and Claudia Coder.

Most of the new routines tried were broken, lowering the SIU scores enough to cost the Salukis any of the top three places.

"I asked Riddel if she wanted to throw her 'safe' uneven bar routine and maybe get on TV," said Vogel about the decision to go to the new routines. "but she told me 'I may not score well on the safe routine so I'll throw the new one.'"

Miss Spencer was the only SIU woman to make it into the individual event finals with a 9.05 preliminary score. She ended up in sixth place with an 8.9 in the finals after she touched the bottom of the beam briefly during the set.

SIU, Illinois track confrontation here tonight still rated a tossup

By Ken Stewart
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

A slightly crippled but still deadly University of Illinois track team will face the Salukis Tuesday night in McAndrew Stadium.

Starting times are 7 p.m. for field events and 7:30 p.m. for running competition.

The Fighting Illini will be coming off the heels of their 13th straight dual meet victory against Michigan, 89-61, Saturday in Champaign.

Illinois handled the Wolverines easily despite the absence of Bob Mango, its outstanding distance man who is suffering from a leg ailment.

What difference the loss of Mango will make against SIU—Midwestern Conference indoor champions—remains to be seen.

Saluki coach Lew Hartzog still sees the meets as a tossup with the mile relay—the final event—deciding the victor.

"They have enough strength to fill in for Mango," Hartzog said. "They're still powerful."

Having Mango out may be offset by Ron Frye, SIU's high hurdler, being hurt. He hasn't been able to work out for a week and a half.

Pole vaulter Guy Zajonc is also out with a pulled muscle.

"Other than that we're healthy and ready to go," said Hartzog, "and so are they."

Illinois has a 54-43 edge over Southern in running events if the best marks this season were compared.

The Salukis hold the edge over the Illini, 35-28, in field events making the pre-mile relay running score of 82-78 in favor of Illinois.

Five points for winning the mile relay would swing the meet—as it has in the past—to either school.

Southern's 440-yard relay team is favored since it has the best time, 40.4 to 42.5.

Lee LaBadie—who holds the best mile run time ever by a Big Ten Conference undergraduate in 4:00.4—is favored. SIU's Dave Hill, whose best effort this year is 4:06.1, can't be counted out.

Neither can Illini Rick Cross with his 4:03.1.

Gross is favored to win the two-mile since his best time of 8:43.0 is 15.5 seconds off of Hill's. The Illini also holds the best mark this season in the Midwest in the three-mile run of 13:24.8. There won't be a three mile run in the meet against SIU.

The 660-yard run and the 120-yard high hurdles may be in doubt with Mango and Frye hurt.

The Salukis are expected to sweep the 100 and 220-yard dashes behind the performances of Ivory-Crockett, Eddie Sutton and Stan Patterson.

Illinois has the best times in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles, 300 meter steeplechase and the 440-yard run.
